Raymond Hamilton, Wounded, Escapes Dallas Police Trap

Raymond Hamilton, wounded in a gun fight with Dallas police officers here late last night, made his escape after a light service.

Hamilton surprised two men in an automobile at 2401 Grand avenues. He opened fire at a command to halt. Shots fired. Hamilton fell from the car and ran to the rear of the Dallas police station.

New Gas Mask Doesn't Mask Beauty

So business will not be interrupted if enemy airplanes should loose bombs on Rome before quitting time, a new transparent gas mask that enables a typist to see clearly while enjoying protection from noxious fumes has been introduced into the war-minded Italian capital. There wasn't any need to mask her fear when the young lady posed for this picture, because the boss wasn't fuming.

VERDICT FAVORS PLAINTIFF IN BANK CASE

Instructed Verdict Is Rendered in County Court

An instructed verdict in favor of the plaintiff was rendered this morning in County Court in the case of F. N. Foxhall and trustees of the former Hall County National Bank versus Roy Patterson and J. C. Hennon. The case was a suit for debt.

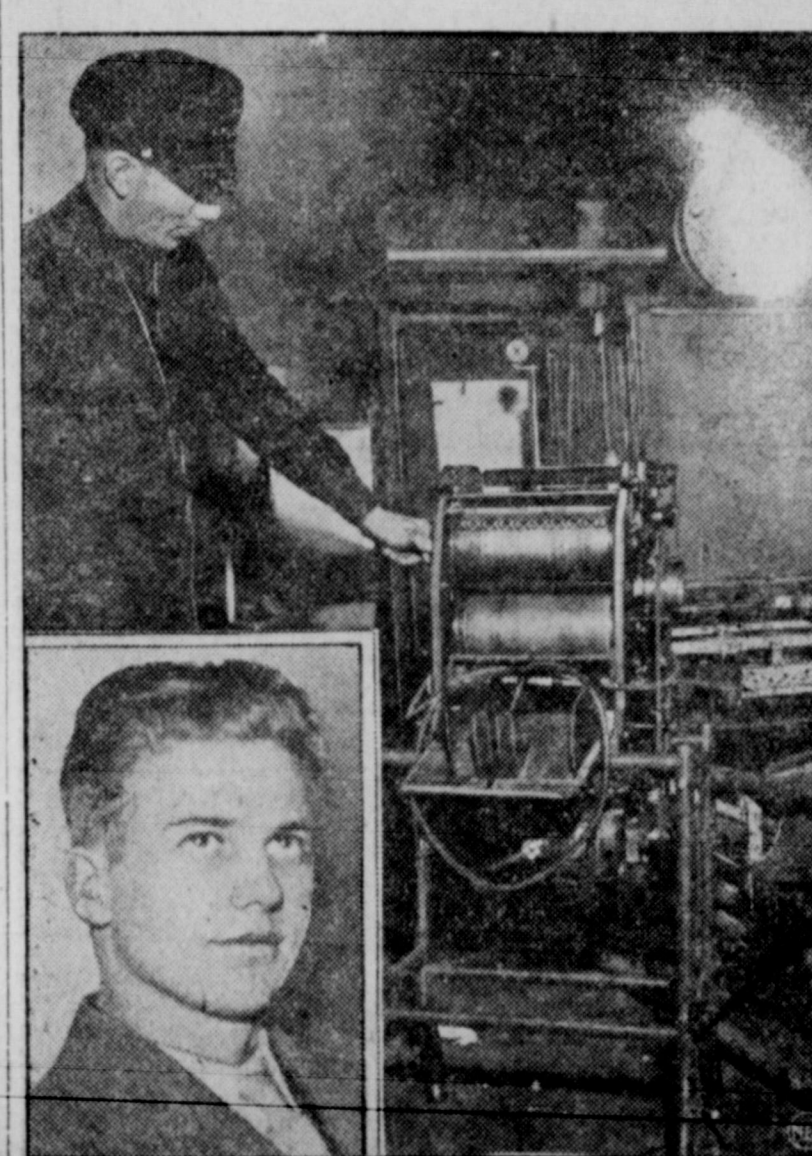

An agreement was reached in the first case called by County Judge Jim Vallance yesterday at the opening of "jury week" of the January term of county court. Settlement was made in the case of W. F. Hedrick versus J. H. McGlocklin.

