COURT OF GRAND JURY

Diligent work for seven days. Grand Jury Adjourns Present Term.
The Hon. J. A. Nabers of the 46th Judicial District, Texas, presiding.
The Grand Jury in and for county empaneled at the term 1913 have been in session seven days and now begin this their final report. They have diligently inquired into violations of the law that come to our knowledge and the result of our labor we have thirteen felony indictments, and eighteen misdemeanors. We find that all officers have been diligent in looking after infractions of law, and most of the minor offenses have been brought to desire to call attention to that the law prohibiting the sale or gift of tobacco in any amount to any person under 16 years of age is being violated about the county and it is a common thing to see a boy with a pack of cigarettes on our streets. We would like to see parents co-operate with the officials and prosecute violators of this law.

We also desire to call attention to the fact that the law requires that a registered pharmacist, and that the pharmacist certificate shall be in a conspicuous place in the office of business, we call attention to this law and to the fact that local and county officers should enforce this law to protect the public against dangerous poisons and the danger of poisoning.
We further find that worthless prescriptions being traded for cash and real property at good citizens, are being sold out of their property. We think that all persons should inquire into the worth of a note before purchasing it at the District Attorney's office and all offenders.

and that the roof of the building in need of repair and at the County Commission's order to be repaired.
We wish to thank the court for the parties shown us during session, and also to thank county and District Attorney for aid and assistance rendered us.
This brief report we ask to be finally discharged.
J. F. BRADLEY,
Foreman of Grand Jury.

POSTOFFICE PRIMARY HELD LAST SATURDAY.

Big Crowd in Town and All Were Good Natured. While Candidates Worked Hard All Day.

R. F. SHEPHERD

Committee elected to assist him in holding the election met Monday morning in Judge Thorne's office and canvassed the returns and officially announced the returns. Shepherd just liked nine votes receiving a majority of all votes cast and Mr. Bird being next high man, respectfully declined to press his rights for a second primary and so indicated in writing to County Chairman Thorne and the Committee and withdraws in favor of Shepherd. Our people are very glad of the chance to select their postmaster by primary and the result seems to have given general satisfaction.

W. T. REED DEAD

Former Memphis Citizen Dies at El Centro, California.

The many friends of our former fellowtownsman, W. T. Reed, will learn with regret of his death which happened in El Centro, California, on Friday of last week. Mr. Reed and family left Memphis a little over a year ago and have since made their home in the Golden State. The many friends of this good family will join the Democrat in deepest words of sympathy for the sorrowing family.

Powell For Assessor.

In this week's issue appears the name of A. G. Powell as candidate for the office of Tax Assessor of Hall County. Mr. Powell needs no introduction to the most of our Hall County citizens, but for the benefit of those who have come among us in the past few months, we will say that Mr. Powell has been one of the leading pioneer citizens of Hall county for the past twenty four years, and during this period has put forth his best efforts in the up building of Memphis and Hall county.

His qualifications for the fulfillment of the duties of this office is unquestionable, and if elected will fill the office with satisfaction to all and honor to himself. He therefore submits his name to the qualified voters of Hall county at the coming Democratic primary election next July, for their consideration.

Webster Announces for Tax Assessor

Chas. R. Webster authorizes us to announce his candidacy for election to the office of Tax Assessor of Hall county and his name appears in the announcement column of the Democrat. Mr. Webster wants to state to the voters of the county that he wants the office again and seeks re-election on the record scored during his incumbency as tax assessor, and invites fullest investigation of such records at the hand of the citizenship. He promises equal fidelity to duty and the business of the people if again honored with the office of assessor and submits his name to the Democratic voters of Hall county at the coming primary next July.

In accordance with the instructions given Democratic County Chairman R. J. Thorne by Congressman Stephens, an election was held Saturday to decide who the voters of this precinct wanted for postmaster. There were seven candidates in the race and all worked hard all day, and up until the polls were closed at seven o'clock.

The total number of votes polled were four hundred and twenty four. J. D. Bird and B. F. Shepherd were the leading candidates. Mr. Bird receiving 119 votes and Mr. Shepherd 204. The other five candidates receiving 101 votes all told. County Chairman Thorne and the

Those attending the moving picture show this week have had the pleasure of seeing a real live Indian. It is a little out of the ordinary to see an Indian in this section now-a-days.

