Operation Mainstream Needs South Plains - Lubbock Participants Now

There are many Federal Funded programs on the South Plains of Texas. Operation Mainstream is a program which is not familiar, as it should be, with residents of the South Plains. Mrs. Connie Meissner, director of Operation Mainstream, told the Times last week, "We are looking for people who are willing to become participants in this program."

Exactly what is Operation Mainstream?

Mrs. Meissner says: "Operation Mainstream is a work-experience and training program for unemployed, low-income adults, age 22 and older." She went on to add, "Enrollees gain valuable experience and job skills while they work in locally sponsored projects that provide needed services or improve the physical or social environment of their communities."

In many cases, priority is given to Mainstream projects in rural areas and small towns that provide work-training opportunities for older adults, especially those over 55 years of age.

Participants in the program are paid the legal "Federal or State minimum wage." Mrs. Meissner states, "In addition to work training, enrollees receive personal and vocational counseling."

There are 31 slots available in a 15 county area of the South Plains. Those counties are Hale, Motley, Cochran, Lamb, Lynn, Garza, Hockley, Lubbock, Terry, King, Bailey, Crosby, Floyd and Dickens. This program is under the supervision of the South Plains Community Action Association, Inc.

The qualifications for becoming a participant are: you must be twenty-two years of age or older, a permanent resident of the United States, and chronically unemployed, with a family income below the poverty line.

Enrollees in the program will be paid by Operation Mainstream at the rate of $1.60 per hour. Time sheets will be provided by the work supervisor on the first and fifteenth of each month and the enrollee will be paid accordingly.

Mrs. Meissner states, "We need to fill several slots in the Lubbock area, preferably at the Lubbock State School and Reese Air Force Base." Persons interested in this program should contact Mrs. Connie Meissner, Director, South Plains Community Action Association, Inc., Levelland, Texas or you may call her (806) 894-3800.

Leaders Ask Congress To Approve SBA Funding

Federal Checks Due Beginning January 1st for Needy Aged, Blind and Disabled

Washington—(NBNS)—Beginning Jan. 1, millions of needy aged, blind and disabled Americans should receive their first federal assistance checks.

It is estimated that more than 3 million Americans who have not received aid under existing state-federal welfare programs will be eligible for some payment under the supplemental security income program voted by the Congress in 1972.

For many of them the checks will be small, perhaps as little as $5 or $10 a month. But it will come to them as their right, without the usual requirement that they proclaim themselves absolutely destitute and lacking in sons or daughters or other relatives who might be held responsible for their welfare.

OEO Gets Grant Approval

Governor Dolph Briscoe announced approval Friday of a $26,097 Office of Economic Opportunity grant to Community Action Board in Lubbock County, Inc.

Funded under Title II of the Economic Opportunity Act, the grant is effective from Dec. 1, 1973 through Feb. 28, 1974, and includes allocations of $11,645 for administration and $14,452 for General Community Programming.

Governor Briscoe said the grant will enable the agency to continue maintaining neighborhood centers with a variety of planned activities and services for all ages; making referrals to manpower programs and following up participants; and providing summer employment for youth.

Administration funds will be used to provide technical assistance and seed money to neighborhood groups for special projects; coordinate activities with city and county officials; publish a monthly newsletter; and perform all general managerial functions.

Grant processing for the state was performed by the Texas Office of Economic Opportunity, a division of the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Former Lubbock Man Passes Away in Berkley, California

Final rites were held in Berkley, California for Booker Washington last Friday. He passed away earlier the same week. He was the youngest son of the late Mariah King and the brother of the late Charlie Banks, who was also a longtime resident of Lubbock.

Among his survivors are his wife, Annie Mae; a daughter, two sons, a brother, a host of relatives and many friends.

He made his home in California for many years. More information is not known at this time.

The new federal program accepts existing state standards for the qualification of the blind and disabled for the supplemental income benefits. For them, as for the aged, the new programs seek to provide a supplement to existing income in a period of rising costs of living.

The new program provides for payments of up to $130 to a single person and $195 to a couple each month in supplemental income. In July these maximum figures will rise to $140 and $210.

Some 3.2 million persons already on state and local welfare rolls—in these three categories: aged, blind and disabled—will be getting their checks from the federal government directly. Another 3 million or so should be eligible for such assistance.

