Representatives of College Information Center (CIC) a service of the Texas Association of Developing Colleges, met with leaders of the black and Mexican-American communities last Friday at the Hilton Inn to discuss organizing a counseling service for minority students interested in attending five Texas Colleges.

The colleges, Huston-Tillotson in Austin, Jarvis Christian College in Hawkins, Paul Quinn College in Waco, Texas College in Tyler, and Wiley College in Marshall are predominately black schools interested in recruiting Mexican-Americans, American Indians, Orientals, and other non-black students into their institutions for multi-ethnic diversity.

CIC provides services to prospective students in the form of personal counseling, information about financial aid opportunities, information concerning admissions, information on special programs offered by the five participating colleges, and career orientation.

The organization is currently trying to establish a counseling service in West Texas.

Next spring, a 24-foot recruiting van and information trailer will be in Lubbock to talk to prospective students.

Further information can be obtained from College Information Center, 1010 W. Mockingbird Lane, Suite 104, Dallas, Texas 75247.

James D. Jackson Trial Rescheduled for January

The trial of James D. Jackson, accused of murdering 19 month old Jacqueline Marie Lampkin, has been changed from November 3rd to December 8 because of a crowded court docket, District Attorney Alton Griffin said Monday.

Griffin said the case had been transferred from District Court 137 to District Court 140 because of a backlog of cases in the 137 court.

The 23-year-old Lubbock man is accused of the August 10 murder of the Lampkin girl. The baby girl's body was found August 11 in a north Lubbock ditch after police received an anonymous tip about the incident.

An autopsy report listed the cause of death as "asphyxia, strongly suggestive of strangulation." The report also cited "evidence of traumatic injury, including multiple bruises, abrasions, and burns."

Jackson was placed under a

$50,000 bond August 12 in relation to the death.

Last September, application was filed to reduce that bond from $50,000 to $35,000 with an additional bond of $500, since Jackson allegedly was carrying a concealed weapon at the time of his arrest.

If convicted of the murder, Jackson could receive life imprisonment.

Additional School Bus Runs Began Here Tuesday for O. L. Slaton Students

Two additional afternoon bus runs were started Tuesday, November 18, for students of O.L. Slaton Jr. High School who live in the Struggs/Dunbar area.

In order that students may participate in a variety of activities of the junior high school that are scheduled either on a regular or occasional basis for the period immediately following regular school hours, bus transportation will be available at approximately 4:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. The late runs are in addition to the regular schedule that immediately follows the general school dismissal time of 3:25 p.m. There is no charge for the transportation.

Principal Edgar Payne said that not only will students find it more convenient to stay for athletic, music, club, and other activities, they will now be able to take advantage of opportunities to go by classrooms at 3:25 p.m. and get added assistance from teachers in the various subjects.

State P.T.A. Convention In Houston

Chartered buses left Lubbock Monday evening carrying workers to the State P.T.A. Convention at Houston, Texas. Lubbock and other schools in this area sent delegates.

Among the selected delegates from Lubbock were Mrs. Annie Sanders, Mrs. Blanche Swisher and Mrs. Dorothy Phea.

Due to a death in Mrs. Phea's family, she will be at Bonham,

In a game plagued by turnovers, Estacado's Matadors defeated the Dunbar Panthers 24-2 to gain the district 3-AAA title before 5,000 fans at Lowery Field Friday night.

Victory for the Matadors was assured by two first quarter Dunbar mistakes. On their own thirty, Dunbar punter Kenneth James kicked the ball eight yards. Five plays later, Estacado quarterback Ray Dell Martin crashed one yard through the center of the line to put Estacado ahead 6-0. Sammy Sims missed the extra point try.

Three minutes later, Dunbar fumbled on their own 19 with Sam Martin, the Matadors defensive end, recovering. One penalty and two plays later, half-back Greg West scored from the ten. The attempted pass conversion was incomplete, leaving the Matadors with a 12-0 lead as time expired in the first quarter.

Early in the second quarter, Matador punter Don Wilson was caught behind the white stripe by Joy Evans and Gary Adams to narrow the Matador lead by two.

Ironically, Estacado regained their two points when a snap from center sailed over Dunbar punter James head and into the end zone. He was tackled for a safety by Sammy Sims as Estacado again took a twelve point lead.

Late in the third quarter, Sims booted a 30 yard field goal to put the Matadors ahead 17-3.

In the fourth, Joy Evans of Dunbar blocked an Estacado punt, and the Panthers recovered at the Matador 24. On a 4th and 9 situation, Dunbar quarterback Robert White hurried a pass which was intercepted by Gerald Lewis at the 18. Lewis raced 82 yards down the sidelines to score the final touchdown. Sims kick was good to complete the scoring at 24-2 Estacado.

When it was over, Dunbar (5-5) had lost five fumbles and one interception, while Estacado (8-2) turned the ball over four times.

Estacado will journey to Sweetwater High School this Friday for the 7:30 bi-district tilt against Graham.

