A CHANCE TO GET A GYMNASIUM

(An Editorial)

Secretary Ickes yesterday took the first step toward the actual expenditure of the four billion dollar work-relief fund by wiring PWA state engineers to resume receiving applications for non-federal projects.

Now is Memphis' opportunity to make a bid for a sorely needed construction project—a high school gymnasium.

Applications closed early in the year without Memphis taking a step to receive any benefit, after the school cafeteria was constructed.

The county did much better. It applied for the construction of a highway from Turkey to the Hall County line, connected with a similar route from Clarendon to the Donley line, and for the building of four lakes, one in each precinct.

Just as the deadline fell, the Junior Chamber of Commerce became interested in the gymnasium project but was forced to drop the idea because it was too late to enter the application.

Now a new opportunity presents itself. Is this one going to be passed up, or is the school board and civic organizations going to take advantage of it?

PWA construction gives Memphis a chance to obtain this gymnasium at the lowest cost in history. Some day soon we are going to be forced by public sentiment to provide adequate facilities for winter sports here. Never again, perhaps, will we have such an opportunity!

PWA will furnish all labor, coming from local relief rolls, with the exception of a supervisor—in this case a contractor. The city must furnish the material.

In this case, this does not present a financial problem. The school system has most of the material already in its possession, that is not in use and probably will never be in use again in its present form.

We are speaking of the old east ward building. Use of this building for school purposes has been discontinued, and we understand it is now being used for storing feed. It cannot be used again for a school without costly repairs, and if Memphis' east side should develop to such an extent that a ward school is needed in that section, the present structure would be too small.

The building could be razed and the material used for the construction of a modern gymnasium—just as they have at Turkey, Estelline and Lakeview.

Only the roof and floor material would have to be purchased. PWA labor would tear down the old building as well as construct the new.

Here we have an ideal situation whereby a gymnasium that would serve its purpose for years can be obtained at an almost insignificant cost. It would be folly to let the opportunity pass.

Germany To Renew Submarine Forces

Associated Press
LONDON, April 27.—An authoritative British source today asserted that Germany has begun the building of submarines in violation of the Versailles treaty, and disclosed that the British Cabinet intends to consider this new development.

"It is an exact repetition of what happened with the land forces, and even a more flagrant violation," said one source close to the government.

BERLIN, April 27.—The German defense ministry admitted today that submarines constitute a part of Germany's rearmament program, although denying that orders had been placed for the construction of new under-sea boats.

Reach Agreement In 2 Civil Cases

Agreements were reached Friday afternoon in two civil cases appearing on the jury docket of Hall County Court and both cases were dismissed by Judge Jim Vallance.

Attorneys for the First State Bank reached an agreement with attorneys representing Rachael Swift and others and Anna Moores and others and settlements were made out of court. The suits grew out of assessments made by the bank against stock holders.

A jury that had been summoned by Judge Vallance for the two civil suits was dismissed shortly after noon Friday. No jury cases are on the docket for hearing when court is continued tomorrow, Judge Vallance said.

Checks totaling $2,909 in delayed first payments on pooled Bankhead cotton certificates were received last week-end by County Agent James A. Jackson. Payments were received in 46 checks.

Second payments on certificates sold through the pool are expected after May 15, Mr. Jackson said.

Housing Shortage Becoming Acute

Memphis is facing an acute shortage of rent houses and the situation is becoming more critical daily, a survey of local rental agencies revealed Saturday.

A slow but steady increase in population and a decreasing number of rentable houses is attributed by local agents as the major reasons for the shortage. The shortage applies to both furnished and unfurnished houses and apartments.

Steadily increasing since the first of the year, the shortage has reached the point where twice the number of houses now rented could be "let" within a week's time, local agents believe.

Barring extreme economical reverses in the Memphis Area, the situation will not be relieved until additional houses are built or old houses remodeled, agents said.

Memphis Band Has Saturday Concert

The Memphis Black and Gold Band presented a short concert on the courthouse square last night, the second of such Saturday night concerts this spring.

A huge crowd followed and gathered around the band during the parade and concert. The organization is under the direction of Cicero Milam. Many such appearances are planned during the summer season.

Hall County has been granted a supplemental allotment of federal funds for the plowing of an additional 5,000 acres of land that is being damaged by wind erosion, according to word received Saturday by County Agent James A. Jackson.

The new grant is in addition to the original allotment of 10,000 acres that may be listed in this county through the use of federal funds for the purchase of fuel and feed.

Information received Saturday by Mr. Jackson indicated that final date for the completion of the entire emergency program would remain May 1, the date originally set.

Ten cents per acre is granted by the federal government for the purchase of fuel and feed for the emergency plowing campaign. The new allotment received Saturday brings the total amount of money that may be spent in this county for the purpose to $1,500.

Mr. Jackson announced late yesterday that all approved applications would be honored at face value until the fund is exhausted. "If farmers for whom orders have been written on the reduced acreage basis will call and make new applications, county committees will allow the acreage cut from the original application," Mr. Jackson explained.

All applications, whether new or renewals, must be filed with the county committee not later than Wednesday, unless an extension of plowing time is made by the federal government, Mr. Jackson said.

NRA Extension Gains Headway Despite Battle

Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 27.—Senate opponents of NRA "cracked down" today on the proposal to extend the present recovery law without change until the next session of congress, but the move, nevertheless, gained strong headway among friendly senators.

The final decision on the issue rested with the President, with whom Chairman Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, will consult during the week-end.

Senator Borah led the attack on the proposal to extend present law with the statement that it would bring "stupendous" damage to let the act continue without a change for nine months.

Owls To Invade Wellington for League Battle Today

EXTRA POWER NEEDED FOR CONFLICT

Go Against Favored Outfit in Third Test of Year

The Memphis Owls are planning to try harder than ever today, to have a better line-up than in previous games—and they'll need both even to come out a good loser.

The club invades Wellington for a clash with the leading light of the Western Division of the Red River Valley Baseball League. The game will get underway at 3:30 o'clock.

The Owls have had a tough and slow road upward this season, what with players failing to show up for games and apparent lack of interest in the rating of the team on which they were playing.

Getting Started
But gradually the club got started. Their first game—that was before they started—ended in a riot—and managers immediately began to ask the question "what can be done?"

