

Recognize Anyone?

By: Karen Layman

FIRST ACCOUNT: It was a quiet night -- not much interesting going on in town -- then the fire whistle blew. Finally! A little excitement! Let's see, I believe the smoke's coming from over there. Bet I can beat all these other cars! See, now I'm in front, and if I ride the white line, no one can even try to pass me. But there are a dozen of us parked here right up front. Hmmm, wonder what the fire truck's doing way over there. Ha, somebody go tell those guys where the fire is!

SECOND ACCOUNT: What a beautiful day. Think I'll just take my good ol' easy time driving home and enjoy the scenery. That truck sure is coming up fast. Just don't understand why some people get in such a hurry these days. What nice crops this year. Wonder if ol' Harry's crops are... what? Those guys are right on my bumper! Those dumb flashing lights aren't going to help get around me -- can't he see all those cars coming the other way! How in the world does he expect to pass!

RESULT of Account One: First, the boy's game was quite costly. The home had already been burning a good while before being noticed. Once the fire truck was able to pick its way through the unnecessary traffic, the fire chief then had to get the "viewers" to move their cars and pickups to allow the truck to get close enough to the fire hydrant.

Secondly, all persons driving the vehicles blocking the way of the fire truck were greeted with a ticket, allowing each one to pay a $200.00 fine for their "front row seats."

RESULT of Account Two: Once again, the lack of common sense was very costly. Despite the flashing lights and sirens, the firemen had to follow along at an unusually slow pace until the oncoming traffic cleared. By then, they were unable to reach the fire in time to save much of the blazing home.

Secondly, the fire chief took the license number of the car involved, and the police presented the driver with a ticket for failing to pull over and let an emergency vehicle pass. The fine was $200.00.

First concern in each such instance -- and these are very common occurrences -- is that lives are sometimes involved and almost always private property is involved. If these facts alone aren't enough to cause necessary public response, then heavy fines must be issued. Although the local fire department has not yet resorted to this, the problem is becoming extreme.

Fires can be quite costly in more ways than one. No one is allowed to follow the fire truck (or any emergency vehicle being used enroute to a fire) closer than 500 feet: nor is anyone unauthorized allowed to park or drive within one block of the fire. Fines for not complying with these laws are $1 - $200 (usually set at $200. by the judge.) The fine for running over a fire hose is usually $200.00, plus cost of the hose, which averages another $200.00.

Time is very important. Please use your common sense and stay away from fires. If you are on the highway and a fire truck -- or any member of the local fire department enroute to a fire -- approaches, please pull over to allow the vehicle to pass.

WHO SHOULD CONTROL PUBLIC EDUCATION?

Many farmers serve on school boards, supposedly as representatives of the taxpaying public. Now you're accused of selling out to the special interests of professional educators.

By GENE LOGSDON

A great debate in public education is raging nationwide -- the issue: who's in control, the laymen or the professional educators? But the question is even more basic: Is the state primarily responsible for educating our children, or are parents?

The law says parents, but the way the law is bending, parental responsibility seems to end with financing the education. The state wants to take over from there.

"The public is losing control of its schools just as it has lost control of many of its other institutions," says Loren E. Klaus, president of Shawnee College in Illinois. "Most citizens are unaware that massively organized and well-financed teacher groups are trying to set school policy under the guise of improving their working conditions."

That claim has been voiced, and hotly denied by teacher unions, during teacher contract negotiations throughout the country this fall. And the issue is just as lively in rural areas as in big cities. "The school board has so little real control over how money is spent that it's unbelievable," says Owen Unangst, farmer and board member in Northampton Co., Pa. "But I think it's inaccurate to blame it directly on the teachers whose salaries in our district now exceed our entire local revenues. The real reason is that state and federal governments call the shots. Government passes out funds with one hand, and new regulations and programs with the other. Everytime you accept the money, you lose more freedom."

But if we're losing control of our schools, the people and their school boards have let it happen, say aroused citizens. They insist:

• The public doesn't care enough about education. "We've had no drastic change in personnel on our school board in 25 years," says Unangst. "Few people want the job. Board members run for re-election unopposed."

