Vinyl Backed Carpet Offers Durability To Wear

Carpet which has a thin sheet of vinyl behind the pile offers the comfort, luxury, ease of maintenance and sound reducing qualities of soft coverings plus the durability and resistance to wear of hard surface floor coverings.

This type carpet usually consists of several layers—a dense layer of pure vinyl and a cushion backing, says Bonny Lay, Extension home furnishings specialists. Since the carpet has a cushion backing, it can be cemented permanently to any type floor. The specialist says this helps prevent moisture from getting under the carpet and damaging it.

Strength and endurance characteristics of this type carpet makes it an ideal floor covering for heavy traffic areas as in hospitals, supermarkets, offices and schools. One company guarantees their carpet against excessive surface wear for five years from the date of installation when properly installed and maintained, reports Miss Lay.

If the carpet happens to be damaged as a burn or tear, it can be repaired by cutting out and installing a new piece.

with white lace over yellow and centered with an arrangement of daisies, carrying out the brides chosen colors of yellow and white.

The hostesses presented the honoree with a toaster and a set of stainless steel cookware.

healing long after the original infection has passed. The child will use his fingernail to accomplish this either openly and habitually, or secretly, if he thinks his parents may object or interfere with this habit. Refractory lesions that have no recognizable cause should lead to a suspicion of self-mutilation. If this is the case, it is a waste of time to rely on medication for a cure or to search for some obscure non-existing allergy as the cause.

The dentist or physician should urge the parents of such children to search for an underlying emotional distress, and if necessary, to get professional psychological help.

The cases reported so far are few. Those most carefully studied have shown that the child is reacting to such family difficulties as the death of a parent, the arrival of another child, or some other serious family dislocation beyond the youngster's ability to handle.

Dentists often say that the mouth is a mirror which reflects bodily health or disease. It can also reflect the state of mental health.

Accent on Health

— J. E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health —

Austin—If the warm spring weather has drawn you out to work in the yard—when it's not raining, that is—and you haven't had a tetanus immunization, you are, in fact, giving tetanus an open invitation to pay you a visit.

Last year it visited 17 persons in Texas—and all but seven died. Of the 10 deaths, at least eight had not been immunized against tetanus, according to State Health Department morbidity reports.

Often referred to as "lockjaw," tetanus is no respecter of persons—either by age or residence. It hits anywhere.

In 1968, the disease struck down two infants under one year of age. It also claimed victims in the 1-to-4 age group, and groups of 5-to-9, 10-to-19, 30-to-39, 50-to-59 and 60 and older.

Tetanus is definitely a killer. Even when treatment is started almost immediately, about one-third of the victims die anyway. Fortunately, there is an effective and safe immunization procedure against this disease.

However, an initial series of tetanus immunizations will not help if given after an injury. A booster will do, if you've had initial protection. Spores of the bacteria which cause tetanus are almost everywhere. They are found in soil, street dust and animal droppings, particularly in manure. A scratch, cut or open sore may allow some of the unseen spores to enter the body.

Once inside the body, these tough spores turn into a form of tetanus germ which may secrete a powerful toxin—or poison. One-fourth teaspoonful of this toxin is enough to kill 100,000 people.

In humans, the toxin causes muscle spasms, convulsions and frequently, death. The label "lockjaw" refers to a spasm of the jaw muscle which clamps the jaw shut.

Unless you have had a basic tetanus immunization in the armed forces or from your family doctor, you must do so before an injury to be protected.

In many Texas school systems, local rules require that all students entering school for the first time must show proof that they have been immunized for certain diseases: tetanus is sometimes one of the required immunizations.

But in the preschool group and for adults who have not been immunized for tetanus or whose immunization effectiveness has expired, the need certainly exists.

Why take a chance?

NIH THE SEARCH FOR HEALTH

A REPORT FROM THE NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH BETHESDA, MARYLAND

Danger—Watch Out

Everyone knows that many children get comfort out of thumb-sucking, especially when they are apprehensive, bored, or tired. Wise parents respond to such physical signs because they know that the child usually cannot put his distress into words, and may not even understand what ails him.

