Noe Torres Cavazos on Trial for Murder In 140th District Court

The driver of a car who took Freddie Dean Sadler, of 1010 E. Owens, to the La Cantina Club last July 22nd where Sadler allegedly shot and critically wounded his wife, said Sadler told him earlier that evening "That he would go over there and get things straight with his wife or blow the hell out of her."

LaRue Winston Baker, who Pledges Still Coming In for UNCF Telethon Held Here Recently

Local United Negro College Fund collections, following the telethon held here recently now total $5,084.25.

Local sponsors also report that approximately $1,018.00 in outstanding pledges are yet to be collected. They also point out that anyone who didn't pledge a donation to UNCF during the telethon can still donate by mailing their checks to UNCF Telethon, P. O. Box 722, Lubbock, Texas 79408.

described Freddie as upset, said he and Freddie's uncle waited in a car outside La Cantina while Freddie went in to talk to his wife. Baker said he heard one shot and moments later saw Saddle Sadler run from the club followed by a man dressed in blue who shot him in the back.

Sadler was pronounced dead on arrival at Methodist Hospital following the incident.

The man in blue, Noe Torres Cavazos, 32, of 2111 Avenue K, is on trial for murder in Judge William Shaver's District Court 140.

Cavazos was employed as a security guard at the La Cantina Club July 22, 1975, when Freddie Dean Sadler, whom witnesses described as over six feet tall and weighing from 260 to 270 pounds, walked past him straight to the bar and allegedly shot his wife, who was a dancer at the club. While exiting from the club, Sadler came straight towards the security guard who followed him out of the door and shot him as he ran.

Late Monday afternoon, Freddie's uncle testified that Freddie "did not look towards the club" as he ran out of the door.

Both Freddie's uncle and Baker said they did not see anything in the large man's hands as he was running from the club.

Lubbock police officer Lloyd Wilson said earlier in the trial that he had found a small caliber gun six or seven feet from Freddie lying under the car by which he had fallen. The officer said he "found two live shots, three fired" in the gun's chamber. Sadler's wife had been shot twice, and another bullet hole was found behind the bar by police officers.

Sally Sadler remained in critical condition in Methodist Hospital for several days after the July 22nd incident.

Cavazos is pleading not guilty to the charge. A four woman eight man jury will hear additional testimony at the trial, which is expected to run through Wednesday.

Deltas to Select Man And Woman of Year

Members of the Lubbock Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and friends of Lubbock will have an opportunity again to elect the Man and Woman of the Year.

"We are interested in persons who have made outstanding community contributions," said a spokesperson in the organization. "We are not concerned about the financial or educational backgrounds of those persons nominated," continued the official.

Nomination are asked to be made by Monday, March 15. Ms. Jossie L. Bonner, chairlady of the committee, will be accepting nominations at her address at 3402 East 17th Street.

with over 100,000 people makes application to the Department of Labor. If the application is accepted, other governmental units are asked to join. Bass said he had sent letters out to county governments within the 15 county SPAG region "about a month ago," but the city had not received a "good deal of support" from those governments. The mayor estimated that half of those

These were the leaders of a crime symposium at the Seventh Annual Black History Tea, held in the Ramada Inn on the Seminole Hiway in Hobbs, New Mexico. The affair was sponsored by the Christian Call Mission Fund, with Bob Tieucl, pastor of Beard Chapel C.M.E. Church, Plainview, executive director.

Ms. Ivory has announced that the symposium was so helpful to the pastors, churches and other organizations attending, that a similar one will be held in Lamesa Sunday, March 21st. Watch for details in the West Texas Times.

Local Concerned Citizens Appoint State Liason Committee

Three area citizens have been appointed by the Concerned Citizens Crime Committee to work with a state legislative committee formed last week by the governor to study possible changes in the state's penal code and criminal justice system.

Bob McKenzie, chairman, Mrs. Louis Murfee, and Hulen Penney, will bring the results of conversations Concerned Citizens have had with local judges, justices of the peace, and law enforcement officials to the legislative committee.

Clarence Solnick, chairman for Concerned Citizens said Friday that local judicial and law enforcement officials have told the organization that many of the problems public officials face can only be solved by state legislation.

"Our feedback has already shown this has to be done on the state level," he said.

Last November, 21 local civic and business leaders formed Concerned Citizens to find ways to support existing police, judicial, and governmental agencies, and to coordinate local citizen activity in combating crime.

Subcommittees made of the 21 members have since talked with judges, justices of the peace, and the sheriff's department on the problems these officials and the public face with the rising crime rate. The newest subcommittee "will work continuously through the state legislature," Solnick said.

When Concerned Citizens heard the governor wanted to study ways to change the penal code and criminal justice system, the organization was "afraid they wouldn't get started early enough," Solnick said.

"But apparently they have, and we're delighted," he added.

The local subcommittee will "write, speak, and go to Austin" to communicate what they have learned to the state committee and to other elected officials. All C.C. activities on the state level will go through these three people, Solnick said.

Education is Answer for Successful Black Businesses

It will take continuous education for black businesses in Lubbock to survive the struggle of getting started. Black businessmen and women will be able to make the right decisions only when they have been trained with up-to-date knowledge. With continuous education, they will be able to make positive judgements about men and other business matters.

It is of great importance that persons interested in business begin to freshen up and extend their knowledge so they will be able to compete in the world of business.

In a growing city like Lubbock, the black business person who wants to become successful has a chance by taking advantage of the resources around them. Many have failed in the past because of a lack of knowledge about the business venture each has chosen.

It has been our experience that very few black business persons have showed any desire or enthusiasm for continuing their education after going into business.

There are many opportunities for persons interested in moving up the socio-economic ladder. It will, however, take time and patience to become a successful business person. Petty excuses and negative attitudes will not be the answer for becoming successful in any business venture. The business world is cold and competitive, therefore, any tools one can acquire will be of an advantage, regardless of ones ethnic background.

Black business persons can not completely depend on the members of the black community to support them in their effort. It is necessary for those interested in the business world to look at the total market and involve the entire city with their business.

One of the major problems in the black business community, for example, is that many do not advertise their business. Taking for granted that blacks or anybody will come by and support a business just because its there is not true. People will spend their money where there are bargains and those bargains are advertised to the public.

Education would help new businesses understand the most modern techniques for survival. The resources are available for those persons with the foresight to want to make it.

If there were enough black business persons interested in acquiring some of the necessary tools, we are sure the College of Business Administration at Texas Tech University would be more than happy to work with you. Education, to us, is part of the answer to the problems of the black business in Lubbock.

Schorr & Ellsberg

Daniel Schorr has been suspended by CBS pending the outcome of an investigation into charges he violated the law in turning over a secret House intelligence report to a New York newspaper.

It has long been clear among soberer minds of the media that every reporter or commentator can't decide for himself which secret papers he'll release, regardless of the law. And so the Schorr affair is a serious matter, affecting both national security and the future conduct of reporters and commentators.

But what Schorr did, and is being condemned for, is not more detrimental than what Daniel Ellsberg, another self-appointed secrets revealer, did during the Vietnam war. Ellsberg was hailed and ballyhooed in the press as a hero. Yet he had turned over secret government papers to the New York Times.

In other words, the double standard of the media is revealed. During the unpopular Vietnam war and during the media's campaign to force President Nixon out of office, Ellsberg was hailed as a hero—as one who was acting with high motives.

