

Thousands To See 'Fourth' Show Tonight

Upwards of 10,000 people are expected to crowd into Big Spring's city park tonight for the annual Fourth of July fireworks display and beauty pageant.

2 Women Die After Bridge Dumps Crowd

CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP)—A suspension foot bridge tore loose from its moorings near here yesterday, hurling more than 50 persons into the shallow waters of the Oconaluftee River, 20 feet below.

Two women died of injuries. Of the 40 persons injured, 18 were hospitalized at nearby Sylva and Bryson City. Mrs. Henry T. Haile Jr., 35, of Daisy, Tenn., died en route to a hospital. She struck her head on a rock. Mrs. Lawrence Rainwater, 38, of Atlanta, Ga., died in the Sylva Hospital of internal injuries.

Board Sets Meeting On Desegregation Problem In Texas

AUSTIN (AP)—Problems of rubbing out the color line in Texas public schools were top business today for a meeting of the State Board of Education.

The board expected to receive a report from a special subcommittee it named to come up with practical suggestions. The state and local boards are wrestling with desegregation since issuance of the final U.S. Supreme Court order two months ago.

Car Rams Into Truck, Spills Cotton Pickers

WACO, Tex. (AP)—A car punched the rear wheels and axle from under a truck last night, spilling 11 cotton pickers from the truck. One person was killed and seven hospitalized.

tion included at 3:30 p.m. baseball game and golf tournaments at both courses.

The fireworks display is scheduled immediately following the Big Spring Beauty Pageant and will be held on the hill opposite the amphitheatre.

The pageant begins at 7:30 p.m. and it is expected that the fireworks display will start around 9 p.m. Those who come early for the pageant need not move from their amphitheatre seats to see various fireworks arrangements.

Approximately 65 different types of shells will be used in this year's program, said Seth Lacy, electrician in charge of firing. These fireworks will number well over 150 shots.

Twelve of the shots can be heard for over eight miles, and one of them will go up to about 1,000 feet before exploding, it was announced.

The skies will be sprayed with colorful arrays scattered by each burst, and the traditional American Flag arrangement will be fired to climax the program.

It is believed that the display can be viewed from all parts of the city.

Johnson Illness Not Expected To Affect Remainder Of Session

WASHINGTON (AP)—A serious heart attack suffered by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson was generally regarded today as unlikely to have much effect on Congress' accomplishments for the rest of the session.

Johnson, stricken late Saturday, was described by the Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital as "seriously ill." It said his condition "has not changed significantly"—that is, that he was "comfortable and somewhat more stable, but still serious."

President Eisenhower expressed "deep regrets." From many of Johnson's colleagues, both Democrats and Republicans, came expressions of regret.

His position as majority leader, in charge of steering legislation through the Senate, will be filled by Sen. Clements (D-Ky.), assistant leader. Clements filled in for Johnson earlier this year when the latter underwent a kidney stone operation and was absent from the Senate for more than six weeks.

Thanks in part to Johnson's efforts, the Senate is well along on its work load this year. Time and again he has obtained unanimous agreements to limit debate on measures which ordinarily could have been expected to tie the Senate up in debate for a week or more.

Since few knotty legislative problems remain, most observers thought Johnson's absence for the remainder of the session would have little effect on the progress of Eisenhower's program in Congress, or on rival Democratic proposals. Leaders are aiming for adjournment of Congress by the end of this month.

Johnson, 46, was stricken late Saturday while visiting a friend at Middleburg, Va., about an hour's drive from Washington. He began to suffer pains around the heart. A local physician diagnosed the

Bear Carries Off 2-Year-Old Girl

LIBBY, Mont. (AP)—More than 250 heavily armed men combed the rugged Kootenai Forest south of here today for a bear which apparently snatched a 2-year-old girl from her family's tent near a logging camp yesterday.

Lincoln County Undersheriff Ole Fagerberg identified the child as Ida May Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer E. Curtis, of Deer Lodge, Mont.

Fagerberg quoted Mrs. Curtis as telling this story:

Two older Curtis children were playing near the tent while the family was having a picnic.

Suddenly, Mrs. Curtis said, the youngsters screamed they had seen a bear come out of the shadows, hopping on three legs.

Mrs. Curtis said she rushed into the tent and discovered the child was missing. When she ran outside, the bear had disappeared into the wilderness, she said.

"She didn't see the child in the tent" so she took it for granted the bear had gotten it," Fagerberg said.

Bloodstains were found in the tent.

Fagerberg said all available men—sheriff's officer and volunteers—were thrown into the hunt as soon as the child's disappearance was reported about 7 p.m.

Two bloodhounds were sent by truck from Deer Lodge, about 300 miles from Libby.

The family was visiting Curtis, who is employed here as a logger, over the Independence Day weekend.

The family was brought to Libby late last night and placed in a private home after short interview with authorities. They could not be reached immediately by telephone.

Operation Wetback Seemingly Success

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP)—A year ago an Imperial Valley farmer said:

"I think the wethacks who have been carried off will be back before long. They've had these drives before. The wets will always come back."

It appears today that the farmer was wrong and Operation Wetback, conducted by the U.S. Border Patrol, was a success.

In previous years there had been a flood of wethacks—the term applied to illegal immigrants from Mexico stemming from days when they used to swim the Rio Grande into Texas.

In the Border Patrol's El Paso sector, which covers most of the California-Mexico and Arizona-Mexico border, 416,537 wethacks were apprehended in the year ended June 30, 1954.

For the year ended last June 30, the total was only 33,312, about a per cent of the previous year's total.

During Operation Wetback, a

Two Injured In Glasscock Crash

An automobile accident this morning five miles west of Garden City injured 158 seriously injured two Californians. Leroy Johnson and his mother, Nannie Lee Johnson, both of Stockton, Calif., were carried to Big Spring Hospital in River ambulances following the mishap about 9 a.m.

Mrs. Johnson was treated for multiple contusions and abrasions. She also was suffering from shock with possible internal injuries. X-rays were to be taken.

Johnson had no visible injuries but was semi-conscious when brought to the hospital. Attendants said he complained of a back injury. He also was to be X-rayed.

A witness to the accident said the late-model Lincoln turned over several times after the driver apparently lost control. The car broke through a fence and rolled some 75 feet into a plowed field. Johnson was thrown clear and his mother was lying half under the car.

Midland Woman Dies Of Injuries

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP)—Traffic accident injuries proved fatal yesterday for Mrs. Jaime Drury, 57, of Midland, Tex. She died in a hospital.

Police Chief H. J. Goff of Calexico, a border community, cites a 63 per cent drop in arrests for vagrancy, theft, narcotics, burglary and miscellaneous crimes in comparative three-month periods of 1954 and 1955. The arrests during March, April and May a year ago totaled 92; this year, 34.

Two other passengers, George Netherlin, 57, and Nancy Netherlin, 15, both of Midland, were slightly injured.

'Blackboard Jungle' Wasn't Far Wrong

By ARTHUR EVERETT
NEW YORK (AP)—Not long ago, a novel on fictional juvenile delinquents depicted a knife attack by a pupil on his teacher in a high school classroom in New York.

This bloody, chilling incident from Evan Hunter's "The Blackboard Jungle" seemed overdrawn, too sensational. Juvenile delinquency, yes, but things hadn't come to that pass yet.

Well, let's see. . . .

On the night of June 13, James O'Farrell was teaching an after-school boxing class in the gymnasium of Joan de Arc Junior High School on West 93rd Street. The 28-year-old O'Farrell's work was one phase of the city's efforts to quell juvenile delinquency.

Glancing about the gym, O'Farrell noticed a 16-year-old boy who was an outsider and had no business there. He ordered the lad to leave.

"Put me out," snarled the young tough.

As O'Farrell advanced on him, the youngster whisked out a switchblade knife and plunged it into O'Farrell's back. O'Farrell recovered.

New York is sorely beset by juvenile crime. The flaming youth of the 1950s has been replaced by the sullen knife-happy hoodlum of the 1950s.

Where the symbols of the '20s you get to shoot at somebody, flapper, the symbols of the '50s are the zip gun, the narcotics needle, and the blue-jeaned deb, or female youth gang follower.

Last month, juvenile gangster Carlos Luis Feliciano stabbed a rival. The same night the victim's friends avenged the attack by shooting Feliciano to death. Feliciano was a member of the Viceroy gang in Spanish Harlem. Last week, four members of the rival Dragons gang were indicted for first-degree murder, which could land them in the electric chair.

A week before Feliciano's slaying, Fred Warren, 16-year-old member of Brooklyn's Tinsy Timsy gang, was shot to death, latest victim in a continuing youth gang war. His death avenged the earlier slaying of Jesse Lipscomb, 15, of the rival Chaplains. A 16-year-old youth was sentenced to death in Lipscomb's slaying but since has won a new trial.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said Johnson's leadership has been superb and added: "He will be greatly missed in the last days of the session, but his colleagues are rooting for him."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said Clements will "have our wholehearted cooperation." He praised Johnson as "the one man able to hold the Democratic forces together in the Senate and move the program along with ease and relative speed."

