Civil Rights Group Won't Oppose Ford

LAMPS AND OMEGAS—Retired educator, Professor E.C. Struggs and Frank Melton, Omega Psi Phi Fraternity members, are flanked by two Lamps, Edward Newsome and Danny Brown. These young men attended services at Bethel A.M.E. Church last Sunday morning. The Lamps are students at Texas Tech University. Lamps not shown are Lionell Aaron, Charles Johnson and Gerald Fricks.

Mrs. Vinia M. Thompson Honored At Party

Mrs. Vinia M. Thompson was honored last Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the church annex by members of the church and the Angelic Choir in a surprise party, which also honored Mr. Garnett Lee, organist and director of the choir.

Mrs. Robbie Lee, president, sang "Give Me My Flowers" as Ms. Bettye Gant presented Mrs. Thompson with a lovely bouquet of purple Chrysanthemums. Mr. Lee and Mrs. Thompson received other lovely gifts, presented by Mrs. Heneritta Young.

Mrs. Mary Phillips presented each member with a single long stem rose. The group had a lovely fellowship together.

Mrs. Young and others gave words of encouragement to the group for a job well done for the year. Mrs. Thompson who has been a member of Mt. Gilead for fifteen years, five years with the Angelic Choir as sponsor of the group, has devoted much time and effort in projects with the choir as well as other areas of the church. She is a worker untiringly. She resides with her husband, Mr. James Thompson and son at 2609 E. 19th St.

Tech Stuns The Awesome SMU Mustangs

Awesome was the word for the SMU Mustangs, before they met Texas Tech Saturday afternoon in the Homecoming game for the Red Raiders.

SMU was ranked the nation's second best ground gaining team. They had speed to burn. They were big and strong. They had only a 17-7 loss to top 10th ranked Missouri on the loss ledger.

But Tech had Joe Barnes, Larry Isaac, James Mosley, Andre Tillman and a defense that wouldn't quit. In fact, the Raiders took charge of the game from the opening kickoff and the final 31-14 score doesn't really tell how thoroughly the Raiders dominated the big visitors.

Isaac, the Lubbock Estacado freshman, scored twice while gaining 98 yards, and Tillman scored on a pass from Barnes, while shaking both Barnes and Isaac loose with telling blocks.

But Barnes was the offensive story. The Big Lake senior had his finest hour in a Raider uniform. He threw one touchdown pass, crunched over for another, ran for a career high total of 173 yards on 23 carries and broke Coach (and former quarterback) Tom Wilson's career total yardage mark with 3,029 yards, and four games to go. Wilson's career mark was 2,902 yards.

Tech, although unable to score in the first quarter, established its superiority on both offense and defense. The Raiders gained 128 yards rushing and held the Mustangs to an unbelieveable four yards on nine tries.

But once they found the key, SMU couldn't contain the determined Raiders, who went 49, 49, 55 and 80 yards for touchdowns and added 47 yards before a Don Grimes field goal brought scoring to a close. Tech scored on its three possessions of the second quarter, with time running out on the half

School Lunch Bill Goes To Nixon

Washington — (NBNS) — President Nixon has been sent a compromise school lunch bill which increases federal aid for the program by 25 per cent. The measure was given final approval by the House last week.

Approved on voice vote, the bill will raise the 8-cent federal subsidy for lunches to 10 cents. It faces a Presidential veto since it is more than $230 million over the President's budget proposal to Congress.

The measure would also raise the current 40 cents per lunch up to 45 cents and the 30 cents for reduced price lunches would go to 35 cents.

The two Houses of Congress had battled over whether four states, New York, New Jersey, Maryland and Rhode Island, should receive the more than 45 cents per free lunch aid they are currently receiving.

The Senate originally wanted the provision to continue indefinitely, but the House balked on each turn. Finally the Senate compromised and suggested that the Congress limit the more than 45 cent aid to the four states for only one more year rather than an indefinite period.

The House agreed to the measure and it was sent to the President for his approval or veto.

the fourth time they had the ball.

That first half surge carried the Raiders to victory. SMU came back for touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters, but it was far too late. And Barnes, cut off by the Pony defense the last half, pitched to Isaac and called on Moseley inside for consistent gains.

The victory, before Liberty, Sun and Cotton Bowl scouts, shot Tech into a 6-1 season record and 2-1 in conference. This week Rice comes to Lubbock for a 2 p.m. Dad's Day Game.

Black Teachers Better Off In South

New York—(NBNS)—Minority teachers in Southern School systems are less discriminated against than in the North, West and East, the National Education Association contends.

An NEA survey has found that Southern states and school districts have done better than the rest of the country in bringing the proportion of minority teachers up to the same level as minority students.

