SHERIFF GOES TO AUSTIN FOR THIEF

Sheriff Joe Colvin left yesterday afternoon for Austin, to return to this city a man named Hayes, who is wanted here for the theft of a car from the Foxhall Motor Company August 6th.

Advises were received yesterday from the sheriff's department at Austin that they were holding both the man and the car for Hall County authorities.

Hayes approached the Foxhall Motor Company August 6th, stating that he was in the market for a used light truck. He picked a 1934 V-8 pickup from their stock of used cars and asked permission to try it out. This being granted, he drove out of the garage, and kept going, until apprehended yesterday at Austin.

AAA OFFICIAL IS MEMPHIS VISITOR

Plans Now Being Made To Handle Tourists

Harry V. Wheat, of the Dallas branch of the Automobile Association of America, spent several hours Tuesday in the city. Mr. Wheat is handling the matter of tourist travel during the coming Centennial Celebration, which is expected to be very heavy.

He stated that Dallas and Texas would have the benefit of the experience gained at Chicago and San Diego, in evolving the travel to the Centennial.

The AAA will co-operate with local chambers of commerce throughout the state who will become official bureaus of information for celebration tourists.

Seven federal highway traverse Dallas, which, in effect, gives 14 entrances to the city.

Mr. Wheat stated that it would be the policy of the AAA to constrain travel within a radius, of 250 miles of Dallas to stop and seek accommodations in the respective towns along this approach to the city, since they can then enter Dallas the next day during morning hours, with much better chances of securing accommodations.

A booklet will be published and distributed soon all over the nation, detailing hotel and camp facilities to be had in all the smaller cities along the highways leading to Dallas.

Legislature to Meet Sept. 16th

AUSTIN, Aug. 28.—Governor Alred announced today that the legislature would be called in extraordinary session on September 16, to consider liquor regulations, and possibly other matters. He said that the members with whom he had conferred felt that there should be time given them to study the proposed bills, and learn what is being done in other states.

Moffett Into Private Life

The resignation of James A. Moffett, federal housing administrator, was announced this morning by President Roosevelt. Moffett, seeking return to private business interests, leaves Sept. 1. Stewart McDonald, the acting administrator, is believed to be in line for the post.

YOUTHFUL GANG TOLD OF BY LADS

Implicate Eighteen Young Boys in Petty Thefts

The Police Department believes that it has broken up an organized band of youthful criminals who have been committing minor depredations in this city for the past several months.

Three youngsters, aged 8, 9 and 10, were discovered by Dr. D. C. Hyder yesterday, pilfering about his place at noon. They had not stolen anything, but had emptied a 5-gallon jar of some solution the doctor had in his yard, and were prying around the place when the doctor discovered them.

He brought the lads to town and turned them over to Chief of Police Huddleston. The Chief treated the kids to a mild form of juvenile third degree, and found out plenty. All three talked, and each seemed trying to outdo the others in telling of their escapades.

From the lads, the Chief, secured the names of 18 young boys in the city, ranging in age from 6 to 14, who have practically organized a junior gang.

The ages of the boys implicated include one who is 6, one 8, three 9, five 10, two 11, one 12, four

STATE OFFICIAL WILL VISIT CITY

Deputy State Supt. To Address Our Teachers

S. D. Wilson, deputy state school superintendent, will be in Memphis on Sept. 4, to address the teachers, patrons and school trustees of this county, announced Miss Vera Gilreath, county superintendent, this morning.

Miss Gilreath said that Mr. Wilson has never visited this county, and his coming here was more or less to acquaint himself with the school members of Hall County.

He will discuss student problems, and answer any questions which might be brought up by the trustees, teachers or interested parties who attend the meeting, Miss Gilreath stated.

"The exact place where the meeting will be held has not been definitely decided on as yet," said Miss Gilreath, "because we would like to have a short entertainment program in conjunction with Mr. Wilson's talk. The place of gathering will be announced at a later date, but in ample time for those wishing to attend to make their arrangements."

WHAT DO YOU THINK? Local Opinions on Pertinent Topics.

THE QUESTION: What do you think of keeping hogs inside the city limits?

