MURDER THROUGH THE YEARS

"HILDREN playing in a field near Vilna, Poland, the other day found an old shell, buried in the soil since World War days. They began, ignorantly, to play with it. It exploded.

This sort of tragedy is not uncommon in Europe, where there are many battlefields sown with high explosives. It is a dreadful commentary on the far-reaching effects of the last war; and it is even grimmer as a forecast on the next

There probably is not a man on earth so cruel and heartless that he would not do all in his power to save a group of children from destruction, if he found them playing with an exploded shell. And yet-what are we to say of ourselves, when we reflect that every great nation is busily preparing for a new war in which the murder of children by high explosives will be taken for granted?

THE LAW'S ABOUT FACE

ATTORNEY GENERAL Homer S. Cummings says that the government may be obliged presently to prosecute business concerns which continue price fixing under unofficial codes of

This seems to bring us up against one of the queerest and dizziest headaches that has afflicted Washington and the business community in

It is only a fortnight or so since the attorney general's men were busily proceeding against business men who violated the price fixing codes. Now, by a simple twist of the wrist, they are to reverse their field and start action against men for doing what the government was trying to compel them to do two or three weeks ago!

SPORTSMANSHIP BOOTS ONE

THE case of Alabama Pitts is worth more than casual attention.

Alabama Pitts has just got out of Sing Sing prison, in New York, after serving some five years for a holdup. In prison he demonstrated that he is an able athlete; so, on his release, the Albany baseball team, in the International League handed him a $200-a-month contract.

Since everyone admits that the one great need of the ex-convict is a decent job that will enable him to go straight, this would seem to be an excellent move all around. But now a man away, left his employ. She had named W. G. Bramham, president of the National Association of Professional Leagues, has ruled that Pitts can't play professional baseball because it would lower the tone of the sport.

What a ruling! The Albany fans want Pitts: the players want him; he wants the job, needs it patheticaly. Is his chance to be denied him because some petty bureaucrat has baseball confused with some old maids' sewing circle?

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATHARINE STRYKHURST, beautiful, 20, falls in love with MICHAEL HEATHEROE, who owns a riding academy. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother is snobbish. Michael becomes engaged to SALLY MOON, local coquette, due to Sally's scheming. In spite of this, Michael asks Katharine to marry him and, impulsively, she agrees. The marriage takes place in an obscure little town. Katharine and Michael each go to their own homes. Almost immediately Michael learns be has inherited a fortune and title. He goes to New York to see the lawyer in charge and is injured in a traffic

Sally, unaware of Michael's marriage to Katharine, locates him in a hospital, and takes charge of the situation. Katharine, believing Michael has descrited her, is heart-broken. She wants to go away, but her stepmother opposes the plan. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXII Violet Merser had nerved herself for the interview. It was not one she faced with pleasure, but Katharine's worn face and the tragic expression in her dark eyes the day before had decided her.

Mr. Strykhurst's secretary said she would see if her employer was busy. Violet, looking about her with recognition, was surprised to find everything so unchanged. Seventeen years since she herself had been 20, and ensconced behind that desk (or at least, one very like it), feeling important and thrillingly adult.

Victor Strykhurst's hair had not been white then; it had been black—ebony black with a deep, rich wave in it. He had exuded a sort of power. She had been exceedingly young and inexperienced. Small wonder she had fallen in love with

And in love she had fallen, head over heels. There had been no reservations in the affection she had poured out upon him, this motherless girl who had been noor and restricted and unbampy. He had been flatteringly kind to her—merely that, at first. Later there had been little aftentions, presents, the extraordinary homage of certain veiled topks,

Proud, loving, fierce in her loyalties, stormily innocent, she had believed all this. It had taken a day at a seaside resort whither he had summoned her, ostensibly on a business errand, to open her eyes. She had seen him then for what he really was-a rich man greendy for all life's sensations, loving not her but the new exper-

'Mr. Strykhurst will see you now." The secretary looked Violet over appraisingly, calculating to an inch the definitely modish costume of summer silk, charming but inexpensive. Violet smiled and went into the inner office.

