

Damon Hill Honored by Former Students

Damon Hill, the second coach hired at Dunbar High School to coach every sport, was honored last Friday evening at the Gridiron Restaurant by former students and players of the Dunbar Panthers.

He expressed his sincere appreciation for this event, and said: "I will never forget this wonderful program."

With a theme: "This Is Your Life", Mr. Hill was reminded of the many experiences he encountered in the Lubbock Public School System for 37½ years.

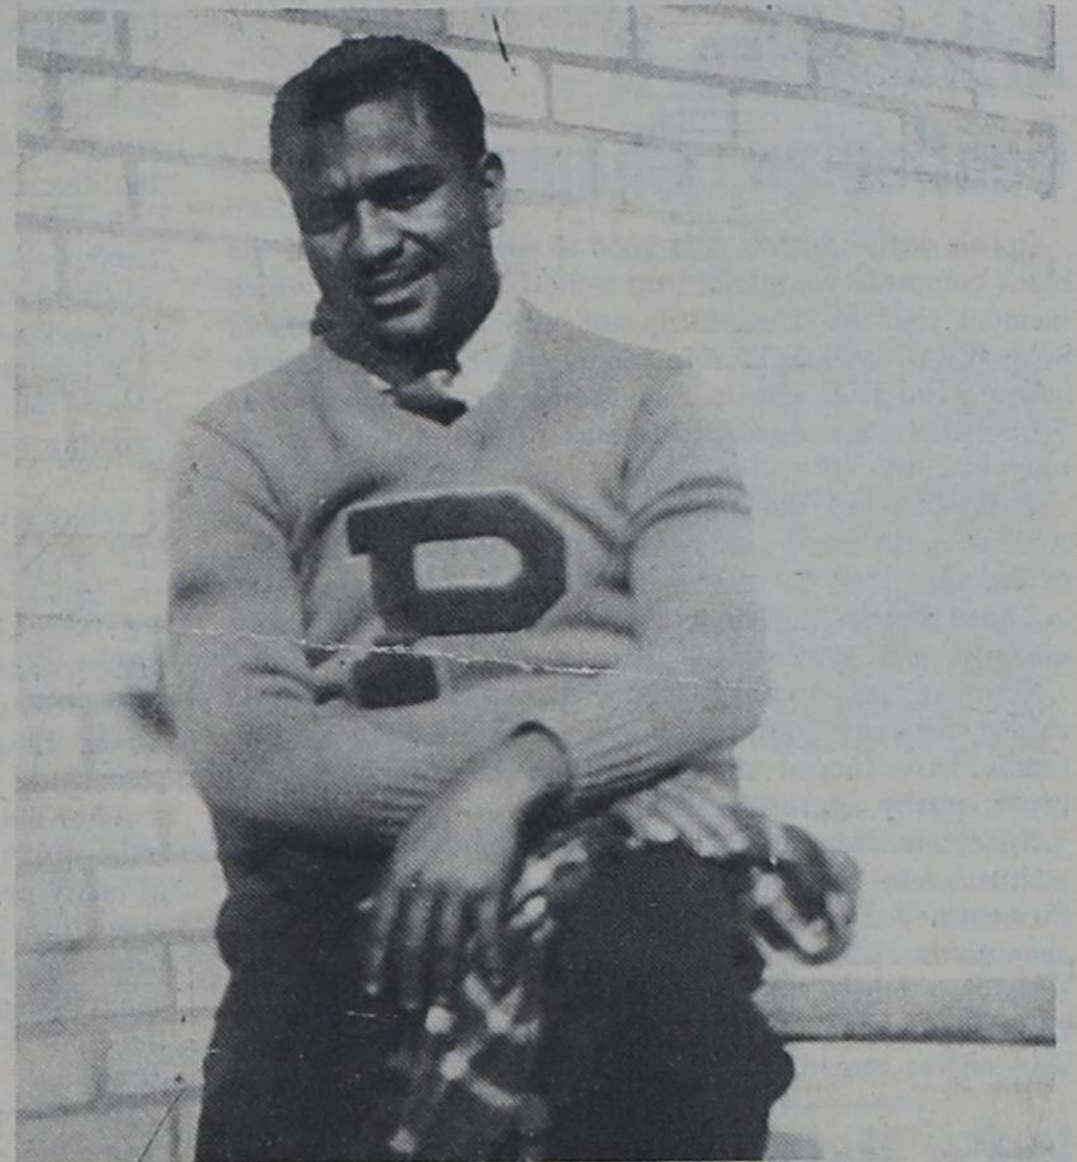

He began in 1937 developing programs for young people at the high school. He was a shop teacher, and 20 of those years he monitored Dunbar's many successes in athletics as coach in football, basketball and track.

Aside from working at Dunbar High School, Mr. Hill served as shop teacher at Mackenzie Junior High School and O.L. Slaton Junior High School.

Some of the highlights of his career includes, industrial arts in state competition with four first place winners; four second place winners; and six third place winners. He has had exhibits of boys accomplishments for parents before commencement exercises.

Also, he organized the National Honor Society at Dunbar; and the pride of his student's showings at the South Plains Industrial Association Fairs has to rank high among his achievements as an educator, coach and friend to young people.

involvements include a member of the Men's Civic and Social Club, Phi Delta Kappa; Board member of the Y.M.C.A., Masons, and progressional educational organizations. He is a faithful member of the Greater Saint Luke Baptist Church.

He is married to the former Mary Sallard, and they are proud parents of two children, Damon Jr., a student at Texas Tech Medical School; and daughter, Ila Kay, who just graduated from Dunbar High School and is presently a student at Texas Tech University.

The final series about Mr. Hill's experiences at Dunbar are printed in this weeks edition.

