Temperature Climbs To A Peak Of 105

With only slight abatement, the mid-August heat wave which has gripped West Texas for four days continued to parch this section Thursday.

The mercury at the local airport touched 105 degrees Wednesday at 2 p. m., the highest mark, with one exception, of the summer, and the peak of the current heat wave.

Other points in West Texas were hotter Wednesday than Big Spring. Snyder reported 115 degrees as the highest reading in the state.

Wichita Falls had a top of 111, and Abilene 110. Readings at other points included Texarkana 108, Lubbock 107, Fort Worth 104, Paris 104, Amarillo 103, a summer record, and Dallas 100.8.

While the temperature Wednesday fell three degrees short of the record of 108 this year, three successive days of burning heat made for more unbearable conditions.

Big Spring people hovered around electric fans and tried novel ways of keeping cool. Among the homemade inventions was the blowing of a fan against a wet towel suspended from a coat hanger.

Values Fixed For Railroads

Intangible values for tax purposes of Texas railroads, fixed by the state tax board at Austin Wednesday, showed that the Texas & Pacific's total is the second largest in the state.

Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, $2,819,000. Fort Worth & Denver City (Wichita Valley), $4,005,000, a decrease of $128,200. Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe, $4,400,000, a decrease of $472,655.

The board said the additional reductions were made because the six roads were given relatively smaller reductions last year than the other lines considering the shrinkage in their earnings for the five-year period ended last December 31.

Searing Wind Brings Heavy Crop Damage

Ranchers Fear Shortage Of Feed; Farm Families Needing Help

Blistering winds, like a breath from a furnace, continued their devastating and relentless attack on the crops and ranges of Howard county Thursday as Congressman George Mahon recommended the inclusion of the county in the drouth area.

Cotton and feed, already on the ragged edge, experienced the most damaging day of the current season Wednesday when the sun's rays forced the thermometer to 105 degrees at 2 p. m.

Ranches, dry and burned, were hopelessly baked, and ranchers began to look gravely upon an apparent feed shortage.

Families Need Work County Agent O. P. Griffin estimated, after a hasty survey, that there were 400 farm families in immediate need of employment and predicted that many would have to dispose of cattle. The number in needy circumstances, due to the damaging heat of the past week, will increase daily so long as there is no rain, he said.

Rep. Mahon recommended late Wednesday afternoon the inclusion of Scurry, Borden, Mitchell and Howard counties in the drouth area in a telegram to G. E. Adams of the extension service. At the congressman's request, Griffin was making a study of the situation in Howard county.

Heavy Loss This Week Farmers, almost without exception, declared that crops had suffered more in the past three days than at any other time during the season. Cotton, standing the dry summer very well until Sunday, began to show effects of the abnormally intense heat. In most sections it failed to come "out of the will" Thursday morning.

In several parts of the county shedding was becoming more prevalent and a few small boils were cracking. Many veteran producers concurred in the belief that the bulk of the cotton crop was fast approaching the stage where rain would not greatly enhance cotton crop prospects.

Some Bright Spots Three spots on the Howard county map Thursday showed brighter prospects for a crop than other farming areas. One is in the tight land section in the northwest section of the county around Soash and Ackery where a fairly good drouth crop is standing the heat comparatively well.

Spain Resort City Bombed By Rebels With Big Damage

Govt. Masses More Troops In Effort To End War

TRUN, Spain, Aug. 13 (AP)—Rebel planes bombarded San Sebastian, a coastal resort today, inflicting heavy damage and seriously injuring eight persons.

The airport, anarchist headquarters and the main boulevard were among the targets hit by bombs. A rebel warship prepared to shell the city as the time limit on an ultimatum to surrender or undergo bombardment expired. Government officials controlling the town refused to comply.

Plan Fascist Purge Meanwhile, the socialist-communist government hurried troops against the northern seaboard and girded for a merciless purge of southern fascist rebels in a great offensive to end the bloodshed of civil war.

Loyalist troops battered again at the gates of Oviedo, and sought to turn back the fascist march in that sector.

Far to the south, troops reinforced with new militia volunteers were flung against the African forces imported by Rebel Gen. Francisco Franco.

Predict Fall Of City Contact between the rebel army of the south and Gen. Emilio Mola's northern fascists was reported by the Sevilla insurgent radio station. A broadcast from there asserted the two armies met 60 miles east of Badajoz and predicted fall of that city momentarily.

