PHILLIPS TEST WAS SPURRED IN YESTERDAY

MAKING HOLE AT NEW TEST Lease Deadline Is Beaten By Crew On New Well

The new test of the Phillips Petroleum Company, on Section 4, J. H. Stephens block, south of Parnell, was spudded in yesterday evening, and is now making hole, according to reports from the location.

Leases of the company on the 35,000 acre block where the test is going down called for the well to be spudded in before October 18, today, and unless the drill was busy before midnight last night, the leases all expired.

This explains the feverish activity which has pervaded the scene of the test since work was first begun on the location last Saturday.

Work on the test is to be carried on by three shifts of drillers, and, with the new machinery being used, there is little likelihood of delays being encountered.

This is only the second well which has been drilled by the rig being used at this location.

In the meantime, the company is said to be blocking up a sizable block of acreage between Eli and the river, and those who should know state that, in all probability, a test will be begun on this block within a very short time.

There are also rumors of other tests to be made in the Parnell vicinity, but so far they are only rumors.

Money Is Received From State For School Aid

Hall County's first state apportionment money for the current school year has been received by the county school superintendent and is ready for issuance to the county schools.

Three dollars per capita was received, amounting to $3,857.60. This money will be used to pay teachers' salaries, and 22 of the rural schools will receive a part of the funds. Each common school will get around $175, according to the number of students enrolled.

Date of receipt for the next state apportionment allotment is not known.

The Weather

WEST TEXAS: Fair in north, cloudy and probably showers in south tonight and Saturday; probably light frost in exposed places in Panhandle tonight, warmer in north Saturday.

EAST TEXAS: Cloudy, with probable showers in south and east tonight and Saturday; slightly cooler in northwest tonight, warmer in northwest Saturday.

Centennial Building Under Way

"Emblematic of all the soil and soul of Texas" was Governor James V. Allred's description of the stirring ground-breaking ceremony at Dallas October 12, which began construction on the $1,200,000 State of Texas building at the Texas Centennial center exposition. The top photo shows a comely Senorita greeting the Governor with an armful of Texas Centennial roses, following his inspiring appeal for Statewide unity in the Centennial movement, while the bottom photo catches the dynamite blast which broke ground for the magnificent State building.

MAN IS JAILED RESULT OF AFFRAY

Knife Used in Fight At Mecca Hotel Last Night

A man giving his name as Owens, of Turkey is in jail today, with charges filed against him, as the results of an affray last night at the Mecca Hotel, in which Owens is said to have used a knife in a fight with Burl Evans, proprietor of the hotel.

Owens, it is said, claimed that a woman staying at the hotel had stolen some money from him. He came downstairs and started an altercation with Evans over the matter, drawing a knife and slashing the latter's arm lightly.

Evans reported the matter last night to Sheriff Colvin and Deputy Ozment, who apprehended Owens on the east side of the square, where he had apparently been watching Evans in conversation with the officers.

Owens was lodged in jail last night, and is being drawn up this morning and will be appearing in court today.

Evans was protected by a heavy leather coat and a knife wielded by Owens. It is reported that in the altercation, Owens slapped Mrs. Evans.

HOFFMAN MADE WPA PROJECT MANAGER

No Date Yet Set For Beginning Work on Streets

Judge A. C. Hoffman, former Hall County Relief Administrator, has accepted an appointment as project manager of the Work Progress Administration for Memphis and will have charge of the $23,000 WPA street graveling project that was approved for this city recently.

W. E. Burk, Lubbock, district WPA representative, was in Memphis Wednesday conferring with Judge Hoffman and D. L. C. Kinard, city secretary, in regards to the graveling project here.

Judge Hoffman stated that a definite time for starting work on graveling the 100 city blocks approved had not been set, but that men will probably be put to work shortly on the job. Mr. Kinard said this morning that work on the project may be delayed until part of the fall business rush is over.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—C. Tea gle, president of New Jersey Standard Oil, declared today that he saw no reason to interfere with regular commercial oil business between his company and its Italian subsidiary.

Ward School Honor Roll Is Announced

Only Two Junior Highs Make Roll

Seventy-five students in Junior High school and West Ward school combined made Honor Roll grades for the first six-weeks period of work, according to figures released by L. C. Linn, principal of Junior High school, and Mrs. H. B. Estes, West Ward principal.