Rabie Payne, 30, relief worker of Turkey, was adjudged insane by a county court jury this morning and ordered placed in the state institute for the insane at Wichita Falls.

Cases continued or passed until the next term of court include the following: Hollis Boren versus B. F. Snell; First National Bank of Memphis versus C. C. Bailey; M. C. Fuller versus L. E. Dennis; H. B. Bryan versus J. D. George; Citizens State Bank versus J. P. Connor; A. Vineyard versus John McGlocklin; Estelline State Bank versus J. M. Radford Grocery Company; and four cases of the First State Bank of Memphis versus L. M. Thornton, Rachael Swift, Anna Moores and Nettie P. McKinney.

Defense Loses Three Legal Skirmishes; Accuses Fisch

Raid Ends Huge Counterfeit Flood

A 21-year-old handsome blond youth, labeled the nation's most wanted counterfeit, is in Toledo, O., jail and a ring which passed bogus bills which may total millions is shattered, federal agents say, following their seizure of the plant shown above. Clarence Alfred Brown, inset left, a lithographer, is held as the "brains" of the coiners, and his father, one brother, and two others also were arrested. The ring, agents said, was turning out excellent imitations of genuine bills and had been trailed for two years.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 5.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense lost three legal skirmishes today and openly accused the dead Isador Fisch of collecting the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom.

The court ruled out a defense effort to show that Fisch visited a woman late in 1933 at Bayside, Long Island, bearing certain packages.

The court also suppressed temporarily at least, a defense subpoena which would have required Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf to produce releases he gave newspapers during the Lindbergh kidnap investigation and ruled out testimony of a theatre patron with which the defense intended to attack the memory of a state witness who said Hauptmann spent one of the ransom bills on November 26, 1933.

The defense hinted through questions propounded to a Department of Justice agent, John E. Seykora, that it might attack the mental condition of Dr. John F. Condon, Lindbergh intermediary, who testified that he paid Hauptmann the ransom money in a Bronx graveyard on April 2, 1932.

Books Are Closed On Cattle Buying

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Federal Government today closed the books on emergency purchases of cattle in drought areas with the sum of $108,335,322, or an average of $13.50 each.

Texas sold the largest number, 1,962,398 head. This "culling" of herds, AAA officials said, has put the industry in one of the most favorable positions in its history.

Adult Supervisors To Meet Thursday

County supervisors of adult education classes will meet Thursday morning in the office of the county school superintendent to work out reports on the class activities of the past month, it was announced this morning.

Reports and details in regard to the new teaching term beginning February 1 are to be worked out in the meeting, which has been called for 9:30 o'clock.

Oil Man Drowned As Auto Plunges

CARTHAGE, Feb. 5.—D. B. Reed, 53, was drowned and Seim Bardwell, 45, was painfully injured today when the automobile in which they were riding plunged over the Sabine River embankment into a 20-foot barrow pit full of water, nine miles east of here. Reed is a prominent Henderson oil man.

PICK 6 JURORS IN TRIAL OF STALCUP

Prosecutors Qualify Each Selected on Death Penalty

LUBBOCK, Feb. 5.—Six jurors, who will hear the state demand the life of Virgil Stalcup for murder in connection with the slaying of Sheriff W. B. Arthur at Dickens, were chosen in 99th District Court yesterday afternoon.

Prosecutors qualified each of six men on the death penalty.

If pugilist visaged Virgil Stalcup was worried by the state's efforts to send him to the electric chair he concealed it. He smoked cigars, one cigar, held his young wife's hand, and caressed his 5-year-old daughter.

