

Full Summer Program Underway

Earth's full summer recreation program got off to a big splash Wednesday, with the first of the semi weekly trips to the Muleshoe pool.

This new phase of the organized Summer Program is sponsored by the Earth Chamber of Commerce and will be free to all children six years old or over in the Springlake School District.

Swimming twice weekly added to the Baseball Program which is already underway will give each lad and lass in the area free supervised recreation. This is the first time Earth has had a full summer program for their youth. Little League was started here three years ago and proved such a huge success for the boys that the Chamber of Commerce decided to offer some sort of recreation for the girls as well as the boys.

Approximately 60 children made the first trip accompanied by Mrs. Ervin Anderson, Mrs. Marcus Messer, Mrs. Travis Scott, Mrs. C. O. Taylor, Billy Braden with Bill Mann driving the bus.

A school bus secured from Springlake School, is being used to transport children and adult sponsors to the swimming pool in Muleshoe. The bus, driven by a competent, licensed driver will leave the school at 8:10, Springlake at 8:20; Earth at 8:30; Nichols Gin, west of Earth at 8:40 each Wednesday and Friday morning.

The swimming pool has been rented on these mornings and these children will be the only ones in the pool. A trained life guard will be on duty at all times assisted by adult swimmers.

Phil Cannon of White's Store is in charge of transportation and arrangements. Mrs. E. C. Hudson is in charge of supervision and instruction. There will be plenty of adult supervision for both boys and girls.

Mrs. Anderson will accompany the girls each Wednesday for the season, and Mrs. Pat McCord will sponsor them on Fridays.

O. W. Richardson, a member of the school faculty, will drive the bus part time and assist in supervision.

The Chamber of Commerce expresses their appreciation to the school board for the use of the school buses.

Dutch Been of the Earth Oil and Gas Co. has donated the fuel to be used in the buses making the trip to and from the pool in Muleshoe for the complete season. Others who have already made donations are Earth Lions Club, Earth Co-op Gin, Inc., Bernie Sarradet, White Store, Earth News-Sun. Donations are continuing to come in and a more complete list will be run next week.

More Adults Needed For Supervision

Three more ladies are needed for each day. Billy Braden of the Springlake Gin Co. will be in charge of the boys both Wednesday and Friday. He states that more adult sponsors are desperately needed, especially good swimmers. If anyone has had Red Cross swimming instruction and would volunteer their services it would be greatly appreciated. Any adult person who can help with the girls contact Mrs. Hudson or Mrs. Ervin Anderson.

Kitchen Fashion Show June 18 in Lubbock

Architects, builders and contractors of this area will get the woman's viewpoint as well as the home economics expert's slant on kitchen planning Tuesday night, June 18 when Pioneer Natural Gas Company presents Miss Bernice Strawn, nationally recognized kitchen authority and writer, as guest speaker at a banquet and Kitchen Fashion Show to be held at 7:30 in the Ballroom of the Caprock Hotel.

Miss Strawn gained a nationwide following as Home Equipment Editor for the Woman's Home Companion. In this position, which she held from 1949 until 1957, she was responsible for testing and reporting on all advances in home equipment and kitchen planning. Prior to her association with the Home Companion, she served as director of the home economic laboratory of Sears, Roebuck and Company where she supervised a large staff in testing and development of new merchandise.

Miss Strawn designed the famous "Heart Saver Kitchen" which was featured in Woman's Home Companion in 1951, and exhibited at the Texas State Fair that year. So great was the interest in this All-Gas kitchen for handicapped women that it was reproduced in a trailer and toured the country for over a year.

No stranger to the Southwest, Miss Strawn once served as a home economist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture in this region, and for several years she was a member of the faculty at Oklahoma A & M College.

During her current tour, Miss Strawn will also make appearances in Amarillo and Midland under the sponsorship of Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

Tranquilizer Pills Could Be Very Dangerous To You

AUSTIN — The Big Three in America today are reserpine, Chlorpromazine and meprobamate. They are tranquilizing drugs — so-called "happy pills". And as more and more people take them for real and imagined tensions, they are fast becoming household words.

Americans last year spent well over $150 million for various types. A single drug company reported the sale of 30 million tablets during the first 10 months of 1956, and indicated that sales were expected to double in 1957.

Scientific studies indicate that the drugs have great value in the treatment of some types of mental illness, but when healthy people, for no other reason than that they had a bad day at the office or that the children have been unusually noisy, begin eating them like popcorn, an insidious danger is in the making.

