WE SAW

The cars parked wrong on the side of the square thing, despite Chief Huddles' new white parking lines.

Sheriff's car parked in the Brian lane at the courthouse

Chrysler, No. 454-320, parked on the pedestrian lane which crossed off between the center and side spaces.

Chevrolet, No. 453-785, parked on the pedestrian lane in front of City Bakery.

Certain groceryman that went to slaughter in cold some morning about 2:00. We won't mention any but he drives a new Olds and has pretty pink. His car has a horn on it sounds like Gabriel's trumpet. He likes to try it out occasionally the wee small hours of the night and darn it, he lives just the street from the editor.

One of his friends telling one R. Franks. Seems like when he ran his wagon yard, Jim phoned him one morning and presented himself to be the Sanitary Inspector, and had T. R. that his wagon yard was cleaning badly. T. R. immediately grabbed himself an armful of shovels and wheelbarrows and got busy. He worked like a man all day, and then in the afternoon, Jim sprung the joke on the boys say that Jim's wagon had flapped just like a flag. T. R. took after him.

A crowd gathered about noon and his two buck deer were morning. Many a mouth in the crowd watered as they inspected the venison.

A woman rolled down over the Plaza, but most of the regular habitués strangely absent.

A Shirley Temple doll in a window at the City Grocery. Several little girls looking at it with longing eyes.

A letter from Eunice Stratton, Leann, asking for five copies of the Democrat's account of the McLean game. We suppose she's either the sister, wife, or a daughter of Stratton who starred for McLean in the battle.

Phelan keeping the human footballers informed as the downs yesterday afternoon game.

Baskerville cause Referee Alexander quite a little worry. G. C. got in the way of the phis receiver, knocking him. Bill had to call time out to think it over awhile before going on the play.

HOUSTON FIRE

AUSTIN, Oct. 17.—Explosion of three gasoline tanks here last night caused $30,000 loss before they were under control.

British and French Near Showdown

Britian Demands French Naval Aid

The estranged relationship between France and Great Britain approached a showdown today, over the reluctance of the French to co-operate with the British wholeheartedly in sanctioning enforcement against Italy in the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Great Britain this morning through her official representatives, demanded of France that they give their promise of unqualified naval aid, in the event that Italy attacks the British Mediterranean fleet.

Premier Laval, of France, is asking for time, and has decided to lay the whole matter before the French Cabinet, and let them decide how far they will go in aiding Great Britain in such an event.

British irritation over the mild policy of the French rose to fever heat after the collapse of Premier Laval's peace moves.

The League of Nations sanction committee, for the second day, failed to agree to Great Britain's proposed "buy nothing from Italy" policy.

Washington diplomatic circles say that the United States is delaying the matter of taking a definite stand on the sanctions, until the European powers have decided what action they will take.

Tribesmen report that the 17th British Camel Corps, on guard duty on British Somaliland frontier, suffered casualties during the Fascist advance into Ethiopia from Italian Somaliland, but the British colonial office is unable to either confirm or deny.

The Ethiopian government has issued a communique saying that it is informed there are "grave differences in opinion" between Mussolini and General Emilio de Bono, commander of the Italian forces in Ethiopia, and that the latter has offered his resignation.

Emperor Selassie says he "will not discuss peace while a single Italian remains on Ethiopian soil."

HUNTERS BRING BACK FINE BUCKS

Boaz Party Returns From Colorado With Game

Dr. E. H. Boaz and party returned this morning from Blanca, Colorado, where they had spent twelve days in the mountains on a deer hunting trip.

To prove their prowess as hunters, the party drove in with three fine bucks on the fenders of their cars, arriving back about 6:00 o'clock this morning.

Those in the party were: Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Boaz; Mrs. H. J. Swinney, mother of Mrs. Boaz; Mr. and Mrs. Ed House and son, Winfred, of Parnell, and John Lambkin.

Five bucks, the limit bag of deer, fell before the rifles of the party, and they report a splendid trip.

Scene of Clash

This map shows the location, near Khabarovsk, of the frontier clash between Japanese and Soviet Russia patrols, the incident bringing an official protest from the Russian government and stirring fears of fresh outbreaks. The clash, in which several border patrolmen were reported killed occurred on the Amur river. Course of the meandering stream changes frequently, causing recurrent disputes and conflicts.

