NAACP Commemorates May 17 — 25th Anniversary of Supreme Court's Outlawing Segregated Public Schools

New York, N.Y.? In the middle of May, the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, popularly known as LDF, commemorates the 25th anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court decision in Brown v. Board of Education, ruling racial segregation in the nation's public school unconstitutional. The 25th Anniversary Program held in conjunction with Howard University School of Law and Columbia University's Center for the Study of Human Rights will concentrate public attention on specific areas of American life where racial discrimination still continues and will examine the effect America's racial experience has had in other countries.

LDF is bringing together hundreds of the nation's foremost attorneys, legal scholars, educators, and civil rights leaders as well as black and white representatives of the governments of Great Britain, South Africa, and representatives from the Sudan, Tanzania and India for a four-day program being held in New York and Washington, D.C., beginning May 14th.

A day-long meeting at the Columbia University Law School in New York on May 14 examined the status of human rights in South Africa, India, and East and West African nations. Among the speakers were Bayard Rustin, Judge William S. Thompson of the District of Columbia Superior Court, Director-Counsel Jack Greenberg of the Legal Defense Fund, and Soli Sorabjee of the High Court of India.

Three days of conferences at Howard University Law School in Washington, D.C. on May 15, 16 and 17 deal with education and employment discrimination and with the special problems of black women. Vernon E. Jordan, Jr., Dorothy Height, Andrew Brimmer, and Dr. Kenneth Clark are among the dozens of noted speakers.

A highlight of the Washington sessions were two special events on Tuesday, May 15 honoring lawyers and plaintiffs who participated in the Brown v. Board of Education cases that culminated in the May 17, 1954 Supreme Court decision.

Despite the gains that the Legal Defense Fund's lawyers have won in thousands of lawsuits for establishing rights to equal treatment in education, employment, voting, and access to public accommodations, many areas of injustice persist. Backlash against earlier victories is seen in new cases being brought to court that claim "reverse discrimination" against whites.

The 1978 Bakke decision, in which a 5 to 4 Supreme Court threw out the University of California at Davis's preferential quotas for minority students, attracted wide public attention. Other, less publicized cases challenge affirmative action programs that affect hiring and promotion practices.

As job markets tighten, court challenges against companies and unions seeking to overcome the longstanding penalties suffered by minority workers have increased. The 1977 Supreme Court decision in International Brotherhood of Teamsters v. United States threatens to lock an entire older generation of black employees into an inferior, poorly paid underclass. Its main point was that established seniority systems may have kept black workers few and low on the lists, but they did not intend to do so. Proof of deliberate attempt is difficult.

The suit of Brian Weber—now pending decision, after argument before the Supreme Court—against Kaiser Aluminum, the United Steelworkers, and the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission could stifle those affirmative action programs that corporations and unions begin voluntarily. If the Teamsters decision is allowed to stand without modification, any company or union that is required to admit to previous racial discrimination opens up broad invitations to be sued.

Job discrimination in public employment at federal, state, and local levels is a major Legal Defense Fund concern today. The Fund has won a series of fundamental court decisions compelling the Civil Service Commission to permit class actions on behalf of minority employees who are victims of long entrenched discrimination in the federal employment service. Twenty such suits now seek redress for past discrimination. These affect tens of thousands of black, Hispanic, and other minority workers.

Hundreds of thousands of middle-level civil service jobs hinge on the discriminatory PACE (Professional & Administrative Career Examination) tests. Disclosure of experience in a case the Fund is working on showed that on the West Coast, while 15% of white applicants pass the tests, only one percent of blacks and no Hispanics received passing grades.

In the state and municipal civil services, LDF is pressing 27 suits that attack job bias. The survival of affirmative action in Detroit police department hiring and promotion is at stake in two suits in which LDF is representing Mayor Coleman Young and the City of Detroit in efforts to preserve fair hiring policies.

Education, in spite of hundreds of court decisions won since Brown, continued to be segregated in northern cities and in southern public colleges. In the elementary and secondary schools, remaining trouble spots include "tracking" programs that result in segregating black children, arbitrary suspension and expulsion from school, discriminatory treatment of black teachers, racially slanted teaching materials, and the provision of state tuition grants to all-white "desegregation academies."

LDF continues to assist lawyers defending nearly 500 men and three women under death sentence in 25 states. As a result of its victories, based on research that proved the unjust disproportion of death sentences meted out to black defendants, all executions except one (a suicide) have been prevented since 1967.

In the course of these capital punishment cases LDF has repeatedly proved the systematic exclusion of blacks from jury lists, and the exclusion from juries of citizens who disapprove of the death penalty. As a result of Supreme Court decisions in cases brought by the Fund, 35 states have passed new capital punishment legislation to replace the laws declared unconstitutional.

Unless new, successful challenges can be brought against these new statutes, we can expect a new rash of executions. From previous history, a disproportion will be members of minority groups—black, Hispanic, and American Indian.

Prisoners' rights receive vital Legal Defense Fund work. The Legal Defense Fund has long been the only private resource in the United States engaged in comprehensive legal action to remedy conditions in local jails where degradation and brutality are commonplace. After a succession of court victories, the Fund's task now is to make sure that court-ordered changes actually take place.