The high school Honor Roll has not been released, and it will be carried in the next issue of The Whirlwind, official high school publication.

The smallest number of students ever to make honor grades was recorded at Junior High school this term. Only two students out of the approximate 250 enrollment made the honor grades.

In order to "make" the Honor Roll, Mr. Linn pointed out, a student must average a grade of 90 in all subjects, and having no failure in any subject. The two students in Junior High who made the Honor Roll were Edna Dewlin, member of section 51 in the low fifth grade, and Sylvia Odell, in the high sixth.

West Ward honor students compare favorably with students making high grades in the past, as 73 pupils from that school were placed on the honor roll.

AIRLINER TURNS BACK DUE TO WEATHER

Braniff Plane Turns Back on Route Over City

Because of light fog and mist over this section of the country last night, causing poor flying conditions, the Braniff Airways plane turned back on its scheduled course and returned to Wichita Falls.

The plane, arriving over Memphis at about 6 o'clock last night was on its regular hop from Wichita Falls to Amarillo but turned back here because of threatening weather conditions.

DISPELS DOUBT

THE decision handed down by the New Jersey court of appeals, in the case of Bruno Hauptmann, is worth a little study.

Convicted of a murder which, for the public horror and anger aroused, was probably the most shocking ever committed in America. Hauptmann's trial was the center of a nationwide interest, and his sentence was received with nationwide satisfaction.

Because the conviction was based on circumstantial evidence, there has grown up, here and there, a feeling that he might not be guilty. Those with any such opinion should glance at the court's findings.

"Our conclusion," says the court, "is that the verdict is not only not contrary to the weight of the evidence, but one to which the evidence inescapably led."

Hauptmann was caught with the goods. He had the ransom money in his possession. It was proved to the hilt that the ransom notes were all written by Hauptmann, and it is an inescapably inference, said the court, that the man who wrote those notes entered the Lindberg nursery and took the child.

Some of the wood used in making the kidnap ladder was found in Hauptmann's own home, and also found there was Dr. Condon's phone number.

Adding these facts together, the court concludes that this "was a circumstantial case with the evidence pointing to guilt from so many directions as to leave no room for a reasonable doubt."

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JEAN DUNN, secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer, delays her answer when BOBBY WALLACE, young automobile salesman, asks Jean to marry him.

At The Golden Feather night club Jean meets SANDY HARKINS, whose business connection is vague. She also meets LARRY GLENN, federal agent. Larry is trying to locate WINGY LEWIS, bank robber.

Sandy introduces Jean and Bobby to MR. and MRS. LEWIS. Bobby arranges to sell some bonds for Lewis. He sells them to Jean's employer.

A few days later Sandy learns police are looking for him in connection with a robbery. He confides this to Jean and she goes with him to police headquarters to establish an alibi for him at the time of the holdup.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIII

Jean Dunn sat down on the bench and looked doubtfully at her employer. But of course! He was Sandy's lawyer, naturally since Sandy wanted to clear up this abused misunderstanding. Mr. Montague had come along, just to make sure everything went right.

She rather wished that he hadn't come, though. It made it all seem a little too—she frowned—too business like somehow. Before she saw Mr. Montague, coming down here with Sandy had seemed rather like a lark. Now, for some reason, that feeling had vanished.

This emotion was not evident, however, when she replied to Mr. Montague's question.

"Yes," Jean said, "isn't it lucky that Sandy happened to be with me that day?"

Mr. Montague beamed at her. "It's all pretty absurd, of course," he said. "But sometimes these absurd mistakes can cause a great deal of trouble before they are straightened out. . . Ah, there's Inspector Thomas. Shall we go in?"

He got up and walked through a swinging gate in the waist-high railing which cut the room in half. Sandy helped Jean to her feet, drew her hand through his arm, and followed; behind them came the other man who had been sitting with Mr. Montague when they came in. Jean stole a look at him; he was a stubby, rugged-dressed person, and he hadn't taken the trouble to shave himself that morning. His face was vaguely familiar.

They passed half a dozen desks, where shir-sleeved men were busy with letters and sheafs of paper, and went into a small office. There was a battered roll-top desk over by a smudgy window, and back of it sat a tall, lantern-jawed man in a gray suit. He nodded to Mr. Montague as they came in, and gestured toward chairs.