NEWLIN PLANS COMMUNITY FAIR

Agricultural Exhibit and Halloween Celebration

A community fair and joint Halloween party is to be held at Newlin on Thursday night, Oct. 31. The gala affair is to be held in the High School building, starting at 7 o'clock and is to be under the sponsorship of the Newlin Parent-Teacher Association.

All farmers in surrounding communities are invited to bring prize maize heads, cotton stalks, pumpkins, watermelons and other agricultural produce and exhibits, those in charge of arrangements for the carnival have said.

Ladies are to bring fancy canned products of fruit, vegetables, preserves, jelly-type goods. Fancy quilts for the quilt show and all kinds of elaborate handiwork are to be shown. Blue, red and white ribbons will be given the winners in each exhibit.

In connection with the community fair, a masked party for old and young alike is to be held in the school gymnasium, preceded by a parade at 3 o'clock through the business district of Newlin. Wrestling bouts for boys and men are to be featured, and a 45-minute novelty program will be given.

The big feature of the evening and the one which should create no little excitement is the cow-milking contest. James E. Townsend, Newlin merchant, will com-

THREE MORE IN MEDICAL MEET COUNTY MAY BE AIDED

Vacancies for Three On N.Y.A. Student Aid Rolls

AUSTIN, Oct. 14.—In Hall County there are three high school students losing $18 per month through failure to make application for NYA aid allocations, Lyndon B. Johnson, State Director, announced today.

"On September 12, socially desirable part-time jobs paying $5 per month were offered 8,547 high school students, who are members of families on relief rolls or members of rural resettlement families at a total monthly expenditure of $51,282. Response to this offer has been retarded, and the National Youth Administration is desirous of filling the quota immediately in order to give those eligible for student aid the full sum of cash due them," he said.

Students between the ages of 16 and 25, who for lack of financial assistance are unable to attend school, should make application directly to the principal of their school, Johnson said. The principal then submits to the county superintendent a project application in affidavit form asking for his quota of jobs, together with students' applications properly executed. Applications should then be forwarded to the National Youth Administration, Littlefield Building, Austin, Texas.

Four County Medical Society to Meet In This City

A scientific program has been arranged for the regular monthly meeting of the 4-County Medical Society, which meets tonight at 7 o'clock in the banquet room of the Memphis Hotel.

Dr. Charles F. Clayton, Fort Worth, will address the group on "Open Treatment of Fractures of the Long Bones." Dr. Henry W. Harper, also of Fort Worth, will deliver and address, "Selection of Goiter for Medical and Surgical Treatment."

The 4-County Medical Society is composed of practicing medical men from Hall, Childress, Collingsworth and Donley counties, and a record attendance is expected for tonight's session.

Adult Teachers Plan Exhibit

Adult education class teachers of Memphis are to meet tonight at 7 o'clock in the home of J. H. Tredwell, teacher, R. C. Householder, adult education supervisor for Memphis, has announced.

Purpose of the meeting is to plan an exhibit that is to be shown at the State Teachers meeting that is to be held in San Antonio next month.

Business Institute Plans Go Forward

To Be Held Here On December 4-5

Plans are going forward on the two-day merchants' institute that is to be held in Memphis on December 4 and 5, according to Fred V. Clark, secretary of the Memphis Junior and Senior Chambers of Commerce.

The Southwestern Merchants Institute, sponsored here by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, is a short course in Business Administration, devoted to the problems of the merchant and his sales people.

Since the establishment of the chair of Business Administration in the Wharton School of Commerce, many universities and colleges have followed with the establishment of like courses of study. Few business men have been able to leave their business long enough to attend such a school. As a result, correspondence schools have attempted to fill the gap, and are offering many courses of great value to local business men who will take time to study them, it was pointed out.

The Dallas Chamber of Commerce and the Dallas Wholesale Merchants Association are joining with the Memphis Junior Chamber of Commerce in offering the services of the director of the Southwestern Merchants Institute to Memphis, without cost, in a sincere effort to bring to the merchant and his staff the latest in modern business education. This service will be agreeable to Memphis merchants and business people generally. The place for the institute meetings has not been definitely decided upon and will be announced later.