The June 1978 Supreme Court decision in Finney v. Hutto declared the entire Arkansas prison system unconstitutional. Other cases have won relief in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Tennessee.

Proclamation

Whereas, the United States Supreme Court in its historic 1954 decision in Brown v. Board of Education held that segregation in public education is unconstitutional; and,

Whereas, it served as the catalyst for the shifting of judicial sanctions from that of segregation to desegregation and the elimination of legal barriers to equal opportunities; and,

Whereas, Brown formed the basis for enactment of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 1965 and 1968, thereby providing greater assurance of equal opportunity in employment, equal access to public accommodations, housing and desegregated education; and,

Whereas, there continues to be opposition to desegregation at many levels of life and the momentum of the equality of opportunity in all aspects of public life is decelerated; and,

Whereas, despite the removal of the more overt legal barriers blacks are still faced with resistance to meaningful implementation of these civil rights laws by officials and individuals who publicly profess belief in the spirit and the letter of the law as pronounced in Brown; and,

Whereas, this is the 25th anniversary of Brown v. Board of Education.

We hereby proclaim May 17, 1979 as a day for all citizens to rededicate themselves to the ideals and principles of equality and justice particularly at a time when this nation should be attempting to transfer the noble pronouncement of Brown into realities.

We further call upon all elected officials and citizens to exert active individual leadership in making equality a reality for all Americans. This leadership action should include an objective analysis of the existing quality of education in all communities, and specific steps, time tables and funding sources to implement effective public education which was clearly the foundation of the Brown decision.

Commencement and Graduation Set for Schools

The combined graduating classes of Coronado, Dunbar-Struggs, Estacado, Lubbock, and Monterey High Schools will gather for the annual commencement sermon at 2:00 p.m. Sunday, May 20, in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

The Reverend Dr. Sam Nader, pastor of First United Methodist Church, will deliver the sermon. The invocation will be given by the Rev. A.L. Patrick, pastor of Mt. Gilead Baptist Church. Minister Juan I. Rubio, pastor of Colgate Church of Christ, will pronounce the benediction.

Music for the program will be provided by an orchestra and a choir composed of students from the five high schools. The orchestra, conducted by Mr. Boyce Wyrick of Lubbock High School, will present excerpts from "Die Meistersinger" by Wagner-Siennicki, for the processional. Mrs. Christien Shinn of Dunbar-Struggs will direct the choral selection, "O Come Let Us Sing" by Kirk. Another selection by the choir, "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place", by Brahms, will be directed by Mr. J.W. Neunschwander of Coronado.

The first three individual school graduation exercises will be Friday, May 25, at 8:00 p.m. Coronado will be at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum, Dunbar-Struggs at the Municipal Auditorium, and Lubbock High at the Civic Center.

Exercises are set for 8:00 p.m. on Saturday, May 26, for Estacado at the Municipal Auditorium and for Monterey at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Lubbock Evening High School graduates will receive their diplomas on Friday, June 1, 8:00 p.m., at Wilson Junior High School auditorium.

Seniors in the day high schools will take examinations Wednesday, May 23. The final day of instruction for the other students of the Lubbock Public Schools will be Wednesday, May 30. No classes will meet on Memorial Day, Monday, May 28.

East Lubbock Republican Committee To Hold Monthly Meeting Saturday

The East Lubbock Republican Committee will hold its monthly meeting Saturday, May 19th at 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion Post 888 in Yellowhouse Canyon. Among the guests will be David Hester, Dr. F.L. Loving, Rev. R.S. Stanley and a representative from the John Connally campaign committee.

Perry Clark, executive director, is asking that all members be present. First Vice President, Carey Childress, says "We expect to have more people at this meeting." Last meeting the attendance was close to fifty people. These people are interested in the ELRC and what it is trying to do. According to Shirley Williams, Executive Secretary for the Committee, Ruth Schermeyer, Lubbock County Republican Chairman, was very excited over the work the ELRC was doing in the community on behalf of the Lubbock County Republican Party.

House Report Finds State Dept. Didn't Warn Ryan Re? Jonestown

Copyright, 1979, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON—The world will not soon forget the mass suicide of 900 men, women and children in Jonestown, Guyana, last November. They drank poisoned punch after some members of the cult killed Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., in cold blood.

Immediately afterward, we reported that the State Department had been forewarned about the dangers in Jonestown and had failed to warn Congressman Ryan.

The House International Relations Committee ordered an investigation, which has now been completed. A draft report has been written in strict secrecy. All copies are locked in a safe each night, but our sources have told us what the report reveals.

It confirms that the State Department received advance warnings of mass suicide. In fact, the department was bombarded with complaints about the terrors of Jonestown. The complaints came from American citizens who were pleading for help, but the department never bothered to investigate their allegations.

The House report will also accuse the State Department of failing to warn Ryan of the Jonestown danger, just as we reported six months ago. The document will spell out in tragic detail how much the State Department knew about Jonestown and how little they told Ryan.

Faulty Arsenal: The taxpayers spend appalling sums of money on military weapons and the Pentagon likes to boast they are the best that money can buy. But occasionally, the brass hats have rushed ahead with new weapons before they have been proven.

The Air Force's F-16 fighter plane, for example, has had serious problems with its engines. Its loss rate has been three times what officials expected.

The Navy's F-14 has an even worse record: 38 crashes since testing was begun several years ago. Test pilots have told us its performance is "marginal at best."