"Well, Mr. Montague, what's this all about?" he asked in a friendly tone. Mr. Montague sat down, laid his gray felt hat on his knees, and assumed an air of complete frankness.

"Just a little misunderstanding, Inspector," he said. "I want to clear it up before it gets serious. This young man here"—he motioned toward Sandy—"seems to bear a facial resemblance to a man who is being sought for that Acme Box Company robbery last week. Since it just happens that he was a good 15 miles away from the place when the robbery took place, I thought it would be wise to come in and tell you about it. Then he won't be bothered about in any further."

"Hmm," said Inspector Thomas. He looked at some papers. "Do you mind if I have Sergeant Hagan in here while we talk? He's more familiar with the details of the case than I am."

"Not at all," said Mr. Montague.

The Inspector rang a buzzer, and when a clerk stuck his head in the door he said, "Send in Hagan." After a moment, Sergeant Hagan came in and took a seat besides the inspector.

"Now, then," said Inspector Thomas.

"This holdup," Montague went on, "as I understand it, took place Friday afternoon about a quarter past three, on Ontario road a few blocks from the Acme plant?" The two policemen nodded. Montague turned to Jean with a fatherly smile.

"This is Miss Jean Dunn, who works in my office," he said. "Miss Dunn, will you please tell these gentlemen what you did Friday afternoon?"

Jean looked at the noncommittal faces of Thomas and Hagan, felt a little wave of nervousness, swallowed hard and then spoke:

"Someone came to see Mr. Montague a little after two that afternoon," she said, "and Mr. Montague told me that I could have the rest of the day off. So I started to go home, and downstairs in the lobby I met Mr. Harkins. We got into his car and drove out to a place on the Grand river and rented a canoe. We paddled up the river for a while, and then drifted back. It was getting on toward dusk when we got back to the boat house. Then we had dinner at a little restaurant there, and after that Mr. Harkins drove me home. We got home about 8 o'clock, I guess, or a little later."

She did not realize that, of all possible witnesses, she was the most impressive in a case of this kind. Dressed in her riding clothes—jodhpurs, silk shirt and boots, with a silk scarf about her hair—she stood out, in this dingy police office, like an orchid in a barn-

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Strong American determination stay neutral may be complicated by the possibility that, official there will never be any wars.

Just as the custom of legalizing cards tends to fall in disuse, the modern tendency among nations is to dispense with formal declarations of war.

Consequently, according to rules and international law, nations might kill any number of Ethiopians on Ethiopian soil still not be at war.

When the attack came it was carefully explained at the State Department that this government didn't recognize the African fighting as war. This fact complicated application of the new neutral act.

It was made clear that the United States probably would follow the League of Nations lead if the league decided this was war—and apply embargoes.

But we are in no way bound by league decisions, and international law leaves the way open to administration which in the end decides to ignore conflict and manage with the pretense that it is serene and peaceful.

When the Japanese were in thousands of Chinese in Manchuria and around Shanghai a few years ago, Secretary of State Stimson remarked that the nations were "in a state that had found peace." The other side of the world agreed.

The international law of war that there hadn't been any violation of the Kellogg treaty, both nations declared war, state of war.

Perhaps the point isn't so important. But it offers a chance for a lot of diplomatic sidestepping and phengling.

Your correspondent finds it self unable to suppress a story:

A man in New York who makes frequent business trips to Washington bears a closer facial resemblance to Herbert Hoover than any other known human being.

Not long ago he and a friend were celebrating at the Cotton Club center of the capital, "the Harlem." About midnight they had conducted themselves with sufficient exuberance to cause them to be bounced out.

The New York man found a wooden box and mounted it at the corner of 15th and U streets. He announced his candidacy for president of the United States on a platform calling for the closing of the Cotton Club.

Two colored policemen came on the scene as he thundered on. His friend restrained them.

"Don't you recognize Herbert Hoover when you see him?" he said. "After all, this can't happen very often."

The cops promptly themselves to keeping back the crowd, which soon amounted to nearly 200 people.

No one knows how long he might have gone on if a colored girl hadn't come along in a crowd and invited the speaker for a drink down town. He said good night to his audience and accepted defeat.

She was so obviously intelligent and honorable a person that it was impossible to doubt her story for a moment. The two policemen were completely impressed.

"This was last Friday," said Sergeant Hagan. She beamed briefly, then nodded. "Yes," she said.