Last week they partially answered that question, missing a victory by one run in a game that almost turned into a baseball affair after all before it was over.

In all probability the Owls will be stronger this afternoon than in any of the previous tilts, if the managers' work amounts to as much as it did the previous week, there is no reason to doubt that it will.

But the catch comes in that it probably will take a lot more to down the Wellington crew than it would have to have stopped either Childress or Paducah, the early winners.

Here Are the 'Its'

If the Owls should stop the Wellington club this afternoon, local fans could rest assured that the team has arrived—if it then could manage to keep the material it takes to Wellington today.

If Wellington should win by a slight margin, the fans would know that the Owls have continued to improve and still have possibilities.

But, if Wellington walks off with everything except the Owl uniforms (and they already have a few of those) then—!!!

A couple of big righthanders will be the lads upon whom the Owls are depending to silence the big bats of the homelings. Whitfield, who was batted out of the box last Sunday by the Paducah nine, probably will be called upon to redeem himself, and if he can't do it, Stewart will have to take over the task.

A dry onion powder, for use in catsup, canned soups, and similar products, is now on the market.

Bradley Promises Derby Surprise

BY MAX RIDDLE
(NEA Service Turf Writer)

LOUISVILLE, April 26.—"What's the kunnel got this year?" You hear that here and elsewhere as the day of the Kentucky Derby approaches. Colonel Edward Riley Bradley has become as much a part of the big show in the Bluegrass as the thoroughbreds themselves. The famous breeder and gambler is shooting for his fifth Derby.

Colonel Bradley plans to start Boxthorn and Big Gawk on May 4. Boxthorn is highly tried, but fast ones put over by the master of Idle Hour Farm in the past have viced followers inquiring about Big Gawk.

Colonel Bradley started the hocus pocus business in connection with the Derby in 1921. That year he had a really high class colt named Black Servant, one that became far the best in the west. Also he had a widely publicized, though mediocre, aid for Black Servant named Behave Yourself.

With practically all of the attention centered on Black Servant, only a few figured that Behave Yourself might win. The great majority believed that Behave Yourself would be sent out to wear down the field, so that Black Servant could be properly paced.

It worked just the other way around. Black Servant forced the pace, tried in the stretch, and Behave Yourself scored.

Records of the two horses, either before or after Derby, did not justify the result. What happened led to the belief that it was Black Servant's assignment to tire the Whitney pair, Prudery and Tryster, so that Behave Yourself could do exactly what he accomplished.

