Hate Crime? Two White Men Arrested For Allegedly Shooting 5 Blacks in Tulsa, Oklahoma

Tulsa, OK — Police backed by a helicopter arrested two men early Sunday and said they would face murder charges in the recent shootings that terrorized Tulsa's black community and left three people dead and two others critically wounded.

Police spokesman Jason Willingham said the two men were arrested at a home just north of Tulsa about 2 a.m. Sunday and were expected to be charged with three counts of first-degree murder and two counts of shooting with intent to kill in the spate of shootings early Friday. He said police made the arrests after receiving an anonymous tip.

While police identified the men as white and all the victims are black, authorities have not described the shootings as racially motivated and declined to discuss that issue Sunday.

The killer did not utter slurs before blasting his victims with a small-caliber handgun, said investigators, who are trying to learn if the same weapon was used in each attack.

But, police did not rule out the possibility of a hate-fueled rampage.

"If that's where our investigation takes us, that's where we'll go," Willingham told The Post.

Community leaders, however, expressed concern about the motivation for the shootings on Tulsa's predominantly black north side, as well as the possibility that they would provoke a vigilante response. The Rev. Warren Blakney Sr., president of the Tulsa NAACP, said Sunday that word of the arrests had provided a great sense of relief. "The community once again can go about its business without fear of there being a shooter on the streets on today, on Easter morning," he said.

Police said they linked the shootings because they happened about the same time within a few miles of each other, and all five victims were out walking when they were shot. Four of the victims were found in yards, and one in the street.

Police have said they don't believe the victims knew one another. They identified those killed as Dannaer Fields, 49, Bobby Clark, 54, and William Allen, 31. They declined to name those who survived.

"There obviously still is a lot of investigation" ahead, Willingham said Sunday. "We don't have a motive at this time. We are still asking questions and hopefully that will become clear in coming days."

He identified the men in custody as Jake England, 19, and Alvin Watts, 32, but gave no hometowns for them. He said they were taken early Sunday for questioning at a downtown Tulsa police station, where they would be booked and jailed. More details would be provided at an afternoon news conference, he said.

It was not clear early Sunday whether the men had attorneys. Tulsa police had at least two dozen officers investigating the case, along with the FBI, the U.S. Marshals Service and other agencies. A special operations team and a fugitive operations group helped make the arrests, Willingham said. He did know whether the men were armed when they were taken into custody.

After receiving a tip, police found the men at one spot and then followed them as they walked to another place about a half-mile away, where they were arrested, he said.

"We've been on them since early in the evening (of Saturday)," Willingham said. "We had been doing surveillance and using a helicopter."

Tulsa Police Chief Chuck Jordan said Saturday that police would do whatever it took to apprehend suspects in what he called vicious and cowardly attacks.

The shootings took place within three miles in Tulsa's mostly black north side.

At 1:03 a.m., the gunman shot Dannaer Fields, 49, police said. She was rushed to the hospital where she died.

Three minutes later, he fired at two unidentified men, hitting one in the arm and the other in the torso.

They were hospitalized in critical condition, but are expected to live, said cops.

Before 2 a.m., Bobby Clark, 54, was shot dead, also in the torso.

A fifth victim, William Allen, 31, was discovered in the yard of a funeral home at about 8:30 a.m., police said. He had also taken a fatal shot to the torso.

"We assume that a [fifth] shooting occurred in the same time frame as the last four," said Willingham.

Fields was found on Charles Shoemaker's front lawn. Shoemaker said he didn't hear any commotion before the bloodshed.

"I was awoken by my dog making a bunch of noise around one-fifteen," said Shoemaker, 43. "I opened my front door and there's a police officer."

"I didn't even believe when he told me there was a body on my front yard so I came out."

"It looked like she was laying balled up in the fetal position," he said.

Cathy Privette, one of Fields' neighbors, said she saw the shooting. Continue on Page 9

anything can tell you that cut the Medicare cost

Now, that Trayvon Martin's killer has given himself up to the authorities and has been arrested, one would think that the controversies would end, but that has not happened. Regardless to how this is played out, it will go down in history as a landmark case, one way or another. There are too many issues involved.

