LOCAL BAPTISTS RETURN FROM STATE MEETING

Report Houston Meet One of Best in History of Church

Rev. O. K. Webb, pastor of the First Baptist Church, returned to Memphis Saturday night to fill his pulpit here Sunday morning after attending the general convention of the Texas State Baptists Association, which was in session in Houston from the 5th until the 8th of this month.

Mrs. Jodie Wilson, Memphis, attended the women's assembly of the convention which met just preceding the regular convention. Others attending from near here were Rev. Roy Bristar, pastor at Lakeview; Rev. Charles Bristar, pastor at Brice and Lakeview; Rev. M. C. Wells, pastor at Hedley, and Willie Roy Adams of Lesley.

J. B. Tidwell of Waco, who was in Memphis a short time ago conducting a Bible school, was elected president of the State Baptist Convention. The convention will be held next year in Mineral Wells.

W. H. McKinzie, former Hedley Baptist pastor, who selected to preach the convention sermon next year.

County Road Project Will Give Work to Crew of 108 Men

Work on Hall County's first Works Progress Administration project will get started Monday morning, Nov. 18, according to F. N. Blevins, manager of the local NRS office.

The project calls for grading and placing of caliche surface on six Hall County roads, totaling 20 miles. This work will include construction of five small bridges and six timber culverts and about two and a half miles of drain ditches. Mr. Blevins, who was transferred to the local office the first of this month from the district office in Amarillo, stated.

The job will employ 108 workmen. Workers are to be selected from the Hall County relief role, with merit and need determining factors as to those to receive jobs. There will be positions for 31 unskilled common laborers, for 13 intermediate laborers, for three skilled laborers, and for one professional and technical man.

The salary of the unskilled workmen is to be $21 per month, with each man working something like 17 days each month. The wage scale of the other laborers will be graduated according to their skill.

From 8 o'clock in the morning until late at night the local NRS office is open, and members of the county relief role may make application for the jobs at any time during the day. They are instructed to make their bids for jobs at the earliest possible time. The NRS office is located in office No. 2 over the First National Bank building. Relief clients should apply at the NRS department only, and not at the relief office, Mr. Blevins pointed out, because the relief force has nothing to do with providing the jobs. J. C. Wilcox has been designated as foreman of the project. (Continued on page 8)

MANY FARMERS FROM COUNTY ATTEND MEET

To Hear Address by C. A. Cobb on Crop Program for Year

From 20 to 25 Hall County farmers, headed by County Agent James A. Jackson and John C. Myers, cotton adjustant assistant, left this morning from this city, in cars, for Plainview, where they will attend a district meeting of Panhandle farmers today.

The meeting is being held for the purpose of hearing an address by C. A. Cobb, an official of the national crop program, from Washington. Mr. Cobb will make only two addresses in Texas, one of which will be the Plainview talk today.

Local farmers are expected to derive much information from the address, as Mr. Cobb is expected to outline the current cotton program.

Farmers from all parts of the county are in the delegation and many went directly from other communities, in addition to the delegation which left from this city.

WILSON OFFERS HIS HOSPITAL TO THE COUNTY

Rotarians Hear Plan Convert Hospital Into County Unit

Dr. Winfred Wilson, Memphis physician, addressed members of the Memphis Rotary Club yesterday noon at the regular weekly luncheon on "The Need for a Community Hospital in Memphis."

With the entire local Rotary membership present, together with three visitors, Dr. Wilson outlined a plan whereby the city could take over the Memphis Hospital, a privately-owned institution, and operate it as a community health center.

The cost of improved medical and surgical equipment is almost prohibitive of a practicing physician's maintaining a city hospital, Dr. Wilson said. Considerable thought has been given by Dr. Wilson to having the city take over the Wilson hospital as a municipally owned institution.

First harbingers of a change in hospital ownership were made public recently at a called meeting of Memphis medicos at a dinner, at which time Dr. Wilson suggested the community hospital proposition. All doctors present at the dinner gave their assent to the proposition and implied that they would be willing to use the sanitarium, Dr. Wilson stated.

"Hall County now spends over $400 per month for the indigent sick," Dr. Wilson said, "and this money (taxes) could be used to finance a hospital."

Should the city or county take over the sanitarium, the speaker said, it would be remodeled and facilities would be provided that would be capable of handling 23 patients at once. There has never been 23 patients at one time in all of the hospitals in the city, it was said.