The admirals also agitated for an 8-inch gun for their warships. Not until it had been purchased did they realize it couldn't hit onshore targets.

By law, the Pentagon provides Congress with the classified testing results. We have learned, however, that the reports have sometimes been doctored.

Government auditors discovered the armed services have purposely omitted adverse testing information from their statements to Congress.

The accountants spot-checked 15 weapons systems and found them all to be "incomplete, misleading or outdated."

Our sources say the military chiefs lie to Congress to prevent having their pet armaments cut. Several congressmen are now aware that the Pentagon has deceived them. But they can't raise Cain in public, because the details are classified.

There have been private protests, of course, which the Pentagon has ignored. Some of them came after one of the latest reports showed a good performance by the Navy's newest electronic plane, the EA6-B. Some of the important details, it turns out, were deleted.

Coke Confrontation—We recently spoke to Israel Marquez, a labor leader who is battling a Coca-Cola franchise in Guatemala. He has had three narrow escapes from hired assassins and his name is still at the top of a death list drawn up by anti-union forces.

A week ago, Marquez dramatically confronted officials of the Coca-Cola company at its annual shareholders' meeting. The company has denied any part in the violence in Guatemala. But the franchise in Guatemala City is controlled by a bottling company that is fighting Marquez' union.

The bottling company, in turn, is American-owned and it distributes roughly half of the cola products sold in Guatemala City. It employs 150 workers, 90 percent of whom belong to the union.

The union's financial secretary was shot down last December. Another union official barely escaped an assassination attempt and fled the country. Just last month, two men on a motorcycle ran down a union organizer. They beat him with an iron pipe, stabbed him 15 times and slit his throat from ear to ear. Other union organizers and their sympathizers have also been marked for murder.

A Coca-Cola spokesman contended the parent firm could do nothing and that the labor trouble should be settled by the bottling company and the union.

Headlines and Footnotes: A $40,000-a-year bureaucrat at the Health, Education and Welfare Department recently quit his job when his superiors told him he had to accept a $1,200 pay raise ... An archaic Navy ration law dictates that sailors and Marines must be fed real butter instead of margarine. A change to margarine would save the taxpayers about 7 cents a pound ... Last November, the Pentagon sent a team of 15 Boston University journalism instructors to Frankfurt, Germany to teach a post-graduate course to military journalists. Cost to the taxpayers: $250,000. ... Maps and pamphlets designed to explain the workings of Washington and the federal government to tourists are on sale at the Government Printing Office. Around the corner at the National Visitor Center, they are distributed free ... Vehicles used by postmen to deliver the neighborhood mails get an average of eight miles per gallon of gas ... Argentina may be a dictatorship, but its embassy in Washington is egalitarian. On a given day, diplomats in business suits can be seen watering the lawn.

Jones and Parker said tax-assessor collectors could foresee an "administrative nightmare" developing if they had to figure out which cars were exempt and which weren't. The Jones-Parker amendment leaves it up to local taxing entities to decide whether or not they want to exempt vehicles from property taxes.

To reimburse school districts for revenues lost because of the Tax Relief Amendment, the House put aside over $400 million. The Senate wants to take care of the matter in a school finance bill.

In The House

Almost three weeks ago, it appeared certain no legislation would be passed this session raising the state usury limit on home loans. Capitol observers had predicted before the session began that the usury law would be under attack but an announcement by Gov. Clements that he would veto any such bills stopped proposed legislation in its tracks.

Then along came Fannie Mae—the Federal National Mortgage Association—the prime buyer of VA and FHA home loans. Fannie Mae said it was backing off on accepting the low-interest VA and FHA loans in Texas because some lenders might be violating the usury law by charging "points." Just before Fannie Mae's announcement, the Department of Housing and Urban Development said it was hiking the interest rate on VA and FHA loans to 10 percent. That meant lenders in Texas that had been charging points on VA and FHA loans to get the interest rates up to present money market levels might be in violation of the usury law.

Clements had said he would re-evaluate his position on legislation raising the interest rate ceiling if developments warranted such a move on his part. Fannie Mae's announcement—meaning a tight money market would probably be getting tighter—moved Clements to reverse himself, and when the governor did, he called in Sen. Bill Meier and Rep. Jerry Donaldson to discuss their bills raising the legal interest rate allowed by law.

The House this week passed Donaldson's bill with provisions that Clements said he could accept. Meanwhile, there was still some question whether or not VA and FHA loans are exempted from the state usury laws. "Vagueness" over the law had been one of Fannie Mae's prime reasons for backing away from taking VA and FHA loans in Texas. And an investigation into whether there had been "collusion" between Fannie Mae and lenders was also underway. Sen. Bill Patman and Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard had leveled that charge after Fannie Mae's announcement followed so closely on the heels of Gov. Clements' revelation that he would veto bills hiking the interest rate unless something changed his mind.

It took the House six hours to make up its mind about Donaldson's bill raising the interest rate ceiling to 12 percent. However, the legislation includes a "floating" ceiling, meaning that rates cannot exceed the interest rates paid on Treasury notes by more than 2 percent.

