COMPLETES DISCOVERY COURSE—Jackie DeV Vaughn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert L. DeV Vaughn of 2307 Birch Avenue and Equilla Peoples, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C.C. Peoples of 1517 East Amherst, have just completed the Discovery Course which was sponsored by Sears-Roebuck and Company.

A style show was given in the Reddy Room of Southwestern Public Service Company last Monday evening, November 12. Both received a certificate from the store manager, Mr. W.H. Cherry. Miss Pam Inman was the Discovery Course instructor.

High Blood Pressure Major Health Problem Affecting Black Americans

High blood pressure is the "major health problem affecting black Americans today," Richard A. Williams, MD, Assistant Medical Director, Martin Luther King Jr. General Hospital, Los Angeles, said.

"The severity of high blood pressure in blacks cannot be overemphasized," Dr. Williams said. "Strokes occur in black hypertensives at an earlier age and are more often fatal on the first occurrence. Likewise, congestive heart failure, secondary to hypertension, is much more severe in the black patient as compared to the white patient."

The reasons for this disparity are unknown, he said.

Dr. Williams spoke at the John Beauregard Johnson Memorial Symposium on high blood pressure and other black-related diseases at the Century Plaza Hotel. The symposium was sponsored jointly by the Martin Luther King Jr. General Hospital, Charles R. Drew Post-graduate Medical School, and CIBA Pharmaceutical Company, as part of its Medical Horizons Postgraduate Education Program.

It was named in honor of a cardiologist and investigator who worked for many years at Howard University College of Medicine and who himself died recently from high blood pressure.

Most authorities now feel that a multifaceted approach to the control of high blood pressure is necessary, Dr. Williams said.

The various aspects of this approach are, he said, as follows: Public Education. This will alert people to the dangers of high blood pressure and hopefully will cause them to have their blood pressures checked.

Comprehensive Screening. Programs are being established throughout the country in an effort to screen the population in general and areas of high risk in particular, i.e., the black community, for presence of undetected hypertension.

Research. It is important for clinical and basic scientific research into the causes of high blood pressure to be carried on. Unfortunately, adequate funds are not currently available to the extend that they are needed.

Treatment. Physicians are fortunate in having many effective drugs available for the treatment of high blood pressure. Treatment does affect the course of essential hypertension and complications can be reduced significantly, and in some cases, eliminated.

Patient Cooperation. This is an extremely important aspect of a comprehensive approach to high blood pressure. It is incumbent upon the physician and other medical personnel to stress to the patient the necessity of taking his medicine and the consequences of erratic medicine taking practices or habits.

Raiders Hold Scrimmage at Dunbar High Gym

"We've got an awful lot of work to do," were the first words that Texas Tech Basketball Coach Gerald Myers uttered following an exhibition scrimmage Thursday night in Dunbar High School's brightly polished gym.

Myers didn't crack a smile following the scrimmage in which the supposedly starting Red Raider quintet had been extended to the utmost by the reserves.

Before it was all over, the "first" team had taken a 91-67 victory, but the margin doesn't mean much. In the second half, Myers used first teamers on the second team and play became ragged. Up to that point, the reserves had more than

Students-Faculty Provides Leadership For Boy Scouts

In today's super-society, that leaves many parents with little time for their children, Tech students and faculty members are serving as key volunteers in the scouting movement.

This worn out image of Scouts leading little old ladies across busy streets is gone. Today's Scouts are more likely involved in a rap session on religion, drugs or social awareness. They may be grappling down a canyon wall or trekking through the Pecos Wilderness.

From ages 8-18, today's Scouts are doing relevant things. University students and faculty are providing much needed leadership.

A desire to work and share in the problems of Lubbock's minority areas prompts many Tech men and women to serve as Cub Scout Leaders in often hard to reach areas.

They meet once a week with a group of 8-9 and 10 year old youngsters in a den meeting, an hour's worth of crafts, songs, games and activity, all leading toward helping boys of all ethnic backgrounds develop new skills.

held their own.

Shining like a searchlight on a dark night was Mark Davis, the big (6-9) former Lubbock High stalwart, whose improvement in less than a year has been outstanding. Davis, pitted against established Rick Bullock, scored 36 points and played a strong game.

Bullock managed 33 points and increased his scoring from short range when he stopped forcing his shots. The two big men dominated action to a large extent, although Phil Bailey and Richard Little found the cords well.