Van Jefferson Named as Head Coach for Dunbar High School

Van Terrel Jefferson, an assistant football coach at Lubbock High School, was named last week by the Lubbock School Board of Trustees as the new head coach of Dunbar High School. He will replace Louis Kelly who became head coach at Estacado High School.

A graduate of Langston University at Langston, Okla., he received his masters of education in biology from West Texas State University at Canyon in 1973. He is a native of Frederick, Oklahoma, and has done graduate work at Texas Tech University.

"One of my ultimate goals for the past 15 years has been to be head coach of Dunbar High School," Jefferson said.

Jefferson commented that he had enjoyed his stay at other schools and noted that he had worked at Dunbar in 1970. He remarked, "I'm going back home. Dunbar is a good school with good kids who have pride and are aggressive football players. The students are easy to work with."

He praised his predecessor, Louis Kelly, and commented that he considered the Dunbar coaching staff one of the best. "I plan to continue building on the good program that is already there," he said. He also remarked that he is looking forward to working with the citizens in the Dunbar community as well as the faculty and principal Roy Roberts.

Principal Roberts told the Times that Jefferson is a very fine young man and expressed his happiness at the appointment. "We did a lot of searching and he came out on top," Roberts said. The Dunbar administrator said that he had known the new head coach since Jefferson was a high school student some 25 years ago. "He is a stable person who will do a fine job," Roberts said.

Jefferson's coaching career includes four years at G.W. Carver Jr. Sr. High School at Levelland; six years at G.W. Carver Jr. & Sr. High School in Amarillo; one year at Dunbar and Lubbock High schools.

Calvin Raullerson Appointed Special Assistant at Tech

The appointment of Calvin H. Raullerson as special assistant to the vice presidents for research and development was announced Wednesday, July 2, by Texas Tech President Grover E. Murray.

Raullerson has been serving as executive assistant to the dean of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine and special assistant to the President for International Programs.

He will continue to assist Dr. Murray in regard to International Programs.

W.B. Harris has been named executive assistant to the dean of the School of Medicine. He has been serving as director of development for the medical school.

In his new role, Raullerson will be working with Dr. J. Knox Jones, vice president for Research, and Dr. Clyde E. Kelsey Jr., vice president for Development, expanding the activities of both of their offices for the Texas Tech Complex.

Before coming to Texas Tech University in 1973, Raullerson was the director of the Africa Region of the Peace Corps with offices in Washington. He has served also as director of Educational Services, United Negro College Fund, Inc., New York, and as executive director of the American Society for African Culture (AMSAC), an organization engaged in social, cultural and educational exchanges between the United States and African countries. Raullerson continues to serve as consultant in organization development for the Management Development Consortium in Washington.

In announcing the new position for Raullerson, Dr. Murray referred to this background.

"The associations Mr. Raullerson has formed throughout his career," Dr. Murray said, "give him certain insights which will contribute to new directions for the university's programs in research and development."

"While both development and research have been expanded greatly during the past few years," the President said, "Texas Tech is not well served unless there is continuous growth and diversity in their outreach."

"Mr. Raullerson's expertise will be of value in both growth and diversity."

Raullerson earned the bachelor's degree in economics and political science, graduating with honors, at Lincoln University in Pennsylvania. His master of Public Administration Degree was earned at New York University where he was a Robeson Fellow. He has taken additional graduate work in government at Harvard Univer-

(Editor's note. This is part two of an exclusive interview with Damon Hill, second black coach to be hired by the Lubbock Public School System as coach of Dunbar High School. Mr. Hill talks this week about the records he had in football, basketball and track. He also lists many outstanding athletes he coached and their successes.)

What kind of record did you have in basketball?

I had one of the best records you ever saw. I don't think I ever lost over five games. That was entire coaching career in basketball until Coach Ernest P. Mallory came in 1948. When he came, the boys got some real good coaching. You see, I wouldn't consider myself a basketball coach. All I knew was to tell them to get that ball, pass the ball and shoot the ball. You can coach some of the best teams. The whole time I coached basketball, I never saw anyone really use any plays or anything until Mallory came. Now Mallory was the first fellow that I ever saw who really got out and did things like that. He won a lot of state championship titles. He was a good coach, one of the best. He was also a fine player. The team took on all these mannerisms, and that just made them good.

What kind of track record did you have?

I had one of the best records in the district and I had a good record in the state. I had some mighty fine fellows, and I could always develop them. They would always wonder why I had good running backs for the football team. Well, I was a running back when I was in college, and the kids would take on the mannerisms of a coach if you fool around with them. I was out there running and playing with them every day. One thing I'd do in order to have a

Arthur Ashe is Gentleman, Champion

In this day and time, it is good to see young men of the black community contributing something to sports which includes their gentlemanship and still remain champion. Seldom has a championship tennis match produced more interest and gratification, than the recent men's singles at Wimbledon—the most prestigious of the world's tennis tournaments.

Arthur Ashe, the first black ever to win, and an American, defeated Jimmy Connors with surprising ease, in four sets. And for America, it was real good news. Ashe is a good representative of the U.S. He is a sportsman, with manners of a gentleman.

Too many Americans of late, including Bobby Fischer in chess, and even Jimmy Connors and Billie Jean King in tennis, have turned millions sour on America with their brash, pushy aggressiveness.

Sportsmanship, a proper degree of modesty, and good manners are all the proper credentials of champions. Sometimes those without those qualities become champions. Often they are the best. But it's more satisfying when the best is also a champion in court behavior and good manners. This is what Arthur Ashe has showed the world.

Let's Help Our Children

There are so many problems that exist in the world today. Many of us today express dismay at the level of violence and crime, and the lack of kindness, or compassion, exhibited by many Americans.

At the same time, however, many allow their children to go to films which degrade every traditional virtue and moral standard. And they allow them to spend hours and hours watching a cold-blooded, commercial television devoted primarily to selling, by attracting the largest possible audience (with crime, shock, violence, etc.)