Husky Airman Tells Triple Slaying Story

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—A husky airman—so terrified of being captured for being AWOL, he said, that he killed three persons—sat in his cell today, apparently unconcerned about the triple slaying charges against him.

He freely told officers and newsmen details of killing Mrs. Ruby McPherson, 42; her mother Mrs. Lola Norman, 63; and her son George, 12, in their home in Dickinson, Tex., near here, June 22.

The airman, Ellis Euclid Lauhon Jr., 26, told officers he was trying to reach Japan, where, he said, he has a Japanese wife. He expected to sail in a ship from some Mexican port.

He got as far as Nogales, Mexico, where he was picked up Friday night trying to sell Mrs. McPherson's maroon and cream automobile.

He told officers he shot the family because he feared they might turn him over to the Air Force for being AWOL.

The Altus, Ark., airman was flown here Saturday. Mexico turned him over to Texas authorities without extradition proceedings on grounds he was an undesirable alien.

Late Saturday night and early yesterday morning, Lauhon dictated a two-hour statement to Asst. Dist. Atty. Archie Alexander Jr. Here is his story:

He was picked up by Mrs. McPherson while hitchhiking at Beaumont, Tex. She was returning from Sulphur, La., where her husband John and son Jack, 22 are oil field workers.

He tried to hold her up with a

380 May Die Before Long Holiday Ends

Highway slaughter continued today as the nation's motorists entered the final phase of the Independence Day weekend.

In an appeal to hold down the toll, the National Safety Council asked for a halt to the "slaughter" on the highways which reached 277 dead by 10 a.m. today. Some 147 drowned and 80 by miscellaneous causes, including one death by fireworks. In all 504 persons had died accidentally.

The count started at 6 p.m. Friday local time and will extend to midnight tonight.

Ned Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, was alarmed at the rate of fatalities so far.

"Unless we halt this slaughter," he said, "it appears we are headed not only for an all-time high in traffic deaths for any three-day Fourth of July holiday period, but we are making a convincing demonstration that we have not gained our freedom from highway tragedy."

"All we are asking is that these millions of drivers not kill themselves. We appeal to every driver to unite in an all-out effort to hold down this toll."

At the corresponding time of the three-day July 4 weekend last year, 10 a.m. also on a Monday, the highway toll had reached 240. The record for a three-day July Fourth period was set in 1952, 366 traffic deaths.

In a like period on the non-holiday weekend of 6 p.m. Friday, June 26, to midnight Monday, June 29, an Associated Press Survey showed 342 persons died in traffic accidents, 111 drowned and 62 died in miscellaneous accidents.

Last year's toll during a similar three-day Independence Day weekend was 345, 192 and 79, plus four deaths from fireworks—a total of 623.

While totals recorded 18 hours before the close of the holiday weekend seemed well below record figures, the hours of greatest peril lay ahead when vacationers begin returning.

The over-all death toll record for any Fourth of July weekend was 763 for the four-day period in 1950. The record traffic toll, 491, was set in the same year.

The list of traffic dead got its biggest single boost yesterday night when eight persons died in a two-car collision near Iowa City, Iowa. Two families were virtually wiped out—parents and a small daughter in one car, plus another passenger; a mother and three daughters in the other.

In the miscellaneous accidents category were some grim freaks: Lightning killed a mother and three small children at a picnic near Columbus, Ohio, but spared the father. They had taken refuge under a tree during a thunderstorm.

Two women were killed in the collapse of a cable-suspended foot-bridge over a small stream near Cherokee, N.C. Forty others were injured.

A teen-ager was thrown to his death when he stood up on a roller coaster Saturday at Lake Hopatcong, N.J., and lost his balance.

Newlyweds In Italian Sunshine

Pretty blonde Princess Lidia Maria Antonia Caracciolo di Torella, who will be 15 on July 15, strolls gaily with her new husband, Count Aubry William Yasdi, millionaire of Swiss ancestry, on their honeymoon in the Swiss Alps after a secret marriage at Lucca, Italy. The bridegroom is 74, and became a widower recently. Papal dispensation was obtained for the marriage.

Derby Gets Off To Flying Start

Big Spring's second annual Soap Box Derby got off to a fast start this morning before a crowd of about 2,000 persons, with the preliminaries in one class completed by 10:30 a.m. and the other to be finished before noon.

Final heats are to be run off during the afternoon, starting at 2:30 p.m.

Charles (Lefty) Morris, last year's champion, served as "pace setter" this morning, making the first run down the track at City Park. This followed a parade of all participants.

Winners of the preliminaries in Class A (boys 13 to 15 years of age) this morning were Jessie Gilbert, Leonard Lee Gipson, William Johnston, Ronnie Richardson, Avery Falkner Jr., David Woertendyke, Harvey Gregory and Jerry Bill Hutchins.

They and winners of the Class B preliminaries will be in the running for class and grand championship honors this afternoon.

Indian Rope Trick In Reverse

Suzanne Di Peso keeps an eye on the Di Peso family's garden hose which for some unexplained reason has been sinking into the ground beside the Di Peso home in Downey, Calif. Suzanne's father, George Di Peso, finally tied the hose to the water pipe, but now the hose is 12 feet in the ground and is already beginning to bend the pipe. Di Peso dug down two feet around the hose, but found nothing unusual. Di Peso says that nobody can pull the hose out, and when he hitched the loose end to his car bumper the hose stretched and broke. He says he's not kidding anybody, and he hopes nobody is playing a trick on him, either.

Segni Embarks On Final Try At Naming Cabinet

ROME (AP) — Premier-designate Antonio Segni embarked today on the final phase of his weeklong efforts to form a government for crisis-ridden Italy. His chances of success were termed good.

Told by President Giovanni Gronchi to report by tomorrow whether he could pick a cabinet to succeed Premier Mario Scelba's government which collapsed 12 days ago, Segni arranged meetings with Liberal party leaders to bargain for their backing.

The Liberals have posed the main threat to the left-of-center Christian Democrats' efforts to organize a four-party cabinet.

They are wary of Segni's legislative record, particularly his authorship of Italy's ambitious farm reform program.

Segni, 64, may try to form a cabinet without the Liberals if they refuse their support. He would include Christian Democrats, Social Democrats and Republicans. And he would rely on the vote backing of the far left Socialists.

Pietro Nenni, Socialist leader and Stalin Peace Prize winner, urged Segni to take that course in a speech last night at Perugia.

Praising Segni as an advocate of "social opening," Nenni said he could "be the first Premier of the distention." This was a reference to the Communist and Socialist call for relaxation of international tensions.

Segni was first asked June 26 to try his hand at forming a new government. He asked for four days to sound out his chances, when that time limit expired, Gronchi gave him another two days.

Last night Segni accepted "with reservations" and asked until tomorrow to try forming a cabinet.

Red China Air Ranked Fourth

RIPELEY, W. Va. (AP) — Deputy Asst. Secretary of the Air Force Bradley D. Nash said today Communist China, regarded in the past as a secondary force in world affairs, now "possesses the fourth most powerful air force in the world."

In an address prepared for an Independence Day celebration, Nash related the progress Red China is making in aviation to Russia's attempt to secure world mastery of the air.

He said these developments in Russia and China explain why the Eisenhower administration and Congress believe this country must keep up its military strength.

Nash said that Russia, in a change of direction, now is concentrating on three principal objectives: increased farm production, atomic research and production and building its air power.

2-Car Smash Fatal To 8

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Eight persons were killed as two cars collided with traffic force last night at the intersection of Highways 6 and 190, about 15 miles west of here.

It was believed to be the worst two-car crash in Iowa history. The dead were identified by state highway patrolmen as:

Mr. Clarence Wichmann, 26, of Homestead, Iowa, and her three daughters, Donna Jean 5, Rush Ann 3, and Jeanne 1.

Max Williams, 31, of Moline, Ill., his wife Vivian, 28, and their daughter Lisa, 2.

Earl Lowry, 63, who patrolmen said was a cook for the Williamses.

Clarence Wichmann, 30, a farmer, who was driving one car, was reported in critical condition at University Hospital here with head injuries and broken ribs.

The other survivor of the accident was Randy Lee Williams, 7, whose condition was reported as "fair." He suffered two broken legs and possibly other injuries.

Highway patrolmen said the Wichmann car pulled onto Highway 6, apparently without seeing the Illinois car.

Highway patrolmen said all the victims were killed outright except Ruth Ann Wichmann, who died en route to a hospital.

Chinese Smash Narcotics Ring

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chinese Nationalist police said today they had smashed a gang that used the international parcel post to smuggle an estimated $1,300,000 worth of narcotics into Formosa from Hong Kong.

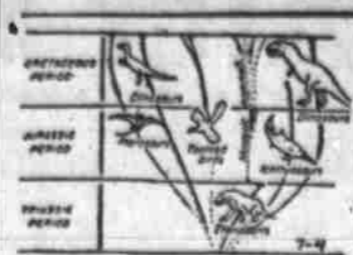

Press reports said 31 persons were arrested and six others were hunted.