"Just to be on the safe side," said Mr. Montague, "I've brought in Mr. Stout." The nondescript man who had been (Continued On Page 10)

INTRODUCED TOMORROW

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talk-points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 5½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermo-syphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New louvres permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way. this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. On display tomorrow by Ford dealers.

BABSON'S INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

BABSON PARK, Mass. Oct. 18. —Everybody who is interested in public works of any kind should get the new point of view on the Works Progress Administration and its aims. It affects taxes, municipal bonds, and especially all those projects in which you may be interested. Officials naturally want to do those things which will please the largest number of voters. This is both common sense and good politics although hard on taxpayers.

Ickes vs. Hopkins

The original purpose of the federal government was to create useful and self-liquidating public works to re-employ labor until business came back and industry naturally absorbed these people. The President arranged with Secretary Ickes to take over this work under the name of PWA. Mr. Ickes, an able and conscientious man, soon found that the plans and engineering consumed so much time that the emergency unemployment situation was little helped. He further found that on most worthwhile jobs the labor expense is comparatively small. Therefore, although Secretary Ickes' program with the PWA was financially sound, it was not politically sound.

Thereupon, the President arranged with Mr. Hopkins to organize the ERA to give work irrespective of whether the project was of any real value. Mr. Hopkins started a multitude of "projects" from leaf-raking to tap-dancing. While these furnished relief, the tremendous loafing on the jobs, and the uselessness of so many of them, brought about great criticism and finally Presidential action. Washington feels, however, that the President's orders to stop ERA work were given largely for political effect like the original order to cut government salaries, reduce veterans' pensions, and "balance the budget". All of these latter orders were loudly heralded when given, but since have quietly been withdrawn.

Reason For WPA

The WPA is sort of a companionate marriage of PWA and ERA. The PWA works too slowly and the ERA received so much criticism that a combination plan, supposed to have the good qualities of both the PWA and ERA was devised. This new "mongrel" is the WPA. Projects of $25,000 or over go to Mr. Ickes as PWA projects as heretofore. Everything else is supposed to go to Mr. Hopkins as the head of WPA. The ERA is to continue its present projects. As a matter of fact, however, I prophesy that the ERA will continue. Only old ERA methods will make much of a dent on unemployment between now and November 3, 1936.

Every community should apply for twice as many projects as it needs or hopes to get ratified. Approved projects do not all have to be started, but each city can pick and choose from those that have been sanctioned. The greater the number and the greater the variety of projects that have been approved, the greater your ability to take care of all your jobless at all times. Unimproved dirt roads are especially recommended as their cost is almost wholly labor. It is true that some one department of a community must sponsor each project before you get the money. This is not necessary, however, when the application is made, provided this statement is added: "The city's contribution will be determined by the proper department head later".

Big Jump in Running Expenses

Of course, I do not approve of all this spending of money by the federal government. It seems a useless attempt to uphold our standard of living on the artificially high level that developed between the War and 1929. Only a change of character and a determination on the part of every man to be self-supporting and independent — that is a spiritual revival — can now prevent a decline in the standard of living. Just at the moment there is some official talk about tapering off this reckless spending program. The income and expense account of the Treasury for the first quarter of the fiscal year, however, reveals that spending has reached the highest level in our peacetime history.

The character of government spending is rapidly changing. The big increase since last year has come in the ordinary running expenses. Emergency outlays are not much larger than a year ago. This is extremely important for the permanent running costs will be far more difficult to reduce than the emergency or relief expenses. Surely this huge outgo of funds means higher taxes for everybody sooner or later. So invest some of your money now in good non-taxable securities.

However, I am sympathetic with the President in his determination that relief money shall go almost 100 per cent to labor. Also from a practical standpoint, I am sympathetic with communities who try to get their share of the money for truly useful projects. But do not be too fussy. Have many projects as "aces up your sleeve", to use this winter if you get into a jam, especially dirt road projects. Otherwise, you will find that other cities, who have filed a multitude of applications, will be getting the money. So get your share of the government handouts now, but next November put an end to this crazy era of spending by electing those candidates who know that money is earned and saved, not engraved and printed!

Business, according to the Babson chart, though 22 per cent below normal, is 15 per cent above a year ago. Copyright — 1935 — Publishers Financial Bureau.

