City-Wide Collection Campaign Begun

Spring is in the air and once again it's time to think about spring cleaning. This year there's no excuse for not donating your used clothing to a worthy cause in Lubbock. Camp Fire Council in conjunction with Goodwill Industries is sponsoring a city-wide collection campaign called "Hello Dollies."

"Hello Dollies" combines the efforts of the two United Way agencies, Camp Fire Council and Goodwill. Camp Fire members will distribute Goodwill bags in neighborhoods throughout Lubbock. When the bags are filled, members will take them to a central collection site on the parking lot of the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. The collection will take place April 26 from 4 to 6 p.m. and April 27 from 4 to 7 p.m.

Camp Fire members who collect five bags and under will receive a certificate of merit. Those collecting more than five bags will be awarded a Hello Dollies patch along with a certificate.

So start spring off right by cleaning out your closets and donating your used clothing to Camp Fire's "Hello Dollies." For more information call the Camp Fire office at 765-6394.

Perry Clark Named Executive Director of Republican Committee

Perry Clark was named executive director of the East Lubbock Republican Committee last week. He says that he has not been a Republican very long, about six months. "I plan to help support Rev. M.G. Shephard in his bid for State Representative 75-B," he said.

After a short meeting here last week, the East Lubbock Republican Committee was formed. Perry has some deep feelings about inefficient government spending, inflation, and taxes.

He is concerned about the future of the Black man in America. "I feel as though the Democrats as a whole and nation wide are moving in the direction to desert the Black, and this can even be seen in the acts of President Carter," he says.

He feels that although the Republicans have not in the past been very receptive to Black, the mood of the Republican Party towards Blacks is changing, and they are trying to reach the Black minority.

Clark says, "I feel that the Democrats will discard the Blacks and that we need to align ourselves with the Republican Party. I'm not saying that all Blacks should become Republicans, because this is just as ineffective as having all Blacks as Democrats. I still believe in the two party system. This is the best way."

Mr. Clark has talked with former governor John Connally who is vying for the presidential nomination. Clark admits he has not committed himself to any presidential nominee, he admits that he wants the chance to talk to all of them if possible. He says he would like to attend the Republican National Convention.

Clark plans to work very

closely with the county and state Republicans.

He was recently elected to the Community Service Board.

Prepare For Next School Year With Current Immunizations

Now is the time to begin preparing for the next school year. One of the most important preparations is to see that your child has current health immunizations.

Texas state law requires immunizations for all public school students. The student's immunization record must be validated by a doctor's signature or by a clinic. Necessary immunizations are listed below:

1. Diphtheria-Tetanus — three doses required, with the last dose since the fourth birthday, and additional boosters every ten years.
2. Oral Polio—three doses required, with the last dose since fourth birthday.
3. Red Measles (Rubeola)—one dose since the first birthday or a doctor's statement of disease.
4. German Measles (Rubella)—one dose of vaccine
5. Mumps—one dose of vaccine, or doctor's statement of disease, required for first graders or below.

If your child has had these immunizations, please send a record of the dates to school as soon as possible.

Lubbock City Health Department and the Lubbock Public Schools strongly encourage parents to bring immunizations up-to-date immediately. If immunizations or boosters are necessary, these may be obtained from family physicians, the Lubbock City Health Department Clinic, located at 1100 North Avenue Q, or the Well Baby Clinic at 102 Avenue J. Immunization records of any sort should be brought with you to the doctor or clinic.

Lubbock City Health Clinic times are 8:30 a.m.-12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m.-4:00 p.m. Monday and Friday only. The Well Baby Clinic is open on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., and on Thursday, from 6:15 a.m.-2:30 p.m.

Students easily can receive immunizations now and in the early summer. Waiting until August to complete this requirement will mean waiting in lines for long periods of time. No students will be allowed to enroll in the Lubbock Public Schools next year without satisfying the state immunization law.

JACK ANDERSON WITH JOE SPEAR WEEKLY SPECIAL

Carter's Finally Given Gasohol an Overdue Nod
Copyright, 1979, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON—President Carter has revealed to the nation his plan for preventing an energy crisis. His message included a call to increase the production of alcohol fuels.