Among those implicated, police said, were inspectors of the Chinese maritime customs attached to the general post office in Taipei. The entire team, headed by Chief Inspector Liang Hsi-in, has been replaced.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Section of chart showing animal life during three periods of the past. (Amended from Geologic Time Chart of Prof. Carl O. Dunbar.)

People have many questions about prehistoric animals. One question will be taken up today, and I shall discuss others later this week.

Q. How do scientists know the order in which various animals appeared on the earth?

A. They study the record of the rocks. Many rocks are composed of mud or sand, and the material in them was laid down by rivers. Sometimes the material grew into a huge delta, like the modern delta of the Nile.

As time went on, the mud and sand hardened into layers of rock. Mud-made rock is called shale, and the rock composed of sand is known as sandstone. A third kind of rock, limestone, is composed largely of the limy material left by countless shellfish.

When early animals died, some of them left skeletons where they could be preserved. When we find their bones in a layer of rock, we know that the animals lived shortly before that rock was formed by the hardening of soft material.

Noted Medic Goes To Red China

HONG KONG (AP) — The pro-Nationalist Chinese newspaper Kung Sheung said today a noted Chinese doctor who has been living in Hong Kong for the past 30 years has left suddenly for Peking.

The unconfirmed report said the departure of Dr. Wong Shing Sam, 74, along with his wife and son gave the impression he had been called to attend a leading Communist Chinese official.

Student Poll Gets Candid Answers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — School officials took a poll here to find out why high school students go to summer school.

Of the 325 questioned, 105 replied they were attending to make up subjects they failed. The others are attending simply to study extra subjects—apparently to make it easier in future terms.

Some of the answers received were revealing. For instance: One 17-year-old stated simply, "I goofed."

The students who failed subjects were asked to give their reason. Teachers were blamed in some instances. In other replies, students refused to pass the buck.

"I went to sleep in class," a 17-year-old boy said.

"Kicked out!" was another candid answer.

"The lack of intelligence and failure to anticipate the teacher's mentality," wrote another.

"I just set around and flirted with the boys," a 16-year-old girl admitted.

Actions Of Accused Spy Told By Solon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Eastland (D-Miss) says the late Harry Dexter White, accused as a Soviet spy, received reports from "a worldwide commercial espionage system" and "an effective political intelligence network."

White is the former Treasury department official who has been described by Atty. Gen. Brownell as a Russian espionage agent. He died in 1948, three days after denying before the House Un-American Activities Committee that he was a Communist.

Eastland said in a statement yesterday that an inquiry into White's activities by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, which he heads, has produced "a record that demands greatest precautions against any repetition."

He commented in connection with the subcommittee's publication of excerpts from the voluminous diaries of Henry Morgenthau Jr., who as secretary of the Treasury in the Roosevelt administration was White's boss.

Morgenthau testified at a public subcommittee hearing June 15 that during his tenure as secretary he never had reason to doubt White's loyalty.

Eastland commented that a study of Morgenthau's diary has shown that White had a "knack of seizing power and broadening and deepening any authority given him." He said also that it appears White was "in a much more powerful position with the Treasury than has been generally understood."

His statements about White's information from abroad stemmed from several reports which were found in the diary excerpts. Two inserted in the hearing record were written by Treasury employes, one stationed in Portugal and the other in Bolivia.

Subcommittee Counsel J. G. Sourwine at the time described the first as containing "what was then (1943) a very important and in part highly confidential information about the commercial and economic activity in Portugal."

The other, describing a political coup d'etat in Bolivia in late 1943, was said by Sourwine to contain "high-level inside dope."

- Winners and the correct solution will be announced in The Herald Friday, July 8.

Traffic Jam In Transit Strike

Homeward-bound workers, without city bus and trolley service because of Capital transit strike in Washington, D. C., jam Pennsylvania Avenue with automobiles. Relaxation of restrictions during the walkout permitted motorists to park cars on center avenue tracks which added to the confusion at the quitting time rush. In the background is the Capitol.

Capital Transit Strike Still On

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington's citywide transit strike was in its fourth day today with federal mediators making new efforts to arrange a bargaining session between AFL strikers and the firm that operates the capital's streetcars and buses.

After a meeting yesterday of District of Columbia commissioners and top officials of the Capital Transit Co., Commissioner Samuel Spencer said there was no prospect of a settlement before tomorrow.

In Los Angeles, U. S. marshals were preparing to subpoena Louis E. Wolfson, board chairman of the transit firm, for a Thursday appearance at a Senate hearing.

Wolfson's testimony was sought on a bill by Sen. Morse (D-Ore) to revoke Capital Transit's franchise. Wolfson recently lost a bid to take over control of Montgomery Ward & Co.

Some 2,400 AFL streetcar and bus drivers walked out early Friday in a wage dispute. Within a few hours, the city was wrestling with a record-breaking traffic tie-up.

The union seeks a 25-cent hourly pay increase for drivers, who got $1.90 an hour under the old contract. It suggested arbitration.

The company proposed a six-month extension of the old contract, pending municipal action on its request for a fare increase.

Johnson Illness May Be Blow To Hopes For Democratic Unity

By DAVE CHEAVENS
AUSTIN (AP)—Serious illness of Sen. Lyndon Johnson may be a blow to hopes of reuniting quarrelsome factions of the Democratic party in Texas.

Johnson's heart attack also touched off wide speculation in political circles on what would happen if his health should force him to give up the U. S. senatorship he won in the bitter 1948 battle with former Gov. Coke Stevenson.

Johnson has been spotlighted nationally in dozens of newspaper and magazine articles recently as an "around-the-clock, resourceful

Senate Democratic leader with a bright political future. He has often been mentioned as a prospective vice-presidential and presidential candidate for the Democrats who might re-weld the northern and southern factions that split in 1952.

Should Johnson's illness force him to give up the senatorship, the selection of a successor would touch off a wild whirl of political competition. Under Texas law, if the post of U. S. senator becomes vacant, the governor is directed within 10 days to call a special election which must be held not less than 60 or more than 90 days after the vacancy occurs.

If the vacancy comes while Congress is in session, the governor must fill the post on a temporary basis until a special election can be held.

The last time that happened was when Sen. Morris Sheppard died in office in 1941. Then Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel named Andrew Jackson Houston to the post. The aged son of Gen. Sam Houston served 24 days and died. O'Daniel then resigned as governor and won a special election to fill the Senate post.

Johnson has kept mum and on the sidelines as much as possible in the public fusing between Democratic factions in Texas, and between the state party leadership under Gov. Allan Shivers and the national leadership. This row came to a head when Shivers supported the GOP in 1952.

When Johnson was in Austin recently to attend the birthday dinner for former Gov. Miriam Ferguson, he again refused to comment on party factional ruses. He said he wanted to spend his future energies "in preventing fights rather than promoting them."

He was known to be active however in seeking to bring the feuders together. When Shivers returned from Washington in May from conferences with party leaders and other Democratic governors, he had high praise for Johnson's unity efforts on the national scale.

"Johnson has done more than anyone else in his Senate leadership to put the party in a national rather than a regional class," Shivers said.

Friends of Johnson say that one of his prime life ambitions is to promote harmony in the party and to restore a Democrat to the White House in 1956. Along with that, he wanted to get Texas Democrats back in line that year after their history-making turn to the GOP in 1952.

FIRST GLIMPSE

Russia Shows Supersonic Jets

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia gave foreigners their first glimpse of her new supersonic jet fighters yesterday in a spectacular Air Force Day show featuring a wide range of war and transport craft.

Western observers watched intently as the pride of Russia's air arm—fighters, bombers, transports and huge helicopters—passed over Moscow's Tushino Airfield.

The high spot of the show came when 48 supersonic single-jet fighters flashed past. Most of the other aircraft had been seen in rehearsal flights over Moscow, but these jets were new.

Another fresh sight that brought cheers from some 100,000 Muscovites thronging the flag-bedecked field was a sleek new twin-engine jet transport.

Also on display were 50 twin-jet medium bombers of a model first seen last year and 4 two-engine helicopters which seemed capable of carrying about 60 men each.

Another feature that attracted considerable attention was an aerial ballet starring a flap-wing radio-controlled glider. It was the second year the strange-looking craft had been shown.

Also taking part in the ballet, accompanied by a 500-piece band, were slow-moving Yak-18s and gliders which passed through a variety of intricate formations.

The show came to a close with a mass parachute drop. Watching the aerial maneuvers from the reviewing stand were Premier Niko-lai Bulganin, Soviet Communist party Chief Nikita Khrushchev, Defense minister Georgi Zhukov, President Klementy Voroshilov and other government leaders, including former Premier Georgi Malenkov.

Special guests of the Soviet leaders were Air Marshal Suberto Mukerjee, commander of India's air force, and Lt. Gen. Zdenko Ulepik, chief of the Yugoslav air force.

Returning PWs Due In Hong Kong

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Three former American prisoners of war who chose to live in Red China but now are returning home will arrive in Hong Kong Saturday, July 9, the Indian Red Cross announced today.

