State Of City Government Is Reviewed

Facts Presented Club By City Manager Thursday Noon

State of the municipal government of Big Spring was reviewed before the Kiwanis club here Thursday at the Crawford hotel by City Manager E. V. Spence.

1. Peak of the requirements for interest and principal payments on the bonded debt was reached during this year, and will begin to decrease with the 1933-34 fiscal year beginning April 1.

2. Property valuations for tax purposes have been lowered from $7,200,000 to $6,600,000 since April 1, 1930.

3. The tax rate was reduced from $1.25 to $1.50 at the beginning of the fiscal year.

4. Operation expenses of the city have been reduced from $177,000 to $102,000 since April 1, 1930.

5. Revenues from the water department reached a peak of $12,500 in August 1930, with a low of $8,000 in March, 1931.

6. The budget for this year was based on expectation of collecting 60 per cent of taxes levied; $30,000 must be collected this month to reach that per cent.

7. Requirements for the bonded debt for this fiscal year totaled $90,000; sixty per cent of taxes levied amounted to $50,000, therefore the balance of the amount of bonded debt (interest and principal) due this year had to be paid from water revenues, which have decreased.

8. However, valuations and tax rate were reduced; water revenues have decreased. But, operation costs also were lowered.

9. Manager Blanton of the Houston Chamber of Commerce, a guest of the day, spoke briefly. E. W. Potter, bass, sang two selections, with accompaniments by Miss Robert Gay.

Scott Ousted As Leader Of Technocracy

Columbia Professors, Now Rivals, Continue With Survey

NEW YORK (UP)—Howard Scott, once undisputed master of technocracy, turned to his followers for funds to continue his energy survey of the North American continent.

Four former associates, now rivals, proceeded with an energy survey of their own, assisted by 105 architects and engineers paid from emergency unemployment relief funds.

Scott retained the name technocracy and 300 charts representing the work accomplished before Prof. Walter Rautenstrauch of Columbia university led the schism that split the organization, but he was deprived of working quarters, assistants, and financial backing.

"Who will finance the survey?" he asked jauntily. "Oh, member, ships, subscriptions, personal gifts. We haven't had to go to the public for donations yet, and I doubt if we will. Who belongs to it?"

At Columbia where Dr. Rautenstrauch and his three companions in the revolt against Scott were pressing their own energy survey, the unemployed technicians were drawing new charts to replace those turned over to Scott while other assistants delved through mountains of statistics.

Under The Dome At Austin

By Gordon K. Shearer United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN, (UP)—Senator W. R. Poage, Waco, is being facetiously addressed as the "new senator" since a correspondent, dropping in on Austin for the opening of the session, wrote an article referring to the veteran house and senate economy advocate as a new member. Such is fame.

Rep. Joe Greathouse, Fort Worth, caused a ripple in the senate when a concurrent resolution was passed for a joint session for the inauguration of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson. Greathouse inquired if it would be necessary for Governor Sterling to sign a resolution made concurrent in form.

The constitution requires his signature or passage over his veto of any resolution or vote requiring concurrence.

Rep. George Moffett, in the chair, declined to rule on the point. When Greathouse moved it was referred to the attorney general. Moffett announced he was not recognized for the purpose.

The furor raised over no dinner being left for the incoming governor at the mansion seems to have been a bit overdone.

Though the little courtesy has marked the transition of a number of administrations, it has not been an unbroken custom. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Moody did not find a dinner waiting for them.

The "custom" seems to have prevailed only when the new and old governors were friendly in politics.

Rigid economy may prevent the portrait of former-governor Ross S. Sterling being hung in the rotunda of the state capitol alongside other governors of Texas.

It has been customary for the legislators to appropriate $500 for an oil portrait of the governor.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson was twice honored. After her first term in office her portrait so ordered was hung in the capitol rotunda. Friends donated funds for a sculptor to carve a marble bust and it was placed in the capitol lobby.

A governor's cabinet, recommended by the state reorganization committee, is not a new proposal.

It was suggested in United Press stories from Austin when Governor Ross S. Sterling took office, that he would follow the usual business course and have conferences of the department heads as a sort of cabinet was then discussed.

The difficulty in the way of a state cabinet is that heads of many state departments are elected by popular vote, just as the big government is elected. The president's cabinet is appointive. Technically this should be no objection. Practically it is a big one.

Railroad commission division heads deny appointees of former-governor Pat M. Neff were singled out in reducing commission forces recently.

Appointees of others were also relieved, when their places no longer were necessary, it was asserted. The removal of Gen. Thomas D. Barton, World War hero, created the stir. He was appointed by Neff and had also been adjutant general under Neff.

Commission employees point to the retention of R. B. Walthall, who was secretary to Neff, when Neff was governor. Walthall, however, was not appointed on the rail commission by Neff, who after a short time on the commission, offered a resolution to do away with individual appointments and require con-

Illicit Love Affair Bared In Parks Trial

Woman Takes Witness Stand In Sweetwater Murder Case

SWEETWATER, (UP)—Pretty, blonde Mrs. Fay Condit, married church worker who is separated from her husband, appeared as a state's witness at the murder trial of L. Parks today and testified to intimacies which began when he delivered soft drinks to the rooming house where she resided. Parks, a former school teacher and for the past several years manager of a soft drink bottling works here, is charged with murder in connection with his wife's death. Mrs. Parks was drowned in Lake Trammell, near here, last July.

