The Springlake Home Demonstration Club held their meeting Thursday, April 14 in the home of Mrs. Leon Foster.

The six members and County Extension Agent answered roll call by "giving a problem they have in purchasing clothing."

After a short business meeting, Mrs. Dorothy Powell, County Extension Agent presented a very interesting and informative program on "Recycling yesterdays fashions for today."

She used colored slides in showing the many different ways outdated style clothing can be recreated into lovely fashions of today. Also how outdated clothing, bedspreads and curtains can be used to create useful clothing for children. Mrs. Powell showed two of her mini-dresses she had restyled into garments that are the length and style for today's fashions.

Each member brought garments that were out of fashion and suggestions were made as to how each could be restyled without too much work and not much expense.

Mrs. Myrtle Steinbock was presented the hostess gift.

TREMENDOUS TRIFLES

THE LITTLE PIG THAT PRECIPITATED A BOUNDARY DISPUTE
Layman Culver and the Irish farmer were merely concerned over the dead pig found rooting in the wrong potato patch but the little incident almost caused a war and the boundary line between Canada and the United States was settled. Here's the story:

In 1859, an Irishman found a pig rooting in his potato patch on the island of San Juan, which nestles peacefully among the blue waters of the Pacific, just off the coast of Washington, near Vancouver, British Columbia.

The Irishman shot the intruder, whereupon the irate farmer who owned the pig, Layman Culver, an American, said he must be paid for it. The two men decided to let the court settle the question. "I'll take it to Britain's highest court," vowed the Irishman. "To Britain's highest court, indeed?" countered the American. "The American court will decide the matter. San Juan is American soil."

But even the courts of both countries found it hard to tell whether the island of San Juan was a part of British-occupied Canada or of the United States. They learned that the boundary line between the two countries had been left entirely too vague concerning the small island just north of Puget Sound.

Feeling began to run high between Britain and America, each claiming San Juan as its own, and soon all American soldiers available on the Pacific coast were rushed to the island. British troops occupied it, too, and while the courts were attempting to settle the matter, both British and American soldiers waited in readiness for war.

Finally the courts of the two countries negotiated a peace and required the Irishman to pay the American for the pig. But the more important question — which country really owned the island — still dangled unanswered.

So the governments agreed to submit the matter to an outside nation for decision and consented to let Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany arbitrate the dispute. In 1872 the Kaiser ruled that the island belonged to the United States.

There's only a storied memory now of one little pig that almost caused a war and settled a disputed boundary.

To people who occasionally find themselves worrying about the future, the Bible can bring great comfort. It tells people not to think too much about tomorrow, but to live a fuller life in the present moment.

Earth Rainbow Girls

The Earth Rainbow Girls #156 met Saturday, April 16 at 1:30 p.m. at the lodge hall and divided up into groups and spent the afternoon visiting the shut-ins, taking them flowers and cookies, for a charity program. The girls enjoyed visiting with the people.

Afterwards, the girls met back at the hall to work on some projects for Mothers Day.

At the last meeting, Elaine Bills, Worthy Advisor, was surprised with a humorous skit, "This is your Life."

A large group attended and 4 petitions for membership were read.

On May 1, at 3:00 p.m., the girls will host a Mothers Day tea at the residence of Elaine Bills. The girls are asked to bring their grandmothers as well as mothers.

Sales Tax Rebate

Comptroller Bob Bullock mailed checks totaling $16.2 million to Texas cities and towns Friday, representing the April rebate of the one-cent sales tax they assess.

Bullock said his office has remitted $105.7 million in city sales taxes this year to date, an increase of 21 percent over the same period in 1976. However, he explained, part of the increase is due to a change made by his office effective this month.

The Comptroller's Office has historically retained 4.76 percent of the cities' sales tax collections to cover refunds or bad checks. Bullock said this amount has been reduced to two percent, so that cities now will receive nearly three percent more of their sales tax promptly for spending or investment.

Even without the change, he noted, "city sales tax collections are running a healthy 18 percent ahead of last year."