The Social Security Administration which administers the program has been working through civic, social and church groups to find those who may be eligible for aid.

The millions of welfare recipients who receive aid from the "aid to dependent children" program are not eligible for supplemental security income program. Their part of the welfare reform package proposed by President Nixon was dropped both by the Administration and the Congress in the 1972 presidential election year.

For those who are eligible, the first $20 a month income from any source is exempted from the eligibility computation, as is the first $65 of earned income. After that, $1 in aid is lost for every $2 earned. This means that one could earn up to $345 a month before the last dollar of supplemental security income was wiped out.

The new program will double federal expenditures for the needy aged, blind and disabled, while eliminating state and local spending in these categories, except in a few states where benefits will be higher than the federal maximums.

In fiscal 1973, the federal government spent $2.1 billion on these three categories of aid. It is expected to spend $2.2 billion in the first six months of 1974 on the new program.

Southwestern Bell Vice President Visits In Hub City This Week "Checking Pulse"

One of the best ways to check the temperature of a community, society or the economy is to feel the pulse of a telephone executive.

The phone company is wired into just about everything, and when company officials study growth and social problems, they have to weigh most everything everywhere.

West Texans got a chance to feel the pulse of just such an executive this week when C.L. (Chet) Todd visited Lubbock. Todd is vice president and general manager for Washington—(NBNS)—A group of black leaders, on the heels of the House small business sub committee to table a request to raise the Small Business Administration's loan-making authority, has asked Congress to quickly approve the funding bill.

The National Business League, whose Committee for National Policy Review met in emergency session to draw up a four-point agenda to arouse congressional support of the funding authority, said that the SBA request for an increase in its loan authority by $2.3 billion to a ceiling of $6.6 billion should be granted.

Claiming the SBA would reach its present $4.3 billion ceiling by the end of November, the NBL said "those major programs to be served by the increase in funds, will virtually come to a halt in the minority community it is disastrous."

The halt to the request of the SBA followed the disclosure that there was widespread corruption in SBA's lending practices in more than six field offices. The subcommittee is investigating the charges now.

NBL President Berkeley G. Burrell said the subcommittee should reverse its action to withhold funding until the SBA investigation is completed, which he compared to throwing the baby out with the bath.

"In recent months we have heard allegations leveled at the FBI, CIA and the IRS for irregularities in their operation, but none has been subject to a cut-off of appropriations for their agencies," he said.

"Yet, in the case of the SBA, the entire program of more than 60 offices across the country will be jeopardized while the lending practices of only 8 to 10 are being examined."

Burrell pointed out that in the last fiscal year, SBA made direct loans and guarantees of bank loans totaling $464.3 million to minority enterprises, roughly 12 per cent of the $3.8 billion loan total.

He said the SBA could mean the end of efforts to bring minority businessmen into the mainstream of the economy.

The NBL is now seeking meetings with the White House, congressional committee chairmen and the Congressional Black Caucus.

Christmas Lights

There's no reason American families should not enjoy Christmas tree lights this year as usual. All that's necessary is that those using these decorations keep their thermostats a bit lower than usual and turn off other lights in the home to compensate for the small amounts of current Christmas tree lights consume.

If this is done, holiday energy requirements will have been reduced as requested; in fact, if families turn off just one or two bright lamps or room lights when burning Christmas tree lights, current will actually be saved.

When much current can and should be saved, of course, is in the field of display lighting. Store windows should not be brightly lit until late hours; signs, billboard displays, string lighting at car lots, decorative lighting of utility buildings, etc., consume huge amounts of energy.

These wholesale usages of energy should be firmly curbed. Home reductions can easily be effected without abandoning decorative Christmas tree lights, which are a meaningful, significant part of the observance of the principle ecclesiastical event of the year.

Pearl Harbor

Thirty-two years ago this December 7th—a Sunday—the radio broke the news that the United States naval base at Pearl Harbor and air fields in the vicinity had been suddenly bombed by Japanese aircraft.

Though President Roosevelt knew such an attack was possible, though military commanders there had been warned, though an enlisted man on radar watch picked up the incoming raid, and though an intelligence colonel in Washington had concluded the attack was imminent and was struggling with superiors to warn Pearl, the attack was highly successful.