Inevitably, children will be influenced by this deluge. Even if much of what was taught a few years back in Sunday School as facts is now questioned, the moral teachings of Jesus are highly desirable, in building character.

As Sunday School attendance declines (some churches being unwilling to adapt to the realities and necessities of changing times), children lose this beneficial influence and, at the same time, are subjected to unprecedented undesirable influences. The result, until some restraint is affected, is certain.

Good Food News

The Department of Agriculture's recent prediction of a record corn crop this year is especially good news. A record corn crop will bring met prices down if the federal government doesn't sell too much corn abroad. The Ford Administration must guard against this in its fight against inflation.

Secondly, the big crop will bring in foreign currency from abroad, from whatever portion is sold to other countries; this will help balance international payments—which threaten to show a deficit in recent years because of the large dollar outflow for foreign oil.

The bit corn crop will enable the United States to sell much corn to Russia, which some see as a major assist in realizing closer cooperation, or detente, with the Soviet Union. And, of course, the big crop means food and meats will be more plentiful, as well as cheaper, in 1976. This is good.

As I See It!

by T.J. Patterson

It is good to see what is happening in the Mexican-American community. As recent as last week, a group of Mexican-Americans purchased a minority portion of KWGO-FM, a well known FM radio station in Lubbock and the South Plains. The corporation responsible for this venture is the Mexican-American Services Inc. (MAS, Inc.) This is good and I would like to personally congratulate those dynamic young brothers for having the foresight to get something moving in the electronic media. Ernesto E. Barton, who resigned as executive director of the Human Relations Commission, will serve as manager of the station. He is definitely qualified to do a splendid job for the new Spanish stereo sound.

As I See It, nothing but better things can happen for the Mexican-American community. Continue in your efforts, brothers, to serve your immediate community as well as Lubbock and the entire South Plains.

If this writer can be of any assistance in your efforts, please fell free to call it to my attention. Lubbock is a growing city and your works will add to its growth.

While visiting in the city of Austin last Thursday, I was able to capture some of the real things that are going on in the great state of Texas. As a new member of the State Advisory Council for the Texas Employment Commission (TEC), many experiences will come my way. As I told Harold K. dudley, chairman and executive director of the Texas Employment Commission, I want to contribute something positive for all citizens of Texas.

After being in a meeting all day with many distinguished citizens of Texas, it was easy to see that Lubbock is left out of many programs in Texas. Lubbock is several hundred miles from Austin, but many, many more when it comes to being recognized at the state level. Of course, this writer can't change anything, but I can at least let the "powers that be" know that Lubbock is moving in the right direction.

If you ever get an opportunity to visit the city of Austin, go by the capitol and walk through the halls where our legislators serve us. There is so much to be seen and so much to learn about the government of Texas.

Without any doubt, we are an impressive state and every Texan should want to know what is happening in Austin. If you are really concerned, try registering to be qualified to vote next year. You know, next year isn't far off.

Thought of the Week: "The reason many persons don't see things in the right perspective is that they are always looking for an angle." The Mountain Ear.

It was rather interesting to see that Brooks Tinsley, sports writer for the Avalanche Journal newspaper, write a brief history about Dunbar High School sports in last Sunday morning's edition. I wonder if this would have happened if the West Texas Times had not started to bring our many readers up on the history of Dunbar?

Dunbar High School has made many interesting contributions to the city of Lubbock, and we want the world to know what this school has done. After all, our kids need to know where they've come from, so they will have some idea on where they're going.

Do some more research, Brooks, you'll be surprised on what has happened over the years in sports and other areas of interest.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,
You know from this side of the street, I keep getting a fuzzy picture, or am I deaf? Is there anyone else getting these vibes? Rumor has it that we have a coach, and a great one I must admit, who has been at DHS for 14 years. You know he can be part of the important element that has been so valuable to DHS and all of a sudden, wham! he is sent to Estacado High school?

Then there is, or was, a great assistant coach at LHS who should not have been assistant at all. In fact, rumor has it, he should have been head coach at LHS, but anyway he is moved to Dunbar High school, but with only a two year contract? Now either I'm awful dumb or somebody thinks that I am.

The same rumor has it that construction has been clogged on a new school building out on or in the Southwestern part of town. Guess who they say that the clog was? The Feds. Because the money that was being spent out there was not supposed to have been spent there. So now, to get to use that money, there has to be a redistricting or no soap on the money.

So now if the rumors are correct and my fuzzy picture is just as good, the powers to be, must make a choice. Either mix the paint, or get someone to show them how to keep the Feds from clogging the flow of federal revenue, and keep us (Blacks and Browns) in the dark at the same time. Someone is supposed to have told them (the powers to be) that the best way to mis the paint, is to make Estacado a 4A school, swell the population at Lubbock High, close Dunbar, and scatter the flock of students. Now to most Blacks around and in Lubbock, Dunbar High School was, is, and will always be, that great monument of courage. It gave so many Blacks something to live for, something to be proud of. From Dunbar many Blacks have gone out to meet the need in every corner of the city, state and nation.

Really, what is about to happen is we are being given a snow job and there isn't a cloud in the sky. Rumors also have it that it was a discrepancy in the decision of our esteemed school board to re-hire a head coach who has never made a good showing since he started. Whatever was at Lubbock High in 1968, was inherited over from 1967, and that was the really last good year that LHS had.

