EMA Achieves First Major Goal

It was a happy group of merchants and other interested people who witnessed the annual culmination of several weeks of hard work by the Earth Merchants Association last Saturday evening. The group has been putting together an auction consisting of totally donated articles from merchants and citizens of Earth and the surrounding area. Most of the items auctioned were new but all were of good quality.

The goal of the association had been to accumulate enough money to help pay the expenses of the Roping Club for the annual barbecue at the Rodeo. The goal was $1,000, which was reached about two third through the evening. The total from the auction and the concession stand was just over $1,400.

That portion of the money that was not donated to the Roping Club, will be used to pay some of the expenses and the rest will be put to good use in the community.

GARY BULLS, President of the Earth Merchants Association presented a check for $1,000 to Lexie Branscum of the Roping Club. The check was from proceeds of the Auction staged by the Association last Saturday evening.

CB Club

In their regular business meeting Thursday night, members of the Lamb County CB Club voted to reimburse the president, Artis Hill, for a donation he gave to a stranded Broderick, California woman who was returning home from a funeral she attended in Louisiana.

She had run out of gasoline, and didn't have funds to get home, so Hill presented her with $35 of his money and $5 from another club member.

Members received tickets for camping equipment that will be given away at 5 p.m. Saturday, May 21. The equipment is now on display in the window at Sports World in Littlefield.

Members decided to write a letter of thanks to Jack Taylor, who donated two CB radios to the club, discussed additions to the by-laws, and heard the treasurer's report and minutes of the last meeting.

Linda Bundick, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Mr. and Mrs. James Wheat, members of the committee, are to begin work on planning a coffee break Saturday, May 21, at the intersection of Phelps Avenue and Bypass 84, in front of Wilemon Oil Co. Free coffee will be provided for travelers, or other interested CB'ers.

Members discussed their denim vests, and voted to okay the purchase of available white trim to finish them with; and voted to purchase officer and director pens, to be passed from officer to officer and from director to director with the elections each year.

President Hill presented an idea of possibly belonging to REACT or ALERT teams, and members okayed the idea to have a representative speak at the next meeting.

Members voted to have opinions of at least three officers or directors to be consulted, during times of emergencies, when funds are needed to be drawn from the Club account.

Ross Lumsden won the night's door prize of an extension speaker, during a drawing from a list of names of everyone present, to close out the night's meeting.

TREMENDOUS TRIFLES

THE JEST THAT AIDED OUR LIBERTIES

The law of Habeas Corpus—one of the keystones of our present day liberties—was passed because of a joke about the great size of one of those voting for it.

Before the reign of Charles II in England, a man could be convicted of almost any crime on the calendar without being allowed to make his defense before the court or even to appear at his own trial.

Then the law of Habeas Corpus was passed. The Latin phrase said "Produce the Body"—Produce the prisoner and bring him before the court which is trying him.

It was a tremendous victory for human rights—a great step in progress of civil liberty. It is regarded as one of the great achievements of the reign of Charles II, altho in fact, Charles did not favor it, though because of the general unrest and public demand for it, he did not dare oppose it.

But what did a fat lord have to do with it? A fat lord had everything to do with it. The bill was passed because one very fat lord was counted as 10. Bishop Burnet recorded the story as follows:

"Lord Grey and Lord Norreys were named to be the tellers, Lord Norreys being a man subject to vapours, was not at all times attentive to what he was doing. So a very fat lord coming in, Lord Grey counted him for ten, as a jest at first, but seeing Lord Norreys had not observed it, he went on with his misreckoning of ten. So it was reported to the house and declared that they, that were for the bill, were in the majority."

Altho the members of the Parliament who were for and against the bill were very nearly tied, the opponents of the bill did not expect the measure to pass. When the count was reported as 57 for the bill and 55 against it, they showed surprise. Lord Shaftesbury, who championed the bill and feared a mistake had been made, immediately rose and delivered a long speech, until several Peers had gone in and come out. When he sat down it was then impossible to recount the vote.

