Congressman Reviews New Farm Bill

New Bill Very Similar To Current Farm Bill

U. S. Representative Larry Combest (R-Texas), a member of the House Committee on Agriculture, expects the 1990 Farm Bill will face a tough and heated debate when the entire House of Representatives votes on the legislation this summer.

"It is more a process of educating members of Congress who represent urban areas," said Combest. "Some members of Congress do not understand the perils involved in raising crops nor the uncertainties of demand that affect the price of those commodities at the time of harvest. Consequently, their only solution is to abolish all farm programs and policies, thereby eliminating the family farmer."

"From farm to market, there is a long process of planting to checkout stand that supermarket shoppers do not see," said Combest. "Americans have come to enjoy the selection and quality of a food supply at a reasonable cost that amounts to less than 10-and-a-half percent of their spending dollar. Farm programs make this possible, and this year less than one penny out of every federal budget dollar will go toward farm supports," said Combest. After months of hearings and legislative meetings, the Agriculture Committee finally completed work on H.R. 3950, "The Food and Agricultural Resources Act of 1990." The massive bill, which directs the nation's five year farm policy, is expected to reach the House floor as early as the week of July 9.

"My colleagues and I on the Agriculture Committee have worked to draft a five year farm bill that is within budget and that allows our farmers an opportunity to compete freely and fairly in the marketplace," said Combest. "Our producers deserve a fair shake from this bill."

He added, "In general, the farm bill freezes support levels for program crops including cotton, wheat, corn and rice for five years. The legislation also provides a marketing loan for soybeans and other oilseed crops."

Combest acknowledged that much of the discussion over the farm bill has been driven by concerns over the budget. "Given our budget crisis, the Committee and Congress will be forced into counting every dollar; however, we in the Committee have done our part and we cannot attempt to balance the budget on the backs of farmers. We must support programs that help provide Americans with the cheapest Cont. Page 6, Col. 3

WHEAT HARVEST WELL UNDERWAY-The extremely dry, hot weather has provided wheat producers the opportunity to get their crops out of the field and to the elevators. Wheat harvest is well underway at this time, although the harvest is expected to be lower than normal because of weather extremes. Here, a truck is shown loading out at a local elevator, as trucks unload, then other trucks load out the crop. (Journal Photo)

Hot Temperature Lingerin; Safety Precautions Outlined

For nearly all the month of June, heat records have been broken all over the area, with the temperatures ranging from the high 90's to above 100 degrees each day.

In Muleshoe, for more than a week, the unofficial temperature ranged from 101-107 each day, with night time temperature staying in the 70's.

Also during June, no more than a "Trace" of moisture has been received, and weather officials said a very tight 'dome' or 'lid' has been stationary over the area, forcing the extreme heat downward to the ground, and keeping moisture away from the area.

As the relentless heat has held it's grip on the area, water consumption has risen, along with electrical consumption as residents have attempted to stay cool, and to keep their lawns and flowers, as well as vegetable gardens from dying from lack of moisture.

The first relief from the sizzling temperature was noted Thursday night and early Friday morning, when a cool front cooled temperatures to the low 60's for Friday morning.

In the meantime, with no moisture in sight, according to the National Weather Service, and the hot temperature continuing, precautions have been issued for those who may be the most affected by the very hot temperatures.

Those who may be most affected include the elderly and persons who work outdoors.

Dangers that are lurking for those people are heat exhaustion or heat stroke, which could cause death.

Another thing to watch out for are small children, or babies, left in cars while a parent runs into a store for something.

Doctors warn that it only takes about 10 minutes for a baby's brain to 'fry' in temperatures that are ranging above 100 degrees.

Muleshoe Mayor Is Re-Appointed To Review Board

Governor Bill Clements has announced his selections to 24 regional committees set up to review applications for federal block grants.

These grants are used to finance public facilities and to provide housing assistance.

"These review committees are vital because they allow an element of local control to the federal budget process," Governor Clements said.

For the South Plains Division, re-appointed to serve through January 1, 1991 was Darrell Turner Mayor of Muleshoe.

Recommendations from the regional committees ultimately will be forwarded to the State Community Development Review Committee.

That panel, in turn, submits the funding recommendations to the Texas Department of Commerce. The governor has final approval of all federal grants awarded under the program.

For the elderly, it is usually a lack of drinking enough water, or don't use enough air conditioning. The elderly are said to ignore the heat, sometimes to the point that it becomes very dangerous to them.

Mixed Drink Tax Rebates Sent To City, County

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has sent checks totaling $11.5 million to 218 counties and 439 cities that tax mixed drink sales.

The checks represent the counties' and cities' share of the state's 12 percent mixed drink tax collected during January, February and March of 1990.

Under state law allowing the sale of mixed drinks, Texas cities and counties each receive a 12.5 percent share of the state tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries.

For the quarter, Bailey County received a check in the amount of $757.61 on reported taxes of $6,060.84. Muleshoe received an identical $757.61 check on taxes of $6,060.84.

Cochran County received a check in the amount of $59.49 on reported taxes of $475.91.

