UNKNOWN SOLDIER

By I. G. THOMAS

You are called the 'Unknown Soldier' Cause there's no one knows your name, Nor the town or state you came from Or just why you won this fame. No, your home folks wouldn't know you.

And your buddies couldn't tell For your face was gone and missing When they found you where you fell.

Yes, you're called 'Unknown Soldier' Just because we don't know you. Do you feel that you're a stranger, And that we are strangers too? Do you wish that you could tell us What's your name and where's your home?

Do you feel that you're forgotten

Lying in your tomb alone?

Yes, we call you 'Unknown Soldier'
'Cause there's no one knows your name,

But you're not alone, forgotten; Nameless? our kin just the same. Mother, dad or pals don't know you, Claim you as their lost loved one, But America, she knows you! Hark! she cries 'you are my son!'

crime for which the state will take his life by electrocution. His statement made in the jail here, eccording to the Rangers, was a direct contradiction to a previous statement made before the court.

In Norman's sensational trial, the shortest in Donley County's history of capital crimes, the negro's victim took the stand as the state's chief witness. The jury was selected in one hour from a special venire of 26 men and the entire trial consumed only four and one-half hours. The negro will die in the electric chair exactly 46 days following the crime.