The Parliament Journal for that day shows only 107 members present during the entire day, five less than the recorded vote on this important bill.

So if the fat lord had not been very, very fat, Lord Grey would not have had his little jest, or as a consequence, his very important majority. The law of Habeas Corpus and the interest of civil justice would have received a great setback.

'Disaster Survival Test' Set For Viewing Here

More than 90 per cent of the loss of life and more than half of the property loss associated with national disasters is unnecessary and preventable. Charles F. Richter, formulator of the Richter Scale for measuring the intensity of earthquakes, once claimed.

But, he added, "until Americans are no longer ignorant and unprepared to cope with emergencies, more death and destruction is inevitable."

The National Broadcasting Company and the National Safety Council will try to change that situation May 1 with a special, nationally-televised, audience-participation program on major calamities, "The National Disaster Survival Test."

A documentary on the causes, results and incorrect and correct responses to such calamities as tornadoes, hurricanes, flash floods, fires and ice storms, the program will be aired locally beginning at 7 p.m., May 1, on KCBD-TV, Channel 11.

"By making people aware of how to deal with disasters, this one program could very well save lives, prevent thousands of injuries and protect millions of dollars of property."

National Safety Council President Vincent L. Toffany said.

Increased awareness of "no panic, take it easy" responses to major calamities will be stressed by providing viewers with dramatic reenactments of past disasters, films of such calamities and special interviews, with each scene ending in a question about how the viewer would respond.

The questions, posed by television commentator and Emmy Award winner Tom Snyder, will be answered through correct reenactment of the response necessary to survive the disaster in question, Toffany said.

The viewer will be able to rate his own judgment and several other characteristics through the use of special test forms accompanying the series. The forms can be found in today's Avalanche-Journal, in the May 1 Avalanche-Journal or in this month's TV Guide.

On the forms, viewers will mark their response as to what their reaction would be if, for instance, they were the lone survivor of a plane crash in the mountains in the winter, if they were on a highway when a tornado struck, or if they were alone with someone suffering a heart attack during an earthquake, or if they were trapped in a beach house during a hurricane. In another category, viewers will be asked their reaction if they were to be trapped in a burning building or what their reaction would be if they were caught in a flash flood.

Another section will question what viewers would do if lightning struck a person at their side, if a forest fire imperiled their campsite, or if the car they were driving spun out of control on an icy highway.

Special dramatic reenactments and films of actual disasters will be provided to give the viewer a more realistic feeling of what being in the situation under study would be like, Toffany said.

Following reports on the causes and results of the calamity by special NBC News personnel, the viewer will be shown the correct response to the problem presented through more dramatic interpretations.

The viewer will be able to compare his answers on the test form to those of viewers in five other test cities. Responses will indicate which age groups, sex groups, and professional groups came up with the correct response the most number of times.

The test form will tell the viewer how good his judgment on what he would do in the situation is, how well he really knows disaster survival techniques, how well he can spot "survival-proof or disaster-prone" behavior, how well he can operate under stress and how well he can lead or follow in emergency situations.

Transportation — America's Lifelines

It is time to think National Transportation Week which will be celebrated May 15-21 this year. And that slogan will be appearing on thousands of bumpers all over the State of Texas as a special highlight of that celebration. District Engineer, George C. Wall, Jr., and Mayor, Roy Bass kicked off the bumper sticker slogan in Lubbock at 9:00 A.M., Friday, April 15, 1977.

If the slogan seems familiar, it was originally used by the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials for the 1975 Highway and Transportation Week observance. AASHTO continued the slogan as a legacy when they joined the Traffic Clubs International, the sponsors of National Transportation Week, in a single observance.

AASHTO purchased and distributed bumper stickers emblazoned with "Transportation — America's Lifelines" to help commemorate their first year of participation in National Transportation Week and to remind motorists of the importance of transportation in their daily lives. Private transportation companies also have purchased thousands of the stickers for their use.