WANT CODES BACK

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 17.—The American Federation of Labor voted this morning to oppose America's participation in the Olympic Games at Berlin next year.

The Weather

WEST TEXAS: Partly cloudy and cooler in north and west tonight; Friday generally fair.
EAST TEXAS: Partly cloudy and unsettled; probable showers in east portion, except west coast, tonight and Friday.

CENTENNIAL
THE Texas Centennial Exposition is going to be a great thing for the state in more ways than one.

It is going to focus the eyes of the entire world on our great state, and people from all lands and all climes are going to hear of and see Texas.

It is going to mean that these hundreds of thousands of visitors to the exposition next year are going to spend millions of dollars while they are in the state.

But the effect of the exposition that we are going to feel first will result from the immense building program under way at the exposition grounds in Dallas, and which is expected to reach its peak next month.

All major buildings at the exposition will be started not later than November 15, and are to be completed not later than March 31.

Thousands of men are going to find employment in this work, and the hundreds of thousands of dollars paid them in wages are going to help.

Construction is already under way on the $1,200,000 Hall of Texas.

To give an idea of the money which will be put in circulation, glance over this list of buildings to be begun at once:

Agricultural Building, $100,000; Foods Building, $250,000; Livestock Building, $130,000; Varied Industries Building, $440,000; Transportation Building, $365,000.

The City of Dallas begins work at once also on seven permanent buildings to cost $3,500,000, and a million dollars worth of buildings will be erected by corporations.

Seven million dollars worth of prosperity.

A Couple of Worried Gentlemen

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGINS HERE TODAY
JEAN DUNN, pretty, 21, is secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer. BOBBY WALLACE, automobile salesman, has asked her to marry him, but Jean delays her answer.

At The Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HARKINS.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, long a friend of Jean and Bobby, is trying to trail WINGY LEWIS, band robber. He confides details of the case to his friend, MIKE HAGAN, of the local police force.

Jean and Bobby go to The Golden Feather again and see Sandy there with MR. and MRS. LEWIS. They all go to the Lewis' apartment. Lewis tells Bobby he wants to buy a car, "a special job worth $10,000. He shows Bobby some bonds worth $12,000 and says if Bobby can sell them for him he will buy the car and Bobby will have $2000 profit.

Bobby arranges to sell them to Jean's employer.

Larry and Hagan see EVELYN BRADY with three men at The Golden Feather. They suspect one of the men may be Lewis. Larry bribes a waiter to bring the man's glass, hoping to secure fingerprints. The waiter takes the money, but brings a different glass.

Hagan suspects Sandy Harkins of being involved in a payroll robbery. Sandy is tipped off that police are looking for him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

Jean Dunn looked up from her typewriter with a start to see Sandy Harkins standing beside her desk, grinning at her.

"Why—where'd you come from?" she asked. He jerked his thumb at her employer's private office.

"In there," he said.
"In there?" she asked blankly.

"Why not? Him and I had some business. I got things all framed up—for you and me to go horseback riding."

"Sandy, what are you talking about?"

"Well, if you don't believe it, ask him. Here he comes."

The door opened, and Mr. Montague came over to them. He looked more than ever the part of the solid, prosperous citizen—carefully pressed summer-weight blue suit, florid face, hair neatly barbered and brushed, bringing a faint odor of tonic and power; a middle-aged man who had won success and money and was pardonably proud of them and of his own appearance, and a kindly, friendly sort of person in addition. He beamed down at his pretty stenographer.

"I understand you already know Mr Harkins?" he said, with one hand on Sandy's arm. Jean nodded, smiling.

"Mr. Harkins is a client of mine," said Mr. Montague. "Now you know a lawyer exists to serve his clients; and this particular client demands that I permit my stenographer to leave her work in the middle of the morning and go out horseback riding with him."

Jean gaped at him. His eyes twinkled gaily as he went on.

"And the funny part of it is, I'm going to grant his request. I might lose him if I didn't. And I can't afford to do that, you know. Can't let a good client get away from you. So you're at his disposal, Miss Dunn, until—well, until tomorrow morning. As far as I'm concerned, anyway."

She still looked up, incredulous.

"No, I mean it," said Mr. Montague. "Get your hat and get out of here. I don't want to see you until tomorrow."

