NAACP Annual Freedom Fund Banquet Set Friday Night

The public is invited to the NAACP's annual Freedom Fund Banquet at 7 p.m. Friday, in the Texas Tech University Center.

Guest speaker for the banquet will be Dr. George Henderson, chairman of the Department of Human Relations at the University of Oklahoma. Since 1964, Dr. Henderson has authored 49 books and articles on education and human relations, and has served as a human relations consultant to a number of public and private agencies and several public school systems.

Last Fall, Dr. Henderson assisted the Lubbock Independent School District in teacher training and other preparations for implementing school desegregation in Lubbock.

President George Scott, Jr., of the NAACP Lubbock Branch, said the Freedom Fund Banquet is the principal fund-raising activity each year for financing NAACP work, both in the South Plains area and nationally. The theme for the Banquet is "Lest We Forget Our Fallen Heroes."

Tickets for the Banquet may be obtained from Ms. Rose Wilson (Phone 763-1807), Chairwoman of the Freedom Fund Committee, from other NAACP members, or from the following businesses: West Texas Times, Atlanta Life Insurance Co., Caviel's Pharmacy, Deo Real Estate, Dillard's Kwik-Stop Grocery, Down-Beat Record and Tape Shop, Lubbock O.I.C., Lubbock Digest and Nettie Lou's Barber Shop. Ticket prices are $10 for adults and $6 for senior citizens and children.

Mexican Baptist Convention Set Here

More than 1,500 Baptist leaders from throughout Texas are expected to attend the annual Mexican Baptist Convention of Texas in the Lubbock Civic Center June 25-27.

Convention President Eliseo Aldape, pastor of the Arnett Benson Baptist Church, Lubbock, said, "We're preparing to host one of the most significant and exciting sessions of the Convention in many years."

The Mexican Baptist Convention of Texas includes about 40,000 Baptists in some 500 churches and missions. It is affiliated with the 2.1-million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas.

The general sessions of the Convention each evening will feature inspirational messages, music, business sessions and the election of officers. The Convention "messengers" will elect a new president to succeed Rev. Aldape who has served the maximum two terms.

Rev. Leon H. Sullivan, founder-chairman of OICs of America, won a pledge of support from President Carter for the organization's war against unemployment during a recent meeting at the White House. Sullivan presented Carter with one million appeal signatures gathered from supporters across the country asking for one million jobs for one million unemployed youths

Rev. Leon Sullivan Declares War on Unemployment at OIC Convocation

Declaring war on unemployment at the kick-off rally of OICs of America's 15th Annual Convocation, Rev. Leon H. Sullivan told 2,000 delegates that what Congress had done about unemployment was not enough.

Talking to a packed auditorium last night in Washington, OIC founder-chairman challenged President Carter, Congress and his audience to find more than a million jobs for young people.

Sullivan said, "The government is moving too slow. We cannot wait. I am calling upon OIC at this convocation to launch an intensive national program to find a million jobs to put a million unemployed young people to work before it is too late."

Beginning in an old abandoned jailhouse in the most underprivileged section of Philadelphia in 1964, Opportunities Industrialization Centers have spread into more than 150 cities across America and nine countries. In its 15 years OIC has trained and placed some 500,000 people who now earn more than $4 billion in annual incomes and presently pay more than $600 million in federal taxes each year.

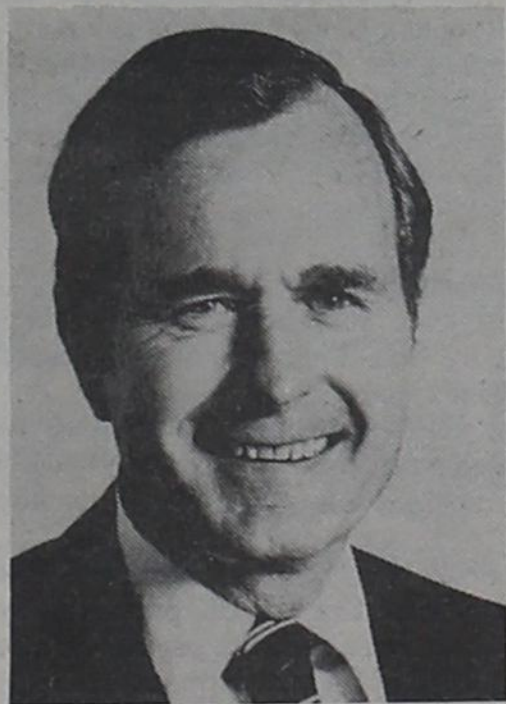

Sullivan went on to say that OIC jobs have saved Americans more than one-half billion dollars in money which would have been paid out in relief checks.