Like other valuable drugs, tranquilizers can be harmful physically and mentally. Medical researchers have reported that in some cases there is a tendency toward habit formation. In a few cases, serious side reactions have occurred. Some users have been depressed rather than calmed. Calm users have become excited. Some reactions have been severe enough to require hospitalization and extensive treatment. And only time can tell whether prolonged use will permanently damage the nervous system.

Last September, some 700 of the nation's foremost authorities on mental illness met to discuss tranquilizers and some of the problems their wide usage had raised. The conference concluded that the drugs do evidently relieve tensions in mentally disturbed persons, but for every research team reporting positive results, another reported failure in trying to duplicate those results.

Certain tranquilizers influence the release of a body chemical called serotonin — a hormone found most heavily concentrated in the brain. What the chemical does is not yet fully understood, but present belief is that it acts as a switch to turn moods on and off by sending impulses of good or bad feeling along the pathways of the central nervous system. Enough serotonin in the brain might actually be a factor in sanity. When the role of this hormone is fully known we may have the final answer as to how certain tranquilizers produce their effects. More than a dozen tranquilizers are already on the market. Some are used very beneficially in hospitals; others by private practitioners in their practices. All are potentially powerful medical tools. But it will take time — perhaps years — to test them thoroughly.

Until that day comes, all of us would do well to remember that a certain amount of tension and anxiety is a part of normal life. Peace of mind and zestful living do not yet come in pills. It comes from facing our problems and working to solve them. In any event the so-called tranquilizers should only be taken under the direction of a physician.

At least ten countries use the eagle as the symbol of supremacy.

June is Dairy Month in the United States. According to Arch Meekma, extension dairy husbandman, over 2,000,000 farm families in the nation derive all or a part of their income from dairy cows. Dairy products furnish 30 percent of the nation's diet of animal proteins and accounts for 15 percent of total retail food sales, he says.

Can West Texas
Farmers Find A
Good Substitute

College Station — West Texas farmers "backed to the wall" by acreage controls and low grain sorghum prices are scanning the list of vegetable crops in a search for some profitable use of diverted acreage. Tomatoes may fill the bill if growers can economically produce the necessary quality for moving into central states' markets.

A 1956 study conducted by Texas A & M's Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology revealed that farmers in Bailey, Farmer, Deaf Smith, Castro, Lamb, Hale, Lubbock and Floyd counties produced 348 bushels of tomatoes an acre. Production and marketing costs averaged $188.00 an acre.

Chief competitor for West Texas tomatoes in the central states area will be California, long-time producer of high-quality vegetables. West Texas growers must realize the importance of management practices such as padding and covering for transporting tomatoes in containers, and the advantage of a good grading system if they expect to enter serious competition for any major market.

Unlike most West Texas crops, tomato prices fluctuate widely. Agricultural Economists cannot give a complete set of reasons for the annual price variations, but can partially explain them. Variations in Texas and competing area production of tomatoes as well as variations in the national disposable income are cited as important influences concerning these price differences.

For complete details of this study write to the Agricultural Information Office at College Station. Ask for PR 1925.

Water Level Report On Irrigation Wells Now Available

College Station — In most sections of Texas farmers right now are more concerned about excessive moisture than about the need for irrigation. But, says Extension Agricultural Engineer R. V. Thurmond, conditions can change in a hurry and supplemental irrigation may be needed before the summer is out.

It is a good idea, points out the irrigation engineer, for farmers to keep abreast of what is happening to the state's underground water supplies. One of the principal sources for this information is the Texas Board of Water Engineers with headquarters in Austin. Thurmond says the Board has just released valuable information on the water levels in observation wells in 20 counties in the Southern High Plains area of Texas.

The information is presented on base maps for each county. The observation wells all carry a number which is shown at its approximate location on the county map. Thus, a farmer can quickly locate his farm and at a glance see what has happened to the water level for his immediate area the past two years.

The studies are made in cooperation with the U. S. Geological Survey and cover observation wells in all sections of the state. The water level decline maps for the 20 Southern High Plains counties are carried in Bulletin 5705, and

Set Your Speed For Prevailing Road Conditions

If we're honest with ourselves, most of us will admit that now and then we get caught up in the tempo of the times. The nervous hurry-for-hurry's sake seems to get into our blood. There's so much pressure, so much tension.

