Meeting of Panhandle Baptist Association.
The Panhandle Baptist Association convened in its regular Sunday Meeting with the Baptist Church here last week. There was a good attendance from over the territory and a fine program was carried. The discussions during the week were above the usual and many fresh things brought by the speakers. President Moore of Goodnight Baptist Academy was present and gave some helpful messages. Local pastors of the association had helpful parts on the program. The services on Sunday were of very fine nature. Bauer of Clarendon preached in the morning and Rev. Hedley, at night. Two sermons were very interesting and brought a blessing who heard them. These conferences of the Baptist Association will meet next time with Clarendon during the Fifth Sunday of January 1915.

Memphis to Clean Up Again.
Memphis was clean enough at one time to be called the "Cleanest town in Texas in her class," now we are far from that standard and the following plan has been devised to help us to get cleaned up again. The various Women's clubs have named one member from each club to act on a committee to inspect the stores of Memphis. These women to gather with the Mayor and City Health Officer will make an inspection of all grocery stores, meat markets, restaurants, kitchens and dining rooms of hotels and all other places where food products for human consumption are sold and they will be graded on their cleanliness. These inspections will be made at irregular intervals and after each inspection the grades as decided upon by this committee will be published in the Memphis papers.
These inspections will be held only to increase civic pride raise our standard of cleanliness and we hope thereby to better the health of Memphis people and all who trade here.
The ladies who serve on this committee have been asked to do so by their clubs and the papers have been asked to publish the grades so wide publicity can be given this movement.
We believe Memphis should be cleaner than it is and that publicity and public opinion will do more than can be done any other way.

The "Blues" Entertain the "Reds" at the Methodist Church.
About six months ago the officers of the Methodist Sunday school instituted a contest with in the Sunday school by dividing the classes into two divisions. The even numbers on one side and the odd ones on the other. The contest was an imaginary trip to Palestine and each side was represented on the map with ships, one colored blue and the other red. Credits were given each Sunday for new scholars, collections, church attendance and good lessons. The losers to entertain the winners. The Reds defeated the Blues and as a result the Blues entertained the Reds at the Methodist church Friday evening.
After a song service and short talks by the Superintendent, D. A. Neely, and Rev. M. E. Hawkins, each class was called off and in company with their teachers marched to the basement where hot Chocolate, cake, apples and oranges were served. The basement was beautifully decorated with red bunting and the rugs spread on the floor gave it a very cosy appearance. The Sunday school gained many new scholars and a marked improvement in interest and enthusiasm in the good work.
The contest brought such good results that the school has decided to continue the good work by seeing which can make the trip home the quickest with the same penalty attached to the losers.
Basket Ball Team Goes to Clarendon.
The basket ball team of the Memphis high school went up to Clarendon Friday and played the high school team at that place a return game. Our team came out the victors by a score of 10 to 7. It was a very interesting game from start to finish. This is the third game played by our team this season with two victories and one tie. The Clarendon team will come to Memphis again soon for another game.

The Baby Beef Banquet at Brownwood.

(Andrew McBeath in Temple Telegram.)

Going as the official representative of the Temple Telegram and as the unofficial representative of the people who daily read this column with unfeigned delight, I took it upon myself to discover, if I could, what is a baby beef. Eureka! San Antonio Express take notice—I have found it.

A baby beef is a fatted calf upon which the baby flesh has never been permitted to perish.

Oh, you wise men who need for no one to tell you a thing or two about your own business, can you get that idea through your noodle?

Calves that are kept fat from the beginning produce a given amount of avordupois at less cost than would be the case if they were permitted to run the baby flesh off their bones through having to hustle for a living while being exposed to the ill effects of bad weather.

The idea of raising a baby beef is that a calf shall be taken very young and given such attention that it will continue to grow and fatten without relapse until it is ready for the market or show room.

The banquet program at Brownwood contained the following statement: "One calf fed by an eight year-old girl, of the Brown County Baby Beef and Pig club, weighed 850 pounds at ten months old, won eleven places at three fairs, pulled down $380 in premiums and could have sold for $100. Every body and girl who fed a calf or pig more than doubled his or her money. What can be done with one calf can be done with many. This beats cotton."