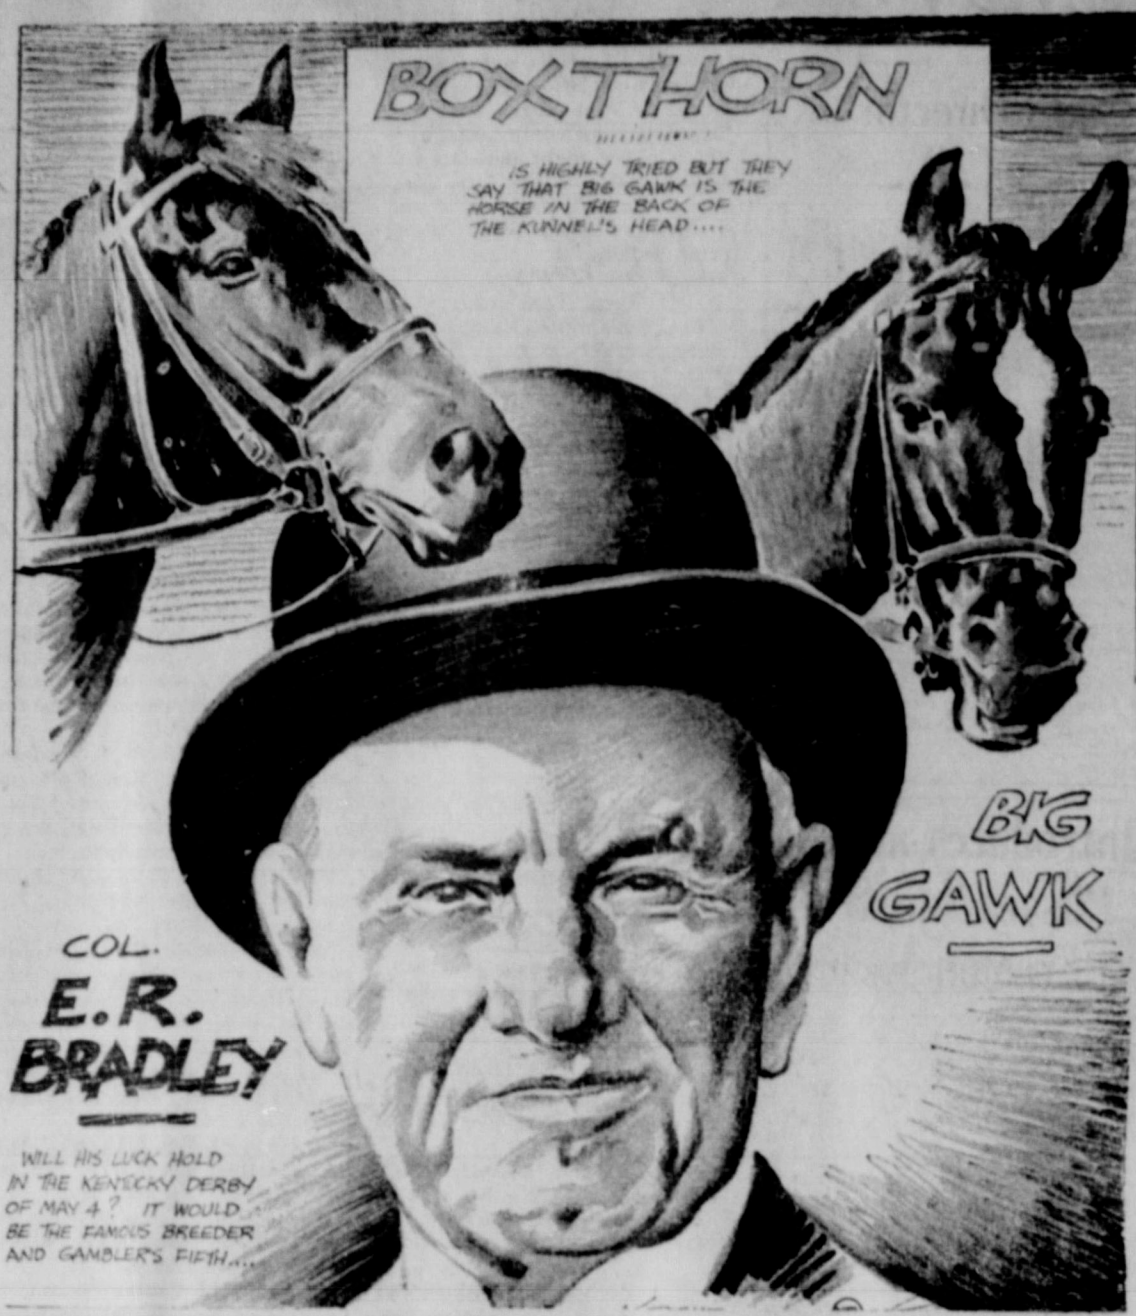

Burgoo King Reigns

There was little surprise in the Bradley victory of 1925, and little to choose between Bubbling Over and Baggensbaggie, the Idle Hour colts which ran one-two. If anything, Baggensbaggie was the better liked of the two. He had to circle the entire field to run second.

Colonel Bradley again appeared to resort tolegerdemain in 1932, when Brother Joe, a phenomenal colt, and Burgoo King, a fair 2-year-old, were his entrants. Burgoo King spent many hours in the sick bay, for which reason eyes were focused on Brother Joe, which continued to perform brilliantly.

Brother Joe apparently whipped his stablemate with ease in the latter's 3-year-old bow at Lexington just prior to the Derby.

In the big number, however,

COL. E. R. BRADLEY

WILL HIS LUCK HOLD IN THE KENTUCKY DERBY OF MAY 4? IT WOULD BE THE FAMOUS BREEDER AND GAMBLER'S FIFTH...

Burgoo King laughed along back of the pacemakers while the jockeys watched Brother Joe, which started like a prairie fire. When the time came for Burgoo King to make his bid, he forged ahead to a five-length victory. Brother Joe was last in the field of 19.

A Good Broker's Tip

Colonel Bradley's chances were given a knock in pre-Derby performances in which Broker's Tip and Boilermaker ran two-three in their 3-year-old debuts, and Boilermaker and Fingal ran fifth and seventh behind Head Play in heavy going.

Supposed wise ones looked askance when Colonel Bradley announced that he would start only one horse in the Derby—Broker's Tip.

And coming down the stretch on the large afternoon was Broker's Tip, ridden by Don Meade, who sneaked his mount through on the rail, outstretched Head Play, and won by a whisker. This was the race in which Meade and Jockey Fisher, aboard Head Play, fought down the stretch.

The 1933 Derby was the only race ever won by Broker's Tip.

In Boxthorn, Colonel Bradley has as good a candidate as a majority of the others which will face the barrier this year. Boxthorn is attracting most of the attention, because he is in splendid condition, has won a few races, and is reported to be his owner's choice.

Big Gawk, a long-legged animal, has yet to start. His name aptly describes his appearance, and he does not impress as being a colt of Derby-winning caliber.

But you never can tell about a Derby horse whose jockey sports the silks of Colonel Edward Riley Bradley.

First Entries for Amarillo's Spring Race Meet Arrive

AMARILLO, April 27.—The first batch of official entries for the Tri-State Fair's spring race meeting contained the names of 119 thoroughbreds. With the starting date, May 25, nearly a month away, this early registration for stall space indicates the Tri-State has lost none of its appeal to horse owners throughout the Southwest.

Many of the owners represented in this early list of entries have raced their horses here in the past. Several are newcomers. Mason King, Tri-State Fair director of racing, predicts within the next week reservations for at least 100 more stalls will be received. King expects the 300 stall capacity at the Fair Grounds to be filled 10 days before the races start.

The Tri-State spring meeting will be climaxed on the afternoon of June 1 with the running of the Tri-State Derby, an event that last year proved to be the outstanding attraction of the program.

municipal course at Sacramento is a short par three, 155 yards long. With a No. 5 iron, McSpaden put his tee shot six feet from the cup, and rammed the putt down for a birdie two, giving him a score of 71 on the 18, for a grand total of 284.

This shot enabled McSpaden to nose out the fast-losing Walter Hagen, who was putting on one of his characteristic par-breaking spurts, and setting a new course record of 67, for a total of 255, one stroke behind the Kansas City pro.

"The Whole Town's Talking" has become a popular slogan the past week, and further details of this great contest sponsored by the Democrat, the Ritz and the Potts Chevrolet Company will be found in this issue. Even if you're not entering the contest, you'll no doubt see Edward Robinson in this great picture at the Ritz today and Monday.

Orr's Annex Drugs calls your attention this week to the fountain service at their location just across from Uncle Sam's emporium. Wylie says that he can't compete with Postmaster Read on stamps and money orders, but that you will find most anything else in his complete gift shop stock.

The Green Shirt Band, by special invitation, attended the annual Battle of Flowers in San Antonio Friday, and took part in the festivities. All expenses of the 38-piece band were paid by the Falfurrias Chamber of Commerce.

Concerning the band's part in the contest at Kingsville, the Falfurrias Facts reporter said: "As the writer listened to the Falfurrias band competing with six others of Class B, she felt proud of its pleasing appearance; its general attitude of ease, cooperation, and efficiency in performance; and felt that all patrons of the school are justified in the hearty support which they invariably give the popular director and his band."

Holmes McNeely is the son of Dr. and Mrs. M. McNeely of Memphis, and was a member of the famous Gold Medal Band for several years.

THE NOSEY GUY

By J. C. W.

Clement B. McDonald, Quitaque Post: My feelings were gloriously hurt Easter Sunday—I wore a brand new suit and no one noticed it, except the man who sold it to me. . . . Something tells me that we'll make a good cotton crop this year—but remember this is not a prediction—just sort of a "hope."