The First Monday crowd was large and all good natured. Quite a lot of trading and selling was done. W. J. B. Richards, the mule buyer, tells us he purchased 22 head of fine mules Monday at very nice prices.

The government reports for cotton ginned in Hall county up to December 20, 1913, shows 12,832 bales against 18,504 in 1912. There will probably be about two hundred more bales ginned in the county this season.

Mr. Rosamond informs us that he will soon begin the overhauling of his east gin and rebuild his west gin. He will also build a large cotton house to be used for the storing of seed cotton. These repairs and new buildings will be ready for the new crop of 1914.

J. J. Wills has just recently returned from Waco where he has been attending the school of S. D. N. school of music for ten weeks. BOY ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Eleven-Year-Old Boy Killed By Accidental Discharge of Target Rifle

Sammie, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Deering, living three miles below Lodge in this county, was accidentally shot in the back by the discharge of a target rifle in the hands of another young man about ten o'clock Thursday night while a crowd of folks were out shivareeing New Year night. Medical aid was summoned at once. The young man was brought to Memphis Friday morning and an X ray picture was taken. He was removed to Wilson Sanitarium and the bullet was finally located in the liver. The bullet caused paralysis of the body from the abdomen down. Death came early Monday morning to relieve the little fellow of his suffering.

The remains were conveyed to Newlin for burial which took place Tuesday afternoon. The sorrowing relatives have the heart-felt sympathy of this entire community in the sad loss of this loving boy.

Cattle Raising in Brazil

The cattle producing possibilities of Brazil have been overlooked because of the superiority of the Argentine as a stock fattening country. The most suitable land in Brazil now being utilized for grazing cattle is in the State of Rio Grand do Sul, Parana, Santa Catharina, Sao Paulo, Minas Geraes, Goyaz, Matto Grosso, Bahia, Ceara and Piaudy. All the territory in the southernmost State of Brazil, Rio Grand do Sul, in which are already located numerous ranches, has railroads carrying its products to the ports on the Atlantic. The absence of reasonable railroad transportation rates has prevented the cattle business from becoming profitable in most districts of Brazil. Shipment has been conducted, therefore, on a limited scale. Driving from one point to another must at present be resorted to, but it is only a question of a few years until this method of bringing the product to the markets will be superseded by modern transportation facilities. Refrigerator freight cars are now being provided, says the Indianapolis News.

While there are no reliable statistics of the pastoral industry in Brazil, it is estimated that there are 30,000,000 cattle in the country, of which Rio Grand do Sul is credited with 8,000,000 and Minas Geraes with 5,000,000. In 1908 the salted beef establishment of Rio Grand do Sul killed 598,000 cattle. In 1911 the State of Minas Geraes sent 349,653 cattle to the slaughter houses of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo. Cattle for consumption in the large centers of population are sold at different markets situated at railroad centers in the interior of the ranching States and are handled as follows: The herdsman acquires the cattle from the rancher and drives them to a central point, where they are purchased by the cattle trader, who in turn sends them to the slaughter houses, where they are purchased by the retail merchant.

For the last two years cattle in Brazil as elsewhere have risen in value, and since the number in Brazil does not supply the local demand, the tendency will be toward a further rise in price. Some six months ago fat steers, weighing 1,000 to 1,100 pounds, delivered at the point of slaughter, sold at $40 to $45, according to quality and condition. This year cattle have advanced in value at least $3 a head, but an expert here estimates that a ranch could be stocked with cows in Matto Grosso, Goyaz or Minas Geraes at not exceeding $23 a head. In the cities of Rio de Janeiro, Bahia, Pernambuco and Sao Paulo the average price of beef is 11c to 16c a pound. On the Amazon the price is much higher.

Ben F. Shepherd and family were here from Memphis Christmas day. They intended to be here in time to help eat one of Mother Shepherd's famous Christmas dinners, but the Denver railway company broke into that little arrangement by not landing them in the city until about 5 p. m. However, they did justice to one of her equally famous Christmas suppers. Ben was a pleasant caller at The News office Tuesday morning. He tells us that he considers his chance very good to be the next postmaster in his home town, and we hasten to assure him that "We're still fer 'im."—Clarendon News.

