NAACP Sues Labor Secy. On Hiring Plans

"We really appreciate the kindness of people," they added.

NEWS BRIEFS

2 To Die For Georgia Rape

Adel, Ga. — (NBNS) — Two blacks have been sentenced to die in the state's electric chair for the July kidnapping and rape of a white woman. Earlier another black had been charged in the case and sentenced to a death penalty after his conviction by a Cook County jury.

Twenty-five year old John Wesley Hooks, Jr. of Tifton, who pleaded guilty to the rape charge, was sentenced to death while the jury deliberated the kidnapping and rape charge against John Wallace Eberhart Jr. 20, also of Tifton. The Florida woman had stopped on Interstate 75 to change a flat tire.

Seattle University Warned

Seattle — (NBNS) — Unless the University of Washington shows within 30 days that it has an acceptable plan to employ minorities and women, it faces the loss of millions of dollars in federal funds.

The U.S. Office of Civil Rights, in a letter to President Dr. Philip Cartwright, said unless the acceptable action program was submitted by Jan. 11, 1974, it would "have no alternative but to conclude that the university is unable to comply with its obligations as a federal contractor."

Sugar Bowl Protest

New Orleans — (NBNS) — Blacks

have warned that there will be street demonstrations against the 1973 Sugar Bowl Classic unless the game is desegregated immediately and completely.

Blacks want six black advisory members to the sports association, the game's sponsor, appointed to the body immediately. They say appointment to the advisory board has no real voting power. Representatives of the NAACP and Southern Christian Leadership Conference said, "all events will have some type of picketing."

The black committee will try to block broadcasting of the game since it is run by the "racist" New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association.

Louisiana Sues HEW

Baton Rouge — (NBNS) — In a reversal, the Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors has charged the Department of Health, Education and Welfare with issuing desegregation orders that exceed federal guidelines. Normally, it is HEW that sues city and state school boards for non-compliance with federal regulations.

HEW has told the state to desegregate their mostly white and mostly black colleges and universities and has given Louisiana until Nov. 30 to submit the proposals.

The deadline passed and the state replied to the HEW demand with a lawsuit charging they were "unsound, ill-conceived, detrimental to higher education needs."

United States Sued for $100 Million Bias Damages by New York Realty Firm

New York — (NBNS) — The Federal Government has been sued for $100 million in damages for "irresponsible and baseless" charges against a New York realty company that it discriminated against blacks.

The suit, filed by the Trump Management Corporation, counters a Federal suit accusing the company of discriminating in its 16,000 apartment units in the city.

"I have never," said the president of the corporation, Donald Trump, "nor has anyone in our organization ever, to the best of my knowledge, discriminated or shown bias in renting our apartments."

Charging that the Justice

Department was singling the company out since it was a large one and because the government was trying to force it to rent to welfare recipients, Trump said the Feds gave no specific names, addresses or incidences of discrimination.

Of the 16,000 rental units, only 700 have been rented to blacks. The company maintains that the only considerations for renting are whether the client can afford the rent and whether the apartment is suitable for the number of people in the family.

Trump maintained that welfare recipients cannot meet the company's criteria "unless they have a rich uncle taking care of them."

HUD Employees Disciplined on Subsidy Deadline Applications

Washington — (NBNS) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development has taken disciplinary action against 55 employees charged with "irregularities" in connection with housing subsidy applications filed just before the subsidy program was frozen Jan. 5.

The disciplinary actions grow out of investigations ordered by HUD Secretary James Lynn into 400 cases in which HUD employees were charged with trying to thwart the Nixon Administration's freeze of the housing subsidy program by filing last minute applications.

Former HUD Secretary George Romney ordered the freeze before he left the Nixon Cabinet. Pending a study of the programs' effectiveness, Romney ordered HUD not to issue any new insured loan commitments to subsidize home rental and ownership under the 235 and 236 programs.

