Young Men Must Still Register For Selective Service

Austin, Texas - Colonel Melvin N. Glantz, the State Director of Selective Service for Texas, reminded young men that they still must register with Selective Service even though there is no draft.

Glantz urged those men who have not registered to do so promptly, saying, "Failure to register is a violation of Federal Law and could result in prosecution by the Department of Justice.

The President's authority to induct men into the Armed Forces expired on July 1, 1973. The Nixon Administration does not plan to seek an extension of this authority, and the Defense Department is relying on volunteer enlistments to supply military manpower.

Glantz emphasized that only the authority to induct expired. All other provisions of the Military Selective Service Act remain in force. The anaual lottery will be held. young men will continue to register, and their local oards will continue to classify them as to their availability for possible military service should Congress authorize the resumption of inductions in the event of a national emer-

The State Director said the law requires all male persons, except certain nonimmigrant aliens, to register with Selective Service within 30 days before or after their 18th birthday. He said, "Young men have three legal obligations: (1) they must register at age 18, (2) they must notity their local draft board when they change address, and (3) they must carry their draft cards with them until their liability for service expires, for most men this is age 26."

The Colonel explained that Selective Service is undergoing a major reorganization and that as Selective Service goes into a standby operation, no inductions are taking place. Many local board offices are being relocated, with the result of fewer draft board offices in Texas. Glantz said at there are places of reistration provided in each Texas county for the convenience of young men in regis-will be distributed to Lamb County farmers this summer in federal farm program set-aside payments, according to Richard Newman, director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service here.

$11 Million In Payments Go To Lamb Farmers

Newman said the amount is down from $14,774,296 paid last summer. Changes in reduction of set-aside in the feed grain program, or released crop acreages, is the reason for the lower payments.

Distribution of the checks to growers who have filed final acreage certification for the year started at the ASCS office this week.

Deadline for filing is Aug. 1. The quicker growers file, the quicker we can ge tha payments ready and out to them, "Newman said, Newman added that checks should be received earlier this year due to a streamlined system.

Last summer it took about three weeks or a month for the checks to be processed and sent to the farmers. This year the ASCS office has the checks and spend only a few days checking statistics before mailing. Newman said checks will be sent as soon as possible after certification.

Checks include payments for the feed grain, wheat and cotton set-aside programs. For those who qualify for wheat payments, there will be additional payments of about 22 cents per bushel. Wheat checks are payment of 68 cents per bushel. Federal officials have predicted the price in December will be 90 cents per bushel

Approximately $11 million and are paying 75 percent of this price at this time.

Cotton and feed grain payments are figured and the 100 percent payment is in the checks being mailed. "The payment is intended to react to the supply and demand, " Newman said.

Last fall supplies diminished due to sales of grain to foreign countries, and President Nixon announced that more acreage would be released for cultivation to increase the available

With more acres released for production, the set-aside was reduced and payments likewise reduced. Newman said.