A panel of three citizens discussed the possibility of developing an FM radio station for the black community in West Texas last Monday evening at Mae Simmons Community Center. The panelists from the left were A. Gene Gaines, Ms. Ernestine Pine and W. H. Britt. The consensus of the 25 present was to pursue the matter in regard to a corporation for the proposed idea. ## No Basis Found for Alleged Shooting in East Lubbock Shots fired at a 13-year-old East Lubbock boy on November 12th may have been from a cap pistol the West Texas Times has learned.

Reports of the incident indicate the boy was chased by the older brother or brothers of a girl he allegedly assaulted during an argument. Unable to catch him, the brothers followed in a car, firing the cap pistol out of the window.

An article in the local daily newspaper quoted police reports as saying the boy was pursued by a black man in a brown Cadillac who fired "three or four gunshots at him."

The article further stated that the incident occurred "about 2:45 p.m. Wednesday near East 4th Street and Cherry Avenue."

The Times was unable to find any indication in police reports that such an incident occurred.

Last Friday, Walter E. Rinehart, principal of Alderson Junior High, told the Times that the alleged incident which appeared in Thursday's evening paper was not an accurate account of the event.

"There was a cap pistol in the incident and not a pistol," Rinehart said.

Rinehart reported that the incident did not occur at the time stated, but "did apparently happen after school."

Dr. Joe Morgan Speaks to O. L. Slaton PSTA

Dr. Joe Morgan, English professor at Texas Tech University, spoke to the members of the O.L. Slaton Parent Teachers Student Association (PTSA) last Tuesday evening in the auditorium of the junior high school.

He spoke on alcoholism and warned parents and students of what alcohol can do to one's body. "I am an alcoholic, but I've enjoyed life more since I quit drinking," said Dr. Morgan.

Mrs. Leslie Cross, president of the PTSA, expressed the appreciation of the entire audience for the remarks given by Dr. Morgan.

Our Responsibility as Parents and Patrons

The morning edition of Monday's daily newspaper carried an article in which both Lubbock school superintendent Ed Irons and Dunbar High School principal Roy Roberts stated that Dunbar High would remain open despite a declining enrollment.

The reason, according to both men, is that Dunbar uses tax money wisely.

Teacher-pupil ratios are low, and the facilities have been used in a variety of ways. Empty classrooms are now remedial reading workshops, or language labs. New academic and vocational courses have been added to the curriculum. The school has an expanded library.

Both men said a Dunbar education was of good quality. But the article disclosed that enrollment in Dunbar had dropped during the last 4 years from 582 to 469 because whites which had been included in the Dunbar district by a 1970 court order were moving from the Dunbar area, and many blacks were moving north from Dunbar, into the Estacado district.

And enrollment in the elementary schools which furnish future Dunbar students has also declined.

How much longer will it be before the enrollment drop prompts school officials to question the existence of Dunbar High?

In a tight money market, quality is not as much of an issue as the cost of operating the school system.

How much longer will it be before people in East Lubbock see their children shipped miles from home to attend another non-neighborhood school?

Concerned parents have discussed this question in shops and offices, on busses, and in neighborhood conversations.

Before the article, as long as 6 years before, rumors had circulated through the black community about the impossibility of keeping Dunbar open. Despite statements to the contrary, those rumors have not dissipated.

For no statement can dispell Dunbar's uncertain future.

The solution, of course, is to stabilize Dunbar's enrollment. Some efforts are being made to redevelop east Lubbock, to make the area a more desirable place to live.

That may prevent people from leaving, but will it attract the necessary population to support our children's schools?

Can Dunbar's district be changed to guarantee a stable enrollment?

Certainly a lack of informed communication has contributed to the confusion. To our knowledge, no citizen or parent's group has asked for a clarification of the 1970 court order which reconstructed the Dunbar district.

And the receptivity of the Lubbock school district's elected Board of Trustees has yet to be tested.

Concerned citizens can organize, the many church groups and community organizations in east Lubbock prove that.

Rumors alone, uncertain, confused, based on incomplete knowledge will not yield answers to the Dunbar question.

A committee of organized parents, bringing the fears and concerns of east Lubbock residents before school administration officials, is a step towards an answer.

Those administrators must be told that the people of east Lubbock do not want to see their neighborhood school dismantled.

For what really is at issue is not the closing of a local school, but the destruction of a focal point for the community.

Unless the fears of parents are brought before school administrators, the future of an east Lubbock community without pride will be as uncertain as the rumors which speak of Dunbar.

As I See It!

by T.J. Patterson

It's always good to talk to people who are doing things for people in the community. This writer had an opportunity to talk with a friend of mine, Leonard Chew, who was in the city this week. It was an interesting talk with Len, and his conversation will appear in a two part series in the Times, beginning next week.

In his interview, Len touched on two areas which people of the "have not" community should be aware of this day and time. He has a great deal of experience in several areas and his comments on economics and politics should be of benefit to the black community of Lubbock.