Perhaps Schorr will be cleared also; nevertheless, it's obvious by now that some restraint, some legal compulsion to obey laws pertaining to secret intelligence reports, must take precedence over each individual reporter's personal desires. No society or government can function safely in this age if each individual member of the media is free to decide when he will obey and violate the secrecy laws.

"As I See It"

by T.J. Patterson

It won't be long before the city-school board elections next month. This writer hopes that those registered to vote will go to the polls and support the candidates they feel will make a valid contribution to the city and school board.

On March 25, the West Texas Times will publish essays submitted to the paper by city council and mayoral candidates. This information may give you an idea on what the politicians are doing. All persons seeking city positions were notified of this special effort.

In April, we will present essays from those persons seeking the sheriff, county commissioner and state representative offices.

In looking at the race for State Representative 75-B (eastern district), I believe 5,000 votes will win the election. With the number of persons seeking the position, there will be a run-off after the May 1st Primaries. The Republicans only have one person vying for the position, who, no doubt, will be watching the outcome of the Democrat race.

This writer hopes the tragedy which occurred to Bobby Williams, a candidate for State Representative 75-B, wasn't politically motivated.

Since the burning of his house was an apparent act of an arsonist, I hope that local authorities would look into the situation and try hard to come up with who was responsible for the act.

If we are going to upgrade the black community, programs originated by the black community should be developed to fight black on black crimes. This, of course, would involve those crimes committed against residents of the black community.

With all the burglaries, assaults, thefts, and rape cases in our community, it should motivate us to do something which will curtail some of the black on black crimes in Lubbock.

The black on black crime thing is a national problem which is heavily affecting the hardworking blacks of America. The other day an associate of mine suggested that an all black jury would slow down some of the criminal activity in the community.

Some may say this would be discrimination. To me, it would be a means of getting something done about the black on black crime thing in Lubbock.

On Sunday afternoon, March 28, the Federation of Choirs will celebrate its annual anniversary. The beautiful voices of this dynamic group has set a precedent in Lubbock and surrounding communities.

This lovely group has consented to appear on my monthly television show, "What's Going On?" The entire 30 minutes will feature the men and women of this organization.

Aside from the group singing several selections, I will talk to officers of the organization about what the Federation of Choirs is all about.

If you haven't had an opportunity to hear these angelic voices, products of churches in east Lubbock, take the time this Sunday at 2:30 p.m. They will hold their annual service at the Greater St. Luke Baptist Church.

As our fine arts columnist, Jack Sheridan, said last year, this group is terrific. The entire city of Lubbock should have an opportunity to hear and see this great effort.

It was good to see the special effort made at Reese Air Force Base recently in their observance of Heritage Week. This base has taken the step to recognize the achievements of all Americans, regardless of their national origin, religion, race, creed or color.

Colonel Edward Mendel, Commander; Sgt. Willie Jones and other should be commended for a job well done. As I See It, the Reese Heritage Week Celebration made a lot of sense to me.

"CAPTURE OF STONY POINT"

The British General Sir Henry Clinton began a series of raids throughout the northern states during the summer of 1779. On one of these raids he captured the American fort at Stony Point, located on the Hudson River in northern New York. On July 15, 1779, American General "Mad Anthony" Wayne and his men sailed down the river, scaled the treacherous, almost perpendicular wall of rock, and recaptured the fort. The Battle of Stony Point has been called one of the most daring midnight attacks of the Revolutionary War. From the collection of American National Insurance Company, Galveston, Texas.

LOOKING FOR THEIR YOUTH

by Jack Anderson with Joe Spear

(Copyright, 1976, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—The seniority system hands command of Congress to tired old men who march in slow cadence behind the nation.

On Capitol Hill, therefore, the members pursue seniority. At the same time, in order to get re-elected, they try to appear youthful.

Here are a few examples:—Seventy-three-year-old Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.-S.C., tries to recapture his youth by exercising constantly, drinking distilled mountain water and gobbling vitamin C pills. Occasionally, he stands on his head—which he covered a couple of years ago with hair transplants.

—Sixty-year-old Sen. William Proxmire, D.-Wisc., also covered his balding head with hair transplants. He runs about five miles a day, swims 36 lengths in a nearby hotel pool and eats a lot of fruit, cottage cheese and wheat germ.

—Seventy-two-year-old Rep. Dan Flood, C.-Pa., waxes his mustache and sometimes wears his Harvard letterman's sweater to the office.

—Seventy-eight-year-old Sen. Milton Young, R.-N.D., tried to cover up his growing creakiness by circulating pictures of himself taking karate lessons.

—Seventy-one-year-old Sen. Carl Curtis, R.-Neb., who used to dress like a banker, suddenly turned up on the Senate floor in candy apple red sports coats and white shoes.

—Several congressmen, such as Reps. John Myers, R.-Ind., and William Barrett, D.-Pa., wear toupees. Barret has been accused of wearing hairpieces of different length to give the appearance of natural growth. But he staunchly denies this.

—Aside from thinning hair, the middle-age midriff bulge is the worst enemy of a youthful image. A number of legislators, led by Sen. Jim Abourezk, D.-S.D., have formed a Committee on Corpulent Excess. It works a little like Alcoholics Anonymous. Everytime one of them is tempted by a hot fudge sundae, he can pick up the phone and get help from a fellow member, who delivers a lecture on the advantages of a youthful physique.

Of course, the quest for youth isn't limited to Capitol Hill. Over at the Supreme Court, 68-year-old Chief Justice Warren Burger washes his flowing white locks in beer.

Even President Ford has achieved a younger look by styling his hair. He eliminated the shaved gap around his ears, which went out of style a decade ago.

Dirty House: Nowhere is the clamor louder than on Capitol Hill for clean, honest government. In the wake of Watergate, Congress has declared anew its dedication to the public trust and has enacted tighter laws regulating political conduct.

Evidence of congressional wrongdoing in the House, for example, is solemnly delivered to the House Ethics Committee, which has a handy rug suitable for sweeping dirt under.

The committee was formed as an act of public penitence after Congress was scorched by scandals in the 1960s. Now this committee is supposed to uphold ethics in the House.

We have been trying in vain, however, to get the committee to investigate unethical congressmen. It certainly should be unethical, for example, to violate the law. Yet three sitting members of the House have actually been convicted of crimes.

They are Reps. George Hansen, R.-Idaho; James Jones, C.-Okla.; and Andres Hinshaw, R.-Calif. But the committee still hasn't gotten around to investigating their ethics.

A year ago, we exposed the cozy relationship between Rep. Robert Sikes, C.-Fla., and the Fairchild Industries. We told how Sikes, a Fairchild stockholder, had used his influence as a member of the House Military Appropriations subcommittee to help Fairchild land an aircraft contract.

Yet the Ethics Committee is preparing to investigate not one of its own members but a newsman. The committee is trying to find out how CBS reporter Dan Schorr got a copy of the secret House CIA report.

Rep. Sam Stratton, D.-N.Y., introduced the resolution calling for the investigation of Schorr. We asked Stratton whether he would also introduce a resolution to start an investigation of the congressmen, at least, who have been convicted of crimes. Stratton refused.

That's how ethics is upheld on Capitol Hill.

African Aid: News reports coming out of Angola over the past few months gives the impression that the most serious problem facing the African people is political unrest.