Her narrative, told after W. E. Martin, the witness, appeared, received an order of immunity from any evidence brought out during the trial, was the most sensational introduced by the state in its efforts to convict Parks. The order asking immunity was granted by Judge A. S. Mauney after District Attorney George Mahon said the witness was held under no charge and was placed under $500 bond to assure her presence at the trial.

Mrs. Condit said she had resided in Sweetwater since 1929, coming here from San Angelo. She became acquainted with Parks, she testified, when he delivered soft drinks to a rooming house where she resided.

Intimate The friendship, she admitted under questioning of Mahon, became intimate shortly afterwards. Parks she said, contributed substantially to her support. Mahon got into evidence the woman's statements about meeting occurrence of all members of the commission to any appointment.

Amusing mistakes are occurring in both house and senate of the present legislature due to persons resembling each other. Misses Page and Beverly Randolph, secretaries respectively for Senators W. K. Hopkins and Ernest Felbaum, are twins.

Rep. E. Harold Beck of Texas, and Ed Rider, Houston newspaper correspondent, look so much alike they frequently are being confused.

The furor raised over no dinner being left for the incoming governor at the mansion seems to have been a bit overdone.

Parks, her growing friendship with him by perfunctory questions. Developing the theme, that Parks aided in her expenses, Mahon asked:

"Did Parks ever furnish money for your car?" The answer was "yes."

Q. Did Parks furnish money for hotel room? A. Yes.

Q. Did Parks ever furnish money for meals? A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any other income? A. Like I always did.

Q. Did Parks buy you any insurance policies? A. Yes, two.

Q. Did Parks give you money monthly or weekly? A. Whenever I asked for it.

Q. Did you and Parks correspond? A. Yes.

No Recognition While the questioning continued Parks, seated at the side of his counsel, looked steadily at the woman. He gave no sign of recognition when she glanced at him.

The questioning brought out that Parks and Mrs. Condit corresponded when the latter was out of the city.

Mrs. Condit answered in the af-

Affirmative to the question: "Did you ever go to San Angelo (about 90 miles from Sweetwater) with Parks?"

Answering questions of Harry Tom King, Abilene, chief of the defense attorneys, Mrs. Condit said she had been intimate with other men prior to her acquaintance with Parks.

King's questioning revealed Parks had not mentioned his wife to Mrs. Condit, that he had not talked of leaving her.

The state alleges the death of Mrs. Parks was to collect $19,000 of insurance the defendant carried on his wife's length.

"Did either he, or you, ever talk of doing away with Mrs. Parks?" King asked.

"No," the witness replied. The witness said she had attended church and Sunday school here and taught a class in the training school of the church.

BUT, believe ME, when it comes to what I smoke, I want it right! You know how it is when a fellow is accustomed to smoking a good cigarette and he gets hold of one that isn't right. He's likely to get in a bad humor. I am a great believer in the old saying that "quality will tell," and I have noticed that the things which come to stay are good things. You can buy a package of good cigarettes for 15c. Six cents of this goes to the Government. So that outside of the 6c paid to the Government, you get a little over two cigarettes for one cent. The right kind of tobacco, the right sort of paper—a cigarette that's pure and good-tasting and mild—that's the kind I want. I have been smoking CHESTERFIELDS for a long time. They are mild and yet they satisfy.

CHAPTER XV

Jim and Sheila stood motionless. Then for the first time Jim showed that he feeling for the girl was more than casual interest. His hand closed over hers protectively. She nodded, smiling gratefully. "I tell you," Marion Randolph was insisting, "either Shayne leaves this show or I do! Why, she used every trick in the trade to steal my scenes. You think she can dance, do you? Do you call that dancing? All right—I mean, who, I said! Either she goes or I go!"

Mike broke in then. "Now listen, Miss Randolph, you're excited, just because a small town critic shows how little he knows you don't want to let it bother you. Wait until we get to Broadway! What do they know about a real performance here anyway?"

Miss Randolph was not to be mollified. "The trouble is," she went on as though Mike had not spoken, "her part is too good. Now I'll tell you what you can do. Put Shayne out and cut the part for whoever takes it. Then I'll stay!"

"We'll talk it over later, Miss Randolph," interrupted the production manager smoothly. "It's just as Mike said, though, Shayne is all right, but you're so much better! You want a good company, don't you? Why, you're the best little leading lady on the boards right now. Shayne nor anyone else can't touch you—"

"You won't find half a dozen singers who can reach that top note in 'Happy Days,' either!" Miss Randolph said warningly. "We don't need half a dozen." "No? I mean there aren't half a dozen—and those there are, are all signed. You don't need Shayne in this show and that's flat. Or if you do need her than you don't need me! I don't care whether or not I have this job. Half a dozen producers are waiting to sign me up and you know it!"

Mike's tone changed. "But listen, Miss Randolph, this Shayne is a good kid. She can dance. She has the looks. The old man—"

"What's that about the old man?" demanded the leading lady viciously. Then without waiting for an answer she went on "That's a good one! That's great! Well, you tell the old man for me," her eyes flashed, "that he can let one of us go. And I don't care which!"