He spoke quite frankly with me about the educational system since this is one of his areas of expertise. He advised, as you will read next week, that all parents address themselves to the shortcomings of any educational system about those problems. "You can't get anything accomplished by starting at the bottom, you must deal with the top," he said.

"Education is becoming too commercial today," he warns parents. His points are well taken and should create an interest to our readers. He also comments on "The Fighting Heart Award", presented to the outstanding athlete at Dunbar High School. In his interview he will give his opinion on why this award has been hidden over the years.

Aside from these points, Len will give his views on the so-called leadership in the black community and give his opinion about the ministerial body in Lubbock.

All in all, his interview should open the eyes of many residents of Lubbock, regardless of their socio-economic background. He is quite frank and pulls no punches about what he is saying. Many of you will agree when you read this exclusive interview with Brother Len Chew.

It was good to note that America's teachers see smaller classes as the most critical element in doing a better job, according to the National Education Association (NEA).

More of the teachers indicated "lower class size" than higher salary, which was fourth; and "improved discipline", was fifth.

It is not a good sign to see that economy minded school boards have promoted overcrowding by reducing teaching staffs, school specialists, and support personnel. Many of those teachers interviewed also reported that they are no longer able to provide individualized instruction and can do nothing more than babysit.

This observation was made by interviewing 1,600 full time classroom teachers, representing all 50 states, by NEA Research.

Young people need more attention and smaller classrooms would help this problem.

Dr. Grover E. Murray, president of Texas Tech University for the past nine years, has done a splendid job for the university. It was my pleasure to meet Dr. Murray shortly after he took over the reign as its president. He has contributed a great deal, and the university community as well as the city of Lubbock can be proud to have such a citizen among us.

Although he has submitted his resignation, he has given the parties involved time enough to find someone to fulfill his duties.

U.S. TURNS AWAY CHILEAN REFUGEES by Jack Anderson with Joe Spear

(Copyright, 1975, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—The biggest roadblock in the way of Chilean refugees who want to come to the United States, according to high-level sources, has been Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Presumably, he does not want to irritate Chile's military junta by appearing overly anxious to take in people who are fleeing them.

Not until recent weeks has Kissinger started to relent. He is listening now to his chief Latin American specialist, Assistant Secretary William Rogers, who wants to expedite the flow of Chilean refugees to this country.

Yet the wheels of the refugee-processing bureaucracy continue to grind exceedingly slowly. The chief stumbling block now is the Immigration Service which, by law, has to approve each refugee who is admitted. To date, precious few have been processed.

It has not always been thus. Last spring, when hordes of South Vietnamese were fleeing the invading communists, over 130,000 refugees were admitted to the United States with little difficulty. It took only eight to ten days, on the average, for each of them to obtain a security clearance.

Some 26,000 Chileans fled their country after the military coup which deposed Marxist President Salvador Allende in September, 1973. Around 12,000 of them have been resettled in 41 countries. But the latest figures show that the United States in September had accepted only 26. And these were third-country nationals rather than native Chileans.

Two years ago, Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., the Senate refugee chairman, urged that a formal mechanism be set up for those wishing to escape the military dictatorship.

More than a year later, the State Department got around to announcing that it had begun "consulting" with the Congress and Immigration Service on a refugee plan.

Henry Kissinger rarely consults Congress on anything he doesn't have to. Critics immediately suspected it was a stalling tactic, that he would rather "consult" than "act."

On June 12, 1975, the State Department announced that a Chilean refugee program had formally begun. Four months later, not a single Chilean had been allowed into the United States under the new plan.

The first refugee finally straggled into San Francisco on October 18. A review of his State Department file, which we have obtained, reveals that he has an impeccable background and is singularly noncontroversial. Why it took so long to process his entry is dumbfounding.

He is Pedro Huertas Tapia, the internal State Department documents reveal—a 20 year old "outstanding medical student" who was named the "best Boy Scout in Chile" in 1972. He was arrested in September 1974, state

For the second straight year, the black sororities and fraternities on the campus of Texas Tech University has put on a program which attracts many blacks who attend the university. Most of the audience is composed of young people who want to see the various Greek organization compete in a "stomp" program. Perhaps this is good to a certain degree, but with all those brothers and sisters coming together, something more could be added to the program.

We need more programs which will educate the black kids on the campus of Texas Tech University, and the Greek organizations have a means of attracting those young people. Just a little more planning, not around dancing and stomping, could make this one of the highlights of the fall semester.

We've bumped, stomped and twisted too long. Now it's time to find something else to do which will enable all of us to compete off the dance floor in society. The leadership is there on campus. Just a little more hard work could prove to be very beautiful for a lot of young black men and women who are looking for something in life.

the documents, "after some unknown person denounced him" as a revolutionary.

After finally deciding he could come to the U.S. American authorities visited him in his prison cell and told him he would be leaving within 24 hours. But he was not told where he was going until he was on a plane out of the country.

As of this writing, an additional two refugees have come to America—a grand total of 29 since the coup of two years ago.