This is a belated triumph over the oil lobby. For years, we have pointed out that alcohol fuels can be blended with gasoline without changing automobile engines. This would reduce the nation's huge purchases of overseas oil.

But the oil industry has fought the idea. In 1975, the California legislature considered operating a fleet of experimental state-owned cars on alcohol blends. But the oil companies sent witnesses to testify against the project.

The oil men also tried to block Nebraska from producing a 10 percent blend of grain alcohol and gasoline. Nebraska congressmen began receiving quiet calls from representatives of the state's petroleum marketers, urging them to oppose the project.

The oil lobbyists have been even more effective in the backrooms of Washington. At the Energy Department, Secretary James Schlesinger and Assistant Secretary Dale Myers have resisted alcohol fuels. It took congressional pressure to compel them to create a special "alcohol fuels task force" just to study the idea.

At the Agriculture Department, Secretary Bob Bergland refused to authorize the use of idle farm land to produce crops for alcohol fuel. Again, it took Congress to force the Agriculture Department to at least consider the idea.

Last month, we sent a reporter to Brazil to study that country's alcohol fuel program. He found American-owned oil companies marketing alcohol blends. Yet they have refused to develop and sell this mixture in the United States.

In Brazil, the government requires the oil companies to sell alcohol blends to Brazilian motorists. Now, President Carter has finally given alcohol fuels a presidential prod.

An Un-American Tradition: Oil prices may be causing economic havoc and peace may be hanging in the balance in the Middle East. But this month, many Americans are more excited over the opening of the baseball season. In the weeks to come, they will swarm to the ball parks to munch hotdogs and boo the men in blue.

There is truly a national devotion to that small lump of stitched rawhide called a baseball. But we regret to report that this all-American symbol is not made in the United States. It's produced in Haiti, where the climate is balmy and the labor is cheap.

The major sports corporations have closed down most of their factories in the United States and reopened new facilities in Haiti. The biggest names in "American" sporting equipment have set up shop in Haiti's capital city of Port-au-Prince.

One of our reporters visited a typical factory. It sits like a fortress behind concrete walls and barbed wire. Within the building, dozens of women in attractive pink uniforms are engaged in the tedious task of tightly stitching the baseball skins around the cores. By U.S. standards, they are working under sweatshop conditions. But by Haitian standards, they are paid well—$1.60 a day.

Most of the baseball shoes worn by major league players are manufactured in Germany. The Pittsburgh Pirates get their uniforms from Japan. And many ballplayers prefer gloves made in Japan, Puerto Rico or Taiwan.

It's not likely that Abner Doubleday would approve.

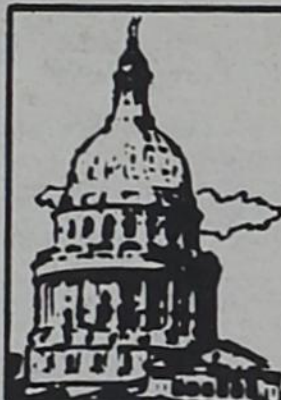

Aid For Amin? The United States may have unwittingly helped Uganda's madcap dictator, Idi Amin. According to our sources, two Boeing 727 jet aircraft were recently spotted at the Nairobi airport in Kenya. U.S. intelligence experts believe the two planes are the same ones which the United States sold to Libya last December. The intelligence officials also believe the planes are being used to ferry supplies and military equipment from Libya to Uganda, whose army is fighting Tanzanian forces.

Libya's strongman, Muammar Qaddafi, apparently appreciated Amin's support of Palestinian terrorists and is showing it by ferrying supplies to Uganda. If this is true, it means that Qaddafi has broken his promise to the United States not to use the 727s for military purposes.

Bureaucratic Overkill: Prior to each fiscal year, federal agencies are asked to estimate their money needs for the coming year. In 1978, the 50 largest budget requests added up to $21 billion more than the agencies actually spent.

This happens because the bureaucrats are afraid the White House budget cutters will never go along with their requests. So, they ask for more money than they need. As it turns out, the budget requests are frequently approved and sent on to Congress. And the bureaucrats end up with excess money which they often feel they must spend in order to avoid a cutback the following year.