The announcement said information was received from the Chinese Red Cross that the ex-prisoners—Lewis W. Griggs of Jacksonville, Tex.; Otto Bell of Olympia, Wash.; and William A. Cowart of Dalton, Ga., will be escorted to the Hong Kong frontier on that date and turned over to a British Red Cross representative.

This is the first news of the three men since the Peiping radio announced Friday they had been ordered into custody in Peiping for alleged rowdiness.

The Indian Red Cross did not mention two Belgians who also are due to return to their homes.

Byrd Predicts Spending Control

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D-Va) said today Congress may gain some added control over federal spending next year if the Eisenhower administration adopts a proposed change in submitting its budget.

Byrd disclosed that Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey recently told the Senate Finance Committee in a closed session the administration is working on a plan to return to a system of annual review of appropriations by Congress.

As Byrd explained it, this would involve abandonment of the present system under which Congress has piled up around 80 billion dollars in unspent appropriations to be used by the executive departments in the next several years.

Instead, he said, Congress would be asked to vote only the amount to be spent in the forthcoming fiscal year, giving contract authority for projects such as dams and naval ships which require more than a year to construct.

Under such a plan, Congress would review each year the amount to be spent on the contracts, instead of voting as it does now a lump sum for the project to be spent over several years.

"If this system can be put into effect," Byrd said in an interview, "it will help Congress regain its control over expenditures. As matters stand now, once the appropriations are made, the executive departments can decide when to spend them."

Eruptions Seen In Island Chain

TOKYO (AP)—A Japanese government ship today reported seeing new eruptions in the Bayonnalse Rocks, a chain of uninhabited outcroppings in the Pacific Ocean about midway between Japan and Iwo Jima.

The rocks, some 360 miles south of Tokyo, went into a tremendous volcanic activity in September 1952 and created a new islet. The islet disappeared after a second series of violent eruptions in March 1953.

Hiroshi Kato, 27, fishery expert, said today he saw a new eruption June 25 while conducting a survey about two miles north of the Bayonnalse.

"At about 4 p.m. The Bayonnalse suddenly shot up two water columns 20 yards high and several other columns of 2 to 3 yards high followed," he said.

Let us search and try our ways, and turn again to the LORD. Let us lift up our heart with our hands unto God in the heavens. (Lam. 3:40-41)

Greatest Day In Our History

The day we celebrate today marks one of the outstanding events in the history of the world, but as Jefferson commented the Declaration did not so much advance new ideas as give expression to sentiments that had been knocking around in men's minds for a long time.

Hancock had signed with the specific authorization of the Congress, however, and acted in its behalf. If the Liberty Bell was rung (and cracked) to commemorate the occasion, there is nothing to indicate as much.

Proprietors Indeed

The story is that while an American was going through the custom lines abroad he was preceded by an Englishman who nodded when the official asked if he was a British subject.

Our ancestors did not acquire it for a song, so to speak; they invested their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor in the project.

Demos Face Ike's Strong Personal Popularity

WASHINGTON — There's a studied optimism, a deliberately hopeful attitude being assumed here toward the Four Power Conference "at the summit." It's a smart tactic. It puts the burden of frustrating the hope of the world on the Soviets if the conference fails.

campaign front in 1956. They are cooperating not because they have suddenly become wise statesmen, but because they are good politicians.

But underneath the surface, where the facts of international life are well known, the sad truth is that everybody knows the only result that can come out of the Four Power Conference is a decision to talk some more and through specific channels.

There are outcroppings of it all the time. The Democratic group which wants public power and government ownership of public utilities, as well as eventually the nationalization of steel and autos and other major industries, shows its real colors when it keeps on yapping about the Dixon-Yates program.

On domestic issues, the President has achieved great strength. Tyros in politics, Trumanites and those who know little about grassroots sentiment in politics are mistakenly assuming that a Democratic Congress and a Republican President isn't a bad combination after all and might as well be continued.

The Democrats also have played a clever game on the anti-Communist issue on which they were so vulnerable politically in 1952. They have sought by every means to play down the security problem and have skillfully changed it from an investigation of Communists and sympathizers to a sign of cooperation by the Democrats or a pastime that the Eisenhower Administration is going to enjoy in naive in political matters.

The Big Spring Herald

Published Sunday morning and weekday afternoons except holidays by APPLICATED NEWSPAPERS, Inc. 400 Main St. Dallas 4-4331 Big Spring, Texas

But in the next two years the anti-Communist issue will not die down. It will be heard from because, despite the satisfaction which "The Daily Worker," organ of the Communist party, takes over the tactics of the Democrats in putting barriers in the way of effective inquiries into Communist activities, the whole case will be put into focus before the next campaign arrives.

Officials Think

Reds Want To Cut Arms Cost

WASHINGTON, July 2 — Top U. S. officials are convinced Russia really wants to cut part of its huge armament expenses.

This conviction arises from the fact that modern armaments are extremely costly and burdensome both to Russia and the Western Powers, and because practical steps toward disarmament are possible without altering radically the present balance of power.

Around The Rim Columbus Had Several Angels For That Voyage

Many a myth I was taught in history at school since has been proved to be just that, and nothing more.

Santangel assumed the task of raising the money as quickly as possible.

Apparently, Bonaparte knew of what he spoke, for I'm still being corrected on some of the fables I learned years ago.

A quadrat for the expedition was furnished by Rabbi Jacob Ibn Tibbon. Nautical calculations were made possible by the use of Jacob's Staff, invented by Rabbi Nunez and Vecinho.

I had been taught that Queen Isabella of Spain financed the trip by pawing her jewels.

Astronomical tables were needed, too, and they were compiled, to a large extent by Jews, one of whom was Abraham Zacuto.

Dr. George Fox, a retired rabbi, who divides his time between Chicago and Miami, says Isabella was interested but did not have the means to sponsor the trip.

If the Jewish people point with pride to the significant event, they have spotlighted the fact, too, that a number of those who made the trip with Columbus were of Jewish origin, among them a subordinate officer, the ship's surgeon and the interpreter of the expedition.

Columbus, after seeing Isabella and being told the bad news, ultimately got help from three wealthy Jewish friends of the royal family.

Luis de Torres, the interpreter, was, by the way, the first white man to discover the use of tobacco and the first Jew to settle in Cuba.

They, in turn, went before the queen, whose curiosity had already been aroused by Columbus and she consented to sponsor the expedition, if they would raise the funds.

More than a few modern authorities reason that Columbus was of Jewish descent.

Things Looking Rosy For Tony Curtis

HOLLYWOOD — Tony Curtis is hotter than a firecracker these days, and nobody could be happier than Tony Curtis.

has had that opportunity. Marlon Brando, Monty Clift, Robert Wagner, John Derek, Rock Hudson, Jeff Chandler. They've all had at least one big one.

Tony has always been his own best booster, and it's refreshing in a way. There's enough hypocritical modesty in this town. Obviously actors are sold on themselves or they wouldn't be actors.

"Now at last I have the deal that is beyond my wildest dreams. I have the greatest director in the world. I have a terrific script. And I'm with two great performers. Who can ask for anything more?"

Tony breezed into his dressing room during the lunch break of "The Square Jungle." He plays a boxer in the film and was sporting a pair of trunks and a tattered robe.

He has also had the opportunity to test his value in the movie market. Hecht-Lancaster is shelling out $150,000 for his services in "Trapeze."

"Like it?" he grinned. "I had it tailored especially for me."

"And a Mercedes-Benz," he added proudly. "Wow! what a deal!"

He excused himself for a shower to wash off the glycerin which had been used on his body during fight scenes. No sense in a star's using his own sweat, you know.

Tony was being considered by MGM for the Rocky Graziano story, "Somebody Up There Likes Me," but the deal cooled because he is doing a fight picture now. However, he may be picked to play "Ben Hur."

Tony munched on a lean lunch of cold cuts, designed to keep his figure under control.

Things are looking rosy, all right. He spent part of his lunch hour picking out fabrics for three new suits to take to Europe, one a jazzy "race track number."

Meanwhile he enthused about his film future.

He has also acquired a press agent for the first time.

He leaves next month for Europe, where he'll co-star with Gina Lollobrigida and Burt Lancaster in "Trapeze," directed by Carol Reed.

"I thought I'd better have one for Trapeze," he reasoned, "since this gal Lollobrigida can knock a war off the front pages."

"I've always said that the trouble with my career was that I never had a big important picture," he said. "Oh, they've been entertaining and they sell. But I mean a big one."

Knowing Tony, his friends will wager that he'll not come in second in the publicity parade.

Another Report On The States Rights Issue

(While Marquis Childs is on vacation, his column is being replaced by that of Thomas L. Stokes.)

Eisenhower commission's report comes to the conclusion that the states have failed to fulfill their responsibilities. So, once again, the problem is thrown back to the states and the confining of Federal expansion is presented as a matter which they must meet by exercising their own neglected powers.