Samuel B. Ethridge, NEA's teacher rights director, pointed out that large city school systems, especially in the North, have fewer teachers from minority groups than their number of minority students dictate.

As an example, Boston has only 7.2 per cent black teachers but 33 per cent of its students are black. In New York, the figure stands at 36 per cent black students, 8.8 per cent black teachers; and San Francisco, 31 per cent black students, 9.8 per cent black teachers.

Minority teachers have a long way to go, Ethridge said, in order to reach the national teacher-student ratio of 1 to 22.5.

Washington — (NBNS) — Although Vice President-designate Gerald Ford (R-Mich.) has a "terrible" civil rights record, veteran civil rights groups don't expect to actively oppose the confirmation.

The Congressional Black Caucus of 16 Democrats has not taken a position on Ford's Nomination. Rep. Parren Mitchell (D-Md.), vice chairman of the group said he would recommend that "at this juncture we simply lay out as a body Mr. Ford's voting record without making any commitment.

"We ought to talk about his vote against the Economic Opportunity Act in the 92nd Congress,"

Sisters Surprised At Hospital Party

Nurses on the East Wing of the seventh floor of Methodist Hospital surprised Mrs. M. Terrell, a patient in room 704-B, and her sister, Mrs. J. Simmons, as they entered the room singing "Happy Birthday", and presented them a beautiful cake, pink and white, one day last week.

Mrs. Minnie Stubblefield, Dr. Sheffield's nurse, brought a beautiful red and white birthday cake with this inscription and two candles, "Juanita and Maunita".

Many lovely cards and other lovely gifts were received by the twins. "It's nice to be loved", says Mrs. Simmons.

Ever Ready Club Meets

Mesdames Willie Merle and Ruby Hobdy were co-hostesses to the Ever Ready Club at their second monthly meeting for this club year.

Plans are being made for the Thanksgiving baskets which are given to the sick and shut-ins. Not only is this a project being planned by the club, but much effort is being placed on the annual Christmas party.

Mrs. Maurine Pharms is president of this group of energetic ladies of Lubbock.

"Mitchell adds, "his vote against federal health benefits legislation, against the emergency community facilities act. It's clear he supported a number of amendments, all of which would have nullified good strong civil rights legislation."

The NAACP is critical of Ford but probably won't oppose him openly.

"He is not a man whom we would have preferred to see in that position because we're in disagreement with him on basic issues of policy in racial matters," said Dr. John Morsell, NAACP's associate executive director.

But "we don't plan to oppose the nomination, it would be a pretty futile effort."

Veteran civil rights lobbyist Clarence Mitchell of the Leadership Conference for Civil Rights pointed out that Ford has consistently voted at the last minute for bills he tried to kill.

"The notable illustrations of his equivocation are the voting rights act extension of 1970 and fair housing in 1968," said Mitchell.

The designate endorsed an amendment that would have eliminated federal voting registrars, and it passed the House. "We succeeded in changing it in the Senate," Mitchell confided. "When the bill came back to the House for consideration he was against accepting the Senate version. But when he lost on that he then voted for the bill on final passage."

Mitchell also recalled that Ford lost in an attempt to send the more liberal Senate version of the 1968 fair housing law back to a conference committee. He then voted for the bill. "He voted rather consistently for all of the very bad antibusing amendments in recent years." But the group still isn't sure whether to oppose Ford, Mitchell said. "The trouble is, the chance of getting somebody worse is right in the wings, and at least Ford is a known quantity. We could predict just about what he would do on any given thing."

The Americans for Democratic Action said they will fight to the "full extend of our abilities."

Nixon, Cox & Tapes

Despite the obvious personal prejudice and bias of television network reporters, who strove to work up an impeachment mood and crisis after President Nixon's firing of Archibald Cox, that in itself was not a constitutional crisis; the President had that authority.

A constitutional crisis could occur if the Supreme Court ordered the President to do something he refused to do. The President has moved to avoid that possible crisis by surrendering the controversial tapes of his private conversations. There is no doubt, of course, that those who seek to make the most of Watergate, and who have convicted the President in their minds, see Cox's firing as a terrible travesty. (Lending weight, however, to charges that Cox was a political figure was his behavior in going immediately to the office of Senator Ted Kennedy upon learning of Nixon's decision to surrender the tapes.)

It should also be remembered that the President offered to turn over the controversial presidential private conversation tapes to a Democrat, in a compromise patterned on the Appeals Courts' suggestion of a compromise. Cox, going it alone after the Senate Watergate Committee accepted that compromise, talked of citing the President for contempt. The Massachusetts Democrat gave some the impression he was hell-bent on avoiding a quieting compromise leaving him out of the picture.