One of the greatest issues at hand in this case is the "Stand Your Ground Laws." The basic tenet involved here was the issue to give a citizen the right to defend his own home. The right to defend your own home is granted in The U. S. CONSTITUTION in Amendment IV, wherein "...one has the right to be secure in their person, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures."

Coupled with the idea of having the right to secure one's home, supporters of the National Rifle Association, hinge Amendment II onto Amendment IV implying that the right to bear arms is implied in the right to secure one's home. The problem in the Martin case is the fact that neither the victim nor the killer was at 'home.' At that particular point, neither had ground to stand on and it appeared from all that has been said and done, that Trayvon tried to run from Zimmerman, thereby giving Zimmerman no ground to declare self-defense.

Regardless to who called 911, it is indicated as a fact that Mr. Zimmerman refused to follow the directions of the 911 operator when told not to follow Trayvon. He followed him anyway and shot him. Had he been attacked as he has allegedly stated, he knew that the boy was not armed even though he himself was. If Trayvon attacked him, he probably had cause.

Any normal individual who is 'stalked' at night, by a stranger would try to get away from him and if accosted, try to defend one's self and if necessary, run to get away from the stalker. By all means possible, it would seem that any person given the authority to be a neighborhood watch, would do just that, watch. If an individual was seen doing something wrong or really weird, call the authorities while watching. A person doing weird or unusual things could be dangerous. This particular situation could have gone the other way. Mr. Zimmerman could have been killed had the person he accosted been an adult also armed with a fire arm. The other person may have 'stood his ground.' The headlines could have been, "Black Man Kills Neighborhood Watcher."

It is going to be interesting to see if this case is heard by a judge or a jury. The way Mr. Zimmerman was acquitted by the police puts the case in a judge's domain, but it could go either way. Hopefully, they will get 'in cinque' and let justice rule.

The Peoples' Enemy - Poverty Industrial Complex

It's time for us to figure this all out. A giant scourge is in our pockets draining us of our precious money. Our federal income tax revenue amounts to trillions of dollars. Yet, there is an evil system out there that "sucks" at a trillion of those dollars from us in various ways. You hear about the Military Industrial Complex which reaps its federal dollars from the federal Departments of Defense, Energy, NASA and others. But few of you realize the activities of the Poverty Industrial Complex. Some critics refer to these activities as "Poverty Pimping" but do not look at its origins or what makes it exist and, in fact, continually grow.

Poverty is real big business. The more people we have living under poverty; the more money is made from the benefactors of other peoples' misery. The federal agencies that oversee these activities include the Departments of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Health and Human Services, Labor, Justice and Agriculture. Silent and important partners are the drug industry and illegal immigration which creates despair, violence and poverty in many communities and also feed our prison systems and jails with 20% of all the incarcerated people in the world. These prisoners create a high demand for tax paid law enforcement and judicial people. They also leave behind families who will be dependent on tax funded welfare entities just to live and be housed. No one in the Poverty Industrial Complex wants to decrease poverty or even stabilize it. They want it increased and out of control. That means more money. People in poverty are indeed "CASH COWS".

Let me go through just one example of how this Poverty Industrial Complex works. The US Department of HUD gets about $50 billion a year of your federal tax dollars. Most of this money is distributed to your communities via Community Development Block Grants and housing money known as HOME and HOPE VI which is used via public housing, Section 8 certificates and low cost housing. All of this money is subject to Section 3 of the HUD Act (24CFR Part 135). Section 3 says that 30% of all new jobs coming from HUD funding should be given to people living in public housing or under the poverty level. 10% of all contracts coming from this HUD money should go to Section 3 businesses (firms that hire these Section 3 residents).

essence, millions of new jobs for people living in poverty and billions of dollars in contracts going to the businesses that hire them every year. Sounds beautiful right? There is one big problem - it is not enforced! No recipient of HUD money enforces this poverty eliminator. Thus, the poverty grows.

