Oil Refining Districts Ordered Set Up In U.S. Fate Of Natatorium Project To Be Known This Week

CITY MANAGER SPENCE GOES TO FT. WORTH TO PUT PLANS BEFORE PUBLIC WORKS MEN

Plans for a modern municipal swimming pool hanging fire for more than a year will move to realization or oblivion this week.

City Manager E. V. Spence leaves the latter part of the week for Fort Worth, where he will appear before the state advisory board of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works in an appeal for a self liquidating loan for a $30,000 natatorium to be located in the city park.

Armed with a thorough and complete 135 page brief, charts, blue prints and plans, he will apply for the loan with the understanding that it is not to be repaid by taxation. Revenues from patrons for fifteen years will be used in retiring the loan.

Of the requested $30,000, $9,000 would be a direct grant and would not be repaid. The remaining $21,000 would be retired plus four per cent interest.

Locate In City Park
The swimming pool would be located on a hill side immediately south of the present play grounds in the city park. City water now used for irrigating the park would be first utilized in the natatorium, then drained by gravity to accomplish irrigation for the park and the nine hole municipal golf course.

The pool itself would be sixty feet wide, 150 feet long and have depths ranging from three feet six inches to ten feet.

Sanitary requirements for the pool would be provided in a complete chlorinating system and sand filters.

Bathhouse In Addition
A bath house to be placed on the west end, would be constructed of native stone in the park vicinity. It would be a two story affair with bath rooms, lockers, shower and foot-baths for men and women on the lower floor. The caretaker and manager would occupy the upper floor. It would have dimensions of thirty-six feet eight inches width and seventy feet length.

Estimate Labor Costs
It is estimated that total labor costs would amount to $12,000, or almost half the cost of construction. Average number of men to be employed per month would be 600, benefitting by a monthly pay roll of $3,000. Estimates are based on a thirty hour week and a twenty day month.

Four Months To Build
Construction of the project would require four months and would start within ten days after receipt.

Manchuria and Jehol have been annexed for all practical purposes. The Russian Maritime Province alone remains Japan points to its position on the map and asserts it is a dagger pointing at her heart.

Hurried war preparations are on throughout Nippon. Armaments are being increased. Munitions manufacture is swelling. A war budget is being created. Talk of a "Japanese crisis" is general with many predicting it will burst into fiery bloom by the first of the year.

The Japs say they fear an aerial attack at any time from Vladivostok and want to wipe out the danger.

Meat between Japan and Russia over purchase of the Chinese Eastern Railroad rises daily. This road is the life artery of the Maritime Province. Once cut, both Russia and the Province would be laid out cold as it joins the Trans-Siberian at Chita.

American observers are speculating on the probability of Japanese seizure of the junction of the Maritime Province. A little shove would give the Japs control of the valuable coastal fisheries—a source of friction.

Look out for a "Chita incident," Washington is warned.

White Elephant
In these times of depression it is refreshing to run across a case where a mortgage keeps the wolf away from the old homestead door.

That is exactly the situation with the national organization of the Republican Party.

If the National Committee of the G. O. P. didn't have a deficit to pay off those now in control would be tossed out into the cold, cruel world.

Insurgent Republicans (many of whom supported Mr. Roosevelt in the last election) assembled recently to discuss plans for taking the party over.

They accused National Chairman Everett Sanders and his assistant John Cal O'Laughlin of window-dressing for Herbert Hoover, Andrew Mellon, Ogden Mills, Pat Hurley et al. In another huddle were Jim Watson of Indiana and his cohorts with the same idea. They aren't insurgents but they don't like the Hoover set-up.

Both factions remembered the deficit in time. If they took the committee over they'd have to pay it off. They suggested indirectly it would be a pious idea if Chairman Sanders raised the money from Mellon and Mills, et cetera, because the Hoover forces had spent it all.

But from this point of vantage it appears Sanders and O'Laughlin are going to keep the mortgage from frozen under the next convention if they possibly can.

Imitators
President Roosevelt's NRA experiment attracts more and more imitators.

Texas Oil Wells Under New Order For Production

AUSTIN (UP)—Texas Wednesday brought its oil wells under a new production order designed to place the state's total output within the federal allowable of 65,000 barrels daily.

The State Railroad Commission issued an order reducing total production to 957,555 barrels a day. On October 7, production from the state's 47,000 oil wells totaled 1,605,962 barrels.

The new order, based on the last proration hearing without new testimony, makes no adjustment in production among Texas fields. It brings every well within the production schedule, and requires that "cleaning out" be charged against the daily allowable of the proper well.

Woman Killed When Auto Side Wiped

EL PASO (UP)—One woman was killed and another was seriously injured when their automobile side swiped another automobile on a highway 30 miles east of El Paso.

Judge Atwell Tells San Angelo Kiwanis Club Of Russian Visit

SAN ANGELO.—"Russia is led by very brilliant, although I am not prepared to say whether they are sincere, men, who are being an interesting civilization but which is doomed to failure because it is a class rule," Judge Atwell told the members of the Kiwanis Club in his talk to the club at its regular Tuesday noon meeting in the St. Angelus Hotel.

Judge Atwell, who said that for the 25th summer he and Mrs. Atwell had gone to sea for a vacation, this time to Russia, has been in almost every country in the globe except the arctic and the antarctic. He gave a picture of Russia that will be hard for his hearers to forget.

He told of his entrance into Russia through the Baltic Sea. On a train from Finland, he said, they found as good service as one would want. The first major city was Leningrad, the city built by Peter the Great. It is now a city of two million people. Judge Atwell pictured it as a city without stores, without transportation, with nothing but crowded street cars bearing the few who had money enough to ride, back and forth through the streets of vacant buildings. There were thousands hurrying about through the gloomy, dismal streets.

With it all, he said, Leningrad was possessed of some of the finest natural beauty of any city in the world. He told of the Winter Palace, which to him was more interesting than Versailles. He stayed at a fine hotel, where you must pay your bill in some money other than Russian. The rooms were furnished with the loot of the palaces of the great. Traveling through the Russian tourist agency, Intouris, he was carried about in fine Lincoln cars, supplied with an English speaking guide and found the city amazingly interesting.

Here he saw the courts in action. At a single bureau you are registered when you are born, married, divorced and registered in death. The passport is the Russian's security of life. Upon it is written the story of his life. He saw men come into this bureau and say they wanted a divorce. They produced their passports, the divorce was recorded upon it and the wife notified by the register office that she was no longer a married woman.

In the streets he saw herds of children—usually in groups of 20 to 30—with their keeper, sometimes a man, sometimes a woman. There is no family. There is no private property. Everything belongs to the state. The workers are paid in paper money, good at state stores where inferior food and clothing is sold. At another state store called Torgsen, tourists buy for gold or foreign currencies. These stores are filled with the loot of Russia.

Red Square in Moscow is not a newly "renamed" square. It has been the Red Square for ages. Moscow is a city of four million people. Here Ivan the Terrible, the emperor who killed his own son, built a great temple. Judge Atwell said Ivan made a covenant with the Lord that if he would help him in battle he would build a cathedral after each victory. The emperor was so successful he won 11 victories in a row—built one great cathedral with 11 domes.

All the churches are not torn down, the Soviets save them, but they cover the walls with inscriptions to drive the people from religion. On a pulpit will be a placard, he said, saying "Here a priest preached who received many thousands a year. Think how many loaves of bread this would have bought."

Vick Chemical Co. Uses Newspaper To Advertise Products

GREENSBORO, N. C.—In accordance with its policy for nearly 30 years, the Vick Chemical company announced Thursday that newspapers will receive most of the heavy advertising this season for Vicks VapoRub, Vicks Nose and Throat Drops, Vicks Medicated Cough Drops and Vicks Vaseline Antiseptic.