McLean News: One of the serious problems of any community is people who take themselves too seriously. . . . The best way to solve the social problems of the country is for each one to take care of himself. . . . Everybody agrees that there are too many highway fatalities in our country, but the living do nothing about it and the dead can't.

Harry Koch in Quanah Tribune-Chief: This country got a raw deal from its Allies in the World War and is not likely to rush into others war for some time to come. . . . Not much soil was blown away here during the past month but from the layers of sand deposited it looks like several hundred thousand tons have been added to the soil of this county.

Tulia Herald: Every politician knows that it is impossible to please everybody; what they seek is the favor of the majority. What puzzles them—just who is part of that majority? . . . What a man can't understand is why the house is any cleaner with the bookcase moved to where the davenport used to be.

Canyon News: Texas used to boast about having two governors for the price of one; but last week the state had the distinction of having three governors within the course of four days. . . . "Now I lay me down to snore, with lots of dust in every pore, and if the dawn I fail to see, they don't have to bury me."

MUSINGS

Man is born to live a short time, then to pass out of this world into another. He cuts a narrow or wide swath, as the case may be, during his short span here. He may reach to fame's height, or sink to degradation's depth; may be a leader of men in finance, society, club, or religion, or may be an utter failure and an outcast; may be held up as an example of success, or referred to as a failure; may sip from success' amber cup, or drink the dregs of bitterness and despair—yet when the Angel of Death calls to take him to the brink of the River Styx to be ferried across to the other side by old Sharon—all his accomplishments or his failures are forgotten. Death is the great leveler of mankind.

When man dies, he is given an impressive funeral—his friends and neighbors tell of his many good deeds on earth—the minister tells of his virtues and his religious life, and says comforting words for his family's benefit—beautiful flowers are placed on his bier—tears are shed by his loved ones who are heart-broken, and who will miss him from his favorite place by the fireside. An aching void, never to be refilled, will remain with them throughout life.

B. T. S. Announces Sunday Program

The different departments of the B. T. S. announce programs to be given Sunday night as follows:

The Seniors have an excellent program prepared.

The intermediates, under the direction of Jim Fullingim, will discuss different phases of the subject, "The Unashamed Workman;" "A Boy in Oxford," Billy Fred Rascoe; "After High School Days," Florene Scott; "The College Student," Imogene Lamb; "A Great Decision," Hildon Lindsey; "The College Professor," Louise Melton; "The S. S. State Secretary," Loyd Whittington; "At Work for the South," Curtis Godfrey.

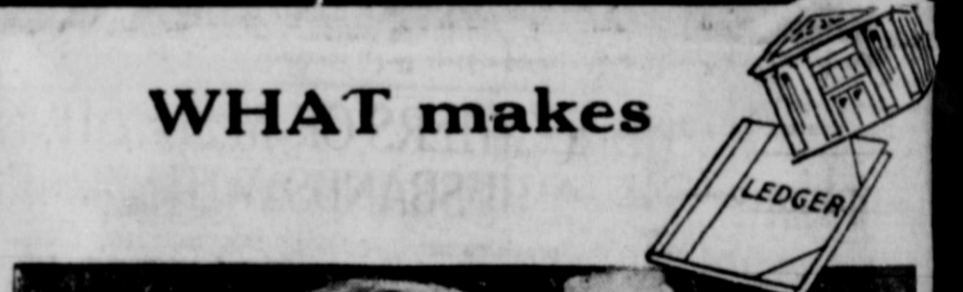

The older intermediates will meet in a separate group, under the leadership of Mrs. Sam Foxhall, with a similar program.

The juniors, under the direction of Iris Bradshaw, have for their subject, "In the Land of Opportunity," with Norma Ruth Cole making the announcements; "South America's Call," Betty Jo Brown; "Southern Baptists Answer," Joe Chitwood, Jr.; "Interesting Facts about South America," Dorothy Lester, Ima Nell Rice and Helen Chitham; "What Makes South America Dark?" Billy Jo Prater, Jack Morgan, Billy Boles and Garner Coe.

The younger group of juniors, under the leadership of Miss Jewel Melton, have the same subject, but will present it in a different manner.

Mrs. John Chaudoin of Estelline was a Memphis visitor yesterday.

His death, feel pangs of sadness—shed tears of sympathy and offer words of consolation. They, too, will miss him from his place of business and from the circle where he has been wont to linger—where he has offered counsel and good cheer—where he has spent many hours in trying to help his community and his fellow man—the giving time, effort and money to worthy causes. Yes, his passing causes a ripple on the waters of community life, which spread to the outermost shores, then subside until the water is placid again. His place is taken by another, who goes through life the same way, and his successor's also. Such is life in any community.

WHAT makes

a GOOD BANK Good

The answer is PEOPLE.

—a teller who can smile even when he has a toothache because he likes his customers and wants them to like him.

—a bookkeeper who feels a tiny pride every time she walks in the door and works a little harder because of it. . . .

—an officer who will shove aside a load of work to advise a puzzled customer and then lug a briefcase full of money home at night. . . .

PEOPLE make a good bank good because only people can turn the face of a bank, however modern, into the ponderable thing called Service.

MEACHAM'S PHARMACY

CONTEST WINNER

The Democrat's Anagram contest becomes harder each Friday, and last week's contest proved to be a real "stumper" for most contestants. Monstrosity, etiquette, symptom and invitation are the words that proved to be the most difficult last Friday.

First place award was made last night to Mrs. Byron Baldwin. Following is the sentence that won a basket of groceries at "M" System: "The pears and plums caused a symptom of heart trouble but etiquette forced me to accept the contract invitation, knowing the prize would be a refrigerator or some other monstrosity."

Second prize of two tickets to the Ritz Theatre to see "The Whole Town's Talking" was awarded to Mrs. Seth B. Pallmeyer. One ticket each was also awarded to Mrs. W. Wilson, Ruth Gammage, Mrs. Mac Tarver, Mrs.

Clyde Rutledge, Mrs. H. A. Hill, Mrs. Forrest Packer, Williams and Mrs. H. A. Hill.

OUT OUR WAY

try a key to the apartment and I'm wondering if perhaps he hadn't made a mistake and given Gentry the wrong key, so Gentry had to go back to get the right key.