He had risen to greet her; and there was just a trace of apprehension in his suave manner. Violet went straight to the point. "It's about Katharine."

His brows drew together in a frown. "My daughter? Ah, yes, you know her. I forgot." Violet suppresed the smile that rose to her lips. He never forgot anythink. Lawyer-like, the facts that one day might be useful to him were always pigeonholed somewhere in his memory. with a friend of ours, Miss Vincent. "Oh, I'd like to get right up there and walk around

He shook his head, obdurate. "My wife and I talked it over last night. Mrs. Strykhurst is very much opposed to it. Later we may run over to Europe with her. She can look in on the galleries." Violet suppressed a shudder at the thought of the unhappy girl

trailing the two smug, middle-aged people, wrapped in her own black thoughts "I rather hoped you would say

His keen eyes raked her handsome, expressive face. "You considered this important enough to come down town to see me

She shrugged her shoulders. "I was in the neighborhood . . . just thought I'd drop in."

"Katharine is a difficult child," Victor Strykhurst mused, putting the tips of his beautifully manicured hands together and regarding them. "She seems to have made friends with you. Her stepmother and I are sometimes baffled by her.

Violet felt almost an impulse of pity. Perhaps he wasn't as smug and sure of himself as he seemed. Perhaps there was a chink in that selfish armor. She tried another

"I know you want to do what's best for her." she began. "We do feel she might blossom out in a different atmosphere. My husband thinks she is very good. Have you seen her flower sketches?" By the darkening of his face she knew she had touched some raw spot.

"She never speaks to us of her ambitions," he said jealously, "I must confess I think it extremely odd of her to confide in perfect strangers." He smiled, as if terminating the interview. "I'm sorry but I'm afraid we must let the New Mexico idea ride just now. She must stay at home.'

The memory of Katharine's despairing voice steadied Violet and strengthened her for what she had to say. "Very well, then. If you won't, you won't, I warn you, though, it may be unpleasant . . "What do you mean?" He had risen, as had she. They faced each other across an expanse of gleaming mahogany. "I mean," said Violet easily. "that I've often been tempted to tell your daughter about our association. I've never quite got to the point. "You wouldn't dare!" His eyes flashed.

"Ah, wouldn't I?" She snapped pen a petit-point compact and looked at herself in its mirror. "You'd be a fool then."

"Ah, dear Victor," eried the woman, with the voice of a dove and (she hoped), the wisdom of the serpent, "but didn't you tell me once I was just that? When I'd refused to go away on a little trip with you? It wouldn't have looked well in the newspapers later, would it?"

She loathed herself for the words and the manner, but she kept the memory of Katharine be-

"I don't know what you're talking about."

"Don't you?" said Violet slowly. "Really, don't you remember? Because, if not, I have three letters which might refresh your memory.

Sure of her, her youth and innocence and admiration, he had written them to her that wild

"You're out of your mind." He threw a quick, apprehensive glance at the door. "Perhaps I am."

"I don't know what my daughter's life means to you,

"I'm fond of her," Violet said slowly. "By every right, I ought to hate her. Once I did-just the thought of her. I mean: when I was young and reckless and wanted everything my way. You told me once you would have risked a divorce-everything, if it weren't for the child.

"What do you want me to do?" He was staring at her now with a new respect. Victor was a bit of a bully, she reminded herself, keering her sense of triumph carefully hidden behind a mask of indifference. He always admired people who stood up to him,

"I want you to let Katharine go west with Miss Vincent, have her try at painting It's a sort of school they have there. Open air stuff. She'll thrive on it. She's been looking badly anyhow. I think she could stand a chance.'