And he turned and went back into his office. Jean looked up at Sandy.

"Will you tell me what on earth this is all about?"

"Come on—you heard him, didn't you? Get your hat and we'll go places."

He pulled her to her feet, laughing at her. Utterly bewildered, but feeling that a day off was a day off even when you couldn't understand it, Jean hurried off to make herself ready. Five minutes later she was sitting beside Sandy in his roadster.

"I expect you'll want to get your riding clothes on?" he asked. She nodded, and he turned off on the boulevard to go to her apartment. To all her questions returned joking answers, refusing to say more than that, as Mr. Montague's client, he had demanded and obtained the company of Mr. Montague's stenographer for a day in the country.

He waited in the car while Jean went into her apartment and changed her clothes. Then they were off again, and before long they had reached the riding academy and were mounted.

They had been here several times. After that canoe trip, Jean had found herself forgetting her scruples against having dates with this tall westerner. Her conscience continued to mutter darkly in the background, but she silenced it with the reply that Sandy was behaving like a perfectly proper, if somewhat breezy, gentleman. He had not even tried to kiss her again. To this, conscience has replied ironically—"Yeah, and who's disappointed about that?" To that Jean coloring faintly, had refused to listen any longer.

They cantered across a field and came out in a leafy country road, where they reined their horses in to a walk. Jean threw her head back, locked up at the blue summer sky, and luxuriated in the feel of the wind on her bare throat.

BEHIND THE SCENE IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Hugh S. Johnson, according to tip which has mildly perturbed certain insiders here, has written an article for an anti-administration national magazine in which he excoriates liberal brain-trusters in the New Deal.

Grapevine reports say the Johnson blast is to be published in considerable ballyhoo and that Roosevelt will undertake to rebuke that Roosevelt, though a fine fellow himself, has been deluged with reformers of the Tugwell-Frankfurter types, who are mentioned by name.

Thus far no one has followed the example of the once powerful Donald Richberg, who wrote the Saturday Evening Post leading of consequences if it published a Johnson article as derogatory to himself as he had been mentioned by name.

But more than one brain-truster who has befriended Johnson in the past admits considerable interest.

War in Ethiopia found our diplomats here admitting they were having an unusually difficult time forecasting the moves on the European chess board.

They figure Mussolini has experienced some surprises they're sure he felt he had no reason to believe he could get without interference from England or France.

Anglo-German and Anglo-Italian understandings of a summer seem to have been scrambled into an Anglo-French front against Mussolini and, tentatively, against Hitler.

But the belief among some informed close observers — is, briefly:

England, France, and Italy have agreed that there will be no European war at this League of Nations sanction be applied gradually against Italy, allowing Mussolini to up Ethiopia to a point where he can claim victory and save face.

The league will then engineer a peace agreement, terms yet to be arranged, but will make concessions to enable Mussolini to boast of them at home.

Such a theory is at least more fantastic than the idea of a general European war. It includes the belief that Mussolini dares not court war with England.

It proceeds to the conclusion that neither Britain nor other league members will concede peace terms to Italy which would be much more advantageous than the league offer which Mussolini already has turned down.

You can even hear predictions here that eventually this course will mean, as the Italian press come to realize they were kept in the lurch, the downfall of Mussolini. (The prophets are willing to bet as much as a dollar on it.)

Russian Communist agents nowhere near as busy in this city as some viewers-witnesses would have you believe. Centers of secret Communist preparations for revolutionary operations are Germany and Japan.

Russians believe those operations are likely to attack the concert and hope to be able to foment uprisings at home which will weaken their military at the front.

"You know, I've got it soft," she said. "I've got it soft a whole day off, and I'll go home in the middle of the afternoon."

"I'm the lucky one," said Sandy. "I get a date out of it, each week."

"Well, it's pretty soft."

contentedly. "It's funny Mr. Montague. I haven't been earning my salary. . . . What day was that, Friday?"

"Friday," said Sandy promptly. "I remember because that was Eve's birthday. She bawled me for not remembering to be there for her dinner party."

"Why Sandy—did you break an engagement to go canoeing with her?" asked Jean.

"Say, I'm glad I did—for more reasons than one."

Jean eyed him archly. "What's the other one?"

Sandy sighed. "Aw, there's a mix-up here in town. Seems there's a holdup artist somewhere and who looks like me."