The plan as outlined would provide equal facilities for all doctors using the hospital. Staff (Continued on Page 5)

The entire Sheriff's department on the courthouse steps yesterday, examining a new 10-gallon hat the sheriff had just purchased. Will someone tell us why the first thing any sheriff does when he's elected is buy a 10-gallon hat.

Which reminds us. We promised to wear a hat for the benefit of one of our customers, but we've reneged. It got too darn cold.

Hurrah! We've located another customer—Morris Higley, editor of the Childress Index. We know he reads it, because he mentioned it yesterday in a letter to the publisher. That makes eight customers of this column.

A lot of folks in front of the Democrat office yesterday, examining an old-time sleigh in a truck. At first we thought Santa Claus had arrived ahead of time, but it proved to be only a relic belonging to the publisher's brother-in-law.

Leon Bullard in the office entering an objection about the item in regard to him blocking traffic at the Clarendon game. He said when his wife read it she accused him of being drunk.

Alas and alack, we were afraid of this. The cold weather has brought out the boots, and several of the high school flappers have donned the heavy footwear. All they need now is a herd of horses.

THE LEGISLATURE MAKES A MESS OF IT

AS IS so often the case the Legislature has again made a mess of a badly needed measure—the driver's license law.

The Senate had worked out a measure which bid fair to meet the requirements, but it was riddled with amendments by the House to such an extent as to be worthless, and was promptly and properly rejected by the Senate.

The House substitute measure almost reached the heights of the ridiculous. About the only persons it would prohibit from driving a car were those totally blind and those who had lost either both legs or both arms.

The Senate bill required all drivers to obtain licenses and be examined by the department of public safety, and provided summary suspension for certain offenses. This is practically the same law which has proven most effective in many states in the union.

Instead of accepting this common-sense measure, the House had to "horse around" and mess things up, so that it is probable that the but-come will be that we will have no drivers' license measure of any kind.

The need for a law of this kind needs no defense. One who reads the daily papers, with their toll of deaths from auto accidents, will be convinced that some drastic action must be taken to stop this slaughter.

Since the bill was defeated in the regular session of the legislature there have been 1200 auto accident deaths in Texas, and, from all indications there will be many more thousands before the legislature passes the bill.

To the average man it seems that the two special sessions of the legislature have done little except to collect their per diem and mileage. They have spent long hours arguing about liquor legislation, with little results. They have wasted hours in consideration of the drivers' license measure with less result. They have passed an old-age pension bill with no provisions for raising the money to pay the pensions.

We sometimes wonder just why we have to have a legislature, any-

Larry learns the robbers were the Jackson gang. A telephone number, written on the wall, leads the federal men to the farm. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

Talking to his co-workers, Larry Glenn had remarked that it was nearly as important to checkmate the people who gave aid and comfort to gangsters as to catch the gangsters themselves, since the latter would be helpless without the assistance of the former.

Bobby Wallace, the young man who sold automobiles for Mark Hopkins and loved Jean Dunn with what seemed each day to be more and more a hopeless love, had never heard this wise remark. But he was devoting himself, nevertheless, to a bit of amateur sleuthing aimed in precisely that direction.

Ever since his unfortunate deal with the stolen bonds, Bobby had felt most properly humbled. He burned with the desire to do something to rehabilitate himself in the eyes of Larry Glenn, and he believed that he was on the trail of something that would accomplish this end.

Larry had told him how gangsters are able to buy armored cars which look like ordinary pleasure cars but which are actually bullet-proof and therefore exceedingly useful in the sort of marauding forays to which gangsters are addicted. He had pointed out that no government agency had yet been able to trace these cars to their source.

Larry had gone on from there to remark that it looked very much as if Wingy Lewis, the gangster who had passed himself off on the innocent Bobby as an ordinary business man, had bought such a car from Mark Hopkins, Bobby's employer; and he had urged Bobby to watch closely for any corroborative evidence that might be available, and to let the Division of Investigation men know about it at once if he found it.

sleuthing—and, he believed, had found something.

After learning that Hopkins and MacFarlane, superintendent of the repair shop in Hopkins' auto sales agency, had made a mysterious trip together, Bobby had gone on the trail and discovered a queer secret factory, hidden off in the wastes of the southeast fringe of Dover. And nowadays, in a slowly rising excitement, he was keeping eyes and ears open in an effort to learn more about it.

