In Remembrance
Lesson for February 20, 1955

THE words printed on this page are not like the things they refer to, they are not the same size, color or shape. Yet every one who can read these black marks on white paper is reminded at once of what they stand for. A flag is not the same color or size as the country; yet every child in school knows what the flag means. So it is with those two simple observances of the Christian church, baptism and the Lord's Supper. Some churches call these "ordinances"; most call them "sacraments." Quarrels over the right way to perform these, quarrels about their precise meaning, make up one of the darkest chapters of church history. Yet in every church these two symbols remain. Christians everywhere share the experience of baptism. If you, reading these lines, are a Christian, then no doubt some time or other you have been baptized. Baptism is the Ceremony of Initiation, the Lord's Supper is the Ceremony of Remembrance.

—Of His Death
Leaving the quarrels aside, what is it the church universal believes about the Lord's Supper? The least that can be said of it is that it is "in remembrance" of Christ. (For that matter, so is baptism; but there is scarcely room here to speak of both of these.) We remember the death of Christ, first of all. "Ye do show the Lord's death . . ." How often Christians have heard those solemn words! For the bread is not neatly sliced, it is broken. The wine is not bottled up, it is poured out. Broken bread and poured-out wine take the worshipper back to a certain night in an upper room in Palestine, when around the table 11 anxious men heard for the first time those immortal words, "This is my body, broken for you . . . This is in remembrance of me." They take us back to the afternoon of the first Good Friday, when upon the stones of the place called Golgotha dripped the lifeblood of one who was pouring out his life "a ransom for many."

—Of His Coming
If the Lord's Supper is in memory of the past, it is also a reminder of the future. "Till He Come" — the words are heard at communion everywhere in the Christian world. What do they mean? The least they can mean is that Christians look forward as well as back. The world will not go on and on and on forever and ever just the same. The hope of Christians that "the kingdoms of the world will become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ" will not always be only a hope. Christ has died for men, that is the memory the church keeps alive. Christ will reign over men from a throne of life; that is the hope the church will not give up. Christians have differed and will keep on differing as to just how this hope is going to be fulfilled. But the church believes with all her heart, Christ will win! He is not destined to lose forever. And every communion gives testimony to this hope—"Till he come."

—Of His Living Progress
The chapters of the world, more as the day, are so far from agreeing about what the communion of our Lord's Supper means, that even in a great gathering like that of the World Council of Churches, not every one feels free to take communion with all the others. Nevertheless, with all the differences, in every form of the Lord's Supper, in every church, there is the conviction that Christ is more than a memory, more than a hope. He is real; he is here. Clear at the heart of the Christian conviction about the meaning of the Lord's Supper is the feeling that in this simple rite He is really present. Across all the centuries he comes to be with those who love him. Past, present, future, all unite in the burning moment. The open heart receives the unseen Guest, and peace comes as never the world gives peace, to hush the fears and heal the sorrows of the soul. Theologians may go on debating as to how it is, how it can be true. But the simple Christian does not need to study many books for some explanation of what in his heart he has learned is true. If some one asks who was at communion this morning, the first thing the remembering heart can say is not, I was there, or my neighbor was there, but—he was there. And he has come home with me!

Senator Daniel Urges Steps For Relief on Cotton Acreage

Senator Price Daniel of Texas has urged that administration legislative steps be taken immediately to alleviate hardships resulting from the reduction in 1955 cotton acreage allotments, according to a press release from his Washington office this week.

The release said:

"If additional allotments cannot be provided in hardship cases within the present over-all allotment, then some reasonable additional national allotment should be made to take care of these cases," Daniel told the Senate. "Time is of the essence. Any effective relief must come within the next few weeks in order that the farmers may know what they can plant."

"Daniel said the reduction in allotments to family-size farms was particularly alarming. "We are losing farm families at an alarming rate already, and there is no incentive for young men to stay on cotton farms or to enter such farming. It is a serious social and economic situation which must be remedied."