WASHINGTON — Old fashioned "States Righters" will find little comfort in the voluminous and exhaustive report of another of President Eisenhower's galaxy of special commissions. This one, the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, explored — once again — the relations among, and the functions and spheres of, Federal, state and local government.

The commission offers some suggestions, among them, the reappointment of legislative districts to reduce the present preponderant influence of rural areas in practically all state legislatures to the detriment of the cities. Many cities, consequently, have come to by-pass the state and deal directly with the Federal government to meet needs of various sorts.

While this latest addition to the Eisenhower five-fold commission shelf recognizes the vital and necessary role of Federal government in many areas affecting all our people, it delineates the areas in which it holds state and local government have paramount interest. In the latter, the 25 member commission headed by Meyer Kenbaum, of Chicago President, Hart, Schaffner and Marx went too far for one of the Congressional members.

The maintenance of a wealthy Federal system has two aspects. The states must be alert to the legitimate needs of their citizens, lest more and more of the business of government fall upon the national government. At the same time, the national government must refrain from taking over activities that the states and their subdivisions are performing with reasonable competence, lest the vitality of state and local institutions be undermined.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore), though approving much of the report, said in a general dissent that he does not think the report "gives due emphasis to the rights and jurisdictions of Federal Sovereignty."

In the report we find traced once again how the depression struck in the late 1920's, it became necessary eventually for the Federal government to move in to provide relief of hungry and destitute millions of citizens as the state could not carry the financial burden. This assumption of Federal responsibility was approved by the Commission, which says if another such depression should strike, the same course would have to be followed again. Likewise it endorses such cushions and protections for the individual embodied in various measures of the Roosevelt Administration, including unemployment insurance and old-age pensions.

He objected also, along with another Democrat, Rep. John Dingell (Mich.), in numerous individual dissents to some of the proposed reductions or eliminations of Federal functions.

The tendency for the Federal government to take over functions formerly exercised by the states went too far in that era, however, in the commission's judgment, partly due to the refusal or inability of the states, themselves, to do things for their own people because of a lack of financial resources.

Like other successive studies of the Federal-state relationship in recent years, the

Though the commission shirked an obligation to the public by failing to expose some "State rights" raiding operations, about which it could have contributed detailed information, they were not overlooked by Sen. Morse. He singled out the ultra-conservative viewpoint at work which, he said, "would have the Federal government relinquish more and more of its sovereign rights and duties in the field of interstate commerce, natural resources, monopoly control, taxation, civil rights and yes, in almost every field in which the enforcement of Federal jurisdiction is essential to promoting and protecting the general welfare of the people of the nation as a whole."

Still Jumping

GRAND HAVEN, Mich. — Steve S. Malsam, 26, was a paratrooper in the Korean War and he's still jumping. He says there are only three men in the country who go up in balloons and parachute to earth as an entertainment stunt. He is one of them.

He's a welder in cold weather but gets a leave of absence from his job to do his jumping in the summer. Although he gets up to $300 for each leap, he says the real reason he does it is because it is fun.

Expenses are high. His balloons cost $200 to replace and parachutes cost $100 apiece.

He does stunts on a trapeze as the hot-air filled balloon rises, then lets go and falls free for 600 feet before opening his chute. That free fall takes about 28 seconds, he says. He carries a little bag of flour to make a trail in the air.

Dulles is said to believe it may be possible to agree with the Russians at Geneva on procedures for tackling the problem of balancing and gradually reducing armaments in Europe.

One way of doing this might be to hold a joint conference of North Atlantic Alliance (NATO) nations and members of the Russian-sponsored Warsaw Alliance to try to strike a balance and impose arms limits in the European area.

It's All In Desire

Jarma Lewis, MGM contract player you'll be seeing often on the screen in the future, recommends the slow but sure way of taking off weight. "You'll have to decide that you want to be thin more than you want to eat," says Jarma.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

For Effective Dieting You Must Want To Lose

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD — Jarma Lewis has developed so quickly as an actress that MGM has seen fit to give her the leads in three of her new pictures. The first of these to be released was "The Marauders."
Although Jarma hails from Alabama, there isn't a trace of a Southern accent about her.
"As I became interested in dramatics, I knew I had to lose it," she told me as we drove out to the Veterans Hospital in Long Beach. "I'm glad that I did, too, because I think correct speech is an important part of being attractive."
Jarma confessed that there was a period in her life when she underestimated the importance of appearance.
"I was working so hard at trying to be a good actress that I forgot to look into the mirror. I paid no attention to my weight and I began to get heavy. I wore the wrong clothes and I was careless about my manicure. It took me a while to realize that I wasn't getting many jobs. No one seemed to doubt my ability but they didn't hire me.

"When I came to Hollywood, my agent took one look at me and immediately ordered me to lose twenty pounds. I bought a book called 'How to Reduce and Stay Reduced' and it changed my whole life. I not only reduced successfully but learned all about food and how to stay healthy. While I was reducing I felt better than ever before and I decided that I would stick with those eating habits permanently.
"It meant giving up some of my favorite dishes—fried chicken, hot breads, hominy grits, etc. I put myself on a 1,000-calories-a-day diet, allowing myself an extra 500 calories over the weekend. It wasn't difficult because I never felt hungry.
"This method takes off weight slowly and allows a chemical change to take place in the body which will curb your desire for the rich foods you used to crave.
"I took no pills or appetite killers and I have never gained over two or three pounds since then. But even this book isn't going to help unless you have a genuine dissatisfaction with your figure. The difficult decision is that you WANT TO BE THIN more than you WANT TO EAT. When you have reached this point, the rest is fairly simple," Jarma concluded.
DIET NEWS
Jarma offers some good advice on diet. And if you've been looking for a good diet, you'll probably like the one included in Lydia Lane's new "Your Loveliness I. Q." booklet. The diet is one used by Sheree North—and it really works. Included in the booklet are sections on all phases of beauty. You can get the whole package of beauty information when you order your own copy. Bolches Of Lamesa On Trip To Canada

LAMESA — After a wedding trip to Yellowstone National Park and Vancouver, British Columbia, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Bolch will be at home in Lamesa.
Mrs. Bolch is the former Mrs. Noreen Jones, daughter of Mrs. Cynthia Weaver, Route B. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bolch of Lamesa.
The informal ceremony was performed at the First Baptist Church parsonage, by the Rev. Milo B. Arubucke Thursday morning.
The bride wore a black linen dress trimmed in white with white accessories and carnations.
For traveling she wore a navy linen dress with pink and navy accessories.
Before her marriage, Mrs. Bolch was employed at Lamesa General Hospital as receptionist.
Mr. Bolch is engaged in farming and ranching in this county.

Plant Seed, Bulbs To Have Fall Flowers

By ANNE LeFEVER
July is the month in which another planting of gladioli should be made for fall blooming. Give them enough plant food and plenty of water for a good start.
Zinnias, planted early this month, will come into flower in a surprisingly short time if they are properly fed and watered. The seedlings should never be allowed to wilt. Summer-flowering marigolds may also be planted now.
Later in July is a good time for sowing perennial seeds, since the small plants will develop rapidly before cold weather and will bloom earlier next year. Fall sown perennials do much better than those planted in the spring, as they do not have to go through the heat of the summer. Some of the more easily grown perennials are dianthus, alyssum, gillardia, hollyhocks, daisy lily, delphinium and cornflowers.
If winter blooms are desired on geraniums, they should not be allowed to flower this summer. As small shoots appear, cut them back to about four inches to form bushy plants. Cuttings of geraniums and begonias may be made now for winter pot plants.
Examine any fruit trees to determine whether or not the leaves are turning yellow. This is an indication that it is in need of a well-balanced plant food. This should be worked into the soil thoroughly and then watered.

Flower beds should be carefully cleaned to remove wild grasses and weeds that are taking the food and moisture. Loosen the soil a bit and apply a mulch of straw, leaf mold, peat moss or other material which will help keep the ground damp.
Chrysanthemums need more attention this month, too. They are hungry plants and they also like a lot of water. Liquid manure should be applied about every ten days or two weeks with an ample supply of water. All through the month of July, the tops must be pinched back if stronger bushier plants are to be the result.
Rose bushes must be watched for black spot. Sulphur is the remedy for this. It may be used on evergreens that show signs of red spider attacks and on hardy pines and hollyhocks suffering from rust. If evergreens have been attacked by bagworms, arsenate of lead should get rid of them. Use two tablespoons to a gallon of water to make a spray.
Vegetable and fruit peelings, grass clippings and vegetable tops should be added to the compost pile or bin. Material from this pit will be very valuable in the garden or flower beds, and it will help to loosen the tight soil. Mix it into the beds thoroughly, being careful not to disturb the root systems of the plants and shrubbery growing there.

Three P's Are Stressed In Training All Dogs

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON — Patience, persistence and praise are the three P's prescribed by Phyllis Wright in the training of dogs whether for war fronts or as peace-time pets. Miss Wright, 28, slender and attractive, trained hundreds of dogs for the Korean War front. Now she not only teaches pooches, but the people who own them, canine conduct in her private boarding and training kennel for the dogs in Washington's VIP's here.