Oran Returns: When government officials in Pennsylvania considered an evacuation of the area around the leaking nuclear power plant at Three Mile Island, they called on Oran Henderson. He is the director of the state's emergency management agency, and his name should sound familiar. As U.S. Army Col. Oran Henderson, he was charged and then acquitted of covering up the My Lai massacre during the Vietnam war.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—The Texas Senate passed legislation this week by Sen. Bill Meier of Eules that will alter the Consumer Protection Act. Some say "alter" is not a strong enough word for what the proposed changes will do to the six-year-old consumer law.

Backers of the consumer act had predicted such a seige would happen this session, and when the attack came, proponents of the law, led by Sen. Lloyd Doggett of Austin and Sen. Babe Schwartz of Galveston, vowed to grind the Senate to a halt with filibusters and talkathons.

Doggett claimed Meier's bill would "gut" the consumer law. Schwartz said the proposed changes would tip the scale in favor of the seller and leave the buyer out in the cold.

Despite such charges, Meier easily garnered enough votes to bring up his bill on the Senate floor and when he did, the fight was all but over to save the consumer protection act from becoming what some observers said would be only a ghost of its former self. Lacking enough votes to kill Meier's legislation, opposing senators could only hope to put off the inevitable and maybe squeeze a compromise or two out of Meier and his forces.

Doggett, in his now famous filibuster tennis shoes ("Not sneakers," he said. "It's the sneakers we're after here.") and Schwartz, running on what appeared to be an endless supply of energy, engineered two separate filibusters lasting a total of almost 25 hours.

One talkathon by Doggett was against a measure by Sen. Tom Creighton, not Meier. But Creighton's bill, which eventually passed the Senate, which lets auto dealers add on a $35 charge for getting cars licensed and registered, drew fire from Doggett, Schwartz and others because it too, they felt, like Meier's bill, was spawned by the business lobby and left consumers to fend for themselves.

While each side traded flak over Creighton's bill, senators tried to reach some compromise on the real target of the Doggett-Schwartz filibusters—the consumer protection law.

Some compromises were worked out, but those were called

"cosmetic" by Doggett, who helped write the consumer protection act before ever coming to the Senate, and there were few who disagreed with his appraisal of the compromises reached.

If Meier's bill gets through the House and past the governor's desk, consumers can expect these changes in the law that for the past six years has guaranteed them a redress of their grievances with the business world: 1) consumers would not have the right to bring class action suits, but the attorney general will still have that power, 2) triple damages will no longer be mandatory but up to the judge or a jury, 3) consumers will now have to prove that a businessman knowingly sold them a deceptive product or committed a fraudulent act, and other "alterations."

Meier said his bill "strikes a balance" between consumer and businessman. But Sen. Ron Clower summed up the opposition's feelings when he said: "We don't have a consumer protection act. We have a consumer-fraud act."

In The House

Legislation regulating strip mining of coal, lignite and uranium has glided through the House with so few objections that you would think legislators didn't know Texas was sitting on substantial deposits of those resources.

In fact, by 1985, Texas, already third in uranium reserves, will probably become one of the country's biggest producers of coal and lignite. Deposits stretch from Centerville to Laredo.

Legislators are aware of such facts, and some lawmakers even pointed out that not long ago you couldn't have passed a strip mining bill without lengthy and sometimes heated discussions. But, at this point, legislators appear resigned to the fact that bills pushed by Speaker Bill Clayton and his "team" are for all practical purposes unstoppable. The strip mining bill is only one example.

"I may have been born under a tub, but I wasn't born yesterday," said one lawmaker. "Ten or 25 people can't stop 'em," that same legislator added, speaking specifically about the strip mining legislation muscled through the House by the Clayton forces.

The strip mining bill passed by the House was 80 pages long and some members complained about not having time to thoroughly understand the document. Other lawmakers said it wasn't worth their time or effort to fully understand the piece of legislation and then maybe mount some opposition against it since it was almost a foregone conclusion that Clayton and his supporters would pass the bill and pass it easily.