Clearly, someone in this land of the free and home of the brave doesn't believe that Chileans who despise the junta deserve to live here.

Juggling Act: President Ford wants to cut social spending and has targeted two programs: Social Security and food stamps.

The President and the conservative ideologues around him would like to get the government out of both programs. Administration spokesmen have thus begun a campaign of criticism against them.

Statistics critical of the Social Security Administration, for example, were recently released with great bally-hoo. Of course, there are problems with the program. But we have learned that the Administration had more updated figures which were not released because they showed improvement in the efficiency of the program.

A similar ploy was used with the food stamp program. Earlier this year, alarming statistics were leaked from the Agriculture Department. They allegedly showed that a high number of cheaters were using the stamps. What they didn't disclose was that most of those so-called "cheaters" were people who had simply made a clerical error on the bureaucratic forms. They met the financial qualifications, but were termed "cheaters" on a technicality.

President Ford and his aides, to be blunt, are playing fast and loose with the truth to suit their own ideological purpose.

Watch On Waste: The government is spending at least $23,000 annually to have newspaper articles clipped.

We checked the 11 cabinet departments in Washington and found that many of them use clipping services like the Press Intelligence Service rather than cutting up the magazines and newspapers themselves. The Department of Justice, for example, spent a total of $9,530 last year for the services.

We found four departments—Interior, Housing and Urban Development, Defense and Agriculture—who believe that clipping services are a waste of money. According to official spokesmen, they ask their own employees to provide clippings instead.

Perhaps a department like Health, Education and Welfare, which has spent $7,100 on clipping services since July, should take a tip from the Department of Agriculture. The bureaucrats there subscribe to six newspapers and do th eclipsing work themselves.

Rep. Les Aspin is again kicking up his heels about Pentagon spending. The Wisconsin Democrat discovered that the brass hats spent $48 million in the last five years to maintain World War II vintage machine guns. The artillery pieces were last used as tail guns on B-52 bombers.

Police Beat

Wife Assaulted

If you ask Patricia Morgan of 1835 East Brown, she will tell you that it's getting to be unsafe to sit in the car with your husband these days.

Mrs. Morgan told police that she was sitting with her husband in a car in front of their residence when a 19-year-old woman came up to the car and jerked the right door open and dragged her out by the hair.

She also said, according to the police report, that the woman kicked her in the face and abdomen. Mrs. Morgan suffered scratches on the face and complained of pains in her stomach.

"I didn't say anything to the woman that would start the fight," said Mrs. Morgan. She told police that she would file charges against the aggressive young lady this week. Only time will tell if she does.

House Burglary

Verda Smith, 3502 East Broadway, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown entered her house one day last week while she was away. Entry was gained through a bedroom window.

Police believe that entry was gained by some kids in the neighborhood. There was nothing missing from the house.

Criminal Mischief

Mrs. Leroy Hicks, 1710 East 27th Street, reported to Lubbock police that while she was driving her car in the 2000 block of Toledo Avenue, someone unknown shot a BB or pellet through the left front glass of her car.

Estimated damage to the car is $50. There were no suspects at this report.

Assault

Calvin Wallace, a resident of Levelland, reported to Lubbock police that he was attacked by several men in the alley at 13th Street and Avenue F one evening last week.

"Those men hit me on the head," said Wallace. He was taken to a local hospital where he received treatment in the emergency room and released.

He did not know the names of the men who attacked him.

Aggravated Assault

Lester Earl Young, 2404 East 5th Street, reported to Lubbock police that he was at a friend's apartment one evening last week when a man came in and started a fight with him.

According to the police report, he was hit with a large iron chair.

Young received a broken rib and a possible punctured lung from the blow by the man.

Police advised Brother Young that he should file charges. It would appear as though he would.

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

You have to feel sorry for Grant Teaff, almost as much as you have to feel joy for Steve Sloan. For one, it is a story of riches to rags. For the other, a pleasing comeback in a season that threatened to be dreary.

Baylor's Bears last year ruled the Southwest Conference. This year the sweet taste turned sour. Dame Fortune smiled kindly on the Bears last year, she frowned this year.

Injuries and turnovers can have a tremendous bearing on the success of any team. Last year the Bears had few injuries and few turnovers. This year, the opposite has been true.

In all probability, the Bears have better depth and material this year. But injuries to key players and a sudden plague of fumblyitis has cut the Bears down to pre-1974 status. The best they can finish now is fifth.

On the otherhand, the Red Raiders have come back after four heartbreaking losses to become one of the better teams in the conference.

Last Saturday, after beating Baylor, Steve commented on his admiration for this year's Tech team.

"They were sick after the Arizona loss, but they worked harder the next week than they had worked all season," he said. "This team has a lot of character."

Arkansas is a major test of how far the Raiders have come. The Razorbacks are in outside contention for the league crown and in good position for a bowl berth. Only Tech and A&M stand in the way of, say, second place and a major bowl.

The 1975 Razorbacks are bigger, stronger and faster than a year ago. They have everything going for them. As of last Saturday, the Hogs had a strong offense and a strong defense.