"Perhaps—but why didn't you come back to the apartment?" "I'm coming to that," he told her. "As soon as I spotted Gentry I wanted to see what he was doing and where he was going, so I flattened myself against the side of the building and watched him drive away. He'd rounded the corner before I turned back to go in the apartment house. Then I remembered that I didn't have a key that would open the outer door. We'd had to ring the bell, you remember, in order to get through that outer door. So I was looking around for some likely looking bell to ring when I felt a touch on my shoulder and whirled around. Who do you suppose was there?"

"Who?" she asked.

"Sergeant Mahoney," he told her.

look to him like a professional job.

"Has any ransom been demanded?"

"Yes. Vera Duchene answered the telephone a couple of hours ago. A man's voice said, 'The ransom on Jarvis Happ will be $100,000,' and hung up before Vera could say a word."

"Did he say where the money was to be paid, or how?"

"No. That's the funny part of it; he didn't. He gave her just that message and nothing more."

"But won't Sergeant Mahoney tap the lines. Don't they do that in kidnapping cases?"

"Yes. He's going to do that or has done it already, but he's satisfied father's in grave danger."

"How about raising the ransom?" she asked.

"A cinch," he told her. "Just between you and me, Cynthia has already got the $100,000, but Sergeant Mahoney thinks there's more to it than just a question of $100,000."

"How could there be? What does he mean?"

"I don't know. It's one of those things that Sergeant Mahoney handles in his own way. He isn't telling us all that he knows . . . but we've got to do something about getting your troubles cleaned up. What brought you here?"

"I waited for you. You didn't come. I looked in the closet and found the suitcase containing the books that had been stolen from my room. They are still in the original suitcase. I took them out and brought them here. I wanted an opportunity to work on them before I said anything to anyone. I think they'll show that Dick Gentry is short in his accounts—badly short."

"Gentry's a crook," Norman said, "and he's mixed up in this thing so deep he'll never convince me he isn't a double-crossing, four-flushing traitor."

"Well," she said, "we can soon find out if I can get an hour or two to go over these books."

"We have to get that liquor man to get a look at Phyllis Faulconer. We'd better do that," Norman said.

"I'm not going to leave this room," she told him, "until I've gone over these books."

"And I'm not going to leave this room. I'm going to stay here and protect you," he assured her. She hesitated a moment, then said, "Promise me you won't interfere?"

"You mean by being impulsive?"

"Yes," she said.

He nodded his head. "At any rate, I can try," he asserted. "I feel like a cad for the way I burst in on you and took you in my arms. But when I felt your lips clinging close to mine I just couldn't . . ."

A hungry light glared more in his eyes. Millicent's eyes held by his. She looked away—nor did she. Almost involuntarily she herself swaying toward him. Then she was clasped in his lips seeking hers and seemed to drain her into a vast well of harmonious mingled with his.

"Norman," she heard his voice pouring ears.

"My sweetheart, my dearest one."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MILlicent GRAVES, secretary to GEORGE DRIMGOLD, finds her employer in his office dead. JARVIS HAPP, a stranger, offers to help her. He sends her to a beauty shop where she is transformed into a brunet, then takes her home, introducing her as his secretary. She meets Happ's son, NORMAN; his stepson, ROBERT CAISE; MRS. HAPP, DICK GENTRY, Happ's partner; and VERA DUCHENE, Mrs. Happ's maid.

In Happ's home Millicent sees the mysterious woman in black whom she believes has some connection with Drimgold's death.

The chauffeur is found dead. Later Happ is kidnaped.

Millicent and Norman learn the car driven by the woman in black belongs to PHYLLIS FAULCONER. They go to her apartment and while there someone tries to enter. Norman follows to find out who it is. Millicent discovers the suitcase containing Happ's business accounts. She takes it and goes to the hotel where she stopped before. The clerk telephones that a man is asking for her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

Millicent turned away from the telephone and faced the door, feeling sick with dread. No one could possibly know of that room in the hotel unless it was someone who had followed her, had been playing with her as a cat plays with a mouse.

The pounding on the door was repeated, this time more insistently.

Millicent made up her mind that, come what might, she was not going to open that door. The door was locked, and whoever wanted to get in would have to break it down.

She stood perfectly still, listening, waiting.

Once more the knuckles pounded on the door, and a man's voice said, "Please let me in."

Millicent's heart gave a wild surge. She thought she recognized the man's voice. She literally ran across the room to the door and said, "Who is it, please?"

Norman Happ's voice said, blindly to the sudden impulse that had welled up within her breast.

"My," she said, "but you're taking a lot for granted, aren't you, Mr. Norman C. Happ?"

Her tone was half playful, but her hands, palm outward, pushed his shoulders back, and suddenly his face underwent a change of expression.

"I'm sorry," he said, "if I presume too much. I didn't realize what I was doing. I rushed back to that apartment house just as soon as I could make it. I followed Bob Caise and saw a taxicab pulling away from the curb. I couldn't be certain, but I thought I caught a glimpse of you in the cab. I thought at the time you had seen Bob Caise and had turned away to keep him from seeing you."

"I had," Millicent said, "but what happened? Why didn't you come back?"

"I ran down the stairs," he told her, "and missed the man who had gone down in the elevator, but I dashed across the lobby to the sidewalk and was just in time to see him getting into a car. The man was Dick Gentry, my father's partner, and the car he was driving was Bob Caise's cabriolet."

"But, good heavens!" she exclaimed, "Mr. Gentry came back and went in that room. He had a key to it."

Norman frowned thoughtfully. "I'm wondering," he said, "if Bob Caise hadn't given Dick Gen-

She gave a quick exclamation of dismay. "Then he knows about the place?"

"I don't know. I don't think so. His car was there at the curb. He told me he was driving past and saw me, so he parked his car and ran across to talk to me."

"What did he say? What was it he wanted? Was it about me?"

"Yes. He wanted to know when I'd seen you last. He was very anxious to get in touch with you."

"He would be."

"Don't misjudge him," Norman Happ answered slowly. "I think he understands a great deal more than he lets on. I told him that I knew you weren't running away, and he laughed and said that he knew it, too, because you weren't that type; that you'd surrendered once to blind panic but that you wouldn't do it again; that you were what he called a regular fellow, and that you would stay and see the thing through. But he told me he wanted to talk with me and said that he would like to have a few minutes of my time at once."