Short Snorts

Saudi Arabia—one of the world's largest producers of oil—announced this week that it would be cutting back its contribution to the world's oil supply by one million barrels a day. Since demand for oil already almost outstrips supply, Saudi Arabia's decision to reduce production will certainly mean yet another jump in the price of gasoline.

Sometime this week, the House will probably start debate on a general appropriations bill for the state that is already out of committee. The bill carries a $20 million-plus price tag. The legislation, passed by the House Appropriations Committee, trims $70 million from the Legislative Budget Board's spending proposals, and a rider on the bill, initiated by Speaker Clayton, could whack off another 2 percent across-the-board, reducing spending by an additional $400 million.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

Sheridan's Ride must, this time, make an apology for the omission of the last two editions. This was not by choice, believe me, but was the result of an arduous move to a new address, topped with a bout of intestinal influenza brought on by total exhaustion.

But, as all things do in time, things have straightened out and we're back in business. We'll hope it doesn't happen again for a while.

The column makes its return in a week that promises to herald the brightest April weeks in many a moon.

Anticipation runs very high for tonight's opening at the Lubbock Civic Center Theatre of the Texas Tech Music Theatre-Civic Lubbock-Civic Ballet production of Offenbach's gay and colorful, charming and funny operetta, "La Perichole."

Everyone is wrapped into this cast, from the singer-players to student and faculty and townspeople to even the Tech Red Raider football members! And even from a distance (Houston) comes the delightful ballet artists Soili Arvola and Leo Ahonen, no strangers here through their dancing with the Texas Ballet on tour.

I can speak with authority about "Perichole." I fell in love with the piece a number of years back when the Metropolitan Opera presented it on their spring tour in Dallas. It is rich, rife with glorious melody, rollicking with laughter and a total treat for eye and ear.

I know I shouldn't be so critically enthusiastic before I've even seen the show here, but with director-stager John Gillas at the helm and the wealth of talent that we possess in this city and area there simply is simply no way that "La Perichole" can be other than the season's musical theatre treat. The show will be performed at 8 p.m. today through Saturday and, if you'll take my advice, you'll race down to the Civic Center box office as soon as possible and latch onto some tickets. You'll have the time of your life.

The title role is sung by the talented and lovely Sarah Watkins, proven performer of excellence in previous shows, the Viceroy of Peru is done by art leader James Toland and the ballet and dance department of Tech, the orchestra, all are expert.

Forty-eight hours after the final curtain falls on "La Perichole," on that same Lubbock Civic Centre Theatre stage, the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra performs Monday and Tuesday nights (8:15 p.m.) its most popular and glittering concert of any year, the annual Pops Nite. As a special treat this year Conductor William A. Harrod offers as his guest soloist the highly-popular vocalist John Gary.

Now, both concerts have already been sold out, they say, but you might check the Lubbock Symphony business office on Broadway (762-4707) to see if any stray tickets turn up. It's worth trying.

Both these stellar events, "La Perichole" and the Symphony concert pair lead right into the first Lubbock Festival of the Fine Arts, also set for the Civic Center later next week. More about this in our next.

Now for the remainder of this column we'll turn to the movies. A special movie, that is.

As you must know, a little more than a week ago, the 51st annual Academy Awards were handed out in what was again an overlong sometimes tedious show. But it had its excitement. Best Actor went, as was generally conceded to happen, to Jon Voight for his stunning portrayal of the paraplegic Vietnam veteran in "Coming Home." For the first time since Claudette Colbert and Clark Gable took Best leading Oscars for their work as co-stars in the same picture ("It Happened One Night") back in the 1930s, co-stars again shared Best honors. Best actress went to Jane Fonda (her second statuette) for "Coming Home." This exceedingly fine and moving film is again on the Showplace 6 screen and if you haven't seen it, I urge you to do so. It's superb.

Vietnam ruled the order at the Awards ceremony. The Best Picture award went to "The Deer Hunter," with Best Director to its director, the heretofore little known Michael Cimino, and the Best Supporting Actor award went to still another of the "Deer Hunter" cast, young Christopher Walken.