Arkansas ranked third in total offense and the same on defense. They were tops in rushing offense and third in rushing defense.

But while Tech was second in passing offense, the Raiders used a ground game to beat Baylor. Defensively against the pass, Tech and Arkansas were almost even.

Based on defense, which generally wins games, the Hogs appear to be a little stouter. Still, anything can happen and it should be a great battle in Fayetteville.

Regardless of the outcome of the year's final game, the Raiders have been pleasing in one important aspect; they have shown consistent improvement throughout the season.

The offense has come along faster than the defense, but the offense now is on a par with any team in the league. The defense was much slower to improve, but it has come steadily of late and it's capable of putting it all together Saturday.

The question of fumbles came up again at the press conference Saturday and Steve still is at a loss for a concrete answer, as are most coaches and observers.

"I had a long talk with Donnie Anderson," Steve said. "He thinks it could be the artificial surface. He mentioned that he didn't have any problem with fumbles until he started playing pro ball."

Steve went on to say that Donnie found that he eliminated much of it by putting his arm all the way around the ball, especially when he was going down.

"We talked it over with the coaches and players," Steve said. "As a result, we're trying it."

Tech had only a pair of fumbles last Saturday, so it may be working. None on Saturday would be great!

I had to feel sorry for Field Scovell and Wilbur Evans of the Southwest Conference. They were in Pittsburgh, pens in hand, to sign Notre Dame for the Cotton Bowl. Instead, Pitt ruined it by winning.

So, they apparently did a quick evaluation of the situation, realized that the chances of getting one of the top powers was lost and took Georgia. The Bulldogs are tied for second with Florida in the SEC, have an 8-2 record and always play tough in bowls. (ask SMU).

The bowls are starting to shape up. Two Big 10, two Big 8 and three SEC schools are assured of berths, with the SWC landing two, maybe three, and the Pac. 8, two.

The Independents haven't fared well so far, but Penn State, West Virginia and Georgia Tech still are possibilities.

And, should Tech beat Arkansas, there's no reason to think that the Raiders might not get a bid. A strong case certainly could be made—so long as buying tickets isn't involved!

Senior Citizens Worship at Bethel

Last Sunday morning, nine members of the Barbara Jordan Senior Citizens Club were special guest at Bethel A.M.E. Church. Those present were Misdames Oma McQuinney, Norma "Baby" Austin, Hallie Mae "Sug" Johnson, Lizzie Reed, Ella D. Swisher, Rosie Skief, Elnora Coleman, Rachel Loggins and Mary Sterling.

The group made a nice donation to the offering.

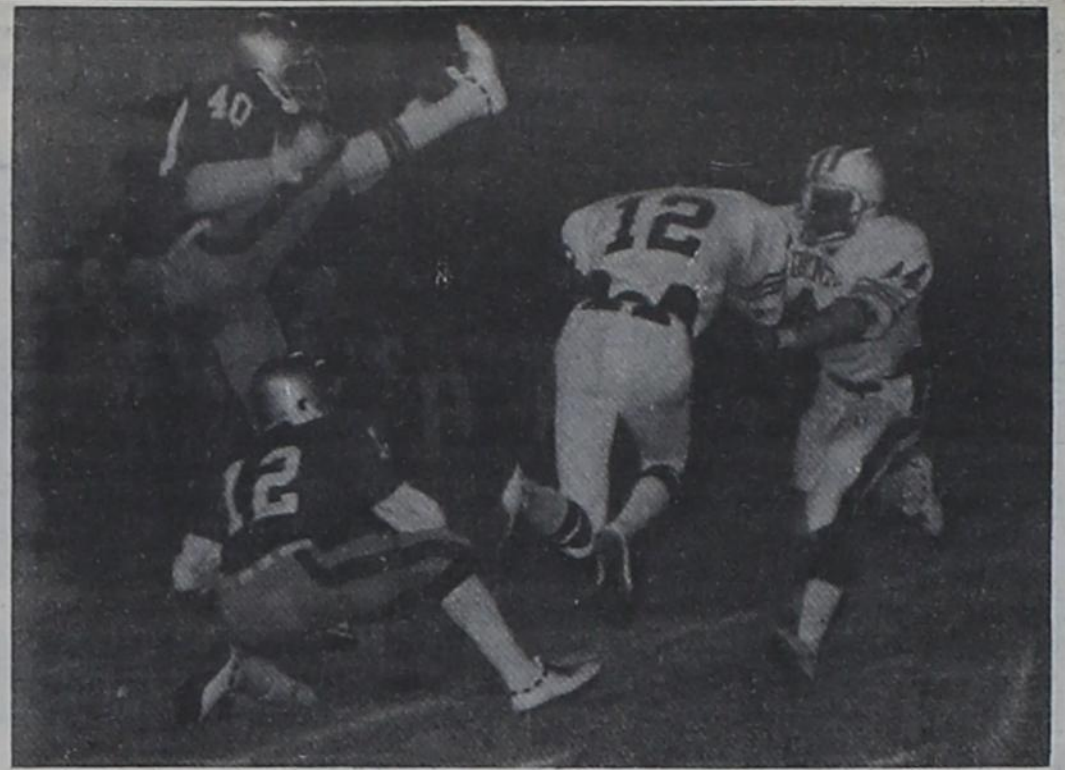

These ladies are part of a group who are determined to enjoy their senior years gracefully by being useful and keeping busy.