You know, we never seem to learn from previous experiences. I think we've been ner this bridge before. And now there are other rumors that say if our Black ministers of this city would major in something other than anniversaries, they could do more to help our people. Now please don't be angry with me. I've done a lot of reading and I think that I've learned a little. Maybe that is what we need to do more of. We may need to start reading and stop depending on others to tell us what is going on. Maybe I've taken Socrates too serious, he made an effort to get us to be aware. He felt it necessary to establish tension in the mind so that people could be stimulated, and get the urge to go beyond the boundary of myths and half truths to the realization of creative analysis and objective appraisal. George Berkeley said "Esse est percipi" or "to be is to be perceived", so maybe we are, but are not being perceived.

Now to my way of thinking, injustice anywhere is a potential threat to justice everywhere. People stop depending on others to tell you what is going on and read for yourself. You know I don't think that, what they (the power to be) say is as important as what they don't say. You had better wake up or you'll be fighting two years from now to keep Dunbar open. Now how about this? If Estacado is made a 4A school, who will Dunbar play?

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

CONNALLY FOR VICE PRESIDENT?
by Jack Anderson with Joe Spear
(From United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—Big John Connally is on the comeback trail.

He got out of his bribery trial with a not-guilty verdict. There were some discrepancies in his sworn testimony that haven't been cleared up. But Connally has moved from the defensive to the offensive.

He is making a bold, new bid for political power. He has met twice with President Ford in recent weeks. This has caused speculation that the President might ease out Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and take Connally as his running mate in 1976.

But Texas politicians close to Connally have told us privately that he won't settle for second place. He wants nothing less than the White House itself.

He is out giving speeches and raising money. Some friends are throwing a fund-raising bash for him in Houston later this month. They hope to raise $100,000 to keep the former Treasury secretary on the hustings.

As one close associate of Connally told us, "He wants to be a big shot again." And to John Connally, being a big shot means being President of the United States.

Israeli Stall? Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, in strictly private conversations, has accused Israel of stalling a peace settlement until the United States is caught up in another presidential campaign.

Sadat believes, according to a secret intelligence report on his conversations, that the Israelis are gambling upon the clout of Jewish voters in the United States.

Sadat fears that President Ford, as he gets closer to the election, won't want to offend Jewish voters by pressuring Israel for concessions. This is the reason, in Sadat's opinion, that the Israelis are delaying a settlement.

The intelligence report also quotes Sadat as saying that only the United States can get Israel to come to terms and that the United States, therefore, is primarily responsible for maintaining peace in the Middle East. If the negotiations break down and fighting is resumed, said Sadat, the United States will be chiefly to blame.

Diplomatic Dilemma: Graham Martin, the controversial former American ambassador to South Vietnam, has finally returned to Washington.

Right up until the fall of Saigon, the feisty diplomat remained the implacable champion of President Nguyen Van Thieu. Anyone who disagreed was the enemy. In his last months as ambassador, he even accused the State Department's intelligence analysts of doing Hanoi's work because they disagreed with his rosy view of South Vietnam's future.

After the South Vietnamese collapse, Martin stopped off in Rome and secluded himself for weeks. Congressmen wanted to question him about the haphazard evacuation from Saigon. But Martin communicated with no one.

Now he's back. He would like another assignment, according to our sources, as evidence to the world that the State Department still has faith in him. But he could never win Senate confirmation for a high-level appointment.

Insiders believe Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, therefore, will try to find a job for him that does not require confirmation.

Cold Facts: The Ford administration is preparing several new tax incentives to encourage savings and investments. Of course, the poor have no money for either savings or investments. The new tax proposals, therefore, will benefit only those who already make a good income.

But a good businessman isn't likely to build a new plant to produce refrigerators, for example, that he can't sell. He is more likely to salt away the tax savings in his bank account.

If the same amount of money were distributed to the poor, however, they would probably spend it. They don't have big bank accounts. Most use the money to buy food. They might even have enough left over to buy refrigerators to put the food in.

Then the businessman would build a plant to produce more refrigerators.

Hotline Hassle: Several weeks ago, the Environmental Protection Agency set up a "pesticide hot line" to receive tips on the misuse of poisons to kill insects and rodents. The agriculture and pesticide lobbies erupted in protest. A letter writing campaign was organized. The EPA was accused of creating a "nation of stool pigeons."

Farm-state congressmen joined in the fuss and charged the EPA with using "Nazi" tactics to patrol the use of pesticides.

The EPA, say our sources, is close to killing the hotline. Over a million booklets and brochures about the proper use of pesticides were being printed up. The presses were stopped, however, because the pesticide hotline number appeared in the literature.

That number is 800-424-1173. Call it if you have information about the improper use of pesticides, or desire information about their safe use. But you'd better hurry.

Postal Pipeline: Post Office officials recently asked firms to bid on a contract to survey Americans on their attitudes about their mail service. They specified that all interviews must be conducted in person or by telephone. Evidently, they don't trust the mails.

—One of our readers in California wrote to tell us they recently received a Christmas card which was mailed last December and took the scenic route from Great Falls, Montana. The envelope bore the postmark of Victoria, Australia.

Party Put Down: The latest intelligence reports from Chile reveal that the military junta, having outlawed the Communists and Socialists, are not turning on Chile's majority party, the Christian Democrats. The U.S. Embassy predicts that the military government shortly will outlaw all political parties in Chile.

East Lubbock Girl Scouts Attend Camp

Thirty-three Girl Scouts from East Lubbock attended Camp Rio Blanco for one and two weeks in June and July. At the scenic site on the White River, the girls lived in tents, cabins, or covered wagons. The Scouts camped with girls from all over an 18-county area. Activities included hiking, swimming, outdoor cooking, rock polishing, archery, crafts, and badgework. Junior high girls went on extended campouts which tested their skills in primitive camping.