"The Deer Hunter," now being seen at the UA South Plains Mall Cinema 4, is the story of three Pennsylvania mill workers, their involvement in the Vietnam conflict and the conflict's lasting effects on each of them.

The war sequences are brutal but relatively brief in this much-too-long (three hours) film but the intimate experiences in the war involving the three friends are graphic and shocking at times. The analogy of "the hunter becomes the hunted" is adroitly portrayed by the deer hunting proclivities of the three in their home mountains, with the truth scoring late in the film by the deer hunter himself, superbly played by a bearded Robert Di Niro.

Even though the film took an Oscar for Best Editing, it seemed to me that not enough economy was exercised during long passages of this no-intermission three-hour epic; it could have been trimmed here and there to greater effectiveness. But, one must concede, it is a classic film of its kind and deserves to be so.

The cast is uniformly excellent from the three male leads, their women, the large supporting group. Direction, musical score, production values, all speak of the highest concern for expert movie-making.

Personally, my choice for Best Picture would have been the "Coming Home" film, but—that's why they have horse races!

You'll see "The Deer Hunter" along the way, I'm sure. Be prepared for its rough action and dialogue and its gruelling length. And also for its general excellence.

Postal Service to Implement Size Standards for Mail

Size standards for envelopes, cards and other pieces of mail will become effective July 15, the Postal Service announced today, following a Salt Lake City, Utah meeting of its Board of Governors.

The Postal Service's Governors also adopted a recommended 7-cent surcharge for oversized and odd-shaped pieces of mail.

The new size standards were recommended by the Postal Rate Commission in April, 1976 and adopted shortly after that by the Postal Service's Governors. It was stipulated that they would not become effective until after the spring of 1978, giving customers at least two years to prepare for the change and exhaust their supplies of non-conforming envelopes and cards.

The Governors directed that both the surcharge and new minimum size standards become effective on the same date.

This means that after July 15, pieces will be non-mailable if they are less than 3½ inches high, 5 inches long, or seven thousandths (.007) of an inch thick.

Subject to the 7-cent surcharge will be first-class mail weighing one ounce or less and single piece third-class mail of two ounces or less that exceed any of these dimensions: 6-1/8 inches high; 11½ inches long, or ¼ inch thick.

Also subject to the surcharge are odd-shaped pieces within the weight units noted above. The acceptable size ratio for such pieces is: the length must be between 1.3 times and 2.5 times the height.

There are two basic reasons for the new standards. The surcharge on oversized and odd-shaped pieces will reflect the extra costs of handling them. Because of their dimensions, they usually cannot be put through letter sorting machines. The upcoming prohibition on smaller mailing pieces and flimsy cards is based on the fact that they can become trapped in other mail, tear and jam mail processing machinery. And, as a result, other mail can be damaged.

There are some exceptions to the minimum-size prohibition. If a piece is more than one-fourth of an inch thick it does not have to measure at least 3½ inches high or 5 inches long. Thicker pieces, such as film mailers, can be mechanically culled from the "river" of letter mail moving through a post office's facing and cancelling equipment. Also exempted—from all but the minimum thickness standard—are keys, identification cards and tags. Film cartridge envelopes, if lightweight, will be subject to the surcharge.

Tax Relief Measures Ordered For Tornado Victims

AUSTIN, Tex.—State Comptroller Bob Bullock Thursday ordered tax relief measures for tornado victims in the Wichita Falls and Vernon area.

"Residents in that tornado-ravaged area are too busy pulling their lives together to have to worry about meeting state tax deadlines," Bullock said.

"Many businesses simply do not have records because they were destroyed in the devastation that hit on Tuesday and they need all the help and assistance we can give."

Bullock said he intends to waive any penalty or interest payment on late returns from businesses and individuals affected by the tornado.

He also said that in the coming weeks his office resources will be made available to those merchants who want to reconstruct business and tax records from data on file in Austin.

Bullock also advised Wichita Falls-Vernon residents to disregard computer-generated tax delinquency notices until recovery is made in the area.