Steve Dunn, a slick freshman, who needs only experience to be a front liner, showed quickness, good moves and a soft touch with the ball. He made many mistakes, as Myers pointed out, but he demonstrated enough ability for fans to mark him as a future.

Tech's biggest problem is at one forward spot. William Johnson played his usual steady game and showed that he is ready for a good season, but the other forward is being held in doubt. Grady Newton, one of the prime candidates, and Steve Trneak, battling for a starting position, both hit timely baskets, but didn't demonstrate the type of strength for which Myers is looking.

The scrimmage, which attracted a relatively sparse crowd, was the third as the Raiders prepare to defend their Southwest Conference title. They open against Fresno State at the California site Nov. 30 and time is running low.

"We have a lot of work to do," Myers said after the scrimmage. "We showed some bright spots, but..." and here his voice trailed off.

Time is growing short for the Tech cage crew and a lot of hardwork obviously lies ahead.

At last months meeting of the newly organized East Lubbock Businessmen Association, five people were appointed to the board of directors. Those appointed were A.J. Caviel, C.B. Stubblefield, Harold M. Chatman, R.J. Givens and Bobby Williams.

The next general meeting of the association will be held Tuesday evening, November 27, at 7:30 p.m. at Mae Simmons Community Center. Those businessmen and women or interested citizens of the community are asked to attend this meeting.

The board of directors, meeting on the 13th of this month, will present to the entire body a complete picture of the programs they feel the body should undertake at this time. The organization, which was organized

Rites Read For Mrs. Washington

Final rites were read last Saturday afternoon for Mrs. Catherine Washington, 45, of 2805 Vanda Avenue, at Ford Memorial Church of God in Christ, with Bishop J.E. Alexander officiating.

Burial was held in Peaceful Gardens Memorial Park under direction of Jamison and Son Funeral Home.

Mrs. Washington died last week in West Texas Hospital.

Survivors include her husband, R.L., and two sons, Dwight and Gaylord, both of the home.

Local P.T.A. Member, Mrs. Theodore Phea, Jr., Attends Austin State Meeting

Meeting with approximately 2,200 delegates, Mrs. Theodore (Dorothy) Phea, Jr. of 1801 E. 24th Street, spent three activity filled days in Austin, November 14-16, as the Texas PTA met for the 64th time in state convention. Mrs. Marvin Armstrong, state president from Lubbock, presided.

Developing the theme, "We Have A Commitment," the PTA meetings gave delegates an opportunity to hear outstanding speakers, attend workshops dealing with 16 pressing areas concerning Texas children, and debate on resolutions from across the state.

Speakers for the annual meeting included Mrs. Lillie Herndon, president of the National PTA, expanding on the theme with "We Have A Commitment to All Children"; Dr. Bernice Milburn Moore, executive Associate, Hogg Foundation, University of Texas, Austin, expressing her views on "Communication: The Art of Being Human"; and the final challenge from Dr. Gerald Fisher, president of Garland County Community College, Hot Springs, Arkansas, with "You Can't Go Forward With the Brakes On".

Other activities during the state convention included a reception at the awesome Lyndon Baines Johnson Library; election of eight regional vice-presidents; and adoption of the 1973-74 Legislative Study Program. This year's study program will concentrate on such areas as school financing in Texas, early childhood education, and school bus safety.

to promote the economic growth, development and civic responsibility of the East Lubbock community, is expected to contribute many projects to the Lubbock community.

One of the responsibilities of the board of directors was to submit names to the general body for president of the organization. The Times learned from a member of the organization that three names are expected to be submitted for the body's consideration.

"The meeting on Tuesday (November 27) is a very important meeting", says Stubblefield, an important figure in forming the organization. "Aside from choosing a president of the organization, the group will be voting on other important items," he continued.

Each board of director member has voiced their concern for all interested citizens to attend this important meeting. "We want your help to make this one of the best associations in town," says Stubblefield. Other items on the adjenda will include issues on membership, dues, officers and other important matters.

Williams was elected as chairman of the board of directors by the group. He said, "I will accept this office, and want everybody to work together for the betterment of the community."

"I would like to urge those interested persons to attend this important meeting on Tuesday, November 27th at Mae Simmons Community Center," said Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ehlo are president and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Phea, Jr. are first vice-president at O.L. Slaton Junior High School's PTA.