The following girls attended one week sessions: Mary Mitchell, Wanda Mitchell, and Patricia Pitts, students at Iles School. Girls attending two week sessions were: Dorothy Ramos, Jackaline Rogers, Brenda Griffin, Christina Gonzales, and Gwen Simmons, of Posey School; Cheryl Price and Cora Trotty of Struggs Junior High; Sherry Trotty of Wheatley School; Lachelle Hunter, Yolanda Crowder, and Zonetta Crowder of Bozeman School; Charlane Burrell, Denise Turner, Leveda Stevenson, Claudia Blackwell, Gloria Jean Washington, and Precious Mae Coleman, of Parkway School; Stephanie Peoples, Cindy Barrera, Ruth Hernandez, and Terry Vega, of Guadalupe School; Rachel Rodriguez, Olivia Hernandez, Terry Terrivino, Nancy Rocha, and Linda Vasquez, of Carroll Thompson Junior High; and Lola Thomas, Nellie Thomas, Angela Davis, and Margaret Crawford, of Mary and Mac Private School.

Lachelle Hunter earned her way to camp by selling 180 boxes of Girl Scout cookies, which entitled her to a cookie campership to Camp Rio Blanco.

Vocational Education Cooperative Teachers Back at Work this Week

Teacher coordinators of the vocational education cooperative programs in Lubbock Public Schools have reported back to duty for the new school year. Twenty-five teachers will be making contacts with Lubbock employers for placement of students in training stations. Five vocational counselors—one for each of the five public high schools—are also on duty to assist with the new year's preliminary tasks in the vocational programs. They are available to counsel with students and parents as well as to work with representatives of Lubbock businesses.

High school students enrolled in the cooperative programs attend classes at their respective schools and for a portion of the day are employed at a wide variety of training stations in Lubbock. The program areas are Distributive Education, Vocational Office Education, Cooperative Health Education, Cooperative Agriculture Education, Home Economics Cooperative Education, Industrial Cooperative Training, and Cooperative Coordinated Vocational Academic Education. The vocational counselors may be contacted at the five high schools, and the teacher coordinators will return calls left for them at the schools.

Lubbock Public Schools had an average enrollment last year of 778 cooperative program students, part of the 3822 total enrollment in vocational education programs which also include day trade courses and vocational homemaking.

Negro Texans to Join Texas Folklife Festival

Negro Texans will join 25 other ethnic groups in the fourth annual Texas Folklife Festival at the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, August 7-10.

Texas "Biggest Block Party", an official state bicentennial event, takes place on 15 acres around the Institute's Hemisfair grounds and will be staged by 6,000 Texans from 130 towns.

Black participation ranges from the steel drum artistry of George "Bongo Joe" Coleman to rousing gospel and spiritual music by the Walker-Ford Singers with Soul Food by the Mt. Sinai Baptist Church.

Bongo Joe is a San Antonio fixture, a favorite entertainer at parties, on the San Antonio river, at malls, USO's, hospitals, or wherever the spirit takes him. He will entertain all four days during the state celebration.

The 55-member Walker-Ford Singers, directed by Oscar Ford, Jr., will appear Saturday, Aug. 9. The altruistic group has been honored by state and local private and public officials for "opening the doors of communication among people." They were a heralded group singing in the Brush Arbor during the 1973 state festival.

The Mt. Sinai Baptist Church of San Antonio will operate the Soul Food booth, one of 24 ethnic foods visitors may enjoy. Mrs. Saleta Rogers is food chairman.

It's organized pandemonium with constant entertainment on seven stages, the foods of 24 nations, and games and contests that range from Belgian bowling to Cajun crawfish races. Join the many kinds of Texans having fun at the Texas Folklife Festival in San Antonio, August 7-10.

Registered Nurse Refresher Course to Be Held at Methodist Hospital this Fall

A Registered Nurse Refresher Course conducted by Methodist Hospital will begin at 9 a.m., Sept. 9, and continue through Nov. 21. The 240 hour course in theory and clinical practice is designed for inactive registered nurses of the Lubbock area.

"We feel that this program will fulfill a needed community service, and we are very enthusiastic about offering Methodist Hospital's first formalized Registered Nurse Refresher Course," Richard Moomaw, director of the employee relations department, announced.

Approximately 160 hours will be devoted to clinical practice. A comprehensive review of nursing methods will coincide with instruction in the development of new, specialized technical skills in such areas as care of patients with cancer, those who have had open heart surgery and patients in critical care units.

Clinical practice will be under supervision of a registered nurse.

The course will be taught by instructors in the education and training division, nurse supervisors and personnel in allied medical fields within the hospital. The Methodist Hospital School of Nursing will assist with direction and counsel.

Instruction will be given on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday for 24 to 30 hours per week. A certificate of completion will be awarded. The hospital will apply for credit points to be given in the Continuing Education Recognition Program, sponsored by the Texas Nurses Association.

Nurses selected for the course must have a current Texas license or a temporary permit obtained from the Texas Board of Nurse Examiners. Each applicant will be interviewed, and those accepted must pass a physical examination which is given at hospital expense. A tuition fee of $50 is required.

Persons interested may call Methodist Hospital Personnel office at 792-1011, extension 3430.

Lubbock Club Members Visit Las Vegas Recently

Last Friday, July 11, the following members of the Singlettes Social Club motored to Amarillo, Texas where they joined the Golden Leaf Social Club for a trip to Las Vegas, Nevada, just for fun. They were Dasha Mae King, Leona "Billy" Johnson, Ernestine Harris, Willie Mae Dawson, Marie Dedrick, Wilma Horton and Mattie Thompson.

The Golden Leaf Club of Amarillo had made preparation for a chartered bus.

The group spent several days in Las Vegas just having loads of fun. They were housed at Las Vegas Union Plaza. There was one man and a young boy who kept the group from being a "hen party". Many of the ladies said the man acted as a watchman over the flock by knocking on doors at night and calling all. He would ask such questions as: "Were you in?" "Is everything OK?"

The Lubbock group returned Thursday, July 18, and reported a lovely trip.