This is not the case. Most Africans are far more concerned about hunger.

The poor African nation of Niger, for example, had its crops nearly destroyed this year by an ill-timed rainfall. Much of what was left of the crops was then devoured by millions of rats and hordes of locusts, which swarmed over the grain fields. Niger farmers have been forced to replant as many as 11 times to insure even a meager harvest.

Ironically, the American humanitarian effort there is being overshadowed by the criticism of America's role in Angola. The United States, we were informed, is the only country which has responded to Niger's international appeal for desperately needed shipments of surplus grain.

Washington Whirl: Rep. Tom Rees, D.-Calif., recently toted up all the lawmakers running for the presidency and solemnly declared he was not going to announce. A bid for the White House, he said, might cost him his free congressional parking space... In Portland, Ore., the local CIA man has charged the Portland State University newspaper, the "Vanguard," with discriminating against the agency. Seems the student journalists refused to run his recruiting ad.

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

Mike Russell set himself. He eyed the basket. His arms came up. The ball was on its way. The arch was good. The distance was right. And the ball fell through to give Texas Tech a thrilling 74-72 victory over Texas A&M and an NCAA playoff berth.

It was fitting, in many ways, that Russell scored the winning goal. He came off the bench in the stretch to play inspired ball and help the Raiders to a second place finish.

But, and it takes nothing away from Russell and the other Tech players, Rick Bullock was the backbone of the team. Without Bullock, the Raiders would have had a good team, but not the brilliant team it was in the tournament.

Bullock had an unbelievable series, not only in scoring, but also rebounding, blocked shots and team play. He was an unselfish player and his overall play made the Raiders.

Congratulations go to Gerald Myers and his staff of George Davidson and Rob Evans and the Tech squad. It's been a long, hard battle to arrive at the playoffs. Now they are faced with Syracuse and then, hopefully, on to Louisville.

Syracuse generally has had good basketball teams and this year's squad must be pretty good. It probably will be a running team, with good outside shooters.

It's ironic, in a way, that if Tech gets past the Orangemen, the Raiders will join Washington and Notre Dame. They are the only two teams outside the conference to have beaten Tech. And both the Huskies and Irish won by convincing margins.

Still, Tech would have a psychological edge, if you want to look ahead. The Raiders played relatively well for a half against each and could do better the next trip out.

But, for now, there's no point in dwelling on the future, immediate or longrange. For now the thrill of victory is the thing for the Raiders.

Considering the pressure and the physical demand of three games in three days, all tough games, too, they played well. True, they had too many turnovers, but they kept their poise, they worked the ball around and, generally, they took good shots.

It was an unselfish team and, while you have to credit Bullock, you can't overlook the timely plays and points of Grady Newton, Steve Dunn, Keith Kitchens, Rudy Liggins, Geoff Huston, Grant Dukes and, of course, Russell.

Tech played as a team and it showed up. The Raiders fought on the boards, they broke the press, they attacked the zone. In short, they did everything that a good team has to do.

Tech didn't win the championship, but it won the right to play in the NCAA and the tournament trophy was well deserved. And they beat their chief tormentor in the process.

It was a good tournament, with fine games, and it should spark more interest in basketball. Now, if it only would spark better attendance at Tech home games it would be wonderful. There's certainly no need for a bigger arena.

Speaking of arenas, wouldn't it be a great thing if the power that be at Texas Tech recognized the contribution that Polk Robison has made over the years?

There would be no finer thing to honor him with a permanent, lasting tribute than to name the playing area of Municipal Coliseum "Robison Arena," or some other suitable name. The whole complex couldn't be renamed, but games could be played in "Robison Arena" and forget that stuffy city influence.

Certainly no man is more deserving than Polk. It was he who fashioned the teams that led, eventually, to the building of the present complex.

He led Tech to its first Southwest Conference title. He scheduled top teams to gain recognition for Tech basketball and for his conference. In the process, he also called attention to himself, although he would be the first to say that he didn't want any recognition.

I remember talking to a well-known basketball coach years ago and the man remarking, in all sincerity, that it was a shame that fans couldn't see Tech basketball games.

"If they could, they'd soon realize that they had one of the best basketball minds and coaches in the nation."

Time hasn't diminished that. A lot of coaches can attest to the fact that Polk was a superior coach.

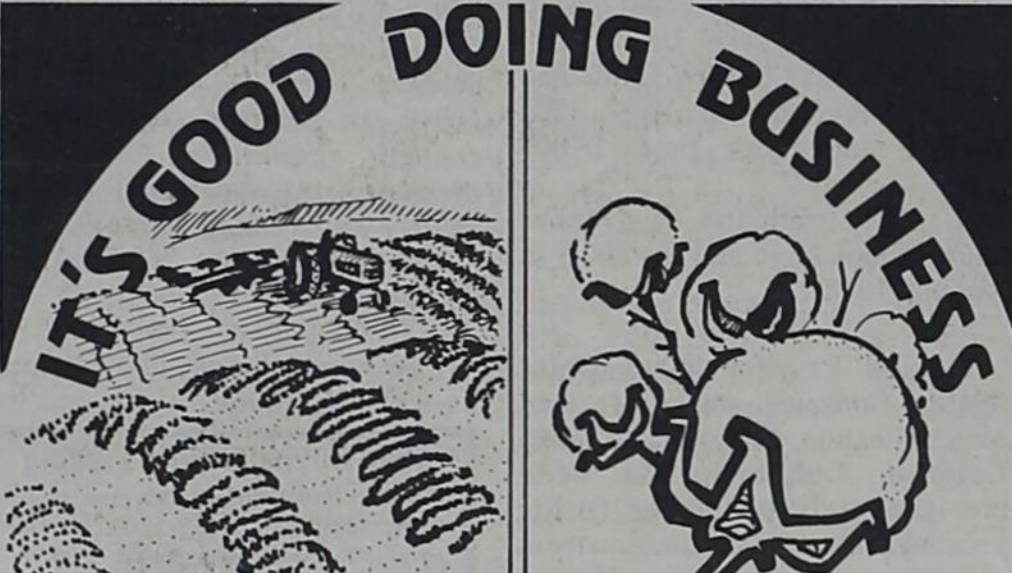

He has been, of course, more than a coach. He helped in football and his sharp, clear analysis, as well as his knowledge of the sport, was invaluable to Tech.

He served as athletic director, until a heart attack, and he's still connected with Tech. In fact, he has been a guiding force for 39 of the 49 years Tech has had intercollegiate athletics.

Robison Arena? Why not? It's high time that Tech, and Lubbock, recognized the tremendous contributions that Polk Fancher Robison has made.

Library Lunch Bunch to See "Punch and Judy"

Tuesday, March 16, the Library Lunch Bunch will be treated to a preview of the upcoming Lubbock Children's Theatre production of "Punch and Judy." The actors in the play are Lubbock 7th through 9th graders who are enrolled in the Children's Theatre Program at the Lubbock Theatre Centre. The children hold regular meetings each Saturday to rehearse and study theatre. For Lunch Bunch, the players will present excerpts from "Punch and Judy," and the director of the Children's Theatre, Susan King, will relate some of the history of the venerable Punch and Judy. "Punch and Judy" will be presented at the Lubbock Theatre

Centre at 7:30 p.m. on April 2nd, and at 2:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. on April 3rd and 4th. Library Lunch Bunch meets each Tuesday at 12:15 p.m. to 12:45 p.m. in the Community Room of the Mahon Library, 1306 9th Street.