"You know, he's pretty shrewd and I didn't dare to appear to be in too much of a hurry because otherwise he would have smelled a rat. Apparently he hadn't noticed that I was about to ring one of the apartment bells and he intimated it might be well for me to get into his car and drive out to the house with him."

"Did you do it?" she asked.

"Yes," he told her. "I had to."

"What about your father?" she inquired, her voice showing her anxiety.

"That was what Sergeant Mahoney wanted to see me about—that kidnaping. He says it doesn't

But this does not mean you have to sacrifice any of the glamor that is every woman's right once she starts to dress for a formal party. You can find an evening gown that is as becoming to your dress-up personality as a tailored suit is to your work-a-day mein and still be sure that it will be as pretty in August as it was in May.

Flowered crepes, chiffons, organdies and linens are some of the summer materials that always look fresh but which can stand up under the strain of dry-cleaning fluids and laundries. Better not get a wrap to match. A neutral toned one that will go with gowns you buy later will make you happier in the long run.

Glorifying Yourself

BY ALICIA HART
Written for NRA Service

"There is no excuse for the woman who allows her waistline to become thick and ugly," an exercise teacher told me the other day. "Exercises to keep this part of the body young and supple are the easiest of all, require little time and can be done daily right at home."

She went on to describe effective routines which will prevent waistline thickness that is the bane of any mature woman's existence. Here are some of her suggestions:

When you wake up in the morning, force your arms upward toward the head of the bed and push your legs and feet downward until you can feel all the waistline muscles stretch and pull. Keeping your back flat on the bed, bend as far as you can toward the right and then to the left. Repeat until you are wide awake.

Get up, drink two glasses of warm water and then begin to do more bending routines.

Stand with feet together, arms held high above your head. Keeping knees straight, bend forward, trying to touch the floor with fingertips. You won't be able to do it the first day, of course, but keep on trying and, sooner than you expect, you will.

Take the original position again and, without turning your body, stretch the right arm up and hold the left one against your side. Lean toward the left as far as you possibly can. Relax and then reverse, holding right arm at your side and leaning toward the right. Put hands on hips and bend forward, backward, toward the left and to the right. Do it rapidly each morning.

House Plants May Become Infected

Last of a series of articles on control of insect pests.
BY MARIAN ROBISON
Written for NRA Service

Fungi rarely affect house plants. Insects, their worst enemies, can be avoided by frequent inspection and regular spraying with water. Two insects neglected today means hundreds tomorrow. Some suck some chew the tenderest plant parts—buds and twigs.

White cottony tufted mealybugs and aphids (lice) infest stems and leaf under surfaces. Thoroughly wipe, or better, immerse plant in a warm milky-thick white soapuds mixed with a little kerosene or Black leaf 40. Or place plant under a tub or jar to confine fumes and burn nicotine.

Scale (hard-scaled lice) adhere to plant and must be raised—carefully to avoid injury—with a dull knife or tooth pick and then crushed. Or smother it with a coat of gummy dissolved whale-oil or white soap.

Red spiders (mites) succumb to nicotine fumes or the soap suds bath. Frequently showering plants deter them as they like dry atmosphere. Sprays of nicotine-sulphate, whale-oil, pyrethrum derris or rotenone are excellent for ridding plants of insects. Lime spilled around delphinium plants discourage slugs. Use oil sprays for iris borers. Garden clubs and school children should campaign to remove the shifty egg masses of tent caterpillars.

Japan has a specially built auto for her narrow streets. It is called the "rear-car" and is nothing more than a three-wheeled motorcycle affair with a body resembling that of a standard automobile.

Screen Gains by Barrymore Row

By DAN THOMAS
(NEA Staff Correspondent)
HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—With her marriage to 53-year-old John Barrymore virtually on the rocks, despite denials by the great lover himself, Dolores Costello is making definite plans for a return to the screen.

Now 28 and as beautiful as ever, the former actress has only to sign her name to step once again into the spotlight as a glamorous film star. Three studios already have offered her contracts. But she is giving most serious consideration to the one from Warner Brothers, the studio in which she soared to fame some years ago—and where she first met Barrymore.

Barrymore at that time was known as the screen's greatest lover, Miss Costello his most beautiful leading lady. Their wedding, Nov. 24, 1928, was a brilliant affair, uniting two of the theater's foremost families.

It was the actor's third trip to the altar. In 1910 he married Catherine Harris. They were divorced in 1918 and she died some years later. Barrymore's second marriage, in 1920, was to Blanche May Oelrichs, better known as Michael Strange. They had a daughter, Diana, now 13 years old. The second Mrs. Barrymore gained her final decree of divorce just six days before the Barrymore-Costello nuptials.

Had to Prove Divorce

Considerable excitement reigned in Hollywood during the few days preceding this marriage, as no record could be found of the actor's having been divorced from his second wife. And he refused to give any information other than to say that the divorce had been granted. This finally was cleared up when it was discovered the divorce had been granted in the actual name John Rlythe.

The marriage to John was Dolores' first and only (so far) marital venture.

Most of the film colony eyed this union with considerable skepticism at first, the prevailing belief being that it would turn out to be "just another Hollywood marriage."

But when their first child, Dolores Ethel, was born on April 9, 1930, the skeptics began to think they had been wrong. And when John, Jr., put in his appearance two years later, they were certain the marriage actually had "taken."

Gave Up Acting

Outward appearances at least indicated that John, Dolores, and their two children were sublimely happy. They lived quietly in their hilltop mansion and took frequent cruises on their palatial yacht, Infanta, named in honor of their first youngster.

Dolores fostered the belief that everything was going smoothly by stating emphatically that she was through acting, that her only desire was to be a wife and mother.

In fact, there was not the slightest hint that all was not well in the Barrymore home until a few weeks ago, when it was reported that John had invited his former wife and their daughter to accompany him on a cruise aboard his yacht.

The cruise, as reported, never

Talk of the Town... And Times Square

"The Whole Town's Talking"—about the high type of motion pictures offered by Memphis Theatres during the coming week. Two of the season's best attractions will be shown during the week at the Ritz.