The interest shown by the boys in the success of the baby beef propaganda was most interesting to me. I am sure that it is one of the best movements that has ever been started in agricultural Texas in many a day. For it will bring added interest and profit to the life of a boy on the farm and serve to

A Lover's Test

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

About a century ago a crown prince of Prussia was in the matrimonial market. One day a Prussian deputation called on the reigning duke of one of the smaller of the German states and made a proposal for the hand of the duke's youngest daughter, Elsa, then nineteen years old. Her father, astonished and delighted at being so honored, went at once to communicate the news to his daughter. Elsa received it without the transports exhibited by her father.

"I am disappointed," she said, "for I have always supposed that not enough princes of the blood would be found for my older sisters and that I would be permitted to marry, if at all, for love. I will not wed the prince."

Her father argued and stormed, but could only secure his daughter's consent to the wedding on condition that she spend some time in Berlin that she might become acquainted with the prince and if he did not please her she would break the betrothal. Since her father must accept this condition or send a refusal to the king of Prussia he consented to it.

The crown prince pleased Elsa very much with his personality, but did not show her the attention she had a right to expect from a fiance. There were many gallants at the Prussian court, and the princess accepted the attentions of those who were sufficiently impolitic to give them, for it was not expected that any man would devote himself to the betrothed of the heir apparent. Count Caspar Audenreid was one who seemed willing to trespass on the royal domain, and his attentions being accepted it was not long before the matter began to excite comment.

Meanwhile the crown prince, who took an interest in state affairs, busied himself with them and when at leisure, instead of seeking the company of his betrothed, devoted himself to other women. He did not seem to notice Count Caspar's attentions to Elsa, or if he did they did not seem to trouble him.

Elsa was piqued by his indifference. She did not love the count or any of the other courtiers who paid her attention. Indeed, she was much cut up because the prince slighted her. At last she concluded to withdraw from Berlin and on reaching her own home compel her father to send word to the king of Prussia that his daughter had informed herself of the crown prince's desirability and that she had not been sufficiently well pleased with him to marry him.

Elsa was aware that her leaving Berlin would be interpreted to mean that she had refused the heir apparent to the throne, which would be considered an insult to the Prussian court and nation. She therefore determined to depart secretly or at any rate without leave.

One night a carriage stood waiting at a doorway directly below her apartments in the palace. The princess, veiled, descended, entered the vehicle and was driven away.

On reaching a wooded spot some distance from the city the carriage was stopped and the door opened by a masked man.

"Pardon me, your highness," he said, "I am looking for one whom I expected to be with you."

"And who may he be?"

"Count Caspar Audenreid."

"And pray what interest is Count Audenreid to you?"

"None to me personally, but as one who has insulted my master, the crown prince, he is a good deal of interest to me. I desire to avenge that insult."

"You mean that his royal highness is indifferent to his loss, but extremely sensitive to his dignity?"

"As to that the prince must speak for himself."

"I have no desire to hear him on the subject. I presume you will permit me to go on."

"But perhaps my master may desire to apologize for his neglect of one for whose hand he had proposed."

"In that case it is not necessary that I should return to Berlin."

"Why not?"

"He stands before me."

"How have you been able to recognize me?"

"I would know you through any disguise."

"May I ask where you are going?"

"Home."

"Why are you leaving Berlin?"

"Because I will marry no man who treats me with indifference."

"And you are not accompanied by Count Audenreid?"

"That you can see for yourself."

"Will you give me another trial?"

"Not in Berlin. I shall be happy to receive you at my father's capital."

"May I accompany you?"

Elsa hesitated. A change had evidently come over her betrothed. Her departure would doubtless occasion a great deal of talk and trouble.

"You may," she said.

The prince entered the vehicle, and it was driven on.

"You came to Berlin," he said, "to look me over. I have been to your home incognito to look you over. I selected you among the other princesses of Europe because I fell in love with you."

"Then why did you treat me with such indifference?"

"To learn if it troubled you. But you have been a match for me. I believed you loved Audenreid."

"I love only the crown prince."