Vicks advertising and expansion program for this season is one of the largest in the company's history—a continuation of past policies.

During the past four years Vicks has increased its advertising 150 per cent. It has increased the number of its employees 72 per cent and maintained salaries at the high 1929 levels. Throughout this period other companies were curtailing their advertising or eliminating it entirely, discharging millions of employees and slashing salaries.

Vicks has continued the aggressive merchandising that has always characterized its sales policies. In these four years, probably the most disastrous economically that America has ever known, sales of Vicks products have increased from 20,000,000 packages in 1929 to more than 32,000,000 packages this year.

Having operated throughout its history under policies similar to those embodied in the National Industrial Recovery Act, the Vick company naturally gave its wholehearted support to the NRA program as soon as it was announced. Vicks "signed up" with NRA without reservation in spirit as well as in fact, President L. Richardson declared. For many years Vicks VapoRub has surpassed in sales volume all other cold remedies. Mr. Richardson attributes much of the tremendous VapoRub sales, over 26,000,000 jars last year, to consistent newspaper advertising.

When Vicks Nose and Throat Drops, the new aid in preventing colds, and Vicks Medicated Cough Drops, medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub were introduced nationally in 1931, newspapers were selected as the principal advertising medium. The mounting sales and unqualified national acceptance of these new products in less than two years, despite highly unfavorable general business conditions, afford striking illustration of the value of newspaper advertising, Mr. Richardson believes. Again Mr. Richardson's faith in newspaper advertising was vindicated when Vicks Vaseline Antiseptic was introduced early this year with heavy advertising in 1,300 daily newspapers throughout the country. In a few months it has forged well to the front in the mouth antiseptic field. "On its own" again after three years as a unit of Drug, Inc., the Vick company is resuming its former position among the world's largest independent manufacturers of proprietaries. Dissolution of Drug,

Inc., largest holding company drug concerns in the world, voted by the stockholders at a cent meeting in Wilmington, D.

Bovines Expect To Face Heavy Team Tomorrow

Best Battle On Grid Slate

Local Gridders Show Much Improvement As Time Nears For Test

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock pig-skin fans will receive the most for their money. In the way of football games when Bristow sends his black and gold warriors against one of the classiest B teams in the state.

The Slaton boys journeying down from the Panhandle region, formerly competed with the strongest Class A teams in the sandy section. Last year the Bovines gave the Slaton lads a sound drubbing, yet from the spectators point of view it was probably the best game of the season.

Coach Paul Wright's eleven is expected to be every bit as hefty as the '32 squad, which means it will be a powerful club. The Steers have gone through intensive daily work-outs since the Pampa game and have ironed out most of the costly mistakes. The Bovine player making the most startling improvement during the past few days of practice has been Leo "Buckel" Hare, who has shown 100 per cent improvement. He gives promise of making an outstanding halfback, playing his first football game this year.

Other backfield candidates who have clinched important berths are J. D. Cagle and Clinton Jones. Bobby Mills, the flashy little defensive player may act at a wing position. The Flowers brothers, Good Graves and the big Ole Cordill are also slated for duty.

For 50 and 25 cents it's the year's best game. Don't miss it.

St. Edwards Tigers Tab Another Win From So'western

ABILENE (UP)—The St. Edwards Tigers kept their perfect standing in the Texas conference race last week end, running over Southwestern 18 to 0. Previously, the Tigers had blanked Simmons University, and are favored over Daniel Baker when the two teams clash at Brownwood Saturday.

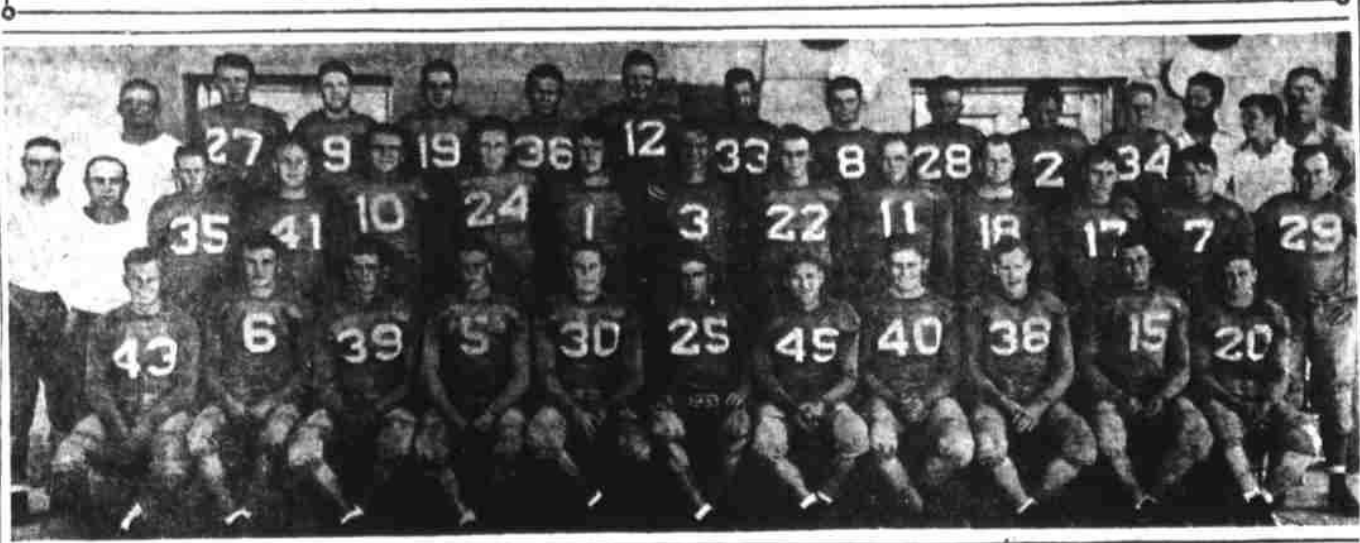

The St. Edwards-Southwestern melee was the only conference game of last week, a scheduled contest between Daniel Baker and Austin having been postponed to November 17.

Four other teams in action won two and lost two. Biggest upset of the week was Abilene Christian's 6-0 win over the North Texas State Teachers of Denton. An intercepted pass and a 50-yard run by John-

"College Athletics In General And Football In Particular No Longer Bothered By Reformers"—Bingham

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—William J. Bingham, Harvard's director of athletics, feels that if the economic situation of the last few years has accomplished nothing else, it has succeeded in ridding football in particular and college athletics in general of the reformers.

Bingham told a gathering of the Harvard club that he always had felt there had been a good deal of hypocrisy in connection with public agitation over sporting gate receipts.

Criticism Abates

"When times were good," he said, "there was widespread criticism. People wanted to know why gate receipts were necessary. Now the situation is completely altered. There no longer is any outcry at all. Instead the chief source of criticism comes from the failure of athletic budgets to balance."

"College presidents have been formally introduced to the idea of gate receipts, something they knew about before only vaguely."

"While it might not be desirable to rely entirely on receipts, the fact remains that the scope of any college's athletic program must be made to conform with the receipts from paying sports, notably football."

Harvard's athletic budget, he declared, would be balanced by the end of the present school year although "we contemplate making no retrenchments."

Would Bar Army

Thomas W. Siocum, former president of the Harvard club, surprised the gathering by suggesting that West Point be barred from competition with major eastern colleges because of the academy's failure to adopt the three-year varsity eligibility rule. Siocum thus revived an old issue that led to the famous break, now healed, between Army and Navy. He suggested that West Point be urged to adopt the three-year rule under threat that otherwise the big eastern schools would decline to maintain athletic relations with the Cadets.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
The Disarmament Crisis

was the feature of the clash. The probable line-up announced for Sunday's game is:

In his formal statement announcing Germany's withdrawal from the League and from the Disarmament Conference Chancellor Hitler said: "After the Reich's government, in consequence of the German equality vote cast on December 11, 1932, again declared itself ready to participate in the discussions of the disarmament Conference, the official representatives of the other states now have informed the Reich's Foreign Minister and our delegates in public speeches and direct declaration that this equality for the time being can no longer be conceded to the present-day Germany."