• Board members "sell out" to the school administration. "We're being accused of that right now, as are many boards," says Unangst. "But the accusation is not an easy one to defend. When I first came on the board, we had a very dictatorial superintendent, although he was a good educator. I was amazed at the way the board rubber-stamped everything he proposed. But the superintendent we have now is excellent in my opinion, and I happen to agree with him on most issues we are debating now."

• Board members don't have the time to do their jobs properly. "There's some truth to that," says Unangst. "Almost all members have other full time jobs. There's talk of making positions on the board salaried, so a guy could devote full time to riding herd on education. But I'm not at all sure that would solve the problem. Who has ever decided just what qualifications a good board member should have?"

• Boards operate too much in secrecy. "I've tried to do something about that," says Dennis Barnes, board member in rural Wyandot Co., Ohio. "The times of special meetings were not being made public in our district. That's contradictory to the Ohio law in my opinion, but the superintendent and other board members oppose me strongly in my attempts to get better communication between people, their board, and their school officials."

• Board members aren't competent enough to judge whether or how education can be improved. "That's exactly what the professional educators want to brainwash the public into believing," says Barnes. "And the typical board member believes it. That is why he will take on faith just about anything the administrators of the school insist is the right thing to do." Adds Klaus, "Boards must realize that educational experts come and go, but the board and the people must live with programs that are merely fads rather than true innovations."

• Board members are afraid to act with the responsibility of their office. "They don't want to make trouble," says Barnes. "For example, most board members are convinced they can't fire an incompetent teacher with tenure. You most certainly can, but to do it, you have to take on the whole structure of statism built into the public school system. Boards are afraid to try because they might incur disfavor and lose those nice federal funds."

Barnes is a good example of a new kind of school board member emerging in rural school systems. Young (39), well-educated, successful in business, extremely self-reliant after a "root, hog or die" upbringing on a small farm, he tends to be unawed by "how we do things around here."

To keep education as a function of democracy, college president Klaus lays down a few guidelines to school boards:

1. You are calling the shots, not the professional educators. Make them explain their educational programs. If they can't, they probably don't understand them either. Demand written policies explaining regulations for handling faculty, student and parent concerns.

2. Your main concern is education, not how many trees to plant in front of the school. Your superintendent and principals' main concern is also education, not internal office work or shuffling the lunch room money. You must know the differences between true innovation and mere fad -- in education and building design. Curriculum is too important to be left to teachers.

3. Tell your superintendent what you expect of him and demand that he keep you informed on all aspects of education in the classroom. But don't dilute his authority over his staff. Ask hard questions. Why are we doing what we're doing? Why do we want to make this change?

4. Demand that teachers be rated. If the professionals say that skills can't be measured, ask why not. The educational profession claims it can measure productivity of other people. Why not its own? Merit pay is an idea whose time has come. So long as you pay all teachers the same scale, there is no reason to expect improvement.

5. Explain contracts to teachers so they know precisely the terms under which they are hired. Protect your good teachers from harassment by lazy ones. Get rid of incompetents. Teachers with tenure can be dismissed. Don't let administrators fool you on this.

6. Remember that mandatory collective bargaining laws guarantee public control, not employee control, of public schools.

People generally get the kind of government they deserve. This principle holds true of school systems. What are you doing about it? END

Services For R. L. McGowen Today

Funeral services for Richard Lynn McGowen, 55, will be held today, Thursday, January 25 at 2 p.m. in the Sunnyside Baptist Church with Rev. Mack Turner, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in the Springlake Cemetery with Parson-Ellis-Singleton Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

McGowen, who had moved to Springlake, about a year ago, from the Sunnyside community died about 2 p.m. Monday in the Veterans Hospital in Amarillo. He had been a patient for 11 days. He had been in the South Plains Hospital in Amherst for one week before being transferred to the Veterans Hospital. McGowen had been in ill health for the past 2 months.