UNDER SIXTY FEET OF ICE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press

In the year 1866 an English scientific society fitted out what was known as the Cherry Island expedition. It was purely in the interest of natural history. Certain fish and birds which had become extinct in the south were still to be found up there, according to the reports of whalers, and that was the object in fitting out the brig Albatross for a voyage from London. Aside from a strong handed crew, three professors and four or five students accompanied the expedition, and after a voyage almost without event we reached Cherry Island soon after the beginning of its brief summer.

The island, which is of volcanic origin, is a mere jumble of rocks. It is eleven miles long by five in breadth and at the time of our visit had no trees higher than ten feet. These grew between bowlders and on the slopes, with patches of coarse grass all about, but there was not a level spot half an acre in extent on the whole island. We had been on the island about thirty days and had pretty thoroughly explored it when Professor Saunders and my humble self met with an accident one day which led to a most strange discovery. We had set off together on a hunt after birds' eggs, and in walking along a slope we struck a spot overgrown with a short green weed. As we walked over this bed we suddenly found ourselves slipping. There was water under it, and the whole mass gave way and sent us sliding into a ravine. We went slipping, sliding, clutching and bumping a full fifty feet before we brought up, but neither of us was hurt beyond a few bruises. Owing to the wet grass we could not clamber out at that spot and so continued on down the ravine.

It was a toilsome journey we made but it ended at last at a wall of ice within half a mile of the surf. At that point the depth of the ravine was about a hundred feet, and though the sun was shining above, it was like evening down there. A few yards before we were brought to a standstill we found the body of a man lying against the wall of a rock on the right hand side and ten feet above our heads. It was caught and held fast on a point of rock. We were both a good deal startled by the gresswome sight.

"At some time or other," said the professor as he looked about, "this ravine had been a creek of considerable size flowing down to the sea. This man came up the creek from the beach, but we now find a wall of ice blocking it up. There should be a boat frozen up in the wall between us and the sea."

We had nothing to make a torch of, and retracing our steps to a point where we could climb out of the ravine, we left the mystery to be solved another day. There was much discussion around the campfires that evening, and early next morning we set out to see if the ravine had once upon a time opened to the sea. We soon found that it had. Its mouth had been on a small bay, but a storm had filled it with bowlders and dammed back the waters flowing down. Between the sea and the spot where we found the body the ice was from fifty to seventy feet thick. If the sun melted it for a few feet in the summer the rains and snows of winter speedily replaced what had been lost. We found this ice as clear as glass and as hard as iron, but powder was brought from the brig and holes were drilled, and in a couple of days we had blasted out a great rift to half its depth.

Everybody had a suspicion of what was frozen in down there, but yet the discovery gave us a shock. When but thirty feet of ice lay between us and the bottom of the ravine we could see through it well enough to make out the hull of a ship standing on an even keel. It was the hull of a brig, with masts gone, but otherwise intact. We could even make out the ropes, which had been frozen stiff as iron while they streamed along her decks, but there were no bodies of dead men in sight. To blast out the remaining depths of ice and clear the ravine was a task requiring more aid than we could spare and more powder than we had aboard.

Years before, perhaps half a century, a merchant vessel had made that little bay in distress. Wave and tide had carried her up the creek, and wave and tide had blocked her exit.

If one of the crew got away up to the ravine, why not all of them? And yet no other body or remains were to be found on the island. This man, who may have been the captain, probably started out by himself to see if there was a chance of escape, but in making his way up the ravine he perished of cold and hunger. There was scarce a hope for the others. If they left the hull they were forced to return to it for shelter and food. There came a day when food and fuel were exhausted, when avalanches of snow covered the decks and the cold of winter froze the marrow of their bones, and they hid away in forecabin and cabin and died with open eyes staring into the darkness. Upon our return to London the case was reported and made much of in the papers, but no government or individual has ever gone farther than we did. A hulk lies there full of dead men—a hulk which sailed the waters of the frozen seas half a century ago—and there it will lie until time is no more and chaos reigns again. It might be blasted out, but of what use? The solving of one mystery of the sea more or less would count for but little.