Magnificent Seven Club Organized

A civic club, the Magnificent Seven Civic Club, was organized in the home of Mrs. Rose Wilson last week.

Members are Mrs. Bessie Cox, Mrs. Emma Hall, Mrs. Mary Ann Brandon, Mrs. Charlott Roland, Mrs. Ruby Hobdy, Mrs. Rebecca Barnes, Mrs. Mary McGraw, and Mrs. Wilson.

The purpose of this organization, according to a spokeswoman, is to work in the community, churches, homes, hospitals, nursing homes, schools, and juvenile homes.

The theme for the new club is "Together for a better tomorrow." Their motto: "Helping One Another."

Mrs. Wilson is president.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

Well, they've come and gone, all those wonderful, miserable, tremendous misanthropes who called themselves ballplayers back in the ribald heyday of the West Texas-New Mexico Baseball League. And I love 'em all!

They came straggling in Friday night, found the hospitality room and soon were playing over games that long since have been collecting dust in newspaper morgues.

They came from Amarillo and Tyler, from Ralls and California, and from Lubbock and Lamesa and Muleshoe. Regrets came from many places, but those who attended the reunion had a great time.

They swapped lies. They told stories on each other and on themselves. They kept on until a late hour Friday, or early Saturday morning, rather. And they they began again Saturday. Dorothy Metzger hosted a party for the ladies Saturday noon and there was golf for the men.

There was a business meeting Saturday afternoon and Bill Metzger was elected president, for a second time. He takes over from Jackie Sullivan, whose idea the reunion was some five years ago.

Mike Dooley, one of the most popular catchers ever to perform in Lubbock, is the new vice president. And, at the uring of Frank Benites and Ted Clawitter, it was decided to hold the next annual meeting in Amarillo—next year in August.

"We ought to play a three inning game," Frank declared. "That really creates interest among the fans. And we might have professional baseball back with us next year."

Looking at the turnout, the ex-players being foremost players and battlers, agreed that every effort should be made to get more of the old players to take part in the reunions. Names started flowing and every effort will be made to get them back.

One of the most popular arrivals was Jess Jacinto, the diminutive outfielder from Clovis and Lubbock, who lives in California. He looked great, looked ready to play.

"I could play a few innings," he said with that big grin he always had. Jess stopped off in Muleshoe to visit Wilcy Moore and might move to Lubbock. He's between jobs, after being in the food business in California.

Before Friday night was over the players were talking about "major" accomplishments—fights they had been in. Jack Sullivan and Benites started arguing so vehemently that it looked, for a time, as though they were going to continue a 20-year-old feud in the motel room.

They didn't, but Jackie turned to me and said: "I want you to listen to this. This is what really happened that night."

I accepted the needle with a grin. Since Jack wasn't managing Lubbock, I'm sure that the story I wrote favored Frank.

Stan Grzywacz was in good form, as usual, with his old pitching buddy, Eulis Rosson. Stan said that someone in Oklahoma is writing a book about Bob Crues, the fabled home run slugger.

"When he called me, he called me 'cousin'," Stan said. "I asked him how come he called me that and he replied that Crues had said I was his cousin when I was pitching!"

About that time Rosson took over. Eulis was a 20 game winner almost every year he played ball. But as you know, in those days, accomodations were not the greatest and a circulating fan in a room was the closest thing to comfort.

"I was at Muskogee," Eulis said, "and I had won 19 games. The manager came to me and said that if I won 20 games, I could sleep in an air conditioned room.

"Shoot, I thought I was sleeping in an air conditioned room at the time!"

The players told funny stories about things that had happened, of run-ins with umpires, with some of the oddballs who put on uniforms—and Metzger told his customary Joe Lapadoola stories again.

The whole thing wound up with a dinner dance Saturday night at which the ladies, God Bless 'Em, showed up in formals, looking prettier than ever—and even the players blossomed out in clothes they never would have worn 20 years ago!

If you like nostalgia, you would have loved to have spent a few hours with these wonderful guys.

Just to complete the record, here's the list of players on hand: Ted Clawitter, Bob Clofelter, Mike Dooley, Frank Benites, Wilcy Moore, Jess Jacinto, Jack Sullivan, Johnny Follis, Bill Metzger, I.B. Palmer, Bob Crues, Eulis Rosson and one of Lamesa's, and baseball's biggest fans, Dale McLroy.

At the NFIB Conference in Washington, seminars were held with Congressmen composing most of them. And many funny stories were passed around. One came from a House member, whose name I don't remember.

Seems he had a son in college and the boy called one night and said that he had a joke he thought his dad should hear.

"If it's political, I don't think I want to hear it," the congressman told his son.

"This is one joke I think you should hear," the boy replied.

"Okay, son, run it by," the congressman said.

"All right, dad, here it is. If the opposite of Pro is Con, what is the opposite of Progress?"

Peace!

City Resident Back From Vacation

Mrs. Mattie Denson returned home last Friday, July 18, from an extended vacation to several parts of California. She made the trip via Continental Air Lines and reported a very enjoyable trip from July 5th through July 18th.

Mrs. Denson visited her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Heard, at San Francisco, Calif.;

her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Denson, at Haywood, Calif. She also had an opportunity to visit another brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Heard; and Mrs. Doris Brooks of Vallejo, Calif. She also visited a cousin, Mr. Elbert Reed of San Jose, California.

The highlight of her visit was worshipping at North Side Baptist Church where she met a longtime friend and former church member here, Mrs. Gertrude Lasley, who is noted for her lovely singing voice. "Mrs. Lasley is performing there as she did here," said Mrs. Denson.

Mrs. Denson was quite elated about the whole thing. She had a wonderful trip and the flight was sensational.