More than two score officers were in the courtroom as Stalcup and Clarence Brown, his companion in the Dickens jailbreak, were brought into the courthouse.

TO SET LEAGUE DATE SATURDAY

Council To Complete Plans For County Interscholastic League Meet

Definite dates for the county interscholastic league meet will be set in a meeting of the League Council called for Saturday of this week, it was announced today by Miss Vera Gilreath, county school superintendent.

The league council will meet following a county meeting of teachers Saturday. The council meeting has been called by Lee Vardy, Turkey, director general of the county league.

The county-wide meeting of teachers has been called for this week-end instead of the original date February 16 because of conflicting meetings, Miss Gilreath said.

An instructor from the West Texas State Teachers' College at Canyon will be present for the meeting to offer a course in music study, she said.

URGE PIPE LINE TO DETROIT, ST. LOUIS

PWA Would Build Line To Use Panhandle Gas

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Public Works Administrator Ickes said yesterday a plan was under consideration to pipe natural gas from the Texas Panhandle to Detroit and St. Louis.

Testifying before the Senate appropriations committee on how a proposed $4,000,000,000 Public Works appropriation might be spent, he said:

"Here is a particular project that came to my attention only within the week.

"The governor of Texas sent a representative up here. There has been a good deal said about the waste of natural gas in the Panhandle of Texas, and they are becoming sensitive about that.

"Their proposal was to pipe that gas to Detroit and St. Louis and the proposal was to create a state authority which would make it possible to borrow money from public works.

"There is a proposition which would cost $50,000,000, something that has not heretofore been taken into account. It would require a great amount of direct labor and it would have the additional advantage of requiring an enormous amount of steel pipes which would stimulate a basic industry.

Officer's Death Ends Celebration

By Associated Press SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—A few hours after festivities of the 34th anniversary of the 13th Regiment at the Presidio, Major Charles A. Ross, battalion commander, was fatally injured today in a quarrel in a North Beach resort, where he and five brother officers went to continue the celebration.

Companions said Ross died after being kicked down a flight of steps. Clem Gaviotti, proprietor of the night club, Joe Vanessi and Sam Erlich were charged with manslaughter.

MASONS ENJOY OYSTER SUPPER

More Than 100 Members of Masonic Lodge, Families Attend Event Here

More than 100 persons enjoyed an oyster supper and banquet last night at the regular stated meeting of the Memphis Masonic Lodge. Masons and their wives and families participated in the program, which was the first of a series of entertainments of this nature planned for 1935.

Judge J. M. Elliott made the principal talk of the evening, speaking on "The History of the Masonic Lodge." John Deaver gave the response.

Music for the enjoyable occasion was furnished by A. W. Howard and daughters, Chrystal and Phillis, who entertained with vocal, violin and piano numbers. B. E. Davenport acted as master of ceremonies.

Worshipful Master Glynn Thompson and others spoke during the evening.

ENGLAND SAYS HITLER MUST OKAY PACT

Isolation by Defensive Air Appliances Threatened

LONDON, Feb. 5.—England has informed all interested powers, including the United States, that unless Reichsfuhrer Hitler's response to the Anglo-French proposals are favorable, Germany will be isolated by defensive air appliances.

A check of foreign embassies today disclosed that the British foreign office communicated with them verbally, removing all doubt that the Anglo-French Alliance at last was definitely agreed upon even if Germany should reject the proposals.

Grocerymen Here Ask NRA Code Exemptions

Eight grocery firms in Memphis are petitioning the Retail Food and Grocery Code Authority that they be exempt from NRA hours for employees until an average crop production in this area returns business conditions to normal.

The brief, prepared by Moss and Fitzjarrald, attorneys, was signed by the M System Store, by J. W. Vallance; Hoghland Mercantile, by J. L. Barnes; Farmers' Union Supply Company, by John Bishop, manager; City Grocery, by J. E. Roper; Draper Grocery Company, by M. J. Draper; Crawford Grocery, by C. W. Crawford; Womack Grocery, by A. Womack, and Fields & Sons Grocery, by Leo Fields.