GOTHAM BOYS WILL VOTE

Most Unique Election in New York in Which Children Will Participate Occurs Today

New York, Dec. 31—The most unique election in the history of New York will be held tomorrow, when 40,000 or more children of the lower East Side will vote in the first primary election of a "juvenile democracy." The movement has been organized by the East Side Protective Association with a view to giving the future citizens a practical training in self-government and politics. The polling places will be at the public schools, and assemblymen, congressmen, mayors and heads of municipal department will be nominated. The general election will be held on Lincoln's birthday, when candidates leading in the primary will be voted on. The original idea was to limit the voting rights to the boys. The announcement to this effect, however, brought forth a vigorous protest from the girls, with the result that a proclamation granting equal suffrage was promptly issued.

COLORADO-GULF HIGHWAY CLEAR

Passable From Trinidad to Raton After Heaviest Snowfall Known

Trinidad, Colo., Jan. 1—The Scenic Highway leading from this city to Raton, New Mexico, over the top of the Raton Range, is open and passable following the heaviest series of snow falls ever recorded in this region. It is over this beautiful scenic road that the Old Santa Fe Trail crosses the Rocky Mountains and the Colorado-to-the-Gulf Highway enters Colorado. It has long been the boast of the people of this community, that it is the only road over the Rocky Mountains, that is open the year round. Following the heavy snows of the last few days it was found that the road was blocked for the first time since it was completed four years ago, and in order to make good the slogan, "Open the Year Around" the citizens of Trinidad and Raton started simultaneously with shovels and drags and after three days of unremitting toil succeeded in opening up the twenty-eight miles of road.

The Scenic Highway, of "El Camino Real," was constructed as a memorial road, by the states of New Mexico and Colorado, making the place where the Old Santa Fe Trail crossed the Rocky Mountains sixty years ago.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during his time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

I had gotten so weak I could not get up in despair.

At last, my husband got me Cardui, the woman's tonic, and commenced taking it. From the first dose, I could tell it was helping me, and now walk two miles a day, and am doing all my usual work.

JANUARY CLEAN-UP SALE

ONE MONTH Beginning Thursday, Jan. 1 and Ending Saturday, Jan. 31, 1914

On account of the very mild fall season and the failure of the cotton crops our customers have not bought the winter goods they will require, consequently we find we are overstocked in a great many lines of winter goods. We never carry over goods from one season to the other and we are going to clean-up this season notwithstanding the low price of cotton and the failure of the crops.

We have not hired an expensive expert sales manager to conduct this sale, but we are taking what we would have had to pay him from the prices of our goods and are giving it to our customers. WHEN YOU ATTEND THIS SALE YOU WILL AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NEVER SEEN SUCH BARGAINS AS WE ARE OFFERING

Don't get the impression that because the weather has been mild so far this year that we will not have any winter. Our coldest months are January, February and March. PLEASANT EVENING REVERIES

A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide

Crude Thoughts From The Editorial Pen

MORE IMPORTANT

Indeed, it is more important for a woman to be good than man. Their influence upon the children is far greater than the parental influence. Furthermore, children, as a rule, inherit their moral qualities much more from their mothers than from their fathers. Consequently, for a boy to make a good, level-headed, true-loving, upright citizen, it is very important for him to have a good mother.

The better we can make the mothers of our land, the better we make our country. The old Roman mother's influence was acknowledged as a most potent one upon the patriotism of the people.

Yet of women are not altogether angels, though many of them are almost. The most an angel they may be however, the more will the race of mankind improve morally.

But for the constant infusion of good, healthy country blood, our cities would stagnate and die.

It is upon the honest motherhood of the rural district that the country must depend mainly for the true, sturdy citizenship that must save us from the anarchical tendencies and influences of our large centers of population.

WHY DON'T YOU?

Why don't you answer your friend's letter at once? It will have double value if written promptly, and will take no more time now than by and by.

Why don't you make the promised visit to that invalid? She is looking for you day after day, and "hope deferred maketh the heart sick."

Why don't you send away that little gift that you've been planning to send? Mere kind intention never accomplishes any good.

Why don't you speak out the encouraging words you have in your thoughts? Unless you express them they are of no use to others.

Why don't you take more pains to be self-sacrificing and loving in every day home life? Time is rapidly passing. Your dear ones will not be with you always.

Why don't you create around you an atmosphere of happiness and helpfulness, so that all who come in touch with you may be made better? Is not this possible?