"Daniel called on Secretary of Agriculture Benson to present a solution to the problem and to advise Congress what legislation the Administration would support. The Texas Senator had made a similar request earlier in the week when he and other Senators from cotton-producing States made a personal visit to see Benson at the Department of Agriculture.

"There is no need for Congress to attempt to solve the problem in the short time remaining unless it is assured that its legislation will be signed by the President," Daniel pointed out.

"At the conclusion of his remarks, the Texas Senator inserted in the Congressional Record excerpts of letters written to him by farmers, bankers and local officials showing the urgent necessity for prompt action.

Attend Church every Sunday.

Let Us Reason Together

By W. E. IRVINE

"FOR ALL HAVE SINNED, AND COME SHORT OF THE GLORY OF GOD." Romans 3:23.

The above statement has grave implications, and its possible consequence is far reaching and terrible to behold. In Romans 6:23 we are told, "For the wages of sin is death;" This is eternal death, separation from God. Nothing unclean or abominable can enter heaven, Rev. 21st. chapter. With this knowledge before us, and since we all want to be with God for eternity, our concern over this question is understandable. If all have sinned, and the Bible says we have, and if nothing sinful can enter Heaven, then what hope can we have for the future beyond the grave?

In Leviticus 17:11 God has said, "For the life of the flesh is in the blood; and I have given it to you upon the altar to make atonement for your souls; for it is the blood that maketh atonement by reason of the life." God has always demanded blood sacrifices for atonement. Again, "And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission." Heb. 9:22. Thus, shedding of blood is necessary for our salvation. Whose blood? "But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin." 1 John 1:7 God gave His Son to die for us, and Jesus gave His blood that thereby blood sacrifice made for atonement for our sins.

Without His blood, no salvation. His blood shed in His death. His side was open after in death. We come in contact with His saving blood through baptism into His death. "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into His death?" Rom. 6:3. Think on these things.

Royce Turner Appears On TV Program

Royce Turner flew to Ft. Worth Thursday, together with Walter Mathieson Chemical company. Purpose of the trip was to feature Royce on a television program on irrigation farming sponsored by Arlington Junior College.

Royce was chosen because of his outstanding record in cotton production this year. On a five acre tract he harvested two and a quarter bales to the acre. He used three tons of composted fertilizer per acre and 200 pounds of fertilizer. He pre-irrigated in February to a depth of four feet and planted in May. He sprayed for insects.

This record won Royce a chance to represent Lamb County (along with Johnny Fields of Littlefield) in the South Plains district competition. He will compete with top producers from 20 other counties for the district cotton-growing championship, which carries a $125 award.

The makers of Mathieson Fertilizer paid his expenses to Arlington because he had used their fertilizer in making this record. Royce and his twin Doyce won their honors last year because of their record breaking production of corn.

Fort Hood Gunners Learn By Shots At Sans Pilot Ships

FORT HOOD, TEX., (AP) — Anti-aircraft gunners here learn by doing. Men of the 1st Armored Division 2nd Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion fire at low-flying planes.

The pilotless radio-controlled planes whip through the sky at 200 MPH, looping and twisting to outmaneuver the guns.

When one is hit, its engine stops and out pops a parachute. The craft is returned gently to earth to be repaired for more flights.

1st Lt. Robert Braden of Denver battalion intelligence officer, says:

controlled Aerial Targets) is about the best practice anti-aircraft artillerymen can get outside of firing at an enemy plane. They can perform any maneuver a pilot-driven plane can perform.

"An RCAT's ability to maneuver and swoop low past our guns typifies the evasive tactics an enemy pilot might use, and knocking one down is a valid test of what a gunner can do during an actual air attack."

The battalion has some 20 RCAT's on hand. The launching site is a circular paved track, 15 feet wide and much like a flat, unbanked highway. The smooth,

Vicki Lynn Talbert Honored On Birthday

Vicki Lynn Talbert was honored with a Valentine party on her 7th birthday, Saturday in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Denton Talbert.

As the guests arrived, they were presented with valentine shaped asphalt track is 300 feet in diameter with a steel pylon or post in its center.

From the pylon, a free-running steel cable extends to a three-wheel launching cart that carries the craft around the track. The plane circles the track picking up speed. It is ready for takeoff at 80 MPH.