This appears to be an accurate statement of the position. Sir John Simon's account of the conclusions reached in the recent diplomatic conversations disclose that Britain, France and the United States had agreed that Germany should wait a maximum of four years, while her armaments and those of all others were internationally supervised, before France and the other heavily armed states were obligated to begin a reduction of their armaments. The period of waiting might have been reduced by negotiation. But the principle was clear: that Germany must for some years accept inferiority of armaments and submit to international inspection of her military forces.

It is against this decision that Germany has rebelled. For while the powers might have gone to considerable lengths in the negotiations to make the principle appear less unpalatable, they would undoubtedly have adhered to the essence of it.

The reason for this decision were indicated by Sir John Simon. "The present unsettled state of Europe," he said, "is a fact, and statesmen in drawing up their plans have to face facts." Chief among these facts, it is evident, are the war-like spirit of Nazi Germany and the aggressiveness of its attitude toward the countries to the east of it. The Chancellor in his radio address avowed his desire for peace and spoke in conciliatory terms toward France. He went so far as to renounce by implication the recovery of Alsace-Lorraine. But in all that he said there was no word renouncing Nazi ambitions in Austria, in Poland, in the Baltic states. It is here obviously that the danger lies, and that this danger is real has been made evident by the attacks on Austria, by the spectacular demonstrations in East Prussia, by the Nazi platform and by the Chancellor's own book.

The British and the French have both become convinced that Hitler's Reich, if it had the power, would expand to the east. It has the will, moreover, the re-education of German youth by the Nazis is clearly a moral re-education. The Nazis have taught the German youth to believe not merely that Germany was not alone guilty in 1914, a view shared by many impartial historians, but that Germany was never defeated in open battle. Germany, they are being taught to believe, was invincible until she was betrayed from the rear by pacifists, socialists, and Jews. The myth of the invincible nation combined with the notion of the supremely superior nation has

Sport-Lines

BY TOM BEASLEY

If the Steers don't prance to the satisfaction of the rail-birds Friday against the Class B Slaton aggregation, they can be consoled by the fact that the game was no measure of the Bovine's actual strength. Of course Bristow figures his boys will win, however, he is likely to put out anything extra.

Bristow figures the Bobcats are plenty bad, in fact, a five touchdown better club. But such a thing as that hasn't put any crimp in the big burly teacher's ambitions. Not by a long shot.

From what we gather, San Angelo and surrounding communities will move to Big Spring for the Steer-Bobcat tussle. That six old Cross fellow has changed his tactics this fall and is rallying the Kittens as a rather weak team. He figures they have the inside track for the district pennant.

Yes sir, San Angelo and Sweetwater are already talking about playing in the state quarter-finals etc. Their hopes have reached such a height that district battles seem to be a thing of the past. Most critics who have seen the two teams play, contend that San Angelo has the most powerful club, yet are wondering if Hennig's shrewd Mustangs won't outsmart Taylor's crew. High Scorers For Ideal Bridge Club Announced At Club Session Wednesday

Mrs. Steve Ford was the year's highest scorer for the Ideal Bridge Club, according to announcements made Wednesday afternoon at the regular club meeting. Mrs. Ford was hostess for the afternoon in place of Mrs. Biles whose husband was ill. Mrs. V. H. Flewelling was second-highest scorer.

The meeting Wednesday was the first of the new club year. Names of the highs and lows were read out, so that the lows could prepare for the entertainment of the highs at a future date.

New officers were also elected. Mrs. Buck Richardson was named chairman, Mrs. A. E. Service, secretary and Mrs. Fred Stephens reporter.

During the games, Mrs. Flewelling was highest scorer for club members and Mrs. Fahrenkamp for the guests.

Guests present were: Misses E. E. Fahrenkamp, Albert M. Fisher, Bernard Fisher, L. A. Talley, J. L. Webb, Noel T. Lawson, G. T. Hall, Victor Mellinger, Fred Keating, Vivian Nichols and G. B. Cunningham.

Members attending were: Misses Buck Richardson, Fred Stephens, L. W. Croft, W. E. Iare, V. H. Flewelling, Robert Piner, M. M. Edwards, Ebb Hatch, A. E. Service.

Mrs. Clare will be the next hostess.

Young People Of First Baptist Entertain With "Heavenly Social"

The Young People's department of the First Baptist Church entertained with a "Heavenly Social" Tuesday evening at the church. A colorful rainbow, bright flowers, and stars gave a most "heavenly" atmosphere to the parlor.

Mickey and Pat Davis entertained with songs. Joe Pickle performed a magic feat. Steve Ford, Jr., won the football kicking contest.

Angel food squares and a chocolate were served with fortune written on gaily colored ribbons that were tied to the handles of the cups.

Those present were: Patricia Davis, Dorothy and Lillian Rhoton, Freddie Sellers, Irene Barnett, Edna Cochran, Fern Blankenship, Josephine Tripp, Louise Squires, Gertrud Martin, Lillian Crawford, Mickey Davis, Billie Smith, Margie Neal, Billye Frances Grant, Hazel Brown, Letha Whitmire, Omega McGahey, Gladys Carpenter, Mamie Leach, Ruby Creighton, Gene H. Frederic March Suffers Relapse Following Flu Attack; Seriously Ill

HOLLYWOOD, (AP)—Suffering a relapse after an attack of influenza, Frederic March, stage and screen actor, was reported in a serious condition at his home Wednesday. Only a nurse and the attending physician were admitted to his room.

Florence Eldridge, stage actress, and wife of March, said her husband became ill a week ago but that it was only Tuesday that his condition became serious.

March has portrayed many leading roles in films and was the star of the talking version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" as well as the leading actor in "The Sign of the Cross."

Spooky Hallow'en Party Held At Which Four Tables Play

Mrs. E. D. Merrill entertained the Bluebonnet Bridge Club members at her home Wednesday afternoon in an atmosphere of subdued lights, pumpkin shades and spooky Hallow'en decorations.

At the end of the games the guests were asked to locate the mystery chair under which a black cat was hiding. To the one sitting in this chair, who proved to be Mrs. Nunnally, was given a kitchen memorandum set.

Mrs. McDonald made high score for club members and received a double deck of cards. Mrs. Tom Slaughter made high for guests and received a pair of hose.

At the refreshment hour, a lovely salad plate was served. Mrs. Merrill was assisted in the serving by her daughter, Mrs. Tommy Jordan, Jr.

Guests of the afternoon were: Misses Charles Koberg, J. L. Terry, B. F. Willis, R. E. Nunnally, M. E. Savage and Tom Slaughter.

Members of the club were: Misses W. A. Robinson, Sim O'Neal, E. M. La Boff, C. E. Shive, J. B. Hodges, Sr., Sam Baker, Gus Pickle, R. L. Carpenter, W. R. Ivey and W. D. McDonald.

Mrs. O'Neal will be the next hostess.

RED CROSS CARRIES ON ITS FIRST AID DESPITE ADDED RELIEF BURDENS

In spite of its increased responsibilities during the last twelve months, the American Red Cross issued a total of 66,354 First Aid certificates in the fiscal year, ending last June 30. During this period First Aid courses were completed in 743 local chapters. Latest statistics on this far-reaching Red Cross service were announced today by Wilton Morrison, chairman of the First Aid and Life Saving Service of the local chapter.

