Armistice Day Observed Here

Hope Is For Peace As City Pays Homage

Judge Brooks Urges People To Fight Peace-Time Battles

Big Spring paused Saturday morning to observe signing of the Armistice and to look with hope toward peace.

Each of the speakers in turn paid respects to fallen soldiers and prayer that peace could be maintained.

Judge James T. Brooks, who was captain of Company D in the Rainbow division, a company composed largely of local men, sounded a pertinent note when he said that America can win over economic obstacles.

Following an address by the United War Veterans and the American Legion, the parade of the city...

Armistice Day should be a day of thanksgiving to the United States, asserted Brooks. He recalled that of two and a half million men sent overseas, only 75,000 were killed outright, more than two hundred thousand injured.

But the United States was sending men across at the rate of a quarter of a million a month, continued Brooks, and the war has been prolonged until June, there would not have been a home in America unafflicted.

A vivid picture of fearful gas, hurried training and 80,000 men drawn by Judge Brooks, who said goodbye with the hope of returning, but some of them never came back, remembered the speaker.

Hours of war were depicted in his verbal sketch of the conflict. "The enemy lurked in the depth of the sea, hurled poison gas and shells from the surface and dropped bombs down on the trenches from above," he said.

Wreaths were placed on a cenotaph of the unknown soldier by seven persons. Little Miss John Ann Terry impressively placed flowers as representative of the citizenship of this city and Howard county.

Mrs. Jeanette Harrell followed with flowers from the United Confederate States. Mrs. W. H. Martin, representative of the American Legion, the American V. F. W., its auxiliary and Veterans of the Spanish American war also honored the unknown soldier.

Mrs. Bruce Frazier played two piano numbers, "Star Spangled Banner" and "Sleep Soldier, Sleep." Mrs. J. H. Kirkpatrick accompanied as the audience sang "America."

As fire sirens and whistles sounded off the curtain at municipal auditorium slowly faded. Executive men turned with their faces west for one minute as a bugle sounded taps.

The program was preceded by a parade starting from high school where a flag raising ceremony was held.

Rev. Theo Francis and Rev. Arthur made appropriate talks and pleaded for peace. Chaplain U. G. Powell of the V. F. W. asked the invocation and Rev. W. H. Martin pronounced the benediction.

The program and parade were arranged by the V. F. W.

Mrs. G. L. Brown returned Thursday night from a three weeks' visit in Hot Spring.

Four Good Children's Books To Keep In Mind For Christmas

"COLLEGE ON HORSEBACK"
By Esther Greenacre Hall
(Harristown and Robert Haas, Inc.)

This is one of the best-written young people's books I have come across in many a day. Its illustrations are in a class with the finest of juveniles. Too often publishers engaged good artists for the young children's books but consider that books for the older ones can take care of themselves. Smith and Haas put out only a few juveniles but put those out with the same care and pride in format that they give to books for adults. It is well for parents to keep this in mind.

The plot of "College on Horseback", as its title implies, concerns college life for girls. The scene is laid in a California university, and the story deals with a girl who had to make her knowledge of horses earn her way through school. The idealism of the book is high and strikes a modern theme at that.

I heartily recommend it to mothers looking for books for girls in the teen age.

"COWBOY HOLIDAY"
By Helen Train Hillis
(MacMillan Co.)

They say that westerners read as much western fiction as easterners. Probably more. This, then, should appeal to all western boys, although it seems to be written for eastern boys who know very little of the West or of western life.

The locale is Arizona and because this is so different from West Texas and because ranch life there in the mountains different from ranch life here, I believe that it will be doubly interesting to boys and girls in this section of Texas. It is written by a Westerner who knows her country.

The story concerns a cowpuncher who met his match in a few eastern children. Sounds intriguing doesn't it? I won't give the story away.

It is a book that both boys and girls will enjoy.

"SPUNKY"
By Berla and Elmer Hader
(MacMillan Co.)

Berla and Elmer Hader are already well known to parents who like colorful interesting books in the modern manner for their children. They write and illustrate their books in color, and the story itself is not made any the less effective for the attention given the art work.