Why don't you follow in the steps of him who "came not to be ministered unto, but to minister?"

Why don't you?

When we make up the inventory of our lives, if our hearts have any appreciation of true values, if we have learned to distinguish between life's tools and its products, we find that those things we could least afford to lose are those that have come upon us without our labor, perhaps without our deserving, always beyond our powers of purchase. How foolish then, are we, who have the greatest, the enduring treasures by simple taking them, if we waste our powers and our time in striving after the things that are not worth while. There are at least two ways of loving— one is to try to make enough money to be able to buy pleasure or affection or whatever you may most desire, the other is to keep the life ever open to all the joy and love and enriching that is about it.

True marriages mean a subjugation of self, and a losing of one's selfish feelings in love for another. Every man ought to have the certainty that he can find peace and rest from all strife and fret in his home. Every husband ought to feel when he turns the key to enter his own door that he is sure of a sweeter welcome and a more cheerful and more restful atmosphere than he has found outside of it. If each wife would make this the leading resolve of her life the world would be revolutionized.

What kind of a woman are you at home? Are you one of those who chase through life, dust cloth in hand, making everyone in the household uncomfortable because of a little dust-upsetting the peace of the whole family, for the sake of gratifying your passion for housecleaning? Or do you prefer to live as comfortably as possible, choosing rather to have a home a sacred and beloved spot to husband and children, and hold their love above even the sacred duty of chasing microbes?

The woman that saves up her household worries and her bodily pains and aches—entertains her husband with on his return home, drives a sure nail in the coffin of conjugal happiness.

How easy it is to find something to anger us in our relations with our fellowman. Instead of shutting our eyes to it, we are open to every encounter provoking a quarrel. "Sowing discord and reaping tares."

Better Postal Service

Report of Postmaster General Burleson to Congress contains informing data of general interest, the most important statement being that postal service is now on a self-sustaining basis.

This fact is sufficient to cause nation-wide gratification. If any department of the government is operated in the interest of all the people, that is the Postoffice Department, and the fact that its operations have scored business success assures greater development, better facilities, and extension of service, so that a greater number of the nation's millions may receive direct benefit.

Among the suggestions is to be found recommendation for free delivery of mail in villages and systems, which when generally in force, will prove a genuine boon to the small town denizen.

Aerial mail delivery routes are suggested as a matter of experimentation, and the practicability of such a service may be demonstrated in a manner to quiet the carping.

A national lesson is conveyed in statement that the parcel post system has proved an unqualified success and has scored unexpected and marvelous growth in the brief period of its operation. When the parcel post was first broached bitter opposition was raised. But it was a progressive movement, in the interest of the people, and prevailed, as real progress must. And it has already become a fixed and necessary part of the nation's postal service.—Childress Index.

CHANCE PRIZES BARRED BY LAW

Held By Texas Attorney General To Violate Anti-Lottery Statute

Austin, Texas, Jan. 1.—Any scheme for the distribution of prizes by chance is held by the attorney general's department to be a violation of the law prohibiting lotteries.

This question came up over a query submitted by the district attorney at Amarillo who wanted to know if a merchant gives to each customer buying fifty cents worth of goods a ticket bearing a number and a duplicate is issued which is retained by the merchant, and at the end of three months the duplicates were placed in a box and a drawing is conducted and the person holding the original is awarded an automobile, would that constitute a violation of the anti-lottery laws.

The department held it would.

WOMEN FACE TROUBLE ON INCOME TAX FIGHT

Refusal to Make Returns to Collector as Much Violation of Law as Refusal to Pay, Is Claim.

Washington, Jan. 1.—Women who follow the advice of Mr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National Woman's Suffrage Association, to offer "passive resistance" to the income tax law; lay themselves open to serious trouble with the government in the opinion of the treasury department. In a letter addressed to "unfranchised women of America," Dr. Shaw advocated that they decline to aid the government in levying taxes upon them by refusing to render an account of their property.

Treasury officials point out that it is just as much a violation of the law to refuse to make returns to the collector as to refuse to pay the tax after the assessment has been made. A fine of from $20 to $1,000 is the penalty provided and treasury officials declare they propose to enforce the law.