The Romney action was anticipated in HUD regional offices and many of them rush through last minute commitment for subsidized housing projects.

HUD says eight of its 10 regions showed irregularities. They included HUD said, the back-dating of applications to show approval before the suspension date, as well as the swift processing in two weeks of applications that normally would have required five months to clear the regional level of the HUD bureaucracy and, in some cases, the issuance of letters of approval for projects even before the applications had been

The disciplined employees were not named. A HUD spokesman said, however, that they included the dismissal of one office director, 25 employees given 5 to 30 day suspensions, and 29 who received reprimands.

The spokesman said all the employees had the right to appeal through Civil Service procedures and that some had already advised HUD that they intended to do so.

Girl Scout Troop 44 Celebrates Christmas

Girl Scout Troop #44 celebrated Christmas Wednesday, December 19, by bringing Christmas cheer to the residents of Edwards Rest Home. The troop members visited the home and sang their favorite Christmas carols.

After caroling, the girls returned to Neighborhood House, their regular meeting place, and received their Girl Scout pins in a special ceremony.

The girls who attended the festivities are Wilma Jean Currie, Christina Gonzales, Brenda Griffin, Alberta Lee, Anita Lee, Angela McDowell, Linda McDowell, Cynthia Sedberry, Blanche Washington, Ophelia Prieto, Sara Bass, Cynthia Fifer, and Barbara Lewis.

The girls are students at Posey Elementary. Their adult leaders are Mrs. Lauretta Lee and Mrs. Willie Lee.

Cop Re-Indicted For Slaying

Washington — (NBNS) — A Metropolitan policeman has been re-indicted in the manslaughter of a 16-year-old District youth.

Officer Charles Pender, whose first indictment was thrown out because it was written in such a way that it was unclear whether he was accused of having shot Gregory Coleman accidentally or intentionally, when the youngster took a bicycle planted by police to lure potential bike thieves. The Washington — (NBNS) — The NAACP has filed suit in U.S. District Court here charging that Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan is obstructing the efforts of local and state government to prevent discrimination in the hiring of workers for federally financed building projects.

The suit hinges on a memorandum last March in which Brennan warned federal agencies that some cities and states were attempting to "supplement" the anti-discrimination requirements negotiated by federal agencies with local contractors.

Brennan's memo instructed the federal agencies to tell cities and states which get federal project money that they must disregard the "supplementary" requirements of state laws and local ordinances and abide only by the rules contained in these negotiated "hometown" plans. Herbert Hill, national labor director of the NAACP, has contended that these "hometown" plans are ineffective.

Hill said Brennan's memo would lead to "administrative nullification" of the presidential equal-employment order that is the basis for all federal minority hiring programs.

He said the hometown plans being adopted are largely voluntary, requiring the contractors only to make a good-faith effort to hire more minority employees.

"That means the employers have only the negative duty not to discriminate," Hill said. The NAACP believes employers have an affirmative duty to seek out, train and hire blacks and other minorities, he pointed out.

Universal Life Salesmen Travel To Memphis Meeting

Five representatives of the Lubbock district of Universal Life Insurance Company earned expense paid trips to Memphis for the Company's annual coronation pageant and festivities.

The two-day confab in late November culminated the Company's Golden Anniversary activities, and honored winners in two contests. The Lubbock district placed third in overall performance during Founders Month, celebrated annually in September.

The entourage to Memphis included Manager Levi Lenley, the cashier, Mrs. Maxine McCormack, and agents Smile Sneed, Floyd Badger and Ms. O.O. Barron.

The outstanding performance of these individuals and the entire Lubbock district contributes greatly to the record increase in weekly premium growth experienced by the company this year.

Universal Life Insurance Company is a Memphis-based company operating in ten states and the District of Columbia. Eight branch offices are located in principal Texas cities.

Fourth largest among black owned life insurance companies, the Universal Life observed its Golden Anniversary this year. Assets of the Company are more than $41 million dollars.