Although Burgos fascist headquarters asserted citizens were evacuating San Sebastian, besieged by rebels, an Associated Press dispatch from San Sebastian said government troops had beaten the insurgents at that city and at Irun. It was the second day of fighting in that area, and the loyalists' success came after the fascists had dropped cannon fire on the two seaport cities.

Limit May Be Removed For Grain Crops

Acres Expansion Seen Because Of Shortage From Drouth

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—A government "go ahead" signal for unlimited plantings of wheat and corn for 1937 was discussed by AAA officials today as the drouth cut deeper into the current grain crop.

Definite assurance that wheat acreage will be expanded came from officials after a preliminary conference—headed by J. B. Hutson, the acting farm administrator—on next season's soil conservation program.

Some AAA leaders indicated privately that no federal payments for soil conservation next year would be conditioned on restraint of either wheat or corn seedings.

Golf Analyzed

When Tony Manero purposely hooks a ball he stands forward on it more than for an ordinary shot, having it in fact, about midway between the feet. This is not brought to the duffer's attention for the purpose of teaching him how to hook, but to bring out the fact, that in order to hook, Tony stands forward on his ball. This, it is suggested, is something for the duffer who is bothered by slicing to take note of. The slicer usually tries to cure his slicing by getting more and more behind his ball. This is the wrong method, as it induces slicing, instead of remedying it. Stand forward on the ball, bring the hands down as near the body as you comfortably can and fling them outward at impact, making sure to finish the stroke by hitting through. Then you will have more success in erasing that slice.

Scholastic Total For The County Stands Now At 5,325

Scholastic census for Howard county shows an increase of 137 children of scholastic age, Miss Anne Martin, county superintendent, said Thursday.

Total for all common and independent districts in the county for the school year of 1936-37 was 5,325 as compared to 5,188 for last year.

Big Spring independent school district showed a slight increase with 3,175 scholastics against 3,097 for last year. Combona was slightly up, and Knott-Highway consolidated district jumped since Highway was heretofore listed as a common school district. Accordingly, the total for other common school districts was off more than 100 scholastics.

District	1935-36	1936-37
Combona	356	365
Big Spring	3,097	3,175
Knott-Hwy	189	302
Commons	1,566	1,433

Crop

upon an August 1 condition of 72.3 per cent of normal and an indicated yield of 193.7 pounds per acre on the 29,924,000 acres left for harvest after deducting average abandonment. Last year the entire belt produced 186.3 pounds per acre on 27,335,000 acres, or a total of 10,638,000 bales.

Corn condition steadily improved during July and is reported at 67 per cent of normal on August 1 as compared with 56 per cent a month ago, 53 per cent a year ago, and 69 per cent the August 1 10-year average (1923-1932). The yield per acre is indicated at 15.0 bushels, which is 2.5 bushels above July 1 indication, but is 3.5 bushels below the 1935 yield and eight tenths of a bushel below the 10-year average yield. The total crop is forecast at 68,192,000 bushels compared with 89,368,000 bushels produced in 1935 and 80,574,000 bushels the 10-year average (1923-1932) production.

Grain sorghum acreage has been drastically curtailed this year. The estimate is for 3,260,000 acres for all purposes, which is only 80 per cent of the 1935 acreage. With a good feed crop last year and considerable carry-over into this year, game and to camp between raids on the vanishing bison. Shepherds and cattlemen were known to have used the lake as early as 1860. Mention of the lake's popularity with white and red skin alike lays proper predicate for the statement that many battles took place there. In proof of this, the ruins of a cellar with rock port holes for firing at the Indian may be seen there today.

Doubles Lake, seven miles northwest of Tahoka, are said to contain valuable deposits of potash and other salts today. Indians and pioneers were not interested in the mineral deposits when they were making history around the lakes, favorite spot for Comanches and buffalo hunters.

Gen. R. S. McKenzie had a fight with the Indians at Double Lake Nov. 3, 1874. The famous "lost negro" expedition put out from the lakes in July, 1877, and was saved only after 96 hours without water when the lakes were sighted again. Last Indian fight on the plains, so far as can be learned, occurred there between cowboys and Indians in 1879.