Spunky is a Shetland pony, who came from the Shetland Islands to America as a circus pony. What a life he led, almost as exciting as "Black Beauty" the horse book of the very young generation's parents and grandparents.

I liked the book for its illustrations as well as its text and I imagine children of say 5 to 10 years, will like it even better for its illustrations. Most of them at those ages can read it, at least with a little help.

"THE WHITE SPARROW"
By Madrice Colm
(MacMillan Co.)

Did you ever see a white sparrow? If you haven't you should read about him. And if you are just three years old and haven't yet learned more than the alphabet, maybe you can persuade your mama or papa to read to you his exciting adventures.

In between readings you can look at the pictures of the feathery hero drawn by Lynd Ward, who does all sorts of lovely things with pencil

Character Building, Solution Of Problems In The Home, Theme Of Mrs. Bumpass' Paper Before Pre-School Study Group

A group of mothers of pre-school aged children met at the West Ward School building this week to organize a study club whose primary function would be child study and problems of parenthood.

Mrs. W. G. Buchachacher was elected president; Mrs. Frank Eter, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. R. L. Beale, reporter; Mrs. J. A. Coffey, program chairman and librarian.

During the business session, the members set the dues at fifty cents so that they might get a good-sized membership. They also decided to have a nursery for mothers to leave their children with a competent woman in charge. They will meet, for the present, in different ward schools to make the club accessible to all the mothers of the city.

There were two numbers on the program. Mrs. J. A. Coffey talked on "Selfishness and Disobedience." Mrs. Mary A. Bumpass spoke on "Character Building." Mrs. Bumpass gave credit for many of her ideas to George H. Betts' "Principles of Social Education" and recommended it to the mothers for reading. Among the good things she said were:

"The past century has been a time of radical and extensive change in nearly all the social institutions. The face of the earth has almost been made over in that time. The old industrial and social lines have disappeared. In this readjustment the relations and functions of the home have been vastly modified. Its structure remains the same, but the method of its activities is very different. The old time home with its multiplicity of industries, its social seclusion, and its individual responsibility has passed away. The home therefore has suffered two distinct losses, loss of industrial training for the children and of companionship between parents and children.

"Robbed of opportunities for industrial training, the child lacks one of the most vital forms of experience. It has remained for modern education to discover the close relation between the training of the hand and the development of the mind. The child is essentially creative and busy.

"Padrate Colum does not need to be introduced to the parents. His Irish facility for telling a good tale has endeared him to story lovers of all ages. This story is in keeping with the other good things from his pen, and unusually attractive in binding and illustration.

FEDERATION CALLED MEET

All presidents of women's organizations, either Sunday School classes, bridge clubs or study clubs, are asked to attend or to send a responsible representative.

Mustangs Put Fighting Steers Out Of Flag Race

to be preserved, we must be eternally vigilant.

We need to realize, too, that it is one of the essential ingredients in the democracy which we cherish. As the first nation to make a go of democracy, we have an especial reason for defending it.

Democracy is more than just the abolition of autocratic government. In its broad sense it is a scheme of society under which each individual is permitted to live his own life as he sees fit.

He not only has his vote, and his free and unchallenged choice of occupation, he has the right to worship as he pleases, and to do it without suffering the slightest discrimination, in any form, because of it.

Any infringement on this right is a denial of the very essence of democracy. A democracy must have full religious tolerance because of the simple fact that the moment it ceases to do so it ceases to be a democracy. All Americans who think their democracy worth preserving automatically must be defenders of religious tolerance.

All this is worth repeating these days, even though there is no sign that a revival of intolerance threatens us. Unbridled intolerance is a flame beyond the sea. There is in America, unfortunately, enough ignorance and prejudice to provide a feeding ground for it if embers should fly our way.

By re-examining the question now and reaffirming our determination not to let intolerance get a foothold, we can strengthen the foundations of our free society.

Jones Rippa Big Spring Line For Gains; Hare Is Marked Man

The Red Raiders of Newman High school, a prancing remuda of Mustangs as they are known in the Nolan County camp, duplicated their feat of a year ago by ousting the Big Spring Steers from the District 3 title race 13-0. Approximately 4,500 witnessed the affair.