That had it not been for said false and fraudulent representations so made by the defendants, plaintiff would not have executed the deeds heretofore referred to, and plaintiff prays for the cancellation of said deeds from the plaintiff to defendant Edward Kennedy, and from said Edward Kennedy to the said defendant W. V. Kennedy and R. S. Lemon, and for judgement decreeing the title to said lands in plaintiff, for costs of suits, etc.

It is said that recently a preacher after his sermon, requested everyone in his congregation who were paying their debts to stand up. Instantly every man, woman and child, with one exception, arose to their feet. He seated the crowd and then said: "Let every man who is not paying his debts, stand up." The exception noted, a careworn, hungry-looking clothed in his last summer's suit, individual, slowly assumed a perpendicular position and leaned upon the back of the bench in front of him. "How is it, my friend," asked the minister, "that you are the only man in this large congregation that is not able to meet his obligations?"

"I publish a newspaper," he meekly replied, "and my brethren here who have just stood up all subscribers, and—" "Let us pray," exclaimed the minister.

D. D. Bishop, a prosperous farmer living near Hearne, Texas, while in that city recently making a shipment of hogs to Ft. Worth, stated that the war in the East did not bother him, as he had not raised a stalk of cotton in 12 years, but good hogs and good stock instead. He plants his 60 acres in Spanish peanuts, corn, peas, sorghum, etc., and raises everything he uses except flour, sugar and coffee.

The boys dormitory of Clarendon college burned down last week, entailing a loss of about $7,500 with $4,000 insurance. Plans are already under way for the construction of a brick building, which will be completed by the opening of school next year.

The Magic Washing Stick.

"The Magic Washing Stick is just fine. It did just what you said it would and the clothes were so nice and white with all that hard rubbing left off," writes Mrs. Sarah Goodale, Preston, Texas. The Magic Stick is not a soap nor a washing powder. Sold by druggists, three 10c sticks for 25c, or by mail from A. B. Richards Medicine Co. Sherman, Tex.

We Bet He is Wrong.

Wilbarger County will make practically as much cotton this season as any two counties in this west of Bowie. Experts say that the crop will reach a thousand bales of fluffy cotton, besides the bollies. Mighty bet to beat—Vernon Record. The Index editor will bet the record editor that Wilbarger county will not make any ways more than twice the cotton of any county west of Bowie. Hall county will make more than Wilbarger and Childress will make Wilbarger for second year. And with this Wilbarger is almost twice the size of Childress county and larger than Hall county. And again the record raisers tell us there will be no bollies this year. The record editor is a good one to bet but a mighty poor guesser—Childress Index.

The proposition of organizing a Beef Club in Hall county is being discussed by progressive citizens. We may have something definite on this subject in the near future for the members of the Democrat. This would be a great thing for Hall county and especially the boys who are interested in the raising of livestock.

Join The Fire Prevention Army.

By S. W. English.

The fire demon is no respecter of persons. The palace of the great and the humble cot of the poor all look alike to him. He is ever on the alert to collect his tolls. And whenever he levies tribute, the wealth of the world contributes, for he is the great destroyer of material things.

Once he lays clutches on property, he clings tenaciously to his food.

He is hard to conquer, but he can be out-generated and that without strategy.

He can make a long siege, but as long as care and caution is exercised in a common-sense way, he cannot batter down the citadel. If you want to feed the fire demon, you must be his ally. As long as you keep your line of defense intract, use prudence and let your hands, as well as your wits, have play, the fire demon is forced to delay his attacks.

Clean up! Don't put off until tomorrow. It may be too late. Waste and trash and litter are fire promoters.

And they also are first aids in keeping fire insurance rates at the top notch.

Fort Worth—Four carloads of fresh beef have been loaded here by a local packing plant and sent on its way to England where it will be used to feed the soldiers of that country. The product was valued at $10,000 and is the second big order received by the local concern from a belligerent nation during the last two months.

Temple—The one crop idea is doomed in this section of the State and it is a foregone conclusion that diversification will be paramount in the minds of Bell County tillers next season. Preparation are already under way to reduce cotton acreage about 50 per cent and devote more space in 1915 to the growing of grain and forage crops.

