

NAACP Gives Atlanta Chapter 30-Days on Desegregation Plans

Indianapolis—(NBNS)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People gave its Atlanta chapter 30 days to rescind a school desegregation plan in that city which calls for minimum integration and busing of school children in exchange for more administrative jobs, including that of superintendent of schools, for blacks in the Atlanta school system.

If the Atlanta officials fail to withdraw the compromise which they worked out in March, they will be removed from their posts and new elections will be held.

The penalty was aimed primarily at Lonnie King, the suspended president of the Atlanta chapter, who, if he fails to accede to the ultimatum, could be barred from holding office in the NAACP for as much as four years.

The ultimatum came during the first day of the 64th annual convention of the NAACP, which is being held here.

"Because of his (Lonnie King's) primary responsibility, (the NAACP national office) removes Lonnie King from office forthwith and denies him the privilege of holding office in a branch or other subdivision of the association for a period of two years," stated the decision of the Committee on Branches and Youth Work.

The action was reportedly taken to dissuade other chapters from pursuing policies different from those of the national office.

235 Shifted From Holmesburg Prison

Philadelphia—(NBN)—Following the stabbing death of the warden and deputy warden at Philadelphia's city jail, Holmesburg, some 235 prisoners among the "more troublesome" have been transferred to state prisons in other parts of the state.

The action, which is aimed at relieving overcrowding at the county institution, played a role in the stabbing deaths on May 31 of Warden Patrick Curran and Deputy Warden Robert Fromhold by two inmates.

The Holmesburg institution was built to accommodate fewer than 700 inmates, but is usually holding about 1,200 men, most of whom are awaiting trial. But a backlog of up to two years in the state's court system has caused the prison population to mount daily.

More Black Living in Poverty Now Than One Year Ago, Study Shows

Washington—(NBNS)—Although the number of white Americans living in poverty declined by more than one million last year, the number of black Americans officially in poverty rose by 300,000 over last year.

In a report issued by the Census Bureau, it was shown that black families have a median income of only $6,860, which is only 56 per cent of the $11,550 median income of white families.

The median income for Americans in general rose 8.1 per cent, but the inflationary surge held the increase down considerably.

The number of blacks in poverty actually rose from 7.4 million to 7.7 million, while the number of whites living in poverty dropped about 9 per cent.

Of the total 54.4 million 30.7 million families, or 58.4 per cent, earned more than $10,000 last year. Seventeen per cent had incomes between $7,000 and $10,000.

Another 10 per cent of the families made between $5,000 and $7,000 while more than 16 per cent had incomes below $5,000.

HEW Denies Intent to Cut Health Programs to Poor

Washington—(NBNS)—Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger last week denied any intentions of cutting off health programs to the poor by insisting that such programs become financially self-sufficient.

Some programs, Weinberger told a Senate health subcommittee, need to be prodded to make better use of resources available to them, but he denied that any program incapable of sustaining itself financially would be cut off for that purpose.

Proposed regulations published in the Federal Register last month said health services delivery projects "must become basically self-sustaining community-based operations with diminishing need for direct or indirect H.S.M.H.A. support." H.S.M.H.A. is the Health Services and Mental Health Administration, an HEW agency which provides support for such programs.

The regulations drew harsh criticisms from numerous health leaders in Congress and across the country. In his opening remarks, Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), who called last week's hearing, said he was deeply concerned that HEW not impose the regulations, since it would be virtually impossible for some programs to comply with such guidelines.

Rep. Paul Rogers (D-Fla.) said the proposals would doom health programs for migrant workers, neighborhood health centers, and about half of the community health centers, as well as have a devastating effect upon numerous other programs which serve the indigent.

Dr. Alan Guttmacher, president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, said the regulations were a "cynical exercise" intended to dismantle or cut back federal health programs.

However, Secretary Weinberger called such criticisms "overblown rhetoric" and "totally unwarranted."

The regulations specify that no one should be denied services solely because of one's inability to pay for them, however, critics of the regulations charged that this guarantee would not protect indigents if the program itself is phased out because of lack of self-sufficiency.

Two Young Alabama Girls Sue Welfare Agencies Over Involuntary Sterilizations

Montgomery, Ala.—(NBNS)—Two black Alabama girls, aged 12 and 14, have filed a $1 million suit against welfare officials here for sterilizing them without proper consent, and leading to a nationwide demand that such practices be stopped.