"During the trying months which have just passed," Mr. Morrison said, "the burdens of the Red Cross have been multiplied many times, but in its determination to constantly reduce accidents and their costly effects to this nation, the agency has refused to lose sight of First Aid, a particularly important safeguard in this split-second age. The Red Cross knows the benefits from such an activity will continue long after economic recovery is achieved."

"Each year nearly 100,000 lives are lost by preventable accidents, which means that the country's death toll from mishaps exceeds casualties suffered by United States troops throughout the World War. "Although," he pointed out, "this National Organization has given First Aid instructions to more than 500,000 individuals, who in turn have equipped millions of others with the knowledge of caring for victims of accidents during emergencies."

In the state of Texas last year hundreds of persons took advantage of the First Aid courses of the Red Cross. This number includes only those who completed their training, passed the tests and received their Red Cross certificates. Many more took a part of the instructions or attended demonstrations.

When it is considered that accidents are the second most important cause of death among men, the wisdom of not only maintaining, but increasing Red Cross First Aid work is undisputed. In 1931, fatal mishaps caused many deaths in Texas. In the same year the wage loss, medical expense and insurance involved in accidental deaths and injuries in the nation exceeded two and a quarter billion dollars.

Red Cross First Aid service in chapters of Texas, as well as other states, is made possible by individual support to this organization. The Annual Roll Call of the Red Cross is to be conducted this fall between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving. Every adult citizen of this community will be extended an opportunity to take out a membership during that period.

CONNALLY'S PLAN ON INFLATION MAY BE TRIED

TEXAN'S IDEA OF REVALUING DOLLAR APPEALS TO F. D. R.

By NOB JACKSON
Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—When President Franklin D. Roosevelt plays "the next and greatest trump in his new deal," and the belief here is that he will do it very soon—the chances are that it will be a card designed by Senator Tom Connally of Texas.

Direct and controlled inflation of the currency is seen as the next logical step in the president's program of economic rehabilitation. Persons close to the executive here are more and more coming to be of the opinion that he looks with favor on the Connally plan for revaluation of the dollar through reduction of its gold content. Several competent observers say that the president plans to revalue the dollar at approximately fifty per cent of its previous gold content, "peg" it at that figure, and then put the nation back on the gold standard in the terms of the inflation amendment to the farm relief bill the chief executive is vested with such powers.

For many, many months Senator Connally has been urging reduction of the gold content of the dollar. As early as January, before Roosevelt became president, Senator Connally introduced such a bill in the Senate and offered the proposal again when the seventy-third Congress met in special session last March. On several occasions last winter and spring he addressed the Senate on the subject and his most thorough speech, a scholarly and analytical discussion, was widely reprinted throughout the nation and excited considerable comment. While other law makers were prating loosely about inflation and claiming credit for the effects achieved when the government took steps in that direction, Senator Connally continued his persistent efforts that would secure for the United States a stable dollar and make impossible future eras of "cheap" or "high" money. He has repeatedly pointed out the dangers of uncontrolled inflation as well as the futility of mere credit expansion as long as the monetary system was securely anchored to a dollar that was too high.

Keen Student of Finance
Finance is no new interest of the Texas statesman. For years he has been a keen student of the subject and its related branches of tariff and taxation. He is a member of the powerful Finance Committee of the Senate and has played no small part in the drafting of legislation regarding the government's fiscal affairs. Although he believes that the Hawley-Smith tariff stiffening made and was an important factor in causing the depression, he strongly advocates adequate tariffs on agricultural products. Senator Connally worked for wool and mohair. When the Democratic Congress enacts a tariff bill Senator Connally will undoubtedly take a leading part in drafting it.

He is also a member of the Foreign Relations and Privileges and Elections committees and chairman of the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee and of the Select Committee on Campaign Expenditures. It is the latter group which will resume hearings in New Orleans in November on the Over- Finance and Foreign Relations cases. Finance and Foreign Relations are perhaps the most important committees of the Senate, and the Texas membership on them is an indication of his standing in the Senate. Widely-travelled and well-read, Senator Connally is an apt student of national and world affairs, and despite his activities in behalf of Texas, he has a national viewpoint on legislative matters. In all consideration of major proposals in the Senate he takes part, and few are the important laws enacted in recent years that in some part or another are not the work of Tom Connally. His amendment to revenue bills, in particular, have been of great importance.

Known As Orator
Senator, soldier and lawyer, Senator Connally is perhaps best known in the country at large, however, as an orator. His commanding presence, powerful and melodious voice and marvelous command of language have well fitted him for the role and in a Senate that still boasts of a large number of good speakers. Connally is generally rated as one of the best. The Democratic Party has made extensive use of his talents in this regard. In all recent presidential campaigns he has taken the stump and last fall he traveled through several of the Middle Western states, under the auspices of the Democratic National Committee, speaking scores of towns and cities on behalf of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket. He is deluged with requests to make speeches and gets many invitations to talk over the radio.

A year ago he delivered a talk on the work of Congress over a nationwide hook-up and letters of praise poured into his office here from all over the country. More recently, at the behest of the National Democratic leaders, he once more went before the microphones to speak from coast to coast on "Five Months Under the New Deal." For weeks the letters kept coming and of all, only one anonymous postcard, signed "Indiana Republican," was not complimentary. The party calls upon Connally no less in the Senate. A Roosevelt stalwart, and Vice-President Garner, most intimate friend in the Senate, it is more often than not Senator Connally who is called upon to reply to Republican attacks upon the party or its leaders. The galleries are always filled when it becomes known that Senator Connally is going to speak and their occupants are always given a treat when the Texas engages some Republican leader in debate. The former's wit is a by-word at the capital and his rapier-like thrusts have silenced many an opponent.

Friend Of Roosevelt
One of his greatest orations was given in the Senate last December when he bitterly assailed Secretary of War Hurley for moving troops from Texas border posts to the mid-west as an "economic measure." The controversy engendered thereby caused widespread comment as extracts from Connally's speech were reprinted by many papers. Texans are familiar with the Connally speech nominating John Garner for president at the Chicago convention; eastern papers published the full text of it and many people throughout the country wrote to Washington in the hope of obtaining copies of it. Senator Connally is a good friend of President Roosevelt; during the latter's campaign for the presidency Connally was invited to New York to counsel with him. Since Roosevelt took office his friendly relations with the Texas have continued. Only a day or so before he departed for Texas this summer, Senator Connally went to the White House where he conferred at great length with the president. The nature of the conference, as is customary, was not made public, but the senator did tell reporters, upon leaving the White House, that he had urged upon President Roosevelt the necessity for hurrying public works projects in the southwest. Within a few days announcement was made of award of huge sums of public works money for rivers and harbor work in Texas and for construction at Fort Sam Houston, Fort Bliss and other West Texas military establishments.

Bars Argentine Beef
Likewise, the senator carried his fight against the importation of Argentine beef directly to the White House. He had received word that a delegation was here from South America to seek removal of the ban against such meats which was put in force to curb the hoof and mouth disease. The senator has been successful in keeping out Argentine beef and mutton and he has announced that he will continue the fight vigorously.

Tom Connally was born at Hewitt, McLennan County, Texas, on August 18, 1877. He attended the public schools and the high school at Eddy, Texas, and then went to Baylor University. He received his degree from Baylor in 1896 and two years later he was graduated with a law degree from the University of Texas. He was admitted to the bar in 1898 and commenced the practice of law in Waco, but a year later moved to Marlin where he still makes his home.