Section 3 was created back in 1968 by HUD Secretary George Romney (Mitt Romney's father) as an answer to street violence in Black neighborhoods such as the 1965 Watts Riot. It was strengthened in 1993 by HUD Secretary Jack Kemp after the Rodney King Riots. That is 53 years of missed opportunity. Administrations after administrations have come and gone without even chipping away at poverty via Section 3 of the HUD Act. Let me give you a living example.

The Chicago Housing Authority is a typical example of non-compliance of Section 3.

Evicted 101-Year Old Grandmother Gets Her Home Back

Detroit, MI – Baking cookies never seemed as sweet for 101-year-old Texana Hollis as it did on Wednesday, when she tearfully was allowed back into the home her husband bought after World War II following her eviction seven months ago.

Foreclosure initially forced Hollis from the home where she'd spent six decades of her life, then federal officials wouldn't let her move back in because of its dilapidated condition. That's when Detroit Free Press columnist Mitch Albom and his charity stepped in, and convinced volunteers and businesses to do the same.

"God bless everyone who had a hand in this," Hollis said, tears swelling in her eyes, after she re-entered the home.

One of her first tasks: Trying out the new stove to bake sugar and chocolate chip cookies, which she lifted off a tinfoil-covered baking sheet using a new spatula and carefully placed into a tin.

Albom and his charities helped renovate Hollis' house after buying it from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Albom spent $30,000 - much of it out of his own pocket - on the project, and more than 100 volunteers spent months putting in new flooring, drywall, appliances and even a portion of the roof.

"I promised Texana that all she has to do is just stay alive and give us another 101 years," he said after pushing Hollis up a newly constructed wheelchair ramp and into the gleaming home. "She will never lose this house again."

When asked about the changes inside the house, where rooms were painted in soft shades of blue, green and yellow and decorated with welcoming bouquets of flowers, he jokingly answered: "It would probably be easier to tell you what's old."

Hollis was evicted Sept. 12 and her belongings placed outside after her son failed to pay property taxes linked to a reverse mortgage. HUD foreclosed on the home. Two days later, the federal agency said she could return - but then blocked her from moving in after an assessment determined the house was unsanitary and unsafe.

Hollis' son took out the reverse mortgage for the $32,000 assessed value of the property, an option that HUD permits for the elderly. HUD took control of the mortgage after the amount paid to the family exceeded the value of the house in 2006.

Nedal Tamer, whose construction business did much of the work, said the structure was in "terrible" condition but underwent a successful remodeling thanks to many businesses and individuals who stepped up. Guardian Alarm, for example, installed security and medical monitoring systems for free that typically cost around $750.

The result was emotional for everyone who watched as the happy centenarian returned to her home.

"God is so good," said Hollis, who is now looking forward to her next big day: Her 102nd birthday next month.

George Zimmerman Makes First Court Appearance; Remains In Jail

Sanford, FL -- Neighborhood watch volunteer George Zimmerman made his first court appearance Thursday on a second-degree murder charge in the shooting death of Trayvon Martin, as a court document provided new details on the prosecution's case.

During the brief appearance, Zimmerman stood up straight, looked straight ahead and wore a gray prison jumpsuit. He spoke only to answer "Yes, sir," twice after he was asked basic questions about the charge against him and his attorney.

His hair was shaved down to stubble and he had a thin goatee, which appeared consistent with his booking photo from the day before. He had resurfaced Wednesday to turn himself in after weeks in hiding.

Judge Mark E. Herr said he found probable cause to move ahead with the case and that an arraignment would be held on May 29 before another judge. At a press conference following the court appearance, Zimmerman's attorney Mark O'Mara said he will seek a bond hearing "in the next few weeks." Zimmerman is expected to enter a not guilty plea. O'Mara said he was working on finding a place Zimmerman could safely stay if he is released before trial.

The affidavit of probable cause prepared by prosecutors shed some light on why they chose to charge Zimmerman. The Orlando Sentinel said it had obtained a copy before it was expected to be filed with the courthouse.