Bullock also asked merchants to refrain from changing the due dates and period dates on the printed sales tax return forms they now receive from this office. He said the practice has caused many taxpayers' payments to be credited to the wrong reporting periods, sometimes resulting in erroneous billings being issued by his office.

The Comptroller's printed city sales tax allocation took a new form this month as well, with figures comparing each city's collections in 1977 with the same periods in 1976.

Payment to Earth this period was $1,036.46.

Eye On Safety

When it's time for cleaning — be it spring or any other season — it's also time for safety. That's because many household chemicals cleaners — especially those in aerosol containers — can damage or destroy eyesight.

• Always note which way the nozzle is pointed when using a spray can, warns The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.
• Store cleaners like those for windows and drains in a place inaccessible to children. Never put them in soft drink or milk bottles which a child might mistake and drink or shake.

• Don't throw aerosol cans in incinerators or trash fires. They might explode.
• Should chemicals get in your eyes, flood them with water immediately, continue for about 15 minutes, and call a doctor.

Now: Unclogging a drain can be an easy matter with Drain Power, the one-second drain opener. It works without dangerous chemicals by setting up pressure waves in the pipe that "pop" the clog right out! Now, that's progress!

Then: When a drain got clogged up it was time to take out the plunger. A home-maker would fill up the sink basin and pump the plunger vigorously over the drain—hoping it would do some good.

Tips On Caring For Crystal

Home economists recommend the following method to keep crystal sparkling: soak your fine crystal in a very mild solution of vinegar and warm water to which a few grains of rice have been added. Make sure the water is lukewarm. Rinse crystal in clear warm water. Shake dry.

When it comes to buying crystal, select a classic pattern you'll be proud to own and set on your holiday table, or give as a gift for almost any occasion. Many people prefer the look of elegant cut crystal such as these wine glasses, decanter and serving bowl in this lead crystal barware collection by Fostoria Glass Company.

Blessings In Disguise

While argument rages over the environmental impact of the Concord jet, researchers at Columbia University are finding the plane's trans-Atlantic comings and goings a scientific blessing in disguise.

William L. Donn, Senior Research Associate, and his colleagues, Nambath Balachandran and David Rind, at Columbia's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory are using the jet's sonic shock waves to learn about temperatures and wind conditions in the upper atmosphere. The scientists say that the research could provide important information on the dispersal of atmospheric pollutants and the character of the rarified atmosphere that satellites and other spacecraft must fly through.

The scientists have been listening to the jet sounds since last May when the first regularly scheduled Concorde left Europe for Dulles International Airport in Washington, D.C. Sound waves from the jets reach recorders at the Palisades, N.Y. observatory in groups. They are too low in pitch to be heard by the unaided human ear, but they can be detected by sensitive microphones which measure changes in air pressure. The waves are recorded on both magnetic tape and by pens moving across chart paper.

"The exact strength and pat of the waves," Dr. Donn said, "depend upon atmospheric temperatures and wind conditions, so we can use the specific characteristics of each wave to interpret these atmospheric conditions." This novel use of sonic booms is possible because the elevation and location of the Concorde is known very precisely along the flight path.

The plane's flight path takes it past southern Newfoundland and Nantucket Island toward the New Jersey coast along a line 35 miles south of Long Island.

"Because the plane flies faster than the shock waves it produces," he explained, "the first waves to reach our microphones are the last generated, coming from a point on the flight path south of eastern Long Island about 100 miles away. Succeeding waves are recorded periodically for about an hour. Each group lasts about 60 seconds and comes from a point progressively farther east on the flight path. The last sounds we hear reach us from 600 miles out at sea."

The first waves detected, the Columbia scientists said, come directly from the plane or are reflected from the stratosphere about 30 miles above the earth. A second group reaches Lamont-Doherty about seven minutes later and is

Tax Protestor Serving Sentence

A. W. McCanless, Internal Revenue Service District Director for the Dallas District, announced that Ralph A. Olmsted of Plainview, Texas, surrendered himself to the United States Marshal on April 12, 1977, to begin serving the sentence for his conviction on two counts of wilful failure to supply information to the Internal Revenue Service for the years 1972 and 1973.