He served as sergeant major in the Second Regiment, Texas Voluntary Infantry, throughout the Spanish-American War, and from 1901 to 1904 he was a member of the Texas legislature. From 1906 to 1910 the future senator was prosecuting attorney of Falls County. In 1916, he was elected to Congress as representative from the eleventh Texas district, but shortly after he took his seat on the following March 4th America entered the World War and Congressman Connally left the House of Representatives to join the colors. He served as captain and adjutant of the twenty-second infantry brigade, eleventh division.

Defeated Mayfield
Following the war, he returned to his seat in Congress and he was re-elected each two years, until 1928 when he announced his candidacy for the United States Senate. In a large field of candidates for the Democratic nomination he went into the run-off with Senator Earle B. Mayfield and he defeated Mayfield in the second primary.

When Connally returned to the House after the war, Congress proposed to give him, as well as the other members who had served in the army, their congressional pay for the period of their military service, but Connally refused to take it. The Congressional Record of March 3, 1919, shows that he addressed the House as follows: "While I do not assume to censor the conduct of any other member of this House, I am anxious for the House to know that for myself I neither desire nor will I accept compensation as a member of Congress while I was serving in the United States army. When I entered the army I was willing to accept the reduced pay provided as compensation in the army. Particularly every soldier who joined the colors received less than he did in civil life and I want no more consideration than was accorded to others in the service."

Wanted No Preference
"Members will recall that a few days ago the House adopted an amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill providing for payment of specific amounts to members who joined the army as salary while they were absent from the House. The gentleman from New York (Mr. Sanford) who prepared the amendment exhibited it to me prior to its introduction and at my request struck from the amendment the sum provided to pay my salary while I was in the military service."

"The theory upon which the war was fought by the United States and upon which our military forces were raised was that there rest upon every citizen an equality of obligation to serve in time of war and recognizing that obligation I will not claim a greater compensation than that provided for those similarly situated in the military service."

Son An Honor Student
Senator Connally is married and he and Mrs. Connally have one son Ben, who was graduated from the University of Texas law school last year. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary fraternity and he was given a scholarship to Harvard University, where he is now continuing his law studies.

Senator Connally is tall, erect and always neatly dressed. Press correspondents declare that he looks more like a senator than any other man in Congress.

Throughout the sessions of Congress he is at the capitol or his office in the Senate Office Building from 9 in the morning until 6 or later in the evening and when he finally does leave his office he inevitably carries a huge brief case of correspondence to be gone over at night. He is a regular attendant at the Senate sessions and visitors in the gallery can look down at him, busily engaged with one eye on a stack of letters upon his desk and another upon the senate proceedings, throughout the day. His correspondence is reputed to be as heavy as that of any man in Congress and he devotes a great deal of time to it. Committee meetings and the sessions of the Senate likewise consume a great many hours a week, but he finds time for many conferences and visits with Texans who come to Washington.

His favorite recreations are hunting and fishing, but occasionally when the Senate is recessed he goes to a baseball game here with Vice-President Garner or some of his Senate colleagues.

PENNEY

For 31 years the Penney organization has been proving in actual service the soundness of today's "NEW DEAL."

ONE of the very first organizations to display this symbol of the industrial "New Deal" was the J. C. Penney Company.

To qualify required no great preparation... no drastic "reorganization." For the Penney stores had been conducted on N.R.A. principles ever since the first of these stores was founded... back in 1902.

At Penney's the "New Deal" is actually thirty-one years old! For many of the fundamentals on which this national association of locally operated stores rests are strikingly similar to those of today's great governmental program.

J. C. Penney's idea was simple. Employees were to have a chance to share in ownership. Wages would provide for real living, not bare existence. Each sale would show a small profit, but there'd be many sales. Merchandise would be plainly marked, sold for just what it was. Experience would be pooled to develop operating efficiency at rock-bottom cost. Waste would not be tolerated. Commonplace phrases today... but "revolutionary" in the mercantile world of 1902!

The Penney "New Deal" worked. More and more stores were required to supply the needs of a buying public that, almost for the first time, was actually sharing in economies of operation.

Penney values simply could not be duplicated. For serving (not dominating) these stores was a skilled and experienced central buying staff that knew values and where to find them.

Today there are nearly fifteen hundred Penney stores, living proof that the principles for which the "Blue Eagle" stands are sound, that the difficulties can be overcome, that cooperation will make such a plan win out.

That's why the J. C. Penney organization believes in the "New Deal." It has seen it at work for 31 years!

For The Love of Eve by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER XXXIX

All day Sunday Eve stayed in the apartment. She felt tired and spent after the nerve-racking experiences of the night before. There was no doubt in her mind that Mona Allen was responsible for what had happened. Mona whose invitation to Eve to take dinner with her had seemed so friendly. Mona had been ingenious, as usual but no one could doubt that Theron Reece's appearance the minute Eve was alone had not been carefully planned.

At first angrily, Eve tried to think how she could make the other girl pay for her tricks. It was time for Mona to learn that there could play the same game, Eve told herself. Her slippers had been ruined by the rough roads and her dress was torn. Certainly Mona should be made to pay.

Gradually, however, Eve came to consider the matter more calmly. By Monday morning she had decided that it would be best to ignore the whole affair. No doubt Mona had an alibi well rehearsed and would be only too glad to resign it, her blue eyes open and looking completely innocent as she did so.

"I'm not going to be put on the defensive for an attack she made on me," Eve told Arlene, after relating all that had happened Saturday night.

But it was Mona herself who brought up the subject. She entered the office, removed her hat and a moment later was beside Eve's desk. "Whatever became of you Saturday night?" she demanded.

"I was so worried! The boy friend and I met a man he knew who invited us to have a drink. We were in a booth at the opposite end of the room and when we came back Reece told us you had gone. In a way I don't blame you. That place is an awful frost. I'd never had gone there if I'd known what it was like!"

"I want home," Eve told her, and that was the last word she said on the subject. Never again, Eve was resolved, would Mona have an opportunity to place her in an awkward position. Hereafter she would show the other girl the civilities their office work required and nothing more.

But such resolutions were easier made than kept. In the days that followed Eve was constantly facing pretty annoyances—small matters that became increasingly irritating because apparently there was no explanation for them. Objects would be missing from Eve's desk—her fountain pen, the vanity case she kept in a desk drawer, leaves from her calendar pad on which she had jotted memoranda, or bits of copy not seen by Mr. Barnes. The things which disappeared were always objects the lack of which would cause inconvenience to Eve herself but were too trivial to come to the attention of the advertising manager. Eve, of course, blamed Mona Allen. She concluded that the other girl was working her mischief with greater care.

"What would you do?" one day Eve asked Arlene.

"I'd go to Barnes about it," Arlene advised.

"Oh, I couldn't! He wouldn't like it and he'd only think me crazy."

"I don't see why! You're merely protecting yourself—asserting your rights. Do you think for one minute that a man would let another man get away with what Mona's doing? Of course he wouldn't! I don't like busybody. No one does. But there's a difference between being meddling and standing up for yourself!"

As it happened Eve did not find it necessary to complain to Barnes about Mona. Two days later Arlene returned unexpectedly to the office for something she had forgotten when leaving to go to lunch and found Mona going through the drawers of her desk. The situation was too much even for one of Mona's impudence to carry off with nonchalance.

"I—I was just—" she began with a nervous laugh.

"Yes, I see," Arlene said. "You were just going through my desk, weren't you? Now listen, I understand your racket and the next time anything is mislaid in this office I'm going straight to Earle Barnes and tell him who's responsible."

"I was only looking for—some copy paper," Mona tried to defend herself.

"What's wrong with that stack of copy paper over there in the usual place?"

"Oh! There is some, isn't there? I didn't see any this morning. Charles must have brought down a new supply."

"There was plenty there this morning. He brought it down yesterday."

lens seemed to be.