Pay NRA Prices The petition states that at the time the code was first invoked "we were paying the labor employed at least the amount of the minimum wage fixed by the code".

They claim, however, that the reduction of working hours at this time will not increase employment because "to meet the time requirements as provided for in the code will within a short time force a goodly number of us to discontinue operating business upon the scale that we have heretofore operated under".

WTCC Head Speaker At Clarendon Banquet

Discusses Sales Tax

CLARENDON, Feb. 5.—"Business is slowly but surely staging a come-back, and with the passage of social legislation that will take care of the aged and unfortunate, and the re-employment of the able-bodied, America will soon be on the high road toward recovery," James D. Hamlin, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, told the audience at Clarendon's annual Chamber of Commerce banquet last night.

"More than all the recovery legislation, that is sure to be done by Congress, our people need the recovery of self reliance and self respect," Hamlin said, "and then we can go forward in a great way." He said "America is the greatest nation in the world, and I had rather live in a sod house in America than in any palace in Russia, Italy or Germany."

President Hamlin closed his masterful address by paying tribute to the public-spirited citizens who keep at work upholding the (Continued on page 8)

SILKEN SPINDLES

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GALE HENDERSON, pretty, 23, works in a silk mill. She and her brother, PHIL, 19, support their invalid father.
STEVE MYERS who also works in the mill asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days.
 That night Gale goes skating on the river. The ice breaks and she is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian asks Gale to wait while he gets his car but when he returns she is gone.
VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, makes plans to captivate Brian.
RUBY GRIFFITH breaks a date with Phil Henderson to keep one with ED VOGEL, and Phil and Ed quarrel. Later Phil goes to a mysterious meeting with other mill workers.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX
 The morning sunlight slanted through the tall, wide windows and fell in a bright path across the carpeted floor. It fell off the heavy, polished desk, striking the silver paper weight shaped like a sea gull, the leather calendar pad and the stack of opened letters addressed to Mr. Robert Thatcher, general manager of the mill.

Thatcher sat at the desk, very straight, the palms of his hands pressed together. When he spoke the words came crisply.

"My dear Brian," he was saying, "you know we're all glad to see you back. It's a fine thing—a son stepping into his father's shoes."

Brian Westmore said quickly, "I'm afraid it will be a long time before I can do that—if I ever can. Of course the whole thing is new to me; I've got so much to learn. But I'm anxious to get started—more anxious than I've ever been about anything before."

Thatcher nodded. "That's the spirit," he approved. "If more young men felt that way, if they would take an interest in business instead of frittering their time away on silly sports and such nonsense, this country would be a great deal better off. Yes, indeed! A great deal better off."

Brian leaned forward. "My mother told me," he said, "how wonderfully you've managed everything—keeping employees on and paying them the same wages in spite of the fact that times are so bad. I want to know how you did it."

The older man raised a hand deprecatingly. "Just keeping my hand on the rudder, Brian. These last eight months have been trying ones. In the industry at large, I mean. Here in our mill we've had our little flurries, but nothing more than that. Nothing to be alarmed about."

"In Paris," Brian said, "I read a lot about the new experiments they're trying out in this country. About the way they're tackling things at Washington, trying to organize the country on a new economic basis, giving the workers a chance to stand on their feet. I want to know how it's being done—"

Thatcher's lips tightened. His voice neither rose nor lowered, but it took on a hardness as he interrupted:

"Yes, of course. It's all very interesting. Externally so. I suppose I'm a conservative man, Brian. At least some people would call me so. But I've been trained in a hard school. Some of these new ventures—well, frankly I must confess I'm skeptical about them. Not opposed, you understand, but skeptical! Until someone can show me a better way I prefer to go along as we have been here, meeting problems as they come along, working them out. I think," with a sigh of pride, "that results under my management have been fairly satisfactory."