The battleship fleet was wrecked. Thousands were killed. Many aircraft were destroyed. But, by good luck, the few U.S. aircraft carriers in the Pacific were not in the harbor that morning. As it turned out, the carriers were the most vital ships in the resulting war, and they turned the tide in June of 1942, at Midway, six months later.

In this 1941-45 war, the U.S. was attacked; either the nation fought or surrendered. (Hitler declared war on America four days after the Jap attack.) Few Americans proposed surrender, thus the nation was united. In that sense alone, it was a good time to be an American, if one survived the war.

The nation was behind its fighting men, the overwhelming majority of citizens sought to do their part. And unity achieved miracles. In three and a half years the effort of unified Americans produced the world's mightiest military force. The lesson is obvious; unified, the nation can overcome practically any obstacle or problem, even Watergate. We can remember this profitably today—thirty-two years after Pearl Harbor.

Airline Profits

The Civil Aeronautics Board recently approved five per cent increase for domestic airline fares. Though there is controversy on the issue, a case can at least be made for fare increases in the past year or two.

Today, however, with airlines cutting service (flights) and what the airlines call the load factor getting very fat (the number of passengers per plane), the lines are almost certain to be heading into a highly profitable era.

The new fare increase will make it an ever more profitable era than full bookings and reduced flights would otherwise have made it. The question is, then, whether the five per cent hike granted was justifiable.

It should be remembered that the CAB some months ago turned down an airline request for even greater fare increases. The five per cent increase granted was based on increased operating costs. Thus, the CAB's fare increase approval comes at an ironic time, though perhaps justified by the profit squeeze of recent years. This twofold development raises the possibility that fare reductions might be in order if airline load factors remain high for any considerable period of time.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

The other day, this writer had an opportunity to sit back and recall many of the articles I have written over the past. I've often wondered why the black community of Lubbock has not paid close attention to what has happened and what will happen unless we get involved. It's almost time for another city election, and apparently nothing has been done about planning for the upcoming elections this spring.

As I See It, we're going to have to do something to see that we have sort of representation on the city council in years to come. Perhaps, the black community can elect its representative this time around by just working hard to get something done for ourselves.

I know there are many residents of the black community who would like to see something done about our situation. If those persons who are concerned about the welfare of the total population would stand up and be counted, then we'd see some thing happening in our community.

As of right now, things don't look too bright for the black community. Maybe, just maybe, something will happen in the very near future.

If there ever was a time for black people to get together, it's now. With all the problems existing in these United States, all Americans should start paying attention to the problems which are around us. They are many problems all around us and we should do our part to overcome them.

It has been forecast that a staggering unemployment rate of 8 percent could hit our country. This, no doubt would come about because of the oil problem we are having. This statement was made last week by John Swearingen, board chairman of Standard Oil Company. He estimates that our nation will experience fuel shortages of about 20 percent which could lead to an unemployment rate of 8 percent.

Not only did Mr. Swearingen make this prediction, but board chairman Stewart Cort of Bethlehem Steel Corp. and John D. Harper of Alcoa Aluminum Co. agreed with the dismal forecast would curtail production in our industries. This is a sad observation by men in the business who are able to forecast important items in economy.

On the other side of the coin, U.S. Senator Frank Church of Idaho, however, was not so pessimistic in his assessment. He remarked that we must not give in to the blackmail situation.

No matter how short we are in regard to the oil situation, it's time to huddle our minds together and come up with some answers which will help the total situation. It doesn't look good for eight in 100 American workers to be unemployed.

I hope you are paying close attention to what is going on. Unless something gives, it will not only be a blue Christmas, but we'll be in a bad situation in 1974.

*****

I would like to take this time and thank KTXT-TV, Channel 5, and KCBD-TV, Channel 11, for allowing me an opportunity to express some of the issues which have been printed in this column over the past years. Not only express my opinion about this column, but also other ideas I had toward other issues which are important to all of us.

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

THE SECRET EVERYONE KNOWS

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—In the name of national security, President Nixon has done his best to block an investigation of the White House parapolic unit known as the plumbers.

White House aides have now told the Watergate prosecutors, in strictest confidence, the reason the President doesn't want the plumbers investigated. It might expose the fact that the Central Intelligence Agency has been bugging Kremlin leaders.