The Black Experience: The National Black Assembly will be hosting an Economic Conference on August 1-2-3, in Atlanta, Georgia. The theme of the conference: "Current Depression and the Survival of Black People—What is to be Done?"

The National Black Assembly sees the need for this major conference that will bring national leaders and economy specialists from around the country to speak on the current economic crisis and what should the Black community do about the crisis. It will be a forum that will bring together the entire spectrum of the Black nation—all organizations, church leaders and people interested in discussing alternatives for the Black community in this economic crisis, are invited. Of course, this correspondent has received a personal invitation to cover the meet.

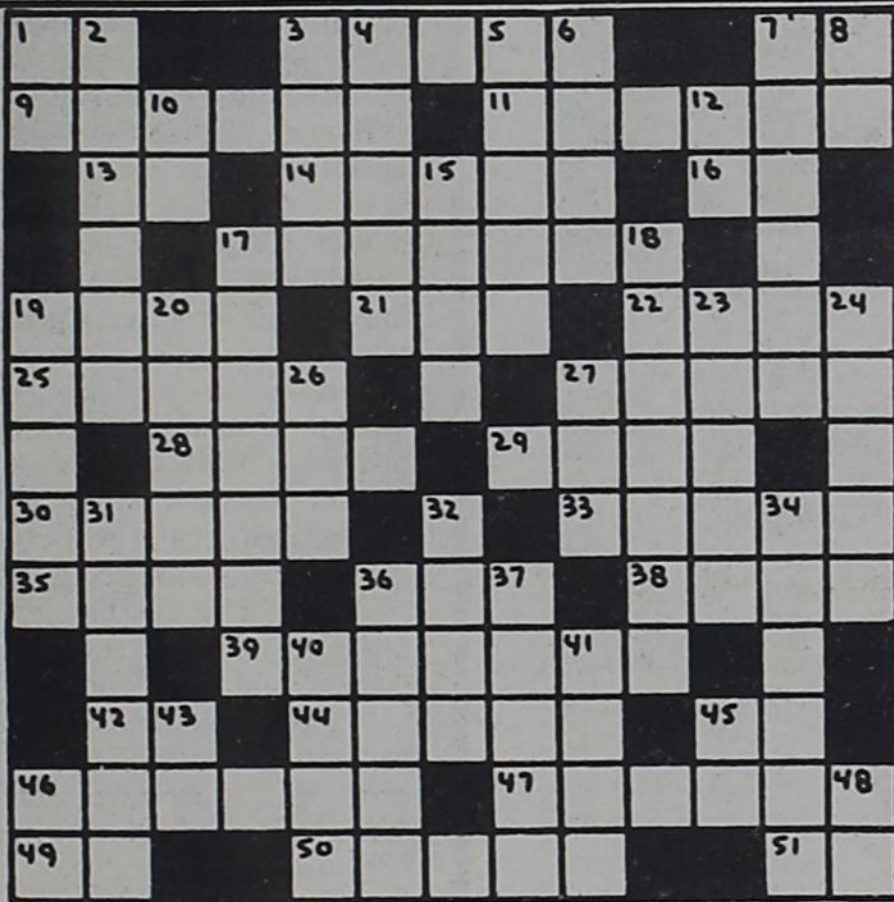

The official unemployment rate is 8.9 per cent and predicted to go higher. Actually it is double for the Black community, with Black youth in the ages 16-19 at 50 percent unemployed.

The conference will be divided into five areas: Employment, Consumer Concerns, Legislation, Existing Programs and Political Education. Bellringers interested in more information or in attending the conference, can contact the National Black Assembly, 502 High Street, Newark, N.M.

Dear Bob: Some newspapers in the West Texas area as well as in other parts of the nation are advocating doing away with the nation's compulsory school laws and thus perhaps bringing relief to the "armed camps" existing in some areas of our country. We can be thankful that such is not true in any area of West Texas or Southern New Mexico. And while integration of schools in above areas is not perfect, it is common knowledge among those who are observers of the situation that we lead many parts of the nation in amicable solutions to a touchy problem for some.

A recent study by the Children's Defense Fund reveals that about two million children of school age are not enrolled in school. Ten states have more than six percent of their school age population out of school and in Mississippi it's almost ten percent. Almost twice as many blacks as whites were out of school in Michigan. Spanish speaking students are also victims of this voluntary massive dropout of school children. It seems that school administrators should formulate guidelines for a rational disciplinary code and equality as well as justice for white and black and brown kids in school today rather than doing away with school laws that have made this country great in its policy of education for all the deserving. Signed: Mrs. T.E. of Odessa. Until later, Peace. See you after our vacation.

Footnote: A number of West Texas Bellringers were here the past week attending the Dallas-Ft. Worth annual conference of Christian Methodist Churches. Among the new presiding elders seen were G.R. Patterson of Wichita Falls, C.N. Reed of Dallas and G.W. Darden of Dallas. Also attending were former P.E. Jonah Parker, now stationed at Gilbert Memorial in Wichita and E.J. Lott, P.E. of Abilene, Texas. Rev. and Mrs. C.C. Campbell of Amarillo also attended and continued to Texas College, Tyler, Texas for the Leadership Training Schools, scheduled to open July 13-20.

 track team all the time is I'd make every man who wanted to be a back, run track. They would come out there to be a back and run on my sprint relay team. I had one boy that I believe was a potential record breaker. He was John Milus. That boy was one of the best quartermilers in the country. He ran a 47.3 in Amarillo and that was the best time in the Southwest, high school or college. That was about 1949.

Who were some of your more outstanding players?

Oh, I had so many of them. I really had some real fine fellows. You take Edward Deo, he was an All American. Jackie Graves, Richard Knox. These boys were the earlier boys. You take Wyatt Ward, Joe Snell, Nathaniel Williams, R.J. Givens and Arthur Jones.

What about Herman Moore?