Their meeting place, at present, is a vacant apartment in the Green Fair Manor Apartments. Meetings are held each Tuesday mornings at 9:30 a.m. and remain until they are tired or need to leave for other reasons. They knit, crochet, sew, piece quilts, and once each month, they serve a delicious meal.

Several members were absent last Sunday morning. They include the president, Mrs. Mable Bradley and Mrs. C.E. Fair, first vice president.

Other officers are second vice president and finance secretary, "Sug" Johnson; treasurer, Rosie Skief.

The group has been promised another meeting place in the near future. Each member pays dues so they are able to have funds for emergencies and needed persons. They are seeking other members. Each member has a lot of fun. At the present time, one of their members is gravely ill in the hospital.

"Give me ten, brother Panther." Estacado kicker Sammy Sims settled for one, however, as Ray Dell Martin looks on. Dunbar's Clark Davis, No. 12, and Willie DeShone, No. 44, arrived too late to block the kick. Sims also kicked a 30 yard field goal in Estacado's 24-2 win over Dunbar. (Staff Photo)

"Blacks are Like a Barrel of Crabs, Pulling Each Other Down," says Fair

by T.J. Patterson

(Editor's note: This is part two of an interview with Mr. and Mrs. D.C. Fair, Sr., about their days in Lubbock. They are the owners of Pleasure Garden.)

Mr. Fair, I'm sure you know a lot of parents today who were once patrons of the Pleasure Gardens?

"Oh, yes, seventy-five percent of the kids who come in today, are children of the kids who came to the old Garden on a frequent basis. There were several ladies, a few weeks ago, who came after their children, who were skaters when they were girls."

Why is it that the parents today don't support the Pleasure Garden like they did in those days?

"Well, there is too much competition today. Of course, some black people envy what we are doing for the kids, but perhaps the main reason is competition."

Isn't the Garden more centrally located now for the kids?

"Yes, it is, but we understand why the kids don't come to the Garden. One of the means of competition is that the kids can go to these other spots and get anything they want, day and night. They can't get those things from us because no hard drinks are sold at our business, and we don't allow smoking of weeds in the place either. If we smell any weeds burning in our place, we stop the music, turn the lights on and see where it's coming from. I tell them if anyone is caught with a weed cigarette, they will be put out and not allowed to come back for thirty days."

In other words, Mr. Fair, you still have the discipline today as it was in 1928?

"That's right, and we really mean it. We intend to keep good discipline or we will close it up."

Mrs. Fair, would you like to comment on this discipline problem?

"Yes, Mr. Patterson. I would like to tell you about a happening in 1927 when we were helping the USO over here. All soldiers in those days were sent to the Commercial Hotel in downtown Lubbock. When the black fellows arrived at the hotel, they had no place for them since blacks were not allowed in a white hotel. My husband and I sat up all night at the Pleasure Garden to keep the fire burning for these fellows who were members of the U.S. Army. We did all of this for free. We didn't charge one dime for our services. We served them coffee because we really didn't have any food to give away then. About four or five years later, Mrs. Elnora Crawford Hutchinson and I worked together at the center to help these fellows. They gave us a job at the USO here. They also paid us a very small salary to work for these young fellows. We worked as a team for about three years, and our salary increased to a rather nice one."

Did you and Mr. Fair open up your place for black soldiers?

"Yes, that's the point I'm trying to make. Mr. Fair and I opened up that place (USO) because blacks were not allowed to stay in the Commercial Hotel. We never could understand that, because these fellows were working for the U.S. Government. I never saw in any paper, of any kind, to date, where they even said 'Thank you', to the black people for taking those boys in when they didn't have a place to stay. We fed many of the boys in our homes on Sundays. They came to our house and we fed them and took them in."

How many years did you do this?

"That was over a period of about three years. As I've said, to this day, no one has even thanked us for what we did for young black soldiers."

Did the city of Lubbock use your business?

"Yes, all of this happened during World War II. We let the city use our place before they had a center in east Lubbock. This was done before they put the Army barracks over here on East 21st and Cedar. The city gave us two hostesses to work there to help the fellows. They also gave us a janitor to keep the place clean. Mr. Joe Snell, who has passed away, was the janitor. As far as the city giving us anything on our lights and water (we didn't have any gas over here), they didn't help us. We were still burning stumps."

Are you saying that the city of Lubbock hasn't said anything about this contribution by blacks?

"That's absolutely right!"

What kind of advice would you give the black kids in Lubbock?