But unlike the scrap at Steer stadium, the local aggregation could not hold Hennis' smooth clicking eleven scoreless until the half, and the red and white gridders tabled a marker on the eighth play with a beautiful 30 yard pass.

The pass was the most beautiful play of the game and caught the Steers and the spectators unaware. Fomby had just made a first down on the Steer 30 yard line when Whitten, 137-pound Pony quarter, popped up in the end zone and waited with outstretched arms for the perfect pass which the piling Virgil Jones whipped straight into his arms, aided by a slight breeze. Jones backed the line for the extra point, barely going over.

Hennis' boys played a good game but found something tougher than Angelo Sweetwater has about as good a team as last year and seems headed straight for his third district pennant. The local eleven fought a good game, but hardly the bang-up scrap they did against the Cats. Hennis' fast charging line and powerful backfield filled with heavy experienced players was simply too much for Oles' light green club. Armstrong, Fomby and Baker were outstanding for the winners in the line, along with Jones in the backfield.

Leo "Hurker" Hare who had made such a wonderful improvement this year, apparently went to Sweetwater a marked man. The young driving backfield he found the whole Pony team laying for him. He was nailed for more losses than gains and was answered time after time for no gain at all. In the initial period he made eight yards, was tossed for a total loss of eleven. The second attempt he gained seven, losing ten. The third saw him take a little turn to lose but one yard while he ploughed forward five. Coubie was substituted for Hare at the opening of the final show and the regular full did not return until midway of the period.

Personally Speaking

J. J. Robinson, here Saturday, reported he had gathered a good yield off his acreage this year, despite late planting.

Flem Anderson, turning seven miles north of here, said Saturday he made a fair feed and good crop.

also a 1932 letterman, is reported to be doing well on the Fresh team at Oklahoma University.

The Monahans High gridders defeated the Terrow eleven, 21 to 12, at Monahans Friday.

Lamesa's Golden Tornadoes downed the Slator Tigers 12 to 0 at Lamesa Friday. It gave the Tornadoes undisputed championship of District 2, class B.

Lamesa made 15 first downs to Slator's three, attempting five forward passes and completing four. Most of Lamesa's gains were made by line plunging and all the scoring was done in the last quarter.

The game was played before a crowd of 2,000 people. Slator ran a special train bearing 300 people, while 500 more came by automobile.

RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE, MARK OF DEMOCRACY

During the next three months a Protestant minister, a Catholic priest, and a Jewish rabbi will tour the United States together, to decide in 37 cities at interdenominational discussions of religious tolerance.

Nothing has happened in this country recently to indicate that any revival of religious intolerance is to be feared. But it has had a fearful flare-up across the ocean, and of all menaces to the peace of mankind it is one of the most constant.

This tour can be looked on as a kind of vaccination, and it can be made an exceedingly valuable thing.

Full religious tolerance is one of those blessings whose true worth usually is not appreciated until they disappear. It is a comparatively new thing in the world.

Its roots have not sunk deeply into the substratum of civilized society as might be wished. If it is

WHAT PRICE JAIL?

The county commissioners of a certain Ohio county find a difficult problem in human values to determine last month.

Some time ago a citizen of that county was arrested for murder. He was tried, convicted, sentenced to death, and lodged in the death house of the Ohio penitentiary for 22 months he stayed there, awaiting what looked like certain doom.

Finally, another man confessed to the crime. The first man was exonerated and was given his freedom. All stain removed from his name. So finally he asked the county commissioners for compensation for those 22 months in the death house and they awarded him a verdict of $12,000.

How much money would it take to make up for so long a sojourn in the shadow of the electric chair? Does the sum agreed on seem fair to you?

Big Spring football fans may well be proud of the Steers in spite of Sweetwater giving the boys a 13 to 0 drubbing. All of the odds were in favor of the Mustangs and Oles' lighter inexperienced team could hardly be expected to win.

The Steers, as evidenced by their showing here, have been really over-rated, but the Ponies have not. Hennis' red and white lad youngsters are at least as good a team as that of a year ago. They had changed line and powerful backfield was quite a surprise to the visitors.