Mike considered. "Maybe he won't either, Miss Randolph. Who knows?"

"I know!" The actress' voice broke hysterically and the flood loosened in deep, wrenching sobs. "Better not let her get excited," Mike whispered nervously, ignoring the obvious fact that it had been he who had caused the outbreak. He stepped toward her and placed a pudgy hand on her heaving shoulder. "Now see here," he said uncertainly. "You're being foolish to think even for a moment that Shayne can overthrow you. What would the folks on Broadway say if they could hear you?" He laughed—but the sound was feeble. Over Miss Randolph's curly, blond head his eyes sought those of the production manager's in mute appeal. "Imagine you being jealous of Shayne! That's a hot one! Look at the leading man we found for you—straight from the Four Hundred. I suppose you read that in the morning paper? Not many girls can play love scenes with one of those boys every night!"

Outside in the wings Sheila's eyes sought Jim's and flickered in humorous sympathy. "Can you imagine that!" Jim whispered, pressing her hand encouragingly.

But Sheila's face was grave again. There was no doubt about the fact that Marion Randolph's position in the show was vastly more important than her own. Miss Randolph was the star. People would come to see the show because she was in it. Her dressing room was sound proof, furnished with restful, attractive furniture. Her private car and chauffeur took her back and forth from the hotel. Her own cook prepared her meals. She had two maids, only one of whom she paid herself.

Oh, yeh, Marion Randolph's place in the show was secure. She was a star in her own right and moreover she had "influence." That was the reason Mike had tried to cajole her into forgetting her grievance. Mike—aw that if Miss Randolph persisted she would have her way and Sheila would be out.

"She can't do anything," Jim whispered uncertainly as he and Sheila moved along.

"The girl smiles ruefully. "She can do enough."

"May! she won't, though."

"Maybe. We'll see what happens."

And for a time nothing did happen. Reviews of the show in the evening newspapers praised Miss Randolph extravagantly. There was reason for this because the actress really was skillful. It was also true that an admirer of Miss Randolph's was the "ranger" backing the production financially. Things hadn't gone any too well with Mandrake recently for all his fame. Like others, he had to secure capital where he could get it.

The play returned to Broadway and there acclaim for Miss Randolph was abundant, superlative and gratifying. There was only one unfortunate drawback. She could back by each Miss Randolph's notices slightly underplayed those given Sheila.

So Sheila left the show. Mandrake said he was sorry. He spread his hands in dismay as he told her. A little later he might have something for her.

And again Sheila was out of a job.

"But they can't do such a thing!" Jim Blaine stormed. "It isn't fair and anyhow they need you. You're half the show!"

"I could be three-fourths of it and it wouldn't make any difference," she smiled gallantly. "Anyhow there are other jobs."

"And perhaps other Marion Randolphs," Jim said slowly.

Then two things happened with startling rapidity. First, Dick Stanley returned to New York, dropping upon Sheila's horizon like a bolt from the blue. He telephoned one morning and told her he had taken an apartment—yes, a penthouse. He was working in earnest now, he said. He had written a play and wanted Sheila to read it.

"I'd like to," she agreed. "Just so you don't read it to me. I'm not a good listener!"

"How about coming up for tea?"

There was a pause and then a hardly perceptible sigh traveled over the wire.

"You aren't busy are you?" Dick asked. "Come up for tea today."

"You're sure it's tea?" Sheila countered. She wanted sure that she wanted to accept Dick's first invitation so soon. It might be better to keep him waiting, let him call once or twice before he found her free.

But, after all, Dick was a friend. She was out of luck and she longed to talk things over with him.

"Of course it's tea—or rather it will be Jasmine tea straight from Chinatown. And if you're worried about the proprieties, we won't be alone. Mandrake's going to drop in."

"But Mandrake just put me out of his show, Dick!"

There was a silence. Then in a changed voice Dick said, "That's too bad! Didn't you have a contract?"

"I had one to look over. It wasn't signed. They don't sign them for unimportant people like myself until the break-in week is finished."

Briefly she told him what had happened in Atlantic City. In New York the show was becoming a big success.

Dick seemed sympathetic. "It's a shame, Sheila! Too bad that jealous cat—"

"Did you ever try to scrape up spilled milk?" asked Sheila steadily, interrupting him. "Yeh, may be jealous, Dick, but the fact remains that she is important to the show and I wasn't."

"Oh, sure!" grunted Dick wisely. "Listen, you come to tea. Try to dress like a sweet little girl graduate and open your eyes wide! Spring that hit-me-on-the-nerve attitude on Mandrake. Maybe it will give him a bad conscience."

"I'll do my best," Sheila gazed. As she left the telephone and went upstairs she wondered just what Dick was going to try to do about the situation.

'Bible' Issued For Hunters Of Political Jobs

Jim Farley Despairs Of Reading Mail, Goes South For Rest

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

give ideas to the small portion of the population which has not not already asked for a piece of democratic pie.

Big smiling Jim Farley, chairman of the democratic national committee, despairing of reading his mail, has put a squad of filing clerks to classifying the hundreds of job-hunting letters which pour into his office daily, and has gone south until the sorting is finished.