Black Cultural Club Makes Some People Very Happy

by J. Simmons

The Black Culture Club "73" of Reece Air Force Base spared no pains in doing its part to say "Merry Christmas" to many sick and shut-ins with an elaborate box of groceries with a turkey and all the good things to go with it. This club has been in operation about three years and has done many things to making other happy.

Some sixteen to eighteen boxes were distributed Sunday to those who are ill and otherwise confined to their homes. It was through the capable guidance of Mrs. Bernice Kelly that this club knew where to deliver the boxes.

To all the recipients of these boxes, a prayerful "Thank You" is due her along with the thanks to Sgt. E. Laney, president, who says they do not want too much publicity as it sometimes destroys the purpose for which the deed is being done.

"Thank You" is a small thing and so easy to say. When anyone takes time to do the smallest thing for anyone, the least that can be done is to say it. Remember, no one has to do anything for us. God has no hands, but human hands.

January, 1974

January, named by the Romans for Janus, supposedly the god of the beginning of things, was one of the two months added to the modern calendar. Few today know where the name came from, or care, nor do they know that for centuries most humans fixed the beginning of the year according to the sun.

For millions of Egyptians the calendar year formerly began on September 21st (the autumnal equinox). The Greeks counted their year from June 21st (the summer solstice). For a short time New Englanders began the year on December 25th. But today most nations accept January 1st as the beginning of the year.

The Romans exchanged gifts on January 1st, and perhaps some of today's Christmas gift custom stems from it. The use of mistletoe during the Christmas holiday season stems from the old Druid custom of giving branches of this supposedly sacred bush on New Year's Day.

For many years in Scotland young boys gathered together on New Year's Day and went from house to house singing for money or something to eat. This custom was brought to America, but the songs were shortened in the New World. For many years American Presidents gave a reception, open to the public, at the White House on New Year's Day.

For most Americans today the new year means a party or sentimental thoughts the night of the 31st, a holiday a week after the Christmas holiday, and the bowl end of the football season.

The House & Impeachment

With Gerald Ford's confirmation as Vice President, the House Judiciary Committee is now concentrating on the question of impeachment proceedings against the President.

In view of the widespread charges and scandals affecting the office and the President his is appropriate, though it will also be another painful, in some ways harmful, exercise. Unfortunately, also, there is politics to be played in the process.

Chances are, as they have been from the beginning, minimal that President Nixon will be turned out of office by Congress. Chances are better the House will vote impeachment proceedings, but the odds are also against that.

If President Nixon were to be impeached by the House

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

As I See It, the visit made by Gov. George Wallace of Alabama to the recent Southern Black Mayors Conference in Tuskegee, Alabama was a significant move on his part. Some people in the press has made it known that the Alabama governor is seeking the black vote. This may be true, but it is apparently deeper than that.

Gov. Wallace, to my estimation, is realizing the importance of the southern black officials. Several mayors from Alabama stated: "It's another reflection of the significance of southern black mayors coming together."

In his talk at the three day conference, Gov. Wallace recited the actions of his administration which he said have benefited blacks. He downplayed his past segregationist stands, saying, "We are all God's children."

Blacks in Lubbock and West Texas should pay close attention to the move by the Governor of Alabama. It should let all blacks know that there is great political potential in the black community, if it is properly put together.

Jus as the southern mayors are gaining national visibility, so can blacks in Lubbock and West Texas gain visibility in the political arena. We must first start getting ready for this type of effort by working together.

City elections will be coming up this spring in Lubbock and other points on the South Plains. Isn't it about time to look at ourselves and become involved in winning a seat on some Council or County Commissioners Court, or even think about sending someone to Austin as a representative from West Texas?

Surely if Gov. Wallace is thinking about the potential of the black mayors, local politicians are thinking about the impact that blacks can place on any given local or county

(and there is a majority of Democrats to do the job) a trial would be held in the Senate, where no President has ever been turned out of office. That is because, at least in party, the Constitution specifies that the President should be turned out of office only for "bribery, treason, high crimes and misdemeanors." There can be a lot of argument on that point. And two-thirds of that body must vote to oust the President.