School Apportionment For January Announced

Austin, Texas, Jan. 1.—The January apportionment for the three schools of Texas will not exceed 50c per capita, according to statement made by Superintendent of Public Instruction W. F. Dougherty. The apportionment is to be made Friday. This will be the third apportionment of the present scholastic year and will bring the total up to $1.75 per capita, leaving $5.25 per capita yet to be apportioned.

No More Railroad Passes in Illinois

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 31.—All the railroads doing business in Illinois will tomorrow abolish the pass privilege, except as it applies to their employees. This is in compliance with a stringent provision in the new Public Utilities act. Another provision of the same act forbids individual and corporations from attempting to secure service from the railroads at less than the scheduled rates.

Arkansas Puts Lid on Liquor Traffic

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 31.—The hardest blow ever dealt the liquor traffic in Arkansas becomes effective at midnight, which is the time fixed for the coming into operation of the Going law, which was enacted by the last legislature. The law requires a petition signed by the majority of the white adults of a community before a license can be issued to conduct a saloon. It is believed that virtual prohibition throughout the State will result from the operation of the law.

Corn Supply Running Short

McKinney, Texas—A bulletin just issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture shows that there were 416,000 bushels of old corn in the Texas granaries when the 1913 crop was gathered. Had the harvesting of the new cereal been delayed another week, the Texas farmer would have had to turn his livestock into the pasture, as this amount of corn would feed the domestic animals of Texas only three times.

BOATS THROUGH CANAL IN NEXT SEVENTY DAYS

High Official at Washington Talks Regarding Work at Panama

Washington, Jan. 3 The Panama Canal will be in condition to pass steamships all the way across the isthmus within the next seventy days, it was learned today, unless unexpected obstacles are encountered. This is the judgement of a high canal official, who declines to fix the date more definitely.

The only remaining obstacles to prevent the passage of vessels now are the Cucaracha slide, which blocks the cut at Culebra, and other small slide in the same locality. Dredging is progressing satisfactorily at those places. In view of uncertain conditions surrounding the work it has been deemed impolitic to attempt to fix a definite date for the opening. Even after a passage is possible several months must be spent in training the operating force before the waterway is opened to commerce.

ARKANSAS LIQUOR RULING

Argenta Petition for Return of Saloons Held Invalid

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 3.—The first County Court ruling on liquor petitions under the Going law, effective Jan. 1, requiring signatures of the majority of white adults, both men and women, before saloons can be opened, was made by Judge Asher yesterday in the Argenta case. The Argenta petition was printed in the Argenta paper several weeks before the law took effect. Judge Asher held that the publication is void because petitions must be printed ten days before they are filed in court. The Argenta paper again printed the petition yesterday, which means the case can not again be heard until July 12.

The saloons in Little Rock and Argenta remain closed, but large shipments of liquor are being received by citizens from St. Louis firms.

Government to Improve Old Canal

El Paso—The old "acequia" or irrigation ditch running through the southern part of this city, and now known as the Franklin canal, will be improved at an early date. The work will be done by the United States Government through the Reclamation Service at a cost of about $200,000.

PELLAGRA CAUSES MUCH ALARM.

Congress to Be Urged to Make Appropriation to Aid in Fighting Disease.

Washington, Jan. 3.—So alarm ing are reports of the spread of pellagra laid before Secretary McAdoo by Surgeon General Blue of the Public Health Service that Congress probably will be urged to make a special appropriation to rent a hospital building in the South establish laboratories there and make a study of the disease in all its phases.

Although pellagra is far more prevalent in the Southwestern States, it is estimated there have been more than 50,000 cases in the entire country, the disease having been found in forty four States and the District of Columbia.

While pellagra has been recognized for several hundred years, it still is one of the most baffling diseases with which the medical profession deals.

The Public Health Service has been struggling with an investigation of pellagra since its discovery in this country a half dozen years ago, but its rapid spread has led to a determination to urge Congress to act quickly.

Planks From Radford's Platform

Marketing of farm produce should receive the diligent attention of the next Legislature.

New areas of opportunity should be opened up for the home owner, the laborer and the investor.

Legislative facilities should be provided for co-operative ownership of cotton gins; the establishing of a warehouse system and securing funds on storage cotton.

There should be breathed into our statutes the spirit of the builder, and hope and encouragement for the conscientious and ambitious should abound in our laws.