The two girls, Minnie, 14, and Mary Alice, 12, and their illiterate mother, Mrs. Lonnie Relf, contend that the operations were conducted at a Montgomery hospital June 14 without their knowing consent.

Defendants in the class action suit, filed in U.S. District Court here last week, are the Montgomery Community Action Agency and its director, an unidentified surgeon, the director of the local family planning clinic, and Howard Phillips, the former acting director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, which funds the community action agencies.

The suit charges that Mrs. Relf signed an "X" in place of her name on a paper she thought would authorize her daughters to receive some shots. When the girls entered Professional Center Hospital the next day, an unidentified surgeon performed a tubular ligation on each girl, leaving them sterile.

In addition, the suit maintains, that a nurse for the Community Action Agency made several visits to the Relf home to persuade Mrs. Relf to agree to the sterilization. It asks for a national injunction against "sterilizations until the court has had the opportunity to rule on the merits of the case."

The girls' father, who was capable of comprehending the nature of the operation, was not contacted by the agency, according to the suit. The clinic "gave as its reason" for the sterilization its inability to continue to look after the two girls under new regulations.

The director of the agency, Joseph E. Conlin, said the clinic has been operating since March 1 under regulations of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, rather than under OEO guidelines.

According to one news service report, Conlin said the girls had been taking a birth control drug but that it had been prohibited after March 1 when the Family Planning Clinic came under HEW's jurisdiction. He added that HEW had instructed clinics to discontinue using the drug because it had not been certified.

Birth control pills were not recommended, Conlin said, because the two girls were considered not to have the "mental talents" to take them regularly. And, because the agency knew that "boys were hanging around the girls," the suit maintains, agency officials felt the best method to avoid an unwanted pregnancy was to sterilize the two girls.

Orelia Dixon, head of this city's family planning clinic, said, however, that consent was obtained and that several similar sterilizations have been conducted this year.

"These girls knew full well what happened to them and their mother understood exactly what she was doing," Mrs. Dixon said.

Katie Relf, 16, said a day after her two younger sisters were sterilized, two agency workers tried to encourage her to have a similar operation. She said she told them she didn't need the operation or birth control pills.

to reduce air pollution through limiting parking spaces for automobiles in downtown areas, and through placing limits on the sale of gasoline, "unworkable", in a morning news conference that officially opened the 41st annual Conference of Mayors.

"Without adequate mass transit systems to take up the slack", such a plan was not feasible Gibson pointed out, "and we're getting little help from the government in this area."

Accusing President Nixon of "customary sleight of hand," Mayor Daley of Chicago asked, "why did they postpone the deadlines for automobile manufacturers to meet pollution standards in the manufacture of cars?" The government has been easing back on deadlines set earlier for auto makers to design engines that would emit fewer pollutants.

The concern that is dominating the meeting of city Mayors is that the budget priorities set by the Nixon administration will create crises situations in many cities. The Watergate scandal has created a general paralysis of government the Mayors feel, handicapping their access to the federal government in terms of the needs of the cities.

"We are trying now to bring government back to where the people who run the departments and agencies will start making decisions again," said John J. Gunther, executive director of the conference. He described the administration as "huddling together in a period of storm."

Gunther added that the economy, inflation, the high level of unemployment in the central cities, summer employment for youth were other issues the mayors wanted to come to grips with.

A major resolution to be considered at the conference is one urging the administration to revise its 1974 budget proposals on the grounds that they drastically cut federal funds to the cities.

Get Out of That Welfare Bag

A 31 year old black woman in Patterson, N.J., Ms. Vivian Wyche, made a true statement recently. She said, "I just couldn't see sitting home day after day on welfare." She asked her welfare worker if she knew where she could get a job and make enough money to support her three children.

A third-year high school dropout whose only work experience had been a presser and nurse's aide, she was referred to a learning center at the Patterson office of the New Jersey State Training and Employment Service under the Work Incentive Program (WIN).

From that time, it was the turning point in her life. She was able to find herself and contribute something to herself, family and her community. With the help of WIN counselors, she was able to move up the socio-economic ladder. She was employed by the Patterson United Against Drug Abuse (PUADA) at an hourly rate of $3.57 in April, 1972. In Sept. 1972, she was notified that she had passed a state examination and was certified by the American Society of Clinical Pathologists as a laboratory technician. She has since received several raises and is currently earning $8,000 a year. She has the dual titles of both a medical interviewer and laboratory technician.