The "pilot" sits at a control box some distance from the track. He governs speed and movements of the RCAT during launching and flight. A control stick, similar to that in larger planes, sends the plane through loops, spins and dives.

It's done by radio impulses. A built-in radio receiver takes all messages transmitted from the control crew on the ground and transforms them into shifts in the plane's ailerons and elevators, causing the RCAT to climb, spin, loop, turn or make any other maneuver.

The craft is propeller-driven with a 72-horsepower engine. It has a 12-foot wingspan and weighs 320 pounds. Its 11-gallon gasoline capacity will keep it in the air more than an hour.

Ft. Worth Landmark Is Being Razed

FORT WORTH, TEX. (AP)—They're going to tear down the building that houses the famed old Seibold Hotel.

But it will be a long time before the Seibold is forgotten.

In its hey-day it was the only hotel that boasted hot and cold water in every room. It had a gala opening in 1908, and since then has won fame for a number of reasons, including its old saloon, its quaint stained glass windows, and good food.

The building that housed the hotel Edward Seibold opened 45 years ago at 7th and Rusk (now Commerce) had been occupied by the medical department of Fort Worth University.

Seibold added two more stories in 1908 and the old hotel was on its way to being a land mark.

"I happened to be in the neighborhood."

It became a haven for cattlemen, who came here to swap cattle and drink at the long bar in the old saloon.

Later, the fine steaks and good food of the hotel lent it a lasting reputation.

The building is now owned by relatives of Edward Seibold. It's being torn down "to make way for progress."

Everybody called it the Seibold. But the man who started it—and all of his relatives—pronounced it "Sj-bold."

LARRY GRIFFIN TO ARRIVE IN LUBBOCK SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Griffin received a call Tuesday from their son, Larry who is stationed at the Beale Air Force Base in Marysville, California, saying he would arrive in Lubbock Sunday, by plane for a 15 day leave. Mr. and Mrs. Griffin will meet their son at the Lubbock Airport.

David Cearley, Larue Glasscock, Bobby Murrell, Jerle Taylor and Nona Stevens were in Lubbock Sunday to see "The Elvis Presley Show."

'Candy' Jim Leaving Candy For 'Candy' Dog

TAYLOR, TEX. (AP)—"Candy" Jim Athas, who filled this Central Texas town's sweet tooth 56 years, has retired.

"I wish I could shake the hand of every boy and girl who ever came to my place for candy, soda water, popcorn or even a drink of water," says Greek-born "Candy" Jim.

"I had some good customers along the way too, some of the boys and girls like former Gov. Dan Moody, and others, who were regulars."

A native of Platana, Greece, near Sparta, Athas has been in the United States since he was 15. His first business venture was selling candy from a cart on Waco streets.

Then he came here and has sold candy from several sites, most recently the lobby adjoining the Howard Theater.

At "Candy" Jim's you were always welcome whether you bought a lot of candy or a penny's worth.

In fact, Mrs. Athas sponsored a "penny counter"—built lower than the regular counter—to serve the little tykes and allow them to practice counting as they bought their candies.

For years "Candy" Jim made his own candy. You could buy 25 lbs., at a whack if you wanted to. "Candy" Jim's recipes were for big batches.

"My candy making was no skill-let cooking," he says. "I could not give a recipe for candy less than 25 pounds."

He became famous for his "sauerkraut candy." It was a caramel form but rich in coconut. For years "Candy" Jim never said how it got its name.

On retiring, he told. He said that in the early days of his candy-making he visited Des Moines, Iowa, and heard of this recipe. He learned to make it, and noted that when cooking, the coconut gives the appearance of sauerkraut.

Now Jim is going to take it easy, resting and playing with his dog—a white Spitz named "Candy."

Soil Conservation Office Gives Tips On Terrace System

AMHERST—Does run-off water sweep across your cultivated land? If so, this is the time to construct a terrace system to hold the water on the field or build a diversion terrace and waterway to take care of excess water and dispose of it in such a manner as not to cause erosion and other damages, the Lamb County Soil Conservation District advises.