No doubt, if I had known anything about football, as I knew ten years later, he was no doubt one of the most natural boys I ever had. He was big and could do anything. He could kick, and run, and he would hurt you when you tackled him. He played quarterback because he could pass and kick. If I had someone else, I would have used them. You see I wasn't using the "T" then. I was using the single wing. I didn't use the "T" until I came back from service.

Did Dunbar bring the "T" formation to town?

We were the first school in Lubbock to use the "T" formation. When I was in the service, I saw it being used in California. It was simple and easy to use, so I came back and used it in with my other formations.

Who were some of your outstanding basketball players?

I had some real good basketball players in Knox, Moore, O.D. Gary and that bunch, but Mallory came in and developed them. I started them off but Mallory really put in the finishing touches.

How do you see the changes in coaches in the time you came along? Is there much difference?

Yes, there is in the defense. You take the "T" formation. I don't see too much difference in the offense, but they have made so many changes in the defense. I can remember when there were only a few formations for the defense. You had the "Rodney Box", we played that when I was at Prairie View. To stop the "Four Horsemen", Lou Little, coach of Columbia, brought up the 6-2-2-1. Before that you had the 7-1-3 (with roving center). When I started using the "T", everyone was using the 6-2-2-1, and that "T" would just kill them, right through the middle. It would hit so fast. For a couple of years, the other coaches didn't know what was happening. So no one knew what I was doing. Then this 5-3-2-1 came in. That was the only thing I would use. Since then, they have gone so many ways. They do everything now. You can hardly tell what they are going to do next. They switch a lot, and unless you're right in the game, you don't know what is happening on defense. The offense, you can keep up with pretty well. It's not that much different to me.

If you had to summarize all the games you won in football, what would you say?

I would say that out of about 85 games, I lost 17. With no ties.

How many state championships did you win in track?

I never won the state championship in track.

What about football?

No, football championships were just coming in when I left coaching. They had just started to develop those kind of things. When I was playing high school ball, someone just declared themselves as state champions. In Dallas or somewhere, they might say they were state champions. Whoever won the series out of the three schools in Houston (Yates, Washington and Wheatley) would call themselves the champions. But the real championships came later on.

Professor Hill, name as many of the young men who played football, basketball and track for you.

The fellows that I can remember the most are Odell Gary, O.D. Gary, Lawrence Robinson, Eddie Bullock, Earl Brown, Leroy Cleaver, Nellington Sadler, Leonard Chew, Charlie Payne, Joe Graves, Jackie Graves, Clarence Priestley, Charles Brown, Black Joe Oliver, Sammie Metters, Leon Melton, Jimmy Thomas, Calvin Edwards, Prentis Williams, Lee Andrew Johnson, Walter Johnson, Lonnie Love, O.T. Love, Curtis Gipson, William Gipson, and Alvin Wright.

Also Bill Dedrick, Bura Russell, Tillmon Carr, L.C. Guyton, Elonzo Knighten, Edgar Gamble, Homer Gamble, Willie Barber, James Jamison, Eugene Lawson, Bob Okra, Dave Vailey, Clarence Thomas, Harvey Demerson, H.B. Demerson, Nunie Smith, O.C. Horton, John McDowell, Henry Paul, Wash Coleman, Virgil Smith, Jessie Fagan, Warley Overstreet, B.J. Richardson, Robert Moore, Theodore Sneed, and Albert Walker.

Other athletes include Arthur Williams, L.B. Carter, George Harold Woods, Nat Samson, Darnee O'Neal, David Roy Lewis, Otis Walker, James Holmes, James Givens, Willie Sneed,

And, E.J. Mitchell, Jessie Jackson, J.T. King, Tom Will Morgan, Wyatt Ward, Charlie Childress, Fred Wright, Nathaniel Williams, Alvin Johnson, Charles Kerr, McNeal Price, Fred Wilson, James Craven, John Eddie Harris, Floyd Harris, J.C. Wiley, Virgil Johnson, Raymond Loggins, Don Allen, Roscoe Adams, and Richard Mason.

There were other athletes such as C.J. Jefferson, Roosevelt Bailey, Sam Bailey, Robert Oliver, Robert Whitman, Jonithan "Babe" Tennyson, Corace Jamison, R.B. Roberts, C.B. Roberts, Clyde Roberts, Moo Cow Roberts, Willie Roberts, H.C. Barnes, Odena Ligons, Leon Lawson, J.T. Collins, Buster Banks, J.B. Mason, Roy Perkins, Emmett Jackson, Arthur Irvin, Frank Moore, Theodore Lewis, Leonard Eldridge, Grover Goosby, Charlie Banks, Barnell Williams and L.B. "Corkey" Carter.

This is only a list of players, there were others.

Prof. Hill, if you had to summarize your coaching career at Dunbar, what advice would you leave others?

I don't know exactly how to put this, but when I was coaching there were a lot of advantages as far as an athlete was concerned. The kids that are getting into college now on an athletic scholarship, as far as I'm concerned, are a very few. In those days, that was one of my primary objectives, to get a Negro boy in college, and I got a lot of them in college. Over the years that I coached, eighty-five percent of my boys went to college, regardless of whether they stayed or not. A lot of them that I didn't think would stay, did stay and become quite successful.

How do you see the disciplinary problem of kids today?

It's a lot different from the way it was. It's getting lax.

Did you use the board on fellows who didn't act right on the team?

Yes, and they didn't mind it. You know, a kid is a funny thing. I paddled kids all the time when I was at Dunbar. Many of them appreciated what I was trying to do. But you know, you don't have to paddle kids all the time. You can just talk to them in a nice manner and they will work with you if you are sincere with what you are attempting to do. I had a wonderful experience and loved every minute of my 37 1/2 years in the Lubbock Public school System. Kids are great.