Reunion, Planned Ten Years Ago, Is Held Here Today

High noon on the Fourth of July, 1945! That is the time a "document" was written by ten girls who had just been graduated from the local high school. They very solemnly signed the paper, which stated that they would all have lunch together "at high noon, July 4, 1955."
According to one of them, that seemed such a long way off that she couldn't realize that the meeting would ever take place. With the exception of three members, however, the group met at the Settlers Hotel for luncheon today.
Plans have been made for a barbecue this evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor, 1511 B. Wood. This will honor husbands and children of the group.
Attending the luncheon were Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. R. E. McClure Jr., Mrs. Wesley Deats of Dallas, Dorothy Satterwhite of Midland, Mrs. Willie Murchison of Menard, Mrs. Don Henry of Snyder and Mrs. Jimmy Shaffer of Bryan. Those unable to attend are Helon Blount of New York City, Nina Curry of California, and Mrs. George Cross of Wahachie.

Among her charges was the Doberman Pinscher belonging to Sen. Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin and his wife, Jean.
Snooper, the Arkansas rabbit hound of Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), a boarder, came to be known as the speaker, because he was so vociferous.
Other boarders include, Coo Coo, the Belgian Schipperke of socialite Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss; Pfassnar, Sen. Symington's (D-Mo) daschund Vallente, a German Shepherd belonging to a Peruvian diplomat; a pair of Tibetan temple dogs, and a 50-pound Samoyed, (originally used in Russia as sledge dogs).
Sometimes there are so many canine boarders in the kennel, which has a capacity of 40, that the overflow winds up in the guest room of the charming house Miss Wright shares with kennel co-owner, Maria Kahn, a former Army nurse and writer, and her own seven dogs. The Wright collection includes all varieties from Mixx to Inky, toy poodles, to Target and Tim, two German Shepherds.
The Washington-born Miss Wright gave basic training to German Shepherds at the Army's holding post Station Cameron in Virginia, before they were shipped to Camp Carson, Colo., for further training as guard or patrol dogs.
"If Ph.D.'s were given for dog psychology, Phyllis Wright would be among the top eligibles," Miss Kahn told me. "She has what the Germans call fluidum, or animal sense. She obedience-trains dogs to be more acceptable, well-disciplined. A dog enjoys knowing what is expected of him and the things for which he will be punished."
Once Miss Wright got a call from a well-known woman psychologist. Her great Pyrenees dog refused to come out of a closet after his mistress, one hot summer day, clipped him, leaving a mane and a tail to look like a lion's.
"We suggested the psychologist put him on a couch and talk to him," Miss Kahn laughed, "but we took him and helped him to get over his embarrassment complex."

News While It's News

People in the Big Spring area are receiving better news service than ever before—news on the day it's news—no "pre-date" editions—through 6 special motor routes maintained by The Herald. In the small communities, in the oil camps, on the farms, they're finding in The Herald a newspaper that publishes news of interest to them. West Texas oil, West Texas farming and ranching, West Texas sports, West Texas women's activities, West Texas happenings. That's the reason more and more people on these routes and in this area are saying "Leave us The Herald."

THE PAYOFF TO ADVERTISERS

This daily delivery, right to area homes, is "money in the bank" for the merchant who uses Herald advertising. No other medium, of any kind, anywhere, can reach the same people who are looking for better values, who want a good place to shop, and who turn to The Herald for their shopping guide. This is real benefit to Big Spring merchants who have a sales story to tell to the people in this area. The rural daily delivery is, of course, in addition to the 50 city route carriers who put the Herald every day, right at the door of nearly 6,000 Big Spring homes.

Eyeing The Job Ahead

Bud Pickett (left) studies the fairway ahead before teeing off in the Fourth of July Golf Tournament at the Big Spring Country Club and is given some sage advice by Jeff Painter (center) and Tommy Hutto.

Jake Morgan Nears Fifth Golf Title

Jake Morgan appeared to be virtually in as Fourth of July champion of the Big Spring Country Club, after one day of play. In firing an even-par 72 Sunday, the veteran took a four-stroke lead in the medal-play meet. Unless he blows up completely, and no one expects him to, Jake will have secured his fifth club championship by tonight. Second in the tournament are Weldon Bryant, who tied Jake for medal honors Saturday, and J. R. Farmer, each with 76's. O. O. Craig and Tommy Hutto were the only other players in the championship flight to shoot in the 70's. Morgan played steady golf throughout his round. He was one over par his first time around the course but got off to a fine start with a three on ten and came breezing home.

Byron Nelson Fires A 69 In British Open Tourney

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (U) — Irish amateur Joe Carr, England's Harry Weetman and Scottish pro Laurie Ayton shot record 67's today to take the lead over American Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Tex. in the first qualifying round for the British Open golf championship. Carr, 1953 British amateur champion, set a competitive record for the New Course at St. Andrews with a round of 33-34-67. Weetman later equalled it with 34-33-67. Ayton, veteran Scottish pro now living in Ipswich, England, equalled the record for the Old Course with 33-34-67. Contestants are required to play 18 holes over each course today and tomorrow with the 100 low scorers and ties qualifying for the tournament proper, which begins Wednesday. Nelson shot 36-33-69. Ed Furgol of St. Louis, had 35-36-71. Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia, turned in a fine 34-36-70 round.

Teen-Age Play Opens Tonight

Teen Age Baseball Association play begins tonight on the association's new diamond in North Big Spring. A Senior Division game tonight sees the Elks against the American Business Club Cats at 7:30 o'clock. The Senior Division plays on Mondays and Thursdays of each week. Junior Division clubs launch play Tuesday night, with the Rails testing the Reporters in the first game and the KP Tigers tangling with the Devils in the second game.

Abilene Powers Way To 18-5 Win

The West Texas-New Mexico League has its biggest evening of the year on tap tonight with all teams playing doubleheaders. And pace-setting Pampa hopes it can get a couple of pitching performances to match the one of Tom Pollett Sunday in its important pair with Plainview. Pollett came up with an outstanding hurling show, a three-hitter over Plainview, that gave the Oilers an 8-0 decision. In the other games, it was just about business as usual. Amarillo beat Clovis 15-14 in a home run-filled marathon. Abilene blasted Lubbock 18-5 and Albuquerque nipped El Paso 4-3. That moved Abilene just one percentage point ahead of Clovis and into fifth place, while Albuquerque stayed three games back of Pampa.

Thompson, Wright Win City Matches

Luke Thompson and Bobby Wright survived first round matches in the City Golf Tournament at the Municipal Links Sunday. Thompson defeated J. E. Foote, 6-5, and Wright downed Doug Hill, 5-4. One other round of the championship flight is scheduled for today.

LOOKING 'EM OVER With Tommy Hart

To see everything that goes on in baseball, one would have to have a sort of insect's eye — with which many things could be studied at one time. The spectator usually trains his vision on the eternal struggle between pitcher and batter — and thereby misses much of the drama that helps make the game the wondrous thing that it is. The third base coach, for instance, performs a nightly chore that goes largely unnoticed from the stands but, nonetheless, is vitally important to his club. As someone remarked recently, he's a sort of quarterback on the baseball team. He picked up signals flashed to him by the manager (unless the skipper himself elects to station himself there) and relays them to the batter and/or base runners.

It was Al Simmons, the old "foot-in-the-bucket" hitter, who remarked long ago that coaching at third base is the toughest job in baseball. Abuse is heaped on the third base coach's head when he gambles on sending a runner ahead and loses but he's given all too little credit when things operate smoothly. Teams use two coaches, one at first and the other at third, but the one at the far corner does a much more critical job. Anyone of a number of things the coach might be doing — like tugging his cap or hitching his trousers — might be a signal to "hit away" or "take a pitch." And, the signal might not mean anything until the coach gives the semaphore a third time.

Most of the signs he does give are to deceive the opposition or "throw-off" signs, as they are known in the trade. An opposing team which can steal your signs has the battle more than half won and can make life miserable for you. Consider this situation: A coach flashes a steal sign to a man on first base but it is picked up by a dupout occupant who then flashes the news to the catcher. The backstop calls for a pitchout, steps out to take the throw and has the runner nailed almost before he can get started.

The primary chore of the third-base coach is to handle the base traffic in such a way that it doesn't get fouled up between the sacks or get too ambitious. His judgment is almost always final and the average player who goes against his wisdom often faces the wrath of the manager upon his return to the dugout. When a runner is at first and the team needs to get him home, the coach knows he must take fewer chances than were the runner at second or third base. Most of the time, where a runner just has to bring a runner around in such instances and the coach must give the benefit of the doubt to the throwing arms of the opposition. If a coach's team goes into the ninth trailing by a couple of runs, his willingness to gamble practically disappears. Some of the great plays in baseball, where a runner just has to be thrown to the plate with the winning run, technically should never have been made because the coach, having considered the possibilities and the odds against the play, had ruled otherwise.