If we happen to be driving a car when we're in one of these moods, the chances are we will set our speed by the inner rhythm of hurry. Emotions, reports the Texas Safety Association, are known to play an extremely important part in our driving actions.

The "wrought up" driver, then, can be very dangerous. Fortunately, this mental condition is usually easy to spot. Our driving habits will be characterized by quick starting and stopping, lane hopping, improper passing and other signs of discourteous behavior... especially speeding.

If we find ourselves caught up in one of these "frenzies of modern-day living" moods, the best thing to do is either let someone else drive, or relax and correct our own actions.

There is only one safe way to set speed. That is by driving at a speed that is safe for conditions prevailing at the time... conditions of the road, traffic, weather, the mechanical fitness of our car... and with consideration for the other drivers.

With the harnessing of the atom, the physician of A. D. 1957 can remove tumors without surgery by using isotopes of radioactive materials, and other tumors can be accurately located with still other isotopes.

And while the medical field was jumping on the isotope bandwagon industry was climbing into the driver's seat. Isotope uses in industry have grown to phenomenal proportions. In commercial art they give truer copy than a photographic print. Oil men use them to locate underground leaks. With isotopes engineers can accurately test the strength of structural steel or measure the life expectancy of cutting tools. The efficiency of washing machines can be checked with isotopes. So can the rate at which plants absorb phosphorus from fertilizers.

These endless advantages are the reasons for possible peril. Radioactivity can accumulate in the body, so little exposures from day to day may add up to big exposures after weeks or months. However, physicians take total exposures into account when they use radiation.

Since last September the State Health Department has controlled radiation exposure by requiring registration of all radiation devices and materials used within the state. So far more than 1500 devices have been registered, some 1400 of them in the realm of medical practice and research.

Meanwhile, there are two sources where you can get information on the hazards of excessive radiation—your family physician or the State Health Department. From either you will get some common sense advice, and common sense is the most important commodity in the world today.

AUSTIN — For the past two weeks the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee has been holding hearings in Washington in an attempt to unravel one of the knottiest problems of the day—the dangers of mass radiation exposure in this Atomic Age.

The committee is interested in the effects of radioactive "fall-out" from nuclear weapons tests, but there is much more to the story than that. The very nature of radiant energy makes it at once a boon and a peril to human health. Let's look at the "boon" side first.

For 60 years radiating devices in the skilled hands of technicians have been tools of unparalleled importance in diagnosing and treating various diseases. X-ray and fluoroscope machines actually permit the physician or dentist to "photograph" the interior of the human body, and "aimed" beams of deep penetrating rays—sometimes pushed by 2 million volts of electricity—have long been among the most effective ways of treating disease in practically any body organ.

With the harnessing of the atom, the physician of A. D. 1957 can remove tumors without surgery by using isotopes of radioactive materials, and other tumors can be accurately located with still other isotopes.

Meanwhile, there are two sources where you can get information on the hazards of excessive radiation—your family physician or the State Health Department. From either you will get some common sense advice, and common sense is the most important commodity in the world today.

AUSTIN — For the past two weeks the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee has been holding hearings in Washington in an attempt to unravel one of the knottiest problems of the day—the dangers of mass radiation exposure in this Atomic Age.

The committee is interested in the effects of radioactive "fall-out" from nuclear weapons tests, but there is much more to the story than that. The very nature of radiant energy makes it at once a boon and a peril to human health. Let's look at the "boon" side first.

For 60 years radiating devices in the skilled hands of technicians have been tools of unparalleled importance in diagnosing and treat-

THE LOST CHRIST

W. E. (Bud) IRVINE

In Luke the second chapter we read of a mother losing her child. Jesus became lost to His mother Mary, and it caused her great concern. Jesus was lost by one least suspected. Mary was not "bad". She cared for her son, but she was careless and as a result he became lost to her.

Mary and the company went a days journey without realizing Jesus was not with them. Many people today go years without realizing their need for Him. How much mental suffering and anxiety in the world today so needlessly? Jesus never leaves His people, but because of carelessness, neglect and love of the world we leave Him and suffer as a result.

Mary and company supposed He was with them. Many today suppose Jesus is with them in religion, but supposition has never been a safe guide in anything, let alone religion. We do not rely upon supposition in business, why should we when it comes to our soul? We must rely upon God's word, for it is the power of salvation, Galatians 1:16.