This is no secret to the Kremlin leaders. The CIA transcripts of their private conversations reveal that they are aware the CIA has been eavesdropping on them.

It is also no secret to millions of Americans. I felt that anything the Kremlin leaders knew was safe for the American people to be told. So I reported on September 16, 1971, that the CIA had been able to eavesdrop on Kremlin conversations.

The secret transcripts reveal that Soviet leaders like to gossip about one another and complain about their ailments. It is evident from their conversations that Leonid Brezhnev, the party chief, sometimes drinks too much vodka and suffers from hangovers. The complaints of Premier Alexei Kisygin, who is in poor health, are more authentic.

One of their favorite pastimes is visiting a private clinic near the Kremlin for steam baths, rubdowns and other physical therapy. None of this is very secret. Only the CIA's eavesdropping technique may be secret. Presumably, the plumbers can be investigated without revealing this.

Too Little, Too Late: President Nixon has been ignoring advisers who have warned urgently that he is doing too little, too late about the oil crisis. They are distressed over his eagerness to seize upon the most optimistic estimates.

He accepted the estimate, for example, that our daily shortage is only 1.4 million barrels. Most experts agree that the shortage is at least two million barrels a day. They expect this to nearly double by next spring.

The most persistent critic of the President's overoptimism has been Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz, who has carefully confined his warnings to the privacy of the White House. But he has told the President bluntly that the oil shortage will bring a severe recession, perhaps even a depression, if we don't end the Saudi Arabian boycott.

He has predicted the shortage will reach 30 per cent of our normal consumption. This will force plant shutdowns, layoffs and other economic dislocations, he has warned, that will double the nations' unemployment by the end of next year. If the oil shortage continues, he told the President to expect massive unemployment running as high as 12 per cent by 1976.

The President must choose, in Shultz' opinion, between private and industrial needs. All the President's political instincts call for giving priority to home heating and pleasure driving. But in the end, Shultz has warned, Americans will be better off suffering from the cold than losing their jobs.

Power Shift: The energy crisis will mean more to Americans than just lowering our thermostats and slowing down our cars.

State Department planners are now quietly warning that the energy crisis may cause a vast shift in the world's power structure. The oil-rich nations, they fear, may replace the United States as the world's dominant economic force.

The Arabs demonstrated their new power by cutting back on the flow of black gold to the West. Even if peace comes to the Middle East, it won't necessarily mean an end to the oil extortion. The worldwide response to the oil embargo taught the Arabs that they could gain enormous political and economic profits by using oil as a weapon.

To fight the continuing oil blackmail, U.S. policymakers are examining possible countermeasures. A military takeover of the Arab oil fields is considered impractical. Secret studies show that the oil wells, pipelines and tankers are far too vulnerable to sabotage and interdiction.

But military force could be used to impose a counterembargo on the Arab oil states. The Arab nations need agricultural and manufactured goods as much as the West needs oil. A total sea and air blockade would be difficult, but possible, for the United States to impose. A counterembargo is unlikely, however, unless the situation becomes desperate.

The National Security Council had decided that the best strategy is simple, quiet, diplomatic negotiation.

Ford's Future: Vice Presidential nominee Gerald Ford has promised not to use the vice presidency as a springboard for the White House. But behind the scenes, Ford has been huddling with Republican leaders about his political future.

They have told him that he is their best hope to avert a Republican debacle next year. The Watergate scandals, they fear, have damaged President Nixon beyond political repair. The President has become such a political albatross that they hope to keep his name out of the 1974 campaign.

Republican leaders have told Ford, therefore, that they would like to make him rather than Nixon, the front man for the party. He has an open, honest quality that they believe will help restore the faith of the voters in the Republican party. Their strategy will be to feature Ford and to stress his homey virtues. They think he will inspire trust to counteract President Nixon's abuse of the public trust.

Ford has agreed to lead the Republican crusade in 1974. There's only one hitch. He has always been a Nixon man. The President places a high premium on loyalty and expects Ford to defend him. But the more Ford defends Nixon, the more Ford will smear himself with the Watergate taint.

As the 1974 elections get closer, I predict, Ford will talk more about the Republican candidates and less about the President. This will build strong support for his own presidential candidacy. By 1976, I predict, Gerald Ford will be the strongest Republican contender.