"Sandy!"

"Yeah—can you imagine?"

"How do you mean, Sandy?" asked, puzzled. "How did you get out about it?"

Art Lanning, down at the Golden Feather, told me. The cop got a description of this holdup man, and a couple of 'em were the Golden Feather the other day and saw me. So they went and talked it over and decided that since I looked like the holdup man they'd better pick me up. They got out, some way, and Art Lanning told me about it and told me."

"You looked over with an expression of mock dismay."

"You mean—you mean they—want to arrest you?"

"Yeah."

"He took out a cigar and lit it, apparently supremely unconcerned."

"But Sandy! What are you going to do?"

"He laughed.

"Well, as soon as this ride is over, I'm going down to police headquarters and explain the mix-up and ask them to stop worrying about me," he said lightly.

"She was still uneasy.

"Are you sure they—they'll be satisfied with you?"

"Once more he laughed confidently.

"I know, they will."

"How?"

"Because," he said, half-turning in his saddle to look at her, "at the moment that particular robbery was being committed, out on the east side of town, you and I were in a canoe 15 miles away, paddling along the river."

His eyes rested on hers, and she felt a weight disappear from her chest.

"Oh, Sandy—really?"

"Sure. That's why I said I was glad in more ways than one that you got the afternoon off last Friday. If you hadn't I'd probably have had the devil's own time trying to persuade these coppers I'm an honest man. This way it's perfectly simple. All we've got to do is go down there and explain about last Friday afternoon, and everything'll be settled. But if I hadn't been with you it all might have been pretty unpleasant before I got things straightened out."

Jean stared at him, somewhat startled.

"We?" she said.

It was his turn to look surprised.

"Why, of course. You'll go in with me, won't you? Being more or less of a stranger here, I might have trouble getting them to take my word for it, but with you along—"

He gestured airily with his cigar. Jean told herself that it was silly to feel any reluctance toward going to the police station with him. After all, he'd been the victim of a silly mistake, and it was a stroke of luck that with her help he would be able to keep the mistake from becoming serious.

"Oh, of course I'll go," she said. "It's just that—oh, I suppose it's just because I've never been in a police station, and I always sort of imagined them as dirty and messy, and—"

He laughed.

"Won't take five minutes," he said. "And there's no hurry about it. We'll finish our ride and have some lunch first. Okay?"

She nodded, and in a sudden mood of gaiety sprang her horse down the road. He was after her instantly, and they finally returned to the barn flushed and breathless, their hair and clothing whipped away by the wind, their spirits exuberant.

Sandy seemed to be in no hurry, and he seemed also to be anxious that the trip to police headquarters should not be too oppressive a prospect to her. He took her to a suburban inn for lunch, and they sat for a long time on a breeze-washed veranda while Sandy talked about nothing at all in his half-mocking, half-affectionate manner.

At last, glancing at his watch, he suggested that they "get it over with."

Three quarters of an hour later he found a parking place near the gloomy police headquarters and led Jean up the iron steps. She followed him across the musty hall into a dilapidated elevator, which creaked and wheezed its way to the third floor. Then they went down an even mustier hall to a door which bore a sign, "Detective Bureau." Rather timidly she followed Sandy into what seemed to be a waiting room, where half a dozen people sat about on plain wooden benches.

Sandy led her toward a bench at the side of the room. Two men were sitting there, and one of them got up and smiled as they approached. To Jean's amazement, it was Mr. Montague.

"Well, Miss Dunn," he said, smiling. "I understand you're going to be the heroine that helps Sandy out of this absurd predicament he seems to be in?"

DAYS OF YORE

Ancient History from the Pages of Back Issues of The Sandstorm.

VERA "TOPS" GILREATH

Browsing through the pages of a 1925 Sandstorm, we find the pictured features of our County Superintendent, Miss Vera Gilreath, ten years younger than she is today. . . . you can do your own guessing at her present age.

Vera, for it wasn't "Tops" in those days apparently, was a member of the Class of 1925. She was a student at Thompson High in 1922-23, played basketball in 1922-23-24, and was a V-He member in 1923.