"The Whole Town's Talking" is undoubtedly the most widely discussed picture of the week, due to the unusual contest feature and the impressive cast of characters. Edward G. Robinson is shown above as a front-page

Robert Taylor and Helen Twelvetrees are co-starred in "Times Square Lady," Tuesday and Wednesday feature at the Ritz. Virginia Bruce and Nat Pendleton are also prominent characters in the story of modern city life.

look place. But rumors of a rift became more widespread nevertheless, although both John and Dolores were emphatic in their denials of any trouble.

Final Orders

For a few weeks everything was quiet on the Barrymore front. Then, out of a clear sky, a report circulated about Hollywood to the effect that John had wired Dolores from the east requesting her to vacate their home.

Both Dolores and her attorney have consistently refused to make any comment about this reported order. But a few days ago Dolores and her two youngsters moved from the hilltop mansion into a luxurious home in Los An-gelen's most exclusive residential district.

That move would seem to indicate that the end has been reached. All that's left now is the divorce action.

Yet the latest report from New York has Barrymore declaring he plans to return and live with his wife and children, "just as we were."

'Times Square Lady' Different New York Story

Marking the ascent of Virginia Bruce to the brink of stardom, "Times Square Lady," a "different" story of New York night life, comes to the Ritz Theatre starting Tuesday.

Featured with Miss Bruce is Robert Taylor, another comparative newcomer to the films for whom stardom is predicted. He registered a sensational hit with film audiences in "Society Doctor."

Still a third unusual personality is Pinky Tomlin, the "hog-calling crooner" from Oklahoma who crashed to fame when he wrote the popular song hits, "The Object of My Affection" and "What's the Reason I'm Not Pleasin' You?" and rode the tides to personal popularity in a fashionable Los Angeles ballroom.

Still others in the strong cast are Helen Twelvetrees, Isabel Jewell, Nat Pendleton, Jack Lane, Henry Kolker, Raymond Hutton, Robert Elliott, Russell Hopton and Fred Kohler.

"Times Square Lady" is comedy-drama with a romantic story with something of the flavor of "The Thin Man." It deals with an Iowa girl who suddenly finds herself heir to a variety of metropolitan sporting enterprises. Her struggles to keep her rebellious henchmen under control lead to her unusual romance.

'White Parade' Is Human, Dramatic Story

Described as one of the most human and dramatic screen stories of the year, Jesse L. Lasky's "The White Parade," a Fox Film production, will be seen at the Palace Theatre beginning today.

Loretta Young and John Boles play the leading roles in this first of all films to deal with the student nurse—her training days, her heart aches and her happiness in service. To judge from advance accounts, the picture sets a new high for faithfulness to life and for discovering heart throbs, pathos and laughter in the most realistic of material.

Student nurses—the girls nobody knows! These are the subjects of this tender and touching story, which Director Irving Cummings has brought to the screen under the supervision of Lasky.

"The White Parade," incidentally, is the thousandth picture Lasky has made in his long and notable production career, which parallels the whole development of the industry in this country.

A notable cast is lined up in support of the two leading players. Among them are Dorothy Wilson, Muriel Kirkland, Astrid Allwyn, Frank Melton, Walter Johnson, Jane Darwell, Frank Conroy, Sara Haden and Joyce Compton.

ACTRESS AND DECORATOR

Jean Arthur, who is featured in Columbia's "The Whole Town's Talking" opposite Edward G. Robinson, enjoys interior decorating as an avocation. She has designed her own home in Hollywood.

Movie goers have been asking for a long time for pictures that are different. Numerous films have been advertised as being cast along unusual lines, but most of them have been disappointments insofar as being different is concerned.

The unusual, entirely different film has been made. It is Edward G. Robinson's "The Whole Town's Talking."

This is not "just more publicity." The writer witnessed a special preview for the film yesterday morning at the Ritz Theatre, where it opened with a regular preview last mid-night and is showing today and tomorrow.

It is not a love story; it is not a gangster picture; it is not a comedy—yet it is unusually interesting and entertaining. Although carrying a gangster angle, it has little to do with gangdom.

To keep from ruining some of the delightfulness in store for the theatregoer, I can hardly mention the picture. Suffice to say that Robinson is at his best, doing two great roles, as a shy, self-conscious clerk and as Public Enemy No. 1. Jean Arthur and others give excellent support.

He becomes greatly involved in a nation-wide search for "Killer Mannon" because of their resemblance, and fame and fortune are thrust upon him. He blunders along slyly into death traps, love and adventure.

If you are one of the movie fans who has been desiring something out of the usual line of love triangles, underworld blood-spilling or even the classics and spics, see "The Whole Town's Talking."

Not only will you enjoy its unusual nature but the film is crammed full of humor and excitement that makes it decidedly outstanding.

DOG-SNATCHER FORD

Wallace Ford, featured player in Columbia's "The Whole Town's Talking," starring Edward G. Robinson, was once a dog-catcher. He caught one dog and then resigned.

Ken Maynard Texas Boy, To Show at Ritz

Texas born, Texas bred, Ken Maynard, cowboy trained in the art, Ken's range and electric eye, Ken's thrilling western "Old Santa Fe" heading for Ritz Theatre's Friday day, qualifies as the best in Western heroism.

Maynard, who first came to light on a near mission in the State, grew up to be the lariat and the branding iron. Running an early age, he was West show, but schooling at the famous stronghold of the Spanish Military Institute.

HOW DOES YOUR GARDEN GROW?

The eighth of 12 articles on gardening by specialists of the College of Agriculture and Experiment Station at Rutgers University.

Writer on Horticultural Subjects for New Jersey Agricultural Extension Service of Rutgers University.

Some of our most beautiful garden plants are those grown from seeds in summer and autumn.

Gladiolus is probably more universally planted than any other flowering bulb. "Glads" are adaptable to practically all parts of the United States and do well in nearly all types of soil. Thrrips do not deter you from planting gladiolus, for these tiny plant-eaters are controlled by treating the bulb with naphthalene and spraying the summer.

TREE PLANTING APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE

Farmers To Show Desire To Take Part In Shelterbelt

Applications for shelterbelt planting are now available in the county agent's office or through the local Community Agricultural Association officials. These applications do not bind the party signing to any agreement, they merely indicate the desire of the landowner to have the land inspected by a representative of the U. S. Forest Service. Provided the land is found suitable for tree planting and an acceptable agreement is reached between the landowner and Forest Service the proper papers for lease or sale will be executed and actual tree planting will start some time in the fall.