Limit May

It had not yet been worked out in detail, he said, but in general it provided farmers would set aside a certain amount of their crops each season as "premiums" in return for having the crop insured by the government. In good years, these "premiums" would be stored as "insurance reserves." In bad years they would supplement short crops.

Thus, Wallace contended, the consumer would be protected against unduly high prices and the farmer against unduly low ones.

largest laguna or lake in the entire south plains region. Known originally as Laguna Sabinas it has been translated into everyday English as Cedar lake. This lake is nestled among a heavy growth of stunted cedars, missing elsewhere in the immediate region. Legend has it that the lake was once the site of a terrific battle between U. S. troops and Indians, although there is nothing to confirm the story.

Lynn county has more than its share of the lagunas, and in almost every instance the lakes have historical significance. Guthrie lake, three miles west of Tahoka, alone excepted, is noted for its cretaceous fossil beds.

Tahoka lake, seven miles northeast of the town by the same name, is one of the most noted lakes of the plains. Despite the fact that there are fresh water springs up the draws along the west side, the lake bed is dry except in rainy seasons. Spaniards are known to have visited the place more than 300 years ago en route from the New Mexico settlements to the Concho (river of pearls) river.

Indians regarded the lake as one of their most popular camping places. Buffalo hunters, too, found it a good place to seek out their

Complaint Filed Under Municipal Building Statute

J. F. Crenshaw was charged in a complaint filed Wednesday afternoon with violation of the city's building code within the fire zone limits. The charge was filed in corporate court.

The complaint alleged that Crenshaw had constructed an addition to his home, 405 E. 2nd, out of combustible materials on March 26 after the building permit had specified fireproof construction.

City officials said the charge was filed after the state fire insurance commission had reaffirmed its statement that an increase of approximately two cents in the key rate would result from non-enforcement of the building code.

They charged that the owner had agreed to meet city specifications within 90 days on May 11.

The building code of the city forbids additions of repairs to buildings within the city limits unless the materials used are fire proof.

Nation Marks Millions Off '37 Phone Bill

Tariff Sharply Reduced On All Types Of Long-Distance Talks

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12. (UP)—The American public will spend 150,000,000 fewer nickels for telephone service next year as a result of savings effected when the $5,000,000,000 Bell System reduces its tariff rates.

It is estimated all told that when the American Telephone and Telegraph company and its associates have finished revisions on existing tolls the public will have received an annual phone bill reduction of $7,350,000 based on 1936 business.

By filing a lower tariff schedule on certain types of calls with the federal communications commission, the A. T. & T. made the last of a series of moves started in 1926 to make less expensive to the public the use of the successor to Alexander Graham Bell's "electric ear."

The first reduction in recent years was effected a decade ago and the last sizeable one was filed on Jan. 1, 1930. At that time, charges on calls over less than 200 miles were slightly reduced. Last Jan. 15, the company extended discounts on night calls to Sunday and saved telephone users an estimated $3,000,000 annually.

The most recent reductions follow the hammer-and-logs investigation of the corporation by the government.

Hearings to Continue

The federal communications commission has delved into every operation of the A. T. & T. during a series of lengthy hearings which will be continued this fall.

The reduced rates under the Sept. 1 schedule cut prices for long-distance calls and person-to-person charges for long conversations.

The new day station-to-station rate from New York to Chicago will be $2.50 instead of $3 on week days and $1.45 instead of $1.65 at night and on Sundays. Similarly, between New York and San Francisco, the new day rate will be $7.50 instead of $9 and on nights it will be $4.50 instead of $5.50.

Exactly 118 players shared in the 2,419,164 ballots that were cast this year as fans picked the college all-star football team.

LET'S FINISH THE JOB

In urging voters to go to the polls in the second primary on August 22, the Abilene Daily Reporter recently used a phrase which appealed to us. The Reporter called, August 22 as a "second date with duty."

It is, as a matter of fact, a duty for one who has qualified himself to take part in the year's referendums to exercise his right at the polls at every election. The simple fact that there are fewer names on the second primary ballot, or that runoff races do not develop the intense interest that initial contests do, should not be a reason for the electorate to fail to express itself in the second balloting.

Perhaps it is expecting too much to anticipate as heavy a vote on August 22 as there was on July 25. Many officials have been selected, and some voters may lack a special interest in the offices involved in the second primary. But the duty of a voter is just as compelling in the second primary as it was in the first.

