HAVE WE FORGOTTEN SO SOON

What has happened to our Patriotism for our country and our respect for those who gave their lives for our freedom? Memorial Day on the Main Street of Earth there were only 3 Flags flown in memory of those who died for our country, meaning YOU and I.

What has happened, have we forgotten so soon??

Have we grown so cold and indifferent to God and country that we are ready to give it all to the dictators and ungodly, who will not allow such freedoms as we now enjoy?

What do you suppose our loved ones, those red blooded Americans, who made the supreme sacrifice for us, would think if they could have seen our apathy this Memorial Day?? Would they think it has all been in Vain?

Yes! Our Flag was very conspicuous by its absence on the streets of Earth this past Memorial Day.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

The story has often been related of the lemmings of the Arctic who every once in a while, following erratic leaders, all plunge into icy waters to commit mass suicide.

While some wonder has been expressed by naturalists as to what causes this phenomenon, many economists also wonder what causes labor leaders to lead the American economic suicide.

There is a C. W. Harder lesson to be learned from the recent announcement of Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp. of its closing of the mill at Alquippa, Pennsylvania. Because this company, which has been making nails since its founding 113 years ago can no longer compete with foreign production, it is forced to close down, releasing 100 workers. Prior to the complete closing of the plant, reduced sales had caused loss of jobs for 200.

Even the mighty U.S. Steel is no longer interested in selling nails and rods, while Jones & Laughlin stopped making fencing for the same reason.

In making the announcement of the closing, J & L reported that in 1964 some 50 per cent of all nails used in the U.S. came from overseas with this percentage steadily increasing since that time.

Of course, government policies of the past twenty years or so in cutting down the U.S. protective tariff system has played a part in this loss of jobs, influenced by "one world thinkers" in State Dept. But alert labor leaders would have long ago recognized the situation as it exists, and either have thrown support behind higher tariff protection, or else have modified demands on wages, hours, and fringe benefits so that American industry could compete and continue to supply jobs.

The facts do not lend themselves to short sighted vision. It must be recognized that the domestic supply of high grade iron ores have been largely depleted and a great deal of the U.S. steel making capacity is now dependent on taconite, or a low grade ore, running about 20 per cent iron content as compared to around a 32 per cent iron ore still being mined in the Ruhr valley.

But due to the excessive demands of the labor leaders, it is even possible today for nations such as Japan which has neither sufficient coal nor iron, to haul these items across oceans, make the ore into steel and then ship the finished product into the U.S. at price the U.S. industry cannot meet.

Of course, for high quality steels, the U.S. is still the leading producer. But these steels are largely used for armor plate, and other military needs. Thus, as long as it is necessary for the U.S. to maintain a strong military posture, the labor leaders will be supported by this policy.

However, while bona fide world peace would necessitate many economic adjustments, for today's labor leaders such world wide tranquility would be disaster.

Be Prepared For Family Emergencies

College Station- Recent severe spring storms, floods and tornadoes remind Texans that being prepared for any emergency is important, says Miss Sherilyn Bailey, Extension rural civil defense specialist at Texas A&M University.

Preparedness can save many lives, especially if some family members are away from home at the time of the emergency. Discuss emergency planning as a family, suggests Miss Bailey. Identify all possible emergencies encountered by the family, and prepare for them.

Next, discuss each individual emergency and its effects in terms of where you live where family members go to school or to work. Consider all possible situations, such as a tornado while at work, a severe windstorm while at school, or a flood while traveling.

After discussing all possible emergencies and situations, compare them in terms of necessary preparedness. Make a written list of the preparedness steps necessary to meet all emergency situations and assign steps to family members.

Post the emergency preparedness steps agreed upon in a prominent place to remind family members of their responsibilities. Also determine how and who will maintain your family's preparedness, such as rotating food supplies and keeping emergency cooking equipment in good condition.

Follow these few emergency preparedness steps and you'll not only protect your family during an emergency, but also reduce anxiety due to a lack of preparedness, concludes the specialist.

Mrs. Ross Middleton and Janis Holt were in Mulshoe Saturday on business.