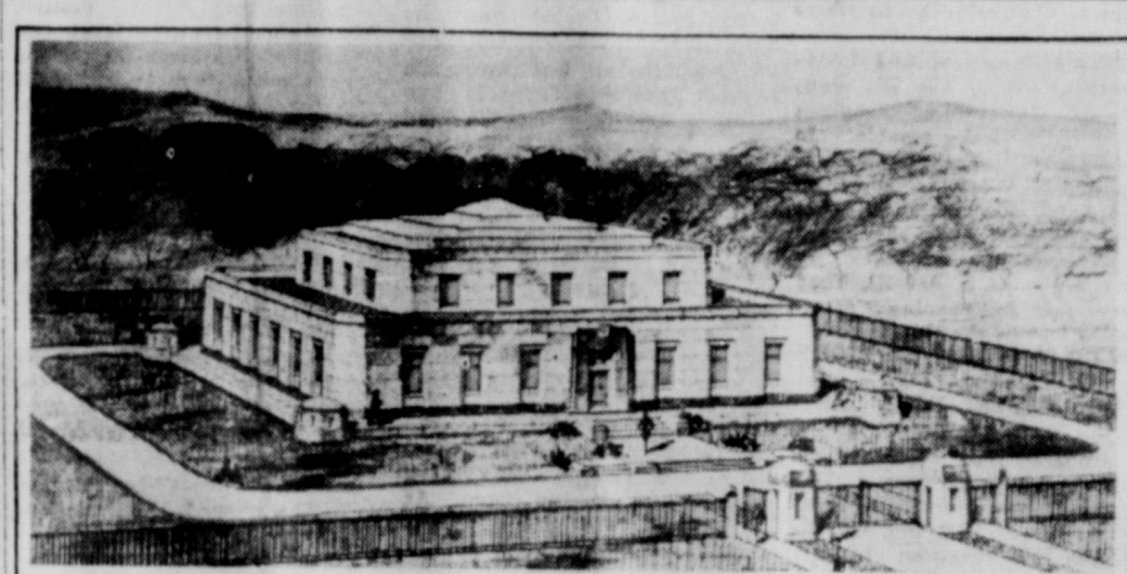

THE ANSWERS: D. MAX KING: While I do not claim to be an authority on the porcine species, I have had a little experience with the brutes.

I once lived on a farm, and we had a bunch of hogs. As a kid, I often watched them by the hour, wondering how they could enjoy themselves, they were so dirty and smelled so bad, I thought that, without a doubt, we had the worst hogs in the world. But that was before I moved to town and came in contact with some of the hogs here in Memphis.

I know of one hog, just like I described above, that was shipped in from Arlington 20 years ago, and, judging from him, hogs in the city are, without a doubt, a nuisance. The one I have in mind roots around all night and grunts all day.

School Cafeteria Not Open This Year Unless Local Organizations Finance It

Impregnable Vaults to Guard Nation's Gold

Here's architect's conception of new bullion depository, Fort Knox, Ky.

How the new San Francisco mint, replacing that built in 1873, will look.

To safeguard the nation's gold and silver, the two imposing structures shown above in architect's drawings, each as impregnable as science can make it, soon will begin rising—one on the military reservation at Fort Knox, Ky., the other on a rock plateau overlooking San Francisco. In the $524,000 Fort Knox "bullion depository," a giant steel-and-concrete vault, capable of holding $15,000,000,000 in gold or twice the treasury's stock, will be suspended, its four sides open to continual inspection. Of granite, the roof of the Kentucky stronghold is expected to be bombproof. In four machine gun "pillboxes" mounted in the outer walls, guards will be on 24-hour duty. Work on the new $1,225,000 San Francisco mint, which will replace the present one built in 1873, is already getting under way. Both buildings will be of granite and reinforced concrete construction; and elaborate "electric ears," floodlights, gas, radio and other equipment will aid human watchers in guarding the hoards of bullion soon to be stored within their walls.

Would Amend the Senate Rules

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, announced today that an amendment to the Senate rules would be presented at the next session, designed to end such filibusters as the one by Senator Long of Louisiana Monday night, which blocked $102,000,000 third deficiency bill, carrying funds for old age pensions, railway pensions and other programs.

Robinson said Long's one man filibuster "disgusted Senate and country." He didn't specify what change would be made in the Senate rules.