Lamb County's check was $657.20 on reported taxes of $5,257.58, while the City of Littlefield received $308.73 on reported taxes of $2,469.85.

Parmer County reported taxes of $346.59, and received a check for $43.32.

Bullock said that the state collected $47.6 million in mixed drink taxes during the first three months of 1990, compared to $44.9 million collected during the same months of 1989.

Of the $47.6 million in state collections, counties received more than $5.9 million compared to the $5.6 million received during the same three-month period of 1989. Cities received $5.5 million, up from the $5.2 million received last year during those months. The state's general revenue fund received the balance.

People Encouraged To Cap Abandoned Wells

The exact number of water wells drilled on the Texas High Plains since large-scale irrigation began in the late 1930's is unknown. However, more than 46,000 permits have been issued by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 since its creation in 1951. Many of the wells drilled prior to the District's creation and some drilled since then have been abandoned, the pump removed and the opening at the top of the casing left uncovered. Without a proper covering at the land surface, contaminants can enter these "open holes" and alter the quality of groundwater stored in the Ogallala Aquifer.

Water District rules define an open uncovered well as any artificial excavation drilled or dug for the purpose of exploring for or producing water from the underground water reservoir, not capped or covered as required by District rules.

"An open hole can provide a direct route for pollution to enter the Ogallala Aquifer," says Engineer Technician Obbie Goolsby, who has been in charge of the Water District's abandoned well program since 1971.

For example, if an airplane, tractor boom or other chemical application system passes over or near an open well, the chemical can enter the hole leading straight to the aquifer. Also, rainfall runoff can carry chemical residues off fields and into open holes without cement pump base.

However, the potential use of open, abandoned wells as chemical disposal sites poses a greater risk of groundwater contamination as compared to overspraying or the accidental introduction of small amounts of chemicals into the aquifer at the well site.

"If you have an open hole on your land and someone disposes of old chemicals in the hole, the chemical goes directly to the aquifer. Once the aquifer is polluted, it is difficult—sometimes impossible—to clean up," notes Goolsby.

Proper covering of abandoned wells is equally important to prevent people and/or animals from falling into the well and becoming trapped.

"Open wells are death traps. The most dangerous open holes are those without pump bases and casings. Small animals or even people could easily fall in these gaping holes. People need to understand how dangerous these open holes are," he says.

Landowners and operators are reminded that Water District rules and Texas law require open wells to be properly covered at all times, including instances when the pump is temporarily removed for repair. Goolsby notes that a cap should be installed in the well until the pump is returned to the hole.

The well cap must be solid and capable of supporting a minimum of 400 pounds. The cap should either be permanently attached to the casing or have a permanently attached weighted pipe extending at least three feet into the well casing. The weighted pipe diameter should be no more than two inches smaller than the well casing diameter. The surface cap should be wide enough to assure that the well opening will remain covered if the cap is moved from side to side.

Although many producers have taken the incentive to cap open, abandoned wells on their property, Goolsby says open holes are still being found. More than 1,200 abandoned wells have been located and properly capped or covered since the District was created in 1951.

Persons are encouraged to report the location of any open, abandoned well to the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, Texas 79405. The District's telephone number is (806) 762-0181.

Information on "kitchen gadgets" and the "ins and outs" of Public Relation/advertising agencies will be the featured topics on "Creative Living" on Tuesday, June 26 at 12 noon and Saturday, June 30 at 2 p.m. (All times are Mountain.)

Mary Ellen Payne is an Extension Home Economist in Clayton, N.M. She will show an array of items, from a salad spinner, to a green bean slicer, to a garlic machine.

Diane Creston is head of her own successful public relations and advertising agency in New York city. Ms. Creston will tell the "ins and outs" of what goes on in a typical PR/ad agency. Logical!

The little old lady pulled the string on the right leg and the parrot said, "Happy birthday." Then she pulled the string on the left leg and the parrot said "Pleased to meet you."

"I wonder what would happen if I pulled both strings at once," she said. "I'd fall off my perch, you stupid idiot," said the parrot.

Library News

by Anne Camp

The library's "Artist of the Month" for June is Elsie McMillan from Earth. Her watercolors are outstanding. If you visit the library, be sure to see them.

In the large display case we have a beautiful collection of antique rhinestone jewelry from the 1920s and 1930s courtesy of Beth Watson, who is an avid collector. Many of the items are complete sets of necklace, ear-rings and bracelets. Also shown are belt buckles, buttons, lapel pins and rings--all in glowing colors and sparkling white. She has spent years accumulating this collection, and we think you will enjoy it.

In the small display case is the library's own collection of Mules, given to us a few years ago by Margaret Clements, and displayed with pride as our community symbol.

We have been very busy getting new childrens books ready for the Summer Reading Club which will start July 9th. We think this Summer Reading Club will be a lot of fun, and we already have a lot of sponsoring businesses to furnish treats for the kids. It has been proved that children who read during the summer do much better in school, so we hope parents will encourage their kids to join in the fun of reading, along with

MICROWAVE TIPS

Did you know that in cooking bacon in a microwave it's best to remove it from the microwave while slightly underdone?