Doctors indicated that death was caused by sclerosis of the liver, but an autopsy was to be performed to determine if other causes were involved.

McGowen grew up in Silverton and joined the Baptist Church early in his youth.

He belonged to the American Legion and Lions Club while living in Amarillo.

He married Aulgia Gerene Bingham on January 26, 1947, in Silverton.

They had lived in the Sunnyside and Springlake communities for the past six years. McGowen was engaged in farming in the Springlake area.

Survivors include his wife, Aulgia Gerene; three daughters, Jolene, Peggy, and Carolyn, all of Springlake; five sons, Danny, stationed in Germany, Ronnie, Roy, Gaylen, and Tommy, all of Springlake; and two sisters, Mrs. Dyke McMurray of Dumas and Mrs. Nena Loudermilk of Silverton.

Danny arrived home from Germany Tuesday night to be with his family.

School Board Of Trustees Have All-Night Session

In the story last week the Board voted to pay the current bills and to pay $1,018,42 to the Board's Attorney as his fee for representing the group at the Austin Hearing.

In a continued discussion on the five rules Tom Sorelle had set up for the boys in obtaining their grade, Jones asked Dawson if he were not trying to take the control from Tom Sorelle and place it on the Board.

Dawson, "Not control, Duane, just didn't want them to be treated any different to any other student in the classroom and these numbers 3, 4, and 5, these were indicated only to be desired, but this letter gives the impression they are to be required; to me this would create the difference between a good working relationship and a possible area of contention."

He went on to say, "I appreciate your indicating willingness to be flexible and give all the boys the same opportunity to do the same make-up work from here on, if that's what they prefer to do." He continued, "I didn't quite understand how you would handle Bob's make-up work, will he spend the hours in the Band Hall or will he do it at home and then play the pieces for you?"

Sorelle indicated he didn't care where he did his work, just so long as he played the pieces for him.

Dawson replied, "So when he plays the five pieces for you he will have completed his make-up work?"

Sorelle indicated he would count two hours each separate piece.

Dawson, "These other boys, now say they've got in about three hours. How many pieces would you say they have to work up for you?"

Sorelle, "Well, if they wanted two hour per piece ratio that would be, well course they got, there he stopped as Dawson spoke to say, "You say, they've played the equivalent of 4 pieces, in getting ready for regional band try outs, now, if they had their time for that, they'd have played the equivalent of 4 pieces of music you indicated just a moment ago, so that should be on the part of the volume, then only one more piece of music they'd work up would fulfill; Sorelle cut in to say, "Course they have played these, but they haven't played them for me. We were talking about time they put in practice. They haven't played for me."

Dawson, "If they played those four pieces for you that they worked up for Regional contest, then they would have completed four fifths of their make-up work, with one more piece, they would be through?"

Sorelle, "Not by the same time ratio though."

Dawson and Sorelle talked over the pieces of music. Some, Sorelle indicated, were easier than others, but he said he guessed he could count it that way.

Dawson said, "Seemed to me to be fair to all boys concerned, that would be the best way to do it if they've already worked up the equivalent of four pieces or the equivalent with a little more polish, then this would make four pieces of their work already done if that's what Bob is getting by with."

Sorelle finally agreed, "If they want to play them for me, I'll count it that way, but by playing for me, I do mean, you know, the make-up Bob's doing, he's required to do quite well."

Mrs. Holder wanted to know what he was going to give the boys for Saturday. She described the event in Hale Center, requiring the band group to leave at 8 a.m. She indicated she didn't know how many hours it took, but that they were gone the greater portion of Saturday and asked if they were not getting any hours for that?

It seems that this was settled with credit for one hour given, even though Mrs. Holder felt they had spent a half day or so on the event and should have received more than one hour. She was not comparing what the boys got to other students who went along, but was concerned as to how these would be counted in comparison to work done by Bob Cleavinger.

Jones asked, "Is this the basis of you not being satisfied, the comparative amount of work, is this what is bothering you?"