Mrs. Phea told the Times that the purpose of the Parent Teacher Student Association "is to help youth help themselves to achieve physical fitness, intellectual growth, sound character, vocational competence, skill in family and other human relations, social and civic awareness."

As co-workers with parents, teachers and other adults, students gain skills in listening and talking, understanding different points of view, analysing problems and considering alternative solutions. They grow in both capability and responsibility.

Mr. Jack Shackles is principal and Mr. Leslie Cross is assistant principal.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

It's one thing to hear about something, but it's another thing to be able to witness something which has good meaning. I had an opportunity Sunday afternoon at Bethel A.M.E. Church to hear the "Black Voices" of the Student Organization for Black Unity (SOBU) of Texas Tech University as they appeared as special guest of the Bethel Youth Musical.

No question about it, these young people are good and the city of Lubbock as well as the entire state of Texas should hear them. They have something to say in their songs of joy. I hope that many black citizens of West Texas will get an opportunity to hear them. These young people, fifty in number, are singing because they want to do so.

I hope, with all sincerity, the President of the University, Dr. Grover Murray, will hear these young people and help them as much as possible become visible in West Texas and the State.

This group, without any doubt, is a tremendous recruiting program to bring more black students on the campus of Texas Tech University. At the present time, there are less than 250 blacks on campus. With the assistance of such an organization, many more blacks would know more about Texas Tech and would want to become a part of the Tech family.

This group, in the past, has sung to many churches in the Hub City. They have sung because they wanted to sing God's praises to any church who would invite them. The second Sunday in December, for example, the group will appear at the Greater Saint Luke Baptist Church at 3 p.m. in a recital.

I wonder if the administration at Texas Tech University has thought of allocating funds for these young people as they go throughout the city of Lubbock singing at the various churches. Not only should funds be made available to travel throughout Lubbock, but throughout the state of Texas. This is a unique group and the entire state should hear them.

I can see nothing but positive results coming from the efforts of this group of young people who really love singing. I would encourage Texas Tech University, its administration and even the Board of Regents to applaud such an effort and see that these young people will receive the necessary assistance they need to keep Texas Tech University visible, from a positive point of view, in the state of Texas.

JFK

The nostalgia surrounding the John Kennedy Administration is unique—for several reasons. First, the handsome President was tragically assassinated—just ten years ago this month. He and his wife projected a fine public relations image as a glamorous, youthful couple.

Kennedy was a splendid speaker and captured audiences with his personality, sense of humor and frankness. He was the candidate of the party of the left and many of the "peepul" saw him as their champion, to a degree, as a symbol of what can happen in America.

Though he actually didn't accomplish a lot legislatively, Kennedy inspired many to greater hopes, to plans for better days. And while he committed the first Americans to the shooting in Vietnam, he is usually not held accountable for this fateful step. The public tends to blame the late Lyndon Johnson, who so vastly escalated the war.

Thus the Kennedy memory and legend remain undimmed and the nation tends to forget the unaccomplished goals and to recall the spirit, the hope, the idealism of that three-year period, 1961-63—and the handsome, youthful image and personality of the martyred President, especially in these troubled times when so much doubt and confusion surround the highest office in the land.

That boyish, handsome smile and likeableness are certain to continue to captivate the American public, and the world, for years to come—that in itself being a measure of the late President's character, personality and charm.

From Japan

From Japan comes the world's most promising news in the development of modern, high-speed trains. With over a hundred million people on their islands, the Japanese face congestion and geography problems few other nations confront.

And instead of encouraging so many to commute to jobs in cars the Japanese have built what is probably the best railway system in the world. Already they have fast, clean modern trains averaging over a hundred miles an hour carrying millions to and from jobs daily.

They are now building tunnels under the sea along new routes, have designed an even newer, 100-passenger floating-coach train, carried by an overhead rail utilizing magnetic suspension and a new propulsion system. This new train will travel at about 300 miles an hour and whisk passengers between cities faster than airliners.

In short, the Japanese have probably done more to retain and reinvigorate rail passenger service than any other nation. The world is in their debt for this effort because growing highway congestion, fuel shortages, etc., indicate modern, efficient rail passenger service is a must in the future.