The task of selecting our public officials is not yet complete. Let's go to the polls Saturday week and finish the job.

★ Man About Manhattan ★

By George Tucker

It would be practically an impossible achievement to arrive in New York at a time when some mania didn't have everybody half crazy. Earlier in the year it was "The Music Goes 'Round and Around.'" Then came the Handies, a goofy craze that had dignified magistrates and hack drivers alike attempting to turn themselves into contortionists.

When the Handies died down, there was some respite, but only for a few days. Now a new idiot's delight has burst upon the town and enmeshed it with its insidious influence. This new horror is known by the wholly adequate name of Knock-knock!

For instance, someone walks up to you and says "Knock-knock." That's your cue to say, "Who's there?" The answer is that is "Ceel." And when you say, "Ceel who?" he answers, "Ceel has music!" Honest, when they pull this, everybody in New York succumbs to hysterics.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The president's forthcoming dust-bowl trip will be quite a circus, and the conference with Governor Landon is only one of the acts.

The president has a big surprise up his sleeve. It is a spectacular "show boat" journey down the Mississippi river on one of the vessels of the government's water fleet.

The trip will start at Minneapolis and go as far south as Memphis, Tenn. Among the cities to be visited will be St. Louis, Cairo, Ill., Dubuque, Iowa, and La Crosse, Wis.

En route the president will invite state and local officials to accompany him. At the various stops he will hold conferences and "say a few words" to the assembled populace.

Timid Somebody asked Harold Ickes if he had made any bets on the election. Here is his answer: "I never bet. I have never made but one election prediction, and I was covered with confusion after the results were known that I'll never make another."

Straw Ballots The democratic campaign high command is preparing a blast against election polls.

One poll that will come in for a vigorous drubbing is the one conducted by The Farm Journal. This is an old publication that last spring was bought by Joseph N. New of Philadelphia, a multi-millionaire head of the Sun Oil Company, and one of the "Big Three" republican bosses of Pennsylvania.

That while the poll was fanfared as a farmers' ballot, actually few farmers were polled. For example: Texas with 501,017 farms showed returns from only 155 growers while New York with 177,025 farms was listed with 3,946 voters.

Storm Signals There are signs that Dr. Francis Townsend is accounting himself a resistance to his plans to stifle his oldest followers into the camp of Rep. William Lemke.

Old Beck The year book reports that after twice failing to foal when bred with a jack, she upset tradition by foaling a horse-like colt when bred to a saddle stallion.

U. S. ACCEPTS BID TO PEACE PARLEY WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull has announced the United States government's acceptance of Argentina's invitation to the Inter-American peace conference of 30 American republics to be held in Buenos Aires starting December 1.

CENTENNIAL EVENTS

SLATED IN SEVERAL TOWNS NEXT WEEK DALLAS, Aug. 13.—Six instinctive Centennial celebrations, in addition to Texas' "big three" at Dallas, Fort Worth and Austin, will swing into the Centennial march next week. Next week's supplementary attractions will be found at Johnson City, Weatherford, Colorado, Perryton, Devine and Pampa.

Members of the Texas Angora Goat Raisers association will convene at Johnson City, Aug. 13-20, for their 16th annual show and sale, designed this year as a typical Centennial celebration.

At Pampa Maria on Aug. 19, Texans of Polish descent will gather to observe the Texas Centennial in fitting ceremonies. The occasion will be the annual pioneer reunion. The meeting place is the first Polish colony in the United States. Members of the Parker county old settlers association and the half-century club will hold their annual old settlers reunion at Weatherford on Aug. 20. Parker county was named for Cynthia Ann Parker and descendants of Quanah Parker, both familiar figures in Texas Centennial history.

Colorado will devote its old timers home-coming this year to the spirit of the Texas Centennial. The special event, The Mitchell County Cavalcade of Progress, mammoth parade, and a reconstructed frontier village will be the feature attractions at Colorado.

Perryton will celebrate the founding of the townsite on Aug. 22 and likewise honor Texas' 100th anniversary. Sponsors of the affair have announced a full program of varied entertainment for Centennial visitors.

Devine will state its Corn-Corn-broom street fair on August 2, which also has been designated as a Texas Centennial observance. Cecil Hart, deposed as manager of the Los Canadianis hockey club four years ago, has been signed again for the coming autumn.