Kleingrass Looks Good For Winter Pasture

Beeville- Researchers here sat up and took notice when they saw the size of cattle gains on a Kleingrass pasture last winter.

At Texas A&M University's Coastal Bend Experiment Station near here, 10 steers grazed a 13 acre Kleingrass field from November to March. No supplemental feed was given. Result: the animals gained an average of 1.1 pounds a day each, according to Bill Conrad, A&M researcher in charge of the test.

Conrad said he is looking for a grass that will hold some of its nutritive value into the winter, and eliminate the need for hay-Kleingrass may be the one.

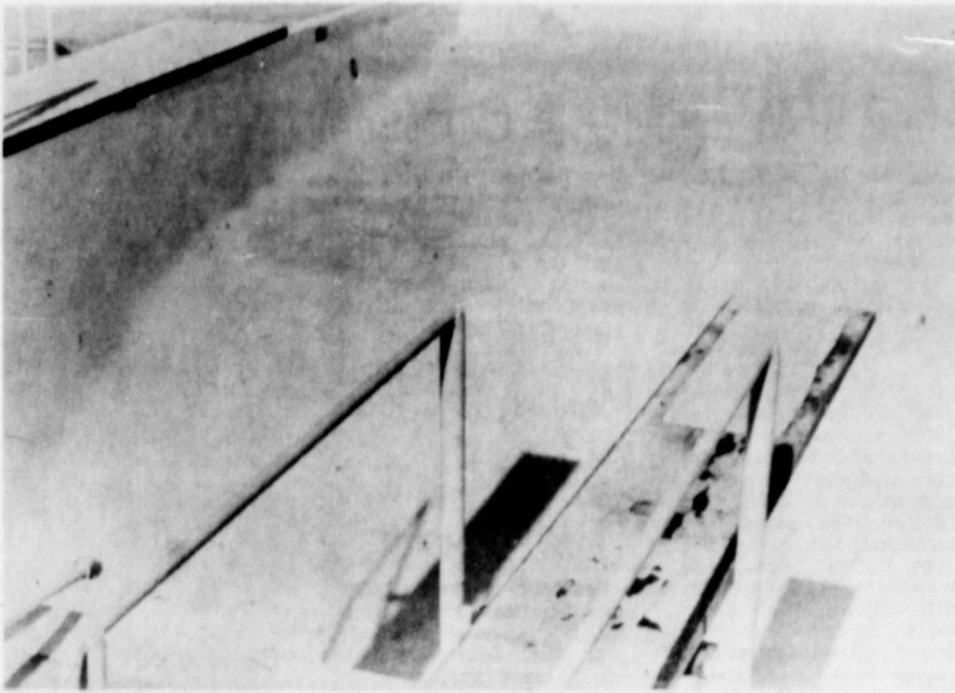

Kleingrass is a perennial, warm-season bunchgrass introduced from Africa. It's adapted to a wide range of soil types and climatic conditions in Texas, says Albert Novosad, Extension pasture specialist at A&M.

Presently, it grows from the lower Valley, through the Gulf Coast and Blacklands to the Panhandle, said Novosad.

According to Dr. E. C. Holt, grass specialist at A&M, Kleingrass begins growth in early spring and remains green until late fall. In small plot studies, the grass has grown well and maintained a high leaf to stem ratio, and revealed a high degree of tolerance to cool weather, he said.

In the Beeville test, a freeze cured the top of the grass, but the bottom remained green during the entire winter. According to the researchers, steers ate the cured forage along with the green growth without any noticeable selectivity.

They caution the Kleingrass is not a "wonder" grass—but at the same time are stepping up tests, with hopes the good results will continue.

IMPROVEMENTS ON CITY POOL were made in readiness for its opening Saturday, June 4. The pool has been cleaned and repainted, benches rebuilt and painted and a roof has been put on the girls dressing room.

Support of A Feedlot Licensing Law Sought by State Cattle Feeders Division

Lloyd Bergsma, director of the Cattle Feeders Division of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, testified before the five-man House Interim Committee of Agriculture in Dallas Tuesday, May 24.

In his testimony, Bergsma called for support of a feedlot licensing law to assure proper operation of feedlots in the state. The law is needed because of the increasing numbers of feedlots and the population changes whereby people are living closer together.