"For one thing, let this marijuana alone. That's the main thing they should do now. Try to go to school and get an education, because without education they won't be able to make it. I remember one time when I was on a panel discussion with you, Mr. Patterson. One of the participants made the statement that his company had looked everywhere to find some young people to participate in the program. He used the expression: 'we've turned over every rock.' But you told him that there are some rocks they didn't turn over. That statement has stayed with me for many years. If the parents would help those of us who are concerned about our kids, I know it would be much better. So many times, people just bring their kids to our business and we merely become babysitters. I have sat with children to keep them from getting hurt or what have you."

Do parents really come to see what their children are doing?

"No, they never come to see what is happening. We just need a little closeness and oneness with the parents. This would be a better city for all of us."

How did black people get along with each other in the early days?

"Well, the group of people that we associated with got along fine. I can't recall anything that would make anyone feel badly about another. In the 'flats' area, it was pretty rough. There were killings and other problems, but we didn't associate in that part of town unless we were there on business."

How did blacks and whites get along together?

"We got along pretty good, but it could have been a lot better. The police department gave us some problems. Once in a while they would say the Pleasure Garden wasn't for the young people. They told us that we didn't want young people at our business. This was not true, because we were then, and still are, concerned about young people."

Is it true that they arrested you Mr. Fair?

"Yes, the police picked me up once and took me to the police station. This happened a little before World War II. They just came down and arrested me. Even today, they can't deny arresting me for doing something which I knew was right for our young people. They charged me with contributing to juvenile delinquency. That was the complaint filed against me. After that night, we never did hear anything else about it. I guess some of the better class of people must have hit them up about it. Of course, at that time, there were some grown people who came down there because they didn't have any other place to go in this part of town."

Mrs. Fair, since you have been politically active in Lubbock, how do you feel about the participation of the black community in politics?

"I really think we need to get together and do something as a team. We've got to trust each other. One thing about us blacks, we are like a barrel of crabs, if we see one black man almost to the top, we seem to reach in there and pull him down instead of pushing him up. You know, that's the way crabs are. They don't like to see another crab get to the top of the barrel. I believe, with intelligent men that are coming up today, like

The $100,000 Church Miracle

"God is still a miracle worker" states Pastor Watkins by Bob Tieucl, Jr. Staff Writer

"Except the Lord build the House, they labour in vain that build it" . . . Psalms 127:1.

Hobbs, New Mexico—When one thinks of Pleasant Green Baptist Church, his mind travels back to the days of entrenched segregation in the years gone by when the church was then located at 1122 East Midwest and was the hub-bub of activity for the black community, then restricted to the Southside. It's pastor then was the Rev. J.W. Hudson, along with several faithful members, who had built the structure from the ground up. In those days, building codes were unknown, and it is reported that Rev. Hudson carried lumber on his back to finish the structure. He is now on a semi-retired list, pastoring in San Angelo.

For some eleven years, Pastor Hudson and Pleasant Green Church was the scene of many community dinners and political rallies, and the faithful continued to "praise God from whom all blessings flow."

When the founder-pastor-builder, Rev. J.W. Hudson resigned around 1950, the church called Rev. A. Brown, then Rev. W.H. Hicks, and Rev. J.J. Gooden, all of whom served well for a short time. Then in March, 1959, the call went out to Rev. H.R. Watkins. Plans on construction of a new church for God's people were discussed. A building fund was started in earnest and in a short time some ten thousand dollars had accumulated for the building of a new church that had been estimated to cost at least $60,000.

At times, the task seemed to grow bigger and bigger, with gradually soaring building costs, with a good majority of the membership who were ordinary working people for the most part, continued in prayer and in hope, coupled with an abiding faith that "God would see to it that they got a new home to 'call upon His name'."

Early in 1972, word came to Pastor Watkins that the white Highland Baptist Church, located at the corner of Midwest and McKinney Streets in a mixed low income neighborhood, wanted to relocate. Highland Pastor A. Jones told Watkins that God had asked him to make Pleasant Green a good offer for their building and location. He said the congregation could have the whole works for $20,000.

The church went down in prayer. Here was a building with a sanctuary, fellowship hall and Sunday School rooms which in today's market would list for at least $100,000. (Bob's note: real estate appraisers recently listed the sanctuary at $85,000 alone). A church business meeting was called and the membership voted by a slim majority to sign on the dotted line for the purchase.

In the meantime, a suit was filed by those opposing the purchase, and Pastor Watkins received much abuse and criticism from opponents who said the purchase was too much for the congregation. The suit was thrown out of the courts, and in June, 1972, the congregation borrowed $10,000. With this money, they bought the edifice formerly occupied by the Highland Baptist Church, now relocated in another section of the city.

Earlier this month, the Pleasant Green Church announced that sufficient funds had been raised to pay off the $10,000 note almost three years ahead of maturity.

"The Lord Hath Done Great Things."