MURDER TONIGHT

By LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Chapter 29 PRISONER

The door proved difficult to open, but Hylton called out cheerfully. "I say, Miss Featherstone—"

"Yes!"

"Give the door a push, would you? It's got stuck or something."

"No, it isn't stuck—I've locked it."

Fifteen seconds of silence followed this remarkable declaration.

"You've—er—locked it?" Hylton asked at length.

"Yes. The key's in the lock now, on the outside, here."

"Are you playing some sort of a game, Miss Featherstone?" Hylton asked. "What's all this about, and where is Dale Shipley?"

"I haven't any idea where he is, a voice explained apologetically, and that's why I had to do it. It was the only way I could think of to stop you telephoning, and all that."

"It isn't pleasant for any man to realize that someone has made an utter and complete fool of him, and it says a good deal for Kingsley Hylton that he didn't fly into a temper."

"Look here, Miss Featherstone," he said, "I do beg of you to be sensible. You must know that you are acting in a very foolish way and one that will get you into trouble, serious trouble."

"Oh yes, I realize all that, thank you."

"Well please have the sense to end it now, and I'll not say anything about it."

"It's a very sporting offer, but I couldn't possibly think of it."

"I'm sure you don't realize—"

"Oh I do truly—please don't worry yourself about that."

"For God's sake, woman, have the sense to unlock that door and put an end to this damned idocy. You can't know what you're letting yourself in for."

"Yes I do—answer after the fact, isn't it?"

Hylton didn't answer. . . . necessary after the fact. . . . what fact? . . . he wondered how much she knew. . . . Shipley had told her, of course, and bolted, and she had hatched up this plot to help him. . . . And a day's delay in getting out his description and warning all the ports might easily mean losing him. . . . A sudden access of impotent temper made him rattle the door handle vigorously.

"Miss Featherstone."

"Yes."

"In the name of the Law I ask you to open this door at once and let me out."

A pause; then "Inspector Hylton, will you please listen to me for a minute?"

"Yes, of course, what is it?"

"I'm frightfully sorry that you are going to be inconvenienced, but I'm not going to open that door for quite a time yet."

"You're not?"

"No. Of course you can shout if you want to, but I honestly don't think it will be much good; you see I'm all alone in the house until ten o'clock tonight and I'm going down now to send the groom off on an all day trip. I'm only telling you all this to save you tiring yourself out unnecessarily."

Hylton was finding himself rather stumped for suitable conversation. "After a bit he said, 'Miss Featherstone, why are you acting in this absolutely insane way?'"

It is not easy for an atmosphere of dramatic intensity to be established between two people separated by half an inch of solid oak, but somehow it sprang up between those two quite that moment.

"Do you think I want to? Because I had to. He must have a chance, I couldn't let you get him like that—like a pack of hounds."

That was the last time Hylton was to hear Nancy Featherstone's voice for several hours. When he realized that she was no longer outside the door he first of all examined his material surroundings. The room he was in had originally been designed as a sort of primitive strong room in the old days when farmers knew nothing of banks; subsequently it had been used as an apple store in a linen room, and now it had almost passed out of regular use altogether.

He found that by standing on the ottoman he could just see out of the narrow window—a slit some twelve inches by five. He had a splendid view of three horses grazing half a mile away on the other side of the valley. The walls were solid and might have yielded to an hour or two's hard work with a crowbar, but was a hopeless task to attempt with bare hands.

Hylton realized that for all practical purposes he was a prisoner until Nancy chose to let him out, and the thought sobered and even, in a way, amused him.

Turning his mind to what would come of Nancy's escapade, he felt unhappy. Dale Shipley had done the murder, of so much he now felt certain. . . . how long dare the woman keep him locked up there? Even if it were only twelve hours, and Shipley acted with decision it might give him all the start he wanted. Hylton swore audibly, what a damned fool he would look when he got back to the yard.

Hylton sighed, drew one of his thin black cigars out, lit it, took a pencil from his note book and devoted himself to drawing chess problems on the conveniently bare and distempered wall.

Nancy Featherstone went straight downstairs to the stable and sent the mildly astonished groom on a footing and complicated errand well the other side of Morechester. When she had seen him safely off the premises she went into the drawing room and sat in front of the fire thinking.