RAIN FALLS THIS AFTERNOON

After a cloudy morning, rain began falling in the city at 1:35 this afternoon, with a steady down-pour that looked like it might bring the long-awaited relief from drought and heat, and which appeared to be fairly general in the northeastern section of the county.

Call for Enlistment of More CCC Men

Visits Adult Ed. Classes Will Enroll 49 More Men Here

Miss Vera Gilreath, County Superintendent of Schools, visited the adult education classes in Lubbock last Monday.

Miss Gilreath went to Lubbock to hear and meet George H. Fern, State Director of Adult Education, who was visiting this section of the state on a good will tour.

Mr. Fern had nothing to say about the new program for adult education, but he will give out the announcement Sept. 1, stated Miss Gilreath.

While Miss Gilreath was in Lubbock she met and talked to the 37 adult teachers from Hall County.

She said she was pleased with the wonderful showing the representatives from this county had made in the school.

After the meeting all present took part in a watermelon feast, said Miss Gilreath.

RELIEF NOT TO BE AVAILABLE THIS YEAR

Local Organizations Urged To Take Over Financing Of Movement

Unless the matter is taken over by local authorities, the Parent-Teachers Association, or some other local agency, this city will not have a cafeteria in connection with the local schools the coming year.

Definite notice was received yesterday from the Texas Relief Commission that the school lunch program which last year aided in providing lunches for school children, would be discontinued this year.

"With our funds definitely limited," the notice said, "we would not be justified in making plans for a year's program for needy school children, when we probably could not carry it out."

Mrs. Val M. Keating, Director of Social Service with the relief commission, is urgently suggesting that the work be carried on this year by local organizations. She urges that Parent-Teachers Associations, men's and women's service clubs, church societies, and other similar organizations band together to keep the school lunch program going this year.

So far as we can learn, nothing definite has yet been done to look after the matter in this city, although some discussion has been had on the subject by various organizations.

There is no doubt that the movement was a great success last year here, and furnished meals to many hundreds of needy children who, otherwise, would have gone hungry at noon while in school.

With school beginning the fall term next Monday, prompt work will have to be done in inaugurating plans, if the local school cafeteria is to be continued.

President Signs Compromise Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—President Roosevelt disclosed today that he had signed away the rights of citizens to sue the government after next January first for damages that might be charged dollar devaluation and nullification of gold payment promises.

His signature made law of the compromise legislation which resulted from the administration's request for an absolute ban against such suits.

Democrat Zoo Is Enlarged

The Daily Democrat's zoo received reinforcements today when O. E. Hagemeier brought in a six-inch centipede.

It's a wicked looking insect, and Mr. Hagemeier says he'd much rather confront a black widow spider than one of these many-legged insects.

"A centipede," explains Prof. Bugg E. Robbins, head of The Democrat's zoological department, "is any myriad of the order or group Chilopoda, containing both harmless and poisonous species, characterized by a single pair of legs for each segment of the body."

Mr. Hagemeier stated that he did not care to experiment with his contribution to The Democrat's zoo in an effort to determine whether this specimen belongs to the harmless or poisonous species. His children found it in the family pea patch.

The zoo is open from 7:00 a. m. until 6:00 p. m. Visitors are welcome.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JO DARIEN breaks her engagement to BRET PAUL, college athletic star, because he objects to her taking a job as hostess at Crest Lake Inn, fashionable summer resort owned by wealthy DOUGLAS MARSH. Jo goes to Crest Lake and later Bert arrives as life guard.

Douglas Marsh's eccentric mother dislikes Jo. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, pays Jo marked attentions and asks her to marry him as soon as he can get a divorce. Jo becomes friendly with LOLA MONTEZ, film actress.

Prompted by his mother, Marsh asks Jo to leave Crest Lake. She decides to go to Hollywood to look for a job, and flies there with Fragonet. Later she begins to doubt Fragonet's promises and moves to a rooming house where he cannot find her.

Lolita Montez gets Jo a job in a sandwich shop, but she gives this up when Mrs. Fragonet threatens to make trouble. Jo receives a telegram that Bret is ill and asking her to come to Crest Lake. She takes the first plane. At Crest Lake she learns the telegram was a trick on Bret's part. He is not ill. They quarrel and Jo, running away, becomes lost in the thick woods. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVI

Night came suddenly in the forest, dropping like a curtain before Jo's frightened eyes. Her first impulse—one she recognized dimly as wrong yet could not resist—was to rush on blindly, wherever her legs would take her. In her swift panic she clung to the hope that by sheer good fortune she might stumble again into the dust of the road. But in the blackness she kept brushing against the rough, unyielding boughs of the trees, and low-hanging boughs struck her with a force that seemed moving and human. Even in the little clearings she sank almost waist-deep in the underbrush, as confusing and clutching as quicksands.