Today the United States occupies the proudest position in the galaxy of nations. At peace with all the world, all the warring powers have entrusted it with the management of their diplomatic affairs. The United States is more than at peace with the world. It has become the world's storekeeper and the world's only safe banker. It is the earth's unparalleled granary the one bright spot where peace and prosperity abide.

Beaumont—A tract of land, consisting of 14,315 acres, and which is located near Voth in this County, has been sold by the owner, J. Frank Keith, to a St. Louis firm for a consideration of $171,870. The land was purchased for the express purpose of being cut up into small farms and colonized. The buyers will make a number of improvements before the property is settled. People from Missouri and other points North will locate on the land.

San Benito—Cabbage, beans, eggplant, peppers, tomatoes and other vegetables are being shipped from here daily in large quantities by local growers. The first carload shipment of cabbage left recently and it brought the producers a good price. The season opened a little earlier this year than usual and prospects are bright for a profitable year.

Brownwood—What is considered to be a new record in sweet potato production in this part of the State has been established by C. B. Heard, a farmer residing near here. Mr. Heard's potato patch yielded 200 bushels of yams per acre, which is considered to be an exceedingly heavy production on unirrigated land. The product is selling for $1.00 per bushel.

Freeport—The meeting held here one day last week by the Freeport Commerce League for the purpose of discussing the development enterprises on foot in this city, was attended by probably one of the largest crowds ever assembled at this place. The day was a big success and those present were elaborately entertained at the Tarpon Inn. Fifty-eight people were present, including E. P. Swenson and E. G. Warfield of New York, Governor-elect Ferguson and many other prominent Texans.

Galveston—One million dollars rolled into the coffers of Texas people one day last week the source of which was through the exportation of $1,000,000 worth of Texas products to foreign countries. The exports for the one day consisted of 10,789 bales of cotton, 250,880 bushels of wheat and 39,266 sacks of cotton seed meal, all of which were produced in Texas.

Crude Thoughts From The Editorial Pen

DIFFERENT WAYS OF LOOKING AT THINGS.

Many things in this life may be set to music—and gay music at that—but how many are going along humming a dirge instead of an anthem.

Some sit down and cry; others turn their faces to the wall and pout; while others stand up to conquer.

Happy is the bee, who, under the clouded skies looks for blossoming flowers.

First Bird—"Weary of emigration. No one to pay me for song. Only here to be shot at."

Second Bird—"I have a banquet of a thousand wheat fields; aisle of forest to walk in."

First Horse—"Nothing to do but pull, pull, pull, and stand out in the cold and have icicles froze on my nose."

Second Horse—"And he gives a horse laugh and says, 'Look at that field of corn I helped cultivate; what a useful life I have been permitted to live. How kind my masters are, always patting me on the nose and saying 'poor Charlie.'"

You hear people storming about other people. They say, "Just look the way they dress their hair, it's as a pyramid; just look at those hats," and so on.

INFLUENCE.

Not by words and action alone are we influencing those about us, but by our very presence. We never meet anyone, even in passing, that we do not receive, and in turn make an impression, either pleasant or unpleasant.

WE ARE ALL POOR

How much are you worth? Measure by the tape line of this world's valuation you are rich or poor, worth much or little, according to the dollars you own.

Shrouds have no pockets. All the wealth of the universe could not purchase a single moment of time or help a man to retain his hold upon his earthly riches for one hour.

It is said that a man cannot possess anything that is better than a good woman nor anything worse than a bad one.

If children hear only pleasant tones, commendable words, good grammar, find much true harmony, in their early childhood, they would acquire habits, not only of speech, but of feeling and conduct that would be prophecies of right action in maturity.

What kind of a disposition does the mother expect her children to have when, because it accidentally struck itself against some article of furniture she bids it, "hit the nasty old thing for hitting baby."

There are some people who apparently live more for the admiration of others than for those of their own homes, and have a smile for all except the ones that should be nearest and dearest to them, and indeed they could take no surer plan to wreck their own happiness or the happiness of the home.

When you have spoken the word, it reigns over you; but while it is not spoken, you reign over it.

SIFTINGS.

California is advertising its canning industry in moving picture theaters all over the world.