The idea is to let the bacon stand awhile; it completes cooking itself outside the oven.

Use three paper towels under six slices and one on top and cook on HIGH for about a minute a slice--depending on the bacon. Some takes longer, some less than a minute per slice.

Take it out and let it stand for five minutes; it will get more brown and evenly cooked.

Sudan Plans Pioneer

Independence Day Celebration

Plans for the Sudan Pioneer Independence celebration were finalized at the committee meeting Sunday and it was reported that most activities will be family oriented, carrying-out the theme "All Generations-A Family Affair."

Activities begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday, June 30, with the Coin Dig on the north side of the park. There will be three boxes for ages 2-4, 5-6, and 7-8. Participants will keep all the money they find in the sand. "Come prepared to get dirty."

The turtle race will get underway at 9:45. Ribbons will be given for the best decorated (depicting the theme), most unique and to the fastest turtle. All participants will receive ribbons. Start looking now for your turtle and get ready for the big day.

The merchants drawing will begin at 10 a.m. and continue throughout the day. To be eligible for prizes you must purchase a raffle ticket from one of the organizations including the Lions Club for two $200 gift certificates at the South Plains Mall; the Heritage Committee for $100 Savings Bond; Young Farmers, chances for the Cow Paddy Bingo, and Sudan 4-H, two framed 'hometown' samplers.

Competitive games for youth, eight and over, begin at 10:30 a.m. as does the tractor pull, a popular event for children three through seven. Trophies will be given in five age groups. After they drive the tractors, the little ones 2-7 will race their stick horses in the west side of the park.

There are no planned activities through the lunch hour, but food will be available in the park and in the senior Citizens building. Live entertainment will perform in the park including local talent as well as area family groups.

You are also asked to register in the Sudan Hotel for the pioneers, general attendance and for the family registra. Honorable mention will be given to the family that has continuously lived in Sudan for longest period of time.

The afternoon activities begin at 1 p.m. with Water Polo, conducted by the Sudan Volunteer Fire Department. This will be held in front of the Senior Citizens building and trophies will be given in groups for all family members.

The Out-House race starts at 2 p.m. The rules have been changed some this year in order to get more family participation. You are asked to start building your out-house now. It must not be motorized and must have four wheels and be steered by the rudd. The team members will be the pushers. If for some reason you do not have an outhouse, your team may "borrow" one of the existing ones at the time of the race.

The Tug-if-War is a new event this year and will include either a weight limit or number of person limit. Bo Lance will be in charge of this family affair.

Floats are needed for the parade. Get your family members together and enter. Cash prizes of $100, $75, $50 and $40.00 will be given. Kids are asked to start planning their decorations now for their bicycles. Trophies will be given for the Most Unique, best Theme and Best Decorated.

Greg Lance will be in charge of the volleyball tournament in which each team will consist of three men and three women.

Dominoes will be played during the day in the community center and something different, the Cow Paddy Bingo, is sure to draw interest.

A barbecue meal will be served at 6 p.m. by the Lions Club. Tickets will be $5.00 for adults and $3.00 for children under 12.

and most reliable food supply in the world."

Here is a brief outline of the major sections of the 1990 Farm Bill:

H.R. 3950: THE FOOD AND AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES ACT OF 1990

COTTON

Target prices are frozen at the current level of $0.729 per pound for 1991-1995 crops. Continued authority is approved for marketing loans designed to keep U.S. cotton competitive in world markets. The current four million bale carryover target is replaced with an annual production target to achieve a 30 percent carryover stocks-to-use ratio. The maximum ARP is 25 percent.

FEED GRAINS

Target levels will be frozen at current levels of $2.75 per bushel for corn and a comparable level for grain sorghum. Loan rates will have continued authority for nonrecourse price supports.

WHEAT

Levels for target prices are frozen at $4 per bushel for 1991-1995 crops.

PEANUTS

Current law is extended with the minimum national domestic quota of peanuts for pouched edible use increased from the current 1.1 million tons to 1.35 million tons annually through

Hot...

The fluids help replace sodium, potassium and magnesium, all essential to cells continuing to function.

Older people should go out early in the morning, or late in the evening, unless circumstances dictate that they go out at other times.

Plenty of fluid, including water, sodas, lemonade and bullion have been suggested, but alcohol should be avoided as it dilutes the blood vessels, and further inhibits the body from sweating.

Most people suffering from heat exhaustion or heat stroke first complain of lightheadedness, stomach cramps and a headache.

Decreasing the body temperature can be done by packing the person in ice. If it is a small child, immersion in cold water should be followed by a visit to the nearest hospital emergency room.

As summertime officially arrived Thursday, June 21, a lot of hot weather is in store for the next two-three months.

the 1995 marketing year. State allocations of the national quota for each year will reflect that state's share of the 1990 national quota. "Texas Only" provisions in the peanut program should greatly help the ability of producers in the West Texas area to increase their quota.