Like the man upstairs, she, too, reviewed the events which had brought her to the present extraordinary situation. She drew from her handbag a letter. It had come to her by the first post that morning, one of the very few that Dale Shipley had ever written to her; but she knew the handwriting well, and had been surprised to notice that there was bad news in it, she had drawn out the letter and read it.

Now, for the tenth time, she drew it out and read it again.

It was written on cheap paper, bearing neither date nor address: "Dear Nancy, You won't see me for dinner tonight (they had arranged to dine together, a fact which for twenty-four hours had colored Nancy's life with happiness and expectation). I've had to get away in a hurry. I dare say people will soon be saying nasty things about me but I can't help that. Dale."

As soon as she had read that she had become absolutely cold with a sick fear. Dale had done it. . . . half a dozen uncomfortable little whispers suddenly roared into an unendurable shouting in her head. And, somehow, she knew and now realized that she had known all along; that it was just the sort of thing that Dale would do.

At half past ten she could not stand being alone in the house any longer; she was eaten up with anxiety to find out whether they knew in the village about Dale; if they didn't, they soon would; she realized that was inevitable. Although she knew that it would do no good, she felt that she must go up to Fielden Cottage and speak about Dale to Mrs. Somers.

When she got there the front door was open and Mrs. Somers was already in conversation with someone. As soon as Nancy saw who it was she felt quite sick with raw-wakened fear. . . . The Detective from Scotland Yard. They were after him already, then. She overheard half a dozen quick questions and answers and realized that Hylton was himself only just learning about Dale.

There at then, without the slightest idea how it could be accomplished, she realized that she must help Dale by delaying his pursuers.

Sitting in front of the fire in the drawing room thus thinking over the events of that extraordinary morning, she actually laughed; but it was a laugh without much mirth in it. . . . tragic fools, she thought, mankind must be to blunder into the messes that they get into.

Dale was just the sort of headstrong fool, of course, who would get caught up in the fatal and fantastically simple business of murder. And she was a fool seven times greater to be embroiled in this extraordinary situation when she ought to be out hunting on the grey in the winter sunshine, with the day running peacefully by in its normal way.

MAN INDICTED IN SLAYING AT DALLAS

DALLAS, Aug. 13 (UP)—A grand jury yesterday indicted George W. Redston, former Chicago crime investigator and bodyguard of Mayor Anton Cermak, for murder in the August 4 pistol slaying of A. B. Farrow, liquor store proprietor.

COUGHLIN'S UNION RALLIES AUG. 14 TO SPUR CONGRESS RACES FOR ENDORSED MEN

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13. (UP)—The final major political gathering of the season, the first convention of Father Charles E. Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice, is expected to bring 100,000 persons to Cleveland Aug. 14 for a three day session.

The meeting follows closely the Townsend Old-Age Pension assembly, held also in Cleveland, and will climax the season's political conventions.

With the Lemke-O'Brien Union party ticket endorsed already by the radio priest's followers, as well as Townsends and Share-Our-Wealth believers, much of the session is expected to be devoted to introduction of congressional and other candidates approved by the group.

Sylvester J. McMahon, of Cleveland, N. U. S. J. organizer for Ohio, said it was hoped a majority of endorsed congressional candidates from throughout the nation might be present.

Closing Address by Coughlin
The Union will close its sessions with a rally in Cleveland's mammoth lakefront stadium. Other sessions will be held in nearby Public Hall.

Through McMahon and Rep. Martin L. Sweeney, insurgent Cleveland democrat, the gathering was brought here after the priest's home city—Detroit—had appeared a certain choice. Facilities in the Michigan city were judged inadequate for the expected crowd.

Sweeney at first was mentioned prominently as a possible running mate to the Coughlin-endorsed Rep. William Lemke.

Almost along lines of the major political parties will be the convention's plan of organization. Two delegates and two alternates from each of the nation's 435 congressional districts have been selected.

In addition to announcement of full N. U. S. J. candidate "endorsements"—the priest's own favorite word—national officers will be selected and a national platform drafted.

Plans call for a convention every fourth year, again in the manner of the major parties.

Estimates of 100,000 attendance have been based on the fact that

National Union embraces that number of members among Cleveland's million alone. Requests for hotel and room reservations for the gathering have poured into the convention and visitors' bureau at the rate of more than 300 a day during most of the summer.