In March 1966, the Cattle Feeders' Committee of TSCRA adopted the following resolution in regard to a Feedlot Licensing Law.

Whereas, dramatic changes have taken place in our society and the country's population is becoming increasingly urban, and,

Whereas, there is need for rules and regulations to govern the operation of commercial cattle feedyards to assure they are operated in a manner which is in the best interest of all members of our society, and,

Whereas, such regulations can best be instigated through legislative action by the Legislature of the State of Texas,

Therefore, be it resolved that the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association go on record favoring a licensing law of commercial cattle feedyards with a capacity of one thousand or more head in Texas.

Be it further resolved that the board of directors of the Association take the initiative in preparing for submission to the Legislature, proper legislation to accomplish the above purpose. The proposed legislation would provide guidelines for the proper operation of cattle feeding operations, provide for inspection by a qualified state agency to see that the operations are conducted in accordance with the guidelines, to assure all segments of the society a fair and reasonable consideration in conflicts and allow the continued development of the cattle feeding industry in Texas by providing the industry reasonable protection from harassment.

Bergsma concluded that the law is not intended to limit the entry of groups or individuals into the cattle feeding business. "The cattle feeding industry realizes it has responsibilities," Bergsma said. "It wants to take the lead in developing a Texas Feedlot Licensing Law that will be in the best interests of all Texas citizens."

TORNADO What To Expect And Some Rules That Might Save A Life

What should you do if you see a tornado?
How can you know if a twister is coming at night?
What precautions can be taken?

These are three questions frequently asked by persons to police and weather bureau officials.

Many "wives tales" circulate throughout the Midwest which answer these questions in one way or another, but only a person who knows and understands tornadoes can give the correct answers to these questions.

Every year in the months of April through September persons in the Earth-Springlake area often find themselves under severe weather or tornado alerts.

When this happens, people begin to watch the skies for the terrifying funnel clouds which have been responsible for millions of dollars of property damage and taken hundreds of lives.

When a tornado or severe weather alert is given for Earth-Springlake residents should listen for local sirens and tune in to the county radio station or one of the two Lubbock television stations.

In a severe weather alert, local police cover the area, watching for signs of a tornado.

If a tornado is spotted in the area the siren at the fire station and those mounted at other advantageous spots over town will be turned on and will sound out pulsating blasts over seventeen seconds for a long period of time.

When a person spots a tornado, either on the ground or in the air, he should call either the local police department, county police in Littlefield, Fire Chief, Phil Raught, or the weather bureau in Lubbock, giving the location and direction of movement of the cell.

One should never tie up these lines for any other reason than to report severe weather activity.

A barometer can be a man's best friend at night when under a severe weather alert.

If a tornado is approaching the area, there will be a rise in pressure when it is about two miles out and then a sudden drop--seven to eight hundredths every 15-30 minutes a cell moves closer.

If this drop is noted, one should take cover for a tornado, because there is one in the immediate area.

One of the many thoughts about tornadoes is that just before they hit, the weather suddenly becomes quiet, but, according to weather bureau officials, a tornado can strike during the most torrential rain and hail storm.

There are a number of precautions which can be taken to preserve both lives and property.

The most important thing is to save one's life.

This can easily be done if one has access to an underground storm shelter, but if there is no shelter of this type there are still ways of finding a safe place.

At all times, keep a battery operated radio nearby, officials recommend.

One should try to get into a small room away from windows or doors. The smaller the room, the less the chance of getting hurt, since most injuries are caused by flying debris.

A small closet near the middle of the house would be best, but a bathroom also serves very well for a shelter, weathermen said.

The smaller the room, the less roof space is spanned which could possibly fall in on a person.

To lower the damage done to a home or any kind of building, a window should be opened facing the tornado.

At night, one would be wise to open both a south and west window. Weather bureau officials say that 99 percent of tornadoes in this area come from either the southwest or the South.

A tornado suddenly lowers the pressure. If there is no outlet for the air inside the building, it may rip apart at its weakest points.