For some days his efforts were fruitless. Then it occurred to him that he needed some way to getting an occasional bit of stray information from Hopkins' private office; and to further this end he began to be attentive to Mary Ann Nichols, one of the three stenographers on the agency's payroll.

Mary Ann was short, dark, and slightly chubby, and she was immensely flattered by Bobby's unexpected attentions; so that after a very short time they had reached a stage in which the artless young woman would babble innocently of her employer's secrets to the attractive young salesman, just as if he had been a friend of many years' standing.

The only trouble with all of this was that while she babbled freely she did not seem to know anything that would help Bobby.

One evening, however, they went to an amusement party on the shore of a little lake in one of the eastern suburbs, and there, after they had eaten and danced, they sat on a bench by the water, idly watching people who swam in the lake beneath long strings of electric light bulbs.

Mary Ann snuggled confidently close to him; and Bobby, more to hood off what looked like an incipient petting party than in any hope of getting needed information, casually turned the conversation to the unromantic topic of the daily routine at the sales agency.

Mary Ann, it developed, had had what she termed a hectic day. First of all, one of the other stenographers—a lanky young woman named Dorothea—had developed a headache and had been obliged to go home, thus overburdening the two remaining girls. Then Mr. Hopkins had turned grouchy because his efforts to sell a dozen sedans to the city government for use as police radio cars had been booted by a rival, who had had the forethought to contribute more heavily to the mayor's campaign fund than Mr. Hopkins had contributed. And, lastly, there had been a misplaced invoice.

"That was Dorothea's fault," said Mary Ann. "She got the invoice yesterday and knew it was supposed to go to Mr. MacFarlane to be initialed and then to Mr. Hopkins, but she stuck it somewhere and after she went home nobody could find it. Maybe you don't think that made Mr. Hopkins mad! And then—it's funny—after Mr. Hopkins had gone home, and I was straightening up my desk to go, I found it there under a pile of papers in my own basket—you know, the one that's marked for incoming letters—and how she ever managed to put it there I don't know, but that's the way Dorothea is—"

She went on and on, while Bobby sat dispiritedly beside her, only half listening, and thinking glumly that if he had not been born under a most unlucky star he would be sitting here with Jean Dunn, and not with this scatter-brained female who had to be kept talking lest she grow unduly romantic. Then a phrase caught his ear.

"—and so there we were, with an invoice for half a dozen new passenger car chassis mislaid, and the chassis already delivered, and the bookkeeping department—"

"Whoa!" said Bobby suddenly. "What do you mean, half a dozen new chassis? You mean new ones that we got from the factory?"

"Why, yes, of course," she said, looking at him in surprise. "Why?"

"Whatever are we doing with new chassis?" asked Bobby.

"Oh, we get 'em right along," said Mary Ann. "Every couple of months an invoice like that comes in."

"But what happens to them?" asked Bobby, wrinkling his brows.

"Oh, I don't know. Anyhow—" "I don't either," said Bobby. "We never sell a chassis. And we don't sell one custom-built job a month, and when we do it comes from the factory."

Then, suddenly, old suspicions arose and he sat up straight, staring out over the lake. Half a dozen new car chassis every two months... wasn't it logical to suspect that they went to this mysterious factory he had discovered? And if that factory was, in truth, a place for the illicit production of these armored cars, what more natural than to suppose that regular chassis were bought, shipped there, and then mounted with special steel bodies?

A moment later, to Mary Ann's perplexity, he developed a violent, splitting headache, which made it imperative that he get home and go to bed. He hurried her to a street car, escorted her to her home, and bade her good night with the briefest of ceremonies; then, instead of heading for his own room, he hailed a taxi and told the man to drive him to the sales agency.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

MARY E. DAGUE
A Service Staff Writer

Are you looking for bargains?—and who isn't?—you need a splendid one right now. This vegetable is in season at this moment, crisp, and all, cheap. By the way, they are on a rigid budget—don't you try buying only one vegetable when they are out-of-season delicacies, can save money by doing so. Enjoy food when it's at its best, too.

Cooks make a tasteless mess of cabbage by using it wrong. Always cook it in its family in an unpan. This prevents the unpleasant odor. Cooked and for a short time also keeps it from being strong flavored and unpleasant.

