Hall, Childress, Donley and Collingsworth county farmers who view with alarm the return of spring with its expected dust and sandstorms may take slight encouragement from the meeting of the regional wind erosion committee Saturday and Saturday night in Amarillo, at which session resolutions were drafted in the hope that the federal government would make immediate federal appropriations for the abolition of the southwestern "dust bowl."

Meeting with a committee from Washington, the regional soil experts voiced support of an emergency program to reduce dust storms, and urged a timely emergency appropriation for the abolition of the southwestern "dust bowl."

The Democrat may not always be right in the stand it takes; it may not always be wise in standing for what it believes; but, right or wrong, wise or unwise, the Democrat will stand for the things it believes are for the welfare of the Community.

AMUSEMENT AND PROFIT

THERE is an old saw that one should never put pleasure before business, and it is a true one. Many a man has found to his sorrow that putting pleasure before business has been his undoing.

But when one can combine business and pleasure at one and the same time . . . that is something.

This is going to be the case in Memphis this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, when the merchants of the city stage their First Annual Carnival of Values.

On those three days, every merchant in the city is co-operating to offer the buyers of the Memphis area bargains in all lines of merchandise much more attractive than the usual January Clearance Sales.

The amusement part of the event is going to consist of a series of races, boxing bouts, horseshoe pitching contests, and other events to entertain those who visit the city any one or all of the three days of the Carnival of Values.

Prizes of cash and merchandise are going to be presented to the winners in the various events.

So, Memphis is going to enable every citizen of the area to combine business and pleasure in a manner which will be most profitable.

If you are in the market for anything in any line of merchandise, you will find it at the lowest price for a long time on those three days. Whether you need a spool of thread or a tractor, it will pay you to make your purchase on those three days.

Arrangements for the President's Birthday Ball in this city are going forward, and the event promises to far eclipse previous celebrations of the event here.

A story in the Simmons Brand, college newspaper of Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, that Cearley Read Kinard, Memphis lad, had been named associate editor of the Brand for next year. The position, incidentally, will carry a salary with it.

The High school football players running to the showers yesterday afternoon early. The boys appeared to think that the weather was a little cold for practicing and said some rather uncomplimentary things about us when we didn't stop to give them a lift.

The newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Johnsey, at the bowling match last night. Mr. Johnsey, shot a creditable game with his bride's eyes on him.

Coy Davis in his new role as a "soda skeet" yesterday. Guess he's figured that serving free air and water in a drug store is easier than serving it in a filling station.

Otho Fitzjarrald's feet propped up on his desk. There were so many open books heaped in front of him that we could not see his face.

A local yokel telling some of the natives that the Phillips' wildcat oil well was only about knee deep now. He said that the crew had hit alum water and the well drew up.

W. B. McMillan telling about his relatives in Arkansas. If he hadn't told us, we wouldn't have known for sure that he's from Arkansas.

Mrs. H. F. Schoolfield almost weep when she sold a quilt she had been working on for months. All we know about quilts is that

Behind the Scenes in Was'ing

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Weeks before the U. S. Supreme Court came crashing down on AAA, the small circle of secretaries and ex-secretaries to justices—a group far closer to the court than any other and practically the only pipeline through which its secrets conceivably might leak—was whispering with conviction that Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes was seriously worried about the court's prestige and future power.

Hughes, the story went, was afraid of the effect of further 5-to-4 decisions in vitally important cases and was willing to do almost anything in his power to avert them.

He felt that it might be difficult to preserve any belief in the court's infallibility if its critics were able to point out that the judgment of one man was determining the economic and political future of the nation; that plausibility would be lent to charges of one-man judicial dictatorship; and that aid and comfort would be given to would-be curbers of the court.

CONSEQUENTLY, the boys were whispering, when Hughes found himself about to be on the short end of a 5-to-4 decision he would be willing to move over to the majority, realizing that he couldn't change the result by dissenting, but that in concurring he might do much to preserve the court and its power.