There are other physical signs, fortunately much less common, which also clearly reveal distress. However, these danger signals are less well understood.

Studies at the National Institute of Dental Research, one of the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Maryland, have shown that sometimes children who have had an ordinary mouth infection with sore gums will continue to pick or scratch at the sore place on their gums and keep it from re-healing long after the original infection has passed.

There are other physical signs, fortunately much less

L. D. (Don) Anderson, Crosby Cotton farmer and second-year president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., will leave the U. S. from New York May 31 to attend the annual meeting of the International Cotton Advisory Committee in Kampala, Uganda, Africa. The meeting is set for June 2 through June 11.

The ICAC is an association of 42 countries interested in the production, export, import and consumption of cotton. Literally a "world parliament on cotton," it is designed to promote cooperation in the solution of cotton's problems, especially those of international scope and significance.

Anderson was chosen to serve as the cotton producer advisor to the official U. S. delegation by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin. Also represented on the U. S. delegation will be other segments of the cotton industry and the department of Agriculture, State and Commerce. His trip was authorized by the PCG Board of Directors at its meeting May 5 and will be combined with cotton production studies in three African countries and three other "nearby" countries. It will also include marketing visits to Hong Kong and Japan. The trip is a part of PCG's export market development efforts and will consume from 30 to 40 days, Anderson said.

This is the third time and the second successive year that the U. S. cotton producer delegate to ICAC has been a representative of Plains Cotton Growers. The organization's Executive Vice President, Donald Johnson, served in that capacity in 1968 when the meeting was conducted in Athens, Greece. In 1963, the late George Pfeiffenberger, then executive officer of PCG, was the U. S. producer delegate in Bangalore, India.

Anderson's cotton production studies in the various countries will be aimed at assessing their economic potential for continuing or expanding cotton production in competition with U. S. producers for world markets.

He said "It still seems a little strange to me that a West Texas cotton farmer should need to travel so far to look after his business. But sooner or later we will be forced to compete with these countries at world market prices with little or no help from government programs. And we need to know now whether or not we can, in fact, compete, and if so how we can best go about it."

Anderson will look at production costs and methods in the area surrounding Kampala, the Mwanza and Tabora sectors of Tanzania, and the Nairobi cotton fields of Kenya, all in Africa.

Leaving Africa on the return trip, other stops to study cotton production will be made in the area near Athens, Greece; Ankara, Turkey, and in West Pakistan.

From Pakistan he will make "market calls" in Hong Kong and in Tokyo and Osaka, Japan. In these places he will concentrate on follow-up work with mill representatives who visited U. S. cotton producing areas last fall, including Lubbock, as members of a Cotton Council International trade team.

Anderson said "We made some valuable contacts with mill people in these important export markets last fall when they spent two days with us in Lubbock, and I hope to talk with these folks again to continue and broaden the favorable relationship between spinners in the Far East and West Texas cotton."

While the size of his farming operation near Crosbyton has been considerably reduced since last year, he still farms in excess of 1000 acres.

Traveling with Anderson, at his own expense, will be his 21-year-old son, Robin. Robin is a Junior at Texas Tech. He is majoring in Marketing and professes a special interest in international marketing.

He will work with his father in "recording" the information gained, and has also been asked by Tech President Dr. Grover Murray and Irlis Traylor, Chairman of the Board of Deputy Directors for the International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies (ICASALS), to follow up on some of the ICASALS work with people in the countries visited.

The pair will return to the U. S. in early July.

Texas Tech Acquires Mexican Indian Costume Collection

Lubbock--A vivid record of a vanishing way of life in the collection of 65 costumes made and worn by the Indians of Mexico has become a part of the permanent collection of Texas Tech. It was announced today by President Grover E. Murray.