"The last thing someone who lost a home or a loved one needs now is a due notice from the tax collector. These folks deserve the biggest break they can get and I'm going to give it to them," he said.

A special tax task force was activated in the Comptroller's Office to provide continuing help to tornado victims on tax-related problems and that representatives of the Comptroller's Office would be in the tornado-damaged area in the coming weeks.

A preliminary survey by the Comptroller's Office revealed that more than 300 businesses were destroyed or severely damaged in Wichita Falls—some 60 in one shopping center alone.

Ringling the Bell . . .

with Bob Tieuel

The Black Experience: All-black Town in Oklahoma (Taft) Has Redd Fox in Doghouse. Barry Paul Wright, an Oklahoma Senate aide whose ouster has been sought because of revelations about his past, recently raised a tempest in this Muskogee County all black town when he seized the town's two police cars saying he was doing so as a representative of comedian Redd Foxx.

The incident drew complaints to the district attorney's office from Mayor Lela Foley, a woman, who said it means a final end to Taft's on-again, off-again friendship with Foxx, the nightclub entertainer of "Sanford and Son" television fame. Foxx, who donated the vehicles to the town, can take both the cars and keep them, the mayor said.

Ms. Foley said Wright came to Taft recently and "took away the police cars with a tow truck" over the protests of Taft Chief of Police Kermit Thomas. Wright said Redd Foxx had told him to take the vehicles to have them repaired.

Ms. Foley quoted Wright as telling the police chief that Foxx wanted to repair the police cars because as Foxx said, "Lela Foley isn't going to win the election, and we want to get the town going again."

In a series of long distance telephone calls to Mayor Foley and other Taft officials, we were unable to contact anyone in time to meet this column's deadline for this week's edition, but we know that Foxx served as honorary chief of police at Taft for sometime and the title was rescinded by Taft's officials about a year ago. Titles to the police cars were never given to Taft officials, the woman mayor said.

Foxx came to Taft in November 1974 and presented a check for $10,000 to the all-black town which he said was to help build a swimming pool for youngsters in the town. Since then officials have had falling outs with the 56 year old comedian, the town claiming the gift was a fraud and claiming Foxx was interfering politically with the town's businesses. And the beat goes on and on.

From Out of the Past: James Marshall Rogers, Jr. or 'Jay' as he was called in 1972, bachelor, intellectual, black, beaming with pride, and America's teacher of the year then, in an awards program sponsored by the Encyclopedia Britannica, the Council of Chief State School Officers and Ladies Home Journal hailed from Durham High in Durham, N.C. once chalked on the blackboard: "I hate niggers ... and crackers. I like people." The students were shocked into silence, then tumbled over each other to talk about it. We call it communications in the classroom. Seven years later, we wonder what "Jay" is doing now. Any bellringers know?

Famous Quotes: "The child who is uneducable does not exist. If he knows you care and love him, he will try to please you to the utmost." Ms. K. Battista, classroom teacher. (Palisades Park, N.J.)

On the K.C. Mo. Election

By now, a great number of bellringers know that City Councilman Richard Berkley defied the odds and became the first Republican mayor in Kansas City, Mo.'s heavily Democratic city since 1925. The 47 year old Jewish businessman was swept into office recently with 58.1 percent of the 128,000 votes cast there. Berkley was a millionaire too. Watkins 55, had finished first in the six man nonpartisan primary Feb. 27, with Berkley winning the Republican primary. Watkins had hoped to become the city's first black mayor.

On the election a bellringer writes: "Dear Bob—I am not ready to concede that this is a racist town, but there are a lot of people in Kansas City, Missouri who openly said on election day and earlier, that 'I am not voting for the n-'. There is still more racial prejudice here than many of us had thought, but we are not ready to label our town as racist because there are too many people of goodwill here who did vote for Bruce Watkins, a long time city councilman and civic leader ... Both Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles and Mayor Maynard Jackson of Atlanta lost the first time that they ran for mayor. Who knows? Maybe it will be a different story four years from now ... Watkins received 25,000 votes outside the black community too." Signed Lucille Bluford, a bellringer from K.C. Mo. Thanks Lucille. We still think that color of skin and money plays a big part in modern day elections, don't you? Until later Peace. Be a good neighbor. They come in all colors.