There's a time to play, as well as a time to pray, but some people never try either.

Looking Back Over The Years . . .

"People Should Not be 'Put Down'," Says Mrs. Mae D. Simmons

by T.J. Patterson

(Editor's Note: This is part two of an interview with Mrs. Mae D. Thomas Simmons, a native of Dawson, Navarro County, Texas. "If it wasn't for God, I wouldn't have been able to do anything." She came to Lubbock July 27, 1939.)

Mrs. Simmons, when you were hired as principal, what were some of your accomplishments?

"Of course, there were some accomplishments. I would hate to say I was a complete failure. However, I never thought I was an excellent principal, as such."

Why do you say that, Mrs. Simmons?

"That's just the way I feel about it. I feel there is always something else to be done. Even at the time I was principal, I always felt there was something else I could do, and it wasn't getting done, as far as I was concerned. I just never felt it was a complete success."

I've learned you did leave some footprints in the sand.

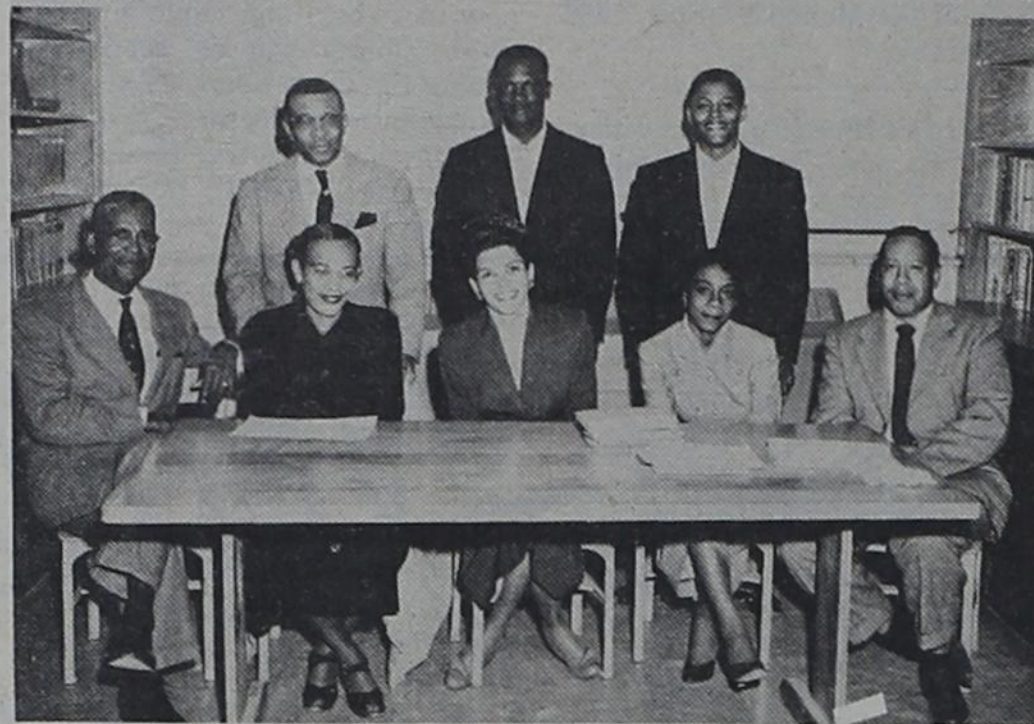

"Did I really?"

How many teachers worked under you, Mrs. Simmons?

"I would guess about nine teachers when I started as principal. Remember, that is only a guess. At the time of my retirement, there were 39 or 40 teachers working at Ella Iles."

What kind of system did you use?

"I encouraged my teachers to do a good job of teaching children. In order to do a good job, you had to love them (children). As a teacher, you had to care for the children and recognize their needs. Even then, I thought of individualization in teaching. Working with individual children, working the child as a person is of most importance. You see, we talk about individualization of teaching children today, but I did that in Henrietta. When you teach from the first through the ninth grades, you are dealing with one child at a time. You'll find yourself dealing with the personality of that child. Well, I believe in that and that was one of the main things I utilized. This will give you love, when you work with the individual child. However, T.J., that was a difficult job for teachers."

Why was it so difficult?

"Because there were so many children in the classroom to work with in those days. The classrooms were crowded."

What did the Parent Teachers Association do to help Ella Iles?

"They were definitely concerned about the school, children and teachers. They would raise money to buy library books, playground equipment and many other things. Parents were just deeply concerned about the school overall. I will go back to Mrs. Seth Dunn. She was at one time president of the Ella Iles PTA. She didn't have any children going to Ella Iles, but she was concerned. People were just concerned about what the children had at Ella Iles. I could name many others, but Mrs. Dunn just happens to come to my mind. She was a hard worker and a devoted person to the PTA without having any children attending the school."

You are saying there were remarkable people in those days?

"Yes, they were remarkable people. They just wanted to do something to help kids. You know, I didn't have any children, but I loved all the children who were under my leadership. I just loved these young people."

What was the largest enrollment of Ella Iles?

"You are putting me on a spot, but I believe it was more than a 1,000 young people."

Are many of those young people still in Lubbock?

"Many of them are still in Lubbock. Some are out of the city today. Some of them are quite successful. By success, I mean they know how to make a living. Many are highly educated, but I don't always call that a successful person."

Isn't it true that some of the teachers who worked under you are now administrators?

"Yes, and it is really beautiful. They're all very good administrators in the school system. I don't know how many are principals, at the present time, but I can recall some. Those who are principals include Lawrence Robinson in Oregon; Clarence Priestly, principal of Bozeman Elementary; Charles E. Brown, principal of E.C. Struggs Junior High; and Grover Colvin, principal of Hodges Elementary and former principal of Wheatley Elementary. I asked for Mr. Colvin to come to Lubbock and work with me. I received a letter to recommend Mr. Robinson for the job in Oregon. They are all good people."

How do you feel about what these men are doing in education?

"You'll never dream that you will see things like it really is. You always hope for something good for the people who worked with you."

Mrs. Simmons, why do adults put down our young people?

"They put us down when we were young. They also put you down when you were young. Adults thought all young people were going to the devil. They would say young people are wild and this, that and the other. It was my opinion then and now that 2 percent of the young people are on the wrong side of the fence while 98 percent of them are on the right side. We (adults) play up the 2 percent. We just blow it out of proportion. I think the 98 percent are really great."

Isn't it true you were also very active in the community?

"At one time, I used to be quite active in the community. I'm not anymore."

What are some of the organizations you worked with?

"I can think of a few organizations I worked with for some time. I worked with the March of Dimes when they were looking for a cure for polio. I think I have a 15 year certificate with them. I have a 10 year certificate for working with the Cancer Fund. I have worked 22 years with the United Way of Lubbock. I did work with the Community Planning Council, also. I have worked on the board with the Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA), and Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA). I have also had an opportunity to work with the Day Nursery Board, Welfare Board several times, and so many other organizations in Lubbock. I also worked with the manpower effort in Austin. I just have to stop and think of all the different organizations I've worked with in Lubbock and the state of Texas."

Why did you want to get involved in the community?