Mary began to investigate, and upon investigation was made to know Jesus was not with her. The religious world needs to investigate, to know for certain whether or not Jesus is here. There are so many contradictory doctrines today in religion. Something must be wrong, for Jesus and God cannot be with all these religions. They are not the author of confusion. Each one of us individually need to investigate our religious beliefs; compare them to the New Testament; and ask himself, "Is Jesus truly with me, Or do I just suppose He is?"

Remember, Jesus said, "Not everyone who sayeth unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom of heaven; but he who DOETH the will of My Father who is in heaven." Mat 7:21.

Social Security Representative To Be in Muleshoe

A representative of the Lubbock Social Security Office will be in Muleshoe on June 29th at 9:30 a.m. at the Court Room, Court House and will be glad to assist in all matters pertaining to Social Security.

More than one hundred thousand severely disabled people in communities all over the Nation will receive their first social security disability insurance checks in August. John G. Hutton, district manager of the Lubbock Social Security office announced today.

But many other eligible disabled workers 50 to 65 years of age, some of them no doubt living in Texas, have so far failed to make application to their social security office. Those who have been disabled for work for a long time must apply before June 30, Mr. Hutton pointed out, or they will lose their rights to these new benefit payments.

Any severely disabled person who has worked under social security for at least 5 years and who has been disabled for 6 months or more should get in touch with his social security office right away, the social security district manager said.

If he is between 50 and 65 years of age, he may be eligible to have his social security record frozen to protect his future right to disability payments, and also his and his family's rights to old-age and survivors insurance benefits.

"Unfortunately there is a lot of misunderstanding," Mr. Hutton said, "as to how disabled a worker has to be to get social security disability insurance benefits or to have his social security record frozen. The rules in the social security law for deciding whether a person is 'disabled' are different from the rules in some other Government and private disability programs."

To be found "disabled" under the social security law, he said, a worker must have a disability which, in the words of the law, makes him unable "to engage in any substantial gainful activity." It must be the kind of physical or mental condition which shows up in the medical evidence, including his doctor's report, hospital reports, or special tests. It must have lasted for at least 6 months and be expected to continue for a long and indefinite time.

In general, he said, "substantial gainful activity" means the performance of a substantial amount of work with reasonable regularity in employment or selfemployment. A person does not have to be completely helpless to qualify under the social security disability provisions, Mr. Hutton emphasized. Consideration is given to all of the facts in the individual's situation, both medical and non-medical.

First consideration is, of course, given to the severity of his condition as shown by the medical evidence. This evidence must show that the person has a condition which makes him unable to perform significant functions such as moving about, handling objects, hearing, speaking, understanding, or reasoning, so that he cannot with his training, education and work experience engage in any kind of substantial gainful activity.

Mr. Hutton said most individuals with such serious disabilities are unable to work. There are cases, however, where a person with such a severe disability is working, or unable to work, because of his special knowledge and skills. He would not be entitled to benefits, the district manager said, because he would be able to engage in substantial gainful activity.

A person might work occasionally or intermittently and this would not necessarily mean that he was able to engage in substantial gainful activity. Both the nature of the work and the amount of money he earned would have to be considered.

On the other hand, some persons with conditions somewhat less severe than the ones listed above might be found unable to engage in substantial gainful activity because of the actual facts in their cases. If a person's condition coupled with his work background, his lack of education, training, and other physical and mental resources does in fact prevent him from engaging in substantial gainful activity, and would therefore be found eligible under the social security disability provisions.

It took Washington and members of the Constitutional Convention 96 days to frame the Constitution.

JUVENILE CRIME: One Way To Curb It

Members of the 55th Texas Legislature took the position that one way to curb juvenile delinquency was to make parents at least partially responsible financially for acts of vandalism committed by their youngsters. So the legislators passed a law making minor's parents liable up to $300 for property damage caused by their teen-age offspring.

The lawmakers also passed measures providing a $100 fine for traffic violations by young motorists 14 and up, and making it tougher for minors under 16 to obtain a driver's license.

These measures may not prove a solution of the juvenile crime problem, but they will help. One reason juvenile crime has grown is because teenagers have been able to get by with almost anything under previous laws. Now that laws with "teeth" in them have been enacted, the situation may be somewhat different.

This is particularly true of the measure making parents responsible for the misdeeds of their youngsters. Junior is likely to get more careful supervision if his parents know they will have to pay the damages he causes to other people's property.