This number of votes would be very difficult to obtain since more than a third of the Senate's membership is Republican. Few COP members would be enthusiastic in making a Republican the first President ever kicked out of the White House. Other alternatives would be greatly preferable is discontent reached an impossible stage.

Members of the House Judiciary Committee, now studying the question of impeachment in the lower body, know all this. Keeping that in mind, one can more easily distinguish between the objective and the political in publicity about that investigation in coming weeks and months.

election. We've ran candidates in the past, now it's time to start running candidates to win.

Lubbock and West Texas is wide open. Let's start doing our part to become a part of the political pie in our community now.

The Mayor and City Council voted to have a bond election January 15. I hope you will participate in this election. Regardless of your convictions about the upcoming bond election, it is your right to cast your vote.

Voting on January 15 would be a great way to start 1974 off. Your vote, regardless how you vote, can be felt by the local political subdivision.

Everytime there is an election in Lubbock, the entire system keeps an open eye on the black and brown communities. Let's get involved and be ready for the upcoming election.

I had an opportunity to be elected by the East Lubbock Business Association as its first president. This will, without any doubt, be a challenge for me. I have accepted this responsibility, along with many others, as a challenge which has to be done.

It is my hope that every business in East Lubbock will become a member of this organization. It has its advantages which will benefit the city of Lubbock. I ask that every business man and woman or those who are not business people to become members of this organization. In the very near future, a membership drive will be underway. I hope you'll join.

I will give my "State of East Lubbock speech" on Tuesday, January 8th, at 7:30 p.m. at Mae Simmons Community Center. I hope you are there and will be there to become a member of East Lubbock's first community development effort. We need you, and you can help our economical situation.

depreciated value of the lost items.

Airlines also refuse to pay for delays, contending that the passengers suffer no loss. But the report cites a golfer whose golfing trip to Florida was ruined because the airlines misplaced his clubs. The airline seemed unable to comprehend, states the report, that the purpose of the trip was to play golf in Florida. Thus the entire trip was a loss.

Fuel and Food: One crisis seems to cause another. Food prices will soar to loftier heights, for example, because of a chain of events brought on by the shortage of fuel.

Here's how it works. The truckers went on strike to protest the high cost of diesel fuel. Perishable goods, worth millions of dollars, sat rotting along the highways. The resulting shortages pushed prices up.

More expensive diesel fuel, meanwhile, is running up the cost of transportation. One produce executive told us that the cost of hauling a shipment from the West Coast to the nation's capital has jumped $128. The food dealers make up the extra cost from the consumers.

The railroads won't be able to take much of the pressure off the highway delivery system. Unfortunately, refrigerated railroad cars are in big demand and short supply. Some large food shippers are now moving their goods jointly in food-truck pools. This practice, however, isn't expected to cut transportation costs much.

Because of the energy crisis, in other words, you'll be paying more not only for your fuel but for your food.

Tax Talk: The public is fed up with tax laws which let the politicians and their big contributors off the hook.

For the past three years, President Nixon has been paying less taxes than a $15,000-a-year wage earner with the same size family. Yet the President has been collecting a $200,000 salary, plus capital gains and dividends amounting to another $50,000 a year.

The President in his tax returns claimed California as his principal residence. Yet he paid no state taxes to California nor any other state. California's Gov. Ronald Reagan also got away with paying no state income tax a couple of years ago.

Like the politicians, the contributors who finance them also aren't paying their fair share of the taxes. The latest available figures reveal that 276 fatcats with incomes in excess of $100,000 paid absolutely no federal income taxes in 1971.

The less-blessed taxpayers, of course, have to make up the taxes that President Nixon and his friends avoid. These everyday taxpayers are likely to remember the examples set by the President when they make out their returns next spring.