Both San Angelo and Colorado were well represented at the game. Big Jim Cantrell took his teeth to the encounter in a line and Harry Taylor was also on hand with his gridders. The Concho mentor didn't seem too happy after witnessing the fray. He feels Hennis has ticks he didn't put Friday, and Godless he has.

The Bovines appeared to be a little too sure of themselves at Sweetwater. That nothing to nothing tie with the Cats put 'em a little off the track. And besides that, not half of the boys train.

Attendance at the game fell slightly below expectations. About 4,500 were on hand and over 5,000 were expected. All of the gate receipts haven't been checked but Big Spring will probably clear five or six hundred dollars. Nothing like the thirteen hundred dollars cleared a couple of years ago.

Boycott House, roving correspondent for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, covered the game Friday for his paper. He was accompanied by a photographer and left immediately to see Amarillo and Pampa clash.

About five hundred fans rode the special to Sweetwater in five coaches. A delegation of Nolan county officials met the train at Terrow.

Franklyn Manning of the Midland Bulldogs grid squad, suffered a caved in rib in scrimmage last week. It made the second time he has been injured in scrimmage this season.

It is generally considered that football players are not very constant in the matter of regularity or punctuality in their school attendance. This practice apparently does not exist in the Stanton high school where a remarkable attendance record has been made for the first and second months of the present season.

The first major casualty hit the Wink Wildcats' camp last Saturday when "Stacks" Gaines, regular pivot man received a double fracture of the knee in the second frame of the Odessa game. "Stacks" is one of the hardest working men on Coach Johnson's eleven. He is a very valuable man.

Managed Reflation

The one clearest aspect of the Administration's monetary policy is its intention. In general terms we know what it is meant to accomplish. It is designed to raise the prices of those goods most which have fallen the most, so that those who produce those goods may have incomes to buy other goods and to pay their debts. The evil of a deflation lies in the fact that some prices fall more than others. If in good times it took one bushel of wheat to buy a pair of overalls, there is trouble if it suddenly takes two bushels of wheat to buy the overalls. This trouble is called the disparity of prices. To correct the evil of disparity the price of wheat in dollars must rise of the price of overalls. In fact, that is to say, the two prices must come together until one bushel of wheat again buys one pair of overalls. This correction of disparity in prices is now generally called reflation.

It is very necessary in managing a reflation that the mind be kept in mind that the evil is not in the disparity in prices. For example, if wheat at $2 will buy a pair of overalls at $2 and then if wheat falls to $1 while overalls stay at $2, you have disparity. The farmer can not buy overalls; the maker of overalls is thrown out of work. That is the kind of evil we have been suffering from. But now supposing that by some monetary stunt you doubled all prices; wheat would then be $4 and overalls $4. Would you have gained anything? You would not. What you want is to have the price of overalls stand still, or even to fall, while the price of wheat rises.

Now this is, of course, a great simplification of our real situation, but it may help to fix in mind the principle of a sound price reflation.

It is interesting to examine what has happened to American price relationships since President Roosevelt took office. Fortunately there is now available an expert study of this subject covering the period up through September. The study has been made for the National Bureau of Economic Research by Mr. Frederick C. Mills. There is no more authoritative student of the subject than Mr. Mills. To put his results briefly and without using too many figures, Mr. Mills finds that from March to July the reflation worked almost exactly as one would have desired in order to correct disparities of prices and bring the economic system into balance. But he finds also that from July to September the tendency has been to increase the disparities and so to make it more difficult for goods to be exchanged. His finds, which are supported by closely analyzed statistics, correspond with the general sense of the country. Up to July it was generally believed that recovery was proceeding rapidly; since July there has been disappointment and a sense that recovery was halted.

What was the evidence of a reflation between March and July? Ignore prices stated in dollars and measure what certain classes of commodities will exchange for, that is buy, in terms of other classes of commodities. In February, 1933, the raw products of American farms could buy, at wholesale only 64 per cent of what they bought in July, 1929. On the other hand, manufactured goods could buy 111 per cent. These are examples of what is meant by disparity. Either farm prices were too low or manufactured goods too high. Until the gap was closed farm products and manufactured goods could not be exchanged successfully.