Many of the structures in this area can endure the winds inside tornadoes, but cannot

Miss Huffman Speaks To Young People At Springlake Church

Miss Dixie Huffman, Sociology major at Wayland Baptist College, was guest speaker Sunday evening during the Training Union hour at the First Baptist Church, Springlake.

Miss Huffman has served in the Peace Corps in the Dominican Republic, and was recently a social welfare worker in the President's Poverty Program in Oregon.

She told of her many experiences while in the Peace Corps, and discussed its various training features.

Miss Huffman received her Peace Corps training in Puerto Rico.

The customs of the people of the people of both the Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico seemed to amaze Miss Huffman more than anything else. She said, "The attitude of the people when they realized they were trying to help them is just wonderful. They would do anything for us, and would go as far as to give us their last bit of food."

Miss Huffman went on to explain that while working for the government they were not allowed to be a witness for Christ, to the people as a missionary would do, but she said, "The greatest witness we can give for Christ wherever we are is to be ourselves and to live the life of a true born-again Christian."

Approximately 50 young people were present for Miss Huffman's address.

Game Bird Ranch Being Prepared On H. L. Wilson Farm

A game bird ranch is currently underway on the H. L. Wilson Farm located 7 miles north and 2 miles east of Earth, with hunting expected to be permitted on the ranch in early July.

Wilson presently has approximately 600 Quail and about the same number of Pheasant, ranging from day old to grown. He also has 300 eggs now in the incubator.

Wilson presently is equipped with two incubators with a setting capacity of 6400 eggs.

Among the species of Pheasant on the Wilson Game Bird

Ranch, are Golden, Edwards, Reeves, and Silver Pheasant. In the Quail line Wilson now has the Bob White, Tennessee Red, and Pharo Quail.

The birds are at present in pens on the bird ranch, however Wilson extends an invitation to area folks to drive out and look at his birds which will be available for hunting within the near future. Wilson said he began the bird business as a hobby, but later decided it was so interesting, he would go into the business commercially.

Wheat Crop Benefitted By Recent Rains

Recent rains over parts of the Texas wheat belt have been of some benefit. However, in many areas the rains came too late to benefit the dry-land acreage. Yields from irrigated acreage are expected to be from good to average. No damage has been reported from insects or disease.

In Lamb and Bailey counties, irrigated wheat is average.

The recent rains have helped dry-land acreage quite well, according to a report received from the Texas Employment Commission.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Littleton spent the weekend in Wheeler with her brother-in-law, C. E. Roper, who is ill, withstand the sudden drop in pressure.

The most important things to remember during a tornado alert are to keep listening to a radio or television station and for local sirens and to report any severe activity as soon as possible to the proper authorities, giving the direction in which the tornado is moving.

Letter To The Editor

The following letter interest to the area girl scouts and their leaders was received recently by Mrs. Wilson Lewis. The letter is written by Mrs. Mary "Skeets" Anderson, who resigned her post as District Advisor of the Caprock Girl Scout Council, in February. Mrs. Anderson is presently working in the Girl Scouts Camp at Rocky River Ranch in Wimberly.

The letter reads as follows:
Dear friends in Earth Neighborhood;

I hope that you do not think that I am ungrateful for the lovely western shirt that you gave me. I have wanted to find time to drop more than a little Thank You Note.

I wish I had time to write to each of you to tell you about the country and the camp, but even space does not permit it.

We are very busy with camp starting in just a few weeks. I guess you all are rushed to get everything finished by time schools out also.

We have had week-end groups here almost every weekend. Church and school groups, Girl Scout troops and college group, has really kept us busy to have everything ready for them and then clean up after them.

As you know it is taking some time for me to get used to such a different routine. Have traveled quite a bit since leaving there. Spent almost 3 weeks in Chicago, then spent 4 days in Lubbock, then got down here just in time to catch Mrs. Knolk for a trip to the valley. Then made another flying trip to Lubbock but since then have hardly been off the place.

Sure is different from Scout Camp and has made me appreciate the caretakers we had there. Wish we could afford some here. Lots of repairs, etc. to be done.

I wish I could tell you more about the camp and its program but will send you a camp folder instead.

I do hope that if any of you are in the country around here, you will stop by to see me. Would love to show you around and would love to see you.