President-elect Roosevelt has another squad of secretaries writing thank-you notes to those thousands who are reminding him daily that they don't want to be forgotten. Every Democratic senator and congressman is lying awake nights thinking up new pleasant ways of telling inquiring constituents that there just won't be jobs enough to go around.

Now to make their agony complete comes senate document No. 173, limited to 200 copies. It lists more than 100,000 federal jobs not under civil service, gives the salary, and in many instances the date the incumbent, usually a Republican, was appointed and when his term expires.

Already a movement is quietly under way to gather up the 200 copies of this dangerous publication and burn them. Meantime senators are guarding the list as tightly as possible but some copies have got out. It is suspected republicans are encouraging circulation of it just to annoy the democrats.

420 Pages
Out of the 420 pages of jobs listed in small type, the Washington positions rate the best salaries. There are ten cabinet jobs at $15,000 a year. The $12,000 jobs include: Comptroller of the currency; veterans' administration director; federal reserve board, U. S. board of mediation, interstate commerce commission, 21 members total. Six members of the tariff commission rate $11,000 each.

Ten thousand dollar jobs are more numerous, including 46 positions—the federal farm board, radio commission, power commission, board of tax appeals, reconstruction finance corporation directorate, and shipping board.

Jobs paying from $5,000 to $9,000 are so common that a number of Republicans holding them are hopeful that they will be overlooked as small change in the crush.

What is really worrying democratic job hunters is that there still is some uncertainty as to whether the new administration will insist upon wholesale resignations where terms of republican incumbents have some time to run, or whether the pie will be served piece-meal. Word from President-elect Roosevelt is being eagerly awaited.

Ex-Official Of Hidalgo On Trial In Austin

Evasion Of Income Tax Charged To Former Commissioner
AUSTIN (UP)—Receipt of large sums from the late A. Y. Baker, former Hidalgo county political leader, and from an officer of W. L. Pearson and Co., public contractors, during 1928 and 1929, and a note for $40,685 from officers of the Pearson Company payable in 1930, were told in federal district court here as Sam H. Hargrove, former Hidalgo county commissioner, went to trial on charges of income tax evasion and failure to report income.

Hargrove was the first of four former Hidalgo officers charged in income tax indictments to go to trial. Trial of George B. Parr of Duval county was continued because of illness of his attorney, Claude Follard.

Application for continuance was made by Marvin Evans, former Hidalgo commissioner, and is to be ruled on later. Alex Champion, another commissioner, and Cam E. Hill, former county clerk, announced ready for trial.

Not Guilty
Hargrove entered pleas of not guilty to charges of willful failure to report income for 1928 and 1929 and willful evasion for each of those years.

Arthur Harvey, special agent of the intelligence unit of the revenue service, detailed income which he said Hargrove told him about in two conferences after he started investigation. Among the items Harvey cited were $11,250 paid by the late A. Y. Baker as commission on a real estate deal; $10,000 from a vice president and general manager of W. L. Pearson & Co. by draft.

The note was payment for cattle. Harvey said he was told by Hargrove.

He said the note covered an item of $14,000 and one of $26,685. It was signed, he said, by men who were officers of both W. L. Pearson & Co., public contractors doing work in Hidalgo county, and of the Bee County Ranch.

Bank Accounts
Bank accounts by Hargrove in Edinburg, Mission and San Antonio also were referred to in testimony.

The indictment charged the county commissioner's gross income in 1928, before division into community estate, was $73,804, and in 1929 $42,094. The government claimed $2,624 tax for the first year and $754 for the second.

Harvey testified that investigations conducted since the indictment indicate the amounts are much less. One deduction is an item of $16,000 deposited in San Antonio, which was later found to be a transfer.

For Hargrove on cross examination it was brought out that he sent an auditor to confer with the income tax officials. It was also brought out that he claims the $40,685 note was not due until 1930 and so not part of his 1929 income.

"You found no check to Hargrove in the office records of W. L. Pearson & Co. did you?" asked Hargrove's counsel.

"No," answered Harvey. Harvey also said on cross examination that the claim as stated in the indictment would have to be reduced to allow for what the cattle sold to the Bee County Ranch cost Hargrove. Hargrove was a rancher and held a minor railroad position as well as being county commissioner. It was testified.

TODAY and TOMORROW
By WALTER LIFFMANN
When Diplomacy Is Too Open

Mr. Hoover's proposal to set up a commission to deal with war debts, armaments, currencies and tariffs raises a number of important questions about the conduct of diplomacy among democracies. It is a subject about which little is known. For democratic diplomacy is a new thing in the world. Until the war the voters and their elected representatives played a small part in international affairs. British diplomacy was the province of the British ruling class and of the permanent officials of the Foreign Office. On the continent of Europe the power exercised by the German, Austrian and Russian empires was wielded by a relatively small number of men. The United States had not yet become a world power; its foreign policy, largely confined to the region of the Pacific and the Caribbean, was not of much interest to the people at large.