Another alteration to Donaldson's bill is a "self-destruct" provision, meaning the law will expire in 1981. Lenders won't be able to charge points (one percent of the amount borrowed) to sellers but they will to buyers under the House bill. Also, home buyers would be able to re-finance (should interest rates decline drastically) without paying penalties.

The Governor

Two entirely different types of states with two entirely different kinds of governors were in the headlines this week—Texas and California, Clements and Gov. Jerry Brown.

Brown, ordered last week that counties in California could begin restricting gasoline sales with odd-numbered license plates giving the driver the right to fill up one day and even-numbered the next. Lines of cars wrapped around city blocks has become a common sight in certain parts of gas-starved California.

Clements said he didn't expect to see such sights in Texas but that he was in process of developing a gasoline allocation plan. "Allocation" is the important word here. Clements was careful to say that "rationing" was the federal government's responsibility and any plans he was working on were to handle distribution problems and not "restrictions" on supplies.

Search Committee To Recommend NAACP Presidential Nominees

The Executive Committee of the NAACP Lubbock Branch appointed George Woods to head a search committee to recommend nominees for President. One of the nominees will be elected by the Executive Committee to fill the unexpired term of Rev. Roy C. Jones who resigned as President in April. First Vice-President George Scott, Jr., agreed to serve as acting President only until a replacement can be elected.

To be considered for the office of President, candidates must contact Mr. Woods or another member of the search committee by June 22. Other members of the search committee are Ms. Joan Y. Ervin, Ms. Kate Noble, David Sowell, and Tom Burtis.

ELRC to Form Auxilliary Group

Mrs. R.S. Stanley announces the formation of the East Lubbock Republican Committee's Women's Auxiliary. She says membership is open to all women who would like to be a part of informing the electorate through political education, and to those who wish to increase the effectiveness of women in the course of good government through active political participation.

The Women's Auxiliary will work very closely with the ELRC and with the candidacy of Rev. M.G. Shephard in his bid for House seat in 1980.

The meeting will be held during the monthly meeting of the ELRC Saturday night, May 19th at 7:30 p.m. at American Legion Post 808 in Yellowhouse Canyon.

STATE CAPITAL
HIGHLIGHTS
By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—After the Senate said this week it would like to spend more than the House on state appropriations in 1980-81, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton each named five legislators to a conference committee.

While those five House members and five senators are bargaining over a state budget, another 10 legislators will be meeting in the second conference committee named this week to settle differences over tax relief amendment legislation.

It didn't take the Senate but a day to knock out its version of a general appropriations bill. The House had worked on its plan for almost a full week. The Senate bill would cost taxpayers $20.8 billion, while the House plan would spend $20.3 billion.

A real point of contention in the two budgets is salaries. The Senate would raise state employees' salaries by 5.1 percent, including teachers. Gov. Bill Clements says he can live with such a raise. The House bumped salaries by seven percent, including teachers.

While lawmakers are arguing over what to pay state employees, they will also be figuring out how much tax relief Texans will be getting.

Greedy vs Needy

The Senate passed its version of the Tax Relief Amendment on a 30-1 vote. Dallas Sen. Oscar Mauzy cast the one dissenting vote and said the bill would "benefit the greedy, not the needy." Mauzy argued that "timber barons and land speculators" would get "the big breaks" while the average homeowner, for whom the bill was supposedly designed, would get little tax relief.

The Senate bill would lower taxes for the elderly, the disabled, homeowners, farmers and timber raisers. The legislation exempts $5,000 in school property taxes for all homeowners, includes a $10,000 exemption for the elderly and disabled and farmers, ranchers and timber growers would get huge breaks, the costliest of all the exemptions, by computing the value of land according to its productivity rather than market value.

Kelly's Heroes

by Joe Kelly

Working in Andrews the other day I called on a vet, who is both an Aggie and a good friend. While he was operating and talking, a big fellow came in, a big cigar, unlit, stuck in the corner of his mouth.

There's somebody you ought to get in NFIB, the vet said. He's a rancher here.

The man in question stuck out his hand and boomed that he was Joe Allbright. We shook hands and opened a conversation. When he found out that I lived in Lubbock, he really opened up.

Joe Allbright is a Tech letterman in football. He played under Pete Cawthon and Dell Morgan at the turn of the 40s, married a Baylor girl, and to his distaste, his sons went to Baylor. One was a Bear letterman in football and Joe obviously would rather have seen him go to Tech.

Mention of Pete and Dell started the floodgates opening with story after story. None of them were new, but you enjoyed hearing them anyway. Joe also related a tale or two about Berl Huffman, under whom he played at Tech, too.

Joe has been, and is, active in Tech athletics, especially with the ex-letterman's association. He has served as president and has seen coaches and players come and go.

The big guy started out in business and then switched to ranching, where he has been a success, despite some lean years. He comes to all the Tech home games and likes what Rex Dockery did this past season. He's looking forward with anticipation to the season coming up. Quite a guy.

The other day in Lamesa we stopped in for a visit with a couple of former WT-NM League players, Walt Buckel and Eulis Rosson. Buckel is the publisher of the Lamesa paper and Useless runs an Exxon station. Both are doing well—but both have lost some interest in the baseball scene.

Buckel once, with Lamesa help, hosted the WT-NM Baseball Players Assn. and did an outstanding job. He doesn't make the annual reunions now, though, because his paper keeps him busy. Useless, though, tries to take them all in. Besides, he's a good golfer and helps to pay his expenses through the golf play that accompanies each reunion.