Yet the politicians still are making no serious move to reform the tax laws. The tax inequities, more than Watergate, may bring a wholesale housecleaning when the voters elect a new Congress next November.

BLACK MARKET FUEL

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—A brisk black market has developed in petroleum products. Fuel distributors across the country tell us that black market fuel is available in great quantities for prices running 30 to 40 per cent above the ceiling imposed by the Cost of Living Council.

The black market fuel comes mainly from Indonesia and the Middle East. Many of the black market orders are routed through Italy. Our sources believe that the Mafia may have a sinister finger in the black market operation.

Government officials fear that gas rationing or price controls will simply stimulate the black market. The consumers will wind up buying most of their fuel at black market prices. Thus, the profits will go to black market operators instead of legitimate dealers.

Government studies of World War II rationing show that black marketing flourished. Ration stamps were stolen and counterfeited by organized rings. In one instance, the actual government plates for printing the ration stamps were stolen.

Government experts believe that in time of Watergate instead of war, the public will be even less inclined to obey the rationing regulations and the black market will end up with most of the fuel business.

Land of Plenty: It doesn't look as if the Soviets will be back in 1974 buying up American grain.

Last year, a disastrous drought caused a critical grain shortage in the Soviet Union. To prevent widespread hunger, the Soviets made massive purchases from the United States.

This has come to be known in government circles as the Great Grain Robbery. For the Soviets were able to buy American grain for $1.43 a bushel. The huge shipments to Russia reduced the domestic supply, sending the price up to nearly five dollars a bushel.

The high price of grain, since it is used to feed livestock and poultry, caused meat, poultry and bread prices to skyrocket. Thus, the American consumers paid at the supermarket, indirectly, for the lower-priced bread that the United States made available to Soviet consumers.

The stories that the Soviets will be back for more grain, however, appear to be premature. A confidential report on the recent Soviet harvest describes it as the most bountiful in history.

Excellent weather conditions made it possible for Soviet farmers to produce a record crop. Heavy autumn rains hindered the harvesting and spoiled some of the grain. But the Soviets still were able to fill their grain bins to overflowing.

There is also no fuel shortage in the Soviet Union. So in 1974, Russia will be the land of plenty and it will be America's turn to feel the pinch.

Baggage Woes: The Civil Aeronautics Board, which is supposed to police the airlines, has been asked to investigate baggage handling. The request comes from the CAB's own consumer office, which has submitted a sharply critical report.

The report, intended for official eyes only, charges that the airlines short-change the passengers for lost and delayed baggage. The report declares "at present, practice is such that air carriers often insult, intimidate, cause financial burden and otherwise inconvenience the passenger only to turn about and tell him he is lucky to have the carrier absorb a portion of the expenses which it caused by its own negligence."

The report alleges, for example, that many airlines require passengers to check any liquor they may be carrying. Often, the liquor is stolen by baggage handlers. Then the airlines refuse to reimburse the passengers, because bottles of liquor are too fragile to be guaranteed.

The report also brands as "unfair and unjust" the airlines practice of depreciating the final settlement for lost luggage. The report suggests that the airlines should pay for the cost of replacement, not merely for the

How would you like to sign the work you do?

Would you be willing to tell the world, "I did this?" After all, you're pretty good at what you do. Probably proud of it, too.

Well, most of us will never get to sign our work. And maybe that's a shame. Because as good as we are, it might make us better. And we can afford to be. Whether we're teachers or short-order cooks, farmers or steamfitters, sales managers or city managers.

We'll all have more to show for it.

More money, for one thing.

Because we'll be giving each other our money's worth

for the products, the services and even the government we pay for.

For another thing, we'll be giving America a better chance to take on our foreign business competitors. Not just here. All around the world. That would help bring the lopsided balance of payments back onto our side. And make your dollar worth more.