Lennox, S.D., Independent: "We all cuss inflation and are convinced that our income will not keep pace with rising prices, but how would you like to be a farm worker in Russia? It would require 60 years' wages to purchase a new car. Well, that takes care of private transportation problems for most Soviets. No wonder their public transportation is used extensively. With rising gasoline prices and growing traffic problems in this country, the one man-one car concept may be a thing of the past in a few years, but if we are to attain the same standard of living as now exists in the Soviet Union, we are going to have to work at it. Step number one, of course, is to inject even more socialism into our system, tax more businesses out of business, and put the bureaucrats in control of everything."

Police Beat

Strong Arm Robbery

Jewel McGhee, 3019 East 3rd Place, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone took advantage of her as she was walking across a parking lot of a local supermarket in our city.

She told police that she was walking toward her car when a young fellow, approximately 16 years of age, came running up behind her and knocked her down and snatched her purse from the left arm.

There was a witness who saw the incident, but was unable to identify the youth as he fled in a hurry.

Her purse contained approximately $60 in cash. The purse was valued at approximately $10.

This column would like to warn our sisters of Lubbock to be very careful when going to and from a shopping center, especially in the evening hours. I hope that unidentified young brother will realize what he has done and stop those kinds of actions on a sister.

House Burglary

Diana Thomas, 2715 East 7th Street, reported to the Lubbock Police that someone unknown did pry open the rear door of her house one day last week when she was away.

Once inside, the unknown person took a dollar bill from a container and ran through several dresser drawers.

Theft Over $5

Julia Pruitt, 2401 Colgate Avenue, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone took a battery from her car while it was parked one night last week.

She didn't know who could have taken the battery, but the battery cables were cut.

House Burglary

Gene Gaines, 2629 East Auburn Avenue, reported to Lubbock Police that someone unknown broke into his house one day last week while he was away.

After careful investigation, it was learned that approximately $730 worth of cameras were taken. A Petri 35 mm camera was among those items taken.

Entry was apparently gained through a garage door which was apparently unlocked.

Destruction of Private Property

Mary Robinson, 2503 East 29th Street, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone broke the front glass out of her 1969 model car.

The car was parked on the parking lot of Estacado High School one day last week.

Texas Ranger Exhibit on Display in Lobby of Lubbock National Bank

An exhibit depicting the history of North America's oldest state law enforcement organization went on display Monday in the lobby of Lubbock National Bank at Main and Texas Avenue.

In observance of their 150th anniversary, the Texas Rangers have assembled a collection of photographs, firearms, equipment and documents depicting the history of the world famous law enforcement agency.

The public is invited to view the exhibition which will continue through Friday, December 7. The bank is open until 3 p.m. daily. Capt. T.L. Rundell, Sr., commander of Ranger Company C, headquartered in Lubbock, said that local Rangers will be on hand to answer questions. According to Rundell, all of the material in the exhibit was donated by individuals or by members of the Rangers.

Marion T. Key, chairman of the Public Safety Commission of Texas and a Lubbock attorney, urged area citizens to see the exhibit. "The Rangers have made significant contributions to law enforcement in Texas. They are more than deserving of this recognition and I hope every citizen will see the exhibit and express appreciation to this outstanding group of men."

In previous appearances throughout the State the large exhibit has been especially popular with school children and persons interested in both law enforcement and Texas history.

The exhibit features a variety of weapons from antiques to present day firearms, all of which have been used by the Rangers. Rifles include the Winchester Model '94, original and present day, an M-16, a .30 caliber carbine and several other types of weapons.

The heaviest handgun ever manufactured, a .44 caliber Colt percussion pistol, called the Walker Colt, is included in the exhibit. Designed by Col. Sam Walker and manufactured by Colt for use in Indian battles, the pistol weighed four and a half pounds.

Organized in 1823 by Stephen F. Austin, the father of Texas, the Texas Rangers today are an integral unit in the Texas Department of Public Safety's Criminal Law Enforcement Division.

Tomorrow has been defined as "today's greatest labor-saving device."

together to conserve. Business is best qualified to lead us out of this problem by finding new energy sources and better ways of using energy."

Todd touched on a telephone industry problem that he said could have adverse effect on the average residential telephone user. "As you know," he said, "the industry has been opened up to competition by the FCC. The intent was to provide better telephone service for everyone."