"Good transportation is so much a part of the things we do that we just take it for granted," said Engineer-Director Luther DeBerry of the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation and a member of AASHTO. "Our state literally thrives on mobility," DeBerry said. "Texas is a national leader in transportation with more miles of railroads and pipelines than any other state, 13 deepwater ports, the longest section of the important Gulf Intracoastal Waterway and 71,000 miles of some of the best highways in the nation."

With the help of the activities during National Transportation Week and the bumper stickers, Texans will have a chance to reflect on what transportation means to each of them individually.

EARTH

Pioneer Days

PIONEER DAYS By Pete Peterman

Back in 1926 from the Red Hills of Oklahoma, the newly established State created from Indian territory came father and son, V.M. Peterman and his dad, seeking land for the young man to establish a home. They found something in Lamb County that they decided would do. So, they purchased one labor of semi-sandy land in the Sod House pasture from Halsell Land Company of the newly established town of Amherst. They made a down payment and built a box-car shack, dug a tin horn well and went back to Oklahoma. Now about the time V.M. was ready to move his earthly belongings out west a terrible sand storm on Thanksgiving Day 'which will long be remembered by those who lived anywhere in the Southwest' destroyed the Peterman crop in Oklahoma. So, he came to Lamb County in his old car, and worked at picking cotton and working at the cotton gins all winter. The winter was mild and no rain since the Thanksgiving storm. Young Pete went back to Oklahoma and married his young sweetheart of long standing, and one week later they fixed a covered wagon, tied on the absolute necessities of life, and with two work horses, a span of mules, two cows and his favorite saddle pony 'Button' tied on the side, he left his wife to bring the car. Took a lot of determination to head southwest facing the dusty wind and with all the livestock and necessary supplies that had to be taken along. Just one week later the young bride and her father-in-law got in the car to see what had happened to Pete. They drove most of the day, and late that evening, there near Nazareth, Texas, they came upon what was left of a tired and weary man. Emily, the young and determined wife says to dad, 'you go on to Amherst, I am going to stay here with Pete. They traveled on until sundown and just south of Dimmitt, they found a place to get water and make camp. So that night Emily cooked the first meal on a campfire they had ever eaten alone. They slept in the covered wagon, and the next morning when the sun came up, Pete and Emily were on their way going west.

After two more days they drove up to the little shack on the prairie. Night was falling fast and water for the livestock was a must. They stopped at the nearest neighbor about half a mile away and watered the livestock, but only the water in the wagon was available for two dusty tired pioneers. Pete dug out from the bottom of the wagon a six-foot galvanized well bucket about four inches in diameter with a bail on top and a valve fixed in the bottom. A set of tripods like we weighed cotton on was set up. A cast iron pulley made for this purpose, and some 50 feet of rope that had come all the way from Oklahoma, and soon we had water to drink and for all additional purposes. But also one of mama's old brooms that had its place on the wagon was brought into service. Imagine the box-car shack made of box & strips, and little protection from the sand and weather and where it had not rained since the Thanksgiving storm. But, soon they had it reasonably clean and with the horses and other livestock tied to the wagon, they settled down for their first night in their own abode. Pete spent most of the next day taking down a line fence and post to build a temporary corral or pen for the horses. Emily tidied up the shack and drew water for all the livestock.

Now, there happened to be a city dump or junk yard, some three miles away, and the newcomers went there for some discarded articles they could use. An old barrel that could be cut out and used for a horse trough; some old construction timbers and boards and pipe, the Petermans were soon in business and happy in their new home.

Pete took the walking plow from the side of the wagon, rigged up the necessary equipment to go to plowing. Emily drew the water for the horses and kept the house while Pete walked and followed the plow to get some land ready to plant whenever it rained. Pete remisses that it never rained a drop from the time they got there until the fifth day of June. So, there was no way to plow much, or make arrangements for the expected crop.