When the Vermont income tax case came up for ruling—an astonishing curb on state legislative power—the word quickly went around that such reasoning had led Hughes to desert the "liberal minority"—of which he, along with Brandeis, Stone, and Cardozo, had been considered a member since Roberts' desertion. Hughes' slashing majority vote on the railroad pensions case thus effect a 6-to-3 decision. And of course now in the same quarters is a 6-to-3 decision against the government on AAA probably have stood 5-to-4 if he hadn't felt it would be to the court and therefore to save the court's face.

But the secret of Hughes' felt about AAA pose in his own bosom "inside dope" passed along with is presented only a jeet for interesting sport.

It is considered significant some lawyers that he not read the majority in this case, which many the most important Supreme ruling since the Civil War. He had read the in all important New Deal AAA opinion as a preservation of the opinion, it is argued, he insisted on expounding jority view instead of to Roberts.

EVERY supreme court becomes impressed by the importance of this case, which many preserving its majesty a lar prestige.

That's why so many—the late Justice Taft as Hughes—have labored in secret conferences to mous opinions. Perhaps in the chief private papers, long dead, it will be learned really felt about AAA. (Copyright, 1936, NEA Service Staff) they come from quilting bees, but we'd say from the ado made over the Schoolfield quilt that it was quite a quilt.

Rev. O. W. Carter in the Democrat office yesterday afternoon making out an entry blank for the horseshoe pitching tournament this week-end, and issuing a challenge to any preacher in Memphis to meet him in this event.

If we were Rev. Carter we wouldn't cover too much territory in our challenge. That Baptist preacher, Rev. "Okey-Doke" Webb, from his expert milking, must be a farm boy, and these farm boys are usually some horseshoe pitchers.

Then too, Dr. Angus might throw a horseshoe, if someone else furnished the horseshoes.

All of which reminds us of the one Floyd Wattenbarger told the Democrat force last night. Floyd says that a farmer on the plains was hauling a load of hay to town one day a year or so ago, when the grasshoppers were so bad. The farmer hitched his team to a neighbor's fence and went in to eat dinner with them. When he came out he found that the grasshoppers had eaten both horses and were pitching the horseshoes to see who got the harness.

And this also reminds us that we haven't secured that fish story yet. Judge Butler of Estelline has challenged all local liars to beat him in a fish story, but he wants the local talent to set him a pattern. Wish some fisherman would come forward with a good one for the judge to try to top.

Democrats Win From Merchants

The cellar champs took the league leaders into camp last night at the local alleys, when the Democrats took two of a three game series from the Merchants, thereby dropping the Merchants from their 1,000 per cent standing at the top to second place, beneath the Industrials. The game also tied four teams momentarily for the bottom position, leaving the Democrats, the Band, and the High School and Laundry with .333 averages.

The Merchants took the first game by 11 pins, but the printers came back strong and captured the last two games, the second very handily without using their handicap.

High score man for the series was Glynn Thompson of the printers, with 459 pins. High score for the prune peddlers was Hampton, with a score of 450.

The total score of the three games for the printers was 2140, just six pins below the record of 2146 by the Industrials last week.

Tonight the High school and the V-Eights play, Wednesday night the Outlaws and Industrials, and Friday night the Band and the Laundry.

for converting it into a County Hospital

HAVE YOU MAILED YOUR CARD VOTE?

The votes are coming in at nearly 6 to 1 in favor of the plan. Remember 12 out of the 15 doctors of the County are in favor of it and the 10 doctors in Memphis signed an agreement to that effect and it is on file with the Commissioners Court.

Memphis Hospital had 1567 hospital days last year (1935) and with all the doctors co-operating they have agreed it should run 4000 hospital days per year and at the minimum charge of $4.00 per day would far more than operate itself and absorb what the County is now paying out for the care of indigent patients.

The STRANGE CASE of JULIA CRAIG

by Ned Jones Copyright NEA 1933

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JULIA CRAIG, pretty young secretary to GEORGE WOODFORD of the law firm of Woodford and Brooks, is ambitious to become a night club singer.

AMY SANDERS, with whom Julia shares an apartment, discourages her about this, although admitting Julia's voice is better than many professional's.