A recent novel sight in Brunswick, Maine, was a threshing machine hauled by a yoke of oxen driven with reins like horses.

Holland's bulb industry will suffer from the war, but the growers have determined to pay lower wages and destroy a third of the crop.

Owing to the apparent scarcity of gardeners in London in consequence of the war, women who ordinarily do only the kid-glove tasks of gardening are now working energetically with spades and rakes.

W. B. Henson of Merrimac, Texas, and his two sons are making a specialty of growing ribbon cane and making fine syrup. Mr. Henson recently shipped a carload of cane to Dallas for which he received $600.

Cures Old Sores, Other Remedies Won't Cure. The worst cases, no matter how long standing, are cured by the wonderful, old reliable Dr. Porter's Antiseptic Healing Oil.

FOR BETTER POTATOES.

It is not generally known that best potatoes come from seed obtained from a far distant point. W. A. Orton, a United States department of agriculture pathologist, says that a large part of the territory of southern, south central and western states obtains better results from seed potatoes grown near the northern border of Maine, New York, Minnesota and other northern states.

Replanting diseased seed potatoes in the same localities merely brings poor stock. Fresh potatoes from distant points, minus blemishes, will cure the evil. The fact that newly irrigated or recently deforested portions of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan are being planted to potatoes makes the information more valuable.

The essential thing here as elsewhere is healthy seed potatoes, preferably obtained from distant points. Thus if a garden has been blighted with bad seed potatoes, it may eventually be purified by better stock, cultivation and fertilization.

TO USE SURPLUS POTASH.

Chemists Report That Crops Are in No Immediate Danger.

Because of the action of the German government in prohibiting the exportation of concentrated potash salts reports have been made indicating that farmers were becoming alarmed over the consequences of a possible restriction in the supply of commercial fertilizers.

One of these chemists has given his views as follows: Potash is one of the three elements most essential to plant growth. Practically all soils suitable for farming contain potash in available and also in unavailable form.

Potash is one of the three elements most essential to plant growth. Practically all soils suitable for farming contain potash in available and also in unavailable form. As plant life takes potash only to the extent of its needs, if there is any excess in the soil it will remain until used, as potash does not leach out of the ground.

The problem of the individual farmer is to conserve his potash, which can be done in the following way: Green manuring or turning under a cover crop, dressing heavily with barnyard manure, balancing chicken manure with nitrate of soda and acid phosphate, saving wood ashes to mix with nitrate of soda and acid phosphate and rendering inert soil potash available.

Nitrate of soda will do more than any other agent to render soil potash available. The potash that can be made available in the soil is usually in the form of hydrated silicate of potash and alumina. The nitrogen in nitrate of soda, having been assimilated by the plants, leaves a residue of soda which acts on the hydrated silicate of potash and alumina and renders the potash available.

As the amount of potash which can be made available in any soil is quite limited, the process of freeing it is only a temporary measure to meet an emergency, and it must eventually be replaced. Every 100 pounds of nitrate of soda will split off fifty to fifty-five pounds of actual potash and assure successful crops for a time where no additional potash is used.

Handy Section Nests.

The sketch shows a plan for ten nests which I find very easy to clean, says William C. Albright in the Farm and Fireside. Just lift each section off and sweep the top of the section below. There is no bottom to clean.

A is a platform thirty inches wide and as long as desired; B is a 1 by 4 inch strip to hold the nest material; C are boards 1 by 12 by 13 inches which are partitions between nests; D is a 1 by 4 for hens to walk on to get in upper section; E is a 1 by 12 inch board, the top of the first section.

The bottom section is suspended by wires so that it hangs about two feet from the floor, and the platform, A, is placed against the wall. A burriap curtain is hung over the front of the nests to darken them, but can be pushed aside when you wish to gather the eggs.

Roots For Feed.

Roots are excellent feed for dairy cows and are especially desirable for the fall and early winter, as they are palatable, easy to digest and stimulate the flow of milk. Less grain is required while roots are being fed. The change from roots to more grain should be made gradually, adding grain at the rate of one pound for ten pounds of roots withdrawn.