Supporting Sullivan's challenge, Vernon Jordan, executive director of the National Urban League, called upon Congress to restore funding to programs for the poor and unemployed. He said at the first plenary session that inflation is the barrier to programs for the poor.

"Inflation has become the answer to ending programs for the poor. The 96th Congress is trying to make deeper budget cuts. Congress spends millions on defense," Jordan went on, "but cuts funds from the programs for poor kids' lunches."

Joining forces Monday with Rev. Sullivan in the war on unemployment are also Benjamin L. Hooks, executive director of the NAACP; Dr. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; Clarence Mitchell, chairman of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights; and Rev. Jesse Jackson, president of People United to Save Humanity (PUSH).

George Bush to Address LULAC

George Bush

George Bush, Republican presidential candidate, will address the LULAC 50th Golden Anniversary National Convention on Saturday, June 16, in the Emerald Room of the Shamrock Hilton Hotel. Bush will speak at 1:00 following a 12:30 luncheon.

Bush is the only Republican presidential candidate who is scheduled to speak at the LULAC National Convention.

Willie Stargell Foundation for Sickle Cell Anemia Starts Poster Campaign

A nationwide poster campaign, asking for donations to the Willie Stargell Foundation for Sickle Cell Anemia, gets underway this week. Instituted by the popular Pittsburgh Pirates' super-star First Baseman, Willie Stargell, the Foundation helps to provide funds for research at the University of Pittsburgh School of Pharmacy, the Carnegie-Mellon University Scholarship Fund for Sickle Cell Research, the Western Pennsylvania Sickle Cell Society, Inc., and others.

Thousands of large posters, designed and paid for by Gordon's Dry Gin Company Limited showing Stargell receiving the Gordon's Gin Good Guy Award for his work in combatting the dread disease, with large type asking that contributions be sent to P.O. Box 81094 in Pittsburgh, will be distributed by sales personnel all over the country.

Gordon's became interested in assisting in Stargell's endeavor when a sportswriter suggested that the ball player might be a candidate for the Good Guy Award given to athletes for their humanitarian deeds, apart from the sports in which they were involved.

Sickle Cell Anemia, a hereditary, genetically determined hemolytic anemia, is most often found among members of the Black race. Stargell became interested in the disease in 1973 and was a co-founder of the Black Athletes for Sickle Cell Anemia. Later, when it was determined that there were a considerable number of incidents of the disease among Whites, Stargell decided to set up a Foundation to aid people of all races who suffered from the affliction.

In addition to providing cash from his pocket for this work, Stargell spends considerable time in appearing before audiences and recruiting other athletes to become involved in working for the Foundation.

Willie Stargell, Pittsburgh Pirates' "Super-star" First Baseman, poses with the first of thousands of posters designed to aid in obtaining contributions to the Willie Stargell Foundation For Sickle Cell Anemia. On the right, is Clive Greaves, President of Gordon's Dry Gin Company who is donating the posters for distribution in bars, restaurants, hotels, supermarkets and liquor stores all over the country.

Stargell, who recently was given the Gordon's Gin Good Guy Award for his work in combatting the disease, is the organizer of the Foundation and devotes much of his time off the playing field to obtaining funds for the Foundation and recruiting athletes to join him in the endeavor.

Mr. Clive Greaves, President of Gordon's Dry Gin Company Limited, said, "We are delighted to play a small part in helping such a dedicated gentleman as Willie Stargell fight this scourge of young people. We hope our contribution will aid in achieving the goals Willie Stargell so ardently strives to attain."

Anyone who wishes to have a poster with Stargell's autograph, for his (or her) place of business need merely write to Stargell at P.O. Box 81904 in Pittsburgh.

MBFA Foundation Receives One Year Home Care Contract

The Department of Human Resources for Texas has awarded MBFA Foundation's West Texas Home Health Agency a one year contract to deliver home care for the aged, blind and disabled adults in a fifteen county area. The contract is for a maximum of $415,349 at a cost reimbursement level.