SUGAR

The program for sugar is extended for five years at no cost to the government. The loan rate for cane sugar is maintained at 18 cents a pound; beet sugar will be based off the cane sugar loan rate.

RICE

Target prices are frozen at the current level of $10.71 per hundredweight (cwt), while authority is continued to keep U.S. rice competitive in world markets. The current 30 million cwt carryover target is replaced with annual production targets to achieve a 20 percent carryover stocks-to-use ratio.

OILSEEDS

The loan rate for soybeans is set at $5.25 per bushel for 1991-1992 crops. A marketing loan is required for soybeans, sunflowers, safflowers, canola, rapeseed and other oilseeds.

CONSERVATION

Voluntary compliance of farmers will be sought in the application of pesticides and fertilizers. There will be significant new funding for research on integrated management practices and water quality protection that can help farmers use the latest advances for profitable farming. The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) is extended to authorize enrollment of up to 45 million acres. Under CRP, producers can enroll their land to aid in meeting water quality concerns, conservation planning needs and protect wetlands and pasture lands planted with trees.

BASE AND

PLANTING FLEXIBILITY

Producers enrolled in crop price support programs have the option to plant up to 25 percent of their "flexible acreage base" to permitted crops. "Flexible acreage base" is defined as a total of crop acreage bases for the farm plus historical oilseeds plantings.

No deficiency payments will be made on program crops planted on "flexible acres." Support loans and marketing loans are permitted on program commodities. Crop acreage base is protected on "flexible acres" but base-building on this acreage is not permitted. Total plantings of program crops for producers exercising the flexible acres option may not exceed the combined permitted acreage for program crops.

Waylon Jennings Will Be Honored

Littlefield native Waylon Jennings will be honored in his hometown for the first time on July 4th.

He was born in Littlefield, went to school there, started his career in the Littlefield radio station and continued to live in Littlefield while working with Buddy Holly. Many of his close family members have lived in or near Littlefield all of their lives, and continue to make their homes there.

July 4 is "Waylon Jennings Day" in Littlefield. He will participate in activities from 10 a.m. through noon, beginning with a parade at 10 a.m.

Later, he will be presented gifts from the city and will leave

OTHER PROVISIONS

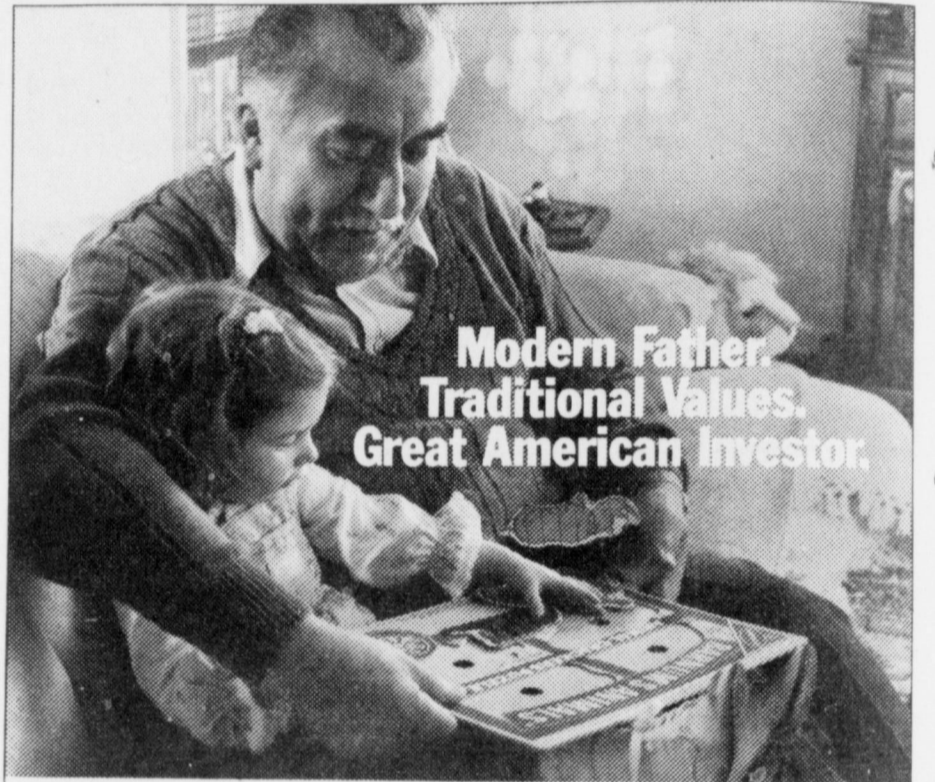

Important to West Texas producers is the section dealing with proven yields. Additional authority is provided for county committees to adjust a producer's crop payment yields. As for crop acreage bases, additional authority allows adjustment of bases that may be adversely affected by occurrences beyond the control of the producer.

his hand and boot prints in wet cement as the R. V. Park will be dedicated to him.

A street was named after him, a watertower was painted "Hometown of Waylon Jennings," the free R. V. Park was dedicated to him and renamed the Waylon Jennings R. V. Park.