This from someone in the Justice Department, even though a special prosecutor, would be hard for any President to tolerate. Cox was, in effect, refusing a type of compromise suggested by the court, and after all the Watergate suffering, abuse, national upheaval and damage to America in so many ways, his star-role press conference rejection was more than President Nixon could stomach.

There is little chance the President will be removed from office as a result, despite impeachment resolutions amid the howls and yapping of a number of Senators and Congressmen, much of it politically motivated, much inspired by the new media hounds seeking the President's scalp and some more solidly based. That President Nixon ever agreed to allow an independent investigator as powerful as the President himself inside the executive department was a surprise to many; that the situation could not work out is not as much of a surprise.

The President had a case in his fight to maintain the separateness and integrity of his office and personal files. In offering to turn his conversational tapes over to a member of the opposite party on Capitol Hill, respected for his integrity by all, to allow him to decide what is pertinent, that should have been enough to end the legal dilemma over Watergate. He has now agreed to turn over the tapes to the court and certainly this should enable the Watergate investigation to be pursued normally through the courts, and the nation to get on with other pressing business.

Atlanta's Mayor

Atlanta, in many categories the leading metropolis of the Deep South, has elected a black mayor for the first time; the election of Maynard Jackson signifies two trends.

First, a growing number of non-blacks no longer react negatively toward black candidates. Second, Maynard's election was helped by the fact that blacks are continuing to move into the city while whites move out to suburban communities, or farther.

Mayor Jackson says he wants the outflow of whites stopped, that it's bad for the city's future, that most blacks want the whites to remain. Jackson is the type politician (he was vice mayor before elected mayor) who might accomplish his goal. Liked by many of all races, fair-minded and sensible, he is now in position to do much for Atlanta, and the nation.

Viewing recent events in Atlanta, there's a hint best working coalitions and effective cooperation, between the two major races in America, may well occur in the South, where the races have lived together so long and where courtesy and politeness, so necessary in the process, have been traditional.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

I hope every citizen of Lubbock is aware of and is taking advantage of the effort being made by the Lubbock Sickle Cell Anemia Chapter. This organization, which is less than a year old, is providing a valuable service to citizens of our community each week. Sickle cell anemia is a disease which is prevalent in the black community. In the past several years young people have fallen victims of this dreadful disease.

This chapter has clinics each Saturday, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. at Mae Simmons Community Center. Every Sunday, testing services are available at a designated church in the East Lubbock community.

We should take advantage of this program which will definitely help many people who are unaware of this disease. It's a must that we do our part to help such an effort. This organization was not even borne last year this time, but since that time, something has happened to help people with a problem which has taken the lives of black people throughout America.

Let's all get behind the Lubbock Sickle Cell Anemia's Chapter. If we can volunteer, contribute financially, or other let's do that. It is important for all of us. Thanks to those young people who didn't give up to make this chapter a reality.

The preventive measures by the Santa Fe Railroad by placing a fence between the railroad yard is great. There is another hazard in this area which needs to be brought to the attention of the officials of Santa Fe. Last Friday afternoon, and there have been other times, I was scared to death as I attempted to cross the railroad crossing at Juniper Avenue (near the Furr's Cafeteria building).

An engine, pulling several box cars, came from out of nowhere and scared me to shivers. I didn't see the oncoming engine, because of other boxcars which blocked my view from the crossing area.

In the past, this newspaper has suggested to authorities that some type of warning system be placed in this area in order that motorists may be warned of the oncoming engines or boxcars. There are too many little people who travel in this area for there not to be some type of warning system in the area. Not only the little people, but for the many motorists which travel to and from east 34th Street to their job or business journey.

I hope the proper officials will notice the way box cars are parked in this area. From time to time, I have observed boxcars blocking half of the track and not be connected by an engine. At times, these boxcars are left there for hours. This makes it very dangerous for people to cross this area.

The preventive measure used by placing a fence to keep young people out of the railroad yard is good, but there needs to be something done about some type of a warning system at Juniper Avenue. This makes a lot of sense, the way I see it.

Since the City Council is not going to make any steps toward enlarging the City Council this spring, it would make good sense for some concerned group in East Lubbock to call it to their attention.

Remember there has been a study which showed that such an enlargement is necessary. Not only has this been done, but Mayor Morris "Moe" Turner has washed it in our face on two separate occasions.

Surely, there must be some organization or the ministerial group that is concerned about representation from the East Lubbock community.

If we act now, it is possible for this possibility to appear on the ballot in April. If we are really concerned, we must do something now.