There are many young ladies in the Lubbock, Texas community who could do the same thing that Sister Wyche is doing. Many of our young people are sitting back and not taking advantage of the many opportunities which are around them. As Ms. Wyche will attest to: "It was very discouraging, but I stayed in the course I was taking right up to the eighth month of pregnancy."

She gives advice to others on welfare with possible employment potential. She says: "Get out of that welfare bag."

A WIN program is underway in our community at the present time. There are many young ladies who are in the "bag" that Sister Wyche was in several years ago. It would make good sense for young ladies in the Lubbock community to consult a representative at the Department of Public Welfare about WIN. There is one requirement, you must be on the welfare rolls, such as Aid For Dependent Children (AFDC).

As you can see, it is the goal of WIN to move as many ladies off welfare as possible. What happened to Sister Wyche really happened. She wanted to better her condition. She wanted to "get out of that welfare bag". And she did. So can many of our young ladies in the Lubbock community.

Henry's Homers

Because some baseball fans have a sentimental attachment to Babe Ruth and his home run record, 715 in a lifetime, Henry Aaron, almost certain to break that record, has been the victim of hate mail and depreciation of other kinds.

The irony of it all is that Atlanta Braves' outfielder is, by comparison, a far less controversial individual than the Babe, far more of an inspiration to young people in many ways.

In addition, he's hitting the ball at a time when averages are generally lower than in former years; this is offset by the fact that he plays more games in a season. But one suspects Aaron will break Ruth's record by such a margin that comparisons will become meaningless.

All records are made to be broken, and Aaron won't be the last to break Ruth's mark (he is over 690 homers as this is written). But Aaron will be one of the most modest and gentlemanly players to do it. The Babe was a great hitter, and earlier a great pitcher, had flair and color and ability. But he was definitely not the Henry Aaron type, and there are many fathers who prefer Aaron as the inspiration for young America.

Islip, N.Y. Bulletin: "The term 'energy crisis' is America's newest household word. An Agnewism, so to speak! Maybe it means that Rip Van Winkle is waking up. For decades we have squandered our natural resources and now we are being brought up with a rude shock. We suggest that the crisis can be dissipated by stopping our wasteful habits and directing our energy toward exploration for additional resources."

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

Kremlin Split Over Thaw by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)
Washington—The new relationship between the Soviet Union and the United States is not as rosy as the official statements proclaim.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev put it this way: "To live at peace, we must trust each other. And to trust each other, we must know each other better." But back in Moscow, Brezhnev isn't the sole spokesman of Soviet policy.

The defense minister, Marshall Andrei Grechko, is the leader of a more hostile, more militaristic faction. This faction still talks about the incompatibility of Communism and capitalism.

More than a year ago, Grechko led the opposition to the first summit meeting. He tried to block the invitation to President Nixon to come to Moscow.

He lost the showdown inside the Kremlin. Yet he remained so powerful that he wasn't purged but promoted. He was made a member of the ruling politburo, where he has continued to hue to a hard line.

Americans who met Grechko in Moscow found him friendly but formidable. He had a hearty personality but a sinister sense of humor. During the reception at the Moscow airport, for example, he called the attention of President Nixon to the Soviet Honor Guard standing stiffly at attention in front of the big jets. Then, with a guttural laugh, he suggested that the big engines, if they should be turned on, would suck the soldiers through the jet burners and chew them to pieces.

Only Grechko thought it was funny. But what Grechko thinks, according to intelligence reports, is important in the Kremlin.

Mitchell's Line: The next star of the Senate Watergate hearings will be former Attorney General John Mitchell.

At one point in the Watergate cover-up, according to White House sources, he was supposed to be the scapegoat. The White House odd couple, H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, wanted to blame Mitchell and his deputy, Jeb Magruder, for the Watergate scandal.

Ehrlichman even suggested that Mitchell should plead mental instability. Ehrlichman pointed out that Mitchell had been under severe strain worrying about his wife Martha and his legal problems. Mitchell had spoken to President Nixon, for example, about his troubles with Martha.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

As I See It, the Green-Fair Manor Apartments is not the only place in which there has to be some adjustments in regard to the housing problem. In driving through the Cherry Point Addition, located between East 4th Street and Loop 289 (south and north boundaries) and Quirt Avenue and Idalou Road (west and east boundaries), there are a large number of houses which have been destroyed by people who apparently don't give a dime.

It's time for local authorities to crack down on people who are tearing down properties for the sake of doing so in our community. There are people who are working hard to keep up their homes and are not interested in people creating acts of vandalism to deprive people of a healthy neighborhood.