"Tops", as she is known today, when her picture was taken for the annual featured a square cut bob, with long bangs that almost met her eyebrows. She wore a dark dress with a flowing white collar, and was she proud of the long string of near-pearls she was wearing on that occasion.

"Seals Becoming a Menace," reveals a California paper. Husbands will certainly be glad when the fur coat season is over.

"Italy Facing Loss of Crude Oil Supply." Isn't Mussolini well?

St. Louis man orders coffee, passes away before he gets it. He should have put in his order earlier in life.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

SWIFT-FOOTED QUARRY

A STRANGE superstition among the Bushmen of South Africa saved many a swift-footed animal from destruction. It was the belief of these savages that the food a hunter had just eaten influenced the game he was pursuing. If he partook of the meat of a swift-footed animal, his quarry would be alert and speedy, and he would be unable to run it down. But let him eat of a slow-footed animal and his quarry would become slow and easy to kill.

For this reason, the swift spring-bok of South Africa was held in especial esteem by the Bushmen. Not only would they avoid eating any part of this graceful gazelle, but they would not dare touch it lest the less agile gemsbok which they were hunting, would acquire the speed of the smaller animal. The savages believed the spring-bok never slept at night, and if they ate of it, the hunted gemsbok would be awake also.

The head of the graceful spring-bok appears on stamps of South Africa, one of which is shown here, for this country is the sole habitat of the animal.

Legion Play In Rehearsal

The musical comedy production "Sky High," to be presented October 28, under the sponsorship of the Charles R. Simmons Post of the American Legion, will be shown at the Ritz Theatre, instead of at the High School Auditorium, as originally announced.

Miss Peggy Mullet, who is directing the production, states that she has obtained a splendid cast of local talent and that rehearsals for the show have begun.

In connection with the stage presentation, the screen will feature Ronald Colemand and Loretta Young in "Clive of India," thus making a big double attraction which will be distinctly worth while.

Campus Hi-Lights

By M. D.

Even though the Cyclone does not play a foot-ball game this week, we must not lose our pep. Nor must we lose our pep because of last week's score. With a team like ours we'll "go places". There is a saying—"The man worth while is the man who can smile when everything goes dead wrong". Also the pep squad that is worth while is the one that can yell all the time.

Tommie Ruth Potts and June Powers seem to be women of few words—they exchange seven page notes in study halls.

The librarians under the new system have much less work to do and more time to study during the period. Seems to us they don't appreciate this opportunity to the fullest extent.

Certain prominent members of that newly formed secret club of the campus were surely dressed up last Saturday night. It seems they had dates with three charming gentlemen from Childress—that is they thought they did. The boys didn't arrive; I wonder if certain M. H. S. studees know why?

I hear that Sophomore Jack Walker's greatest ambition at the present is to weigh 350 lbs. He saw a football player the other day that weighs that much.

Heard someone say that other day that the Whirlwind was a good name for our paper—just a big blow. That makes me pretty mad!

A certain young lady was heard muttering to herself about her shoes the other day. She vowed that she would "get them told". Wonder if it's just the heat?

Monday we heard Mr. Cowan telling one of the sophomore girls about a great tragedy that had occurred over the week-end. After expounding to some length, Mr. Cowan disclosed that her goldfish, left at the school for science class, had died.

Jackie Boren and Anna Beth Leverette seem to prefer the "Big business men" to their senior classmates.

Say have you noticed, carefully I mean, our freshman class this year? They're worth noticing. These Fish are the kind that make a real name for themselves in the ocean.

And you've heard about these young gentlemen who date both a senior beauty and her sophomore sister.

—On to Shamrock!!!

Last but not least, let's give a great big hand to the pep squad and drum corps. They are the peppiest, best lookin' bunch I've seen in a long time!

Cherrie, old thing!

PREVENTION OF FIRE GIVEN STRESS

High School Observes Fire Prevention Week Here

Fire prevention has been an important program in local schools during the past week, during which time that subject has been stressed considerably.

Seniors and sophomores in the high school have been required to write themes concerning such subjects as carelessness in fires, fire hazards, fire loss, fire insurance, fire-proof construction work, etc. Although the freshman class was not required to do so, they, too, wrote themes of the same type under the instructor of their English teacher.

Students in the West Ward and Junior High schools made posters and other projects in the line of thought of fire prevention.