"Well, I came to Lubbock to get married as I've stated. I had no thought of anything else I wanted to do then. All I wanted to do was to be a good housewife. After I got to Lubbock, I began to substitute teach and I was encouraged to continue teaching. That's just a part of me. You see, I first taught Sunday School when I was 13 years of age. This is when I decided I wanted to do something for people. If it wasn't for God I wouldn't have been able to do anything. People have been a concern of mine all these years."

Were you a very good disciplinarian at Ella Iles?

"Oh, yes, I was. Everybody in town will tell you I was very good in discipline. I can't deny that fact, because I was. All my students will tell you about that. They tell me now they appreciated it very much."

Do you think the schools are lacking discipline today?

"It's different from what I did. I don't know whether we lack it or not. There have been so many changes. When we are changing around, we tend to fall, but we reach right back up."

With a city park named after you here, what kind of advice can you leave for the young people in Lubbock?

"It is not what he is, nor even what he does which directly expresses the worth of a man, but what he is."

What advice can you give young teachers coming out of college today?

"I think they are more dedicated today. The reason why I say that is because there are so many other professions they can go into besides teaching. When anybody goes into the teaching field, I believe they are really dedicated. When I came along, there wasn't too much that I could do. Teaching is the only thing I wanted to do. I never wanted to do anything else. Young people are just doing so many other things today. It's my philosophy that whatever you are doing, do it well. You don't always have to go to college and come out with a BA degree."

Mrs. Simmons, why didn't you go into politics?

"Politics... It has never entered my mind."

Are you going to write a book in the future?

"At one time, I was encouraged when I was attending the University of Iowa to do just that. I was asked to write a textbook for black children. After receiving my masters degree, I got too busy. I have actually pushed it out of my mind. Today, I just wish I had written that book."

Is it too late for you?

"I don't know, it could be. I have the wisdom, but I'm very tired. As you know, I've been ill for about six months. I'm doing better now, and I wish I could write that book. I would like to start with my grandfather and continue right through. I am somebody, and I would like for some young people to read my life. All young people should believe that they are somebody."

What other comments would you like to state, Mrs. Simmons?

"No, I don't like the idea of putting people down. I think people should be raised up. I don't have time for people who put other people down. If we can stop sometimes and go over what we say and what we do everyday, and build people up and instead of pushing people back, I think it would be a great world. We have the greatest country in the world now, but if we did that, it would be much better. Suppose everybody in America stopped for just one minute and pushed somebody up. Wouldn't it be great. It would have an impact we would never see again."

East Lubbock Senior Citizens

During the month of February, the East Lubbock Senior Citizens spent time taking a national first aid course. The teacher, and president, Mr. Joe Herbert, stated it was a wonderful success. He was impressed with the number of senior citizens taking the course. Ten members received a certificate. Mrs. Minnie Wallace had the highest score.

At the March 16th meeting, the county home demonstration agent will be meeting with the group. They have enjoyed meeting in the HUD Community Center.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

It was inevitable, of course, that this Bicentennial year would see a revival around the country of the recent New York theatrical success, "1776."

This is the bright, amusing and colorful play with music set in the chamber and anteroom of the Continental Congress in Philadelphia during that fateful, hot and steamy summer of 1776 as the varied lawmakers strive to reach the ultimate moment in the Revolutionary period, the drafting, adoption and signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Here are all the principals in the nation's drama, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, John Hancock, Thomas Jefferson and all the others. They bicker, they cavort, they suffer and they triumph over all odds to the tolling of the famed Liberty Bell.

In the play there are only two women who appear intermittently, Abigail Adams and Martha Jefferson.

"1776," in its New York presentation, was played, and rightly so, without intermission. However, in its touring performances west of the Hudson River, the play is broken into two parts, which, in effect, lessens the momentum and impact, I think.

"1776" played the Auditorium under Civic Lubbock auspices a couple of years back on its first transcontinental tour. Last week "1776" came back, as anticipated, this time to the stage of the Monterey High School Auditorium, under the flag of the Lubbock Community Concerts Association, the final event of their 1975-76 season.

What New York's Gingerbread Productions sent on the road this time was a good, workable presentation that filled the bill. The setting was right and the players competent. I think the piece, which was performed to an almost-full house, suffered from a lack of sharp, incisive strength overall. The play must have strong personalities and forceful ones in the roles of Adams, Jefferson, and, certainly, that doughty, bawdy, shrewd Benjamin Franklin. It was in this latter role that the production was weak which reflected down through the others. It was not a poor show, not at all. It just seemed somewhat pedestrian, without those flashes of brilliance that can mark the play.

Now I want to direct your attention to the current membership drive that has been responsible for a whole parade of outstanding recitals and performances in Lubbock down through the years. This is the Lubbock Community Concerts Association and each year they have a drive for renewals and for new memberships for the oncoming season. The drive is only a week long and one should remember that admission to the entire season is contained in a membership; it is the policy that, once the drive is over, the ticket sales are done. One cannot purchase tickets at the box office for any of the LCCA slate.

When one considers that there are four or five attractions on the season at a price of $12 for adults and $6 for students, plus a family card for $36 covering two adults and two students, then one will concede that this is the annual show bargain. Internationally known players, dancers and musicians offered for what amounts to the price of a movie these days.

I have been a part of Community Concerts for many years and can testify to the general excellence of their offerings.

In the coming year Community Concerts will offer such diversified fare as the famous piano duo Whittemore and Lowe, the Bayanihan, the noted Philippine Dance Company; the celebrated Beaux Arts Trio; and the outstanding Gregg Smith Singers.

The renewal drive and the new membership drive will run Monday through Saturday. I wouldn't hesitate. Headquarters are in the Lubbock Inn and one can contact them by calling 799-2105. Do it soon and give yourself and your family a gloriously rewarding gift.

The movie this week was "The Sunshine Boys," current at the South Plains Mall Cinema I. By now you know that this story of two antagonistic vaudeville ex-partners (43 years) is by the writer Neil Simon and that it has been nominated for a Best Actor Award for Walter Matthau and a Best Supporting Actor for the veteran stand-up comedian George Burns (aged 80).

The film emerges better than the play, I feel. There is a loosening of the tight stage framework and the casting could not be better. Matthau, made up wonderfully as the old man, hams his way shamelessly through this role and is delightful. He's always Matthau underneath that disguise but he plays this rascally curmudgeon to perfection. His counterpart, George Burns, is low-keyed and delightful, too. There are genuinely funny scenes as nephew Richard Benjamin tries to bring together the feuding two for a last-time resurrection of their famous vaudeville skit to his trials and his frustrations. The camera work improves the stage restrictions in the television sequence, particularly.

But, "The Sunshine Boys" is a two-character play, really, with the nephew's part being handled very well by Benjamin.

"The Sunshine Boys" is a duel of antagonists and both players are fun. Whether it is a dispute over the work of a longtime colleague just found on the obituary page or the resentment of Matthau over the spitting "T's" from Burns in the sketch sequence or the difference between "Come in" or "Enter" during the sketch rehearsals, the show has its laughs and is charming and downright touching at times.

"The Sunshine Boys" is not a great film, not even a memorable one. But it does what it sets out to do, entertain. And, since it is about show business and its veterans, what other goal should be expected of it?

I regret I was not able to attend either the Pennsylvania Orchestra concert last Friday or the subsequent Pennsylvania Ballet performance the next night, due to transportation difficulties. I hear they were very good. Perhaps, I catch them the next time around.