It was noted that Waylon Jennings will not entertain at anytime on July 4. He is reserving time from 10 a.m. to 12 noon for the festivities, according to Shirley Kozlowski and Joella Lovvorn of the Honor Waylon Jennings Committee.

Sea World Of Texas World's Newest Zoological Park

Sea World of Texas, the world's newest and largest marine zoological park, is thriving deep in the heart of Texas, almost 200 miles from the nearest coastline.

Since opening in San Antonio in April 1988, Sea World of Texas has introduced millions of people to the wonders of marine life through its extensive and ever-expanding lineup of spectacular shows, educational exhibits and entertaining attractions.

The $170 million park offers guests a full day of family entertainment for all ages. Within Sea World of Texas' 250 acres, visitors can see the newest star in the Lone Star State--Baby Shamu--take center stage at Shamu Stadium, watch high-flying dolphins, laugh at the antics of sea lions and penguins and marvel at champion water skiers and ice skaters.

New for 1990 at Sea World of Texas is "The Legend of Iceskatie," an adventure-packed ice skating spectacular. The Meadow, Sea World's 3,000-seat amphitheater, is the site for this musical fantasy adventure on ice. Skating 'pirates' perform ice ballet and athletic skating routines in a make-believe frozen wilderness setting. Even Sea World's popular costumed characters lace up their skates for this extravaganza on ice, which is presented several times daily.

Also premiering this year is "Baby Shamu Celebration," Sea World of Texas' new killer whale show. Baby Shamu, who was born Nov. 26, 1988, stars with killer whales Shamu, Namu and Kandu in the all-new presentation. The whales display their natural acrobatic abilities at 4,500-seat Shamu Stadium, the largest facility in the world for the presentation of marine animals. Guests returning to Sea World have the rare opportunity to watch Baby Shamu learn and grow with her family.

Each evening during the summer months, Sea World of Texas presents "Summer Nights," an array of entertainment featuring special night shows, live music, parades and fireworks, lasers and special effects. This year, "Summer Nights," has been expanded to include more bands, a nighttime water ski show featuring new skiing techniques and an evening version of the Shamu show. At closing time, Sea World's entire cast of singers, musicians and dancers gathers in the Entrance Plaza to present a "farewell" show.

In addition to the new shows, guests can see the ever-popular "New Friends," "Spooky, Kooky Castle" and "Beach Blanket Ski Party" presentations daily at Sea World of Texas.

In 3,000-seat New Friends Stadium, cetaceans--dolphins and whales from different areas of the world--get together in the "New Friends" show, sponsored by Southwest Airlines. Sea World of Texas, official airline. "New Friends" showcases marine mammals who would not normally associate together in the wild.

Walrus, sea lions and otters team up to present their own comedy show in the 3,000-seat Sea Lion, Walrus and Otter Stadium. Sponsored by Pepsi-Cola, "Spooky, Kooky Castle" features the hilarious antics of these flipped and bewhiskered animals in a spoof on mysteries.

On a 12-acre lake, Sea World's champion water skiers thrill audiences with a dazzling show sponsored by Kodak, "Beach Blanket Ski Party." Guests can watch barefoot skiing, ramp jumping and complex pyramid formations from the shaded comfort of the 3,200-seat Water Ski Stadium.

One of the Sea World's most popular attractions, the Texaco-sponsored Penguins exhibit, features hundreds of penguins and other polar birds in arctic and subantarctic environments. A moving walkway takes visitors past the penguin habitat into the Learning Hall, filled with multi-media exhibits and displays on the polar regions and their inhabitants.

In the Sharks and the Coral Reef exhibit, guests come face to face with mysterious sharks and colorful fish from the tropical seas. Forever in Debt
A man owes it to himself to become successful, after that, he owes it to the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Definition
Retirement: When you wake up, in the morning with nothing to do and go to bed with it only half done.

Experience — We consider it money in the bank.

A face lined by dry, hot summer days, harsh winter, and seven-day work weeks. But there is sparkle, too, remembering warm spring sun or gentle rains and acres of cotton.

Back when he started farming, a man's labor represented the majority of his investment in the farm. Over the years, when he's had to invest in land and equipment, he's turned to his Land Bank Association for competitive, long-term financing. At the Land Bank we not only place value on a man's farm, but his experience, too.

So, if you need help growing, talk to a neighbor you can bank on —

A poor bite can result in abnormal wear of the tooth surface, difficulty in chewing and damage to supporting bone and gum tissue. Jaw joint pain (TMJ) and associated headaches can sometimes be attributed to crooked teeth and incorreced bites. Orthodontics has progressed a great deal in the past few years and braces are less obvious as a correctional service due to new materials. Dr. Jennings has successfully fitted braces on both adults and children that are designed to be less conspicuous. They specialize ONLY in orthodontics and can completely restructure your smile with little discomfort. We are pleased to recommend Dr. James Jennings. PEST MANAGEMENT UPDATE

Farmer - Bailey Counties

Mike D. Blanton

Extension Agent - Entomology

GENERAL SITUATION

The hot, dry open weather conditions we are experiencing provide good growing conditions to producers who irrigate their crops. Individuals in northwestern Farmer and southern Bailey counties, however, are in desperate need of rain to get their crops going. Wheat harvest is underway throughout Farmer and Bailey counties. Russian wheat aphids have moved into alternate host grasses along bar ditches. These aphids can also be found in area corn and cotton fields; however, research indicates that this pest cannot survive in area summer crops such as corn, cotton, grain sorghum, and soybeans. Spider mites are the main concern in area corn fields; while thrips continue to plague many cotton fields.