The newspaper says that Martin's mother identified screams heard in the background of a 911 call as her son's. There had been some question as to whether Martin or Zimmerman was the one calling for help.

Prosecutors also interviewed a friend of Martin's who was talking to him just before the shooting. The affidavit says Martin told the witness he was being followed and was scared.

Martin tried to run home, the affidavit says, but was followed by Zimmerman: "Zimmerman got out of his vehicle and followed Martin."

The affidavit says that "Zimmerman disregarded the police dispatcher" who told him to stop, and "continued to follow Martin who was trying to return to his home."

Speaking to reporters after the hearing, O'Mara said he was concerned that the case up to now has been handled in the public eye, with details coming out in piecemeal fashion.

"It's really supposed to happen in the courtroom," O'Mara said, deflecting questions about evidence in the case and his client's mental state.

"He's tired," O'Mara said when asked about Zimmerman's condition. "He's gone through some tribulations of his own, being the focus of the intensity of this event. ... He's facing second degree murder charges now. He's frightened. That would frighten any one of us."

Prosecutors face steep hurdles to win a second-degree murder conviction against Zimmerman, experts say.

Zimmerman was charged after a public campaign to make an arrest in the shooting that galvanized the nation for weeks. Now the prosecutor and her team will have to prove Zimmerman intentionally went after Martin instead of shooting him in self-defense, to refute arguments that a Florida law empowered him to use deadly force.

Zimmerman, 28, turned himself in at a county jail Wednesday after prosecutor Angela Corey announced the charge in the Feb. 26 shooting of the 17-year-old that set off a nationwide debate about racial profiling and the rights to self-defense.

O'Mara, said on "CBS This Morning" Thursday that he plans to seek his client's release on bond because Zimmerman posed no flight risk.

"We just need to sort of take it one day at a time," O'Mara told co-hosts Erica Hill, Gayle King and Charlie Rose.

On Wednesday, O'Mara said Zimmerman was concerned about getting a fair trial.

"He is a client who has a lot of hatred focused on him. I'm hoping the hatred settles down ... he has the right to his own safety and the case being tried before a judge and jury," O'Mara said.

Trayvon Martin's parents, Sybrina Fulton and Tracy Martin, said on "CBS This Morning" that they were "at ease," "excited" and "overwhelmed" by Zimmerman's arrest.

"I felt a little bit at ease knowing that he had been apprehended, that he had turned himself in," said Tracy Martin, "and knowing that he wouldn't be able to possess a firearm after being arrested any more, knowing that he wouldn't be able to take another 17-year-old's life."

However, Fulton, who has campaigned with the rest of the family for an arrest and prosecution, said she thought the shoot-

LOVE THEM. PROTECT THEM. IMMUNIZE THEM.

Local effort to offer immunizations during National Infant Immunization Week - April 23 to 27

In recognition of National Infant Immunization Week April 23 to 27th, the Shots on Schedule

(S.O.S) Immunization Coalition will offer childhood immunizations for children ages 2 months - 18 years of age on April 24th, at the South Plains Mall.

Through immunization coalition-driven efforts local attempts like that of SOS, are able to better bring awareness and offer opportunities to protect infants and children from vaccine-preventable diseases before age two.

Without diligent efforts to maintain immunization programs, vaccine-preventable diseases will remain a threat to children, worldwide.

This Immunization Event is the first coordinated by SOS, with the goal of offering more opportunities in the future.

It will be held on Tuesday, April 24th, from 2 to 6 p.m., at the South Plains Mall located at Loop 289 and Slide Road, between JC Penney and the Pretzel Maker. The cost for the immunizations are $10 for one vaccine and $15 for two or more vaccines. Medicaid and CHIP Cards must be presented at time of service. Fully insured children are not eligible for state supplied vaccine.

Asked on NBC's "Today" what she would say to Zimmerman face-to-face, Fulton said she wanted an apology, then added: "I believe it was an accident. I believe that it just got out of control and he couldn't turn the clock back." She did not say more about how she thinks the shooting happened.