The folks had a lot of energy and time on their hands. From some old worn out well equipment pipe they got at the junk yard, they rigged pipe and a cylinder for the well and soon had it so they could pump water by hand, and what a relief.

There is a book of happenings in their young life, if one cared to reminisce their way of life in the next few years.

Soon after they got here a group of neighbors got together to build a Rocky Ford Tabernacle, or community center. Not one foot of road had ever been graded in that part of the county. Soon the Black-water Draw became impossible and gyp rock from near by was hauled by the community and placed in the creekbed so that the wagons and Model T's could get across to go to town. Thus, the famous Rocky Ford Crossing came into being, and for several years was the only dependable crossing north and south for many miles, but, this is not the purpose of this story, so we move along.

During the drouth and while waiting for rain, the Peterman's decided to build a better way to get water. Now, you have pumped water by hand or drawn with a bucket, you can guess the relief this little Dutch four-paddle monster meant to the Petermans. This mill pumped an abundance of water to supply the house. The livestock and a small garden required a lot of loving care to keep it in tact; when the wind from the right direction blew too hard, water was plentiful, but a sandstorm, or any kind of a storm was a must. You had to cut the mill off and tie it up, even if you did need some water. But, with a lot of courage and determination the Petermans used this as their only water supply for nearly two years. And just before the Great Depression of '29, they gathered together enough cream, eggs, and other farm products to dig a new well, and put up a new depmster mill.

Now times have changed for the Petermans and after 47 years they moved to Littlefield, and now live in the modest home at 400 Crescent Drive.

Pete says let us live in our house by the side of the park where all our freinds go by. Let us live by the side of the road, and be a freind of man. Lamb County has indeed been good to us, and our every hope is that the world, and Lamb County, will always be a little bit better by our having been here.

Wayland Hosts Track & Field Meet

Seven defending champions and a host of other quality performers highlight the field for the 14th Annual All-College Track and Field Meet on Friday, April 29, in Wayland Bowl on the Wayland Baptist College campus in Plainview.

West Texas State will be a slight favorite over Texas Tech though the Raiders won last year's meet with 140 points to 125 1/2 for WT. Wayland was third with 67 1/2 and Eastern New Mexico scored 60. Also in the field will be Lubbock Christian, McMurtry, New Mexico State and Southwestern.

Oklahoma.

Prelims and field finals start at 3 p.m. with running finals at 5:15, beginning with a Master's Mile for local businessmen. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Last year, West Texas and Tech each won seven events in the 17-event card. Kenyan distance runner Joseph Kemei won the mile and three-mile while Tech was led by William Pierson's double victory in the 220 and 440.

Wayland's Randy Lightfoot leads the nation's ANIA high hurdlers with a 13.65 while Zach Cummings of WT has run 13.75 and David Willis of the Canyon school has done 13.9. Kemei recently ran a 4:01.5 mile and could be the first ever to break the magical 4-minute barrier here. WBC's Kevin Shaw, top three-miler in the NAIA with a 13.46.1, will battle Tech's Greg Lautenslager who has turned 13:51.79.

Matching afterburners in the 100 will be WT's Alvis Wright who has clocked 9.4 and Charles Green of Tech with a wind-aided 9.5. LCC's Ricky Moore has high jumped 6-11, Canadian Olympian Jim McAndrew of Tech has long jumped 25-1 1/4, J. O. Amoah of Eastern has triple jumped 48 feet, Wayland's Bruce Basye has thrown the javelin 210-3, Dennis Diaz of New Mexico State has heaved the shot 55 feet, Tommy Humphries of WT has pole vaulted 15-3, and Marc Taylor of Tech has thrown the discus 163-7.

Green and Pierson of Tech and Alvis and Karl Wright of WT have run under 22.0 in the 220, Randy Wilkovich of Wayland has timed 1:53.0 in the 880, WT, Tech and Wayland are in the 40-41-second range in the 440 relay and Tech has run a 3:11.59 mile relay.