The District points out that one additional inch of water will produce 29 pounds of lint cotton.

The Spur experiment station has found that closed level terraces has an increased gross return 24 year average, of $15.46 per acre per year. Using these figures, if the water from the 53,000 acre Bull lake water shed was held on the land and used for crop production. It would increase the income from that area something over $821,500.00 per year, not counting damages from water out of control.

Persons still interested in obtaining Arizona cypress potted trees for 25 cents each to be used for a farmstead windbreak may still do so. The deadline has been extended until Feb. 15. If you want some, contact one of the supervisors or Soil Conservation Service personnel in Amherst.

D. F. Lefever of Bates is here visiting J. B. Williams of Springlake.

Homer Starkey was ill all week with a back ailment. He is up this week, but is not able to work as yet.

Final Date For Allotments Is February 25

February 25 is the final date on which application may be made for a new grower cotton allotment. Persons applying for new allotment must not have an interest as owner or operator in any other farm with an old allotment. Both the owner and the operator must sign the application before the closing date.

RELEASE OF COTTON ACREAGE

Every acre that will not be planted this year lowers the county's total the following year. Releasing cotton that you are not going to plant helps your history because you get credit for the acres released. (To keep an old grower cotton allotment, cotton must have been planted one of the three years.) The cotton released to this office will be distributed to producers on a justifiable basis. Remember releasing cotton helps county, yourself and your neighbors.

1955 ACP PROGRAM

Producers who have received approvals of assistance for ACP practices to be carried out in January are reminded that approvals will expire on Feb. 15, 1955.

Producers should report performance prior to this date if the practice has been completed. If the work has not been completed, but is started by this date, be sure to call at the County ASC office and request an extension of the expiration date. This extension of time is entirely up to the County Committee, and they will extend only meritorious cases. If the work has not been started by the expiration date or an extension requested, the approval of assistance will be cancelled.

The sign-up for the second quarter, April May and June, will be from March 14 to March 24. This sign-up will cover the conservation work you wish to carry out in April, May or June. Be sure to wait until you receive your Prior Approval before starting your work.

POPULATION DOWN

The most recent farm population figures for the years from 1950 to 1954 show a reduction of on-farm population from 25 million people in 1950 to about 21.8 million in April 1954. The drop represents a continuation of the long-time downward trend which has reduced the number of farm residents to 13.5 per cent of the total civilian population.

Farm population of the U. S. has been characterized by a high degree of mobility between farm and nonfarm areas. In almost every area since 1921 more than 2 million persons have moved yearly to or from farm. In general, the movement away from farms each year has been greater than the movement to farms.

GEORGE WUERFLEIN

George Wuerflein, for instance, is past county Farm Bureau vice president; director and alternate director of the county Farm Bureau; past adult leader in the community Farm Bureau; presently treasurer of the community building committee; originated the idea for building a community center in the area; helped organize the community 4-H club and fat stock show, and was one of the originators of the community and county soil conservation annual tours.

DOYLE TURNER

Doyle Turner is a member of the county Fair Board, a director of the county Farm Bureau, past committeeman of the community ASC committee and present committeeman of the county ASC; second vice president of the community Farm Bureau; adult 4-H club leader; organized the community 4H stock show; helped organize the community 4-H club, worked on the first community and county farm and soil tomusn with the county ASC.

PROF SHELBY

Shelby, whose "Shoestring" ranch is well known, grows alfalfa because, as he says, he doesn't want to go in competition with his neighbors who mostly raise cotton. He is past president of the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce; chairman of the community building committee; chairman for three years of the county FHA; county committeeman; past president of the county and community Farm Bureaus; has been a veterans school instructor and was a vocational agriculture teacher in his native Oklahoma.

HARRY ENGELKING

Harry Engelking is a member of the Certified Seed Association and is immediate past president of the community Farm Bureau. Also chairman of board of directors for P. V. community center.