RETURNS FROM VISIT

Fred Swift returned Wednesday night from a visit with his daughters, Mrs. P. M. Combs and Mrs. W. A. Stanley in Amarillo. She was accompanied home by Miss Jamie Mann, who will be a guest for several days. Miss Mann lived in Memphis a number of years ago with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Mann.

POSTPONE MEETING

The Social and business meeting of the Intermediate department of the Baptist Sunday School announced for tonight has been called off on account of the All-Night School Night, which will be at Cyclone Stadium. Get it at Tarver's.

A non-partisan Indiana millionaire claims to have voted for candidates of both parties in the past. It's a good idea; but everyone can't get away with it.

Mrs. W. M. McDonald of Childress and Mrs. L. H. Holiman of Kinkland are here today, as the guests of their sister, Mrs. W. W. Williamson.

MRS. K. J. TOBIN, OF BEVERLY HILLS, ILL., WELCOMES

in a big, new 10¢ can!

"WHAT'S THE SENSE in taking chances with second-bests when you can get a good, big can of Calumet for a dime?" asks Mrs. Tobin.

"I've never had a baking failure with Calumet," Mrs. Tobin said. And judging by the expectant faces of Richard and Patricia, Mrs. Tobin is not the only member of her family who knows how delicious Calumet cakes always are!

A SIMPLE TWIST... and the Easy-Off Top lifts off. No delay, no spilling, no broken finger-nails!

WHY DOES CALUMET give such astonishing "baking luck"? Why is Calumet different from other baking powders? Because Calumet combines two distinct leavening actions. A quick one for the mixing bowl. A slower one for the oven... and Calumet's double-action is so perfectly balanced and controlled that it produces perfect leavening—every time.

All Calumet prices are lower! Calumet is now selling at the lowest prices in history... the regular price of the Full-Pound Can is now only 25¢! And look for the new, big 10¢ can—a lot of good baking for a dime, with Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder. A product of General Foods.

Estelline School Cooperates In Hall of Fame Selections

Heroes of Texas Will Be Named

Students of Estelline High School will cooperate in the selection of a Hall of Fame for Texas State College for Women (CIA), according to Principal C. M. Bailey.

Plans are now under way for the election of ten prominent Texans to comprise the original group. A committee in charge of the Hall of Fame has prepared a ballot of twenty-two names, and students from approximately 850 high schools in the state will vote the last week in October to select their favorite Texas heroes and heroines.

Students will also may add any individuals to the ballot whom they deem worthy of the recognition. No living person is eligible for the Hall of Fame, but no other restrictions have been made.

Names that will appear on the ballot are Moses Austin, Stephen F. Austin, Baron DeBastrop, Thomas H. Benton, James Bowie, David G. Burnet, Richard Coke, David Crockett, James S. Hogg, Sam Houston, Richard B. Hubbard, Anson Jones, Mirabeau B. Lamar, Robert LaSalle, Ben P. Milam, Roger Q. Mills, Elisha M. Base, John H. Reagan, O. M. Roberts, Thomas J. Rusk, William B. Travis, and William H. Wharton. The original Hall of Fame, which will be housed in the T. S. C. W. library, will be enlarged from year to year. This is a Texas Centennial project in keeping with the program of the year.

WEBSTER

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith were visitors here Sunday.

Miss Augustine Mills spent last week-end with Miss Johnnie Hugh Steenson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cochrane and daughter and Miss M. W. Ward of Cole, Okla., were guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cochrane, here Saturday night and Sunday.

Leon Roan came Saturday to spend a few weeks in the M. E.

THANK YOU, MEMPHIS!

The pep squad, football squad and fans wish to thank the Memphis Gold Medal Band, and all other Memphians who came for attending the game Friday and furnishing such splendid music for the occasion.

The band added that extra note which makes the excitement at a game complete. The boys as well as the pep squad have been heard to say that the music gave them so much pep that they felt as if they could have beaten any opponent—so please don't think "we" didn't appreciate your being there!

ATTENDS MEMPHIS GAME

The members of the football and pep squads journeyed to Memphis last week to watch the Cyclones and Tigers tangle in a conference game. The group made the trip in a school bus and the girls went in full uniform, thus accounting for the large spot of green in the west bleachers Friday night.

Alexander home.

Mrs. L. B. Robertson underwent an operation in a Memphis hospital Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin King and children were visitors here Sunday.

Several from here were Memphis visitors Saturday.