Be Crisp to Serve Raw

Used in its raw state must be crisp and finely sliced. Try combining it with nuts or celery or green grated carrots or chopped one or all of them. It's a grapefruit and shredded apple, too. Shredded by itself served with dressing to which celery has been added makes a nice salad with game or head of cabbage can be perfect condition for serving if wrapped in waxed paper and stored in the refrigerator.

How to use one head to advantage. Cut the fresh night fish is served. You can have a salad.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Halves of grapefruit, cereal, cream, crisp waffles with creamed codfish, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Cheese fondue, creamed cabbage, apple tapioca pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER: Fried rabbit, gravy, mashed potatoes, baked squash, molded vegetable salad, lattice top cranberry pie, milk, coffee.

of shredded cabbage, carrots, green peppers and celery mixed with French dressing or simply use old-fashioned cole slaw which always is liked with fish.

Stuff Peppers With It

At luncheon next day combine any left-over fish with well crisped cabbage for a salad. The next night sweet green peppers stuffed with cabbage and finely chopped meat makes an appetizing and nourishing main dish. The last quarter of the head is used in a vegetable soup with carrots, onions and tomatoes. The vegetables can be finely shredded and served in the broth, making a thick, full-meal soup.

A good way to cook cabbage is to shred it very fine, put it in a broad, shallow sauce pan and add boiling water to cover. Boil rapidly for twenty minutes. Season with salt, pepper, sugar, butter and lemon juice and bring to the boiling point. Serve at once. I can't give you the exact proportions but for 4 cups of cabbage use 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1-2 tablespoon butter and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. You may like more lemon juice or the same amount of lemon juice but no sugar.

OLDSMOBILE IS STYLE LEADER AT AUTO SHOW

Popularity of 1936 Models Results in Much Interest

"The style leader of 1936 is on display at the Oldsmobile exhibit." This is the word that passed around among the crowds at the New York Automobile show and the Special General Motors Display at The Waldorf-Astoria.

Popularity of the style originated by Oldsmobile and developed in the 1936 Oldsmobile models to new smartness and distinction has resulted in a large influx of retail orders, according to D. E. Raiston, vice president and general sales manager.

"The great interest shown in our two new lines of cars, and in their new low prices, has convinced us that 1936 will be the biggest year in Oldsmobile's long history," he said.

"From visitors at the showings we find that both men and women motorists today are intensely interested in all those features which contribute to safety, comfort, performance and economy. The 1936 Oldsmobiles, the cars that have everything, are attracting particular interest because they are so complete in all the things people want."

"Oldsmobile's advanced streamlined styling has been received with great public favor, as have the smart luxury of interior appointments and the marked roominess and comfort of the body interiors."

"Most often mentioned by visitors at our exhibits were super-hydraulic brakes, knee action wheels solid steel 'turret top' body, and center control steering. Each of these advantages has made a definite impression on the public mind, we find."

"In order to meet the great demand for Oldsmobiles, which developed as soon as the cars first went on display, production at the Lansing plants has been further stepped up."

Great interest was evidenced, too, in the new G. M. A. C. six per cent plan, which will mean substantial savings to those buying Oldsmobiles on time payments.