Mrs. Barbara Satterwhite will be coordinating the program supervised by West Texas Home Health Agency Administrator, Mrs. Claudia Marberry. The start-up of June 1 in Lubbock county brought 76 DHR clients into the program with services provided by 79 providers.

In July Garza, Hale and Hockley counties will add 78 more clients to the program and 64 providers as employees under the contract. Beginning August 1 Bailey, Cochran, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd, King, Lamb, Lynn, Motley, Terry and Yoakum counties will be adding an estimated 98 clients and 70 providers.

Providers will be serving clients in their homes on a regular basis delivering services such as meal preparation, personal care, protective services, light house-

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Probing the pro-Shah Mystery of the Nixon Administration

WASHINGTON - We have been investigating the high oil prices which threw the Western world into an economic tailspin in 1974. We have uncovered top-secret documents which reveal that the shah of Iran was the driving force behind the oil price increases.

The evidence also indicated that the Nixon administration should have been able to restrain the shah. He depended on the United States for military support; in fact, he owed his very throne to the CIA, which saved it in 1953.

Then why did the Nixon administration permit the shah to drive up oil prices, at such a terrible cost to the U.S. economy? We can only raise the question. We can't answer it. But we can show that a cozy relationship existed between the Nixon White House and shah of Iran.

First, sources close to the shah have told us he contributed heavily to Richard Nixon's presidential campaigns. Some of the money was allegedly laundered through Mexican banks. Through banking sources, we traced large sums of money from the shah's accounts in Switzerland to a Mexican bank. But we could not find out what happened to the cash after it was withdrawn.

Second, Nixon's first secretary of state, William Rogers, pushed policies favorable to the shah. Shortly after Rogers returned to his private law practice, his firm began representing the shah's multimillion-dollar foundation.

Third, Nixon sent his intelligence chief, Richard Helms, to be his ambassador in Iran. As the American representative, Helms was notoriously sympathetic to the shah. After Helms retired, he set up a company doing business with wealthy Iranians. For example, sources told us Helms appraised five palatial estates that the shah might want to purchase in Virginia.

Fourth, the late Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and his banking brother, David Rockefeller, were very close to the shah, who channeled hundreds of millions of dollars through their Chase Manhattan Bank.

And fifth, Nixon's second secretary of state, Henry Kissinger, was the shah's staunch champion in Washington. Kissinger is now a consultant to the Chase Manhattan Bank.

These leaders should have used their political muscle to restrain the shah. They should have stopped the disastrous price rise. But instead, they supported the shah. They praised him. They coddled him. They catered to him. The mystifying question remains: Why?

In fact, the question gets even more mystifying. The high oil prices caused suffering around the world, yet these leaders remained on intimate terms with the shah. Rockefeller continued to telephone him and send him messages. One secret message, incredibly, gave the shah credit for saving the West.

After the shah's downfall, Kissinger quietly pressured the Carter administration to let the shah establish permanent residence in the United States. When Carter failed to respond positively, Kissinger arranged for the shah to go to Mexico. Kissinger even went public with this statement: "A man who for 37 years was a friend of the United States should not be treated like a Flying Dutchman who cannot find a port of call."

Meanwhile, former First Lady Betty Ford recently sent a copy of her autobiography to the shah's empress, Farah Pahlavi. Inside was this handwritten inscription: "Your Majesty, in appreciation of our friendship and the meaningful times we have shared together."

The book was delivered to the Iranian embassy in Washington. There was just one problem. The shah had been ousted four months before the book arrived. So the representatives of the new government re-wrapped the package, "Address Unknown."

Watch-on Waste: A few months ago, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) pushed ahead with a housing project in Laredo, Texas, despite the protests of a local citizens' group that a different plan could be implemented that would save a million dollars. So the citizens of Laredo placed a half-page ad in The Washington Post thanking the American taxpayers for the million-dollar gift. The ad generated so much publicity that one of the leaders of the Laredo citizens' group has been asked to testify about the boondoggle on Capitol Hill.

Federal investigators have told us that many of HUD's "Urban Action" grants, designed to stimulate private investment in distressed urban areas, have been awarded on questionable grounds. For example, the tiny town of Montezuma, Ga., asked for $6 million to build bypass roads to a new Procter and Gamble plant. Even though government officials were informed that the firm would cough up its own money to build the roads, the grant was approved anyway. And so the taxpayers underwrote the buildings of roads to benefit a private corporation.