The church has adopted a motto that well tells the story of the $100,000 miracle for a small congregation that had great faith: "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." Psalms 126:3, which may be seen in part by the accompanying picture in this issue, of the interior of the finest church edifice for colored people in Hobbs. Associate pastor and faithful worker in the church is the Rev. B.T. Woods, shown at the extreme right of the picture.

"It doesn't seem like I have been here 17 years, but each year God has richly blessed us and in this I know that God is still a miracle worker," Pastor Watkins told the West Texas Times. The church recently celebrated its 34th birthday anniversary.

Pastor Watkins has been preaching and pastoring for some 40 years and was born in Caldwell, Texas "years ago", he says smiling. He has built and pastored churches in Anson, Borger,

Girl Scout Council Expresses Thanks

Robin Service Unit of Caprock Girl Scout Council would like to thank the citizens of north and east Lubbock for their support of the Girl Scout program. The two rummage sales held Saturday, November 15 at Rogers Community Center, 3200 Amherst and 1726-A Parkway Drive, Mackenzie Village, were generously patronized by people of both areas.

According to Mrs. James Brown, Field Services Chairman for Robin, the profit of $151.89 exceeded the expectations of the group and will be used for spring camping activities for the 300 Girl Scouts registered in the service unit.

Left over items from the sale were donated to the Disabled American Veterans organization.

Leaders and their Girl Scout troops taking part directly in the event included Mesdames, Betty Jackson, Bozeman School; Gilda Bryant, Alderson; Marjorie Doss, Arnett; Martha Robinson, Sanders, at Mackenzie Village. Mesdames Alma Rangel, Rosa Davila, Ofelia Martinez, Matthews; Mary Marin, Jackson; and Bobbye Hernandez, Tubbs, at the Rogers Community Center location. Leaders, parents, and girls from twenty troops donated clothing and other treasures for the sale.

Dalhart, Snyder, Breckenridge, San Angelo and Slaton, Texas. He is married to the former Johnnie Mae Turner of Lubbock and they have four children.

this Pleasure Garden for the little black boys and girls. We were only trying to keep them off the streets. But we finally got the permit to build."

Did blacks give you a hard time?

"Black folks even had petitions out to keep us from building the Pleasure Garden. Some of them are still living right here in town now. Some of them (blacks) are dead and several of them are still living now. As far as we are concerned, they are dead too, because they haven't grown an inch. One lady, speaking over a local radio station, told the interviewer that there wasn't any whiskey being sold at the Garden. She made it known that she had a daughter who was going down there for recreation, and she had been watching for this. She said that she heard the rumor from her friends. She said, however, that the only thing she could see was some people standing out in the streets with the bags in their hands. The lady said that the people didn't come inside because they didn't allow hard drinks in the place. We lost some of our so-called friends because we didn't allow bootlegging in the Pleasure Garden."

Did blacks try to get you to allow bootlegging in the Garden?

"Yes, people came to me to sell whiskey and other drinks, but we wouldn't let them inside. I lost a lot of friends, but we didn't care. I just wouldn't allow them inside the place."

Although the Pleasure Garden is nearly fifty years old, you do still maintain the same discipline?

"Yes, we do. We're getting mighty tired. It's a hard job making something possible for somebody else's children and receiving many problems from trying to help. We have people break into the business and create a lot of vandalism. This we don't appreciate. Just recently someone broke into the place and stole a turntable. We purchased another one shortly afterwards, and the next night, they stole that one. What's so strange about it is the police can't seem to find out who is breaking into the building. We've had at least twenty break-ins since we've been at our new location. There has never been an arrest made by the police department. We've told them who is doing it, but they won't arrest them. This we don't understand."

you and the rest of the young men I know in the city, something can be done. If we, as grandparents and senior citizens, get behind you, I believe this would be a better place in which to live and we would be stronger in politics."

Why is it, blacks don't get involved, Mrs. Fair?

"Oh, for example, if you came and asked me a question about what I think about a certain situation, I would tell you, 'Oh, I don't want to get involved.' That's our problem, we don't want to get involved. How do we expect to see anything happen if we don't get involved."

Was it hard to get a permit to build the first Pleasure Garden?

"Well, when we first applied for a permit, we had some so called friends (whites) who objected to us building the recreational facility. They would tell people that we didn't need anything like that. One fellow, in particular, that I had worked with down through the years, told people that it wasn't necessary. You would be surprised at the many meetings we went to just to get Provident Hospital on the southside of Chicago was founded by Dr. Daniel Hale Williams in 1891 to provide a training school for Negroes who wanted to enter the medical profession.

At the time, no Chicago hospitals would accept Negro interns and there were no training schools where Negro women could study to become nurses. Black patients on the southside didn't fare much better. Operations in those days were often performed on the kitchen tables of tenement homes.

A man had been brought to the Provident emergency room bleeding heavily from a knife wound in the chest. Dr. Williams dressed the wound, but the next day the man's condition grew worse. He was bleeding internally.

The young doctor decided to open the wound area and found the man had suffered a knife puncture in the heart itself. No one believed the man could live, but Dr. Williams thought he might be saved if the wound were closed.