"We have no quarrel with fair competition. But, as self serving as this may sound, we don't think that private line competition as it's been set up, is either fair or beneficial to the general body of telephone users."

Todd said private line competitors have selected high-density routes over which to compete, "providing service between two points where the traffic is heavy and service is cheap to provide."

We have to provide service everywhere, even where it's not cheap to provide. So our competitors are cream-skimming the market, if you will.

"In order to compete in the high-density part of the market, so we're going to have to reduce our rates. That will mean the high-density routes of our business no longer will be able to help carry the cost of providing the same service along low-density routes. So we'll have to increase rates in those low-density areas."

Todd drew this comparison: "Telephone traffic is heavy between Dallas and Houston, and it's cheaper to handle calls between those points than, say, between Lubbock and Presidio. Previously, we could spread costs over all routes, both high and low density, and still give the high-density customers a bargain on their calls. Now the high-density users are going to get a bigger bargain, but the Lubbock-to-Presidio route will have to draw more revenue to stand on its own."

What's Ma Bell doing about this? Todd said the parent company, AT&T, has strongly urged the FCC to take another look at its ruling and the whole picture of competition.

"And, of course, we're trying to tell our customers and the general public what they have a right to know, just what's happening."

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

To Jim Carlen: Congratulations, coach, you not only made it, you made it big. For the first time in my memory, Texas Tech has given a football coach a pact that insures longevity.

I think it's safe to say that, based on the record of the Raider football teams over Carlen's four seasons at the big spread, the contract was deserved. He has demonstrated that he can recruit the type of player needed to produce a winner, that he can assemble a top staff, that he can organize and direct, that he is a winner.

I think it's also safe to say that Jim has been a controversial coach, especially in his first two seasons here. As a result, not everyone will jump up and cheer, although even those not overly sold on the man personally give grudging tribute to his record.

Indeed, one of the first things mentioned was that he still hadn't beaten Texas. If he had won this year, he probably would have been given a lifetime contract!

The long contract should put to rest the last serious opposition to Coach Carlen. Those who were disgruntled the first two years, and who investigated the possibility of buying up his contract, have been squelched thoroughly.

In fact, the long-term contract should unify people behind Carlen and Texas Tech football. The 10-year pact was not a frivolous, spur-of-the-moment action. It showed abiding faith in him. Anything less than complete support would be fantastic stupidity.

Don't get excited, Tech basketball fans, the season is young yet. What's more, this is the toughest non-conference schedule Tech has had in years.

Gerald Myers has a rebuilding job to do and it isn't going to get done overnight. People don't realize, yet, just how much Ron Richardson and Ed Wakefield meant to last year's championship club. The first home game helped bring it out, though.

*****

Vanderbilt, with an experienced, seasoned team, kept pecking away at the Raiders. They pressed on defense. They harried Tech players from behind. They gambled on the passing lanes to intercept. They didn't panic, kept their poise and forced Raider turnovers.

Vandy had good shooters, too. They had good, quick movement of the ball. At times they faked Tech defenders out of their sneakers. They kept the pressure on.

All of which isn't to say that Tech doesn't have the makings of a good team. It does. The difference right now is that it has too many inexperienced players for topflight competition that is seasoned, canny and poised.

But that's the reason for tough non-conference games. It gives new players the experience they need. It helps a team jell. And when the conference campaign rolls around, it's a new ball game.

There were bright spots in Monday night's loss, and not just the fact that Rick Bullock scored 27 points. Rick was expected to be a prolific scorer this year.

But I thought that Grady Newton showed signs of becoming a good forward, with more experience. He came up with some good points on the board and he handled the ball well at times. Forward, of course, is the spot that bothers Gerald the most.

William Johnson should develop into a strong player, while Richard Little and Don Moore are steady at guard. Both, however, are capable of better games than Monday night.

Tech, at times, moved the ball well. The Raiders were alert and several times took advantage of Vandy mistakes. One area that needs strengthening is rebounding, where Tech too often was out of position, allowing Vandy to come up with too many rebounds.

In short, the picture looks encouraging.

To the surprise of just about everyone, Rice took third place in the conference grid race and Baylor finished on the bottom without a victory. Arkansas did a little better than expected and SMU didn't do as well, despite its finish.