DRAFT HORSES IN AMERICA.

As Good Stock Can Be Raised Here as Abroad. (Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

The best breeds of draft horses are now so well established in the United States that experts of the United States department of agriculture believe that the European war, which has interfered seriously with importations, will not injure breeding in this country. It is, in fact, asserted that the American people will now have an opportunity to see for themselves that as good stock can be raised in this country as any that can be imported.

The leading characteristic of good draft horses is massiveness, for their chief usefulness is the hauling of heavy loads. In consequence power, not speed, is desired. To possess this power a horse should be compact, low set, or short legged, and be able to throw a great deal of weight into his collar without losing a secure footing. A draft horse of the best type should therefore weigh at least 1,600 pounds, and in localities where the heaviest breeds are common any animal under this is classed as a light drafter. In good drafters the chest is deep and broad, the girth large and the body broad, deep and comparatively short, with well sprung ribs. The muscles of the hind quarters and thighs must be well developed, for it is these that furnish the chief drawing power, the front legs acting largely as weight carriers. Good legs and feet, with clean, heavy bone, are very essential. In action the draft horse should walk with a rapid stride of good length, the feet being carried straight forward. This kind of action covers considerable ground in a short time. The ability to trot well is also desirable, but the walk is the draft horse's gait.

Today the Percheron probably outnumber in this country all other breeds combined. In fair condition a mature stallion will weigh from 1,800 to 2,000 pounds, though many exceed this. In height it runs from sixteen to seventeen hands and in color is usually either black or gray. The Percheron stallion has proved very popular for crossing with ordinary mares, and grade Percherons are great favorites in our markets.

Loss of Barnyard Manure.

File up the manure of the barnyard with no protection from leaching and other detrimental actions of nature, and more than 20 per cent of the fertilizing strength of the manure is lost. Put down a bed of earth and on this pile the manure, spreading a thin coat of earth occasionally and finally when the heap is completed, cover it with a thick coat of earth. The result has been that only about 2 per cent of the fertilizing strength of the manure has been lost. Tested in the field, earth preserved manure has been found to yield on a potato crop three times as much as the carelessly kept and unprotected manure.

Soon the cattle will be in the stalls for winter feeding and the time for making the manure heaps will begin. This is a year when conserving everything that is useful that has been going to waste should command the attention of the farmer.—Home and Farmstead.

SOMETHING ABOUT CATTLE

No farmer who has not tried it should engage in the cattle feeding business on a large scale at the start. He will find, and generally at pretty high cost, that experience and good judgment are needed as much as corn to lay the fat on a bunch of steers at a profit.

The power of production in a cow is inherited. If the cow is a good dairy animal by inheritance and is given good care and feed she will become more productive as she increases in age. The quantity rather than the quality of her milk is influenced by feed.

It costs just so much to put a pound of meat on an animal, and if it is lost during the winter, from low feeding or exposure, it is just that much extracted from the owner's pocket. It is much more profitable and sensible to retain every pound of flesh gained and also if possible to keep each animal improving all through the winter.

Pure bred dairy cattle will often be the keynote to great profit from the farm. What is the use of keeping an indifferent, nonproducing animal of any description when one that will make a handsome profit will take no more room, no more care and no more feed?

Saved Girl's Life

"I want to tell you what wonderful benefit I have received from the use of Thedford's Black-Draught," writes Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky.

"It certainly has no equal for la grippe, bad colds, liver and stomach troubles. I firmly believe Black-Draught saved my little girl's life. When she had the measles, they went in on her, but one good dose of Thedford's Black-Draught made them break out, and she has had no more trouble. I shall never be without

Marvels of Sculpture, Architecture, Color, Wonderful Gardens, Vast Facades, Tremendous Colonnades, Great Towers and Minarets, Characterize City of Palaces on Shores of San Francisco Bay

Months before its opening day, on February, 20, 1915, the vast Panama-Pacific International Exposition, at which the United States will celebrate the opening of the Panama canal, had been completed and the installation of the world's exhibits begun.

The exposition today stands revealed as a supreme triumph in architecture, a marvelous fairyland come true, overshadowing and eclipsing every other exposition in the history of the world.