PETER KEMP, also employed by Woodford and Brooks, is in love with Julia and has asked her to marry him, but Julia discourages his attentions. She tells Peter she is determined to become a singer and he agrees to give her a letter of introduction to his friend, HENRI LAMB, band leader at the Green Club.

Julia discovers this, tells Peter everything is over between them.

ROYAL NESBITT, wealthy, with many influential friends, comes to the apartment to see Amy. He hears Julia sing and promises to help her find a job. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

For several days following Royal Nesbitt's visit, Julia was buoyed by the thought of his unmistakable enthusiasm for her singing. And Amy assured her continuously that Nesbitt's influence was wide—and that he never made a promise idly.

But a week went by, then another, and she heard nothing more from Nesbitt. He did not visit Amy, and Julia's roommate had to admit that he hadn't telephoned the ship since the night he had said, "You can go places, Julia. I'm going to see that you do."

"I'm afraid he was just being nice to me, because he likes you," Julia told Amy.

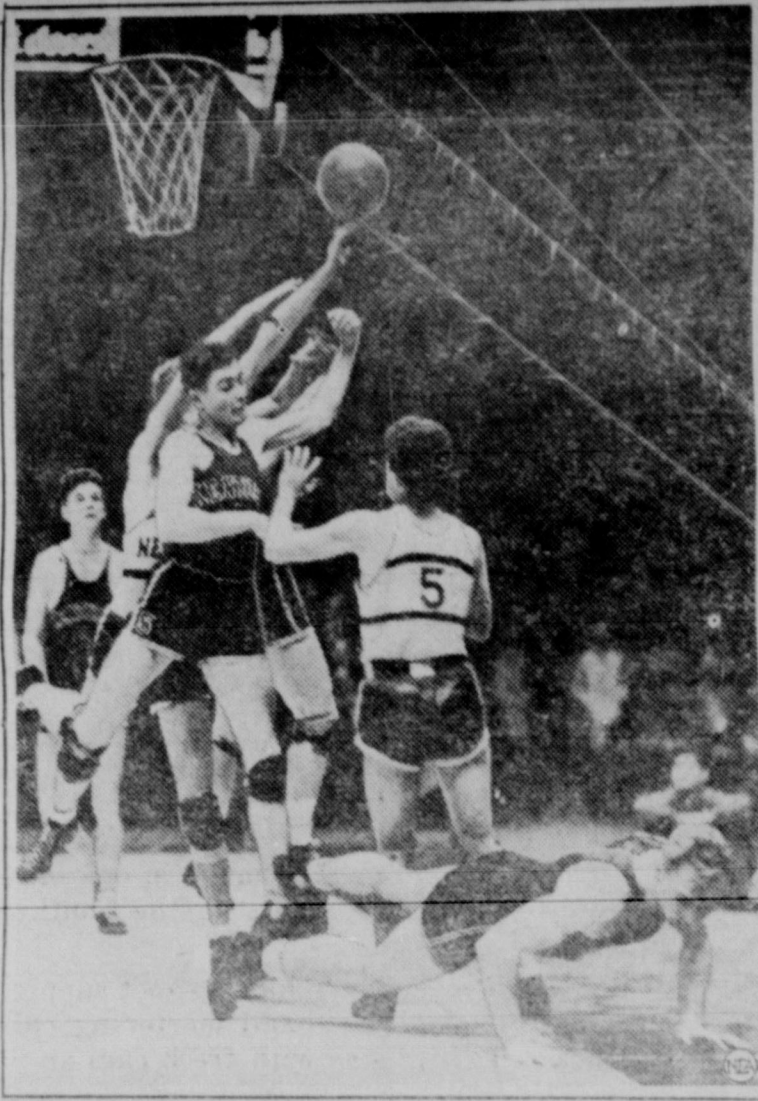

"Don't you believe it. You'll hear something from him when you least expect it. I wouldn't be surprised if he calls up any day now and says he has a tryout arranged for you."

Julia laughed, but not too happily. "I'm sure you're the most incurable optimist in the world, Amy!"