We need to install legislative machinery adapted to permitting and encouraging co-operative business concerns and facilitating co-operation between different lines of industry.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Burglary at Gilder's.

"The entrance of the butler brought the inspector's thoughts back to the matter in hand. 'My man,' he said authoritatively, 'want you to go up to the open scuttle. You'll find me waiting up there. Bring me here. They're police officers get 'em down here, and go to bed and stay there till I understand?'"

"Gilder looked at his master for a moment. Receiving a nod, he said: 'Well, sir.'"

"Do you know they're going to break into the house tonight," Gilder asked of Burke, "or do you only think they're going to break into the house?"

"I fixed it," Gilder said.

"Did it through a stool pigeon," Gilder interrupted doubtfully.

Burke agreed; "stool pigeon" was a name for him. Really, the vilest thing that crawls.

"If you think that," Gilder exclaimed, "why do you have anything to do with that sort of person?"

"It's his good business," the inspector replied. "We know he's a spy and a traitor and that every time he hears us ought to use a disguise. But we deal with him just because we have to. Now, this stool pigeon in this trick is a swell crook. He went to Garson with a scheme to rob you."

"He tried out Mary Turner, too," Gilder told Mary Turner, who met Griggs afterward and pulled it off. Griggs got word that it's coming off tonight, and see, Mr. Gilder, that's how I

Gilder admitted without any shame. "But why do you have me come down over the roof?"

"I can't safe to bring them in the way. It's a cinch the house is watched. I wish you would let me have your latch key. I want to go back and make this collar my own."

"Why not stay, now that you are here?"

"Some of them saw me come down here wouldn't be anything doing after they saw me go out again."

"The hall door opened, and the butler entered the room. Behind him came two or three detectives in plain clothes. At a word from his superior the disturbed Thomas his

"Burke went on briskly as the door closed behind the servant. 'Could these men stay out of my room until they're needed?'"

"I followed a little discussion ended in the selection of a room at the end of the passage on the ground floor."

"Now, Mr. Gilder," the inspector energetically, "I'm going to show you the same tip I gave your man. Go to bed and stay there."

"The boy," Gilder protested, "what about him? He's the one thing I care about."

"He says anything more about going to Chicago just you let him go. It's the best place for him for the next few days."

"You're in charge here," Burke said to Cassidy, "and I hold you responsible. I'm coming back to get this key myself, and I'll call you when I want it. You'll wait in the room out there and don't make a sound until you hear from me, unless by chance things go wrong and you call for Griggs. He's got a key, and he'll use it if necessary. That straight?" Cassidy declared with understanding of the direction.

"The men left the room Burke called again to Gilder.

"Just one thing more," he said. "After you're gone I want you to stay up for an hour, anyhow, with the lights on. Do you see? I want to be able to give the Turner woman time to get here while that gang is at it."

Gilder scrupulously followed the directions of the police inspector. Until he had remained in the library the allotted time was elapsed. He moved from place to place, his mind heavy with distress under the shadow that threatened to blight the life of his cherished son. Finally, with a sense of relief he put out the lights and went to his chamber.

His thoughts were most with his son, and ever as he thought of Dick his fury waxed against the woman who had ensnared the boy in her plotting for vengeance on himself. And into his thoughts now crept a doubt, one that alarmed his sense of justice. A horrible suspicion that he had misjudged Mary Turner crept into his brain and would not out. He fought it with all the strength of him, and that was much, but ever it abode there.

Mary Turner herself, too, was in a condition utterly wretched, and for the same cause—Dick Gilder. That source of the father's suffering was hers as well. She had won her ambition of years—revenge on the man who had sent her to prison. And now the joy of it was a torture, for the puppet of her plans, the son, had suddenly become the chief thing in her life.

She had taken it for granted that he would leave her after he came to know that her marriage to him was only a device to bring shame on his father. Instead he loved her. That fact seemed the secret of her distress. He loved her. More, he dared believe, and to assert boldly, that she loved him. Had he acted otherwise the matter would have been simple enough. But he loved her—loved her still, though he knew the shame that had clouded her life, knew the motive that had led her to accept him as a husband. More—a sublime audacity he declared that she loved him.

There came a thrill in her heart each time she thought of that—that she loved him. The idea was monstrous, of course, and yet—Here, as always, she broke off, a hot flush blazing in her cheeks.