"Let's celebrate tonight," proposed Arlene. "We haven't eaten at that new Italian restaurant on Twelfth street yet. I've heard that the food is cheap and very good. I could get real chummy with a plate of spaghetti. We could see the early show at the Palace afterwards."

"I'd love to," agreed Eve. "I haven't been to a movie since Dick left. It's fun to go alone. But what about Sam? I thought he monopolized all your time these days."

"He's giving a talk before the City club tonight," said Arlene with evident pride. "Sam's smart. He could go a long way if he really wanted to."

"Of course he's smart. And of course he could go a long way. Can't you make him want to, Arlene?"

"Sometimes I think I could. Oh, I don't know what I want, Eve. I liked George Elias, you know. A lot, I guess. But I had sense enough to see that he didn't care. I've seen too many girls waste years on a man who wasn't interested. Sam's been grand to me. He thinks of things to do for me almost before I've wished for them. No matter what happened, Sam would stand by. After all, that means something to a woman."

"It means everything," admitted Eve. "Dick's like that, too."

November came. Gray November nights. Sometimes Eve ate dinner down town, dreading to go home to the lonely apartment. Sometimes she stopped at the delicatessen shop for sandwiches and cookies to carry home with her. These, with a cup of hot chocolate, would serve for a meal. After dinner she would curl up in Dick's favorite chair and read—or try to read. The words didn't always make sense, with the November rain beating dourly against the window. Dick's work kept him out in all kinds of weather. Eve worried for fear he might become ill and no one would let her know. Suppose he would not want her to know! After all, Dick had seemed willing enough to go away and leave her. Perhaps he had not wished her to go with him. What, after all, did she know of Dick's real thoughts? And what about those mysterious Tuesday night absences which he had never explained?

Sometimes Eve wrote long letters to her husband, telling of her doubts and loneliness, but these were always destroyed next morning. Pride would not let her send them.

She was finding it more difficult than she had dreamed it could be to save the money she owed her mother and her sister. She worried about this, about Dick, about Theron Reece. And another thing that caused her to worry was Dorothy McElhinney's little smile of satisfaction whenever the two met. It was as though the young teacher knew something about Dick and his plans that Eve did not know. The thought was almost unbearable.

Midland Makes Plans For Big Pony Show

MIDLAND—Plans are being made for a pony show to be held at Midland at some date during the Arlington Downs races. R. C. Hankins, city editor of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, manager of the pony show, says he will stage the exhibit during the Arlington races while people are thinking of thoroughbred horses. Money—And Where It Comes From

By WADDIE CATCHINGS

Whatever one may think about inflation there are some fundamental facts that cannot be overlooked in any intelligent discussion of the subject.

First, it is well established that in the United States the amount of currency in circulation is determined not by the amount of currency in existence but by the habits of the people and the needs of trade. Accordingly there can be no material increase of currency in circulation except for purposes of hoarding. And of course money in hoarding does not constitute inflation in any definition of the word which involves raising prices.

Therefore, except for hoarding, all new Greenbacks, however huge the amount printed and paid out, will be promptly deposited in banks. We are accustomed to make most of our payments by checks, and the mere printing of more paper money will not cause us to abandon this well established habit. Even where the Greenbacks are received first by those who have no bank accounts or whose banks are closed, Greenbacks inevitably soon pass into the hands of some one who deposits them in a bank.

The second point is that once the new paper money is deposited in a bank it becomes part of the existing bank deposits of the country, differing in no way from those already there. We now have huge amounts of idle bank deposits. And of course increased idle bank deposits do not constitute inflation in any definition of the word which involves raising prices.

The third and most important of all is that using a newly printed dollar bill is no different in its effect on inflation than drawing a check on a newly created bank deposit. If the United States Government printed and used the three billion Greenbacks authorized under the Thomas Bill there would be not an iota of difference in this respect between that and borrowing.

monies are running third and fourth with 12 and 11 points, respectively. Six St. Edward's touchdowns have been registered by as many players.

PECOS—Flushed by victory, 20 to 6, in their opening conference game against the Marfa Shorthorns the Pecos Eagles take on their second conference foe in as many weeks when they meet the Fort Stockton Panthers next Friday at Fort Stockton. Pecos was victorious over Fort Stockton last year but only after a grueling struggle.

PECOS—An invitation tennis tournament, to be participated in by the towns of Wink, Pecos, Barstow and Fort Stockton will be held in this city Sunday. Each town is to enter a player or team in each event.

Truett Little Holds Second In Scoring

ARLENE—Truett Little, Howard Payne fullback, reached second place in the slow moving touchdown race of the Texas conference last week. Little, who plunged for the tally that defeated College of Mines 6 to 0, has a point total of 14. He is headed only by Bill Maxwell of A. C. C. with 18 points, all made in September. With this Arlene tumbled things back into the desk drawer and locked them. Mona forced an amused smile, retreated to her desk and began to type with the appearance of great industry. Arlene hastened out to join Eve at a belated luncheon.

Eve shared her elation over the proof of Mona's treachery. "You'll not be annoyed by her again!" Arlene promised. Eve wished she could be as certain of this as Ar-tion of the first portion of the loan. A schedule showing when funds would be needed and amount shows $6,000 per month except the second month, when $12,000 would be needed.

Rates would be twenty-five cents per adult and fifteen cents per child under 15 years of age. Adult season tickets would go at $12.50 and children's season cards at $5.00. Suits would cost twenty-five cents each time rented and heavy towels five cents.

Means To Repay

Specifically stated in the brief is the means by which the city will consider to repay the loan. Quoting the brief as authorized by the city commission: The proposed securities are what are generally known as revenue bonds and are secured by pledge of the net revenues from the project and also by a mortgage or deed of trust upon the swimming pool properties and five acres upon which it will be situated. The issuance of the proposed obligations will not constitute the incurring of a debt by the City of Big Spring within any state, constitutional or statutory provision or limitation.

Annual Revenue Lis'ed

Estimated gross revenues with operating expense deducted would leave an estimated net revenue of $2,587.50 annually which would be applied on the debt. Over a period of fifteen years this would leave a net surplus over principal and interest of $10,672.50, to be held as a margin of safety.

To Aid Unemployment

Calling attention to the fact that there is an "unusually large number of unemployed within the city with families dependent upon their support and in need of relief in the way of employment," the project is urged as a means of extending employment during winter months.

No Convict Labor

No convict labor, in accordance with the brief could be used. No one, except in advisory, supervisory or administrative capacities, would be worked more than thirty hours per week so far as practicable. Preference would be given, where they are qualified, to ex-service men with dependents.

In presenting the brief, Big Spring is repeatedly mentioned as a substantial town with five sources of income, being situated on two national military highways. Figures to show a phenomenal population gain since the 1920 census are given and other figures added to show that there has been no great fluctuation of late.

The possibility that people of Big Spring and adjacent territory would generously and enthusiastically patronize a municipal swimming pool is evidenced in the great number of letters favoring the project.

Communications favoring the natatorium were received from doctors, superintendents of two refectories, head of the chamber of commerce and a committee from the board of the same organization, from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, superintendent of three prominent oil companies, three service clubs, Association of Mechanical Department Employees, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, county relief committee, Railway Conductors, vice-president Buffalo Trail Boy Scout council, chairman life saving county Red Cross chapter and Parent-Teachers' association.

If the public works division sanctions the loan, Big Spring's visions of grassy terraces on a rustic hillside, may merge into something real. A modern, spacious soft water bathing pool would be ready for use next year.

attention abroad. Legislation has been introduced in the French Chamber of Deputies embodying many of the principles of our Recovery Administration.

Sir Robert Horns, former Chancellor of the British Exchequer, accompanied by labor experts, is due in this country to study the economic venture at first-hand.