Next time a batter in Steer Park clubs what appears to be an extra base hit, watch him look to the third base coach rather than the flight of the ball while approaching second base. The coach will be calling the shots. A runner traveling from first to second or third can't, of course, see what's happening behind him, which is the reason the third base coach's judgment is more significant. The runner has to use the coach at the far corner as his eyes.

Job Spins Eight-Hitter As Cosden Cops Triumph

Marcus Job turned in one of the season's niftiest pitching jobs here Sunday afternoon, setting Odessa down with eight scattered hits as Big Spring registered a 6-2 victory. The triumph, third in a row for the Bobbies, moved them closer to the War Birds in the battle for sixth place in Longhorn League standings. The locals are now three games removed from sixth place. Big Spring led from the second inning on. The provincials plated two runs in that round with the aid of a double by Tom Costello, his first of three hits, a balk, a walk to Floyd Martin, a run-producing single by Huck Doe and an infield out.

ODESSA, COPS MEET AT 3:30

Originally committed to play two games this evening, the Big Spring Cosden Cops and Odessa's Eagles will instead meet in a single contest at 3:30 o'clock today at Steer Park. The double bill was set back until Tuesday night due to the competition from such things as a beauty contest at the city amphitheatre and a fireworks display. Today's engagement will be a nine-inning joust while the two tomorrow night will be seven frames. After tomorrow, the Cops hit the road for five days, moving first to Roswell and then to Artesia. After Tuesday, the Bobbies play only two home games between July 6 and July 18. The Big Springers will be after their fourth straight win this afternoon. They trail Odessa only 2 1/2 lengths in the skirmishing for sixth place in the Longhorn League. Mike Rainey or Aga Baca could get the mound call for the Cops today. Tony York, the Odessa skipper, may counter with Dick Strombach, always a toughie for the locals to handle. The Cops' current streak also has them eyeing the fourth and fifth spots in the standings. Fourth place Roswell lost to fifth place Carlsbad Sunday to tighten the race for the middle positions.

Jim Zapp clubbed his 22nd four-master of the season with the bases empty in the third after Tony York had hit one out for Odessa in the top half of the round. The Eagles had counted their first run in the second on a walk, a throwing error and one-baser by Dale Scales. The going was very close until the eighth, when the Cops shoved across three tallies on five hits, three stolen bases and a sacrifice fly. The Eagles put runners on first and second before a man could be retired in the ninth but couldn't get them home. Jerry Tucker went all the way on the mound for Odessa, giving up ten hits. He was seeking his eighth win but had to accept his sixth defeat. FOUL TIPS—Job tried to lay down a bunt in the second inning but instead was struck by a pitched ball. York was the only Odessaan to collect more than one hit. He added a single to his fourth inning homer. Seven stolen bases occurred during the game, with Jim Ackers of Odessa and Floyd Martin of Big Spring getting two each. Job speared Tucker's line drive in the third for an out but, through force of habit, threw to first base. Clouds drifting under the sun made it much easier on the outfielders going after fly balls. Neither right fielder, Costello of Big Spring or Lefty Loyko of Odessa, made a putout or got an assist.

Colts Deadlock Artesia For 1st

San Angelo's Colts fought off a determined Midland rally Sunday night to advance to a tie with Artesia for the top spot in the Longhorn League chase. But the important ones come up tonight. Midland and San Angelo are on again, while Artesia plays last-place Hobbs. Those two meetings, as well as the rest of the games in the loops, are scheduled for twin bills.

IN BOTH LEAGUES Old Formula Says Champs Decided

By JACK HAND The Associated Press If the old Fourth of July saying still holds true, it will be the Dodgers and Yankees in the World Series at Yankee Stadium Sept. 28. Brooklyn hardly looked like a pennant winner over the weekend, losing three of four to the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates. In fact, it appeared they were going to drop their first double-header of the season until Gil Hodges hit a three-run homer to pull out the second game. It's a sad commentary on the National League "race" that the Pirates have done the best job of beating the runaway Brooks. They have won five from the Dodgers, tops in the league. Pittsburgh made it three straight over Brooklyn on Ronnie Kline's fine relief pitching in the 7-5 first game but Hodges' homer and the combination of Pitchers Billy Loeb and Clem Labine salvaged the second for the Dodgers 3-1. Chicago remained 1 1/2 games behind the leaders by splitting a double with St. Louis. The Cards grabbed the opener 2-2 on Floyd Woodbridge's five-hitter but Jim King, Hank Sauer, Ernie Banks and Dee Fondy hit homers for a 10-5 Cub victory in the second. Milwaukee outslugged Cincinnati 7-3 with home run punch by Bobby Thomson, Eddie Mathews and Del Crandall. The New York Giants nipped Philadelphia 4-3 when reliever Jack Meyer uncorked a wild pitch with the bases loaded in the seventh. Although the New York Yankees bowed to Washington 5-0 on the fine five-hit pitching of veteran Johnny Smitz, they clung to their 8 1/2-game lead over the runner-up Chicago White Sox, who bowed to Cleveland 14-9.

Frank Sullivan won his 11th as the Boston Red Sox handed Baltimore its 12th straight defeat 7-2 and Vic Power's second home run of the game in the 14th gave Kansas City a 3-2 decision over Detroit, the A's fifth consecutive victory. Kline, winning on relief for the second day in a row, retired the last 16 Dodger batters in succession. After a halting start, the Pirates finally tied the score and forged ahead on a pair of triples by Roberto Clemente. Frank Thomas and Gene Fosse hit homers for Pittsburgh, Carl Furillo for Brooklyn. A Brooklyn pitcher failed to go the route for the 12th straight time when Loeb tired in the heat and gave away for a pinch hitter in the second game. Labine finished up for a combination six-hitter. The Cubs' split was their eighth in 12 doubleheaders with Sam Jones winning his ninth after bobbing in and out of trouble due to nine walks. Manager Harry Walker of the Cards, appearing in his first National League game since 1950, came through with a pinch single and scored a run. In the opener, the Cards finally topped the Cubs after losing seven straight to them. Warren Spahn was touched up for Ted Kluszewski's 28th homer and Wally Post's 18th but whiffed the route for Milwaukee to whip Joe Nuxhall. Leo Durocher of the Giants and Mayo Smith of the Phils engaged in a duel of managerial strategy in the seventh inning at Philadelphia. Leo sent up Sid Gordon to bat for Hank Thompson and Smith had Meyer, a right-hander, replace the left-handed Ron Mrozinski against the right-handed pinch hitter. When Durocher yanked Gordon and sent up Dusty Rhodes, Smith ordered Rhodes, who had lost 21 of 24 their last previous starts, fell on Eddie Lopat and his successors for 12 hits, snapping a five-game Yank winning string. Cleveland broke loose with 19 hits, including a homer by Al Smith, to take the series from Chicago, two games out of three. The Tribe remained in third place but moved to within a half game of the Sox. Ray Narleski, who relieved Bob Lemon, drove in four runs to help himself grab the decision. The streaking Red Sox, who have won 22 of their last 27 had little trouble subduing Baltimore. Ted Williams, returning to action for the first time in nine days, contributed one infield single in four trips. He had been sidelined by muscle spasms in his back. Despite Al Kaline's two homers and two singles, Kansas City finally struggled home in front of Detroit on Power's second homer. Lou Sleater, the fifth A's pitcher, was the winner over George Zuverink.

Baseball Teams Work Overtime

Twenty-one games that will have them playing afternoon and night are on the July 4 baseball schedule in Texas. Doubleheaders are scheduled in three of the five leagues that have Texas clubs. The streaking Red Sox, who have won 22 of their last 27 had little trouble subduing Baltimore. Ted Williams, returning to action for the first time in nine days, contributed one infield single in four trips. He had been sidelined by muscle spasms in his back. Despite Al Kaline's two homers and two singles, Kansas City finally struggled home in front of Detroit on Power's second homer. Lou Sleater, the fifth A's pitcher, was the winner over George Zuverink.

Dallas Boasts 7-Game Lead

It's July 4 and Dallas leads the Texas League by seven games. That ought to insure a pennant for the Eagles, since tradition says the club leading on July 4 wins the championship. It hasn't always worked out that way, however, and it doesn't take a big slip to wipe out a 7-game margin. Dallas, though, appears well fortified against a protracted losing streak. It has two top pitchers in Red Murff and Pete Burnside and beating both of those guys in a row just isn't being done. Dallas rested Sunday because of rain at Tulsa but gained ground on anyway. Second place San Antonio took an 11-3 licking from Shreveport. It pushed the Sports into a tie with Tulsa and Houston for third place. San Antonio's hitting went sour and the Missions could get to Hugh Blanton and Fred Martin for only five solid blows. Thus Shreveport managed to win one game of three from San Antonio in the home stand. In the seventh the Sports whipped over five runs and that sewed up the issue. Houston held the pace with a 9-4 victory over Beaumont with Hugh Sooter and Harry Holtsma giving up only six hits. Houston bashed four runs across in the first inning, featuring Bob Boyd's 3-run homer. Bob Montag hit a 3-run homer for Beaumont in the sixth. Oklahoma City handed relief pitcher Mel Waters his first loss by slammung four runs across in the ninth to beat Fort Worth 7-3. The Indians clouted Carroll Beringer and Waters for 12 hits with Frank Murray and Gordon Windhorn hitting 2-run doubles in the ninth inning surge.