This media will show, by photo, those houses in the Cherry Point addition which have been damaged by vandals. As citizens of Lubbock, we should report such acts which are committed in our neighborhood. It just doesn't make sense for these acts to continue without anything being done about them.

Since the City of Lubbock has passed an ordinance about junked cars, the city should be informed on such vehicles which are found in the Cherry Point Addition.

DEAR EDITOR

Dear Editor,
I am 12 years old but that doesn't mean I can't be concerned about over 1300 men listed as MIA (Missing in Action).

Some of my friends and I work in the POW-MIA campaign of the Clovis Area. We do everything we can to remind the people about our MIA's.

All of us wear MIA bracelets and the name on mine is 1st Lt. Bruce Walker 4-7-72. His brother Mike was in my 5th grade room when Lt. Walker was reported missing. It was really sad.

Lt. Walker had radio contact for several days, but due to heavy ground fighting, Air rescue was impossible. We have hope that he is captured and not missing, but Only Hanoi Knows!

Please write the President, Congress, Dept. of Defense, and Hanoi, demanding a full accounting of all our MIA's.

Your letters will help. They helped bring home our POW's and could return men like Lt. Bruce Walker to their families.

Thank You,
Patti Alderman

When Mitchell gets his turn on the witness stand, however, he intends to turn the tables on Haldeman and Ehrlichman. We have obtained a copy of the confidential summary of what Mitchell has told the Senate investigators.

In the language of the investigators, Mitchell said his "advice was sought throughout concerning the formation of the Committee to Re-Elect the President but Haldeman was the man at the White House closest to the political scene."

Mitchell will admit, according to the summary, that he "went along" with paying off the Watergate defendants "rather than risk having other activities exposed before the election." Mitchell knew, for example, that Watergate ringleaders G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt had burglarized the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Mitchell felt that "payments should be made so as not to further embarrass the campaign."

Richly Rewarding: "Some of the Watergate cash has been traced back to William Liedtke, the president of Pennzoil. All told, he stuffed $700,000 in cash and negotiable securities into a suitcase in Houston. The suitcase was flown to Washington in a Pennzoil plane and delivered in the dark of night to President Nixon's campaign headquarters. No receipt was asked and none was given.

Pennzoil happens to own United Gas Pipeline and other gas-producing affiliates, which are regulated by the Federal Power Commission. Senate investigators have learned that Liedtke, the Pennzoil president, actually interviewed Rush Moody Jr. and offered him the job of federal power commissioner. Then, in July 1971, President Nixon appointed Moody, believe it or not, after the Pennzoil president had approved him.

Inside the Federal Power Commission, Moody has just authorized a report which would set the stage for gas price increases more than 70 per cent. In effect, Moody's proposal would deregulate natural gas. The benefits for Pennzoil would be far greater than the $700,000 that Liedtke collected for the Nixon campaign. It looks suspiciously as if the Nixon Administration is rewarding campaign contributors with government favors.

Waving Booze Rule: The Watergate revelations haven't deterred the bureaucrats. They haven't let the grim news interfere with their normal festivities. At the General Services Administration, for example, employees are preparing a five-hour marathon of eating and drinking to celebrate the appointment of Arthur Sampson as their new boss. Sampson, however, isn't new; he had been the acting chief for a year.

GSA officials, meanwhile, should have little trouble toasting their new boss with booze even though it is against government regulations to serve alcohol in a government building. The official who can waive the anti-booze rule is—who else—Arthur Sampson.

Those vehicles should be tagged and moved.

We are glad to report that something is to begin this week in Green-Fair Manor, according to Jim Sexton, chairman of the Lubbock Housing Authority Board. If this is done, maybe we can get down to the causes of the problems in this complex. Let's hope the efforts being made this week in Green-Fair Manor will help correct those problems in the Cherry Point Addition, too.

The West Texas Times, in the very near future, will have a complete story of the problems in the Cherry Point Addition.

There are too many grass fires in the East Lubbock area. This writer realizes that this is a problem throughout the City of Lubbock because of the lack of rains during the month of June. This is no reason for people to set fires to these vacant lots and make it unsafe for innocent residents of our community. If you are a concerned citizen and observe someone setting fire to a vacant lot, then inform the local police department.

It's all of our responsibility to see that our neighborhood is safe and sound for all of us. Let's do our job and get involved when it comes to the welfare of all of us.