Watch Effect on Third Party
Political observers' interest in the convention is expected to lie in watchfulness for its effect upon the Lemke third-party race.

A stirring session, with typical Coughlin oratorical verve, they have reasoned, might attract additional support for the Dakotan from voters who not yet have committed themselves on 1936 voting intentions. Or lose others.

The early summer saw the priest's preliminary introduction of Lemke as a third-party entry, the slight hedging at first by Dr. Francis E. Townsend over whether Old-Age Pension followers would endorse him, then a coalition of minority political movements in Lemke's behalf at the Townsend convention.

At that time, Dr. Townsend and the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, commander of the scattered Huey Long forces, joined Father Coughlin in endorsing Lemke.

Fight Major Parties
The Coughlin-Townsend-Smith combine, fighting President Roosevelt and Gov. Alf M. Landon, is designing its campaign to prevent either major candidate from obtaining a majority of presidential electors. This would throw determination of the office into the house of representatives.

With the exception of the democratic national convention held in Philadelphia, every important political assembly of the season has convened in Cleveland.

The Socialist convention was followed by the republican, and it by the Townsend, to be capped by the Coughlin meeting.

In choosing Cleveland, the N. U. S. J., is selecting the largest city of the often-called pivotal state of Ohio, generally an election factor.

Moreover, the seasons will be held during peak attendance days of the Great Lakes exposition, which already has drawn its month-long visitor.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

The Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache problems on the discovery that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of acids and waste out of the blood. If they don't pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, you'll feel tired, nervous, and need fishing.

If you have trouble with frequent bladder passages with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.

This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait for serious trouble. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—which have been used successfully for over 40 years by millions of people. They give happy relief and will help flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

College Education Is An Economic Drawback To Nation's Youth, Author Concludes After A National Survey

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—College education is no longer an economic asset in the United States, but on the contrary must be written off on the debit side of youth's ledger, in red ink, according to the results of a nationwide survey just completed by Isaac F. Marcossom, famous editor, author and journalist. The investigation was conducted under the auspices of The American Magazine, which publishes the findings Friday in response to inquiries from thousands of persons seeking advice and offering suggestions on the problem.

"The majority of our youth are the victims of an educational system which misfits rather than fits," writes Marcossom, "which dumps youth on the doorstep of the world of work, untrained for the job of life. There is too much learning in the head and too little in the hands. Educationally, youth is all dressed up with no place to go."

The schools have made a fetish of classical education, he says, concentrating on the curriculum rather than on the individuals, offering no proper vocation guidance; their slogan is "enter the professions."

Not Trained For Skilled Work
"The urge for any kind of a white collar job and the failure to find it have done more than anything else to put youth in a jam," Marcossom says. "The gap between education and employment is the pit into which youth has fallen."

To support this, he cites the condition in Connecticut, where among 43,000 unemployed young men and women, including many high school and college graduates, 75% are untrained for any kind of skilled work. Yet in spite of the battalions of unemployed, there is a shortage of skilled labor.

Summing up the problem which directly affects nearly one-fifth of the entire population, including the age range from sixteen to twenty-five, Marcossom says:

"Youth knows what it does not want but it does not know what it wants. One section would thumb a ride to some workless utopia. Another seeks to drive a wedge through the established academic order. A third vainly seeks jobs in the waste of unemployment. The trouble is as much psychological as physical. Youth mentally is tied in a knot. The "So What" attitude which runs so persistently through the youth refrain of today is in significant contrast with the "Let's Go" keynote of the pre-depression years.

"What amazes the investigator of the youth problem is the indifference to the saga of the hard-knocks school which has rolled up so much American achievement. Youth dreams of achievement without the knocks. It sees ends but is disdainful of means. It yearns for success but does not want to earn it. It follows the relief-born doctrine that the world owes it a living."

Need Permanent Remedy
"One of the biggest facts emerging from the youth dilemma is that it cannot be regarded as a temporary quandary, to be met with halfway measures providing made jobs. Barring an economic millennium, youth will always be jammed in recurrent economic dislocation unless the permanent remedy is found."

"A big part of the existing youth problem begins with the secondary school. It is there that the solution largely lies, in relating the boy and girl to a vocational career, with orientation to the occupational world as the chief objective. Schools can do this if they follow occupational trends, if they mix study with work under job conditions. It means a major operation on the school system, but it is the one antidote for the muddle."