Paper Power—Every day at the Pentagon, 10 tons of military secrets literally go up in smoke behind closed doors. The classified documents are burned in huge incinerators which provide one-fourth of the heat needed to produce steam for the mammoth building's heat and hot water system. For every two tons of paper burned, a ton of coal is saved. The system also saved another $200,000 annually in wastepaper disposal costs.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Texas Governor Bill Clements is building up steam in his efforts to get a handle on the state's energy problems — and he may have steam-burned some members of Texas congressional delegation with his direct manner.

In Washington D.C. last Monday, Clements told the 24-member Texas delegation that Texas state officials will take the initiative to launch a national energy campaign. Clements said he will bring a two-part plan to the nation which will deregulate oil and gas prices and will back proposals to rely more on coal as a fuel. He plans to meet with other governors and state officials across the nation "to take this message on the road."

He irked some members of the delegation by saying Texas congressmen have been "dragging their feet" on the energy issue. U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts, D-McKinney, responded later to reporters, "I guess we got our lecture today. I hear he (Clements) is running for vice president anyway." Roberts credited U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen with "taking the ball away from Clements before he even realized it" and smoothed over an otherwise chilled situation. Bentsen took the floor, called Texas "the Saudi Arabia of the world when it comes to coal resources," and agreed Texas resources need to be developed. Both parties were reported to have engaged in some verbal sniping before Rep. Abraham Kazen, D-Laredo, took the floor once to tell Clements and his party, "Your so-called Texas position is not new to us in Washington. We've been pushing it for several years now."

That same afternoon, Clements announced that mandatory gasoline conservation orders will be issued if Texans don't reduce their consumption voluntarily.

"We will start out on the basis of 'pretty please with sugar on it,' and hope that everyone will help," Clements said of his plans to conserve gasoline. "If that doesn't work, we're going to go to some odd-even day rationing and other things that will be mandatory in nature."

Asked to elaborate, Clements said he might include a prohibition of gasoline for cars with tanks more than half full. He said he will release his reallocation plan in detail later this week.

Juneteenth Bill Signed

As members of the Black Caucus and some 250 spectators looked on Wednesday, the Governor signed into law a bill designating June 19 as the first legal state holiday honoring black emancipation. Those in attendance later sat under shade trees on the Capitol grounds, ate watermelon and watched members of the Black Caucus take potshots at one another over the new holiday.

Objections to the bill came from Dallas Rep. Clay Smothers who earlier had called a press conference to label it "a fraudulent holiday." "Most of us were taught by elderly blacks that we were freed Jan. 1, 1865, but that the information of freedom was deliberately withheld until June 19 so that the harvest of cotton crops was completed," Smothers told reporters.

The bill's sponsor, Houston Rep. Al Edwards, explained that June 19 was the day in 1865 when Union Maj. Gen. Gordon Granger landed in Galveston and issued Lincoln's general emancipation order.

Dallas Rep. Paul Ragsdale, a leader of the Black Caucus, told reporters that Smothers did not fit in the caucus and "like a cancer, he should be cut out of the Black Caucus and out of the Legislature."

The holiday is still not on the same level as other state holidays. Passage of the bill came too late in the session to be worked into the general appropriations bill, so Juneteenth is an optional holiday for state agencies and banks. Edwards said the holiday will be included in the appropriations bill in 1981.

June 19 is also the date a state district judge has given Texas evangelist Lester Toloff as a deadline for obtaining a state license for his controversial children's homes. Judge Charles Mathews fined Roloff's Evangelistic Enterprises $22,850 for violation of the state's child-care licensing statutes and gave him six days to apply for licenses or shut down the homes.

A defiant Roloff, Bible in hand, appeared on a Corpus Christi television interview and responded: "It's a communistic sign on the wall, saying the Bible is not sufficient and Jesus is not the Lord, so we will not take a license."

Roloff now is on a confrontation course between the law and his oft-repeated vow never to submit to licensing of his homes by the state. In the past he has unsuccessfully relied on the doctrine of separation of church and state, contending that since his homes are part of his religious enterprise, they should not be licensed by the state. The courts have disagreed and Texas Attorney General Mark White filed suit May 16 charging Roloff has operated his child-care facilities at Corpus Christi and Zapata in violation of a 1976 court order.