McGrady's threat to push through arbitrary Federal restriction of shipping, or disputes if the unions don't believe is not taken seriously in Washington.

McGrady meant disputes involving work on government projects but if carried out the idea would be only a hop, skip and jump from Federal domination of organized labor. Plenty legislation would be required.

With the American Federation of Labor star climbing high in the heavens it would take a brave member of Congress such legislation. It would take a braver man to predict it would pass. The labor vote will be treated with vastly increased respect in next year's bi-elections.

Wines— Americans soon will drink their French wines out of ingeniously sheltered bottles. The first sample shipments arriving here disclose that each bottle is protected by elaborate wire nets, double seals and not.

The French are afraid that with all the high import duties and taxes old Mr. Bootlegger may specialize in the bottling racket. After the neat imitations which have been palmed off on the American public during the lifetime of the "noble experiment" can more safeguards deter our enterprising boys?

Notes— That masterful compilation issued at the insistence of Senator McKellar of Tenn., "positions not under civil service," lists all of the 150,000 patronage jobs. The Indian Service is credited with a financial clerk and a physician in New York City. Presumably to take care of the fast-disappearing Tammany Braves.

This column once intimated that John T. Flynn, New York financial writer, authored "The Mirrors of Wall Street." Relatedly we report Flynn had nothing to do with the book, and Florida and California, notorious rivals in the matter of climate and everything else, were still at it during the recent American Legion convention. Miami got next year's convention but not before a group of California supporters had moved the 4th floor placard directing members of the convention committee to the proper room and then started a committee meeting of their own.

NEW YORK

By James McTullin

Securities— New Yorkers back from Washington are pulling a Jeremiah to their colleagues about prospects for amending the Securities Act. They did their best to sow the seed in the right places about the damage done to the capital market and recovery. They got the ears of administration circles but Congressional ears were something else. There the dope was that the Act might be amended all right, but not in the hoped-for direction.

They got no sympathy from the Federal Trade Commission either. The Commission insisted they were seeing ghosts and ridiculed the idea of unjust persecution. Commissioners pointed out that American directors of English corporations have not felt it necessary to resign because of the English companies act. This was a sad blow because they expected to convert the commission.

Maturities—

What's causing all the hand-wringing just now is the statistical discovery that there are almost 2,000 security issues aggregating $1,200,000,000 coming due in the next fifteen months. The government's disgusting position seems to be that if Wall Street hasn't the courage to fulfill its normal functions because of the Securities Act new channels will have to be created by the government itself.

Expansion—

The best inside estimates indicate that the next few months will see the fruition of Administration plans to promote purchasing power. The best obtainable figure on deposits to be released in closed banks is three and one-half billion dollars. At the same time the government itself will be spending money at the rate of about $400,000,000 a month. The prediction is made with authority that $1,000,000,000 will have been put out on the public works program within six months.

Repayment—

The repayment of $610,000,000 in RFC loans by banks and trust companies appears good business on the surface. But local experts say this has actually retarded recovery and criticize the RFC for being so keen on repayment. They claim the adjustment has only been possible by the liquidation of investments with a depressing effect on market prices, or by calling and refusing to extend loans at the very time the government urged the banks to bigger and better lending.

Potatoes—

There's a man from Maine who sees red whenever the banks say they have plenty of money to lend on sound collateral. He has a $200,000 potato crop and has been all over New York and New England trying to borrow $50,000 against it to hire the labor to dig it up. The best he could get was an offer to lend the money after the potatoes were warehoused, which is offering a drowning man a piece of lead. Such loans are accepted as normal business in good times.

Gesture—

Some of the New York bankers are nervous about having crossed the government on its RFC capital plan. Sentiment is growing in favor of a new declaration of policy showing the banks as really behind the government's idea of speeding up credit machinery. A few banks are considering liberalizing their loan policies toward smaller customers in the hope of reestablishing friendly relations with Washington. Chicago seems to them to have stolen the play.

But the majority are still standing pat for the highest degree of liquidity possible.

Salaries—

What have the salaries of Hollywood movie stars to do with the harassed executives of eastern industrial corporations? You'd be surprised.

The President's intimation that perhaps some of the film favorites are overpaid has stirred tremors among top-flight companies. They want to know why the government has to horn in on such personal matters. If the government does get around to investigating corporate salaries it will find some paradoxes. There appears no connection between merit and pay. Officers of companies in the red for three years are drawing more than officers of successful concerns in the same industries.

Defrosting—

What New York wants to know about defrosting closed banks is whether depositors who are also borrowers will be paid off in full or whether their loans will act as an offset against what they receive. That will make a difference in what the government gets back.

There are no signs of an offset policy. Precedent is against it in farmers' seed loans. In that case the taxpayer will ultimately hold the bag for people who incurred debt as insurance against bank failures.

LIONS HEAR—

An opportunity to reform be paroled to some person. He advocated abolition of archaic laws and technicalities in the law. A state court system modeled after the federal court procedure was held up as a desirable end by Judge Brooks.

Texas has 200 murders per 1,000, 900 people per year, he declared, and Florida has 20, Italy 95 and other countries correspondingly lower figures, he quoted. Canada, just across the northern border, has an amazingly low rate of crime compared to the United States, he proved by use of statistics.

Reason for this, he ascribed to speedy and certain justice. "If a man commits a crime in Canada," said the judge, "he is tried quickly and the case disposed of within ninety days. In our state courts the cases drag for two and some time as long as five years with the criminally often ultimately going free."

He cited the federal government's activity in meeting out swift justice to the Lynch kidnapers as an example of criminal prosecution. "If it has been shown that it can be done," he asked, "then why can't the state do it as well as the federal government?"

An appointive judiciary based upon qualifications and to serve during good behavior for life, empowering judges to conduct common sense hearings and allowing judges to fearlessly charge juries according to their own conscience, knowledge and all evidence in the case would, he thought, greatly reduce farcical trials.

"Lawyers have long known the evils connected with criminal court procedure," stated Brooks, "yet they have done nothing about it. If the situation is remedied, the move will have to come from the citizenry."

Enforcement and adherence to the law will be reflected in a law abiding generation to come, declared the speaker.

"If we do not enforce our laws," he asserted, "as a nation we are bound for the rocks."

"Race kidnaping (particularly that of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.) horrified our own nation and held us up before the world as a criminally inclined people."

As a practical means of building up respect among children, the judge recalled that the best way to teach a child is by example. Legal reform must follow on the heels of moral reform and find his sound teachings to be illusions.

ably. It was indicated strongly here that Germany was willing to negotiate whenever the opportunity arose.

League circles hoped the European powers would make some constructive move before the German general election and plebiscite on the double withdrawal November 12—perhaps by the time the adjourned disarmament conference reconvenes October 26.

There were signs that if the powers agreed first to shorten the initial period of the disarmament plan during which present armaments would be maintained for the duration of a test system of international supervision of armaments, and secondly to grant Germany "samples" of such forbidden armaments as tanks, airplanes, and heavy guns, Germany might feel justified in returning.

Jim Davis Heads A.M. Ex-Students Club In Big Spring

A group of twenty former students of A. and M. College met Wednesday night at the Settles Hotel and organized the Big Spring A. and M. Ex-Students Club. The following officers were elected: James A. Davis, president; Edmund Notestine, vice-president; and Herbert Whitney, secretary. C. J. Mitchell and Burke Summers were appointed to provide the entertainment for the next meeting, the date to be announced later. More than 40 A. and M. ex-students are located in Big Spring and vicinity, and those not present Wednesday night are urged to get in touch with one of the club's officers and also watch for announcement of the next meeting.