Legal experts said Corey chose a tough route with the murder charge, which could send Zimmerman to prison for life if he's convicted, over manslaughter, which usually carries 15-year prison terms and covers reckless or negligent killings.

must be presented at time of service. Fully insured children are not eligible for state supplied vaccine.

A COMPLETE SHOT RECORD IS REQUIRED AT THE TIME IMMUNIZATIONS ARE REQUESTED. IMMUNIZATIONS WILL NOT BE GIVEN IF A SHOT RECORD IS NOT PRESENTED.

National Infant Immunization Week (NIIW) is an annual observance to highlight the importance of protecting infants from vaccine-preventable diseases and celebrate the achievements of immunization programs and their partners in promoting healthy communities. Since 1994, NIIW has served as a call to action for parents, caregivers, and healthcare providers to ensure that infants are fully immunized against 14 vaccine-preventable diseases.

The SOS Immunization Coalition was formed locally to increase awareness and general knowledge and to raise immunization rates in the community. The focus of the coalition is to encourage a Medical Home, ImmTrac, Immunization in general, and a Lubbock-Wide awareness initiative.

The prosecutors must prove Zimmerman's shooting of Martin was rooted in hatred or ill will and counter his claims that he shot Martin to protect himself while patrolling his gated community in the Orlando suburb of Sanford. Zimmerman's lawyers would only have to prove by a preponderance of evidence - a relatively low legal standard - that he acted in self-defense at a pretrial hearing to prevent the case from going to trial.

There's a "high likelihood it could be dismissed by the judge even before the jury gets to hear the case," Florida defense attorney Richard Hornsby said.

NAACP Statement on the American Legislative Exchange Council Announcement

Baltimore, MD – NAACP President and CEO Benjamin Todd Jealous made the following statement on the decision by the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC) to discontinue their Public Safety and Elections Task Force:

"We are encouraged that the nationwide campaign by civil rights advocates has forced ALEC to rethink its voter suppression and criminal protection work, but we know that for so many Americans, the damage has already been done," said Jealous. "This year, because of ALEC, millions of voters who had been eligible to vote in 2008 will be denied access to the ballot box. We may never know how many families will be denied justice because of the 'stand your ground' laws that continue to put communities in danger, or how many families will be torn apart under repressive anti-immigrant laws."

ALEC has drafted hundreds of model bills, resolutions, and policy statements, disseminating them in state legislatures around the country. Their model bills formed the basis of the Voter-ID laws enacted in several states and the stand-your-ground legislation that gained national notoriety in the wake of the Trayvon Martin murder, in addition to anti-immigrant legislation like Alabama's HB 56.

Jealous continued, "ALEC came to this decision after enough of their corporate sponsors, many of whom have been strong advocates of civil rights and public safety in the past, were made aware of their anti-democratic activities and dropped their support.

neighbors, said the victim was deeply religious. "I would give her rides to church," Privette, 54, said.

She added that Fields, who lived alone, was always dressed as if she was headed to Sunday Mass.

Residents of the north side fear an armed bigot is roaming the streets.

"We're all nervous," said Renaldo Works, 52, who was getting his hair cut at a salon yesterday morning.

"I've got a 15-year-old, and I'm not going to let him out late," Works added. "People are scared."

More than a half-dozen citizens have sued the city, claiming wrongful arrest, and almost 40 people have had convictions overturned or sentences cut in a federal corruption probe of the Tulsa police.

"The police chief has assured me they are doing all they can," Blakney added. "We don't want anybody else hurt, white or black."

Shoemaker, one of the few white people living in the neighborhood, said he feared being targeted for retribution.

"I'm always armed," he warned. "I'm more inclined to carry now," he said, although he concedes he doesn't have a concealed weapons permit.

Smith Temple Community Church Celebrates 24th Church Annivarsary

The members of the Smith Temple Community Church, 6508 Avenue P, celebrated their 24th Church Anniversary last Sunday afternoon, April 15, 2012. Guest speaker was Rev. Ruby N. Price, pastor of Mt. Zion Baptist Church of Crosbyton, Texas.