Courts Bill Vetoed

An omnibus courts bill that would have established 20 new state district courts was vetoed last week by Gov. Clements who indicated the bill deprived him of several judicial appointments.

The bill outlined 11 courts to be filled by appointment, nine by elections in 1980. Under Texas law, district court judges are usually elected, but when new courts are created, the judgeship is usually appointed by the governor.

Clements blamed the Legislature for the removal of appointive powers, and said "legislators departed from the historic pattern they have used in the past." He guessed that more than 95 percent of the courts created in the past decade were filled by appointments.

Reacting strongly to Clements' veto, Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, a member of the conference committee which drew up the bill, said the bill's failure is "tragic for the people of Texas who want to see the law enforced and criminals apprehended and tried quickly." a longtime proponent of elected judges, Mauzy said he was shocked that the governor doesn't believe in electing judges. "I guess what he wants to do is to go to the federal system and appoint them for life."

Despite earlier threats to veto a bill re-creating the state bar, Clements signed the measure anyway after Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Joe R. Greenhill convinced him the veto would cause more problems than it was worth. A veto would have meant a special session this summer would be necessary to regulate the state's more than 80,000 lawyers.

YWCA Reaches Critical Point

With the YWCA "Physical Fitness Center" Fund entering its final stages an urgent appeal is being made this week by both Campaign and YWCA leadership for workers to complete their contacts - and for firms and families to respond to the need for raising an additional $75,000-$100,000 to assure success in the local fund-raising effort.

"To date, we have received 471 gifts totaling $278,817" stated General Campaign Chairman, Howard Yandell. "That's over 60 percent of our $451,455 goal - and 80 percent of what we are striving to raise in our local campaign effort. All along, members of our Campaign Cabinet have felt that if we could raise $350,000 - $375,000 locally that we would have a good chance of raising $75,000-$100,00 from area and national foundations who have shown an interest in the YWCA's need for expanded facilities. However, the firms and families in Lubbock must show it is willing to give maximum support to this program before we can expect much in the way of outside financial support. Therefore, it is imperative that we raise an additional $75,000-$100,000 locally."

Since several hundred cards are still in the hands of volunteer workers, Division Chairmen have asked that all future reports be made directly to the Campaign office in the YWCA at the corner of 35th and Flint.

Although several hundred volunteers are assisting in seeking funds for the YW "Physical fitness Center", Chairman Yandell indicated there were not enough workers available to visit all prospects. In view of this, a special mail appeal has been sent to doctors, realtors, businesses and civic/business/professional clubs and organizations in the hope that these groups will respond directly to the YWCA. A similar special appeal is being sent to the entire YW membership.

"Most people do not realize that this will be our only opportunity to raise funds for expansion of facilities for at least 15 years," stated Anne Andrews, YWCA President. "Our need is desperate - we cannot expand our programs and services without additional facilities. Our present facilities are literally bursting at the seams. Our 4400 members makes us the third largest YW in the state, but our growth will be stymied without the proposed multi-purpose gym. This campaign must succeed or our entire future will be seriously jeopardized.

"There are some who feel we can build a new gym if we raise as much as $300,000 - that is simply not true," continued Mrs. Andrews. "It would be most difficult, if not impossible, to build half a gym. Our minimum need for

A great many firms and families have already contributed generously to our building fund but we need several hundred more to share in this effort which is all-important to thousands of Lubbock women, girls and their families. We are asking all who can to respond generously, within their capability in support of this expansion for it will bring benefits to our community for generations to come in the areas of physical fitness, personal development, mental and spir-tual health. The growth and future of our YWCA is tied directly to Lubbock - therefore, despite the many problems and difficulties we all face, we cannot - we must not fail in this community-wide endeavor. Its success is important to all of us - and to our future. It's a critical test of our community strength and vitality. It's not a time to hide behind the fears of today - it's time to reaffirm our faith in the future - and to invest in it."

Chairman Yandell announced that a special Follow-up and Continuation Committee was being formed to contact prospects who asked to be visited at a later date and to follow up on others whom the volunteer organizations are unable to contact.