The war brought the people into diplomacy by showing them how their fortunes and their lives were involved in the consequences of diplomacy. But there did not exist, and there does not yet exist, a workable system of democratic diplomacy. A very large part of the history of the world since the peace conference at Paris has been determined by the fact that masses of voters in many countries could not understand each other quickly enough to allow their governments to deal realistically with reconstruction after the devastation of the war. The discovery of ways in which democratic diplomacy can be conducted is one of the great tasks of our generation. The discovery is not an easy one. It will be made, no doubt, by the slow and painful process of trial and error.

Conoco Prize Contest Ends February 26
$10,000 In Awards Offered For Name Of New Gasoline

PONCA CITY, Okla.—Accepted as an expression of confidence in the business outlook for 1933 was announcement here today by Continental Oil company of the approval of the largest advertising budget in the company's history, coincident with the release of an advertising campaign announcing a $10,000 prize contest in connection with the introduction of Conoco's new bronze high test gasoline.

"Not only will the 1933 advertising budget be the largest in the company history," said President Dan Moran, "but the major portion of the appropriation will be devoted to the purchase of newspaper advertising throughout the country, offers $5,000 as a prize for the best name for Conoco's new bronze gasoline, and $5,000 in 74 cash prizes for the best slogans describing the merits of the new high test gasoline. The contest opening today, will close February 26.

The war brought the people into diplomacy by showing them how their fortunes and their lives were involved in the consequences of diplomacy. But there did not exist, and there does not yet exist, a workable system of democratic diplomacy. A very large part of the history of the world since the peace conference at Paris has been determined by the fact that masses of voters in many countries could not understand each other quickly enough to allow their governments to deal realistically with reconstruction after the devastation of the war. Firing Coaches
The American Football Coaches' Association, meeting in New York, bewailed "the non-stability of the coaching profession," by which was meant the practice of "firing" gridiron mentors who failed to deliver the goods in the form of victories. Inasmuch as one of the chief bewailers was Amos Alonzo Stagg, the grand old man of football who spent 41 years as coach at Chicago University, it would seem that the coaches have insufficient evidence on which to base their claim that they are the victims of non-stability.

Everyone is familiar, however, with the wolfish howls that ascend to heaven when a coach loses too many games. These howls come from three principal sources—from the fans who like to back a winning team from the Monday morning quarterbacks who are sure they could do a better job than the coach is doing and from the alumni.

Most of the trouble comes from the latter. They bring pressure to bear on college heads. They clutter up the players' benches at games. They invade the dressing room. They interfere and meddle. No doubt some of the alumni are helpful and useful, but for each helpful alumnus there are perhaps a dozen who merely gum up the works.

Coach Stagg has it right. He said that the public would have to quit looking only for victories, and look rather to the physical and moral development of the players. There's where the real profit lies.

14-Year-Old Violin Prodigy Yarns For Engineer's Career
HOUSTON, (UP)—Raphael Filigal, a bright-eyed youth of 14 who is acclaimed as a genius by those who have heard him play the violin, would like to be an engineer.

He considers it the tragedy of his life that he must spend long hours practicing for a career which he believes will not be half so thrilling as engineering. He is philosophical about it, however. "I'd like to be an engineer," he said, "but I guess I'll continue my musical career instead."

Young Filigal appeared as guest soloist Jan. 23 with the Houston Symphony orchestra. He came here several years ago from Chicago where his uncle plays the cello in the Chicago symphony.

Fast-moving music with plenty of "noise" is Raphael's favorite type. His favorite composer is Bach and the greatest musician of all time, he thinks, is Fritz Kreisler.

One of his outstanding musical achievements is his knowledge of one sound. He will attend several feet from a piano, blindfolded, and immediately upon hearing a note sounded identify it.

Unfilled Orders Of Texas Textile Mills Five Million Yards
AUSTIN, (UP)—Unfilled orders of Texas textile mills at the close of 1932 amounted to 5,893,600 yards, the highest total since the close of 1929, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

The total at the close of 1928 was 7,632,000.

Several other evidences of improved conditions in the industry were pointed out. First, the rate of decline in production for 1932 was not as great as for the preceding year. Total production reached 45,562,000 yards for 1932, a decline of 1.8 per cent from the 46,822,000 yards produced in 1931 which was 15 per cent under that of 1930.

Although unfilled orders and sales usually decline during December, the report said, in 1932 there was an increase in both.

Shoe Men To Study Possible Effect Of Sales Tax On Trade
FORT WORTH, (UP)—A state sales tax and its effect on the shoe trade will be discussed in open forum by dealers here for the joint convention of the Texas Shoe Retailers, Oklahoma Shoe Retailers, and Southwest Shoe Travelers Association, Feb. 6 to 8.

Opposition to the tax from Oklahoma and El Paso convention delegates may lead the joint convention to vigorously condemn the proposed revenue measure, according to Dave L. Tandy, convention chairman.

Among speakers in the shoe industry scheduled to speak are Mrs. Elizabeth Ambrose, New York City; Buford Jones, vice president of the Dunn-McCarthy Shoe Company, Auburn, N. Y.; James H. Stone, Chicago, secretary-manager of the National Shoe Retailers Association.

Other speakers will be F. J. Nichols, director of the Merchants' Service Bureau of the National Cash Register company, Dayton, Ohio; and George E. Gray, New York, Western editor of Foot and Shoe Recorder.