Bomber Attack Victims Rest

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Seven Navy fliers burned and wounded in a Neptune patrol bomber downed by Russian MIGs over the Bering Sea June 22 rested today in Oak Knoll Naval Hospital.

Wives of three were waiting at Alameda Naval Air Station when their hospital transport plane landed yesterday from Anchorage, Alaska.

Mrs. Nellie Janke, of Alameda, burst into tears when she saw the bandages swathing her husband, Chief Electronics Technician Elmer R. Janke.

Aviation Machinist's Mate Thaddeus Malarz, of Oakland, propped himself up on his stretcher to look for the first time in his 5-week-old son Thad Jr.

Aviation Ordnanceman Martin E. Berg, of Alameda, hugged his wife firmly despite heavily bandaged hands.

The other injured men are Ensign David G. Assard, Terryville, Conn.; Aviation Technician Edward Benke, Chicago; Airman Technician Charles W. Shields, Clawson, Mich.; and Aviation Ordnanceman Donald E. Sonnek, Minnesota Lake, Minn.

More Indictments Due In Youth Slaying

CHICAGO (AP)—The state will ask the grand jury tomorrow to charge five more youths with murder in the shotgun slaying of a high school senior, says Asst. State's Atty. Frank Whelan.

Eight teen-agers were charged with murder Saturday. The other five—including Clement (Cookie) Macis, 14, who told police he fired the fatal shot—as juveniles could not be charged in Magistrate's Court.

Kenneth Sieboda, 17, was shot to death Friday night in the aftermath of a clash of rival gangs. "He never had an enemy," sobbed his mother Mrs. Bruno Sieboda.

Breaking down after six hours of intensive questioning, Macis, a high school freshman, told police: "I didn't mean to do it. It was an accident. It just went off."

In the gang fight that preceded the shooting, one youth was beaten with a wrench. Macis told police he and the other youths piled into three cars and went looking for the other gang. Besides his father's shotgun, which he had taken without his knowledge, Macis said they carried ried iron pipes, lug wrenches, rubber hoses and other weapons.

Spotting Sieboda and several other youths on a South Side street corner, Macis said, they piled out of the car and during the fracas his gun went off, the charge hitting Sieboda in the chest.

British Dock Strike Ends

LONDON (AP)—Britain's 18,000 waterfront strikers streamed back to the docks today after a stoppage that idled hundreds of ships for six weeks and cost the nation millions of pounds in trade.

The strikers had gained virtually nothing from their walkout. They went back in full force this morning, but many were bewildered and angry as a result of the factional squabbles that marked the strike.

Dockers quickly formed up into gangs to clear some 170 ships lying idle at London, Hull, Manchester, Liverpool, Birkenhead, Rochester and Garston.

But the rift between the Northern and Southern strike factions in the National Amalgamated Stevedores and Dockers Union remained.

In the London area the strikers had voted earlier to return if the Northern groups did likewise. Not until last night did the Northern ports agree.

The strike began as a jurisdictional struggle by dockers union to gain equal bargaining rights on the waterfronts with the big Transport and General Workers Union.

At the height of the strike more than 20,000 men were out but members of TGWU, which opposed the strike, stayed on the job.

Embezzling Suspect Free On Bond

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—A 44-year-old woman bookkeeper, who police said, confessed—stealing $100,000 from her employer over the past eight years to pay blackmail to a former husband was free today under $10,000 bail.

A bond for Mrs. Kathryn R. Hassel was posted yesterday by her present husband Edward Hassel, an electric refrigerator repairman.

Mrs. Hassel was charged with larceny by an employe, fraudulent conversion and conspiracy.

Her former husband John F. Huber, 49, a well-to-do poultry farmer and his father Frank Huber, 70, are being held in lieu of bail. The younger Huber is charged with blackmail and conspiracy. His father is accused of receiving stolen goods, conspiracy and being an accessory.

Detectives said Mrs. Hassel told them she falsified accounts to hide her withdrawals when she was still secretly married to Huber. Detective Capt. John Kirchner said despite the woman's claims that she paid most of the stolen money to Huber in an effort to buy his silence about their marriage 10 years ago, she maintained an expensive wardrobe and lived in better-than-average style in her home in west Lancaster.

Kirchner quoted Huber as saying he kept a special bank account for the money he extorted from his former wife at a rate of $250 to $300 a week.

Mrs. Hassel, Kirchner said, named Huber as the man who blackmailed her by threatening to tell her mother of her secret marriage to him and of two alleged illegal operations before then.

Authorities said the woman signed a confession Friday night admitting she took the money from the Darmstetter store one of eastern Pennsylvania's largest specialty and appliance stores. Huber and his father were arrested the next day when the younger Huber allegedly accepted police-marked money from Mrs. Hassel.

The shortage in the Darmstetter books was discovered in an audit.

Another Day In Steam Room

By The Associated Press

Most of the United States faced another day in the steam room today.

Overnight temperatures fell only into the 70s, making it only a relatively short climb into the range of high 90 temperatures which prevailed yesterday in the Midwest, East, South and Southwest.

It was only slightly cooler in the Northwest.

A shower area from the Ohio Valley southwestward to Texas seemed little likely to get any heat relief from precipitation ranging up to 1.10 inches at Monroe, La.; .75 at Jackson, Miss.; .66 at McAlester, Okla.; .46 at Knoxville, Tenn.; and .46 at Calumet, Mich.

Early morning temperatures in the 70s through the East and down the Atlantic Coast, and in the 80s on the Central Plains and in the Southwest boded repetition of these Sunday maximums.

Matter Of Privacy

Dear Miss Brandow:

My sixteen-year-old daughter objects to my walking into her room without knocking or opening her dresser drawers or going through her closet shelves without first asking her.

This seems silly to me. I often want to borrow a bit of cologne, a petticoat, or a library book. She knows I am not going to steal anything and I do not leave her things messed up. If she has nothing to hide, why is she so touchy?

Mrs. L. H.

Human beings are ninety-nine per cent ego. This means we need to feel important. Teen-agers are no exception. The trouble is that many people do not consider teens subject to the same needs as the rest of us.

There is nothing wrong in respecting the rights of others or in helping another to feel important as an individual, regardless of the age of that individual.

A teen-ager is not grown, but is certainly old enough to be trusted with a little privacy of her (or his) own room.

Turn the situation around. Imagine you are tired and have closed the door to your room to rest, meditate, and maybe read or pray. Without knocking, someone comes bounding in.

Or imagine, someone, however neat, goes through your room looking for something to borrow. How do you feel?

When you are asked for something, you are probably proud to lend it. It inflates your sense of self-importance to be able to do something for someone else.

Yet, when that same thing is taken from you and you are not consulted, you feel as important as nothing minus.

You are impressed with the fact that the other person considers you pretty unimportant and unnecessary.

Teen-agers also place a premium on privacy because they are so emotional and tend to pour out their hearts into hidden diaries and stick photographs of heart-throbs into dresser drawers.

Teen-agers, if truly loving, should realize their teens are people, and respect their privacy the same as they would Aunt Helen's or grandmother's.

Plastic Skins On Bananas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Now they're putting skins on bananas.

The Department of Agriculture said today all bananas exported from Jamaica to the United Kingdom soon will be encased in polyethylene film, a plastic substance. The department did not explain the advantages of the move, but presumably the bananas will keep better.

The move was ordered by the Jamaican Banana Board.

LEGAL NOTICE

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS Sealed Proposals will be received by the Howard County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 for the construction of a 6-inch Water Supply Line and appurtenances at the City Hall, Columbia, Texas, until 2:00 p.m. July 12, 1955, and then publicly opened and read aloud. Specifications and proposal forms are on file at the City Hall, Columbia, Texas, and may be procured from Press & Nichols, 407 Danciger Building, Fort Worth, Texas, upon a deposit of $25.00. The full amount of the deposit will be returned to actual bona fide bidders, and to others who return the documents in good condition on or before the bidding date.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or an approved Bidder's Bond, for the sum of five (5) per cent per cent of the amount of the maximum bid, bid as a guarantee that, if awarded the contract, the Bidder will promptly enter into a contract and execute a bond on the terms provided, as outlined in the Contract Documents. A Performance Bond in an amount of not less than one hundred (100) per cent of the contract price, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the contract and upon payment of all persons supplying labor, or sustaining material, will be required of the successful Bidder.

Attention is called to the fact that there must be paid on this project not less than the minimum rate of wages which have been established by the Owner for each classification of workman required on the project, as set forth in the contract documents.

In case of ambiguity or lack of clarity in stating proposal prices, the Howard County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 reserves the right to adopt the most advantageous construction method, or to reject the Proposal. The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive formalities. No bid may be withdrawn within thirty (30) days after the date on which bids are taken.