Best of all, as we hit our stride, we'll be protecting jobs here at home. For ourselves and the future. And we'll have a deeper sense of satisfaction in the jobs we've got.

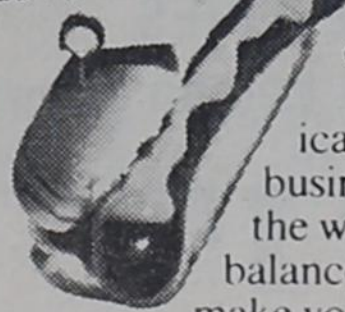

You don't have to sign your work to see all these things happen. And more.

Just do the kind of work you'd be proud to have carry your name.

America. It only works as well as we do.

Ancient Chinese Proverb
The above proverb is being used as the basis for the intermediate science classes at Ella Iles. Mr. Chet Dye, (shown at left), science teacher, feels that the child learns by doing better than by hearing. "Children acquire a great deal of useful information, not by rote, but through their own active participation", says Mr. Dye.

Mr. Dye also says the classes are using the Elementary Science Study program to supplement their basic science units. The difference being, in the Elementary Science Study. Physical material is placed into the hands of children from the start to help each child investigate through these materials the nature of the world around him.

As an example of this approach, the fifth grade classes of Ella Iles have mapped the school campus according to scale. Greg White (at right in picture) took the resulting information and drew the map in the above picture. Each class member also did an individual representation of the science room for the large display located in the main hall of Ella Iles.

Miss Cora Lee Jackson from Austin, Texas is visiting in the hub city with her sisters, Haddie Jackson, Virgie Jackson and 3 brothers, for the holidays.

Mrs. Mary Tieucl of Hobbs, New Mexico suffered a freak accident last week when the wind crashed a storm door and a piece of the broken glass cut her foot near the ankle which required several stitches. She and her husband arrived in Lubbock Sunday afternoon and left for Dallas early Monday morning. She is the sister of Mrs. E.C. Struggs.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Mason, three sons and two dogs are spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Mason. They are in the Houston public school system as teachers.

Many churches, clubs, social and civic organizations, as well as individuals are making themselves available at this time of the year to bring joy and sunshine into the lives of the sick and shut in. Too much cannot be said on behalf of these people who are so thoughtful of others.

Life would be very simple if more people were willing to be themselves.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

The countdown has started and, before you know it, the kickoff will come in the game that, locally, is the biggest of them all. Texas Tech and Tennessee square off in just two days.

The Volunteers present a formidable foe. Although their season's record isn't as outstanding as Tech's, they have played a rugged schedule and they took the fight to No. 1 Alabama before falling apart in the fourth quarter.

Much is being made of the "look-alike" appearance of the two teams offensively and their apparently is much the same in the two attacks. Both depend greatly on exceptional quarterbacks, but both also have outstanding runners and strong defenses.

Tennessee will have a weight advantage, something that isn't new to the Raiders. They also have bowl experience, but that also is true of Tech, so jitters shouldn't enter into it.

What could be the difference is Tech's opportunistic defense. The Raiders this year forced mistakes and then took advantage of them. All things being equal, this could give the edge to Tech.

In fact, this was an interesting Raider year. In at least one game it looked as though Tech was going to be trampled. The line was swept aside, the defensive backs were picked clean and the opposition moved the ball with ease.

About the time that you said to yourself "well, it was great while it lasted," here came the Raiders out of nowhere to recover a fumble, grab a dropped punt, or drive against the clock and score to wrap up a victory when defeat was imminent.

The Raiders, unlike Texas, didn't overpower anyone. If anything, they fished the opposition. They lulled them to sleep and then struck. So, I look for Tech to take a close victory Saturday.

Gerald Myers stands at the crossroads in the 1973-74 basketball campaign. His Raider cagers were wiped out by New Mexico and Arizona on successive nights, two nights when Tech played horribly.