Fans ought to mark down Arkansas and Baylor as two capable of causing trouble next year. The Hogs got stronger as the season progressed and Baylor, in view of the 0-7 record, may be overlooked. Thus, this could make the Bears a real factor.

The news of Andre Tillman's selection to the AP All American team came as a surprise and a non-surprise, both. But the honor was richly deserved for an outstanding football player.

Tillman has been brilliant at split end. Because he wasn't used as a prime receiver much of the time, there was a tendency to overlook him. That would have been tragic, because he blocked brilliantly and was a key to Tech's offensive performance. The honor is earned.

The Black Experience: Race and racial oppression belong to entirely different categories: the origin of race is in nature; that of racial oppression is social, according to Grigory Glezerman. Glezerman is professor at the Institute of Philosophy of the Soviet Academy of Sciences. He believes that ideologists of racism tend in one way or another to deny this distinction and elevate racial inequality to the rank of natural law.

Neither color of skin or structure of hair nor any other characteristics of race can possibly account for unequal levels of social, economic or cultural development of people belonging to different races. This inequality, he believes is a product of history, not of nature.

Anthropologists have convincingly demonstrated that race distinctions concern only minor characteristics and do not allow any sharply borderlines to be drawn between the different groups of mankind. Some scientists estimate that only one percent of the total number of genes are responsible for transmitting characteristics that distinguish one race from another. And those genes are responsible only for such superficial features as color of skin and the like.

The sizes of race populations, their migration, the process of mixing and so on depend mainly on the conditions of social life. This manifests itself, among other things, in the fact that there are no "pure" races now, adds Glezerman.

In spite of the obstacles created by racial segregation in a number of countries, the process of mixing goes on steadily. A leading authority on genetics, Nicolai P. Dubinin, estimates that "on the whole, one may assume that now about half of the world population are the product of race mixing. The year 1492, when Columbus discovered America, was the starting point of the present round of the ever expanding genetic process of pooling human heredity within a single gigantic population."

"A radical solution for racial and national problems can be achieved not by opposing peoples one against another or dividing them, but by uniting their progressive forces", concludes Glezerman.

Lubbock Resident Returns Home

Mrs. Katie Thomas, a long time resident of Lubbock, returned last week from a four week tour that took her first to Breckenridge, Texas for a brief visit with relatives and friends. From there she went to Waco, Texas where she has a brother and many friends. From Waco to Mexia where she found more friends and a sister-in-law. Here she spent several days.

The final stop of her journey took her to Fort Worth, Texas where she and 55 family members gathered for a big Thanksgiving. She says, "I don't have words in my vocabulary to explain how I enjoyed this Thanksgiving". This was Mrs. Thomas' family's first real get together in the absence of death. She said, "I'll have something to talk about and remember the rest of my life."

While she was visiting in Fort Worth, her grandson, Bobby, who also lives there, came to Lubbock to visit her and was fortunate to return home and found her with some of the other relatives. She had so much to tell. She spent the night with her sister here, Mrs. Rosa Jones, who enjoyed listening to the whole story.

Everyone is greeting here with "welcome home, Katie, and glad you had a marvelous trip and a wonderful time."

An observation by the pastor: "It would seem good to me, to ask the editor to mention in his column "As I See It", some positive input as to the good that the black clergy and black churches have initiated in our city, across the years. In all areas there are some inequities. They will not be eradicated by caustic and negative verbage."

Thought For The Week: "You can make the difference".

Friendship Baptist Church

Brownfield—Mrs. Ethel Williams was at her Sunday School Supt. post on time Sunday. The lesson was turned over to the teachers for deep discussion. The pastor came forward with a powerful review of the lesson.

ASTROLOGERS WORSHIP CHRIST

"Then Herod sent a private message to the astrologers, asking them to come to see him; at this meeting he found out from them the exact time when they first saw the star. Then he told them, 'Go to Bethlehem and search for the child. And when you find him, come back and tell me so that I can go and worship him too!'"

After this interview the astrologers started out again. And look! The star appeared to them again, standing over Bethlehem. Their joy knew no bounds!

Entering the house where the baby and Mary his mother were, they threw themselves down before him, worshipping. Then they opened their presents and gave him gold, frankincense and myrrh."