Mrs. Holder, "Well, comparative amount of hours, as well as the difficulty of the music and whatever."

Mr. Holder spoke up to say, "And the fact, that the other boys were never punished at all, that's still remains, no one has ever checked that out, have they. What about those boys, there was never nothing done about, you just dropped that, did you forget it, are you going to check it out? Holder went on to say, it had been three months and you haven't done one thing about it."

Jones spoke up to say, "We have put in a lot of time, and Holder said, that's right, you've put in a lot of time at that table, I know, but have you checked out what we asked you to?"

Holder, "I said, have you checked it out, I didn't ask you what your opinion was."

Jones, "Everytime anyone expresses themselves it's an opinion."

Holder, "What about the boy, himself, what about his opinion? Have you asked him?"

Jones, "Had some conflicts on that too."

Holder asked again, "Have you asked him?"

Dawson, "Well, personally, I'd be in favor of dropping all make-up requirements until the Board does check it out. I think the Board's obligated to check it out, if we're in a position where discipline is being dealt out discriminantly, I think it's the Board's responsibility to look into it."

Mrs. Adrian, "I had two mothers to tell me their daughters were not at practice that night and it was never checked out or as far as they knew, never was even mentioned. I can't understand why they picked out these three boys. Looks like he could have checked the roll."

Someone at the board table indicated the roll had been checked.

Mr. Holder spoke up to say, "The other boy, who he was, and I asked him about that Monday. He said you took me out of band on Monday and he came anyway to rehearsal."

Mr. Holder said, "All I want Jerry, is that for these boys that are having to make up work be treated the same, and counted the same, see what I'm getting at?"

Mr. Holder indicated, "It was all wrong from the beginning and that he knew it then."

Barton, "Tom, what about the alternate marching students, are they required to attend the practices?"

Sorelle, "To this practice, you mean, well, I pretty well set up my group, that was so close to contest, I had my 69 set up."

Barton, "Then the alternates weren't required to be there?"

Sorelle, "I already had my group set up and wasn't planning to change."

Barton, "The other 3 students we discussed they had excuses. Then there were 7 students not there, three had excuses. Would you name those for us please?"

Sorelle, "Billy O'Hair, I believe Debra Weil."

Barton, "When did you get her excuse?"

Sorelle, "Her mother told me a couple of days before."

Barton, "Oh, before?"

Sorelle, "I knew about it before."

Barton asked the question, "She wouldn't have written the excuse several days later would she?"

Sorelle, during much noise, answered something to the effect, "No, I think," and his voice was drowned out in the noise.

One board member asked about someone else being absent and Sorelle said, "Yes, he went to Lubbock with his mother."

Sorelle and Barton discussed this further then Barton asked, "His mother told you or wrote you an excuse or did he just tell you he wouldn't be there?"

Sorelle gave some explanation as to "an oral excuse."

Barton, "What about Tommy Clayton?"

Sorelle, "Well, I checked into that, he wasn't the only one that was replaced on that, there was another boy who was replaced. The other boy, I were another three who were excused. The rest of the kids weren't there, weren't marching and I don't see any use of having them come out and spend two or three hours in the cold air when they're not supposed to be there."

Mrs. Adrian, "These mothers told me their daughters marched."

Mrs. Holder said, "All I want Jerry, is that for these boys that are having to make up work be treated the same, and counted the same, see what I'm getting at?"

Mr. Holder indicated, "It was all wrong from the beginning and that he knew it then."

Barton, "Tom, what about the alternate marching students, are they required to attend the practices?"

Sorelle, "To this practice, you mean, well, I pretty well set up my group, that was so close to contest, I had my 69 set up."

Barton, "Then the alternates weren't required to be there?"

Sorelle, "I already had my group set up and wasn't planning to change."

Barton, "The other 3 students we discussed they had excuses. Then there were 7 students not there, three had excuses. Would you name those for us please?"

Sorelle, "Billy O'Hair, I believe Debra Weil."