Just how much mental damage these two defeats will have on the Raiders, only time will tell. The players must have been shaken to see scores of 102-65 and 88-64 posted against them. They were out of both games relatively early.

Now it is up to Gerald and his staff to mentally rebuild the club. The coaches will have their troubles doing this, but they can do it and I'm confident that the Raiders will rebound.

Neither defeat was unexpected. New Mexico had the added incentive of resenting last year's refusal by Tech to allow the game here to be telecast. Arizona also has one of the better basketball teams in the nation, as do the Lobos. Only the margin of loss, the turnovers, the loss of poise, hurts.

My hat's off today to Joe Cronin, the American League president, who told the Yankees that they couldn't sign Dick Williams and who told Williams he had to honor the two years remaining on his contract.

If Williams wants to quit Oakland, that's his right. It isn't his right to renege on the two years remaining to sign with another team, whether it's New York or anyone else. There's been too much of that in the sports world as it is.

Whether Cronin made his decision based on what lawyers advised him, or from his own convictions, doesn't enter into it. The action was good for sports in general.

For too many years coaches have been allowed to break contracts because of better offers, while at the same time holding schools to obligations when said coach was fired for not producing. The Cronin decision may reverse all of this activity.

Much the same type of situation was true at San Diego where a baseball franchise was on the verge of being transferred despite obligations to the city.

It is academic to ask why Washington, a city of losers, if you'll pardon the broad intent of that statement, wanted the San Diego franchise. Someone did. Someone offered money for it. And, for a time, it looked as though the deal was consummated. Then judicial wisdom ruled better.

Action against Dave Smith, athletic director and head football coach at SMU, doesn't end the matter. I feel sure that SMU is hopeful that, by putting him on probation and removing him as athletic director, the action forestalled action by the SWC and NCAA.

Don't bet on it. Both the conference and NCAA take a dim view of such extracurricular activities. They probably will endorse action taken, quite probably add some of their own.

Good old 1973 is almost gone and so is the space allotted for this column. So, also, are the good intentions I had back on Jan. 1, 1973, to mark up highlights in the sports world to report at the year end.

I got as far as, during the Cotton Bowl, to note: "Did Lowry step out of bounds?" And then, Garo Yepremian's superb pass in the Super Bowl for year-end comment.

So, space has run out with no more mention than those two events, and without room to wish each and every friend and reader a most prosperous and Happy New Year! May it be a year filled with peace, love and joy, with success for all.

Happy New Year!!

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

Photographing Your Catch

If you like to photograph your fish, here are some tips for better pictures of your catch. These tips apply to fresh-water fish and to the small sizes of salt water varieties.

First, dip your stringer of fish up and down in the water a few times, to remove any dirt or grime that may be on them . . . and, to give them that fresh-caught, glossy look.

Then arrange them on the stringer so that the larger fish are "up front" where possible. Also see that they are displayed with their backs or sides toward the camera. Needless to say, the all-white underbody doesn't make an impressive photo.

If you want to be different with your pictures, spread the fish out (still on the stringer) across the side of a boat, with you or your fishing buddy seated in the boat directly behind the stringers and holding the largest bass by its lower lip . . . or better yet with one hand under its body to "display" it in a horizontal position.

Some anglers hold the fish far forward, with arms outstretched toward the camera. This makes the fish look larger than it actually is . . . especially if the camera is focused on the angler rather than the fish.

We don't recommend such a photo. In the first place the catch is magnified beyond reason and it is not a true and honest picture. To hold the fish in front of you, depicting the angler admiring his catch is one thing, but to hold the fish at arms length directly in front of you solely to exaggerate its size is misrepresentation.

A direct give-away as to what was done is evident to any experienced photographer simply by observing the jumbo, unnatural size of the fingers and hands of the person holding the fish.

An easier way to photograph your catch is to spread them out before you on the dock, and either kneel down or be seated behind or beside the catch. It will improve interest if you lift the largest fish slightly to better display its size. That may be emphasizing but it's not exaggerating.