When another week went by and she did not hear from Nesbitt she was sure she never would. He had, she told herself, tried to be polite, and now he was avoiding Amy as well as herself. "He must think me a fool," she thought. "And . . . perhaps I am."

But nevertheless she held stoutly to her purpose. The brush with Henri Lamb had served only to bring out a certain stubborn strength in her. Too, she wanted terribly to show Peter Kemp that such an effortless trick as he had played on her was not nearly enough to discourage her in the ambition to become a singer in a night club.

The bitterness was in feeling defeat before she could even begin. She thought of applying at some of the entertainment agencies, but she pictured in her mind an ogre of an agent, dark and cynical, who would demand to know if she'd had experience. And laugh when she said she hadn't.

One night after work she did muster the courage to try one of the radio stations. The man who hired "the talent" was courteous enough, but he showed Julia a waiting list which looked like a page from the city directory. He told her, too, that as an unknown and untried singer she might have to suffer a period of anonymity even when she got her chance. Then he told her something more. "You're too charming a girl to hide yourself unseen on a radio program. The audiences that hears you should be allowed the benefit of seeing you, too!"

It was a pretty compliment, but it did not further Julia in her determination. Now more than ever she wanted to leave Woodford and Brooks. Although her chief work was as secretary to George Woodford, a certain number of daily conferences with Peter Kemp were always necessary. These Julia suffered with the dignity of an employe who knows her confrere only during business hours. Once Peter dropped his mask in sudden desperation and tried again for forgiveness.

"I do forgive you," Julia told him quietly. "I'd quite forgotten the matter."

It was a white lie and Peter knew it was, but he said, "Then let's be friends again."

"We are friends," Julia answered. "Now about this Parrington contract . . ."

It was no use, Peter pulled himself together and resumed the discussion of the contract. He did not try again to break through her reserve, but each time she saw him Julia was reminded that she hadn't yet been able to make good on her plans for the future.

Once she thought of quitting Woodford and Brooks, but quickly realized how foolish this would be. Even ordinary office boys were still somewhat difficult to obtain. It would be a laughing matter to leave a job she knew she was equipped to do—and go searching for one that might never, for her, exist.

But the truth remained that Julia Craig was a songbird by nature. She wanted to sing. Many people who great singers have such. And not every singer knows as great hits as did. Perhaps that was of the spell she could she sang. Certainly it thing which had provided Sanders to say, "You these modern songs wonderful, even when the so good and the words silly."

Black-Draught Relief Is Prompt and Refreshing

It's a god idea that so many people have—to keep Black-Draught handy so they can take a dose for prompt relief at the first sign of constipation.

"I have used Black-Draught a long time, about as long as I can remember, and have a package on my shelf now," writes Mr. Sherman Sneed, of Evensville, Tenn. "I take Black-Draught for constipation which causes headache, a bad, tired feeling and biliousness, bad taste in the mouth and sluggish feeling. Black-Draught, taken about two nights clears up this trouble and I get all right."

Black-Draught is made of medicinal herbs, dried and finely ground, but no other change in their natural conditions. It is a laxative that men and women like so well because of the refreshing relief it brings in constipation, troubles.

gency tillage, including listing, chiseling and other approved operations, to prevent a repetition of destruction resulting from the blowing soil.

It was estimated that an emergency program to alleviate dust blowing in the spring would cost $3,500,000. A portion of that sum would go to the Memphis ECW camp to combat the soil erosion.

In preparing to ask Congress for a special appropriation, the committee pictured conditions as less severe than a year ago, but that "terrific dust storms" will prevail here during the spring blowing season unless proper tillage methods are applied.

Chiropractors--

spoke on various phases of chiropractic work.

Dr. Wamer was asked by the members to arrange a special clinic and school in Drugless Therapy to be held at Quanah in the Wamer Clinic on February 16. All drugless practitioners in Northwest Texas and several from Oklahoma will be asked to participate in the clinic and will be asked to bring any of their patients for analysis.

Because of the inclement weather Sunday, only about 20 chiropractors attended the quarterly meeting here.