Mrs. L. B. Stinibough of Lakeview was a visitor here the latter part of last week.

J. H. Robertson, accompanied by L. B. Stinibough of Lakeview, made a trip to Fort Worth Saturday.

Richard, Conrad and Muriel Jo Cochrane were visitors here Sunday.

Mrs. Jean McClure returned yesterday from a visit of several weeks at Long Beach and other points in California. She went to Long Beach to attend the wedding of her daughter, Betty, to Dean Burgess.

Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Ballew left this morning for Abilene, where they will spend the week-end with his son, Jim Ballew, and family.

Cubs Down Owls In Grid Contest

The Estelline club marked up another victory last week when they defeated the Hedley Owls 28-6. The Cubs had the upper hand from the start of the game and held the Owls for few gains until the last period when they made their single touchdown.

Jerrell Rapp, who was placed in the line-up, made several nice gains for runs and succeeded in carrying the ball over for one of the Cub's touchdowns.

The ball was carried over by Leatherwood that other three times—once by a pass received from Davis, and twice by runs. Other outstanding players were Stout and Townsend, who excelled for their tackles from the line, and Davis and Kerchville for their blocking.

Pep Squad Is Seen In New Uniforms

The E. H. S. pep squad was seen for the first time in uniform this year last Friday at the Hedley—Estelline game. The squad gave a commendable formation "between halves", especially since only a part of the girls had their uniforms completed—thus making the club somewhat smaller.

The squad showed plenty of pep throughout the entire game, but were much strengthened in the first half by the Memphis Gold Medal Band.

After the game the pep squad marched, in formation, to town where they marched around the square and finally stopped on the south side in front of the Palace Drug Co. The girls sang several songs and gave some yells.

After this, the sponsor, Mrs. Brown, brought drinks for all the girls, and a toast was drunk to the Cubs and their victory.

Mrs. J. W. Vallance and Miss Lena Melear of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Vallance of Wellington were visitors in Amarillo Wednesday.

"Have you seen these people before, Mr. Stout?" asked Mr. Montague.

The boat man nodded.

"Last Friday, about 3 o'clock or a little after, they came and rented a canoe," he said. "They went up-river in it, and didn't get back until half past six."

"And do you know where the Acme plant is?" continued the lawyer.

The man nodded.

"How far would you say your boat house is from that plant?"

"Oh," said Mr. Stout, "by road, I guess it must be 12 or 15 miles."

Mr. Montague looked at the two officers.

"Is this satisfactory?" he asked. They glanced at each other. Hagan was wearing a faint, dissatisfied scowl, but he said nothing. Inspector Thomas turned again to the lawyer.

"I don't see how it can be anything else," he said.

Mr. Montague chuckled softly.

"Then Mr. Harkins can go his way in peace?" he said.

Hagan's scowl became slightly more noticeable, and he grunted dourly. Inspector Thomas was less reticent.

"As far as this is concerned yes," he said. There was a faint menace in his tone that made Jean uncomfortable. Mr. Montague adopted a severe expression.

"What do you mean by that?" he asked. The inspector smiled.

"Nothing at all," he said, getting up. "That was just my way of putting it. No, he's as free as the birds in the air. We shan't be bothering him."

The conference was at an end. Mr. Montague got up, thanked the officers for their courtesy, and shepherded his charges out of the building. No one spoke until they had reached the street. Then Mr. Stout, with a farewell bob of his head, climbed into a rickety flivver and drove away, while Mr. Montague signaled a taxi.

"Well, Miss Dunn, you've done Mr. Harkins a service," he said. "You ought to be able to rest well tonight; you've done your good turn for today."

Then he lifted his hat and was gone. Sandy led Jean to his roadster and they got in. She discovered suddenly that she felt tired and her head ached slightly, and she asked Sandy to take her home.

When she reached her apartment, she removed her riding clothes, took a shower, put on a cool linen dress and lay down on the davenport in her little living room. Somewhere, in the back of her head, a thought was bothering her; an uneasy feeling that something had been done wrong, somehow. She frowned, and tried to bring it out, but it eluded her. And at last, as she lay there, she dropped into an uneasy sleep, from which the ringing of her telephone awakened her.

It was Bobby Wallace calling.

"Well—at last I've been able to get hold of you," he said in mock anger. "Where've you been hiding yourself these last few days?"

"I haven't been hiding, Bobby. I've—been busy."