I don't know why, but talking with Rosson reminded me of one of the all-time great screwballs in the league, Frosty Kennedy. Now Frosty wore a perpetual smile and, while he might make some bonehead plays, he waved a mean stick at the plate.

The stories about him are endless, but the one that came to mind quickly was the time Kennedy and mates were playing a game here. The crowd was huddled under the pressbox, what crowd there was, and it wasn't much. Frosty came to the plate, glanced up at the crowd and then stepped back.

"Spread out!" he shouted at the crowd. "Spread out!"

Once again, as is written every year, the collegiate spring season for Tech athletes has come to a welcome close. Raider athletes didn't exactly cover themselves with glory, despite a few bright spots.

The ultimate was the SWC track and field meet, where the Raiders accepted plaudits for finishing with 11 points, dead last. The tennis team won a match from Baylor. The baseball team was below .500 and the golf team struggled in virtual anonymity all season.

One of these days ...

Here it is past the middle of May, baseball has been in full swing for over a month—and we still have ice hockey and basketball hanging on. Some people must care, because the playoffs attracted tremendous crowds.

As for me, it's boring. Both sports are great in season, but this is hardly the season for either. And, before you know it, we'll have summer football exhibitions. Indeed, one TV channel has been running highlights of NFL games during the time that baseball and golf is in progress.

When will it all end?

Like everyone else, I've been wondering about the so-called gas shortage. Where will it end? The answer: when gas hits $1 a gallon or more.

Indeed, the word that I've gotten from the oil patch is that the operators have adopted the attitude that if that's what the government wants, they can play the same game. So, they are cutting back on drilling, they're capping wells and they're sitting back to see what happens.

That isn't a sports item, but it might be of interest.

Texas took a powerfully long time in catching up in its basketball program, the state that is, and just when it would appear to be on the verge of a major breakthrough nationally, the UIL rules out summer camps—again.

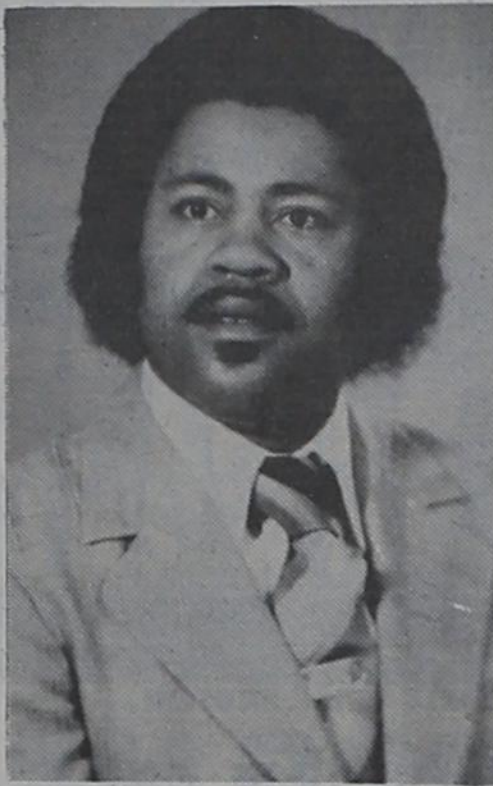

The primary reason presented is that it is unfair, that only the wealthy could attend. That isn't, of course, the main reason, but it is one of them.

The question: If it's so bad for Texas boys, why does it work so well for boys in almost all the other states?

Philadelphia is starting to take charge in its division, but it is the only leader that is. And that indicates a pretty good horseshoe among the other clubs in both leagues.

The Yankees are stumbling and have three teams to pass, with Boston and Baltimore alternating on top. Houston can't seem to hold on and build a lead, while Minnesota has to be the major surprise of the early going. It should be a heckuva season.

Rev. M.G. Shephard Says He's a "Hard Headed Politician"

Rev. M.G. Shephard, candidate for the Texas House in 1980, says he must be one of those hard-headed politicians that the Communist Party newspaper Pravda was talking about, when referring to those Americans who still believe that the United States should be number one. According to Rev. Shephard, a news release Sunday in Moscow, praised Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, and the Carter administration for taking a sober-minded realist viewpoint about the need for a new strategic arms limitation, according to Rev. Shephard.

In a Chicago speech last week, Vance spoke of an "essential equivalence" between the Soviet Union and the United States, and said this rough balance serves the cause of stability, "even if some find it unsettling compared with our (USA) earlier supremacy." Pravda wrote, "the sober-minded realist viewpoint is winning in the circles of the current American administration." Nikolai Prozhagin, commentator for the paper, stated, and I quote, "Vance is busy answering" the hard headed American politicians who cannot and do not want to understand that their former dreams about world dominance are sinking into oblivion.

Defensive Driving Course Offered

The Division of Continuing Education at Texas Tech University is sponsoring a defensive driving course on June 11-12 from 6-10 p.m. at the Texas State Department of Public Safety.

Students attending both four-hour classes will be awarded certificates which entitles them to a 10 per cent discount on automobile insurance costs if they are otherwise eligible.

Burt Sinclair, course instructor, is a safety education trooper for the Department of Public Safety and has taught defensive driving for eight years.