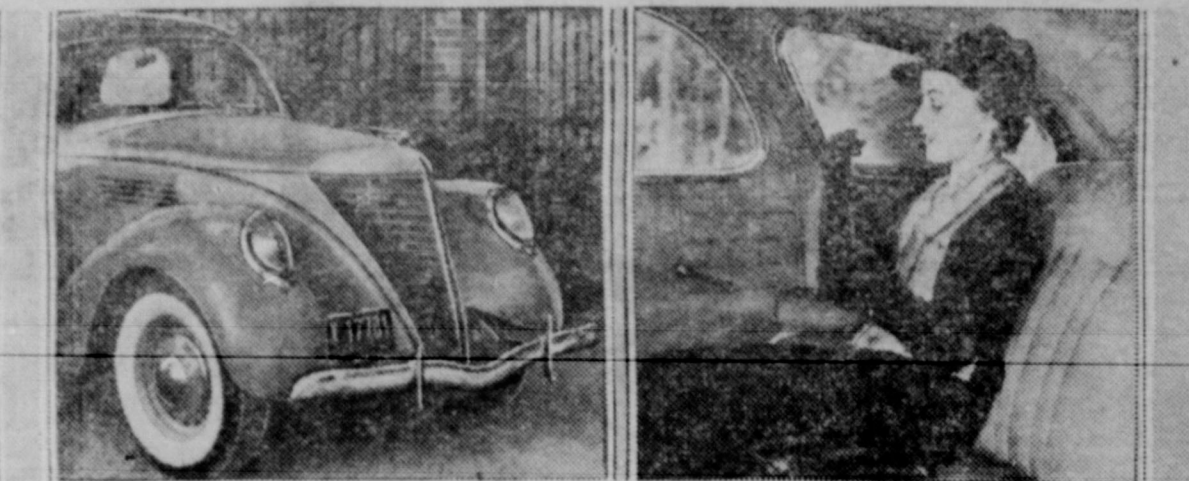

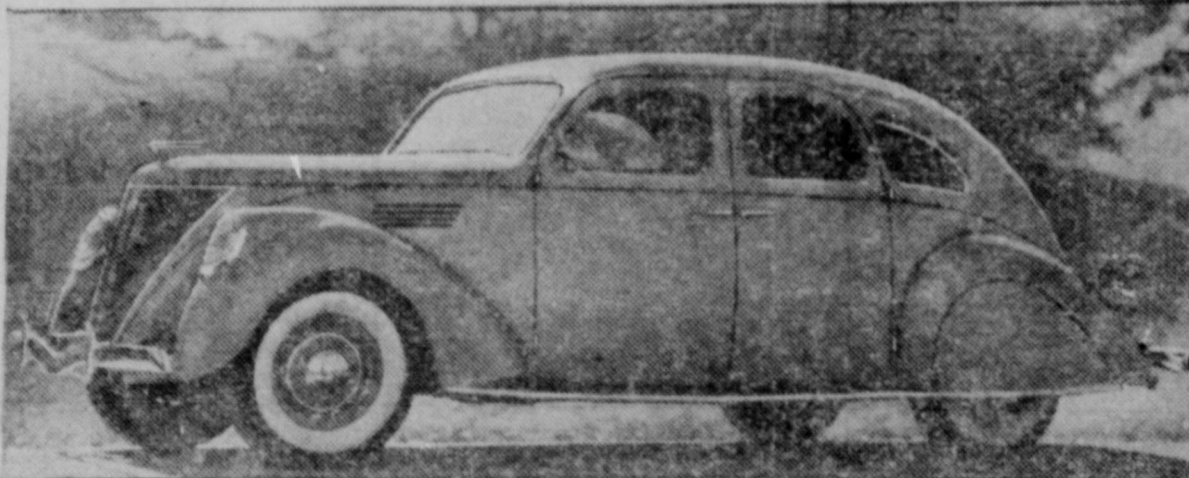

Mrs. Ernest D. Lindsey and daughter, Iva Ruth, and Mrs. Edward Hutcherson and son Bobbie Dick arrived from Lubbock yesterday, on account of the illness of their father and grandfather, R. N. Beckum.

Ford Enters New Field With Lincoln-Zephyr V-12

The V-12 Lincoln-Zephyr, product of the combined resources of Ford and Lincoln and newest entry in the medium-price field, is announced. Its exterior appearance and engineering design are considerably advanced, principles being utilized which have never before been put into actual motor car production.

It is the most completely streamlined car ever built in production volume and the first car to be built on the American continent to have no orthodox chassis or chassis frame. The car comprises an all-steel "bridge truss" body of extraordinary strength in which the engine is mounted and to which the running gear is attached. Its body design is like that of the new streamlined trains.

Two-door and four-door sedan types are offered initially. Center of gravity is unusually low. Center-noise spring suspension is used. The wheelbase is 122 inches, springbase 133 inches. The Lincoln-built engine is rated at 110 horsepower. Transmission has quiet, helical gears in all speeds.

The floor of the car is at curb level. There are no conventional running boards. The chair type seats are high and occupants ride comfortably erect without leaning back, and without fatigue even on long trips. Safety glass is used in windshield and all windows, an important safety factor.

EVERY STATE HAS PART IN BUILDING MODERN CAR

Plymouth President Cites Reason for Lead in Recovery

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—"Most Americans think of Detroit as the 'motor capital' of the country, but the whole nation actually contributes to the modern motor car," D. S. Eddins, President of the Plymouth Motor Corporation, said at the National Automobile Show. He was discussing the reasons for the motor car industry's importance in leading national business recovery.

"The business of making, selling and servicing motor transportation absorbs more than 5,000,000 men and women workers," Mr. Eddins said. "One out of every six American workers derives his daily bread—either directly or indirectly—from the automobile industry."