At length she drew herself up on the hard surface of a fallen tree, rested there, breathless. "I must stay right here now," she told herself. "I must stay right here until morning when I can see." She added, half-aloud in the lone darkness, "In the morning I'll be able to get out."

But as she clung there she kept remembering snatches of stories she had heard—of men lost for days almost within calling distance of help, unable to find their bearings. And of what was in the woods, what dangerous animal enemies, Jo could only guess. The clearing around Crest Lake Inn had been friendly, but she knew that beyond it Todd Barston and Douglas Marsh and their hunting companions had reported bear and an occasional wildcat.

It was hardly comforting to assure herself that the airport could not be far away, that the road must be nearer still. Not knowing their direction, she might as well have been hundreds of miles from them—and she realized that in the flight and her subsequent efforts to locate the road she might have penetrated more deeply into the woods than she'd thought.

Though the air was warm, she couldn't have slept even if she had been able to accept the bark of the fallen tree as a bed. The mysterious night sounds were too frightening. She had always imagined the forest as quiet, but now it was filled with nameless sounds.

How long Jo clung to the broken tree, lying almost prone as though it were a rock jutting up from a tossing sea, she never knew. But as long as she lived she would not forget the gleam of light which she saw beyond the dark outlines of the trees. At first it flickered weakly, then kept up its intermittent flashes even when it grew in intensity. With a joyful start, she recognized the light as from a moving car. Coming down the distance beyond the thick wood, it seemed to flicker as it passed behind the trees.

Jo leaped from her haven and into the yielding underbrush. But there was no panic in her heart now, for the lights of the car told her the direction of the road—told her, too, that the road was not far. It was difficult going, but she knew she had a chance to reach the highway before the car came abreast of her.

Suddenly she stopped. It might be Bret Paul, returning to find her! Suppose he had gone to the Inn and then, when she did not appear, started in search of her! Her fright in the woods had not weakened Jo's resolve never to face him again. Nevertheless she must use the beacon which the lights of this car furnished. Once those lights were gone she might get to her feet after a sudden fall without the least idea as to the direction she should take.

Resolutely she hurried on as best she could over fallen trees, through underbrush, dodging beneath low-hanging boughs when she had the good fortune to see them in time. The lights of the car were much closer now and she could hear the drone of the motor faintly. Should she hail the car on the chance that it wouldn't be driven by Bret Paul—or should she stand in the shadows and let it pass after it had lighted her way to the road? It was a long way to Crest Lake Inn; and the little airport station would be locked now, for there were no plane arrivals until morning.

But when she reached the road and heard the motor more clearly she knew that it could not be the small car which Bret had parked by the airport station. This, obviously, was a large and powerful model. Even its rushing speed showed that it had been built to disregard the none too easy roadbed.

Jo stepped for a moment into the long beam of the headlights, heard the motor lessen its roar, caught the sound of brakes. Soon the big, gleaming sedan halted beside her and the dust of the road drifted over it like a cloud.

One of the front glasses slid down an din the light from the instrument board saw the questioning face of Babs Montgomery.

"What's wrong—Why, Jo Darien?" She opened the car door and stepped quickly to the road. "Jo, what in the world are you doing out here like this?"

"I—I got lost in the woods," Jo explained sheepishly.

"But I thought you were in Hollywood!"

"I came on the evening plane, and I—I started to take a short cut to the Inn. If you're going back that way I'd certainly appreciate a lift." Jo told her wearily. "I'm pretty much . . . all in."

Babs seemed to hesitate a moment, and Jo wondered if the Montgomery girl still hated her so much that she'd refuse. Then Babs said, "The truth is, I'd planned to get out of Crest Lake Inn as quickly as I could. But it won't take me 20 minutes to get you there. Come along."