More than 200 display rooms will feature scores of shoe styles during the convention. A contest is planned to select the most perfect size 4-foot.

Eight Games Per Season Played On Saturday Recommendation Of Board Of Education In Report

AUSTIN, (UP)—Banning of high school football games on school days and limiting of basketball to Friday and Saturday nights were proposed in a report of the state board of education to the governor.

Holding football games on school days should be discontinued because of interference with school work, the report said.

"We find no argument for it," the board said.

"It is true that some high school coaches wish to be free to attend college games on Saturdays; it is true that gate receipts in some communities will be smaller on Saturday; it is true some boys have to work on Saturdays and others could not participate in or attend Saturday games.

"None of these reasons has an appreciable weight when compared with the interference with the school program."

It was pointed out. Of the 222 schools reporting, 128 sometimes dismiss school for games, 52 show attendance in "appreciable" cut down in school on days of football games, and in 72 schools the time lost is not made up, the report showed.

"Eight inter-school football games a season appears sufficient to secure all the advantages claimed by inter-school football," the report said.

"Not only do the majority of Texas school men believe eight is a maximum number, but school men all over the country designate eight or less as sufficient."

"The board recommended limitation of basketball games to 15, between Dec. 1 and March 1, and providing that tournaments should admit only a limited number of teams.

Regarding "scholastic favors to athletes," the board said that was due to "too great enthusiasm for winning games."

"The community has become frenzied," the board continued. "It is a symptom of athletic disease. The honesty of scholastic standards must be upheld even if the whole inter-school sport program should have to be abandoned to uphold them."

Coaches should be required by law to have a certain amount of credit in physical education, and the state board of education should be given certain regulatory powers in order to deal with "mob enthusiasm that has developed in several communities."

1,472 Games
Actual schedules show 1,742 games, or 70.9 per cent of all games scheduled for school days.

Giant Infielder's Reply To Contract Letter 'Different'

NEW YORK (UP)—Jim Tierney, secretary of the New York Giants and by no means a "softie," sounded husky as he read off the note which accompanied Johnny Vergez's signed contract.

Johnny, the third baseman, had written from his home in Alameda, Calif., as follows:

"In view of the fact I was not so hot last year, I am more than satisfied with the fair way the club has treated me, and will do anything I can to regain my form of 1931.

In 1931 in Oakland, Johnny Vergez appeared just about the finest third base prospect to come up from the minors since Pie Traynor and Freddy Lindstrom moved into the big time.

But last season he played so poorly and was razed so much by the fans, who didn't know the story behind the box scores, that he finally was replaced at third base by Gilbert English. His slump started right after training season.

When the Giants arrived at their Los Angeles camp, Johnny came down from Alameda all smiles. He was the father of a baby boy.

One afternoon, sliding home, he twisted his ankle badly.

That same day his only child was stricken with infantile paralysis. On the night of April 2, the club entrusted for the east, just a few hours after Vergez had sent word that his baby was dead.

Johnny re-joined the team after the season was under way. He brought his wife to New York and took an apartment. She was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. He couldn't sleep at night, and he worried all day. But he had to play ball. He couldn't put any pep into the game.

On the road it was worse. He was fearful something might happen to his wife in his absence.

When Bill Terry became manager, he learned of Johnny's plight. Terry took him aside and told him, "Take it easy kid. Don't worry. No matter what happens, you'll be with us next year."

And Terry kept his promise.

New Fiction Received By Public Library

Four new novels have been received by the Public Library, announced Mrs. B. T. Cardwell, librarian. They are: "Beauty," by Faith Baldwin; "Murder at Monte Carlo," by E. Phillips Oppenheim; "Silver Wings," by Grace Livingston Hill; and that popular best-seller, "Never Ask the End," by Isabel Patterson.

This is the second installment of books just off the press. More are expected soon, says the librarian. She also announces that a few overdue books have been brought in and that the library has decided to make a flat rate of 25 cents to cover all overdue books. The library has been very lenient in this matter and the public has taken advantage of this leniency. Some people have kept books out unintentionally and others have forgotten that they have library books on their own bookshelves. Because of these the library has restrained its appeals for return to polite requests. If, however, the majority of the books are not brought in within the next two weeks a list of those delinquent in returning books and paying fines will be published.

Two copies of Dorothy Scarborough's "Wind" were once in the library. These were taken out and not returned. Mrs. Cardwell urges that every person who has ever been a member of the library look on his book shelves and see if he can find a copy of this book. It is greatly in demand.

Woman's Body Discovered In Creek Bottom

Farmer Hunting Hogs Makes Discovery In East Texas

CORRIGAN, Tex.—The body of a well dressed woman who apparently had been stabbed to death was found today where it had been hidden in a wooded creek bottom near the Folk-Trinity county line.

The spot where the body was found was about a quarter of a mile from highway 108. Sheriff R. D. Holliday believed it had been transported by automobile from some distant point and disposed of.

From the condition of the body he judged the woman had been dead about ten days.

The body was discovered by Frank Finn, a farmer, who had been in the pine woods of that section searching for lost hogs.

Sheriff Holliday expressed the opinion that the woman was fully dressed when her body was placed in the shallow creek. It appeared to have been weighted down with pieces of wood. However, hogs had moved the pieces off the body and torn the clothing.