Thanksgiving, 1973

Our American Thanksgiving Day dates officially from 1863 when the nation was locked in a sectional struggle. At that time Mrs. Sarah J. Hale, who had been proposing a national day of thanksgiving for decades in Boston and Philadelphia as a magazine editor, wrote to President Abraham Lincoln—who in October of 1863 issued the first Thanksgiving Proclamation.

There had been earlier thanksgiving days; some date the American observance to the days of the early settlers of the nation—who gave thanks for their food supply and the opportunity America offered. The first probably occurred in the Plymouth Colony in 1621.

There have also been observances in other lands but few countries had adopted annual thanksgiving days prior to the American custom. An international thanksgiving day was held in Washington in 1909, having been conceived by the Rev. Dr. William T. Russell of St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

Thus the American Thanksgiving Day, this year on the 22nd, is uniquely American. In 1973 it finds us blessed with both great wealth and peace.

In giving thanks for the many blessings all Americans enjoy, we can resolve to build a better community and a greater nation—for in spite of our blessings and accomplishments, there is still much to be done in the building of our country.

I hope the name of the "Black Vlices" will not fall on deaf ears. They have something to offer our community. Let's get behind them and whatever they do will benefit our community. These young people need our help, both spiritually and morally. I would suggest that Texas Tech find some means by which funds would be made available so they will be able to travel as they should.

I must, at this time, compliment Bethel A.M.E. Church and its advisors, Mrs. Sarah Wadley and Mrs. Bobbie Patterson, for having the vision to bring such a group to their congregation. Not only the Black Vlices, but the Youth Choirs of Bethel for a splendid job. To me, this program showed that young people can get involved and help their church and community. More of this is needed. Don't you think so?

I have made every rival game between the Dunbar Panthers and Estacado Matadors. I must admit that the game last Saturday evening was the most encouraging contest I have witnessed in the schools history.

To me, the game went beyond the score (Dunbar son). It showed me that black brothers, white brothers and brown brothers can still talk things over after a hard fought game.

I observed more mingling among one another after the contest. Of course tempers flared up on the field, but after the game, each complimented each other for a job well done.

The game only lasted 48 official minutes, but the game of life lasts much more. We should be proud of the way our young people are beginning to awaken to the fact that we must get along together.

Thanks, Dunbar and Estacado High School students for an example worth passing on to those older than you. I hope, with all sincerity, that in the future you will continue to set such images.

I hope the East Lubbock business Association will continue to make strides as it has in the past few weeks. Although you are a newly organized association, you've done more than an average group has done in East Lubbock since this newspaper can recall.

I must applaud each member for the hard work in electing five persons whom you think will make dynamic board of directors. On the other hand, I must let the entire community know that you have set up a dynamic structure which will help your organization contribute something to our community.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK GRIM

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—The economic outlook is far more bleak than President Nixon is telling the public. His own experts are warning that the Arab oil embargo will send this country into an economic tailspin. Unless it is lifted, they predict a serious recession, perhaps even a depression, within the next two years.

The oil shortage will hit all the industries, from automobiles to plastics, that use petroleum products. People will have to be laid off work. They will tighten their belts. This means less money will be spent on consumer products, which, in turn, will cause more layoffs and belt tightening.

Already, the surveys show that consumers are losing confidence in the economy. They are wary about the oil shortages. They have lost faith in President Nixon's leadership. They are worried about layoffs and loss of overtime.

Their natural reaction is to save money against a possible loss of income. Therefore, they don't buy the car or TV set or refrigerator that they might otherwise have purchased. The sale of durable goods has already leveled off.

Meanwhile, the experts predict the nation will be hit by electricity blackouts and cold homes as a direct result of the oil shortage. President Nixon's political instinct will be to cut back on factories rather than households. He doesn't want millions of voters shivering and blaming him.

But if the households consume too much energy, there won't be enough to operate our plants. This will result, inevitably, in plant closures and increased unemployment.

The warnings are dire. But President Nixon is still taking only half-measures.

Nixon's Undoing: The 19-point bill of particulars cited by the AFL-CIO as grounds for the impeachment of President Nixon leads off with the charge that he used the office for personal enrichment.

Probably no other White House scandal has so enraged the American people as the story of the President's taxes and estates. Despite a salary of $200,000 a year, he paid a federal income tax of only $792.81 in 1970 and $878.03 in 1971. This is no more than a working man with the same size family would pay if he earned only $8,500 a year.