As Jo climbed into the car she saw Babs' smart luggage piled high over the back seat and she wondered why Babs was leaving in such a rush at this time of night. When Babs had swung the car around and headed back toward Crest Lake Inn, Jo asked "Are your mother and father still at the inn?"

Babs shook her head. "They left two weeks ago," she said.

She was silent then, and Jo didn't press her further. But suddenly Babs started Jo by saying "I suppose I might as well tell you the whole story."

"I didn't mean to be curious," Jo said. "It's none of my affair, is it?"

"Possibly it is, Jo. I'm not going to marry Douglas Marsh."

Jo flushed. "What's that to do with me?"

"Only this. He's in love with you." There was no bitterness in Babs' voice. It was a simple statement of fact.

"I—I'm afraid I don't understand," Jo said slowly.

"Neither did I," smiled Babs. "And I think he didn't understand, either, for a long time.

Perhaps he isn't wise to himself even yet. But I know what's wrong with him. I could see it from the moment you lit out with Peter Fragonet."

"But—but that's so foolish, Babs. There's been nothing between us, and—"

Babs faced Jo sharply, then returned her attention to the road. "Don't you be an idiot, too. I remember how you used to look at him. You two hit it off right from the first. I don't know what excuse you gave to yourself, but I think the real reason you went away with Fragonet was because you believed I was going to marry Douglas Marsh."

"That's not true," Jo blazed. "I had to leave. He fired me, so why should I stay around Crest Lake?"

"No reason why you should stay around Crest Lake, perhaps. But you didn't have to turn to Fragonet. That was the give-away, Jo. When I figured that out, and watched how Doug changed, I had the hunch. She paused, then: "I didn't really fire you. And Mrs. Marsh. They the quarrel after you Doug sent her on a to the world."

For several minutes think of no adequate relevant comment. They were in a whirl that settle into a single- ing. Finally she falter might decent of you me all about Doug feeling toward me."

"I'm not wrong," Babs retorted. "And ing particularly about telling you this. I'm heroine. ### INTERSECTIONS

IF the city, or any other department, has any available manpower with nothing to do, we'd suggest that some worthwhile work could be done in clearing the paved street intersections of gravel.

Gravel on the side streets has proven to be a great thing for the city, doing away with the mud evil when it rains, (yes, we said when it rains) but gravel on the paved intersections is a nuisance.

Traffic on the graveled streets has gradually carried the rocks out onto the pavement until now, at many of the intersections of paved and graveled streets, the pavement is practically covered.

This condition is not only unsightly, but a great inconvenience to pedestrians after night-fall.

An occasional cleaning off of the gravel and rocks would keep the paving free and improve matters a great deal.

HUEY LONG BLOCKS PENSIONS

THE last minute filibuster in Congress by Huey Long blocked the enactment of the deficiency bill. This, in turn, left the Social Securities Board without funds to function until January first, which caused the board to announce that it would be unable to extend old age pension or other social security aid to the states until after the first of the year.

This should endear Huey to the thousands of people who last Saturday voted old age pensions in Texas.