An Avalanche-Journal reporter, Sam Attlesey, reported last week "A riot erupted about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday (July 4th) at Buffalo Springs Lake before 35,000 spectators who had gathered there for the annual Fourth of July fireworks demonstration."

As I See It, Sam should have known that before there's a riot in Lubbock, there has to be a tank and riot guns out as was the case several summers ago when it was reported that there was a "riot" in East Lubbock.

Since Tom Seceada has resigned from the local Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE) and the resignation earlier of John Jenkins as head of the Commerce Department's Office, some black businessmen are a little apprehensive about whether or not their contracts will be renewed. Still others, on the other hand, are wondering if black businessmen will get as large a slice of the money pie as they have in the past.

In effect, black entrepreneurs are perplexed—and rightly so—about the posture the new OMBE Director, Alex Armendaris, will take when it comes time to slice that pie.

OMBE is new on the South Plains and it was the Times suggestion that such a program be made available with an office last year. Since Brother Seceada has gone, OMBE is not heard or seen in the black community. As I See It, it is time for the new director here to do something about being seen and heard in our community.

I've said it many times and to many people, blacks are forever being left out in Lubbock until it's election time.

Police Beat

Theft From Car

Carolyn Davis, 2404 East 8th Street, reported a terrible thing to the Lubbock Police Department one day last week. She told police that someone entered her car at East 19th and Quirt Avenue and took a $140 in twenty dollar bills.

According to the police report, Carolyn's purse was on the front seat of her 1971 model car.

We hope Carolyn learned a lesson that you shouldn't leave that type of money on the front seat of her car. Carolyn, you are only inviting trouble when you do things like that.

Theft Over $50

Alvin Morriell, 2015 East 8th Street, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that while his pick-up truck was parked on the parking lot of the South Plains Mall one day last week, someone unknown took a lawn edger from it.

According to Alvin, the edger was valued at $87.95. It appears as though Brother Alvin was careless also.

Assault

Roy Lee Phillips, 1701 Avenue C, Apt. 20, reported to Lubbock police that he got into a fight with a man over a $1.50 pint of whiskey. He told police that the 29 year old man did hit him on the chin, knocking him on the ground.

The fight took place in the alley between 1700 block of Avenue C and 1700 block of Avenue B.

Although Brother Phillips knows who assaulted him, he told police that he did not want to file any charges. When will we ever wake up?

Theft Over $5

Angle Ford, 1001 East 28th Street, Apt. 18, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that persons unknown did take a clock, three pair of men's pants and two shirts one day last week from his apartment.

There were no signs of forced entry at first report, but after careful investigation, it was learned that there was a broken window to the apartment.

Damage to the window was believed to be $10.

Aggravated Assault on Female

Alivena Johnson, 1908 East Cornell Avenue, reported to the Lubbock Police Department, from a service station at E. 19th Street and Quirt Avenue, that a 23 year old man did strike her on the left side of her face with his fist.

She told police that the man was from Lorenzo, Texas and the incident happened at 3204 Walnut Avenue from an apparent argument.

She did inform police that she would file charges this week.

House Burglary

Harvey Collins, 1708 East Auburn Avenue, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that persons unknown did enter his house by apparently taking a screen off a bedroom window. The window was believed to be open.

Taken from the house were several items including a tape player, records, man's ring, man's leather jacket and one soda pop from the refrigerator.

Big Garden in Cherry Point Area of City

If you ask the neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Pittman of 1821 East Colgate, they will tell you that the Pittmans have green thumbs because they have one of the best gardens in West Texas.

Aside from helping their neighbors, the Pittmans have grown a beautiful garden despite the rains on the South Plains. Although they have only lived in their new home for nine weeks, they have proof of their hard work.

"We grow a garden every year", said Mr. Pittman, "but the one this year is the best of all." He is really telling it like it is, for the Pittmans and neighbors have been eating out of it for two weeks.

If you get a chance, go by and see the beautiful garden. It has such vegetables as okra, tomatoes, onions, green beans, blackeye peas, cabbage, collard greens, squash, corn, lettuce and other good looking items.

An employee of Furr Foods for over 20 years, Mr. Pittman enjoys working with his fellowman. He said, "I enjoy helping my neighbor, even if it means working in my neighbor's yard", as he has done from time to time.

As members of the Church of God Church, East 26th Street and Birch Avenue, they have eight children and are proud to be a part of the city of Lubbock.

If anyone asks you if there is a beautiful garden in Lubbock, say Pittmans. They have one big garden in Cherry Point Addition.