It was Sunday, February 14, 1988, the doors of Smith Temple Community Church opened with a vision imagined by the late Rev. Edwin Scott: "A New Beginning."

Rev. D. A. Smith announced his calling to the ministry at the tender age of 11 years and preached his first sermon at 11 years of age. He later became a pastor at Olive Chapel AME Church in the Jackson Community east of Tyler, Texas under the leadership of the late Presiding Elder Fraizer Thomas at the age of 18 years.

Rev. Edwin Scott was the long member of Bethel AME Church of Lubbock who began his ministry there under the leadership of the late Rev. A. W. Wilson. Rev. Scott's first appointment was to the Gospel Chapel AME Church of Slaton, Texas.

Rev. Smith served as pastor of Bethel AME Church in 1985.

In January 1988, during the period of the Martin Luther King, Jr. Celebration, a day of darkness appeared in the lives of many when Rev. Smith received a certified letter from the Presiding Elder appointing him to another AME Church.

A group of members stood with him and next was history. The establishment of Smith Temple Community Church, beginning in Jamison's Funeral Home. This was the celebration on Sunday, 24 years.

Beyond The Rehortic

I have just received a copy of an audit done by HUD on this housing authority, dated January 5, 2012 (Oh I know they are upset that I have this). In the audit it is determined that CHA for the fiscal years of 2008, 2009 and 2010 had received $1.3 billions dollars in HUD funding and had not delivered one contract to a Section 3 business nor hired one Section 3 resident. That is a rip off of $130 million (10%) and over 13,000 new jobs for the residents of CHA. Oh what this money and job growth could have done for the housing residents and local businesses. It would be a game changer and the fact that it is the law and not enforced is the biggest tragedy of all. Poverty would decrease and the quality of life in our neighborhoods would be increasing. However, the Poverty Industrial Complex forbids this and will not let it happen.

HUD will write up noncompliance reports on these entities but nothing happens beyond that. They won't enforce the law nor cease funding noncompliant entities which is just about all of them. Case in point: The city of Jacksonville, Florida was found noncompliant back in 1993. It is now 2012 and they still are non-compliant and HUD just looks at them and keeps providing annual funding. Congressional Black Caucus Offers Resolution To Honor Trayvon Martin Nationwide -- Democratic members of the Congressional Black Caucus have introduced legislation to honor Trayvon Martin, an unarmed Florida teenage who was fatally shot in February by a neighborhood watch volunteer, and to urge the repeal of a controversial Florida gun law blamed in his death.

The non-binding resolution, dated March 30, also calls for "involved parties to pursue full investigations into all homicides, regardless of defenses asserted by the offender."

"His death is a tragedy that should not have happened, and it speaks to the reality that racial profiling still exists in America," said Rep. Frederica Wilson of Florida, who is listed as one of four principal sponsors of the resolution.

Trayvon, 17, who was black, was shot and killed Feb. 26 while walking through a gated community in Sanford, Fla. His accused killer, George Zimmerman, who has a Hispanic mother and a white father, told police he acted in self-defense and hasn't been arrested or charged.

Black Caucus members blamed Florida's "Stand Your Ground Law," which gives people wide latitude to use deadly force rather than retreat during a fight.

"Florida's misguided 'Stand Your Ground' law does not make our streets safer, rather it turns our streets into a showdown at the OK Corral. But this is not the Wild West," Rep. Alcee L. Hastings of Florida, another sponsor of the bill. "George Zimmerman must be prosecuted for his admitted shooting of Trayvon Martin and the 'Stand Your Ground' law must be repealed."

Trayvon was coming from a convenience store where he bought Skittles and iced tea and was talking to his girlfriend on the phone moments before the shooting, records show.

A neighborhood watch volunteer called the police to say he saw someone in a hooded sweatshirt who looked high on drugs and was suspicious because he walked too slowly in a gated community.

Congressional Black Caucus Chairman Emanuel Cleaver II of Missouri and Rep. Corrine Brown of Florida also sponsored the bill. It's uncertain whether the resolution will make it to the floor for a vote in the Republican-led chamber