"Behind that fact lies the reason for the motor car industry's importance as a vital force in leading the United States back to prosperity."

"Industrial cities and farming communities alike share in the fortunes of the motor car industry. Millions of workers in all walks of life—miners in lead, zinc and copper mines; cotton pickers in the South; shepherds in the West; and industrial workers in scores of cities—owe a big part of their income to this one industry."

"The amount of raw material and finished car parts necessary to keep automobile assembly lines going staggers the imagination. In one year the industry uses between four and five millions tons of steel and a quarter million tons of malleable iron. Automobile factories absorb 350,000 tons of rubber, 12,000 tons of aluminum, 81,000 tons of copper and more than 65,000,000 square feet of plate glass. One of every ten bales of cotton and 4,000,000 pounds of Mohair go into new motor cars in a year.

"A breakdown of the amount of material that goes into one new car provides an insight into what the industry as a whole demands of other industries. A low-price car such as the new 1936 Plymouth has 1,700 pounds of steel and 500 pounds of malleable iron in the body, engine and chassis. A single Plymouth also requires 70 pounds of safety glass for the windshield, windows and doors; 160 pounds of rubber for tires, tubes, "Floating Power" engine mountings, and body cushion shims; 60 pounds of copper for babbitt bearings and other parts; 20 pounds of aluminum for pistons; 70 pounds of cotton and 15 pounds of wool in the upholstery.

"These materials and others of lesser quantities too numerous to mention go into each new Plymouth. When it is realized that we are equipped to turn these cars off the assembly line of our main plant in Detroit at the rate of three a minute, some notion can be gained of the volume of materials needed in a single year. Plymouth uses more than 680,000,000 pounds of steel, 64,000,000 pounds of rubber and 28,000,000 pounds of glass during a year."

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Johnson spent Armistice Day in Clarendon with her sister, Mrs. Guy Wright. They were accompanied by Betty Sue Lindsey.

GRIDSTERS ARE AT WORK ON FUNDAMENTALS

Preparing for Game With Mobeetie on This Friday Nite

With the final conference game of the season facing them, the Memphis High gridsters got down to facts yesterday afternoon in drillin' for their coming fray, after taking a holiday Monday.

Most of yesterday afternoon's practice period, which was quite lengthy, was given over to football fundamentals. The boys took ten laps around the field as a "breather" before the practice session started. Punting, passing and signal calling consumed most of the time.

Dennis Walker received a good deal of work at the passing helm. Raymond Powers, spark plug of the Cyclone offensive attack, both the running and the aerial, did not take part in the more rigorous activities. He is still suffering from an injury received in the game against Clarendon last Friday night. Late in the third quarter of the contest a Clarendon tackler rammed a knee in Powers' right kidney which necessitated that Powers be removed from the game.

However, the Memphis are well ready to go against the Mobeetie Hornets here Friday night, but he may give over a portion of the meetings would be held for consultations, and the community would be rendered a service far superior to that which is rendered at present, Dr. Wilson declared. The hospital would be managed by a board of directors.

Plans could be worked out whereby the institution could be financed without a bond issue or without increasing the tax rates, the physician averred, because money that is being expended now for medical purposes would be absorbed.

"I will lease my hospital to the city or county for a period of ten years and put a deed to the place in escrow. At the end of the stipulated time I will sell the place for one dollar and other valuable considerations," Dr. Wilson declared.

The speaker concluded by saying that "it is no more the doctors' place to furnish a community hospital than it is for the city and county officials to furnish the court house."

The speaker was introduced by D. J. Morgensen. Music for the luncheon as furnished by Mrs. Margaret Morgan.

A thirty minute radio dialogue on farm conservation methods will be presented over Station KGNC, Amarillo next Saturday morning at 6:30, by J. O. Stovall, county agent of Collingsworth county, and F. O. Maston, prominent farmer of that section, according to word received in Memphis yesterday by George E. Hull, superintendent of the soil conservation service.

According to Hull, Mr. Maston who lives about four miles east of Wellington, has within a period of 12 years, built up a farm considered unprofitable, to a point where this year he is getting a yield of better than a bale of cotton to the acre. The methods used by Maston to reconstruct his soil, substantially those advocated by the United States department of agriculture, will be explained by him in person. Farmers everywhere within the receptive radius of the Amarillo station are invited to listen in at this time.