WAR VETERANS MAY REGISTER

Special Project for Veterans Believed Announced Soon

All World War veterans of Hall County who are without remunerative jobs are asked by F. N. Blevins, NRS clerk here to call at his office in the Hall County National Bank Building.

The veterans are also asked to bring their discharge papers with them. Forty-one "vels" have already become affiliated with the National Reemployment Service.

It is thought that a special project for the ex-service men is to open in Hall County soon, although nothing official has been released on the matter.

Marcus Rosenwasser returned this morning from Fort Worth where he attended the Shoemen Convention. He was accompanied to Memphis by his brother, Gershem Rosenwasser of Lockhart, who is guest of his brothers, Marcus and Jess.

The next quarterly conference will also be held in Memphis.

Daily Program--

nard Doss, boxing committee chairman.

The foot races, which will cover the entire field of novelty races, will be run on Saturday afternoon and are expected to attract many entries.

A band concert by the famous Memphis Gold Medal Band, under the direction of W. C. Milam, will be a feature of each afternoon's entertainment.

There will be no admission charged for either participation or witnessing any of the events of the three days, and cash and merchandise awards will be made in all contests.

Every man, woman and child in the Memphis area should be present all three days of the carnival. The cotton is about all out now, and there will be nothing to prevent a full attendance of people in this trade area. Make your plans now to be here all three days, enjoy a series of amusements, and benefit by the wonderful bargains being offered by the merchants for the event. It will be well worth your while.

RULING IS ON W.P.A. EMPLOYMENT

Trants Since January 1 May Be Employed

ANTONIO, Jan. 21.—Works Progress Administration Drought today opened up employment to able-bodied family heads admitted to rolls between November 1 and December 31, 1935. From participating in the Works Progress Administration program by a regulation which restricted it to those admitted to rolls prior to November 1, "loyalists" became wards of communities January 1 when the Texas Relief Commission dropped all except incapacitated cases from the relief rolls.

Drought authorized district directors throughout Texas to accept these family heads, expected to number between 4,000 and 5,000, for employment on projects declaring that "when we have done this, we will have fulfilled the original purpose of the Works Progress program, which was to offer employment to all able-minded family heads on relief rolls."

The State Administrator asserted the regulation had the discriminated against many worthy cases who had made every effort to sustain themselves throughout the depression years and who had come to ask public aid only after exhausting all personal resources.

"After January 1," Drought said, "there was no federal agency to which they could turn, and municipal and county governments complained that they were not able to help these unfortunates.

Instructions have been issued by Texas Relief Commission officials to case workers to certify all employable cases not found to be ineligible for aid prior to the automatic closing of their cases as of December 31. These cases then will be registered with the National Reemployment Service or the Texas State Employment Service and from these offices they will be assigned to Works Progress Administration projects. It was pointed out, however, that these persons will not be assigned until previously certified workers have been placed.

"It is important," Drought continued, "that local governmental officials do not misinterpret this order. There will not be any general relaxation of the essential employment regulations of the Works Progress Administration. The requirement that 90 per cent of all labor on projects come from relief rolls will continue to be strictly enforced.

"While we realize that there are other needy unemployed throughout the state who have managed to stay off the relief rolls, there is nothing we can do for them, except provide jobs for such of those as may be placed on our projects through the 10 per cent allowance for non-relief labor."

"It must be remembered that this organization was established to employ over 120,000 persons a quota based on the employable relief load of May, 1935. It never was contemplated that WPA should employ all the idle, regardless of status; however, many local public officials have urged and are advocating such a course.

"If this position is prompted because some public officials are concerned primarily with the prosecution of public improvements, it should be remembered again that WPA was created to absorb employable relief cases, that public improvements are a by-product of bering the advertisement, Julia slipped to the radio and turned the dials.

It was an orchestra that had won its reputation deservedly, and Julia listened entranced. Her gaze was out the window, but she saw neither the milling throngs in the street below, nor the dingy roof-top of the building next door...

Presently they launched into one of her favorite modern tunes. Julia began to sing it in a whisper—but before the chorus was finished she was singing it clearly oblivious to the world.