CORN

Spider mites are infesting many corn fields which border wheat. Several area fields have heavy mite infestations 2 or 3 hundred yards into the field. A couple of weeks ago, these fields had only border infestations. Producers need to watch these infestations closely and prevent severe damage to young corn plants. Don't jump the gun on treating these mites, since these early infestations are often controlled by beneficial insects. In fact, one field in the West Camp area had a fairly high infestation of mites last week. The beneficials have virtually eliminated this producer's mite problem.

The best way to scout corn for spider mites is to walk through the corn along the edge of the field. Pull off the bottom leaves of plants. Look at the undersides of leaves, especially near the midrib. Spider mites are small, so you might need a field glass to see them well. As the mites feed and colonies grow, they cause chlorotic or yellow spots. Two different species of spider mites can be found in corn. Be certain of the species (two-spotted spider mites, Banks grass mite) since successful control can depend on it.

Southwestern corn borers are at peak emergence; thus, we should begin to see shot-hole feeding in corn as the leaves unfold. During the next few weeks, watch for first generation corn borer infestations, especially in fields which are in close proximity to unplowed or late-plowed corn stubble from the 1989 season.

A new corn herbicide has been registered recently for controlling johnsongrass, silt-tarcan, and quackgrass. This product, called Beacon, is a sulfonyleurea herbicide and is labeled for ground rig application to corn 4-20 inches tall. Beacon should not be applied to corn treated with Counter.

COTTON

With area cotton ranging from one to four true leaves, most fields are still candidates for thrips infestations. Thrips numbers are higher this year than in the past several years. This is evident whenever you go outside in a light-colored T-shirt. With the hot, dry weather at-planting insecticides do not seem to be controlling thrips as well as usual. Many producers, especially those who did not use at-planting or seed treatment insecticides, are having to apply foliar products.

In cotton with two true leaves or fewer, treatment is suggested when thrips average two per plant. As the cotton grows, it can withstand higher numbers. Those producers who did use at-planting insecticides need to watch for immature thrips. Presence of immatures may indicate that the residual is running out or that conditions are too dry for the systemic to be taken up by the plant.

Cotton aphids are already being reported in southern Bailey county. Most of these aphids are winged forms and have just blown in; however, small colonies are beginning to build.

MOths INVASION

Many area producers and homeowners have asked about the large number of moths seen over the past weeks. These moths, gray in color with orange markings on the hind pair of wings, are commonly called mesquite cutworms. They pose no threat to ornamentals, turf, or crops; but they are somewhat annoying, especially at night. Reduce night lighting around the home should help. The problem should subside within a week or so.

DuPont Co. To End Production Of Orlon Acrylic

Continued consumer preference for cotton, especially in the sock, fleece and sweater categories, is evident in The DuPont Company's recent decision to end production of Orlon acrylic, says J. Nicholas Hahn, president and CEO of Cotton Incorporated.

In announcing the phase-out of Orlon, a DuPont executive attributed the decision in the part to "changing consumer preference for polyester and cotton in traditional acrylic end uses," according to published reports appearing in textile trade industry publications.

According to Cotton Incorporated, consumer demand for cotton is at a 10-year high in categories targeted by acrylic fiber producers. Through the first quarter of 1990, cotton's share of the sock market reached 55 percent, up from 51 percent a year ago, while cotton accounted for 45 percent of the fleece market and 32 percent of the sweater market. Consumer demand for cotton in all textile categories has pushed the fiber's share of market to 51 percent (excluding carpeting) through the first quarter of 1990. Currently, cotton is the single most popular fiber purchased at retail and outsells all man-made fibers combined.

"The ultimate significance inherent in DuPont's decision to end Orlon production is that the true decision maker in the textile industry is, and always will be, the consumer," says Hahn. "The consumer has final say on fiber profitability, and the consumer has made a clear indication of a preference for cotton."

Clint Black To Appear At South Plains Fair

Clint Black, the sexy young Houston native who's threatening to topple George Strait as country music's biggest heart-throb, has been signed to headline two shows during the 73rd annual Panhandle South Plains Fair, according to Steve Lewis, general manager.

Black will appear at 7 and 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 26. Performances by Rodney Crowell and the Charlie Daniels Band have also been confirmed for the 1990 Fair, Lewis said. Crowell will perform at 7 and 9 p.m. on the Fair's opening night, Saturday, Sept. 22, and the Charlie Daniels Band has been booked for shows at 7 and 9 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 29, the Fair's closing night.