Enrollment is limited to 33 students and the fee is $7.50 per person. Tech students, staff, faculty and the general public are welcome. Interested persons should register in advance at the Division of Continuing Education, Building X-14, on the Texas Tech campus. For additional information call (806) 742-2354.

Many a thing, said in haste and forgotten by the speaker, remains in the heart of the listener for years.

Ringling the Bell . . .

Black Colleges in Crisis: It is a well known fact and as columnist Theodore M. Lawe so well put it: "All over the country historically black colleges are in a state of crisis. They are being impacted by the increasingly high costs of education and by the drop in enrollments. Bishop College, with its current difficulties, is no exception." Lawe is a popular columnist for the black-oriented Dallas Post-Tribune.

President Carter recently sent a memorandum to all executive departments and agencies that spelled out the administration's position for the approximately 100 historically black colleges. He called for a thorough review of the operations within your department or agency to ensure that historically black institutions are being given a fair opportunity to participate in Federal grant and contract programs. Ensure that an affirmative effort is made to inform black colleges of the opportunity to apply and compete for grants and contracts. "Where appropriate, establish goals and timetables for increased participation of historically black colleges in the activities of your department or agency."

Lawe concluded: "It is the responsibility of black college alumni to come to the rescue of the black college through the use of their influence and the giving of financial assistance. Many black college alumni have gone on to become middle class and in some cases wealthy. Many black college graduates hold positions of influence and responsibility and can be a valuable resource in correcting the plight of the black college."

In the meantime bellringers, we urge you to increase your support if you attended a black college. The need was never greater and the time is now.

Recent great quotes: "When James Earl Ray shot down Martin Luther King in 1968 (King was 39) he was marching toward economic democracy, the necessary next step in his movement for the 'beloved community'. Eleven years later the gaps in income, life expectancy and infant mortality rates between blacks and whites are growing greater. Apathy is endemic to black America. Black voting strength has declined as his dissent. There is a moral vacuum in our leadership. Ray slew the dreamer, and with him, the dream." End of quote from daily newspaper columnist Julian Bond.

On June 1, 1979, Mr. Franklin Thomas will become the new president of the Ford Foundation, the largest, richest and most powerful philanthropic institution in the world. Thomas will be the only black to direct a major foundation in the world. He succeeds McGeorge Bundy, who served as head of the foundation for many years and adviser to both Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. Thomas headed the Bedford Stuyvesant Corporation in Brooklyn for many years.

According to research by reporters M. Angle and Bob Walters the "27 year old total for all direct and indirect subsidies to oil companies, large and small, amounts to almost $101.40 billion. But that hasn't satisfied the oil industry, which now wants another round of 'financial incentives' at an additional cost of $13 billion to $15 billion per year".

What Our White Brothers Are Saying: "Black leaders refuse to admit that black parents and black ministers and black civic leaders spend much of their time in fund raising and in promoting bigger doses of welfare. Instead of concentrating on improving family life, teaching respect for life and property, urging a love of God, country and flag. The opportunities which abound for well-scrubbed, well-educated, well-behaved blacks are boundless ... There are more opportunities in America for willing and worthy minority peoples—black, brown, yellow or red—than anywhere else in the world." End of quote from the "Editor's Scratchpad" in The Oak Cliff Tribune (Ray Zauber).

Ms. Anderson's total collection was $347.00. Runner-up was Sister Emma Avery with $336.00 and second runner-up was Sister Moore with $175.00. Total funds raised exceeded $1200. Winner of the door prize, a portable TV set, was Jason Anders. The Usher Board expressed thanks to all those who helped in this endeavor.

Carey Childress Serves as 1st VP or ELRC

Carey Childress is the 1st vice president of the East Lubbock Republican Committee. He is 25 years old and he and his wife has two children, Rovelin and Carey Jr. Mr. Childress and his wife are charter members of the ELRC. Some of the things that prompted Carey to join the Republican Party was the lack of the Carter administration to control the inflation that is rampaging our country. He says that he believes the Republican Party can best rid the country of it and provide a workable solution.

Childress also believes taxes are too high and that we need some type of tax relief. He says we are overtaxed, and taxed and taxed.

Another issue that is of great concern is gun control. "The Democrats support on their national platform a gun control act that would eventually lead to a take over of the right of every citizen to keep and bear arms. The Republican Party platform supports the right of citizens to keep and bear arms as guaranteed in the Constitution of the United States." Carey says the ELRC plans a seminar of gun control in the very near future.

Mr. Childress and his wife are active supporters of Rev. M.G. Shephard in his bid for the 1980 House seat in the Texas Legislature.

Camp Rio Blanco Sets Open House

Three new Unit Shelters, tents, cabins, and wagons are just some of the things that will be open for inspection at Caprock Girl Scout Council's Camp Rio Blanco Open House, May 20th, from 1-5 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

The camp is located four miles east of Crosbyton, just off Highway 82. In addition to the three new Unit Shelters recently completed, Camp Rio Blanco has two units of tents, one cabin unit, and one wagon unit for sleeping; a craft house, swimming pool, and Bridwell Lodge with dining hall. Camp Rio Blanco has been developed and is maintained with proceeds from the annual cookie sale.

Sharon Washburn, Caprock Council staff member is the Camp Director, and Sherry Peel, another member of the Caprock Council staff is the assistant director. Both will be available at the open house to give tours and answer questions.