The music stopped suddenly on a low, plaintive note. Then, while she still stood there, an all-too-familiar voice said, "Very good Miss Craig." It was George Woodford.

Julia turned, blushing furiously. "I—I'm sorry, Mr. Woodford." "Sorry?" he exclaimed, tossing his hat and overcoat on one of the big leather chairs. "Why should anyone be sorry for singing? You shouldn't apologize for that. Especially when you sing so beautifully."

He stood regarding her curiously, a little as if he were seeing her for the first time. Embarrassed under his steady gaze, Julia said, "I'd better get to work." She smiled ruefully, and switched off the radio.

"Just a moment, Miss Craig. That was really very nice. I took...

the liberty of listening all the way through it. Have you ever done anything like that—professionally, I mean?"

"No..." she faltered. "I—I've thought I might like it."

Woodford's eyebrows raised in astonishment. "You have?" He laughed pleasantly. "I'd never dream it. You always seemed so—so blamed efficient and full of the law business. Matter of fact, Miss Craig, you've made me ashamed of myself sometimes. Here you are—young and—well, attractive—and you seem to worry more about the firm than I do. I certainly never dreamed you had ambitions to go on the stage."

"Oh, it's not that exactly, Mr. Woodford. I mean—I haven't been thinking about the stage. I know I haven't a very remarkable voice. It's just sort of adaptable to those Tin Pan Alley songs."

"Then you want to be a night club singer, eh?"

"That's about it, Mr. Woodford."

"Have you tried any of them?"

"Have you tried any of them?"

"Just one. There wasn't anything."

"Hmm..." Woodford sat down at his desk, seemed to be studying the pattern of the polished walnut. Then he looked up at Julia again. "One thing certain I wouldn't be fair if I didn't try to help you. You wouldn't mind singing for a private party, would you?"

"Why—no."

Woodford hesitated a moment. Then: "You see, I'm giving a little party on my boat over the week-end. Would you like to come along and sing for them? Of course I'll pay you—and there'll be a fellow along who ought to be able to get you something if he likes your voice. You've heard of Smith Garland?"

MARY E. DAGUE

NEA Service Staff Writer

THE good-old-days have come back to the kitchen, at least. The need for economies has brought back to popularity on thousands of family tables the old favorites—dishes for which our grandmothers were so famous—chicken pot pie, pot roast, deep dish fruit pie, fish balls, light biscuits and many others. Here are recipes handed down to me. They reveal a trick or two which makes success certain with these newly discovered old dishes.

Chicken pot pie, tiny silver-skinned onions in cream sauce, cabbage and grapefruit salad and sponge cake with whipped cream or deep dish apple pie, ought to put you in right with the family at any dinner time soon.

Chicken Pot Pie

One fowl, 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons butter and other shortening combined, 1 egg, 3-4 cup milk.

Choose a fowl weighing about 4 pounds. Clean and disjoint. Put in a deep kettle and add boiling water to cover. Bring to the boiling point, skim and add salt, about 4 teaspoons. Cover kettle closely and simmer until tender. Allow thirty minutes to the pound. Just before serving make a gravy by stirring flour to a smooth paste with a little cold water. Use 1 tablespoon flour for each cup of chicken stock. In the meantime, prepare the biscuit dough as follows:

Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Cut in shortening. Add egg well beaten with half the milk. Cut liquid into dry mixture with a case knife, adding more milk to make a soft dough. Toss on a well-floured molding board

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Pine juice, cereal cooked dates, cream, crisp milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Scalloped fish and hard cooked egg bread, hearts of lettuce, red cherries, sugar corn milk, tea.

DINNER: Chicken pot pie, mashed potatoes, onions, cabbage and fruit salad, deep dish pie, milk, coffee.

and roll into a sheet an inch thick. Cut in diameter drop into the kettle of gravy and chicken. Cover and cook for twelve minutes out removing the cover, cover the kettle with a glass lid you can watch pie as it cooks and see what is happening.

Deep Dish Apple Pie

Four or five cups sliced apples, 1 cup light brown sugar, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 nutmeg, 3 tablespoons oil, 3 tablespoons water, plain flour.