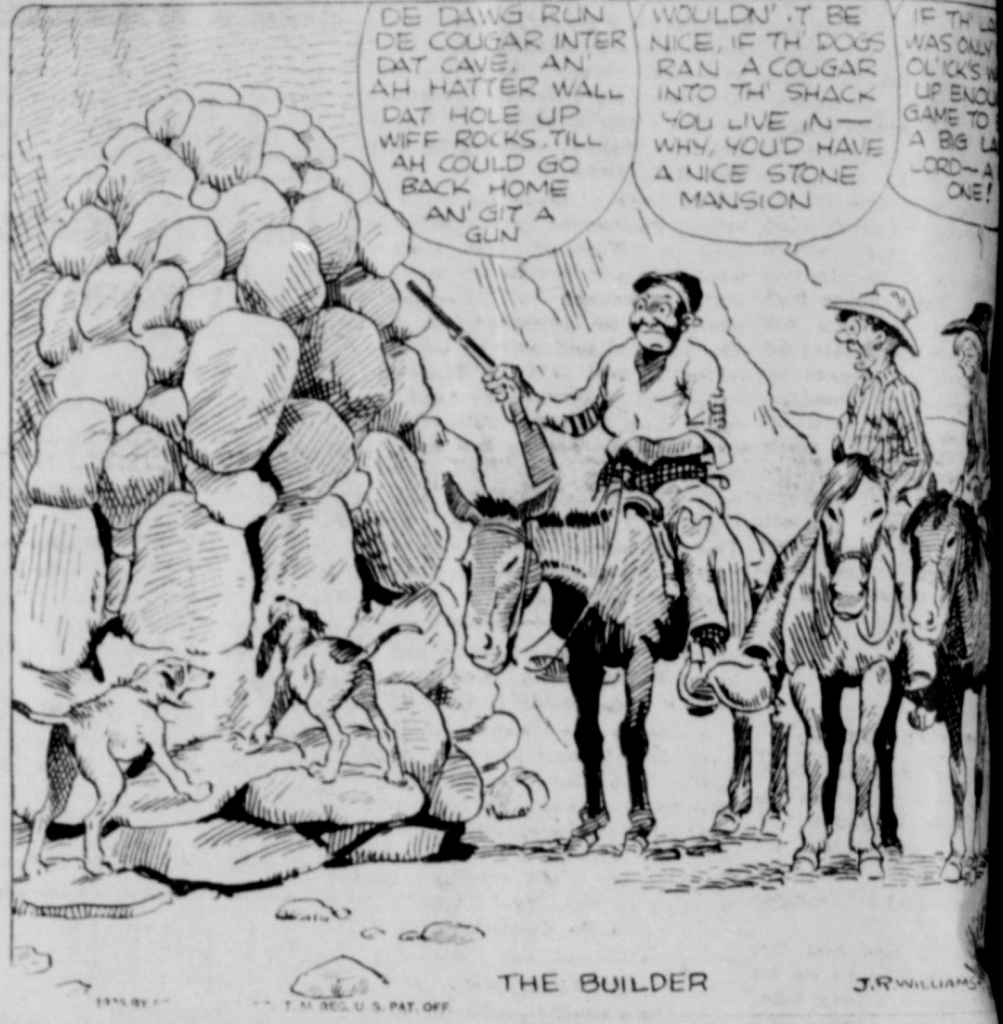

There is no doubt that guy Long can do more things to make him disliked than anybody we ever heard of.

J. Ham Lewis, in the Senate the other day, seemed to express most folks' opinion, when he replied to Long's statement that he had nowhere to go by the statement that the balance of the senators would be glad to inform him as to where they would like for him to go.

In Berlin, they behead folks for spending their money in other ways than supporting their families. Might be a good idea in any country.

DALHART, Aug. 27.—Two teachers share honors in the Panhandle poetry contest conducted by the Dalhart Publishing Company in connection with the anthology of Panhandle poetry to be issued this fall under the editorship of John L. McCarthy who last year compiled Prairie Nights and Yucca, the first anthology of Panhandle poetry. The contest closed June 1, and was judged by a nationally known Texas poet.

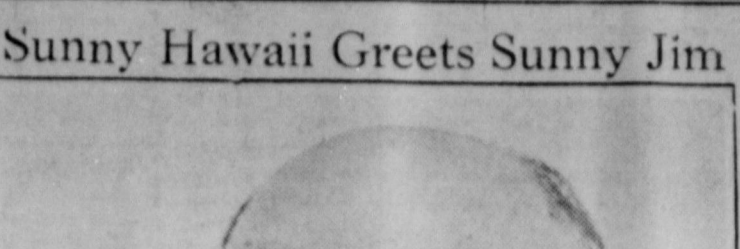

C. May Cohea, Amarillo, won the general poetry contest with her "The Homecoming," while Peggy Caldwell of Hedley won the Panhandle Scenic and Historical contest with her Panhandle Panorama.

In the general contest Miss Cohea was first; O. Sewell, Tucumcari, was second with Dance of the Tumbleweeds; Mae Francis Hall of Guymon, Oklahoma was third with Dawn, and Hope Bussey, Panhandle, fourth with "Translated from 'The Persian.'"

In the Panhandle scenic contest, Miss Caldwell was first; Hope Bussey, Panhandle, third with The Plains; Idell Durrett, Amarillo, third with Sandstorm on the Prairie, and C. Wayne Griffiths, Happy, was fourth with The Rain Crow.