Caprock Council is a member agency of the United Way of Lubbock.

Men in Service

Marine Corporal Guadalupe Garza III, son of Guadalupe Garza Jr. of 409 36 St., Lubbock, Tex., recently participated in cold-weather training at the Marine Corps Mountain Warfare Training Center, Bridgeport, Calif.

He is serving as a member of 2d Battalion, 5th Marines, based at Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

During the training, his unit learned cold-weather combat techniques, cross-country skiing, snowshoeing and survival in a cold-weather climate.

Shown here is the Rev. Mr. R.M. Montgomery, long-term pastor of St. James Baptist Church, 324 S. Peach St., Pecos, Texas. As president of the West Texas Baptist District Congress, he has issued the 76th annual session call of the group to meet in Dallas, Texas June 4-8. Host church is Mt. Horeb, 3306 Carpenter St. B.J. Bradford, Jr. is host pastor. See full story elsewhere in these pages.

Deficit spending will end when the politicians in Washington have the guts to say no when the nation can't afford it.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

The biggest and most rewarding news of this past week was, not in the movie houses or on the living stage, but rather from that medium that does not often give us shows of true excellence and high performance calibre.

I am speaking of the utterly absorbing, totally adult, beautifully performed teleplay, the CBS special Sunday night, "Strangers—The Story of a Mother and Daughter."

What a dominant and utterly adept dramatization centering around two women in a Rhode Island coastal town this was. The story of the return home of a young, somewhat disillusioned woman to her mother's home evolved around the fact that mother and daughter have been estranged, have not spoken or communicated with each other for 20 years. Between them has been the image of late husband and father, his giving to his daughter, his taking from his wife, the mother.

The totally unwelcomed return of the daughter, the mother's silent, unresponsive and embittered outlook were all portrayed vividly and sharply, while the breakdown of the mutual coolness, the uncovering of the vital needs of each woman for the other, the resurfacing of a latent love between them was engrossing and whoever directed this two-hour film scored all the way, as did the unobtrusive musical score and the pictorial beauty of the camera.

In the principal and pivoting star roles of mother and daughter one could not have cast two more accomplished professionals, razor keen in their craft, than Bette Davis and Gena Rowlands. Miss Davis needs no introduction for the "pro" she is and she has not had a role as meaty and meaningful as this one in the past decade. It was Davis at the top of her form, still wielding her particular brand of magic, so often abused in her later years, yet present when this opportunity came to pass.

Gena Rowlands is the lesser known name to many movie-television viewers, though she has been exerting her power for a long period in no uncertain manner. Here she met her match opposite Davis and in scene after scene through the film the pitting of these two was something to behold. If ever there has been award-worthy talents displayed it was in "Strangers."

There were, of course, others in the cast, several who have long been stage and screen names, but their roles were only supporting to the principals.

"Strangers—The Story of a Mother and Daughter" was the highlight of the current (and many more) television season and a hailed credit to the enter industry and its potential. It was superb. When "Strangers" repeats (and it most certainly will one of these days) do not pass it up for a competitive program. You'll be sorry if you do.

Now I want to go back a week and talk a little more in detail about a film currently on view at the Mann Fox 4-plex out on 19th St. This is Woody Allen's superlative achievement called "Manhattan." I raved in brief about this last week but it deserves a second and larger helping of praise.

Allen won kudos for himself, his film and his co-star a couple of years back with his brilliant "Annie Hall." "Manhattan" shows the growth of Allen by leaps and bounds with only the sober but superbly-done "Interiors" a year ago in between.

He writes, directs, stars in his shows (he did not appear in "Interiors") and in "Manhattan" has scored heavily on all points. Once a camera-conscious satirist, he has emerged as a creator of characterizations in depth and his touch touches all in his casting. The humor is blunt and open (film has an R rating) and "Manhattan" also has insights and scenes of sensitivity and high value in the serious sense.

The picture is a very serio-comic look at the inter-relationships of a group of people, incisive and needle-penetrating.

As Isaac Davis, Allen is having an affair, at age 40, with a 17-year-old student, at the start and during the course of the picture. A young woman, beautifully played by Diane Keaton, is having an affair with Yale, a married man, perfectly cast in Michael, with Anne Byrne as the wife. Naturally, Allen and Keaton meet, despise each other, strip away the layers and, with the defection of Yale back to his wife for the moment, become involved. Incidentally, the 17-year-old is finely played by Mariel Hemingway.

The picture is laid in New York City, of course, filmed unusually these days in black and white. The photography is superb in this medium and the music of George Gershwin, performed by the New York Philharmonic and the Buffalo Philharmonic is a brilliant asset.

"Manhattan" is undoubtedly the best film yet this year by far and come Awards time it will certainly be right in there, believe me.

I cannot recommend "Manhattan" too highly. It is an amazing, just right accomplishment, a credit for all concerned.

Agathie Christie Topic of Lunch Bunch

Arline Harris, Lubbock author will discuss Agatha Christie, famous mystery writer, as the topic for Lunch Bunch May 15, 12:15-12:45 p.m. at Lubbock City-County Library, 1306 9th Street.