Now what happened between February and July? The purchasing power of raw farm products rose from 64 to 82 per cent; the purchasing power of manufactured goods fell from 111 per cent to 106 per cent. The gap had not been closed. But it was closing. Trade was reviving. Recovery was under way. Now look at what happened between July and September. Farm prices fell from 82 to 78; manufactured goods rose from 106 to 107. The gap was opening again. The tendency was in the wrong direction. The country felt it uncertainly and the doubt and discontent of the past three months have reflected it.

These figures are, I repeat, merely samples. But they illustrate the problem of the Administration. It is not simply a problem of how to raise prices. It is a problem of how to raise some prices and how to hold down, and even to depress, other prices. For what is needed to close the gaps which the depression has opened and that means not only raising farm and raw material prices, but holding down retail prices and pushing down prices entering into capital goods are still inordinately high as compared with other goods.

The administration has recognized this fact, in forcing the steel companies to lower the price of steel rails. But it has not recognized the principle which is at work in its general policy. Under the A. A. it has struggled valiantly to raise farm prices. It is also doing its utmost to raise them by depreciating the dollar. But under the NRA it has permitted, and even occasionally encouraged, a rise in the prices of manufactured goods. Yet such a rise defeats and counteracts its efforts to raise farm prices.

If we are to have a managed reflation there must be real management. That means that the Administration must be just as active in holding down prices that are relatively too high as it is in trying to raise prices that are relatively too low. Its object must be not to pick up everything, but to restore the balance by closing the gaps.

For it is the gap between different kinds of prices that stop the exchange of goods.

Defendant In Murder Trial Seeks Change From Hidalgo County

EDINBURG, (AP) Attorneys representing Cam E. Hill, former Hidalgo county clerk under indictment for murder in connection with the slaying of Claude E. Kelley, will seek a change of venue when he comes to trial, it was learned here.

Hill, now a resident of El Paso, is Liberty under bond of $10,000. Lewis H. Jones, Corpus Christi, counsel for Hill, said motion for a change of venue would be filed before the case is brought to trial.

Kelley was the son-in-law of E. C. Couch, present Hidalgo county judge. He was slain while sleeping in the latter's bedroom four years ago. The slaying occurred in the midst of a bitter political campaign in which Couch was running for the first time for the county judgeship.

Three others including two Mexicans, Mateo Cuellar, Westaco street sweeper, and Juan Ybarra, former resident of Mercedes, and George C. Beck, former resident of Hidalgo county who was recently arrested in Dallas, are under indictment in connection with the slaying.

WHIRLIGIG—

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) Downtown Washington is liberally sprinkled with new agencies that have mushroomed up overnight to speak for the farmers. A "legislative agent" presides over each. The duties of many of these agents seem to consist of drawing their pay and issuing flamboyant "calls to arms" and warnings to the administration and Congress. Except for a very few representing the big recognized farm organizations no one has seen them accomplish a thing. Biggs— Old news around the D. C. 20: former U. S. City Solicitor, William J. Crawford, Biggs didn't make much of a deal on getting his first case for Uncle Sam. "The case was that of the army officer seeking a new trial on the charge of poisoning his wife. The legal technicality involved had to do with admitting an alleged death-bed statement into evidence. Our highest court ruled against Biggs and said there should be a retrial. Biggs opened his argument fifteen minutes with just about fifteen minutes of time before adjournment. He did the court he would elaborate on just two points. The following day he returned. After 42 minutes of oratory, Chief Justice Hughes interrupted him: "Pardon me, Mr. Solicitor, but you said you had two points. You have made one quite clear but have not touched on the other and your time is growing short." "How much time have I left?" "Three minutes."