"So? It's a year since I've seen you. Listen, honey, I've got lots to tell you—why not let me take you out to dinner tonight?"

She was on the verge of refusing, but a sudden impulse made her change her mind and consent; and so, an hour later, she sat opposite Bobby in a pleasant little chop suey restaurant and saw his boyish, enthusiastic face beaming at her from across a little table.

Bobby was full of news and high spirits. He had had another talk with Mr. Montague, who had, in the days since Bobby's first conference with him, made a brief checkup on the bonds which Bobby was offering him; and he had formally agreed to buy them, so that Bobby was to get them from Mr. Lewis that evening and make delivery the following morning.

"Jean, it's going to mean $1500 cash for me," he said exultantly. "I can get a little car—I know of a little demonstrator roadster I can get for $500 cash—and put about $1000 in the bank. . . And then, Jean honey, will you marry me?"

He leaned across the table to take her hand. Jean smiled at him. "Bobby . . . why all the rush?" she asked lightly.

"Well, doggone it," he began; then he dropped his light, bantering air and became intensely serious. Heedless of the other diners, he leaned closer toward her and said softly, "Jean, I worship the air you breathe. I want to marry you and care for you and live for you and spend all the rest of my life trying to make you happy."

His youthful earnestness, the whole-sole affection that lit his face—that face she had known since earliest childhood—brought a wave of tenderness into Jean's breast . . . and she suddenly, to her utter amazement, found herself thinking: Dear Bobby! I'd marry you in a minute—if it weren't for Sandy!

It is so lovely that anything as simple as pot roast can be made so delicious with such inexpensive cuts. The best gravy is, I do believe, the one that is made sure to see that it is made with creamed potatoes as they are, but with the mashed or rice potatoes slathered in gravy. All vegetables combine in pot roasts. They may be surrounding the meat. The only difference in vegetables are cooked meat, the gravy being.

Roast of Beef
A rolled rump roast or favorite cuts. Choose about three pounds. Family aren't too hungry should have enough for six pounds beef, 2 tablespoons 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 cup flour.

Brown meat and try out fat. Drain and return three cups melted fat to kettle. When sizzling add meat. All sides, turning frequently careful not to pierce. When meat is brown cover closely and cook for three hours or more tender. I never add water. I use the cover of my pot so tightly that none of the steam escapes but you may add 1-2 cup boiling water during. Sprinkle with pepper when meat has been cooking about 2 hours. To serve remove meat and keep hot. Meat

Veal is delicious pot roasted this same way.
Scalloped parsnips and pineapple is a delicious dish to serve with a veal pot roast.

Scrub and scrape parsnips. Parboil. Cut in rounds about 1-2 inch thick. Cut pineapple in pieces of equal size and shape. Place in alternate layers in a buttered baking dish, sprinkling each layer with brown sugar and cinnamon and dotting with butter and flour rubbed together. Use 2 tablespoons flour. Sprinkle with salt and pour in boiling water with bouillon cube dissolved in it. Bake in a moderate oven until both parsnips and pineapple are tender. It will take about 45 minutes. HOW TO PLAY CENTER

Of the least acclaimed and most important men on a football squad is the center. It all depends on his passes to the quarterback, running back, passer, or kicker. The best position a center can take is to put himself at opposite corners of an imaginary square. This stance is designed so the center cannot be pushed, pulled, or shoved to either side. The center holds the ball with his right hand in the manner of a forward passer; he is throwing a pass upside down. A good center develops a consistency in his stance so that they travel always at the same level and height. This enables his backfield mates to time themselves correctly. In addition to his passing duties, the center learns to charge on offense, and be a workhorse on defense.

WORLD'S GREATEST DAM

COMPLETION of Boulder Dam, greatest engineering project of its kind, is marked by issuance of a new stamp picturing this huge mass of concrete holding back the Colorado River to form the world's largest artificial lake, 115 miles long and eight miles at its greatest width.

Power equalling almost the combined output of Uncle Sam's three other mighty hydro-electric plants—Niagara, Conowingo and Muscle Shoals—will come from this $165,000,000 dam. A new city, Boulder City, has arisen here, and from here will go lines, costing $23,000,000, that will carry power to Southern California, a $38,000,000 canal to Imperial Valley, and a $229,000,000 aqueduct to south California.

The illustration above is the view of the dam chosen for the new stamp.