"Oh, yes, Mr. Thatcher. That's what I've been telling you. Mother says you've done wonderfully"

"Ah!" Thatcher smiled. "Profits," he went on in the clear, hard tone, "have been gratifying. And we have no labor troubles. Our workers are like a peaceful, contented family. The spirit of the executives and the spirit of the men and women in the mill is one of friendly co-operation. You've seen the mill village, Brian?"

"Yes—that is, I've driven through it."

model homes, equipped with every convenience. They have the very best we can give them, at the lowest price. Yes, I'm happy to say that in these times of unrest and dissatisfaction elsewhere our employees are completely satisfied."

The young man said eagerly, "But that's because you're paying them honest wages for their work. What is the wage scale, Mr. Thatcher?"

"Well—" the general manager moved restlessly. "Of course it varies. There are our highly skilled workers and those who have been with us for years; then there are those who are beginners. The government has set a minimum scale for the textile industry, as you perhaps know. I can say that all our employees are receiving an amount well above the minimum."

"You've cut working hours, yet you're keeping up salaries?"

"Why—why, yes."

Brian smiled. "Mother told me that, but I was afraid to believe it. I thought she might have gotten things mixed up. Mother hasn't much head for business. That's why she is so grateful to you for all you've done. And I'm grateful, too, Mr. Thatcher."

"Only too glad to be of service, my boy. Only too glad!"

"I should have been here myself—"

Thatcher's narrow face seemed to lengthen. "Your father's death," he said pompously, "was unexpected. It was, of course very sad that you should be so far away from home. Your father was a splendid employer. And a friend. I'm sure he'd be very happy if he could see you today and know that you're going on with the business he established. I'm sure he'd be proud of you, Brian."

"Thank you. I'd like to think that."

The general manager sat back and rubbed his hands together. "And now about getting a place for you to work," he said. "I've had the office next door put into shape. It's quite pleasant, I think, but if there's anything at all you'd like changed, just say so. Shall we have a look at it?"

He was on his feet. Brian arose also. "I wasn't expecting an office," he said, hesitatingly. "Not now. Tell you what I'd thought, Mr. Thatcher. I'd like to begin the mill doing whatever you put new workers to doing. I'd like to work in the different departments and find out how different jobs are done."

Thatcher's voice cut in sharply. "But this is the place to learn the business, Brian. I'll call in some of our experts this afternoon and they'll explain the processes to you. In a short time. No, I think it would be a great mistake for you to go into the mill. I—I'd be very much opposed to it."

"But why?"

"The workers wouldn't understand," Thatcher told him. "You don't know how they feel about the Westmore name, about your father. You want their respect, don't you? Their confidence? Then you mustn't go out and try to be one of them. You couldn't anyhow, you know."

"Of course," Brian said slowly, "if you're sure that's the way it is—"

"Certainly I'm sure," Thatcher smiled. "I've been in this mill 15 years, my boy. I ought to know something about it." He put a hand on Brian's shoulder. "We'll work together," he said. "You and I. You're going to be a great help to me."

"I hope I can be."

"Of course you can! Now then—shall we take a look at your office?"

Ten minutes later Robert Thatcher sat at his desk. The door leading into the next office was closed; there was no one else in the room. The general manager reached for the telephone, but before he raised it his lips formed three words.

"Prying young pup!" he said. Then he picked up the telephone, gave some instructions and waited. Presently there was a knock at the door. "Come in," Thatcher called. A heavily-built, red-faced man entered. "You wanted to see me, Mr. Thatcher?"

"Yes, Parsons."

The man crossed the room, halted before the general manager's desk.

BULLARD'S

Thatcher said, with a nod toward the door on the right. "We've been having a talk. I want you to remember, Parsons, what I told you last week. If he wants to see reports, figures, anything—he's not to see them. He'll have only the statements I turn over to him. Understand? If he comes to you with questions, put him off, and then let me know. I'll tell you what to do. You won't forget?"