The work of these and some 80 other Panhandle poets will be used in "Wind of the Cottonwoods" which is title of the second anthology of Panhandle poetry to be published this fall. The book is sold only on advance order. It will sell for $2.50 per copy and reservations must be made soon with the Dalhart Texan, Dalhart, Texas. The volume, Prairie Nights and Yucca, which was printed last year, has sold as high as $10.00 per copy since. The publishers print only the number of books sold in advance plus review copies.

Gain in Sales Shown by Stores

AUSTIN, Aug. 27.—Sales of Texas department and other retail stores during July declined less than the normal seasonal amount from the previous month and were substantially larger than during the similar month last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

"Reports from 89 representative Texas retail establishments show total sales 14.2 per cent greater than during July, 1934, the decline of 17.6 per cent from June comparing favorably with the average seasonal decline of 23.8 per cent," the Bureau's report said. "Aggregate sales during the first seven months were 4.5 per cent above those of the corresponding period last year."

"Cities with sales records better than the average for the State in comparison with a year ago are: Tyler, Temple, San Antonio, Dallas, Beaumont, and Austin. As between types of stores, women's specialty shops made the best sales gains. Next in order were men's clothing stores, large department stores, dry goods and apparel stores, and small department stores.

"Collections of outstanding accounts during the month also compared favorably with July last year, with an increase of 2.4 per cent in collections over the corresponding month last year. This fact is the more significant since credit sales in relation to net sales were 1.5 per cent greater than a year ago."

Panhandle Race Meet Entries Promise to Set a New Record

PANHANDLE, Aug. 27.—With more than 100 horses in the barns early this week, indications were that entries would set a record at the Southwest Race Meet, which will be held in Panhandle Aug. 31 to Sept. 7 inclusive.

A car of 12 horses arrived by freight Monday from Loveland, Colo.

C. E. Deahl, president, returned home Monday from a month's racing in the north. He entered horses in meets at Billings, Great Falls and Helena, Mont., Loveland, Trinidad and Pueblo, Colo. Previously he had been at Omaha, Neb., and other cities.

Deahl said that more than 100 horses would come here from the meets he had attended. Another 50 or 75 should come here from Oklahoma, according to advance reservations for stalls.

D. E. Hill of Hill & Hill, concession men, came here this week from his home at San Antonio and said he knew of at least 50 horses coming here from South Texas.

Supt. M. B. Davidson expects 250 or 300 horses to be in the Panhandle meet. Already he is worrying about plans to stable the horses, and it is believed that another barn or two will be built this week.

Never has there been such interest manifested in the Panhandle meet, and officials say this indicates that Panhandle has stepped up several notches in importance as a racing center.

The meet opens Saturday, Aug. 31, and continues through the following Saturday. A record crowd is anticipated on Monday, Sept. 2, Labor Day. In years gone by, Labor Day usually set a record in attendance and no exception to the rule is expected this year.

Youthful Gang—

13, and one 14 year old lad. The three boys questioned by the Chief told of stealing small articles around homes and off porches and selling them.

Incidentally, they solved the recent mystery of the missing water faucet handles from the Carnegie Library park. The lads said several of the boys with a screwdriver had taken off every handle they could find and sold them for old brass.

Due to the age of the culprits, the Chief let them off with a stiff lecture, but states that he has the names of the entire gang, and is going to watch them carefully in the future.

Half Dollar Shrinks

In the past few months, we've heard much of depreciation of currency and devaluation of the dollar, but E. H. Whittington, of the Farmers Union Supply Company, tells of an actual occurrence of the kind.

Three years ago, he dropped a 50 cent piece in the office and it rolled through a crack and disappeared. Yesterday, they were tearing up the floor in the Farmers Union office, and E. H. found his half dollar. Imagine his surprise, however, when he found that, due no doubt to the depression, it had shrunk to a two-bit piece. At least, that's E. H.'s story and he sticks to it.

France Sides With Italians

PARIS, Aug. 28.—The French Cabinet today empowered Premier Laval to oppose application of sanctions by the League of Nations against Italy in conflict with Ethiopia.

The cabinet heard Laval's plan to induce the League Council to regard the Italian war against Ethiopia as a "colonial" expedition.

The ministers were reportedly agreed that it was imperative for France to retain the friendship of both Italy and Britain, but it was also important to save the league from any loss of prestige by attempting a program which the French authorities thought impossible.