In the stupendous exhibit palaces wonderful exhibits from England, from Germany, from the Netherlands, from Portugal, from Spain, from Italy, from Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Japan, China, the Argentine, Bolivia, and India, all portions of the world will delight the vast throngs that meet in San Francisco.

Shortly after the European war broke out the Netherlands government increased its fund for official participation from $100,000 to $400,000; Japan applied for more exhibit space; Italy ratified its appropriation of $400,000 and ordered construction rushed upon the wonderful Italian pavilions; Denmark, Sweden and Norway proceeded actively with their plans and exhibitors from Germany and England applied for exhibit space.

The greatest live stock show in the world's history will be held during the period of the exposition. More than half a million dollars is assured in premiums and prizes for this colossal exhibition. Many new breeds of live stock will be shown, including the Bretonnese and the Boulonnaise from Brittany and Boulogne, France, the subjects of special interest on the part of the French government, which desires to foster a demand abroad for registered animals of this class.

The huge "Zone," the vast amusement section, will delight visitors from all parts of the world.

Hundreds of great congresses and conventions will be held in San Francisco.

Those who are planning to visit America's great show in 1915 may take advantage of the following offer:

MARVELS OF YELLOWSTONE PARK IN VAST REPRODUCTION
PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION, SAN FRANCISCO, 1915

Copyright, 1914, by Panama Pacific International Exposition Company.

One of the most marvelous features of the huge Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco in 1915 will be a gigantic representation of the Yellowstone National park, built by the Union Pacific railroad at a cost of $400,000, under the supervision of Mr. J. R. Kathrens, the famous producer, who is now in San Francisco supervising the work. In the background of the picture is seen an exact duplication of the Old Faithful inn. The large circular space in the center of the picture will be filled by a topographical map 220 feet in diameter and reproducing the topographical features of the park. The man on the right is looking over a cliff 100 feet high; a little below him there will be a waterfall 85 feet high, falling into a great basin below the cliff. There will be wonderful geysers in the park, which will be one of the most attractive sections of the "Zone."

The above view shows this wonderful exhibit as it appeared while under construction in September, 1914.

Fruits Adapted to Hall County.

List of varieties of fruit recommended to plant in Hall county Texas. Mentioned in their order of ripening.

Peaches:—Mayflower, Victor, Greensboro, Wheeler, Mamie Ross, Slappy, Carman Crosby, Old Mixon Cling, Belle of Georgia, Champion, Ringgold Cling, Phillips Clings, Stinsons October.

Plums:—Milton, America, Miner, Minco.

Apples:—Yellow Transparent, Red June, Benoni, Fanny, San Jacinto, Bledsoe, Maidens Blush, Jonathan, Rome Blanty, Stayman, Winesap.

Crab Apples:—Florence, Hyslop.

Pears:—Bartlett, Duchesses, Gerber, Kleffer.

Cherries:—Dyehouse, Early Richmond, Montmorency.

Grapes:—Campbells Early, Moores Early, Brilliant, Niagara, Worden, Delaware, Carman, Fern Munson.

Dewberry:—Austin

The varieties named above combine hardness with quality and a strong tendency to begin bearing early. If strong and healthy trees of these varieties are carefully planted in good soil well prepared on the highest elevations on the farm and properly cared for the late spring frosts will seldom kill their fruit. The varieties will often mature good crops of fruit under conditions which cause many other varieties to fail. The writer has grown 94 varieties of peaches alone in Texas and has often seen good crops matured on trees of the varieties mentioned above when Elberta and other tender sorts under similar conditions failed to mature any fruit at all.

Last Friday Wiley Orr, the photographer of our town, was called to the J. B. Russell farm four miles west of Estelline to take some photographs of the cotton pickers that were employed at that place. There were fifty-two pickers and they picked from seven to fourteen bales per day. Each picker ranging from 300 to 700 pounds per day. Mr. Russell had about 350 acres in cotton and expects to get at least 250 bales this year and expects to hold it until cotton advances. He also expects to reduce his acreage very materially next year. Mr. Orr took several pictures of the pickers and field and will have them on exhibition at his studio here in Memphis.