One reason the President got away with paying such low taxes was because of the deductions afforded by his homes in San Clemente and Key Biscayne. Yet the taxpayers got stuck with most of the bills for these kingly estates. They have cost the taxpayers more than $10 million, not counting the tremendous transportation bill the President and his aides have run up flying cross country.

Many of the expenditures can be justified as essential to the President's security. But the taxpayers have also been soaked for many luxuries and incidentals, such as stamping his golf tees with the presidential logo and furnishing his bathroom with his favorite soap.

His aides also wrangled some extras out of the taxpayers. At San Clemente, for example, the taxpayers had to pay for a Muzak system to pipe music into the offices of aides John Ehrlichman, Henry Kissinger, Dwight Chapin and Rose Mary Woods. The cost for this background music was $992.94.

It may be the waste, more than Watergate, that will cause the President's undoing.

Battling Back: The President has been making overtures to Congress to head off the move to impeach him. He has been calling in the Republican members, a group at a time, to lay his case before them. At these sessions, he has been effective in drawing off the steam that had been building up on Capital Hill.

But in the privacy of his oval office, the President hasn't been at all conciliatory. It is his habit to go into seclusion to grapple with a great crisis. Our White House sources say he came out of seclusion the first of November with fire in his eyes.

He told aides that the American people like a fighter and that he is going to fight his way back to the top. He compared himself to the late President Harry Truman who never stopped battling when he sank in the popularity polls.

Nixon swore to his aides fiercely that he had no intention of turning the government over to those who have been out to get him. If he left the White House as his adversaries are demanding, he said, he would be cut to pieces by them.

He doesn't intend to let his adversaries shear him of his presidential powers, which would leave him unarmed and helpless. On the contrary, he is determined to stay in the White House and to use the powers of the presidency to defend himself.

Our sources say Richard Nixon made this perfectly clear.

Ironic Twist: Spiro Agnew often complained to his rich friends that the demands on a man in high office were too large for the salary. He needed cash, he told them, to carry on in the style befitting a national office holder.

Because he accepted cash, he is no longer a national office holder. But the Agnew example dramatically illustrates the problems many politicians of modest means now face.

The laws governing campaign funds have been tightened, so that politicians can no longer dip into their campaign money to pay personal bills. They have to find some other way to finance newsletters, travel and other incidentals.

This has compelled some congressmen to raise slush funds to cover their incumbency expenses. It was a slush fund that got Richard Nixon into trouble in the 1952 campaign.

But slush funds have now become the only way some congressmen can pay for all the incidentals they used to take out of their campaign collections. Wyoming's Rep. Teno Roncalio, for example, is throwing a party billed as "Vino with Teno" to raise money. Others on Capitol Hill have planned similar fundraising affairs.

By a twist of irony, in other words, campaign reforms have forced some politicians to appeal to contributors for noncampaign funds and, thereby, to become even more dependent on rich patrons.

Probe of Panther Raid Requested

New York—(NBNS)—A citizens commission, headed by Roy Wilkins of the NAACP and former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, has asked the Justice Department to reopen the police raid investigation of Black Panthers headquarters in Chicago in 1969.

In a 284-page book, entitled "Search and Destroy", the commission states clearly why it believes the investigation into the raid should be reopened the lists the probably causes for filing charges against public officials involved in the case.

The self appointed citizens commission was necessary, according to the Clark, because other grand juries "had failed to do their duty."

At a news conference to discuss the report, Clark labelled the report "a remarkably important document" of the shooting deaths by police of two Black Panther leaders, Fred Hampton and Mark Clark. The raid also left four others injured, three by machine gun fire. No officers were injured or killed.

Although the former Chicago States Attorney Edward Hanrahan and 11 others were indicted and tried on charges resulting from the raid, they were subsequently found innocent. No policeman or officials has been convicted on any charges arising from the raid.

After a great deal of "soul searching", Clark said the commission had decided there was "probable cause to believe that Fred Hampton was murdered, in the legal sense of the word."

The report, which will be sold at book stores, was delayed over a conflict between the staff and the citizens' commission over its tone.

Simon and Schuster were originally scheduled to publish the report in paperback, but the wrangling caused the publisher to withdraw his offer. Harper and Row ended up publishing the book, but the costs had to be borne by the NAACP and Dr. Kenneth Clark, head of the Metropolitan Applied Research Corp. in New York.