"No, Mr. Thatcher."

"Don't under any circumstances, answer questions about the payroll or about the number who are working in the mill. Oh, and another thing—I want to know who he talks to when he's away from this office. If he seems to be getting friendly with any of the men I'd like to hear about it."

The red-faced man nodded. "Yes, Mr. Thatcher," he said unctuously.

Thatcher picked up a letter and read it through. He did not look up as the door closed on the red-faced man.

The telephone rang several times during the next half hour and Thatcher answered. Once he pressed a bell and his secretary—a slim young woman with sallow cheeks—entered, carrying some papers which she placed before him, then withdrew.

At last Thatcher rose, crossed the room and opened the door on the right. "If you'd like to have a look around the mill," he said to Brian, "we might get started now—"

Brian sat at the new desk, his arms folded. "Good," he said, getting to his feet. "I'm anxious to see the place!"

They stepped into the corridor, and the rumble of machines, muffled behind closed doors, came to them.

"We'll go down this way first," Thatcher said, moving ahead.

Brian followed. They passed down the hallway and turned a corner. Thatcher, glancing over his shoulder, said something but Brian did not hear the words. He was looking at a girl who was coming toward him—a girl in a blue apron-dress, a pretty girl with gray eyes beneath wide, dark brows. Brian recognized her instantly. She was the girl he had talked to at the river, the girl who had gone through the ice. And she worked here in the mill!

Tarver's Down Harrison's in Cage League Open Compress To Play Meacham's Tonight

Tarver's Pillboys jumped into the lead at the opening of the City Basketball League season by defeating the Harrison Hardware five last night at the high school gymnasium, 36 to 25.

Tonight a second team will step into the win column when the Memphis Compress and Meacham Pharmacy quintets clash in the second game of league play. The tilt is to start at 7:15 o'clock, with Jack Norman, manager of the Harrison entry, acting as referee.

A small crowd gathered at the gymnasium last night to witness the opening game, which turned into a rough, fast clash with numerous spills.

Led by Stephens, lanky center, and Manager O. B. Smith, the Pillboys pulled into an early lead and were never headed. They led, 18 to 10, at halftime.

However, the Hardware quint speeded up in the last half and played the victors on an almost even basis, although unable to gain on the Tarver lead. The Pillboys played even ball, scoring the same number of tallies in each half.

Stevens led the scoring with 14 points, garnered from seven ringers from the floor. He was followed by Manager Smith with 11 counters, coming from five field goals and one gratis shot. Glosson, a new addition to the Tarver line-up, and Davis, Harrison forward, followed with eight points each.

Although the game was rough and fast from the start, it was marked by the absence of personal foul called, the players being allowed to take care of themselves in the scramble. Glosson, Tarver forward, went out on personal fouls 20 seconds before the game ended and the Pillboys finished with four players on the floor.

Tonight's battle completes the introduction of the four clubs in the loop. Next Monday and Tuesday nights the teams string out a bit in the title chase, and on the following week hit the mid-way point with the opening of doubleheaders at each session. Admission is five and 10 cents.

Miss Martha Temple is a business visitor in Amarillo today.

Miss Katie Sue Read, who has been saleslady at Hanna-Pope's Dry Goods store for the past several months, has resigned her position on account of illness and will return to her home in Paducah. Miss Read made many friends with the trading public during her stay in Memphis.

Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Odom made a hurried trip to Rogers today to visit in the homes of their parents. They were accompanied by their daughters, Mrs. Ney Hale, of Amarillo, and by Mrs. Agrian Odom, who will visit her parents in Hubberd. They will return Thursday.

HARRY GRAYSON

BUFFALO, Feb. 5.—Joe McCarthy sees the New York Americans of 1935 too rich in promise to be counted out.

Indeed, Col. Jacob Ruppert's hand man breaks an old custom by predicting that the Yankees will win the pennant in a wide-open and gripping race.