Christie's life, while devoted to solutions of puzzling mysteries, held her mystery disappearance as a young woman. Recently a book and a major motion picture tried to explain her mystery disappearance. Ms. Harris will suggest a solution Tuesday.

Lunch Bunch is held in the Community Room and is open to the public. The public is invited to bring a sack lunch; coffee is provided.

Harris' presentation will conclude the Lunch Bunch spring program series. The fall series will begin October 2 with Judge Rod Shaw discussing "Yucatan, Land of the Mayas."

Finance Drive for Black Arts Library Off to Good Start

The Rev. Bob Tieuel, Jr., pastor of the recently completed $80,000 Friendship Community Church and manse, shown here, told the West Texas Times that a drive to finance a $10,000 improvement program to provide facilities for a West Texas library of black arts and history, is off to a good start. Plans to clear the beautiful structure, located at 315 S. Pecan in Pecos are almost complete, the pastor stated.

Tieuel is also executive director of The Christian Call News Service which researches black history and chronicles black events. He is also author of "Ringing the Bell", a weekly column that appears in a number of weekly and daily newspapers throughout the Southwest and the nation. His column appears exclusively in Lubbock in the West Texas Times.

Of the proposed library, the minister said: "We want to preserve our 'roots' and the great contributions of black people to the establishment and continued growth and development of the Old West Tradition."

Donations from groups or individuals may be sent to Friendship C.M.E. Church Improvement Fund, P.O. Box 761, Pecos, Texas 79772. All contributions are tax deductible, Tieuel stated.

serve on the community services commission; providing a savings clause and providing for publication.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Lubbock:

SECTION 1. THAT the Code of Ordinances of the City of Lubbock BE and is hereby amended by changing the language of Article XII, Chapter 2, Section 2-100, paragraphs (b) and (c) to read as follows:

(b) Representatives of the poor. Five members of the commission shall represent the poor and be chosen in accordance with democratic selection procedures adequate to assure they are representative of the poor in the area to be served. Representatives shall be chosen from poor or low-income areas as shown on the census tracts of the latest U.S. Census. The original terms of three members of this category shall be for one year from April 1, 1979. The original terms of two members of this category shall be for two years from April 1, 1979. The terms of members shall be for two years. No member of this category may be selected if his service during the entire term to which he is selected would result in his serving more than five consecutive years or more than a total of ten years as a member of the commission.

(c) Representatives of private groups and interests. The City Council shall from time to time select five private groups and interests. These private groups and interests should be business, industry, labor, religious, welfare, education, significant minority groups and other such major private groups and interests as are in the community. These groups and interests shall be selected in a manner to insure that the commission will remain a continuing and effective mechanism for securing broad community involvement. Once the selections are made and concurrence obtained by the Community Services Administration, as required by any other federal or state funding agency, the respective groups and interests shall choose their representatives to serve on the commission. The original terms of three members of this category shall be for one year from April 1, 1979. The original terms of two members of this category shall be for two years from April 1, 1979. The terms of members shall be for two years. No member of this category may be appointed if his service during the entire term to which he is appointed would result in his serving more than five consecutive years or more than a total of ten years as a member of the commission.

conjunction with an annual rabies clinic or drive in which the City of Lubbock participates as a sponsor or joint sponsor; providing a savings clause; providing for publication and declaring an emergency.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Lubbock, Texas:

SECTION 1. THAT Chapter 4, Section 4-30 of the Code of Ordinances of the City of Lubbock BE and is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 4-30. Expiration, renewal of license; issuance of license certificate and tag.

(a) Licenses shall expire one year from the date issued if not revoked and must be renewed before or upon that date.

(b) Upon immunization of animal against rabies by a licensed veterinarian, payment of a license fee of two dollars ($2.00) and a written application stating name, address, and description of animal, the city enforcement agent or a veterinarian appointed for such purpose may issue to the owner a license certificate and a metallic tag for each animal so licensed. The tag shall have stamped thereon the year for which it is issued and the number corresponding with the number on the certificate.

(c) The annual license fee hereinabove set out shall be reduced to one dollar (1.00) if such animal is immunized against rabies at an annual rabies immunization clinic or drive sponsored or co-sponsored by the City of Lubbock.

SECTION 4. THAT the fact that public necessity and convenience requires that this Ordinance be passed as an emergency measure for reasons set forth in the preamble hereof, therefor the rule requiring that no ordinance shall be finally passed on the day of its introduction is suspended, and this ordinance is declared to be an emergency measure to take effect from and after its passage and publication as set forth hereinabove.

IT'S A FACT!

Although he generally uses his left hand to sign things, ex-President Gerald Ford is actually ambidextrous — he can use either hand with almost equal skill.

Although ordinary civilians most of the time, people in the Marine Corps Reserve have special skills from counter intelligence to aircraft maintenance to photo journalism that they are trained to use. The Sum Also Rises.

If you're totally in the dark when it comes to saving, United States Savings Bonds can help you see the light.

Just join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. That way a small part of each paycheck will be set aside, automatically, to buy Bonds.

Then one fine morning you'll wake up to find that not only do those Bonds add up, but that the sum also rises. At the rate of 6% when held to maturity of five years (4 1/2% the first year).

And that, to sum up, is a great way to save for anything. From a college education to a special vacation.

So buy United States Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan.

You'll be surprised how bright your future looks, with that sum always rising.

E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/2% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.