Everett, Wash., Herald: "When one finds shoddy merchandise or mediocre service in the marketplace today he is inclined to long for 'the good old days' when men were proud of their craftsmanship. But wait. Before he makes comparisons of today's quality with the way it used to be he ought to remember the textiles which shrank, the tires which blew out after low mileage, plastics which were brittle and foods which had to be prepared from scratch in the home. Time dims the memory of unpleasant things but it is quite likely there was just as much good and bad for sale in earlier years as there is now."

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

NIXON'S SLEEPER PLAY

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—In the privacy of his oval office, President Nixon likes to use football terms to describe his political plays. He often talks about the "game plan" and the "big play". The President plays a grim game and the name of that game is power.

Sometimes it seems that the game, more than the objective, occupies him. He seems to enjoy the power plays, particularly the quarterback sneaks and the sleeper plays.

His maneuver to get rid of Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox is typical. The President's real objective was not really to protect the Watergate tapes, although he would like to have kept them suppressed. He used the tapes in a sleeper play to remove Cox.

The President, who is suspicious by nature, became convinced that Cox was out to get him. His suspicions were fueled by former aides Bob Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and Charles Colson, who were trying to protect their own necks. They expected no leniency from Cox, so they whispered around the White House that Cox was really aiming for the President.

Cox confirmed the President's fears by unleashing his bloodhounds against Bebe Rebozo. This was bound to lead to an investigation of the President's own finances which are ensnared in Rebozo's affairs.

So the President used the tapes issue to maneuver Cox into an act of insubordination. Our White House sources admit that Cox was the real object of the President's big play.

The President deliberately kept the issue out of the Supreme Court which would have increased his political risks. He also chose to move while war was raging in the Middle East. He thought the public sympathy would be on his side at a time when he was seeking to end a dangerous war.

But the big play, as sometimes happens in both football and politics, backfired.

Haig Unmasked: The firing of Archibald Cox tore the mask off the new White House chief of staff, Gen. Alexander Haig. There were misgivings in Congress over the appointment of a military man to this powerful civilian post. But Haig's defenders contended, quite truthfully, that he was a man of honor and integrity dedicated to his country.

But it took the Cox controversy to reveal how the military mind works. Throughout the episode, according to our White House sources, Haig followed the President's orders without once questioning them.

He never asked whether it was right for the President to violate a pledge to the Senate that the special prosecutor could conduct an independent investigation of the Watergate crimes without White House interference. Haig's loyalty was to his commander-in-chief, not to the higher principles at issue.

Haig, for example, called former Deputy Attorney

General William Ruckelshaus and transmitted the order to fire Cox. When Ruckelshaus refused to do so, Haig was abashed. The general told Ruckelshaus in a crisp military voice: "Your commander-in-chief has given you an order."

Clearly, that was all that mattered to Haig. Someone forgot to tell him at West Point that his loyalty was supposed to be to the Constitution, to the democratic institutions, not to any man.

Crisis-Prone President: White House aides have concluded desparingly that President Nixon is crisis-prone. He seems to be drawn irresistibly to crisis and confrontation. This has stirred talk both in and out of White House about what makes Richard Nixon tick.

Those who know the human Nixon say he is a warm friend, a faithful husband and a loving father. But he is a shy and sensitive man, who is comfortable only among old friends. The moment a stranger walks into the room, they say, he changes personality from the private Nixon to the public Nixon.

This tendency to hide his true identity from the public has caused a certain alienation. He doesn't trust the public and the public doesn't entirely trust him. The President is also a rock-'em-sock-'em campaigner. He regards his political attacks on others as part of the game. But their attacks on him have left deep scars.

As a result, he has become acutely sensitive to criticism and he looks upon dissent as disloyalty. White House aides tell us the President is terribly frustrated over the harassment from his critics and the ebbing of his power. He feels that his critics simply want to obstruct him and that the public doesn't understand his problems.

For a man of Nixon's combative nature, he reacts by holding his ground and striking back at his critics. He has become a cornered President who is determined to go down fighting.

Spending Sprees: The Pentagon is constantly complaining about military budget cuts, but the brass hats always seem to have enough money to entertain visiting dignitaries.

Sometimes ago, for example, the 101st Airborne, Division at Fort Campbell, Kentucky, was told that President Nixon would drop by. Out came the paint brushes and whitewash buckets. Civilians and soldiers alike labored long hours putting together promotional displays.

Two days before the big day, the brass hats were told Nixon couldn't make it. They would have to settle for second best—then Vice President Spiro Agnew. Nevertheless, 47 buses were hired to bring in people from the hinterlands. A fleet of cars was rented to haul around the dignitaries. All told, the Agnew visit cost the taxpayers $250,000.