Big Spring People Attend Christian Revival At Midland

MIDLAND—Another large audience assembled Tuesday night for the revival at the First Christian church. A delegation of 25 came from Big Spring, among them, the pastor, The Rev. S. J. Shetlerworth and his wife, Mr. Potter and C. M. Shaw and daughter, Claudine, from that city were heard in two special musical numbers.

Evangelist Cole spoke on "The Winning Church," naming as elements of the winning church the following: steadfastness in fellowship; steadfastness in communion; steadfastness in prayer. He said with this steadfastness the church today, as the church in early days, must win both with God and man. Many illustrations and examples were used to support these propositions.

Mrs. Cole sang "Let Me Die Like a Christian." A Midland male quartet is dated to sing in a service this week, probably tonight.

Odezza promises a good delegation for the service Thursday night. A nursery has been opened at the church, and mothers are asked to bring children and leave them in care of the nursery committee each night during the service. The evangelist will preach tonight on "Why I Believe in Christ." Mrs. Cole will sing.

CATTLE TRADING IS PICKING UP

Trading in cattle is on the pickup over the country. Roy Parks of Midland has sold to Tom G. Hendricks of Odessa and Abilene 800 mixed yearlings at $27.50. They are being branded now. Mr. Hendricks will ship the steers and to his ranch in Shackelford county and will keep the heifers on his Ector county ranch. The calves were creep fed and will weigh about 625 pounds.

The average on the Marfa auction of steer calves last Saturday was 6.12 cents a pound with freight paid to the destination in the contract. On the basis of that sale W. R. Mitchell of Marfa says steer calves in that country should bring 5 1/2 cents; heifer calves and steer yearlings 4 1/2 cents a pound. 595 West Oliver Road. The C. Ranch of Midland has sold 600 steer calves to Tom Good, Big Spring ranchman, who operates in Borden county, delivery November 15.

Bullets Rake Cell Of Dale Crowley

JONESBORO, Ark. (UP)—Six or eight shots were fired late Tuesday night into the cell of Rev. Dale Crowley, pastor of Jonesboro Baptist tabernacle held in jail on a murder charge.

County authorities said the bullets came from an alley behind the jail end apparently from an automatic pistol.

Rev. Crowley, awaiting a grand jury action in the slaying of J. W. McMurdo, tabernacle janitor, in Jonesboro's prolonged church war, was asleep on a cell cot. None of the bullets struck him. Tom Stewart, who lives near the jail, told police he saw flames spurt from the nose of the gun, but he was unable to recognize the man who fired. He said several men were in the alley.

Roark Again Goes On Trial For Killing

DALLAS (UP)—Testimony in the second trial of Noah Roark, Dallas attorney charged with murder in connection with the slaying of Justin Stein last February 10, began in Judge Grover Adams' criminal district court Wednesday. M. C. Brisbane, Dallas, was the 12th man selected for jury duty. Two others were chosen Wednesday, four Tuesday and five Monday, the first day of the trial. Roark pleaded not guilty. Stein was a building manager. He was shot following a quarrel, allegedly caused by forcing Roark to vacate an office suite. The first case in April resulted in a mistrial when the jury disagreed.

Discovery Of Skeleton Solves Mystery Of Junk Dealer's Disappearance

DALLAS (UP)—Discovery of a skeleton in a Kaufman county pasture was believed by officers here to solve the mystery of a Dallas junk dealer's disappearance last June 30.

Henry Duty, 50, was reported missing after he left his shop in a truck with a negro, ostensibly to go to Tyler. His acquaintances have not seen him since.

Negro laborers found a man's skeleton near Wilson school house in Kaufman county Monday, Dallas officers learned. Medical examiners estimated the man had been dead about three months. It appeared a bullet from a .38-caliber pistol had been fired into the skull.

Identification of the skeleton as Duty's was made practically complete, officers said, through papers found near the disarranged bones.

ROMANCE

YOU often hear people refer regretfully to the "dear old days of romance"—to the time when the knight-errant roamed the earth to do honor to his lady's eyes.

These folks complain that we are living in an age of realism! An age of realism? Why, this is the most romantic of all ages!

An age where the human voice is hurled across the world without wires; where the temperature of Mars is taken more than thirty millions of miles away; where tons of steel carrying precious human lives ride easily and safely through the air or under the sea!

The advertising columns of this paper are full of this modern romance—stories of things produced by men who have devoted their lives to bringing new comforts, conveniences and pleasures to mankind.

Advertisements tell of these achievements not with the exaggeration of a jongleur, but with calm, simple words of sincerity. Here is a firm that has spent a million dollars to develop a product that makes your baby more comfortable. Here is a company that has labored fifty years to cut a single hour of toil from your day's work. Here is a man who has searched the Seven Seas to produce a new flavor for your dinner.

Romance? This age is full of it! Read the advertisements. They tell you what the magicians of industry are doing for you.

Walter Nelson Heads League

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 18.—Walter Nelson, Mayor of Wichita Falls, Wednesday was president of a League of Texas Municipalities and Austin was the new state headquarters for the organization.

The league closed its three-day convention Wednesday after deciding to move its headquarters from Houston, where it has been maintained for the past eight years, to the state capital. The move was made in order that a research bureau might be established in connection with the University of Texas.

The league heretofore will have a regional president for each of the state's 31 senatorial districts and will put a representative in the field to explain NRA loans to cities within two weeks.

The new president succeeded Frank Norris, mayor of Gainesville. Harvey W. Draper was re-elected secretary of the league.

FLOYD'S FRIENDS SEEK TRADE WITH GOVERNOR MURRAY

OKLAHOMA CITY, (UP)—Gov. W. H. Murray Wednesday announced a "war to the finish" for Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, notorious phantom bandit, and said he had recently spurned advances by Floyd's friends seeking to arrange a trade of life sentence in return for surrender.

"The $100 reward posted by the state is still up for Floyd," Governor Murray declared. "His friends have recently approached me with a proposition that I guarantee he will not get the electric chair, and he will surrender."

"I told them nothing doing, that we'd get him anyway some of these days. I wouldn't guarantee him anything."

Governor Murray said he had positive knowledge Floyd was shot twice by crime bureau officials recently in a machine gun battle at Coalgate, Coal county.

This information, the Governor hinted, came from parties with whom Floyd stayed after the battle.

He was shot through the right shoulder and once through the right leg, Governor Murray said. The desperado had recently been seen in California, and waving his hand toward the east part of the state, declared, "he's right over here in the hills. We know that."

"That California report is one put out by some friend of his to trick officers back here, to make them believe they have lost track of Floyd. Well, we know better."

O. P. Ray, assistant superintendent of the state crime bureau, said in a recent raid on one of Floyd's hideouts, officers barely missed striking the gunman, who had fled a short time before.

Mrs. Joiner, Stanton Pioneer, Laid To Rest

STANTON—Mrs. J. R. Joiner, 76, died at her home here Monday night. She had been in poor health for several years.

She had been a resident of Martin county for the past 30 years. Services were under the auspices of the Methodist church. The Rev. Vaughn officiating. Interment was made in the Stanton cemetery Tuesday afternoon.

She is survived by her husband, one son, J. R. Jr., and three daughters, Mrs. Weaver of Oklahoma, Mrs. Clarence Cook of Colorado, Tex., and Miss Ida Joiner of Stanton.

Slain Pastor's Case Still Open

LEESVILLE, LA., (UP)—Sheriff E. L. Edwards said Wednesday he hoped to keep open as long as possible the investigation into the death of Rev. E. L. Thompson, found in an automobile near Pleasant Hill Monday with a revolver clutched in his hand.

Edwards firmly refused, however, to comment upon a theory that the pastor was slain to prevent him from making revelations that would involve high political figures in a scandalous affair.

Thompson, whose funeral was held yesterday, faced federal charges of sending objectionable weeks were added to the life of the world's fair when Maj. Lenox R.