Although there are many books written about how to research one's family tree, a new basic guide to be welcomed on the bookshelves is How to Trace Your Family History by Bill Linder. Hardbound, 187 pp., illustrated, not indexed. Order from Everest House, Publishers, 1133 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N. Y. 10036 for $6.95 or from Mr. Linder, 8306 Cottage St., Vienna, Va. 22180 for $7.95 (includes postage). This brief, lively work is written in the language of the common man, making it easy for anyone to read and understand the instructions. By no means does this make the book simple-minded. Nearly every line is chocked full of information which leads the genealogist gently but firmly through the various stages of research. Visiting libraries and going through vital statistics and documents are viewed as "adventures." Mr. Linder shows that research, often seen as dull and boring, is one of the most entertaining hobbies around.

Individual chapters are devoted to such topics as beginning and maintaining a total family records system, making oral interviews, writing your own personal history, finding and writing to interesting relatives, sources available at the local and federal level, genealogical libraries, using history as a genealogical aid, styles of early handwriting, abstracting data from documents, evaluating information, and educational opportunities in the field. The chapter on black genealogy points out that researching black families is done in the same manner as for whites - only the principal sources of information, especially in the South, will be different. Blacks must research documents of white families for information on their slave ancestors. A significant source for black genealogy can be church records. Many blacks attended white churches and are mentioned in their records. They may even be buried

by Jack Sheridan

This is a special, personal column of pure reminiscence. It is to report to you an experience that was, to me, unique and unforgettable.

This last weekend, from Thursday through Saturday, I flew to San Antonio for a reunion after 32 years with a group of men my age, give or take, whom I served with in a squadron from 1942 to 1945 in Norfolk, East England. We were a B-17 (Flying Fortress) outfit at that time, so three years of our then young lives were, you might say, expended.

The group, 100th Bomb Group, with a bloody record, met in reunion in the Menger Hotel, San Antonio.

This was not like a usual American Legion get-together. There has been for 32 years an esprit de corps among the men of the 100th Bomb Group.

You must understand, there were four squadrons that made a group. The reunion made of wives, officers, flyers, ground crews were all of the 350 men, women and children at the Menger Hotel next to the Alamo from Thursday to Saturday.

Most of us had not seen each other for 32 years. Some men have not changed in 32 years. Others have. Most of us have white hair or salt and pepper shading.

There were, of course, a lot of memories. There were tears for some of these which time has taken. There was whole worlds of half remembered memories that came surfacing to the top.

I wish I could tell you all the memories that surfaced in three days over a 32 year past. I can only tell you that the weekend gave me back my professional identity as an author and a man.

It is truly "Sheridan's Ride" now and I hope you'll stay with me and my good friend and boss, Norman L. Williamson, editor and publisher.

There are a good many men who worked in San Antonio to coordinate and to keep the smooth and incredible fun flowing.

I'll start with a man with the incredible name of Hong Kong Wilson, who was a co-chairman, and with his loud and lovely mouth, held the whole thing together for three days and nights. We shared co-starring roles on a colored TV program which is to my credit.

The co-chairman, Don Mertin, quiet, lovely, both these men are native Texans, also helped hold the thing together.

Then there is the administrator, a friend of mine for all of these 32 years, Horace Varian, out of Newton, Mass. Without him, I don't know how it would have made the three days.

What can I say about the whole name tag line-up? There were former commanding officers, fellow enlisted men, all a part of what happened so long ago and yet only yesterday to us.

I think of Butch Goldwin, who has a senior daughter at Tech, he lives in Tom Ball, Texas, and all the others whose lives have been irrevocably bound into these unforgettable moments.

There are other moments. The river, the churches, the loveliness of San Antonio, fresh, green and enchanting.

It was a three days to remember and next week's column will elaborate a little more.

in the church cemetery. Black history collections should be investigated since they often contain data giving names, dates, places, and relationships.

Suggestions for self-help in particular areas or recommended reading appear at the conclusion of most chapters. This fine publication, designed for fast reading, is also suitable as a text.

Thanks to Christine Knox Wood of Lubbock for these items concerning blacks, taken from the Magnolia Gazette, Magnolia, Miss., July 12, 1883.