The Forest Service proposes to place a shelterbelt 55 yards or 10 rods wide on every farm where the land is adaptable to planting the trees provided the landowners are willing to cooperate with them. These shelterbelts will be placed on the windward side of the farm and will be cared for by the landowner or the tenant residing on the land. The Government will pay for this care at prevailing local wage scales.

Thursday afternoon there had already been filed in the county agent's office applications for 44 miles of shelterbelt.

Get New Chance in Far-Off Alaska

New hope has come to this Arcadia, Mich., family, a chance to escape from relief rolls and start life over as pioneers in far-off Alaska. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Snyder are among the first of 200 midwest families to be chosen for the U. S. rural rehabilitation colony in the Matanuska valley and will leave San Francisco in May. Son Billy is all ready and wherever Billy goes, his lamb is sure to go, too.

A. & M. FARMERS' SHORT COURSE ANNOUNCED

Theme of July Meeting Is 'Changing Country Life'

COLLEGE STATION, April 27.—"Changing Country Life" will be the theme for the twenty-sixth annual Farmers' Short Course to be held at A and M College July 28-August 2, according to Roy W. Snyder, chairman of the central committee.

Phases of the housing problems facing the rural family; soil conservation with particular reference to emergency erosion work; and agricultural adjustment will furnish features of the program. Demonstrations in doing will be stressed rather than talks and lectures at this event, the largest rural gathering in Texas each year.

In addition to the programs planned for farmers, ranchmen, and rural home makers, conferences are scheduled for rural pastors and laymen of the State, agricultural editors, superintendents of rural schools, members of the bee keepers' association, producers of State registered and certified seed, and members of Episcopalian Sigma Phi, national honorary fraternity for Extension Service workers.

A newspaper staffed by 4-H club boys and girls as reporters will be printed daily during Short Course week. Neal Douglas, agricultural editor of the Austin American, will be managing editor. A small news sheet was mimeographed and sold on the campus last year, and because of its success plans have been made to enlarge and print the paper this year.

The central committee in charge of developing plans for the Short Course consists of Roy W. Snyder, chairman; R. H. Bush; Paul A. Canyon; O. G. Tomlinson; Miss Onah Jacks; Mrs. Dora R. Barnes; and Miss Minnie Mac Grubbs. This committee expects to have noted speakers and leaders present to bring information and lead discussion.

Woman's place in the home, unless it happens to be the White House or the Putnam residence.

On Texas Farms

Minnie Fisher Cunningham
Extension Service Editor

Gardeners hung up a $21 value per garden record in 1934—and that in spite of the drouth—(we should have a rubber stamp for those last words!)—according to figures compiled by Extension Horticulturist J. F. Rosborough from the annual reports from counties having Extension agents, where 2,683 garden reports showed $480,253 profit.

Good as this was, Rosborough is backing 1935 gardeners to beat it and to this end is coaching them on subirrigation to defeat the drouth. And warning them to watch out for mildew on the peas and all the varied crawling, creeping, sucking, chewing insects likely to cut down profits.

"Making the punishment fit the crime," he has a spray or poison or trick ready to meet each attack and wise gardeners will follow his advice as to which to use. That way neither time, labor nor money will be wasted.

To prune or not to prune? is the question that vexes tomato growers. Whether it is better to pinch the eager sucker and so increase the size and earliness of the fruit, or let them grow and lose this great advantage. Rosborough says nip 'em.

He says also stake tomato plants in the region of generous rainfall. In regions of limited rainfall staking is not necessary since it is done to insure that the fruit does not rest on the ground and become blemished.

Over 100 Garments Make for Only $36

MIDLAND, April 27.—More than 100 garments valued at $127.65 were made in the past year by eight Midland County wardrobe demonstrators at a cost of $38.65, according to Miss Myrtle Miller, county home demonstration agent.

The average expenditure for each of these first year demonstrators from August 1, 1934, to April 1, 1935, was $27.31. The largest expenditure for any one kind of clothing was $9.91 for footwear. The lowest item of expenditure was 89 cents for headwear.

Provides Storage Space for Canned Food for Only $2

BONHAM, April 27.—At a cost of $2 for paint and labor, Mrs. A. E. Campbell of Fannin County has provided storage space for the 88 varieties of canned food in her pantry by repairing an old handmade walnut cupboard belonging to her grandmother, according to Miss Minnie Eldridge, home demonstration agent.

Mrs. Campbell rearranged the shelves, added new doors, and painted the cupboard apple green. As it was not large enough, she built other shelves on top of it. Each section is stocked with required products according to her food budget plan and saves her many trips to the smokehouse where her food was formerly stored.

Signing for CCC Aid To Be Done Here This Week

Farmers and ranchmen in the county will be given an opportunity this week to sign up for help to be supplied through the Erosion Control Camp to be established in Memphis in the near future. The only remaining requirement for establishing this camp is that the people must indicate their willingness to cooperate with the camp in their work.

The applications may be secured through the local Community Agricultural Association officials. These applications, which are a questionnaire regarding the kind of work desired and the amount which might be done on any given piece of property, do not bind the signer to any agreement as to any particular work to be done on a farm or ranch. They indicate the desire or willingness of the party signing them to cooperate in the Erosion Control Program as carried on by the CCC camp.

As this program is understood by this office, the landowner will not have to pay any labor or transportation cost and in practically all cases materials to be used in the work will be secured from native supplies which may be located on the farm or ranch where the work is being done.

It will be necessary that these applications be signed up within the next week or 10 days so that definite information may be given the authorities in charge of this work.

Makes Own Buttons As Well as Clothes

CROCKETT, April 27.—Not only does Lorene Coyle, wardrobe demonstrator in Houston County, make her clothes by a foundation pattern, but she also adds a stylish touch by trimming them with hand-carved wooden buttons which she makes from native woods, according to Miss Orene McClellan, home demonstration agent.

With a few simple tools including a coping saw, a small drill, a pocket knife and a razor blade she has developed several different designs in buttons and buckles.