There was a slit in her coat just over the heart and corresponding wound in the chest which Dr. Flowers of Livingston said looked like a knife wound. The body also bore numerous bruises.

No marks of identification were found. There was no jewelry.

Sheriff Holliday was checking her clothes for laundry or cleaner's marks.

One arm was in fairly good condition and investigators noted that her nails were manicured and her hand well kept. It was estimated that she was between 25 and 30 years old. She was about five feet

Name Of Denison May Not Be Sent To Senate By 'Ma'

DALLAS, (UP)—Reports in political circles here said Governor Miriam A. Ferguson had decided to refrain from sending to the senate for confirmation the name of F. L. Denison, Temple, her announced choice for highway commissioner.

It was said opposition to Denison, who is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighed somewhere around 150 pounds, Sheriff Holliday said.

After checking everything by which she might be identified the body was buried near where it was found.

man, who would succeed Cass Johnson of Tyler, had developed in the senate and was his first refusal of the body to confirm him. The Ferguson had decided to keep his name from the list.

John Davis, Dallas, former state senator and now a state democratic committeeman, was understood to be under consideration instead. Davis was in Austin recently.

MAKES WOMEN LOSE FAT

Miss Rosa M. Haines of Dayton, Ohio writes: "I weighed 130 so started taking Kruschen. I never was so surprised as when I weighed myself the first week—I lost 7 pounds. I just bought my 3rd jar and am down to 115—am still taking them and never felt better in my life." (June 17, 1932).

It seems certain companies have been threatened with official investigation unless they paid an amount of money. The evidence will be hard to get. The companies do not care to go into the matter. Those who paid do not want the fact advertised that they were such suckers. One which refused to pay and threatened exposure is satisfied to let things stand as they are.

There is no indication that anyone in official position is involved. The private inquiry is being directed at an attorney who has only a nominal official connection. It is very probable that the racket will

WHERE BATTLE LINES ARE DRAWN

A major battle between Japan and China is expected soon in Jehol and northern China. Chinese armies in the troubled area were reliably estimated between 150,000 and 250,000 men, distributed as indicated by numerals on map. 1—In eastern Jehol, 36,000. 2—In central and western Jehol, 50,000. 3—Facing Shanhaiwan, 10,000. 4—Between Chinwang-tao and Changli, 20,000. 5—Between Changli and Lushanow, 50,000. 6—Between Tientsin and the Luan river, 20,000. 7—In the vicinity of Peiping, 30,000. Arrows (A, B and C) indicate the direction of Japanese advance on Jehol.

element of youth only lacks leadership to be a disturbing factor in the situation.

France—The drain on France's gold— from this country and elsewhere—is assuming serious proportions. New York estimates of the ultimate loss to the French reserves— unless the outflow is artificially checked—run to more than a billion dollars. A local bank with Paris connections hears that an embargo on gold exports is being carefully considered.

Debts—The Hoover-Roosevelt decision to talk things over with our British debtor meets hearty approval in the financial district. Advocates of cancellation are keeping very quiet but hopes run high that trade advantages is in sight.

Steel—The Iron and Steel Institute— headed by ex-Secretary of Commerce Lamont—has been a disappointment to its sponsors. It differs from the Edison Institute in the utilities field because it makes no effort to exert authority over the industry.

Garner—The man in Washington closest to Mr. Roosevelt is Garner. They talk over the telephone frequently. Garner appears to be in possession of more information about what Roosevelt is going to do than anyone else in either house.

Parade—The Socialists are supposed to be organizing quietly for a march on Washington inauguration day. Those who are promoting the idea want to run it on a higher plane than the communist march at the opening of congress. Police here have received the tip and are investigating to determine if Norman Thomas is leading it. They will undoubtedly receive fairer treatment than the Communists.

Commerce—Friends of Jesse Straus are backing him militantly for secretary of commerce. They put through the resolution calling for a retail merchant in the next cabinet which featured the National Retail Dry Goods Convention last week.

Notes—Those nearest Garner whisper that April 11 is the date tentatively fixed for calling the special session of the new congress. . . . Congressman Bankhead is still a good bet for the new democratic leadership. . . . He will probably get it unless McDuffie makes a deal with Rainey to withdraw from the membership race. . . .

Robinson—Close New York friends of the new administration do not believe there is any foundation for the rumor that Senator Robinson might be given a judicial appointment. His age and importance in the senate are thought to insure a refusal on his part even if he were offered such a position.

Mrs. F. D. R.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt handles an average of two hundred fifty letters each morning. These she looks over first, selecting those genuinely personal. The remaining letters go to a secretary who sorts them into two groups: charitable appeals and criticisms. Both of these are legible.

Each charitable appeal is referred back to its appropriate local bureau to be checked, and when Mrs. Roosevelt has received a report, she sets it at once. Criticisms are also read. One of the latest was: "Why the hell does your husband wear such awful hats?"