Drills have been carried out in the schools to teach students exits and methods of escape from the buildings in the shortest length of time.

Student officers to assist in drills at the high school are J. W. Slover, chief; and Jack Baldwin, Harold Dewlin, Cecil Grimes, Jeanette Watson, Jeanne Draper, Joyce Read, assistants.

Home-Ec Club Has Scheduled Meet

The Home Economics Club met yesterday noon, October 16th, in a regular semi-monthly meeting, with club officers in charge. Girls attending the meeting enjoyed prepared lunches, and an interesting hour of entertainment.

Initiation services were held during the program hour, and details in initiation will be carried out during the rest of the week, during which time new members of the club may be recognized by their wearing club colors, pink and green.

The club is a new organization in the high school, and is great interest to girls enrolled in Home Economics classes. The meetings of the club will be continued every two weeks throughout the school year.

Vocational Agriculture and Home-Ec Classes Expanded at High School

Memphis Public School system is expanding its Vocational Agriculture and Home Economics programs by offering night courses in Agriculture and Home Economics to adults.

This vocational school is planned for those adults who would like to study their homemaking and farm problems, under the supervision of the teachers of the two Vocational Departments of the Memphis High school.

These classes will be free of charge to all attending, and will be of one-hour duration, meeting at night once each week at an hour and date most convenient to prospective students.

The following are subjects of interest to Women and girls who are interested in home making problems, and will be made available to those enrolling in the adult Home Economics department: clothing renovation, clothing construction, clothing the pre-school child, child care and development, planning and preparing economic menus, baking, canning, furniture remodeling and home beautification, home management and table service.

All-School Night To Be At Cyclone Stadium Tomorrow

SCHOOL LIBRARY CHANGES NOTED

The Memphis High school library has undergone several changes, both in books and in manner of issuing.

Approximately 30 new books were purchased this year including reference volumes and fiction, and 85 old books were rebound. Two large dictionaries were bought with this group. Several more books have been ordered but have not come in as yet.

At the present time, 14 girls are in charge of the library during the day, under the supervision of Mrs. Kennon Hillyer. The librarians receive one-half unaffiliated credit for the work, if satisfactory. In previous years a certain number of points were given each six weeks to be applied to grades on any literary subject.

A new system of issuing books to students has been arranged so as to decrease unnecessary disturbance. The students remain at their seats during the entire period. They write the title of the book desired and their name on a slip of paper passed to them. The slips are taken to librarians by assistants, and the books are issued and passed out as hurriedly as possible. This change has only gone into effect this week, but it is hoped that the system will prove satisfactory, thus eliminating confusion commonly known to study hall keepers.

Librarians for the current school term are: Christene Thurman, Dorothy Sue Fultz, Ouida Read, Hattie Dem Ward, Jerry Kinard, Anna Beth Leverett, Clara Burnett, Maurine Reheis, Ima Ruth Spry, Adelle Harrell, Jackie Boren, Margaret Baker, Beth Weathersbee, and Faye Rasco.

Dr. D. C. Hyder was among the Doctors from Memphis, who attended the district medical convention in session at Plainview Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mrs. A. T. Lokey and daughter, Willie Margaret, returned yesterday from a visit with Mrs. Lokey's mother, Mrs. L. M. Cardwell, and her sister, Mrs. T. C. Hardie.

Future Farmers Of America Will Visit Clarendon

Riley W. Carlton, instructor of Vocational Agriculture in the high school, and 30 boys who are students in his classes, will go to Clarendon on Saturday of this week in the interest of their agricultural work.

The boys will attend a district meeting of the Future Farmers of America, which will be made up of boys coming from the greater part of Northwest Texas.

Arrangements have been made for an interesting and educational program, and the boys attending are anticipating an enjoyable day.

The trip to the session will be made in a local school bus, which will leave Memphis early Saturday morning.

It was previously understood that the meeting was to be held in Lubbock, but plans were changed and practically the same program is to be carried out in Clarendon.

Junior High Pep Squad Organized

In line with the junior athletics carried out in the local school system this season, a pep squad has been organized in the Junior High school, and is composed of girls from the fifth, sixth, and seventh grades.

At the present time, the total enrollment of the organization is 58, and it is probable that the number will be increased as the season progresses.