NEW OMBE ASSISTED MINORITY OWNED FIRM IN ALABAMA—With assistance from the U.S. Department of Commerce's Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE), Columbus Sanders, a black businessman, has become the owner of the Beowulf Corporation, an electrical and machine parts manufacturing and engineering company in Huntsville, Alabama. Acquiring the majority of Beowulf's stock in March of this year, Sanders became the company's owner, Chairman of the Board and Executive Vice President, converting the firm into a minority owned and controlled business enterprise. In acquiring the firm, Sanders received financial and business packaging support from a minority business assistance organization operating under a grant from OMBE. The technical and managerial assistance Sanders received was cost-free and is available to minority business persons through some 200 such organizations funded by OMBE around the nation. Seen in the photos above, clockwise from top left, Sanders, right in first photo, is assisted at a ribbon cutting ceremony during the company's dedication day by Kelly Prady, left, Company President; and Sen. Donald Stewart, D-Ala. Sen. Stewart who was the main speaker at the ribbon cutting ceremony marking Sanders' official assumption of control of Beowulf, praised Sanders for his initiative and drive which culminated in his acquiring ownership of the company. In second photo, Sanders, Sen. Stewart and Prady, examine an electrical cable connector and other products manufactured by Beowulf. Looking on at far left is Terrence Scanlon, OMBE Chief of National Projects in Washington, D.C. Scanlon is head of a program underway at OMBE to assist minority businessmen and women in business acquisitions such as the one accomplished by Sanders. Bottom left photo shows Sanders and Carolyn Pleasant, OMBE project officer for the acquisition program, discussing Beowulf outside the Company's Huntsville plant. Final photo shows Sanders at podium of the Huntsville Alpha Phi fraternity house, making last minute arrangements for the dedication day luncheon with, left to right, Michael Simpson, a Washington based attorney, formerly of Alabama who was involved in packaging the acquisition transaction; Ted Randolph, former owner and president of Beowulf; and Prady. Beowulf, valued at $1.5 million, employs 60 persons and has produced products for the U.S. space program. The company was incorporated in 1968.

Paul Quinn College Amplifies Its Role as Educational Institution

Paul Quinn College, located in Waco, Texas, the major city in Central Texas, is a four year coeducational college under the auspices of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. The college, founded in 1872, is the oldest Black institution of higher education west of the Mississippi River. It is rich in cultural heritage and its history of providing services to the youth of the nation.

The new president, Dr. William D. Watley, formerly pastor of Macedonia A.M.E. Church in Flushing, New York, has brought a renewed vibrancy to the entire campus since his arrival in October. Being endowed with a dynamic speaking voice, a strong cognizance of educational organization and leadership and the grace of God, his very presence evokes excellence. One might say, "Things are really happening at PQC."

Many new projects and programs are in force at the college. Among these are: the Religion and Ministeries Program; the expanded Allied Health Care Program; the Inverted Degree Program and extended consideration toward educational services for the deaf students. Dr. L.C. Wood, Academic Dean is very excited about these new developments.

The Office of Public Relations and Recruitment, directed by Mrs. B.A. Rorie has implemented a new recruitment plan entitled "Project Student Find." This project is geared toward securing 1,500 additional students for the college.

Within the scope of this project, Paul Quinn College hopes to become more visible as an educational force across the nation. Students from all areas are encouraged to look at the college when deciding where an education may best be obtained. A special "Student Find Hotline" has been provided for prospective student convenience. The number is (817) 753-6816. Mrs. Rorie will be happy to talk with students interested in Paul Quinn College.

The Special Services Program directed by Mr. Ernest People contains four components: counseling, tutoring, cultural enrichment, and a special one semester orientation course. The course focuses on How to Study; Library Science; Career Development, and Orientation regarding the whole of the institution.

Conceptual design and implementation of program strategies assist the students in making the transition from high school to college life. The ratio of staff to student is such that much individualized attention is received.

Special Services has been active on PQC's campus for the past nine years. Currently, this

Ringling the Bell . . .

with Bob Tieucl

The Black Experience (Prison Reform)—Bobby Battle Who is black and 42, is a former inmate who set Oklahoma corrections on its ear, through a civil rights suit prompting the most expansive prison reforms in Oklahoma history is getting ready to file suit against the federal corrections system, according to bellringer sources.

Battle who filed the controversial prison suit in 1972, leading to a string of prison orders harshly critical of Oklahoma prisons, is a resident of the Leavenworth, Kansas, federal correctional institution. He says he is vigorously preparing a suit he hopes will become a class action on behalf of all federal inmates against the federal system when it is filed in June.

It will be a class action suit", said Battle, who was paroled from the McAlester state prison by former Gov. David Hall in December 1974. He has followed U.S. District Judge Luther Bohanon's parade of orders culminating recently in compromise ruling allowing the state Corrections Department until October to provide each state inmate a single cell.