pardons issued the many men and women serving time for prohibition law violations. Ever since the repeal movement slid into high the problem has been debated in letters addressed to the President and his aides. It isn't likely thought that you'll have to keep your children indoors because such as Al Capone are being released from prison. Public Enemy No. 1 technically is in jail because of income frauds. Other tough babies who were allowed away for the real reason of being too tough will remain where they are to stay. But it looks like a merry Christmas for the pint dispensers and home brewers. AUSTIN (UP)—Chairman Ben Cathey of the state legislative committee investigating nepotism was told by Mrs. Ovid Rasor that she was struck by a woman employee of the Texas relief commission after she had testified before the committee. Mrs. Rasor said she was also informed that her discharge from the commission's employ, previously ordered for Nov. 15, was effective at once. She was told not to return to the commission offices, she reported. Cathey said that he will put the matter before the committee. "If we cannot protect those who testify before us, we will stand little chance of getting information," he said. The employee named by Mrs. Rasor denied striking her. Mrs. Rasor had testified before the committee yesterday contending that she was not dismissed because of her work, but because of differences with other women employees in the office. Discard, she said, started over the occupancy of a desk. She is sole support of a crippled father and two children, the committee was told. The committee adjourned until Wednesday after approving a form for a questionnaire to be placed on the desks of 2,000 state department employees.

Setback For Romance

Plans of Mrs. Merry Fahrney Parker-Pickering (above), 22-year-old heiress to a part of a Chicago patent medicine fortune, to rush to Chile to marry Count George di Georjolo, received a setback when it was announced her parents would not finance the trip. (Associated Press Photo)

Pollard Admits He Is Being Urged To Run For Governor

AUSTIN, (UP)—Former Attorney General Claude Pollard admitted here that he is being urged to run for governor in 1934. Pollard, now stationed here as general manager of the Railroad General Managers' association, resided in Houston before being elected attorney general. He formerly was head of the Houston school board. He was elected attorney general in 1926, defeating James V. Allred by a little more than 4,000 votes. He was re-elected in 1928 and was succeeded by R. L. Bobbitt who was appointed by Governor Dan Moody when General Pollard resigned.

Baby Believed Kidnaped Is Found At Neighbors

LOS ANGELES, (UP)—A report telephoned to Los Angeles police from Wilmington said Peter Baldwin, 26-months, reported kidnaped had been found at a neighbor's house.

General Johnson Speaks To Fort Worth Audience

FORT WORTH, (UP)—Fort Worth Saturday welcomed General Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, who made his only public address in Texas Saturday night. He arrived in an army plane from Tulsa at noon.

Control—

New York bankers are a lot less alarmed at the ultimate prospects for a managed currency than they were a couple of weeks ago. Semi-official word has been passed that the contemplated managing will be done with traditional instruments of Federal Reserve currency and credit control instead of with index numbers or mirrors.

Rewards—

New Yorkers sympathetic to the government are much annoyed because American exporters of capital are reaping fat rewards out of the new gold policy. There doesn't seem to be any way of spoiling their fun short of restrictions which would cripple legitimate trade and gold operations. It is hardly worth the price to slap them down.

Code—

The investment bankers are more than sorry the government doesn't like their code but they're quite sure what to do about it. Originally they planned a set of trade practice regulations for themselves which were hopefully intended as a substitute for the Securities Act. Then the sentiment arose that Washington might consider that as less majestic or something and whatever they recommended might well be applied in reverse. "Whatever we say will get us in wrong so we might as well say nothing."

Galm—

The unnatural calm which prevails on the stock market these days is largely due to the unwillingness of usually active participants to take chances of getting in wrong. Specialists who normally cater from ten to fifteen thousand shares for their customers' account are laying off. A good many members of the Stock Exchange community scarcely dare breathe without Washington's permission. From day to day there is no way to know what conditions will be imposed. Brokers say that no sane man wants to play a game in which the rules are subject to change without notice at the caprice of one of the players.

Future—

New Yorkers with New Deal contacts say that nothing is of less consequence to Washington than the perturbation of security dealers. They also predict that government control of capital will be gradually tightened. The days of raising billions of dollars of new capital yearly are probably over and reforming because of the Securities Act may tend to become a government function. Control of capital, like control of the water supply, may gradually pass out of private hands and become a public matter. The latter development was bitterly opposed, too.

Gift—

Watch for Japanese gestures the next few days to prove that she isn't afraid of the big bad bear. Inside New York understands one of them will be a gift to the sovereign state of Manchukuo of warships which under treaty requirements would otherwise be scrapped. Manchukuo has no ports at all so that goes the Swiss navy one better. Japan will offer the use of her ports a courtesy. The ships will be officered and manned by Manchukuo citizens in good standing. It's true they were Japs a few months ago.