Barton, "When did you get her excuse?"

al agreement. It didn't get into the motion, but it was supposed to, and here's something Tom, you didn't know that. I'd like for Mr. Mann to tell us how he explained this motion from the Board to Tom on Tuesday and still make it to Austin. He went on to say, you alone, know the spirit in which this was written, Bill, and what we actually had in mind in doing it in such a nice way, it didn't get all covered, he said, so I want to hear the explanation."

Supt. Mann indicated he didn't think that the motion needed a lot of explanation.

Barton, "In other words, that's what I'm getting at. You didn't tell Tom anything the next morning, you just got in the car and went to Austin."

Mann indicated that he didn't believe it was, he couldn't remember, then he asked Sorelle when they discussed it. Sorelle said he believed it was Saturday. Mann went on to say he thought they looked at each item and the thing I would remember telling Tom was that it was not meant to be unreasonable and I would want him to be fair.

Barton, "At the same time, Bill, I appreciate Tom changing this and giving it more flexibility." He went further to say, "But, Tom, the original requirements here did not coincide with the Board's motion, did it? So therefore, I'm saying that Tom needed some help in writing his letter or report."

Mann, "Where did he miss?"

Barton, "There in number 1, trying out for all regional band. The band didn't tell Tom to have those boys try for all regional band."

There was a lengthy discussion on the requirement, and also how the 11 hours came about.

Finally Barton cut in indicating it was originally two or three weeks and I wanted it more definite and I thought it was the consensus of the Board that it would be completed on January 13.

Mann, "I think our assignment would be over by this, near as it could, I asked Tom to be as fair as he could."

Barton, "What I'm saying, this doesn't match the Board's motion."

Riley indicated it could be construed to be.

Barton, "That's what I'm saying, but on this it is a requirement for the boys. Someone went on to say it didn't say they didn't have to. One from the audience said it didn't say anything. Someone went on to say it said 11 hours of work, at least 11 hours."

Barton went on to say, "You remember January 13 date? Someone pointed out it was the regional contest date, Barton said, "Yes, and the make-up work was to be in by that time and over here it, could be March or April."

Sorelle indicated it was the last part of February.

After a brief hurried chat with several talking at once, Barton asked, "Well, Tom, when we met here in the office while Bill was gone with Mr. Cooksey, you were holding fast to this at that time?"

Sorelle, "Yes."

Barton, "And you said you'd agree with this?"

Sorelle, "I feel like it does."

Barton said, "Yet you changed it."

Sorelle said, I felt like it was fair.

Barton, "What I'm saying you weren't informed of all the... he was cut short by other voices."

Mann spoke up to say, "Tom and I went over this thing item for item and this leaves him with some flexibility."

There was a discussion as to whether or not this was within the realm of the Board's intention.

Four Important Tax Deadlines Face Taxpayers And Employers

Dallas, Texas--Four important tax deadlines face taxpayers and employers in Texas during January. W. T. Copping, District Director of Internal Revenue Service for North Texas, said today.

Employers are reminded that the deadline to give employees their 1972 W-2 forms is Wednesday, January 31, 1973. The form should show earnings, income tax withheld and Social Security tax withheld. January 31 is also the deadline for reporting Social Security and withheld income taxes for the calendar quarter ended December 31, 1972. If employers make timely deposits of the full amount of the tax due, ten additional days are allowed to file the return. The Director said that employers who received a pre-addressed Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return," should use this form to report their tax liability. Other employers can obtain blank copies from their local IRS office.

The last day of January is also the last day to report and pay any balance of Federal Unemployment Tax not over $100. If the balance of tax due is over $100.00, the employer must make a deposit with FTD Form 508. If the full amount of the tax is deposited on time, employers may then file the return no later than February 10, 1973.

Texas farmers and fishermen who did not file a declaration of estimated Federal individual income tax by January 15 may have a tax deadline of March 1, 1973. Mr. Copping said that if at least two thirds of the gross income was earned from farming or fishing, and no estimate was filed by January 15, 1973, these taxpayers must file their 1972 Federal income tax return and pay any tax due by Thursday, March 1, 1973, to avoid penalty for underpayment of estimated tax.