Lewis said the fair shows will be Crowell's Lubbock debut. Black and the Charlie Daniels Band have performed in Lubbock before, but never at the Fair.

Black burst onto the country music scene last year with the hit "Better Man," the first debut single to go to No. 1 on the country charts since Jessie Colter's "I'm Not Lisa" 14 years ago.

He's been drawing larger crowds (30,000 plus) and setting cowgirls to shakin' in their boots ever since.

Black said, "I just like singing to cowgirls." Luckily for him, they love to listen. Marriage proposals and requests for locks of his hair have become routine. One fan even requested a few of his fingernails. "I don't know what she could have wanted them for," he said.

Buck Owens describes Black as "the kind of guy you'd want to take home to meet your father, if you could trust your mother."

But Black's appeal goes beyond looks. His debut album, "Killin' Time" offers a wide range of songs, including love ballads, country honky-tonk and Cajun waltzes.

With straightforward songwriting and a voice described as "haggard beyond his years," Black delivers hits that draw from his own life experiences. "Nobody's Home," followed to break-up of a seven-year romance and his dad's challenge to take advantage of a bad situation and "write a good George Jones one," Black said.

The opening track of "Killin' Time," "Straight From the Factory," is an acknowledged nod to the country swing of Bob Wills and Hank Thompson. Other tunes from the album include the Cajun-waltz "Walkin' Away," the moody ballad "Nothing's News" and "Winding Down," a look at Black's stints as a "happy-hour singer."

Black, now 27, grew up on the Buffalo Bayou near Houston. "When I was a kid I almost drowned once while hunting snakes for bicycle parts money," he recalls. Success has catapulted him far past those snake-hunting days, but, Black says, "it still feels strange to gather up $500 and go into a western store and spend it all."

For all his new-found success, however, Black seems to be sticking close to his Texas roots. "I explore all styles of country music, especially keeping in mind the different dance styles, because that's very important in Texas. I think you can go to any dance hall and play this album ("Killin' Time") and the dancers will be satisfied. I want to make sure of that," he said.

Also sticking to his Texas roots is Rodney Crowell, another native Houstonian whose Fair performance will mark his Lubbock debut.

Crowell's dynamic songwriting and emotionally-evoking performances captured best new male country singer honors from the Academy of Country Music in 1988.

His songwriting credits include a long line of hits such as "Even Cowgirls Get the Blues," "Ain't Livin' Long Like This," "No Memories Hangin' On," "Leavin' Louisiana in the Broad Daylight," and "I Don't Have to Crawl."

He's been dubbed "the missing link between Hank

Williams and Elvis," by some critics.

Crowell's "Diamonds and Dirt" album yielded an unprecedented five consecutive No. 1 singles. "Keys to the Highway," his current album, shows how varied his talent can be with tunes as different as the inspirational "The Faith is Mine," the romantically redemptive "Soule Searchin'" and the sleazy blues grind of "We've Gotta Go On Meeting Like This."

Like Black's "Killin' Time," Crowell's "Keys to the Highway" album was cut live with the star's road band.

Married to Rosanne Cash, Crowell is also becoming an accomplished producer as her career has flourished under his guidance.

"As a writer," Crowell says, "it's a goal of mine to keep things as simple and basic as possible. If you say it simply, it'll be profound. If there's one thing I want to do, it's to bring as much vividness to human qualities as possible."

As a linchpin of Emmylou Harris' Hot Band in the mid-'70s-performing the multiple roles of songwriter, rhythm guitarist and harmony singer - Crowell and such kinetic bandmates as Ricky Skaggs, Tony Brown, Hank DeVito, Albert Lee and Emory Gordy helped redefine modern country music.

More "redefining" may be in store for country shows if Black has his druthers. "I'd like to do things that haven't ever been done in country music before as far as set designs, stage productions," he said. "I'd like to tour major arenas, stadiums, attract the largest crowd that I can in any given town and just show people that country music can be as exciting as pop."

Already noted for exploring "things that haven't been done before" is the Charlie Daniels Band, whose controversial single "Simple Man" rocketed to the top of Billboard's country chart just a few weeks after it was released.

"Simple Man," which Charlie Daniels wrote, "describes very graphically what goes on in our streets in terms of drugs and crime," Daniels said. "Its message really is that what we need is some plain old common people standing up and speaking the truth, since the people who are standing up now aren't all that common and they sure ain't speaking the truth."

Daniels and his band have spent 17 years on the American road serving up their brand of hard-hitting, fiddle-driven, boogie-woogie country blues. They've sold well over 10 million albums, won 4 Country Music Association Awards, 2 Academy of Country Music Awards and a Grammy.

"We're playing better than ever," Daniels said of the band's latest album, "Simple Man." "It makes a difference with the band being five pieces - it makes it real lean and mean."

In fact, it was the scaling back of the band that allowed the Fair booking, according to Lewis. "We've tried to get Charlie several times in the past, but our stage just wasn't big enough for all his equipment. We're really excited about being able to bring him in this year."