United States District Judge Halbert O. Woodward sentenced Olmsted to six months imprisonment, 18 months probation, and a fine of $5,000 on September 23, 1976. He has been released on bond pending an appeal to the Fifth Circuit of the Court of Appeals. The Appeals Court upheld without a formal hearing Olmsted's conviction and issued the order for him to begin serving his sentence.

Olmsted is a self-claimed tax protestor and has appeared on public television on which he stated that he does not file his tax returns or pay his income taxes. Olmsted advocated that the income tax laws of the United States are illegal and unconstitutional and that an individual's rights are violated when he files a proper income tax return. Olmsted, for the years 1972 and 1973, filed a 112-page document in which he failed to supply the proper information to the Internal Revenue Service whereby they could not determine his correct tax liability. Olmsted claimed the Fifth Amendment to all questions on a 1040 form for these two years except for reporting $20 wages in 1972 and $20 in dividends in 1973. The government proved during the trial that Olmsted received a gross income of $7,746.26 in 1972 and $8,906.41 in 1973.

Bullock To Seek Reelection

Comptroller Bob Bullock, saying he has made good his promises to rebuild the Comptroller's office and curtail tax cheaters, Friday formally announced for reelection.

Citing accomplishments already done, Bullock said he wants a second term to make further improvements in the office and to "see that all taxpayers and their money are treated with fairness, common sense and courtesy."

"I have done exactly what I said I would do," Bullock said. "I said the office was dead and we brought it to life. I said it was losing money and we stopped that."

Bullock said he is "proud of the record of my first term to state, but I want to see an even better brand of public service from the office during the next four years."

He said the taxpayers of Texas have benefited by the millions of dollars from his work in collecting old delinquencies, speeding up city sales tax payments, auditing out-of-state firms doing business in Texas, and "generally being more responsive to the needs of all taxpayers."

"Our new programs have paid off in both dollars and service," he said, noting that the office in 1976 alone brought in $82 million more than had been expected under the previous administration's programs.

Bullock said that beefing up the Comptroller's office "has been the best investment of tax money ever made" and noted that his out-of-state auditors are producing $15 for every $1 spent on them and that overall enforcement and collection programs bring in $10 for every $1 spent.

He said that sales tax collections under his administration in 1975-76 increased 29 per cent over 1974 while the average increase nationally was only 17 per cent, including other growing states like California where the two-year increase was less than 17 per cent.

"We have kept the commitment to bring home the bacon by making sure that everyone pays the taxes he honestly owes—not a cent more or a cent less," Bullock said.

Bullock also used his announcement to say "thank you to the hundreds of thousands of hard-working taxpayers who handle the public's money responsibly and with honesty month in and month out."

"These are the people footing the bill, the people we want to serve," he said of the office's tollfree telephone service to answer taxpayer questions, an increased number of district offices serving the state, and the updated rules and regulations "written in common sense and plain English."

The 47-year-old Bullock won his first term as Comptroller in 1974 by carrying 253 of the state's 254 counties against two Democratic primary opponents and going on to whip a Republican in the general election.

Bullock has previously served as Secretary of State and as a member of the Texas House of Representatives from Hillsboro, his hometown. He is a graduate of Texas Tech and Baylor University Law School and served in the Air Force.

Huge Cavity Found In Interstellar Space

University of Wisconsin-Madison physicists have reported finding a gigantic cavity in interstellar space which they think was created about a million years ago by the blast of an exploding star called a supernova.

The cavity, which resembles a huge bubble in the galactic gas which normally occupies most of the space between the stars, is about 800 light years across and appears to be still increasing in size at a rate of 90,000 miles every hour. A light year is the distance light travels in a year - about six trillion miles.

Dr. Ronald J. Reynolds, one of the scientists, reported the finding to the National Science Foundation (NSF), which is funding the studies to learn about powerful energy sources in interstellar space and the effects they have on the gas between the stars. This is the region in which new stars and galaxies are believed to be born. Dr. Reynolds said the energy of the explosion needed to hollow out such a large region of space must have been tremendous, amounting to 10 times the total energy that has been given off by our sun during the entire five billion years it has been in existence. The force of the explosion formed the cavity by pushing the interstellar gas outward, away from the exploding star.