He hesitated for the space of half a minute. Then he nodded, It was like him to give in gracefully, once he had decided the affair was out of his hands. Almost urbane was his voice and manner when he spoke again. "Well, you may be right about it. Yes. Parents often are too close to their children to see the best for them. Thank you. Violet I'll win my wife over. She's always over-anxious about Katharine. She feels the responsibility keenly-another woman's child,

He carried it off well. Not a hint of the resentment he must have felt

Regnal Greenhaw today is the city golf champion, following his splendid 4 and 3 victory over Thomas Hampton, the medalist, in the 36-hole final of the Memphis Country Club championship tournament yes-

With both golfers pounding away at par figures and neither ever seriously in trouble. they produced probably the finest championship match ever witness-

Five Under Par

Greenhaw was six under par for the 33 holes. Hampton, who held the lead twice and squared the match several times, although battling to keep in the race most of the time, was two strokes under perfect figures.

With an ideal day for competitive golf, the contestants for the crown thrilled the spectators time and again with long drives down the middle, ranging from 250 to 320 yards; dead-to-the-pin approaches; spectacular recoveries. and accurate putts.

Hampton In Lead

Hampton claimed the lead the first hole of the morning round, taking a par 3 after the champion two-putted Greenhaw then shot three consecutive birdies at his opponent but won only two of the holes to take the lead on the fourth .Hampton's par squarred the match on the sixth when Greenhaw went over, and his birdle 3 on the seventh gave him another lead, which he held at the

Hampton flung birdies on the next two holes to go three up, but Greenhaw cut the lead and then won the last three holes in two under par to regain a one-hole game tie, called end of sixth, rain, margin at the end of the morning

Open Last Round

Opening the afternoon round, 2-4. the champion fired three consecutive treys, two under par, at the runner-up, winning two of the holes. But Hampton by no means was finished. He staged a great comeback by going two under par on the next three, winning each hole and squaring the match on the 24th.

Keeping the spectacular tide flowing, Regnal ended the nine with another spree of treys, making the turn 2 up and three under par for the nine holes Pars Decide Match

A birdie two on the short 10th sent the champion into a threehole lead, but Hampton retaliated with a birdie on the 12th.

After halving the 13th with pars, Hampton slipped over on each of the next two holes, and Greenhaw's par golf ended the match on the 15th green of the afternoon round The cards:

By Ahern RATES REDUCED ON FEDERAL LAND LOANS

tional Farm Loan Associations

The interest rate on all Federal Land Bank loans made through National farm loan associations will be reduced to 31/2 per cent for all interest payable in the oneyear period commencing July 1, and to four per cent fo rall interest payable in the two-year period commencing July 1, 1036, according to M. E. McNally, secretarytreasurer of the Memphis National Farm Loan Association, This, announcement was made when Mr. McNally was notified of the new loan rate by A. C. Williams, president of the Federal Land Bank of Houston and General Agent of the Farm Credit Administration of This temporary reduction of interest on Federal Land Bank loans having installment due prior to July 1, 1938 is the result of new legislation, the Farm Credit Act of 1935, which was signed by President Roosevelt June 3 Interest payable on installment dates occurring after July 30, 1938, will be at the original con tract rate, which is 414 per cent on loans now being made through National farm associations and varies from 5 to 6 per cent on loans made prior to April 1, 1935

The Farm Credit Act of 1935 also provides for another import tant inovation. Under its terms, the Land Bank Commissioner now may make loans to finance the purchase of farms by deserving tenant farmers. Formerly. Commissioner loans could be made only for the purpose of refinancing debts, for repurchasing farms lost through foreclosure and for working carital. The Act extends to January 1, 1940 the time in which the Land Bank Commission er may make direst loans to farmers on first and second mortgages. The Commissioner loan plus any prior encumbrances on the property may not exceed 75 per cent of the appraised normal value. Commenting on the new provi-sions Mr. McNally, said: "The new provision enabling the Land Bank Commissioner to make loans for the purpose of purchasing farms provides a new opportunity for young farmers and deserving tenants to become farm owners and home owners in their own right. We shall be glad to talk things over with worthy who wish to buy farms of their