What Battle is attacking in his suit against the federal system includes allegations of unsanitary conditions, overcrowding of prisoners, faulty medical care, lack of religious freedom and the unnecessary use of drugs to control inmates.

Battle, who founded the Committee Against Prisoners Exploitation during his short respite outside the prison walls, was sentenced to Leavenworth in February 1975 after pleading guilty to selling heroin. American Civil Liberties Union attorney Lou Bullock, who engineered the state prison suit through the Oklahoma federal courts, thinks Battle has a chance to do on the federal level what he did at the state level. Historically, most federal prison suits have failed, but in light of recent inmate victories in Oklahoma, Alabama and Arkansas, the federal prison system is appearing less invincible, Bullock added.

Hunger Around the World—According to press reports, hunger and starvation are stalking parts of the world. They never disappeared, but news about them has been pushed into the background by politics, violence and bloodshed. The paradox is that world grain stocks are larger than ever before, and American farmers are being asked to cut acreages. The European Economic Community has 250,000 tons of butter in public storage, plus millions of tons of wheat, barley and other surpluses.

Yet in Africa, for example, the population explosion, spreading drought, war, unstable governments, and economic or political changes due to racial adjustments contribute to millions of deaths by starvation. The African population has grown from 360 million ten years ago to 436 million according to recent reports, but the continent's food production has declined ten per cent in the same period. In Asia, and elsewhere, food production has not kept up with expanding populations, although worldwide food output has gained. The Soviet Union and Communist China are food importers.

The food problem is not a shortage of grain. Rather, it is a problem of distribution. An executive of Cargill, major world grain trading firm, states "Poor people lack purchasing power to buy what they need. Attacking hunger means eradicating poverty. It means building jobs and incomes for the poor and jobless around the world," he added.

Staid ol' Harvard didn't spell it out but the main reason why the university is initiating the first major overhaul of its curriculum in 34 years and focusing on specified subjects with greater emphasis on reading, writing and arithmetic, is to get Johnny to reading again. As the El Paso Times puts it "Perhaps Harvard can set the example for the nation." And just think, it has been more than forty years since we studied there for several years. Did we miss something then? One wonders. Until Later, be a good neighbor. They come in all colors.

program is engaged in a national study of Special Services Programs being conducted by Systems Development Corporation. Selected from 425 Special Services Programs, Paul Quinn was one of the 58 participating in the study.

Cultural trips to enhance the students total awareness concept and seminars are sponsored by Special Services. "The final event of the year is the "Freshman Dinner Theater" which brings the sophistication of a night of entertainment in New York, Dallas, London or Paris to our campus," stated Mr. People.

The Athletic Department has projected itself this year. Athletic Director, Joe Fonteneaux beams with delight when asked about the team's progress. He is pleased that his Men's Basketball Team completed the season with a 20-12 record which is a complete turn around from the previous year (4-23).

Women's Basketball, only in its second year of competition, was very successful in compiling a 20-10 overall record. The most important aspect being that most players had to be taught full-court basketball. Most had only played six-on-six basketball in a high school setting.

The 1979 edition of Tiger Baseball ultimately fulfilled their goal by participating in the school first district play-off. In 1978, the school lost the last game of the season which prevented the schools from entering the NAIA Play-offs (Jarvis Christian 9-8).

The Concert Choir directed by Mr. Wilbur Northington is a valuable asset to the college. Annually, the choir takes a tour and has concertized in numerous major cities of the country. The choir is open to all students who enroll at the college. Currently there are sixty members in the choir. The choir needs an accompanist according to Mr. Northington, who is competent in musical performance. Special consideration may be offered to such a talented student.

The college does not offer a major in music, however, the following courses are available: Music Appreciation; Music for teachers and private instruction in piano and voice. Interested students should contact the Music Department.

Mr. Chesley Smith, instructor of Art at Paul Quinn College has received notification that his works will be included in the exhibit presented by the Afro-American Artist of the United States which is sponsored by Phelps Stokes Fund. The works will be displayed June 1, 1980 at the National Museum of Hatian Art at Port Au Prince Dominican Republic, Dominican Republic Art Center of Guyana, Georgetown.

These are just a few of the major events occurring on the Paul Quinn College campus. While the institution broadens in scope of programs and amplifies its national image, service to the nation remains its paramount concern.