Christmas Trees Present Major Fire Hazards

In a few days, millions of American families will bring into their homes a potential fire hazard that can, within seconds, be ignited into an inferno.

It's the Christmas tree—one of the most combustible of holiday decorations, and one which can spread flame rapidly, threatening severe damage or loss of life.

The Christmas tree is such a central part of most families' holiday celebrations that it would be unfair to suggest that people avoid buying them. On the other hand, people can't be told too often that careless treatment of their Christmas decorations can mean a holiday season that ends in tragedy.

Aetna Life & Casualty, one of the nation's largest home insurers, has provided a list of suggestions for a safer holiday season:

- Don't depend on flame retardants to make your tree non-combustible. Controversy exists over whether many fire-retardant chemical treatments are of any use at all. Some may, in fact, accelerate the drying process.

- If your tree has been professionally flameproofed, test it. Break off a small dry branch and take it to a safe, outdoor location. Place the branch in a verticle position and hold a lighted match so that the flame makes contact with the needles on the lower end of the branch. If the branch ignites beyond the contact area, your tree is not flame proof.

- Keep the tree fresh. "Fire-proofed" or not, all natural trees should be kept as moist as possible. Buy a fresh tree and keep it outdoors until it is needed. Don't purchase a tree with brittle or shedding needles. Better still, cut your own tree, just before you're going to put it up in the house.

- As soon as you get the tree home, cut off the end of the trunk diagonally at least one inch above the original cut. Stand the tree in a container of water and keep it in a cool place. Sprinkle the branches frequently until you bring the tree indoors.

- In the house, keep the tree in water at all times and remove it from the house before the needles dry out. Your tree should not be kept around after New Year's under any conditions.

- Keep flame and heat away.

Most people know better than to place their tree before an operating fireplace. But also be sure that radiators, heating stoves, radios and television sets are well away.

- Keep it upright. Make sure your tree is sturdily supported, indoors and outdoors. Buy a tree stand the appropriate size for your tree. And if your tree is natural, buy one with a deep well for water.

- Artificial trees can burn, too. If you buy a plastic tree, buy one labeled "fire-retardant".

- About decorations. Use only electric lights that are labeled by a recognized testing laboratory. Check all strings of lights to make sure they are in good condition, with no frayed cords. If the lights are placed on metal trees, make sure the tree is grounded.

- Never leave lights burning when no one is at home. Unplug lights before going to bed.

- If the needles near the lights start to brown, move the lights. If you expect to keep the tree inside more than a few days, do not keep the lights on for more than half an hour at a time.

- Keep other decorations as fire safe as the tree. If you put lights in the windows, keep curtains pulled back at least six inches from lights. Never leave them on when no one is at home.

- Don't use candles.

- Keep all decorations away from sources of flame or heat. Try to hang your decorations from the ceiling, above peoples' heads. Keep them away from chairs or any other place where people may smoke.

- Try to buy noncombustible materials. Such things as manger scenes covered with untreated cotton "snow" or hay-filled mangers can be real fire hazards.

- Dispose of wrapping paper quickly. If you open your presents under the tree, remove discarded papers and ribbons as soon as possible. Don't burn the paper and boxes in the fireplace—take them outside and put them in a closed trash container.

- If you want more advice, don't be afraid to ask. If you're in charge of Christmas decorations for an office or other public place, find out what your state or local fire laws permit. Your local fire marshall will know and will be glad to answer any questions you have about the safety of Christmas decorations.

"Sunshiners" Volunteer Project

Applications are now being taken for "Sunshiners". The Sunshiners is a year round project whereby "Sunshiners" are assigned a name of a patient from local convalescent Homes. These are patients that have very few, if any, visitors or family.

Each "Sunshiner" agrees to the following: (1) They will agree to personally visit their friend (patient) within two weeks of date of assignment. (2) They will agree to sending the friend (patient) some kind of mail at least once a month. It is recommended that "Sunshiners" take advantage of holiday cards, birthday cards, etc. for this mail.

These are the only things required. However, we do hope a closer relationship will develop and in time the patient aided in some form of recreation even if it is only taking a walk down the hall.

To become a "Sunshiner" or for further information, call Dorothy Dailey, 762-6411, Ext. 309 or 310.