Another method, if you have a sizeable number of fish on the stringer, is to take a back-view-shot of the angler with the stringer tossed over his shoulder and the entire catch dangling behind him. Emphasis here is that the successful angler has a heavy load—or is seen trudging homeward bringing in food for the family.

This of course means getting the back of the shirt or coat wet and giving it a "fishy" smell, but that problem can be solved by wearing a raincoat or other rainy-weather gear for the picture session.

There are other ways to be different too. For instance, show the successful fisherman hanging the stringer of fish on a nail, or tying it to a tree limb.

Steps always make good "props" for fish photos . . . with the angler shown admiring them. Ditto for gang-planks. In fact, there are all kinds of appropriate backgrounds if you'll just look around.

And it adds much to your photography—to be different.

You can very often see farther ahead by looking behind you.

A "Designer Original" Dessert

A very feminine sense of what's pleasing to the eye plus her sensuous love of texture makes Marilyn Lewis-Cardinali the California couturiere that she is. Cardinali's evening creations often juxtapose textures, as when she slathers baroque beading over drifts of sheer chiffon.

This same fascination with texture carries over to food. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis are the founders of the Hamburger Hamlet Restaurants. Moreover, in private life Cardinali is a scrumptious cook—reveling in simple foods put together in unexpected ways which create surprising effects with texture and taste.

How does Cardinali maintain her delicate size 8 figure?

"I keep myself on a semi-diet," she said. On party days, she might make lunch a frothy shake with Slender diet food from Carnation. Then at dinnertime, she digs in along with the guests when she serves her own nonfat buttermilk fried chicken plus a light, crisp salad followed by this "designer original" dessert. She makes nonfat buttermilk by adding 1/2 cup fresh buttermilk to 1 envelope of instant nonfat dry milk mixed with 3 cups of water. Mixed until smooth, this is allowed to clabber at room temperature overnight. From her forthcoming cookbook, "The Collected Works of Many Mamas," here is the recipe for Cardinali's Rhubarb Pie With Cottage Cheese.

Rhubarb Pie With Cottage Cheese (Makes one 9-inch pie)

- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup water
- 5 cups (1-inch pieces) fresh rhubarb or cut frozen (20-ounce package) rhubarb
- 3/4 cup raisins
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 5 to 6 drops red food coloring, optional
- 9-inch baked pie shell
- 1 cup Carnation Cottage Cheese

Combine sugar, salt and water in large saucepan; bring to boil, stirring frequently. Add rhubarb and raisins. Cover saucepan and cook until rhubarb softens. Avoid overstirring. Drain rhubarb; reserve all liquid. Heat reserved liquid to boiling in small saucepan. Combine cornstarch and cold water; stir to blend. Add mixture to rhubarb liquid. Cook and stir until thickened, glossy and clear. Add food coloring. Gently stir thickened mixture with rhubarb and raisins. Cool 5 minutes and turn into pie shell. Chill thoroughly (about 2 hours). Beat cottage cheese with mixer until fairly smooth. Spoon around edges of pie. Chill thoroughly (1-2 hours).

Girl Scouts Need Leaders

Girl Scouting has made a good start in East Lubbock, but there is still a need for Girl Scout troop leaders in some schools. A Brownie troop for second and third grade girls is needed at Iles Elementary. Adult leaders meet with the girls for about one hour after school one day a week. They do not need to be experienced in Girl Scouting. Training is provided for new leaders. This is an excellent way to serve the community by providing its youth with opportunities to give service and to grow in the arts, the home, and the out-of-doors.

There is also a need for assistant leaders at Martin, Posey, Wheatley, and Struggs Junior High. Men and women, 18 years or older, are eligible to be Girl Scout leaders or assistants. If interested, contact Sarah Terrell, 747-1503; Ruby Hobby, 765-7696; or Minnie Ola Bunton, 765-5639.