Dr. Murray announced the acquisition of the complete Cordry Collection of Mexican Indian Costumes, part of which were shown last summer at the Amos Carter Museum in Fort Worth.

The collection includes complete costumes and accessories and the Cordry photographic collection of 3,000 pictures--about 500 of them in color. It will be housed in the Museum at Tech.

Dr. F. Earl Green, director of the Museum, declared it "an acquisition of great significance." He said the collection will be shown in the ICASALS-Museum complex now under construction.

"The costumes from various Mexican Indian groups constitute an invaluable ethnological collection which reflects and demonstrates social customs and creative design," Green said.

"Many of these practices follow ancient traditions, some of which have not survived the onslaught of spreading technology and the breakdown of cultural isolation."

Green also commented on the extensive photographic file of prints, negatives and transparencies.

"These are not only of great value as documentary records," he said, but are also outstanding examples of the photographic artistry and talent of Donald Cordry.

"When facilities become available for the study and exhibitwhile actually attempting to lay the groundwork for a step-by-step progression toward their ultimate goals.

He said: "The 20 to 40 million hunters and sportsmen in the United States and the million-plus members of the National Rifle Association of America in particular are justly apprehensive of the aims and goals of the leadership of those proposing stringent anti-gun laws. Bold, bald statements by their leaders indicate their belief that there should be no private ownership of firearms and that they hope to bring this about through legislation. Even more disconcerting than their statements is their modus operandi, that of proceeding step by step. The first recommendations are always reasonable and mild, but these are immediately followed by less reasonable suggestions. There is no waiting period to see if what has passed will accomplish the task set for it, but immediately further and greater restrictions are recommended. The sportsman's fear on the basis of that which has occurred in other countries is patently justified."

Costumes similar to those in the collection still are worn in Mexico. Many collected in past years are no longer seen as even female Indian tribes turn more and more to commercially manufactured materials and styles.

The Cordrys, artist and anthropologist, began their study of Mexican textiles in 1937 when their first field work was sponsored by the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation of New York City. Last year they published Mexican Indian Costumes, a large volume based on ethnologic research, including photographs and drawings which illustrate the garments, how they were made and how they were worn.

Both of the collectors are trained artists whose work in various fields has been exhibited in Mexico and the United States.

SBA Expands Program For Minority Enterprises

Launching of "Operation MAINSTREAM," with expanded programs of assistance for all minority enterprises, was announced by Hilary Sandoval, Jr., Administrator of the Small Business Administration.

Procedures, goals and objectives for the expanded minority enterprise programs are being discussed by Administrator Sandoval, Assistant Administrator for Minority Enterprise Phillip Pruitt, and other top officers of the Washington office, with the agency's Minority Enterprise field representatives at a two-day workshop conference beginning May 19 at the Silver Spring, Maryland training center of SBA.

"Operation MAINSTREAM will, for the first time in the history of SBA, bring all the programs and services of the agency together in a coordinated effort to put more minority individuals into business and help them succeed," Sandoval said.

"This means that minority firms see help finance to start or expand their operations will also have the management and technical assistance and other continuing support they need to continue in business, make a profit, and retain their rightful place in the mainstream of our traditional free enterprise system."

"Operation MAINSTREAM will also feature closer coordination with other government agencies at all levels, and new and stronger ties with trade associations, financial institutions, larger businesses, and local civic and business organizations."

Tech's WRC Recieves Grant For Studying Feedlot Waste

Lubbock--Texas Tech's Water Resources Center (WRC) Tuesday, (May 20) was notified of the award of a $74,995 grant from the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration to be used to study the problem of feedlot waste.

WRC Director Dan M. Wells was notified of the grant by Congressman George Mahon, Working with Dr. Wells on the research project will be Chairman George F. Meenaghan of Chemical Engineering, Agricultural Prof. Walter Grub and Animal Science Prof. Robert C. Albin.