The girls afford their Junior High school "Ramblers" with quite a degree of side-line support at football games, and Miss Zada Bell Walker, sponsor of the group, stated that the girls would probably be with the team at every combat.

Leaders were selected when the pep squad was organized, one being chosen from each class in the school. They are Bobby Dee Wood, seventh grade leader; Frances Clark, sixth grade leader, and Genevieve McCool, leader for the fifth grade.

The girls were present at the game two weeks ago when the Junior High squad met the high school freshmen, and will be at the stadium Friday evening at the "All-school night" when the Ramblers again meet the boys from the high school.

Miss Walker has practiced with the girls almost every afternoon for the past few weeks, but regular meetings have been recently provided for, and are to be held on Mondays and Wednesdays after school hours.

Schools Closed For Gathering of Cotton

A part of the burden placed on local school buses and drivers was removed during the past few days when rural schools closed in order to gather cotton crops. When these schools are in session the buses transport younger students from homes to their respective schools, as well as bringing high school students into Memphis.

Rural schools which have turned out would usually depend on Memphis school busses for trans-

Memphis Junior Elevens In

Memphis students will be participating in "all-school night" tomorrow, beginning at 7:00.

Since there is no school ball game for this week, the children will enjoy the use of the Cyclone Stadium for the accommodation of the pep band will go through the period, during which the pep band will rehearse the formation as an entertaining feature between halves at the Shamrock game.

From 7:00 to 7:20 the school pep squad, drum band will go through the period, during which the pep band will rehearse the formation as an entertaining feature between halves at the Shamrock game.

From 7:20 to 8:00 play hour will be in progress at the West Ward school and West Ward pupils going to play at the north end of the grass field, and the school students given a break.

The feature drawing of the evening, however, will be the Junior High Pep Squad game to be played by the Junior High Ramblers, coached by "Swede" Roark, and the Junior High "Twisters", High school team, coached by A. L. Tomorrow night's game will mark the second bat-squad have had, the game ending in a victory for the Ramblers by a score of 10-0.

Both teams are made up of junior age, and fans enjoy watching the game, and spectators an interesting feature.

Admission prices for attending the "all-school night" will be five cents each, the expense of using the lights. All parents, and friends are cordially invited to attend.

Junior High Pep Squad Has Meet

The Junior High school Teachers Association will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow at 3:15 o'clock in the school building, with explanation of the vocational program carried out in the school.

There will also be a display of posters made by the school students will be held with explanation of the vocational program carried out in the school.

Parents and all those interested in the school activities of the school are cordially invited to attend, and to view the posters, which have been arranged by their instructors.

Reporting students are Raymond Ballew, Salisbury Harrell, and Clifton Creek. The school main closed for a few weeks, the time of reopening pending on conditions.

Raymond Ballew, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Collier and Mrs. J. M. Ballew view Tuesday, where they held the district medical session Tuesday and Wednesday.

Pumpnickel

ps mashed potatoes, 1-4 warm potato water, 2 3-4 cup corn meal, cold water, 1 1-2 cups ater, 5 teaspoons salt, 1 sugar, 2 tablespoons ether shortening, 1 taraway seed, 6 cups rye ps wheat flour. water into corn meal and when smooth put over the fire. Add boiling water, stirring constantly and cook until it forms a mush. Add salt, sugar and butter and cool to lukewarm. Add mashed potatoes, yeast cakes dissolved in lukewarm potato water and stir well. Stir in flour and rye meal. Mix and knead to a smooth stiff dough using wheat flour on the board. Put into a large mixing bowl, cover and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Shape into loaves, roll in corn meal and put in greased bread pans. Let rise again until double in bulk and bake 1 hour in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.).

Pumpnickel is delicious toasted to serve with cheese. A good way to please everyone is to those who want it toasted, toast it on an electric toaster when they are ready to eat it.

A. D. Lokey of Corpus Christi, traveling salesman for the Murry Gin Co., of Dallas spent yesterday in Memphis, leaving this morning. He was a guest in the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. A. T. Lokey, 422 South Sixth Street.

Lee Pope of Clarendon was a Memphis business visitor yesterday. Mr. Pope, who was manager of the Hanna-Pope & Co. in Memphis for eight years, has recently moved to Clarendon as manager of the store there.