ALLISON BROTHERS

Harold, Gerald and Oscar Allison all moved to the community about the same time. Harold is a past director of the county Farm Bureau; a member of the Certified Seed Association; past alternate director of the Farm Bureau; and past vice-president of the community Farm Bureau.

Oscar Allison is secretary of the Water Board, secretary of the Lamb County Seed Association; Past alternate director of the county Farm Bureau, past secretary of the community Farm Bureau and community committeeman for the ASC.

Gerald is past secretary of the county Farm Bureau, vice president of the Lamb County Seed Association; community Farm Bureau president; a director of the building committee and an adult leader of the community 4H club.

Doyle Turner introduced commercial fertilizers into the community when he moved there from Lubbock county in 1950. He also lead in showing how proper rates and applications of irrigation water could influence crop production. Doyle uses cotton burrs and crop rotation with legumes, and has increased his overall production from 3-4 to 1 1/2 bales of cotton from 1950 to 1954. He has also increased his grain sorghum production from 2800 pounds in 1950 to 3900 pounds in 1954. Turner uses dairy cation of crops to offset one against the cost of the other. All work in close cooperation with the Extension Service, the Farm and Home Administration, SCS, PCA and other agencies in the county.

FIRST ORGANIZATION

The first organized community in the county was Pleasant Valley which was organized in 1949. The only community 4H club in the county is at Pleasant Valley, organized because the children of the community go to school in participate in Lamb county 4-H Bailey county, and so they could activity.

In 1952, the community, under the sponsorship of the Pleasant Valley Social Club erected aluminum signs to put their community "On the map." The community has entered the Rural Neighbor program, and has been instrumental in getting more and better rural roads in their part of the county.

All the men are active in community and county agriculture organizations, with Gerald Allison, Shelby and Doyle Turner members of the agricultural advisory committee to the county agent, David Eaton. Boys and girls of the community both take an active part in the 4-H club, and four girls have beef cattle projects in the club. At the 1954 county Achievement Day for 4-H clubs, the Pleasant Valley club had charge of the program because of their outstanding work.

The availability of irrigation water, coupled with scientific soil conservation and soil building practices also cost money so cattle, either beef or dairy breeds are raised, to offset this additional cost. Rained out alfalfa and grains are fed to cattle bringing their cost down, and the sale of the animals brings in additional income.

CORN CONTEST CHAMPS

Doyle Turners' twin sons, Doyle and Royce have made excellent showings in corn production, winning high yield in the county last year with 187 bushels, and winning highest yield in the state, this year with 204.3 bushels. George Wuerflein had the previous highest yield, growing the first 100 bushel corn in Lamb county, with 102 bushels in 1950.

Doyle Turner and the Allison brothers combine barnyard manure with their commercial fertilizers, cotton burrs and planned irrigation practices. Pre-planned irrigation is also used extensively in the community.

Harry Engelking, the Allison brothers and Wuerflein use clover and commercial fertilizers, and are advocates of the use of small grains to improve their soil.

Engelking holds the county wheat record of 55 bushels in 1954, and Wuerflein hold the county oats production with 66 bushels in the same year.

Shelby pioneered the use of phosphates on alfalfa and completely mechanized hay production in alfalfa.

Engelking was the first in the county to use commercial fertilizers, while the practice of overseeding wheat with clover in the spring is attributed to the Allison brothers.

Engelking raises wheat and barley; Wuerflein grows oats and barley; the Allisons specialize in grain sorghums, as does Doyle Turner, while Gerald Allison and Shelby specialize in alfalfa.

The deep breaking plow and the 60 foot land plane were introduced by the Allisons, who also pioneered in irrigation practices and using clover as a cover crop. They grew three crops in two years the first season they came to the community. Pioneered improved pasture with 160 acres planted in 1949.

Shelby has served two years on the community Farm Bureau; Wuerflein a year; Engelking two years and Gerald Allison a year.

In 1952 the community persuaded Guy Nichols to build a new electric gin in the area, and the first year ginned more than 7,000 bales with him, an average of more than 90 bales per family. Soil Conservation tours have been held in the community or included in it for three years, and foreign exchange students from The Netherlands have been quartered on the farm in the community for two years.