Roosevelt In Plea For Bill To Help Needy

Four Major Objectives Contained In His Recommendations

By WILLIAM F. KERBY, United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, (UP)—President-elect Roosevelt has informed democratic congressional leaders the forthcoming special session must be prepared to deal quickly with a unified relief program strictly along lines laid down by the incoming administration. The extra session is expected to convene in mid-April. Leaders already are trying to smooth the way for speedy enactment of legislation for economic rehabilitation. Mr. Roosevelt's goal is a 60-day session, which would be the shortest extra meeting of congress in the memory of legislative veterans. As far as congressional leaders have been informed, the president-elect will ask for a program centering around four major objectives: 1. Farm relief—some variation of the domestic allotment bounty plan together with mortgage relief for debt-burdened farmers. 2. Prohibition, repeal plus modification legislation. 3. Budget balancing—including some sort of a tax bill; governmental economies, and a thorough reorganization of the executive departments. 4. Banking reform and tariff legislation—the tariff measure probably to grant authority to the Roosevelt administration to bargain with European nations for reduction of trade barriers. Congress will be urged to hew to the line of this program, and then quickly adjourn. Many in congressional circles feel the president-elect is doomed to disappointment, but they are doing their best to make way for his suggestions. However, insurgent groups among both republicans and democrats are prepared to push other measures. In the forefront are the currency inflationists, constantly gathering strength. This group, counting many prominent democrats among its adherents, confidently expect serious consideration of its proposals in the extra session. Advocates of direct federal unemployment relief measures also are exerting strong pressure. Many of the senate's so-called progressive bloc who campaigned for Mr. Roosevelt will be found enlisted in the second group. In addition, there will be strong demands for labor legislation, the five-day week, unemployment insurance, and other matters. War debts may have to be considered.

Kingfish 'Regusted' After Year In Senate

WASHINGTON, (UP)— Huey Long, La., the irrepressible Kingfish, confided after exactly one year in the United States senate he would like to be elsewhere.

One year ago Wednesday, the Kingfish strode into the senate smoking a cigar, parked it on the desk of Democratic Leader Robinson and took the oath of office as senator from Louisiana.

Now, one year later, this freshman senator has his leaders worried. There is pending before the powerful rules committee an amendment to the senate's closure rules designed for no other purpose than to gag the Kingfish.

"Did you enjoy your first year here as senator?" Long was asked.

"No, I didn't," replied the Kingfish. "I'm away from my family and my friends. I'm very lonesome. The life here don't suit me."

44 Per Cent Of Taxes Paid

Practically All Larger Property Owners Have Remitted

Howard county taxpayers have paid on only about forty-four per cent of valuations, records in the tax collector's office showed.

Of approximately $14,000,000 valuations established by commissioners and unchallenged at board of equalization sessions, only about $6,100,000 have been paid on. This estimate includes anticipated monies to be received as the second half payment of those who took advantage of the half and half tax payment plan.

A check revealed that practically all of the larger taxpayers have settled with the county for 1932 taxes. People in the county have failed to respond to any noticeable degree.

Five days remain in which current taxes may be paid without incurring interest, penalty, and costs for delinquency. The anticipated rush on local tax offices has thus far failed to materialize.

Speaker Literally Wet As He Speaks For Wet Candidate

HOUSTON, (UP)—John R. C. was literally "wet" last night when he addressed a crowd in a high school auditorium in behalf of the eighth district congressional candidacy of Joe H. Eagle.

"I have been a wet all my life," said Cox, an attorney, as he stood on the stage with water dripping from his clothes.

He fell into the school swimming pool en route to the auditorium.

I'm only staying here because I am damn fool enough to believe I'm doing something for the people of my country."

He was asked what was the most important measure before the senate during his year here.

"Beating this chin and branch banking bill is the most important in the year," Long replied and then: "I'm disgusted with public life."

"Why?"

"The work is too hard," said Long. "There's little compensation for it. It's a difficult life. You have to stand such terrible knocks from special privilege whenever you try to fight the people battles."

But the Kingfish thinks the senate is worthwhile as "the only forum for free speech in America."

Son Of Oklahoma Official Is Accused In Bootleg Oil Deal

OKLAHOMA CITY, (UP)—Testimony that John McKeel, son of Highway Commissioner J. E. McKeel, made a deal to run huge quantities of "illegally produced oil from the Oklahoma City field through a 20-cent barrel arrangement" with Col. Cicero L. Murray, was given the senate oil investigating committee by W. O. Harris, Oklahoma City and Texas oil man.

Harris testified the younger McKeel took him into the city oil field and showed him wells that were running to prove he could get "protection" from military authorities.

"He told me the oil would be delivered to tanks and when we had 45,000 to 50,000 barrels ready to run, we would go out and gauge it, and phone Cicero, and he would tell them it's clear and it would be run," Harris testified.

The unexpected appearance of Harris was a sensational climax to a morning of startling testimony by Col. Murray, oil field military enforcement chief.

Cicero testified 20 or 30 men have attempted the "payoff" racket, posing as having influence with the military, and he named several who, he charged with promoting the activity. He denied giving any protection to run any oil, and declared he received no compensation in this manner.

Col. Murray offered to produce personal financial statements,

Shotgun Slugs Greet Would-Be Robbers

BRICK, Ok., (UP)—A hail of shotgun slugs was officers' welcome to four men who attempted to break into a store here.

One of the suspects was slain. Another was wounded. A third was captured. The other man escaped amid a volley of gunfire from three officers.