Livingoff—

Some of the larger New York banks are none too happy to see Livingoff in our midst. They sense our encouragement of Russia against Japan which may mean a real future for their extensive Japanese investments. But they can't figure anything to us except gain and beat it.

Under The Dome At Austin

AUSTIN, (UP)—Lack of the disagreement in the state relief commission slumber major differences. They may result in a fresh outburst at any time. Some members look upon the relief program as temporary to be handled with least possible cost and to be ended at the earliest opportunity. Others believe a government-supervised system of relief has come to stay. They want administration that will supply data and lay the foundation for continuing rehabilitation. With this divergence of views there goes unavoidably a difference over the amount of relief funds that are necessary. Earle P. Adams of Crockett is leading the fight for least expenditures and least administration cost. He has declared for an economy program and does not intend to be switched from it.

"AH, WILDERNESS"
By Eugene O'Neill
(Random House)

Ah Wilderness, the great play current on Broadway at the Theatre Guild, could well be the work of a clever collegian, and it will be more at home in a collection of the works of one of a dozen other contemporary playwrights than it will be in a complete edition of O'Neill. Its chief importance, however, is as good evidence in support of the often reiterated statements made by the author's good friend Crittle George Jean Nathan, to the effect that Mr. O'Neill is a man-sided personality, skilled at all kinds of dramatic writing. But this play should not be dismissed unequivocally with any such epithet, for "Ah, Wilderness," in comparison with the other "hits" of the season, will certainly deserve the attention that its authorship has assured it. If the reader of the play or the theater customer expresses disappointment, the chances are that the statement expresses disappointment, the chances are that the statement is not prompted

"Let Us Speak"

BY SHINE PHILIPS
The millions of us buried "over there" . . . We too lived a life free of care. Loved, enjoyed life as you. It ended. We had no choice. And now—the dew falls on us each night. No more days when the sun shines bright. What chance had we "on this glory road"? Fighting for the freedom of man. "So we were told."

We hated no one—neither did they. Fought for our countries— "So they say." Miles of us now lie side by side. Carried in a wagon—our last ride. All of us—the enemy too. Were told that God was "on our side" . . . And the bugles blew. Banners were marched down the street. And now I feel for this—youths of all lands. Were worked into a frenzied heat. They told us tales of what the enemy had done. Sold us "hate," when in our hearts We had none.

In our outfit, none came back when it was over, we were attacked. To please the cold world, and of our We wonder, as ever as they will play. If this is so, that Jack been . . . And we who were buried "over there" . . .

Other things besides meat? "Diplomats and statesmen" sent us in the name of peace. But where were they when we were decorated With a wreath. Don't teach your boys to be "big soldier men". Teach them state and that all men are kind. Teach them not of the medals we wore to wear. Show them the blessings of love and care. For the nations other than ours. And that nations everywhere are the same. At funeral boxes.

How can the civilization ever advance. When the youth of the land are killed. Off without a chance to show what is in them, and to die. What has failed to be done by you? It's long since over here tonight. Through the soil. Our mothers over there, sit by the fire and and. "If national murder can't be stopped. By the val of God.

Let's play for peace. The brotherhood of man. You who are still there, we can do no more. Than just wait and hope that you will not ignore. Popovers are all field, snow covered, and grass. With a white mantle was the earth covered.

Heffelfinger, All-Time All-American, Plays In Last Football Contest

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—W. W. (Pudge) Heffelfinger, All-American guard at Yale more than 49 years ago, donned a football uniform Friday for his final game.

Heffelfinger, rated by the late Walter Camp as an all-time All-American guard, announced he would play with the Gopher All-Stars in a game with the St. Thomas All-Stars.

The game, he said, will be his last. He had planned to retire after a game in which he was injured a year ago. "The game will be for the benefit of disabled American war veterans."

The 64-year-old, and far past football age, Heffelfinger said, "but I've always been willing to help disabled veterans, and I guess I can move back my retirement one year."

Heffelfinger was a member of the All-American teams, among the best named, while playing for Yale in 1890 and 1891.