School Board

treatment with the other band students, is that not right, Mr. Mann."

Mr. Mann, "I think I remember the Commissioner of Education said if the boys attitude was (the noise drowned out the sentence.)"

Mr. Holder indicated the Commissioner of Education was not what she was talking about it was our own Board of Trustees. Someone from the audience said, "Do you remember saying that missing the marching contest would have been enough, Mr. Mann?"

At that point Mrs. Holder asked Kelley if he had her letter. He did. She told him she'd like for the Board to read it. She felt it was in line with what the Board's motion was that night and was written in the spirit in which it was given. She went on to give permission for it to be read aloud if he wanted to. She then said, "If I am unreasonable in any of it I wish you would tell me where."

The letter was passed around and made available for all board members to read.

There was a lengthy discussion on the makeup work and when they could expect a grade. Sorelle agreed that they could all practice at home and learn their work well and play for him and if he was satisfied with their work and conduct he could go ahead and give a grade.

Edd said, "If they could go ahead and get the work over and get their grade and all this be over in the very near future?"

Mr. Holder asked, "When they would get their grade and what they were really being punished for. He indicated he'd asked that once before and it wasn't answered. No one made a comment."

It was agreed the boys could get two hours per piece of music worked up and played for Sorelle.

The Board then went on to form a motion. The motion was made by Ray Joe Riley to recognize the favorable progress report and the flexible program as established by Mr. Sorelle in an effort to be fair and reasonable in the matter of resolution. It was seconded by P. A. Washington and the motion carried.

After the meeting quieted down, Mrs. Jack Hinson, one of the guests, addressed the board and asked if she might speak. She was given permission to do so.

She rose and said she had in her hand a petition with 335 signatures on it. She further asked if she might read it aloud and she read the following.

We, the undersigned interested and concerned patrons, taxpayers, and parents, believe that at the present time the administration of the Springlake-Earth School District is inadequate. We believe that the present practice of yearly renewing the multiple year contract is detrimental to the most efficient administration of the Springlake-Earth Independent School District. We are not opposed to a multiple year contract per se, but rather to the yearly extension of such a contract, which has the effect of indefinitely continuing the contract.

This practice often leads to renewal of the contract without proper review of the performance of the Administration.

We respectfully request that the Board review this policy of yearly renewal and give serious consideration to a hard multiple year contract, reviewed at the end of the stated term of the contract. This would, we believe, bring about a more thorough review of the performance of the administration of the Springlake-Earth Independent Schools.

We commented, We trust that the Board will take this petition under serious and careful consideration, as you go into your executive session. And that you will act on it tonight, so that the change of policy as requested will be effective as of now, January 15, 1973. Since some signers of the petition with their names there, with it to be a private matter, we ask you, after careful study of the matter to entrust the petitions to the secretary of the board and he will return it to me. Thank you.

Jerry, "You've heard the petition read and stated so I guess at this time we'll go into executive session."

Dawson said, "I think we should give anyone else the opportunity to address the board before we do that, or should on this or other matters."

Kelley, "Any constructive criticism we will hear at this time."

Betty Sulser, "You might add to that, that some would not sign for fear of repercussion with their children. Mr. Chairman, this might have some bearing also. They felt that this might jeopardize their children in school. I think this needs to be known also."

There was a question brought up by Riley as to where the petition could legally be published, but it was decided that the petition was read openly in front of an audience and that if Mrs. Hinson okayed it being published, it would be all right. Mrs. Hinson was willing that the above statement be published.

At that time, which was about midnight, the Board voted to go into an executive meeting and guests were dismissed.

The Board discussed the matter of the superintendent's contract from midnight until 4:15 a.m., when the group finally adjourned.

Final action was that a motion was made and seconded to extend the contract for one year. That motion was tabled by a unanimous vote to hold off for a period not longer than the next regular board meeting, pending further evaluation and opportunity to hold a workshop session with an outside educator, presumably with an education professor from Tech.