I do call your attention to the current drive for sustaining funds for that superb Public Service Broadcast channel, No. 5, the Texas Tech station. Those of you who have enjoyed the superior and intelligent programming from this outlet are called on to pledge support for the station. The contribution could not be made to a more worthy and needed enterprise in this city and area. Just call KTXT-TV along the way and give them your needed support. I'd hate to think of Lubbock without Channel 5 and its benefits. There are many times this commercial-less station puts it more affluent network rivals to shame, believe me.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

Austin—It is not enough that we talk about crime and what it's doing to our state. We have to take some strong action and we can't wait for somebody else to do it.

For that reason, last week I named a special task force of House members to do a statewide investigation of what action we in the Legislature can take to combat crime.

Others are likewise working on programs which, hopefully, can turn around this plague which increases by an additional 15 per cent each year.

The Legislature will not shirk its duty. If we can determine that there are some laws we can put on the books that will have an effect, then we're going to try and pass those laws.

There are many things that come to mind which will help deter and prevent crime. Many are ways in dealing with persons charged with crime. Some are ways to punish and influence those who have been convicted of crimes.

Examples of what this task force will bring to the Legislature in 1977 are two bills which I have asked them to consider.

One of the bills would see that there is no probation or suspension of sentence given anyone who uses a firearm to commit a felony.

The other bill would provide an additional five years in prison to any person convicted of a felony if he was carrying a firearm at the time of the offense. The five years would be in addition to punishment for the crime and would not run concurrently with the sentence.

Our laws can go only so far, but we must see that they go as far as they can. After that, it is up to the citizens of the state to determine how much crime we can stomach.

Because citizen participation can solve even the stickiest problems, I urge that we organize at every level to combat this tide of murderers, thieves, rapists and hoodlums who this year will directly touch four of every 100 of our people.

Don't think that even the smallest effort will not bring result. A good example is in San Antonio where people living near schools are given cards with emergency telephone numbers and a printed appeal to report any suspicious circumstances. This crime stop program has had encouraging results and school vandalism has been cut drastically.

Down at the bottom line it is the people who must respond if we are to have any real hope of stopping crime.

Annual Financial Audit to Be Presented Thursday City Council Meeting Will Discuss 34th Street Power Line

The city council will meet Thursday morning at 9:30 a.m. in council chambers to discuss a 55 item agenda including appearances by Jack Powers of Lubbock Power and Light, who will make recommendations on an engineering contract to extend the 34th Street high-rise poles to their switchyard, and an outside auditing agency who will present a report on the status of finances for the fiscal year ending in September, 1975.

The council will also consider an ordinance to create a Convention Promotion subcommittee, and Promotion subcommittee, and hold a public hearing to amend the community development program by deleting planned street paving on East 58th Street and substituting paving on Oak Avenue between East 50th and East 55th Street.

Jack Powers, chairman of the Electric Utility Board is scheduled to appear before the council at 10:30 a.m. He will present a contract with Hicks and Ragland of Lubbock to extend the high rise power lines another 5.4 miles from the Coop substation at 26th and Globe to the Holly Avenue switchyard. The lines will be capable of carrying 130,000 volts of sheer energy.

Powers will also ask the council for an appropriation ordinance to raise the estimated maximum of $50,260 for the engineering contract on this route. The money will be used for route selection, preparation of right of way, actual design work to determine the size and number of poles, and for miscellaneous purposes.

A spokesman for the city said the lines are expected to go in the vicinity of smaller transmission lines now placed along Quirt Avenue.

The spokesman said the preparation of the plans would run over $50,000 "if LP&L asks them to do everything."

The final cost for the completed project has not yet been determined, the spokesman said.

Powers is also scheduled to ask the council for a 30-day extension on the present construction contract for the 34th Street Transmission Line because some of the high power line poles have not arrived.

The auditing firm of Mason and Nichols will present the annual financial report to the council at 11:15 a.m. They are expected to suggest changes in current city operations to the council to save money.

One change would be the use of computers in city operations, a change which was recommended two years ago by another auditing firm. The council is expected to take action on that proposal.

"The audit does show the city to be in good financial condition," the spokesman for the city said. "Inflation in many areas continues to catch up with us."

An ordinance amendment which will create a special subcommittee composed of two separate boards to direct the operations of the new civic center will be considered Thursday morning. The subcommittee would oversee a Tourism and a Convention Board responsible for these two aspects of the civic center operation.

The plan calls for five members to be appointed for three year terms. Members will be responsible for promoting the city facility, for booking conventions and meetings, and for development programs. They will work with the director to promote and operate the facility.

Funding for the subcommittee will come from Hotel and Restaurant Tax revenues. Last year, the city collected $194,000 in revenues from the tax. The council will determine what percentage of these funds will go to operation of the subcommittee if the ordinance is amended.

A public hearing to change the 1976-77 Community Development program will be held at 11 a.m. The proposed change would delete funds for paving East 58th Street between Magnolia and Ivy Avenue because the area is bordered on both sides by railroad tracks. The city would have to come up with additional money to acquire right of way along this route, a spokesman for the city said.

The city plans to pave Oak Avenue between East 50th and East 55th Streets with the money.

At 9:50 a.m., the council is scheduled to present the Airman of the Month Award.

The Good Things

In the present atmosphere, seemingly dominated by bad news of scandal, crime, foreign troubles, fuel shortages, inflation, etc., many of us understandably lose sight of the good things around us.

Modern times have produced pollution problems, way of life complexities, confusion, depression and mental worry, but modern life also offers many good things.

Americans today enjoy an unprecedented choice of foods and products to buy, and more money to buy them with, than ever before. They have available to them more forms of recreation, entertainment and leisure than ever before—and more time to devote to pleasure.

More important than material things are our accepted personal freedoms—to speak, worship and act as one wishes. We are blessed with an over-abundance of food, natural resources and natural beauty.

The many inherited blessings of earlier ages we utilize and benefit from—modern transportation, electricity, the telephone, modern plumbing and engineering, etc. There is much to be thankful for.

Faith in one's self is the foundation of success.

Festival '76 Will Raise Funds for Public Broadcasting Stations

More than 200 public television stations across the nation, including Texas Tech University's KTXT-TV, will be celebrating Festival '76, a landmark in American television, March 7-21.

Festival '76 is an annual two-week period when public television will present nearly two-dozen music, dramatic, sports and documentary specials produced in the United States and abroad.

The festival is part of a major public television effort to increase public awareness and support of the medium. Through national support from PBS, the festival provides local public television stations with a 15-day showcase of specials around which each individual station can plan local fund raising.

During Festival '76, volunteers will be available to accept contributions of $5, $15, $25, $50, $100 or more for membership in Lubbock's Public Television Channel 5. Membership entitles the viewer to receive for one year a monthly detailed program guide booklet for public television.

The main objective is to obtain funds for purchases of programs. All contribution money will be spent for national programs KTXT-TV formerly received at no cost and for new programming.

Support for public television is especially important under the regulations of the recently passed Public Broadcasting Funding Act, which requires the medium to match every $1 allocated by the Federal government with $2.50 acquired from other sources.

Tribute Paid to Mrs. Estelle Pierce Recently

Members of the Ma Jones Missionary Society of Bethel A.M.E. Church paid a special tribute to Mrs. Estelle Pierce, who died March 8, 1975. "We wanted to show our love for a woman who really loved the Ma Jones Missionary Society," said Mrs. Maunita Terrell, mistress of the program last Sunday afternoon at Bethel.