Tickets for all shows are $10 and all seats are reserved. Mail order requests are being accepted by writing to Show Tickets, P.O. Box 288, Lubbock, Texas 79408. Requests will be processed in the order they are received. Tickets will not be available for mailing until early August, according to Lewis. Mail orders must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Tickets do not include gate admission.

USTA Delegation Of Telco Executives Visit Poland

Executives Visit Poland

A USTA organized delegation of nine telephone company executives, left on Wednesday, June 13 for a week-long visit to Poland. The purpose of the trip is to ascertain the current situation in Poland, and to aid the Poles in beginning to build a new and modern telecommunications infrastructure from the ground up.

The delegation, comprised almost entirely of the heads of small U.S. telephone companies, will discuss with the Poles the organization, operation, and financing of rural and small telephone companies. The telco executives hope to share with the Poles the long and deep American experience with ubiquitous telephone service, while at the same time encouraging private initiative in rural Poland.

USTA President John Sodoiski expects this visit to be the first of a long-term and productive relationship with Poland and other nations of central and eastern Europe. "America has a largely untapped resource of expertise in the small telephone company community which can be used by emerging democracies around the world," Sodoiski said. "I am heartened by the interest shown by USTA members to share their knowledge and experience. And their level of concern is exemplified by the fact that participation by these companies is completely voluntary and self-funded. In this effort USTA is not utilizing government money or grants, and we have no intention of doing so for this program or for any programs that may be similar to it."

The visit to Poland will be a hands-on experience for the Americans. In addition to meetings and briefings in Warsaw, in cooperation with the Ministry of Communications, the group visited a number of locations in the countryside to assess the country's telecommunications infrastructure.

The United States Telephone Association is a broad-based national trade association of the local telephone industry.

CHOOSING SIDES

"Choose you this day whom ye will serve: but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." Joshua 24:15.

Children choose sides for a game; we choose someone to serve in this world. But rather than have it be a choosing by chance, ours shall be a definite, thought out, choice. We can choose God "this day" by attending Church on Sunday. As our Lord said in Matthew 4:10, "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve." Let us worship and serve Him through His appointed agency, the Church.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Irrigation Pump Drive Shafts Pose Safety Hazard

Ask any Southern High Plains producer about the dangers associated with exposed drive shafts on irrigation pumps, and he will likely shake his head and mention accidents he knows about that have resulted in serious injury or death.
 Irrigation motor drive shafts are used to transmit the horsepower produced by the engine to the pump. If clothing, hair or other objects become entangled in the universal joints at either end of the rapidly spinning drive shaft, a leg, arm, hand or the head can be yanked in to the shaft in a fraction of a second, snapping a bone-or worse.
 Installing safety shields on exposed drive shafts is one method producers can use to reduce the risk of injury and/or death when working near irrigation pumps.
 Several drive shaft accidents have been reported since the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 was created in 1951. Despite these tragedies, a large number of irrigation wells are still operating without a drive shaft guard in place.
 Time, trouble and expense are some of the reasons given by irrigators for not installing drive shaft guards. However, a Bushland producer has found an easy, cheap method to reduce the risk to persons coming near the drive shafts of his irrigation pumps.
 Jerry Don Artho of Bushland uses 10-inch diameter PVC pipe as a guard over his pump drive shafts. A wood saw is used to cut the PVC pipe to fit between the engine and the irrigation pump. Artho completes the guard by making an additional cut down the length of the plastic pipe on one side.

 "It takes about 15 minutes to cut the PVC. This may be the best 15 minutes a producer can invest if it helps prevent an accident," he says.
 Artho says the safety of his children is the main reason for installing the PVC shields over the drive shafts at his well sites. "Also, I know people who have been injured as a result of this type of accident. Since my farm is located so close to town and the Busland School, I didn't like the idea of having these drive shafts uncovered," he says. "That's just asking for an accident."
 Artho says the PVC shield is easy to remove, and this allows him easy access to the drive shaft's universal joints when lubrication is needed.
 "It's easy to get the PVC shield, on and off when the universal joints needs grease. You simply open the split in the PVC and slip it on or off. If a drive shaft shield isn't easily removed and replaced, the producer is not likely to replace it when he greases the U-Joints," he says.
 If the cost of installing a drive shaft shield has kept people from doing it, this is the answer," says Artho. A 10-inch diameter low pressure PVC pipe may be purchased for about $2 per foot. Most drive shafts are no more than four to six feet long.
 Is it worth about $10 per well and 15 minutes of your time to eliminate the risk of an accident? "It certainly is to me," says Artho.

Just Out
 After a final row with his wife, a brow-beaten husband took his hat from the peg in the hall and said: "I'm going."
 Three years later he returned, and his wife demanded: "Where on earth have you been?"
 "Out," he replied, and hung his hat on the same peg.
Let It Go Enjoy a Duet
 Willie was destined to be a great violinist--at least so thought his mother.
 But one evening, while Willie was practicing on his fiddle, she got a bit of a shock. Her husband stamped in from the garden and glared at his son.
 "Why didn't you tell me that Willie was going to practice on his violin tonight?" he demanded. "I've spent half an hour oiling the gate."