Dunbar-Struggs and Estacado to View "Previews of Progress"

General Motors "Previews of Progress" is a live, non-commercial science stage show presented as a junior and senior high school assembly program. It will be seen by Dunbar-Struggs High School students Friday, April 20 at 10 a.m., and by Estacado Senior High School students at 10 a.m. Wednesday, April 18.

The 45-minute program consists of nine research-in-action demonstrations described in non-technical language by a specially trained two-person team of recent college graduates. Previews seeks to inspire more student interest in scientific and engineering careers and related vocational job opportunities. It is also designed to show young people how modern research and industrial innovation benefit our society.

Since 1946, Previews shows have been seen by nearly 40 million students and adults in the United States. Millions more have seen the fast moving show in Canada and about 25 foreign countries, including presentations made overseas in recent years at the request of the U.S.

Department of Commerce. Eight teams of Previews lecturers are now touring the United States with the latest version of the show. This educational and entertaining presentation now includes the following demonstrations:

"Man Made" Molecules—Two novel experiments; synthetic rubber manufactured in a pop bottle in just 60 seconds and a self-baking foam plastic cake, dramatize the story of modern chemistry's contribution to progress.

Talking Computer—The on-going progress in computer technology is emphasized by a computer which simulates the human voice. This electronic synthesizer is a significant alternative to data release through visual print-out.

Air Bearing Platform—A thin film of air nearly eliminates the sliding friction from a platform that can be used to move 1,000 pounds with fingertip ease.

Gyroscope Suitcase—A "misbehaving" suitcase illustrates how modern guidance systems work in today's aircraft, ships, and spacecraft. Future applications of gyroscopic principles are described in this student participant sequence.

Laser—The development and promising future of laser technology is outlined in this demonstration featuring a unique laser projection system which "translates" sounds into moving patterns of light.

Moon Rover—This model of an unmanned lunar roving vehicle shows one method of harnessing the tremendous energy in sunlight. Photovoltaic cells on the 15 inch model convert the light from a 300 watt light bulb into electrical energy.

Air/Water Pollution—Two fast paced demonstrations which show recent developments in this critical field. The progress being made to clean up water used in industrial processes is illustrated by combining two common manufacturing pollutants to produce clean water in one mutually beneficial operation. Current air pollution efforts are depicted by a reaction which traces the basic principles of a catalytic converter.

Gas Turbine Engine—The development and continuing research in vehicular gas turbine design is reviewed in this demonstration of a miniature gas turbine engine.

Scouts Plan Camping Activities

The South Plains Council, Boy Scouts of America, will conduct three important training activities on April 21-22. The three activities are:

1. Outdoor Training Session for all adult leaders of Scout Troops.
2. An overnight training for Webelos Leaders (10 year old members of the Cut Scouts).
3. The Spring Planning Conference for all Explorer Posts in the South Plains Council.

The Outdoor Program Session for Scout Leaders will give those leaders the opportunity to demonstrate and use a variety of practical Scout Craft Skills, train them in how to teach the skills learned to their Scouts and identify how the outdoor program fits into the overall Scouting program. It is estimated that 100 leaders will participate in this training.

The Webelos Leader Training Session will be aimed at program planning and outdoor program for Webelos Scouts. The session will begin Saturday morning and last through Sunday morning.

The Explorer Planning Conference will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday morning, and is designed to give high school age Explorers the opportunity for involvement in the planning of activities for the coming year. The Planning Conference will also include a period of time devoted to Explorer Goofy Games (Fun Olympics).

All of these activities are being planned and coordinated by volunteer Scouters. Rev. Charles Taylor is the Leadership Training Chairman for the South Plains Council, Henry Hossom will be in charge of the Webelos Leader Overnighter, and Rev. Bob Nicholson is the Exploring Vice President for the Council and will provide leadership to the Explorer Planning Conference.

The South Plains Council, B.S.A., is a United Way Agency serving 20 counties in the South Plains.

San Marino, a country surrounded by Italy, is said to be the world's oldest and smallest republic.