"This gas has piled up around the outside edge of the cavity and now forms a nearly spherical, outer shell of gas which is still growing and expanding outward a million years after the explosion," Dr. Reynolds said. The observations were made at Kitt Peak National Observatory, near Tucson, Arizona.

According to one theory such an expanding gas shell, which is formed by the explosive destruction of one star, may trigger the births of new stars out of the interstellar gas.

Stress Factor Emphasis Of Seminar

The stress factor and how families cope with it during periods of critical change is the focus of a seminar in Lubbock Thursday (today) at St. John's United Methodist Church, 15th and University, Lubbock, beginning at 10 a.m.

A gathering of 400 to 500 is expected, says Catherine B. Crawford of Lubbock, district agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and Carolyn Cohorn of Lamesa, program chairman.

The public event is being sponsored by the Extension Service and the South Plains Development Program, a 19-county area group of citizens interested in social and economic improvement of the area.

Dr. Frederick Mears, a noted psychologist from Texas Eastern University at Tyler, is featured speaker. Five workshops will be offered, dealing with premarriage, marriage, pregnancy, in-law relationships and child learning.

Emphasis of the seminar, say Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. Cohorn, will be on handling stress situations during those critical stages of life that bring about major changes with the family.

The four-hour seminar will also feature a number of displays by local service agencies. Registration fee is $1. Young parents with children will be able to obtain child care services at the seminar for a nominal fee.

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE

Prepared by the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters, the national society of life insurance professionals who have earned the C.L.U. designation by meeting high educational, ethical and experience requirements.

Q. My husband and I keep our life insurance policies in a safe deposit box. My brother says we should keep them at home. What's your opinion?

A. We think your brother is right. Keep them at home where your family knows where they are. There's no need to keep life insurance policies in a safe deposit box, because duplicates can be requested if they are lost or stolen. Besides, a beneficiary might have to obtain the permission of tax authorities to open the box and this could delay payment.

But keep a list of the policy numbers and the company names in a separate place from the policies themselves.

Cotton Replanting Serious This Year

Texas cotton producers are able to get by with replanting cotton in some years, but this is not the year to give it a try, emphasizes a cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Robert B. Metzger says that the consequences of replanting cotton this year are more severe than in past years due to a shortage of high quality seed. This shortage is being brought about by the increased cotton acreage along with the production of low quality seed in some areas last year. Texas cotton acreage is expected to be up about a million acres over 1976.

"Seed supplies of many recently developed varieties have been exhausted for several months," points out the cotton specialists. "Unless replanting is kept at a minimum, a critical shortage of good planting seed could develop. Any significant replanting could force producers to use lower quality seed and could limit their choices to less profitable varieties."

Except for the Rio Grande Valley, Gulf Coast and South Texas areas, most of the state's cotton crop still remains to be planted.

To keep replanting and stand failures at a minimum, Metzger offers these suggestions:

- Avoid planting in cold soils below 60 degrees F.
- Avoid planting in excessively wet soils.
- Plant on a well prepared bed.
- Use systemic insecticide only with high quality seed.
- Keep seed out of direct contact with nitrogen, potassium and herbicides.

CHILDHOOD

By Laura Campbell

The days of childhood go fleeting by. Their years of innocence seems to fly.

They bring us pleasure and so much love. And blessings to us from God above.

We only have them for a few days.

We lovingly watch them while they play. God loaned them to us for a little while. The most precious jewel is a little child.

Little children bring joy to our souls. Carefully, we should use the right mould.

So they will be in Heaven above. Where there will be everlasting love.

All their beauty before us unfold. In our arms, their sweetness we hold.

And at the end of a busy day.

We patiently teach them how to pray.

They are so honest, loving and pure. Our trials are easier to endure.

When they look at us so trustingly. With their arms around us lovingly.