"It's marvelous to know there are people at Bethel who honor someone who is dead, when it's hard for people to honor those who are living," said one person in attendance.

More than one hundred persons were present to hear comments from longtime friends of Mrs. Pierce. One speaker, Mrs. A.W. Wilson, told of Mrs. Pierce's effort to upgrade the organization.

Mrs. Olga Hemanes, with tears in her eyes, spoke of her knowing Mrs. Pierce in her latter years.

"You know, I'm glad I had an opportunity to know a woman like Mrs. Pierce," she smiled.

A very close friend of Mrs. Pierce, Willie Blocker, spoke emotionally about a lady whom he loved. "We were one and helped each other," he said. "She is the cause of me joining church, and I'm glad she encouraged me to do so," he continued. "She was a lovely person," he added.

Harold Chatman, who had known Mrs. Pierce since his early youth, told how she had helped him. "When I was ill once, she would come by and see how I was doing," he said. "No matter what I did for Mrs. Pierce while she lived, I couldn't repay what she had done for me," he said.

In a well presented prayer, Mrs. Terrell spoke briefly of the works of Mrs. Pierce and asked that her efforts would live on.

Special music of the hour were presented by Mrs. L.C. Struggs and Mrs. E.R. Walker. Mrs. Ollie Coleman sang "Someone to Care." A special selection was given by Mrs. Vivian Cooke, "In the Garden," with Mrs. Struggs assisting.

Senior Choir Number Two of Bethel sang one of Mrs. Pierce's favorite selections, "There's A Bright Side Somewhere."

Climaxing the afternoon of dedication, Mrs. Beulah sang "They Don't Live There Anymore."

Rev. Nathaniel Johnson, pastor of Mount Vernon United Methodist Church, and Presiding Elder Leon McNeil, participated in the program. Rev. A.W. Wilson, pastor, gave brief remarks.

Visiting churches included New Jerusalem Baptist, Lyons Chapel Baptist, Mt. Gilead Baptist, Christ Temple Church of God in Christ, and Mount Vernon United Methodist Churches. A representative of the Queen Bee Club, Mrs. Nelda Jackson, was present.

Mrs. Coraine Fair, president, told the group how much Mrs. Pierce meant to her and appreciated those who came out for the special program.

Officers of the Ma Jones Missionary Society are Mrs. Fair, president; Mrs. M.E. McGowen, vice president; Mrs. L.M. Knowles, secretary; Mrs. C.M. Johnson, treasurer; and Mrs. A.W. Wilson, teacher.

Ringling The Bell

Black America—Economic Equality—Boston—The President of the nation's largest black business organization declared here recently that black America must reach economic equality by the year 2000. "We will have to face the fact that we can no longer postpone the real issue of the survival of our people", Dr. Berkeley G. Burrell told the 75th Annual Convention of the National Business League founded by Booker T. Washington.

"We used to be accused of begging for help. No more. We are now demanding the right to help, and there can be no argument against our drive for economic parity for minority America. For black business in the United States to reach that parity, it will take an investment of $442 billion in minority business enterprises, or 63 times the combined gross business receipts of all black-owned firms now."

Minorities represent 17 per cent of the U.S. population, yet account for but four per cent of the more than 12 million business enterprises, and less than one per cent of total business receipts, Burrell noted.

"To get there we must be involved in multi-billion dollar projects, all of which require high equity investment—not just small business loans," he said in prepared remarks at the four day conference.

As a step in that direction, it was announced the United States Railway Assn.'s Board of Directors have pledged to give minority businesses all possible opportunities under the proposed $1.85 billion CONRAIL program.

The Black Press: Chiding the short-sightedness of white businessmen, California Lt. Governor Mervyn Dymally recently declared that white businesses could increase profits and strike a blow for press freedom at the same time if they would place a fair share of their advertising in the nation's black press. He said: "The black press has always rallied and protested against injustice when other media were silent. An independent and aggressive Black Press is vital if America's problems are to be thoroughly probed and solutions found," he added.

Besides that, Dymally pointed out, Blacks now earn $59 billion a year in the U.S. He pointed out the poor job generally the white press has done to eliminate racism adding that "the white press has not for the most part communicated to whites the difficulties and frustrations of being Black in the United States."

Dr. David Wilbor Porter, 59, former high school principal in Abilene, Texas, for many years, then later to school systems in Dallas and Kansas City, Missouri, was killed recently in a 2-car collision in Kansas City during a heavy rain downpour, report our Kansas City sources. Porter was born in Watonga, Oklahoma and was widely known in West Texas and New Mexico for his educational endeavors as well as a leading layman in the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church. At the time of his death he was a member of the Independent Methodist Church, where the Rev. Melvin Harrison was pastor in Kansas City.

"Who Killed Cecil Grimes and Why?" is a case that is scheduled to come up in District Court this fall in New Mexico and could develop into one of the most sensational cases in the history of the state, our sources report. Grimes, a prominent and wealthy anglo of Hobbs, was found shot to death in his palatial home on Green Acres Drive on November 2, shortly after midnight.

Recently a rifle, said to be a 30-30, was located and designated as the murder weapon. Cornelius Patterson, a black nursing student has been charged. The case involves many big wigs, it is reported.

Until later, Peace.

Tex Schramm to Chair TADC Development Council this Year

Texas E. Schramm, president and general manager of the Dallas Cowboys, has taken on additional duties as chairman of the development council for the Texas Association of Developing Colleges.

TADC is comprised of the six Texas colleges which are affiliated with the United Negro College Fund.

Mr. Schramm will recruit and head a top level committee to solicit funds on behalf of the six colleges. The statewide goal is $1.2 million.

Scramm brings to this challenge a strong background of leadership and organization. Prior to joining the Cowboys as general manager in 1960, he was a Captain in the Air Transport Command, sports editor of the Austin American Statesman, publicity director and later general manager of the Los Angeles Rams and Assistant Director of Sports for CBS.

Scramm built the Cowboys from scratch, beginning when the club entered the National Football League as an expansion team in 1960. Dallas had its first winning record in 1966 and hasn't had a losing season since, a string of 10 consecutive winning campaigns.

In addition to his accomplishments with the Cowboys, Schramm has been an innovator in the development of complex scouting systems with both the Rams and Dallas. Also, he played a key role in the merger of the NFL and American Football League which made sports history in 1966.

The lucky man is the one who forgets his bad luck.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

Timely Fishing Time

Lots of anglers have great confidence in the effect that the sun and the moon have on fishing success.

Years ago John Alden Knight conceived the idea of Solunar Tables. These were designed to forecast the times during each day when fish are most likely to become active and feed. Game too.

Many newspapers subscribe to Mr. Knight's enlightening features on this subject and publish them regularly.

Don't know how many hunters follow those tables, but many fishermen do so religiously.

One thing that is not widely known to those who watch for the major and minor biting periods is their duration. Major periods last from two hours to as long as three and a half hours, while minor periods last from 45 minutes to an hour and a half. . . . Facts worth remembering.

Survival Item #1

Most seasoned outdoorsmen say that if they were allowed to take only one survival item with them into the woods, it would be a sharp, top-quality axe.

This in preference to a gun, a bottle of water, matches and numerous other items commonly regarded as prime essentials.