Like everything else, McCarthy names Detroit and Cleveland as the clubs to beat, and anticipates trouble from Philadelphia. He does not discount Boston's chances to the extent of those who point to the apparent weakness of the right side of the Red Sox infield.

"As a yardstick for measuring the Yankees' strength this season let us glance backward," said McCarthy, at his home here. "The club won 95 games in 1934.

"We were without the services of Outfielder Dixie Walker for the greater part of the campaign, and injuries deprived us of Catcher Bill Dickey and Outfielder Earl Combs when we needed them most—in the closing weeks. Word from them is that they are in fine condition.

"Pitcher Johnny Broaca did not join the Yankees until June. Broaca, and Johnny Murphy and Jimmy DeShong, two other splendid young right-handers, should improve with experience."

Hill, Brown, and Tamulis

New York's junior league entry must be rebuilt, so McCarthy's reply to the question, "From which new recruits do you expect the most help?" is interesting.

"From Jesse Hill, the outfielder, and the pitchers, Brown and Tamulis."

One gathered that McCarthy is banking heavily on Hill to make a good stab at filling the sizable brogans of George Herman Ruth and restore some of the speed to the club that so long was provided by the scholarly Combs.

A right-hand hitter and thrower, Hill is built for wear and tear, as he demonstrated with Newark last year by being the only Interstate League fly-chaser to play the entire schedule of 154 games.

What is more important, he finished eighth among that loop's batsmen, with a percentage of .349, headed for the wheel in hits with 205, and tied for the stolen base leader with 24.

Mountain of Strength

Walt Brown, a veritable mountain towering 6 feet 3 and scaling close to 260 pounds, played a tremendous role in the Bears' dash to the flag.

The huge right-hander showed the way to International League pitchers with a percentage of .769. He had the low earned run

'Jug' M'Spaden Mops Up Along Trail of Winter Tournaments

BY JIMMY DONAHUE
NEA Service Sports Writer

It took seven years for Harold "Jug" McSpaden to learn that the secret of successful golf rests in accuracy off the tee and fine work with the irons rather than terrific belts off the wooden stand. And once that lesson was learned, the young Kansas City golfer rose from the ranks of mediocre pros to the top flight in one year!

It was during the winter golf trek of last season that McSpaden first blazed his name among the leaders of the money men. He amazed the golf world by turning in a card of 62, nine under regulation figures, during the Santa Monica, Calif., pro-amateur championship. That round, one of the greatest competitive innings of golf ever recorded, won the tournament for him.

All last summer the 26-year-old Missourian, formerly known for his long driving game, a la Lawson Little, concentrated on his iron play. And the current winter tour of the pros has seen him annex the Pasadena open with a 72-hole score of 281; the Sacramento $2500 open, with 284 for four rounds; and the San Francisco national match play open.

Beat the Best

In the first tournament, Jug bested such stars as Dick Metz, Johnny Revolta, Vic Ghezzi, Walter Hagen, Charley Guest, Horton Smith, MacDonald Smith, Ralph Guldahl, and Henry Picard.

In the second victory, he beat a average, 2:58; bagged the most contests, 20; and lost only 6. He worked the most complete games, 21. He turned in half a dozen shutouts to lead in that department, and was well up near the top in strikeouts with 130.

He proved himself a great finisher—the real test of a pitcher—with 33 consecutive scoreless innings in the last five engagements of the campaign.

Vito Tamulis, a 195-pound southpaw with four years of professional experience at 22, made a tremendous hit with McCarthy in blanking the AAAAAAAA's with seven hits last fall. Tamulis participated in as many as 44 games with Newark, winning 13 and losing 7.

McCarthy has the incomparable Gomez, and Ruffing, Allen, and Van Atta. Charley Devens is back for another fling, and Marvin Duke and Clifton Melton, left-handers, will be given a thorough going over.