Mary Turner was just ready for bed when a note came by a messenger who waited for no answer, as he told the yawning maid. As Mary read the roughly scrawled message, she was caught in the grip of terror. The man who had saved her from death had yielded to temptation. As he had saved her so she must save him. She hurried into the gown she had just put off. Then she went to the telephone book and searched for the number of Gilder's house.

A few moments before Mary Turner received the note from the hands of the sleepy maid one of the slaves of the octagonal window in the library of Richard Gilder's town house swung open under the persuasive influence of a thin rod of steel, cunningly used, and Joe Garson stepped confidently into the dark room.

For a space he rested motionless, listening intently. Reassured, he drew out an electric torch and set it glowing. A little disk of light touched here and there about the room, traveling very swiftly and in methodical circles. Satisfied by the survey, Garson crossed to the hall door, where he listened for any sound of life without and found none. The door into the passage that led to the storeroom where the detectives waited next engaged his businesslike attention. And here again there was naught to provoke his suspicion.

It seemed to him that everything was in readiness for the coming of his associates. There remained only to give them the signal in the room around the corner where they waited at a telephone. He seated himself in Gilder's chair at the desk and drew the telephone to him.

"Give me 999 Bryant," he said. There was a little wait. Then an answer in a voice he knew came over the wire.

Garson picked up a penholder from the desk and began tapping lightly on the rim of the transmitter. It was a code message in Morse. In the room around the corner the tapping sounded clearly, ticking out the message that the way was free for the thieves' coming.

For a final safeguard Garson searched for and found the telephone bell box and unscrewed the bells, which he placed on the desk. He then took his pistol from his hip pocket and thrust it into the right side pocket of his coat. Once again, now, he produced the electric torch and lighted it as he extinguished the lamp on the table.

He then went to the door into the hall, opened it and, leaving it ajar, made his way in silence to the outer doorway. The doors there were freed of their bolts, and one of them swung wide. So nicely had the affair been timed that hardly was the door open before the three men slipped in and stood mute and motionless in the hall while Garson refastened the doors. Then Garson walked quickly back to the library. Behind him, with steps as noiseless as his own, came the three men.

When all were gathered in the library Garson shut the hall door, touched the button in the wall beside it, and the chandelier threw its radiant light on the group.

Griggs was in evening clothes, seeming a very elegant young gentleman indeed, but his two companions were of grosser type as far as appearances went—one, Dacey, thin and wiry, with a ferret face; the other, Chicago Red, a brawny ruffian, whose stolid features nevertheless exhibited something of half sullen good nature.

"Everything all right so far," Garson said rapidly. He turned to Griggs and pointed toward the heavy hangings that shrouded the octagonal window. "Are those the things we want?" he demanded.

"Yes," was the answer. "Well, then, we've got to get busy."

Before he could add a direction he was halted by a soft buzzing in the telephone. For an instant he hesitated while the others regarded him doubtfully.

"We've got to take a chance," Garson went to the desk and put the receiver to his ear.

There came again the faint tapping of some one at the other end of the line, signaling a message in the Morse code. An expression of blank amazement, which grew in a flash to deep concern, showed on Garson's face as he listened tensely.

"Why, this is Mary calling," he muttered.

"Mary?" Griggs cried.

"Yes, she's on," Garson interpreted a moment later as the tapping ceased for a little. He translated in a loud whisper as the irregular ticking noise sounded again.

"I shall be there almost at once. I am sending this message from the drug store around the corner. Have some one open the door for me immediately."

Lamps

ELECTRIC LIGHT radiates in all directions from a common center, so that if your lamp is hung high only 60 per cent of light comes down and the balance is wasted on the walls and ceiling. The remedy is to put a shade over the lamp so as to direct the rays down and concentrate them where you want light. A smaller lamp with a shade costs less to operate and gives more light than a large lamp without a shade. To use Carbon lamps in the home is like using a tub of water every time you wash your face, you can do so but it is simple waste. It is to the interest of this Company that our customers get good service at small cost. For this reason we show the difference between Carbon and Mazda lamps.

One Carbon 32 candle lamp burns 150 watts each hour.
One Mazda 32 candle lamp burns 40 watts each hour.
Carbon Lamps burn 3 times as much "juice" each hour as Mazda lamps. "Juice" costs money.