Thanks again for the beautiful shirt and am real eager to get to wear it soon.

Love you all,
Skeet
(Mary Anderson)

Keaton gave several pointers on the prevention of fire in the home, and warned the guests of various causes of fires. One of the most frequent causes of fires, Keaton said, was allowing trash to accumulate around the house for a lengthy period of time.

A filmstrip was shown on home safety, following Keaton's address.

Other guests present from the Lubbock Fire Department were Fire Chief Hershel Sharp, RADEF officer Bill Payne, and Fire Marshal A. C. Black.

Federally Graded Meat Assures High Quality

College Station—Can a housewife in Texas get the same quality of federally graded meat as the food shopper in Florida buying a similar grade? Yes, says Mrs. Gwen Clyatt, Texas A&M University Extension consumer marketing specialist.

This consistent quality with in each grade results from the efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture Consumer and Marketing Service, she explains.

To make sure that meat is graded the same in all parts of the country at all time, meat grading supervisors regularly attend "refresher schools."

After the supervisors return to their home stations from these schools, they in turn, act as instructors and hold similar meetings with their assistants and graders.

"In this way, graders in all parts of the country are supplied with the same type of instructions which enables them to perform the consistent job of uniform grading required," Mrs. Clyatt explains.

Six Flags To Open Daily

Beginning Monday, May 30, Six Flags Over Texas will be open seven days a week from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. This schedule will be in effect throughout the summer months until Labor Day, September 5.

The popular 115-acre tourist attraction in Arlington has been operating on weekends only since opening this year on April 15.

Attendance figures to date are 162,468 as compared to 175,177 last year at the same time. However, Six Flags officials consider the current figures gratifying inasmuch as torrential rains this Spring affected approximately 75 percent of the Park's total operating days.

Reporting on Monday will be another 500 college and high school students who have been added to the Six Flags staff for the summer months. This brings the total complement of the Park's famed corps of lively young hosts and hostesses to 1,500.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"
By C. WILSON HARDER

The 13th amendment to the United States Constitution prohibits anyone being forced to involuntary servitude or in other words, work for nothing.

It so happens in Waterloo, Iowa, a D. J. Spensley firmly believes in this amendment. He takes the position that the United States government owes him some money for the time he has been forced to spend in preparing reports on his 21 employees in his dry cleaning establishment.

He recently presented the Internal Revenue Service office in Des Moines with a bill for service rendered totaling $3,000. Needless to say, he has not received payment.

But his position is that over the past five years to complete and file the various tax forms on the income tax withholding and social security taxes has required a total of 800 hours of his labor. He feels he is entitled to $3.75 per hour pay.

Of course, Mr. Spensley did not really expect a check reimbursing him for his labor.

But he is hopeful that with enough employers raising this issue, the Congress will see the justice of the position.

In fact, he actually does not particularly care if the government gives him a check in one lump sum. He has explained he would just as soon take reimbursement by deducting a small service fee from the employee taxes he turns in to the government until such time as the account is squared.

This matter of making the employer an unpaid collector of taxes has become quite a major one. Not only has the Federal government kept businessmen tied up for unaccounted hours of involuntary servitude, but state and sometimes even city government have followed this pattern.

There is also a consumer angle in this matter. While Mr. Spensley apparently is able to perform this unpaid labor himself, in many operations it is necessary to employ extra people to do the work.

These extra costs are, of course, added to the price customers must pay for goods and services. But the smaller businessmen, not having a large enough force of employees, must either find time during the working day, or in the evenings, or weekends.

It's quite a paradox when one thinks about it.

Less than 75 years after an amendment was made to the Constitution making it illegal to force anyone to work without compensation, the first laws were passed requiring businessmen to work for nothing. There is only one apparently legal loophole. The 13th amendment did state that anyone convicted of a crime should be subjected to involuntary servitude. Thus, it is possible that under the present day trend of decisions, the U.S. Supreme Court could hold that it was the intent of the Congress to declare it a crime for anybody to be in business.

Goodwin, Fort Worth, and Mrs. Gladys Goodwin.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hamilton and Butch were dinner guests Friday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bo Bryant and family, Dimmitt.