Duke copped 10 games and lost 6 for Newark. Melton, who shoots 6 feet 4½ inches into the air, is being given a trial on the strength of recording 16 victories for Bal-field that included Walter Hagen, Paul Runyan, Gene Sarazen, and others. In the third, he put out Ky Laffoon to enter the finals against Harry Cooper, and simply astonished Lighthorse Harry with an exhibition of sub par golf, winning on the 34th hole, 3 and 2.

Like two other young pros who burned up the fairways in 1933 and 1934—Paul Runyan's first bid to fame came in '33, and Ky Laffoon grabbed the glory last season—McSpaden got his start as a caddy, back in the middle '20s.

Powerful wrists gave the youngster some of the longest drives ever witnessed by Joe Matthews, pro at the Mission Hills Country Club in Kansas City, and Joe, recognizing Jug's potentialities, took him in hand.

Curbed Drives—Improved

His penchant for killing the ball on the tee, however, threatened to ruin a promising career, and it was only after he realized that distance was secondary to accuracy off the tee that he commenced to show his real greatness.

Last summer he gave advance notice of what was to come this year by winning the Oklahoma, Iowa, and Kansas City opens, finishing 14 shots ahead of the field in the Iowa event, staged in Des Moines.

Just before the start of the current winter series, he remarked: "This is going to be my year. I just feel it. Never have I hit shots better."

And if his performance so far is any indication of his playing the remainder of the year, a lot of pros are going to find pretty slim pickings along the tournament trail.

time in 1933. He got nowhere with the staggering Orioles of 1934, winning only 6 while dropping 21 decisions.

Infield Remains Intact

Barring mishaps, the Yankees are guaranteed capable catch and stirring hitting by the rangy Dickey Arndt Jorgens is the second string man, with Bill Hershberger, who hit 3.14 in 115 games for Hollywood, the most likely looking peagreen. Newyark contributes a pair of backstops, Joe Glenn, who hit only .350.

Unfortunately, the only new in-fielding candidate who has shown unmistakable signs of getting somewhere plays first base, where a fellow named Lou Gehrig has held forth for the Yankees in 1504 consecutive games. His name is George McQuinn, a flossy left-hand fielder who hit .331 for Toronto.

For this reason, the Yankee infield is likely to bethe same as it was in 1934, with Gehrig, Lazzeri, Crosetti, Rolfe, Saltzgeber, and Heffner.

McCarthy showed no disposition to discuss Ruth. He has reportedly said that the Babe could play with the Yankees as long as he had a mind to.

If Combs has fully recovered from the near-fatal crash in St. Louis; if Walker's arm has responded; and Hill turns out to be something more than a minor league star, the Renkee outfield

RACING HEAD

The new president of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners, organized last year to regulate horse racing, is Walter A. Donovan, abova, secretary of the Florida state body, who recently was elected at a meeting in Miami. Donovan succeeds Mark R. Hanna, of Detroit.

RISING STAR

Boasting a string of 22 straight victories as a pro fighter, Leo Rodak, above, young Chicago brawler just out of the featherweight ranks, will get his first real test as a lightweight when he tangles with Tony Canzoneri in Chicago, Thursday, Jan. 31. Leo is after a title go with his fellow-townsmen, Barney Ross should rate second to none in either major league.

Offhand, it would appear as though McCarthy had a fair sort of a hand in an uncertain game.

FAT STOCK SHOW AT TULIA—The Swisher county county 4-H Club and vocational boys are making elaborate plans for the annual Fat Stock Show to be held in Tuli March 1 and 2. This is the sixth annual show that these boys have put on in Swisher county, and they are expecting to make it one of the best ever held. A large number of fat calves and pigs will be shown, that will prove the value of feeding livestock in this area of Texas.

RABBITS WORTH TWO CENTS DIMMITT—Castro County commissioners have voted to pay a bounty of two cents for rabbit scalps. This action was taken because of the great increase in the number of rabbits in the county, and the resultant waste of vegetation caused thereby. Other counties of the Plains section are planning to pass like orders.