A few days ago, Julie Nixon Eisenhower visited the Marine base at Quantico, Virginia. The corps, it seems, had declared surplus a thousand acres of its property. Julie was selected to present it to the neighboring Virginia counties.

The leathernecks hauled out the Marine band and ordered refreshments. Ambulances were ordered to stand by and a medical evacuation helicopter was readied in case there were heart failures. Many of the hundreds of VIPs were ferried to the event in a special airplane.

The citizens of Virginia received nearly $3 million worth of property—but it cost the nation thousands of dollars simply to make the presentation.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

"Well, coach, with only Rice, TCU, Baylor and Arkansas, the four weakest teams in the conference left, I guess you're on the downhill grade," one of the visiting sports writers said Saturday.

The remark came just after Texas Tech all but demolished SMU's vaunted offense, handed the visitors their first conference loss and put Tech in the best position for the league title if Texas slipped.

Jim Carlen almost choked on his soft drink. "After the next four games, we'll be on the downhill grade," he replied. "Right now, we have the Rice game coming up. And, you just check the record, we haven't exactly been brilliant against the Owls."

Another write mentioned bowls. "Bowls are for the news media," Carlen replied. "Right now all we're interested in is the Rice Bowl and that comes off Saturday."

Lest you think Carlen was being unduly apprehensive, here's what Tech has done against Rice the past three years:

1970—Tech won, 3-0; 1971—Rice won, 9-7; 1972—Tech won, 7-3. That's a total point advantage of 17 for Tech to 12 for Rice. Impressive, what? That's a total of two touchdowns and four field goals in three years, two TDs for Tech, none for Rice.

Carlen has been dreading the TCU game for weeks, because "they play like it was the Super Bowl against us, and TCU has won two of the three games. Tech has beaten Baylor all three games, but has lost all three games to Arkansas.

Joe Barnes, an outstanding quarterback, had the kind of day that gets All America recognition. He was brilliant. And just as brilliant when SMU shifted to stop him by pitching to Larry Isaac.

With all due respect, however, we question the defensive strategy of SMU. I asked Dave Smith if they had made any adjustments at the half and he said that they hadn't. SMU obviously concentrated on stopping Barnes the last half, then left Isaac untouched.

The Red Raider offense, picking up where it left off against Arizona, did a superb job. I doubt that big Louie Kelcher has touched Barnes yet, except maybe to shake hands and congratulate him. The SMU star was blocked thoroughly.

It was another team victory, with both offense and defense doing a great job. Carlen was concerned about three of the breakdowns, two passes and a long run. "The first time that has ever happened to one of my teams". But the fourth run was against reserves.

Carlen's press conference: "I thought Barnes, Isaac, Tillman, Ferguson had outstanding games on offense. Knaus and Beery had outstanding defensive games."

"The breakdowns concern me. One fumble was a bad snap, but the other two were just fumbles. They not only cost us points, but they gave SMU points. We'll work on that this week."

"When you talk of Rice, you have to consider who they played. Aside from one easy game, their other opponents were in the top 20. They've probably played as tough a schedule as anyone in the nation."

"Rice has a good receiving corps, two good running backs. Kramer, a freshman quarterback, is going to be a good one. Their offensive line is a lot like ours. Rice's defensive line is better than SMU's and their free safety is as good as anyone. Their middle guard is outstanding."

Carlen said that Quarterback Tommy Duniven isn't being red shirted, that he's dressed out for every game, but "we won't play him unless we have to." Some six players aren't suiting up because of injuries and obviously are being held out.

Monday Carlen started a series of "spring training" for reserves, with the B team, jayvees, etc., scrimmaging at both ends of the field, then against each other and then running Rice plays.

At least national ranking wasn't, for once, the kiss of death, a fact that Carlen mentioned in his post-game conference. In fact, he went into rankings in detail with the writers.

In his honest estimation, Tech belongs near, or at, the top of the second 10, and he thinks one or two top 10 teams don't belong that high. But he isn't going to quibble. Again, he refused to be drawn into any discussion of post season bowls about Tech.

Actually, post season bowls are starting to shape up. Notre Dame, Penn State, Alabama and either Ohio State or Michigan are sure bets to wind up in bowls. I'd almost predict that Penn State will be in the Cotton and Notre Dame in the Sugar, maybe against 'Bama.

If Tech keeps rolling, it could go to the Gator, probably, with both Liberty and Sun highly interested. And with a 10-1 record, Tech could be on the Sugar list.

It's early yet and a lot can happen, so speculation is just that at this point and doesn't mean much.