"The production of cattle on large commercial feedlots is a rapidly expanding industry in the Southwest," Wells pointed out. "Pollution from these lots is extensive and information on the characteristics of wastes is needed as a basis for developing economically feasible means of waste stabilization and disposal to prevent unnecessary pollution."

He said the researchers will conduct complete analysis of wastes produced by feeder cattle raised under specific feeding and management regimes and various climatic conditions. They will correlate the data obtained and from this data develop guidelines for the construction and operation of cattle feedlots to minimize water pollution.

At Texas Tech two multiple-unit feedlots designed and operated for experimental research will be used as well as environmental chambers, specialized feeding pens and laboratories for the physical, chemical and biological analysis of waste materials.

The researchers also expect to study nearby feedlots which, they stated, have an annual production of 1.4 million fed cattle.

Gun Registration Seen As No Cure For Crime

New York --The people should not be misled into believing that the rising tide of violent crime in the United States can be curbed by more restrictive gun laws, the immediate past president of the National Rifle Association told members of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York tonight.

Harold W. Glasen, of Lansing, Mich., said "it is a terrible mistake to think that crime is going to be controlled and reduced by additional gun control legislation, for, significantly, less than 4% of major crime involves the use of firearms."

Referring to new Federal gun laws passed only last year, Glasen called for a waiting period, to see if that which has passed will accomplish the task set for it, rather than pressing for additional restrictions on firearms ownership and use. He indicated that many who favor outright confiscation, or an end to private ownership of guns, masquerade as reformers who pretend to want to tighten up on gun laws to a limited extent, his victim. Any person convicted of using a gun in the commission of a major crime should receive a mandatory prison sentence. Only in carefully delineated and exceptional circumstances should the trial court have the discretion to suspend the sentence."

Governor Smith proclaimed May Youth Opportunity Month, and called on state agencies and private employers to help provide summer work for disadvantaged young people.

Chest Deformity Clue To Heart Defects

Bethesda, Md.--Certain bulges in the chest clue doctors into looking for serious heart defects. The National Institutes of Health report that cardiologists were able to identify two specific defects by bulge signs more than nine times out of 10 when they did careful physical examinations of 121 patients, aged 16 to 64.

A certain bulge high on the left side of the chest indicated a defect in the upper chamber of the heart; a low bulge suggested a ventricular defect (of the blood-ejecting chamber of the heart).

A word of caution: These are clues for experts to follow up. Not all bulges spell heart trouble or any other kind of trouble. A void-self diagnosis.

Grain Sales To Israel And India May Up Market Prices

Area grain sorghum producers may reap some benefits from stronger market prices because of two important sales made last week by USDA. The first was to Israel for 4.4 million bushels, and the other to India for 12 million bushels. These sales show signs that the Nixon administration is reinstating grain sorghum to the PL480 program.

Prior to secretary of Agriculture Freeman's Policy of Omitting Sorghum from PL480 Allocation after April 1968, India had been buying up to 86 million bushels per year. The loss of this market last year had hurt the U.S. export of grain sorghum and thus weakened the prices received by farmers.

The grain sorghum producers association has been working to get such PL480 allocations to include grain sorghum ever since they were removed a year ago.

A. W. Anthony, Jr., Friona farmer and GSPA President said "These sales should improve our prices some. We hope USDA will continue such sales. If they do, our prices will strengthen without a doubt."

1969 FEED GRAIN DIVISION

The final report on 1969 sign-up for feed grains shows a total of 41.3 million acres (71% of the 133 million acres feed grain base) will be diverted. 35% of Texas' 12.6 million feed grain base, or 4.4 million acres were pledged to be diverted. Total intended diversion is nearly 5 million acres greater than the record 36.7 million acres established in 1965. It is 7 million acres more than the total for 1968. This should strengthen grain prices this fall unless bumper crops offset the decrease in acres with higher per acre average yields.

Let Him teach us the truth and all that is good, to love with all our hearts, our souls, minds and strength. Teach us to love others as He loves us. Help us to help others in the spirit of true brotherliness.