Arguments favoring the axe, or even a small belt-type Boy Scout hatchet, are based on its many potential uses.

In the first place it's a good defensive weapon that also will serve for hunting game.

It can be used to chop down trees for shelter and to trim brush for firewood. Yes, firewood! No matches, did you say? Well, in an emergency like this, the axe can also be used to start a fire. Striking the steel head of the axe against a flint rock produces sparks, and sparks produce fires.

A real sharp axe can be used to clean large game and cut them up for cooking over the campfire.

Second in importance, in my book, would be a real sharp hunting knife.

If I had the choice of a third item to go along with the axe or hunting knife, it would be a top grade whetstone . . . for obvious reasons.

Mount Olive Baptist Church

Snyder—Sunday School was called to order by the Supt. Sis. Bertha Willis. High points on the lesson were given by Sis. Paula White. Remarks by the pastor, Rev. E.D. Toines. Both were enjoyed by all.

The message for the morning service was brought by the pastor. He spoke on "Christ Is The Answer."

Music was provided by both the junior and senior choirs. Sis. P. White assisted the junior choir at the piano. Sis. Annie Johnson assisted the senior choir. The message and music was most uplifting.

Bethel A.M.E. Church

Services were well attended last Sunday with our presiding Elder, Rev. Leon McNeil, delivering the morning message. His subject was "The Pledge of the Cross." Senior Choir Number One was responsible for the music of the hour.

Combined services, with Lyons Chapel and New Hope Baptist Churches, were held last Sunday evening. This is a regular monthly effort on the part of all three churches.

A very successful program was held Sunday afternoon in memory of Mrs. Estelle Pierce, a devoted member of the Ma Jones Missionary Society during her years as member. Mrs. Maunita Terrell served as moderator of the special effort. Many of Mrs. Pierce's friends came by last Sunday afternoon to pay tribute to a great lady of the church and community. "She was my friend," said Mr. Willie Blocker with tears in his eyes.

Let us continue to pray for and visit our sick and shut-in members. Those on the sick list this week include Ms. Jossie Bonner, who is suffering from a burn on her arm; Ms. Leaner Goldstein, Ms. Charlie Davenport, Mrs. Doris Ragland and Rev. T.B. Reece.

New adult ushers were asked to stand and be presented to the church last Sunday morning. Brother Roscoe Howard is president.

Senior Choir Number Two will be responsible for a special program on Sunday afternoon, March 21, at three.

A special happy birthday is in order for the following members, Mary Jordan, Jessie Benson, Larry Rollison, Leaner Goldstien, Charles Terrell, Roscoe Howard and Sheldon Powell.

Mount Gilead Baptist Church

"Mount Gilead Baptist Church, the friendly church where the soul and spirit meet. The church where everybody is somebody. The church extends to members and public a cordial and clarion call to worship with us each week."

The Angelic Choir will be in charge of Sunday evening's services, March 14, at 7. A most dynamic program will be sponsored by this group.

Let us continue to pray for, go by and see and call those who are ill. Show them you are concerned about their sick and shut-ins.

Greater Saint Luke Baptist Church

Members of the Eunice Circle will meet in the home of Sister Dora Robinson this evening, Thursday, at seven.

Mission Two, Junior Mission and Brotherhood Union meets each Monday evening at the church at eight. All members are encouraged to attend their respective meetings.

Prayer meeting is held each Wednesday evening at eight. Go to God in prayer, knowing that through Him all things are possible. No challenge in life is too great, for through God all things are accomplished.

Our first quarter business meeting was held Monday evening of this week. A most successful meeting was reported.

Confession—We confess our little faults only to persuade others that we have on great ones.

Let us continue to pray for and visit our sick and shut-in members. Those on the sick and shut-in list include Sisters Dolly Howard at home, Lillie Hall at home, Ellen Tillman at home, and Daisy Deo. Sister Marilyn is also ill at home.

New Hope Baptist Church

The West Texas District Executive Board will be held with the St. John Baptist Church in Odessa, Texas, Rev. L.H. Hall pastor, March 16 through 18. Let us make plans to attend and see that all departments are represented.

National Youth Week will be observed March 14 through 21. All directors are asked to blend your forces and make this a profitable week for our youth.

Federation of Choirs Anniversary will be observed Sunday, March 28, at 2:30 p.m. Lyons Chapel Baptist Church is host for the month and services will be held at the Greater St. Luke Baptist Church. Let us all make plans to give our support and attendance.

Youth Sunday will be observed Sunday, March 14, with Rev. Armond Brown of Bishop College, Dallas, Texas, serving as guest speaker. This is a powerful young man in the ministry and we are asking all members to be present and give your support.

Remember the sick and shut-in. Those on the sick list include Ms. Callie Cato, Ms. Pearl Baker, Ms. Minnie Walker, Wanda Jean Hannah, Brother Willie Johnson, Rev. I.M. Woodard, Brother Clem Virden, Ms. James Emma Knighten, and Ada Evans.

Mount Vernon United Methodist Church

Services were well attended last Sunday morning with our pastor, Rev. Nathaniel Johnson, delivering the morning message.

After services on Sunday, March 21, dinner will be served in fellowship hall. The Methodist men are inviting all of the members to come and fellowship.

On Sunday, March 21, members of the Pioneer United Methodist and Wesley United Methodist Churches will worship with us. Rev. Ralph Brown will bring the message at 11 a.m. On Palm Sunday, our congregation will worship at Pioneer with our pastor, Rev. Johnson, bringing the morning message.

Prayer meeting is held on Friday evenings from 6 to 7 p.m. Will you come for a wonderful fellowship and Bible study?

Twentieth & Birch Street Church of Christ

The teacher for the month of March for the Ladies Bible Class is Sister Mattie McGee. All sisters are expected to make an effort to attend these classes.

If you haven't filled out one of the purpose forms that have been in circulation for the past weeks, then please see Brother Joe Brown and Brother Walters. This information is needed so we may complete the 1976 directory.

Sister Linda Johnson, 240 Cherry Avenue, placed her membership with us last week.

The sick and shut-in list this week include Sisters Irma Cole, Ella Williams, and Rosetta Jackson. Brother T.E. Ray is still ill. May God's grace and goodness insure these members' speedy recovery. May each passing day bring them better health and good cheer.

Lamb Lectures Mayor . . .

Continued From Page One contacted would participate. "It will enable us to eliminate one level of bureaucracy in dealing with Washington," he said of the plan.

County Judge Rod Shaw said he wanted government programs to come through the state because of "a more receptive ear" on the state level.

But the most vocal opponent to the plan was Arch Lamb who told the mayor that "people shouldn't have to go farther than their courthouse or city hall."

"It will destroy the structure of our system of government," he said.

Bass told the commissioner that the money they receive from TDCA "was not just a pass through from Washington. They have their own requirements added on."

Lamb replied that when the city, county, and SPAG began having trouble with TDCA, they should have gone to Austin together "to straighten out the state mess."

"Where we're bogging down in TDCA," the mayor said, "is dealing with a whole level of unelected officials."

He asked the county to try the program for a year.

Judge Rod Shaw attributed the opposition to the plan as "anxieties in changing traditional roles."

The commissioners took no action on the proposal.

It takes a smark politician to be on both sides of a hot issue but there are some boys who can turn the trick.

Self-satisfied is not necessarily self-righteous.
