CYCLONE READY FOR GAME TONIGHT

Open Season Tonight With Paducah There

A jubilant but determined Cyclone took the field yesterday afternoon for the final practice session before leaving this afternoon for Paducah to play that team in the season's opening football game tonight.

The yelling, hard-driving Memphis gridsters showed plenty of pep in their last workout as they went about their limbering up exercises and carried the ball up and down the field calling signals. A short, light workout was held with signal calling and handling of the ball occupying most of the time.

Coach Chesty Walker's charges appeared to be in fine spirits for the coming game, and no member of the squad will be missing from the line-up tonight with injuries. Fred Sanders, big right tackle who has been suffering from minor injuries, was out yesterday afternoon and ready for action.

Coach Walker has announced that he will take his entire squad of 28 men. The players will leave from the local high school this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Coach Walker was undecided as to his exact starting line-up for tonight's contest. The probable starting team will include Capt. Bud McAbee, center; "Butter" Bourland, right guard; Winifred Swift, left guard; Cecil Grimes, left tackle; Fred Sanders, right tackle; Pud Malone, right end; Ben Scott, left end; Deris Walker, left half; "Country" Adeock, right half; Norman Deason, full, and Raymond Powers, quarter. Claude Ferrell may get the starting call at right half instead of Adeock.

Memphis' starting line-up averages only slightly more than 147 pounds. The Paducah team averages around 155. It was said. Weights and numbers of the Memphis starters are as follows: Sanders, No. 77, weight 189; McAbee, No. 73, weight 149; Swift, No. 75, weight 148; Bourland, No. 68, weight 137; Grimes, No. 76, weight 161; Scott, No. 70, weight 151; Malone, No. 61, weight 131; Powers, No. 65, weight 134; Deason, No. 66, weight 140; Adeock, No. 63, weight 134, and Walker, No. 69, weight 147.

Squadmen who will make the trip are Ferrell, half; Estes, center; Roden, guard; Harris, tackle; Davis, end; Childress, quarter; Crump, half; Evans, tackle. Stinton, end; Rea, Guard; E. Scott, tackle; Gilreath, half; Dunn, tackle; Colvin, end; Balsin, guard; Hughes, tackle, and Melton, end; Jack Callahan, business manager, will also accompany the team.

Long Political Machine Split

NEW ORLEANS—The late Huey Long's political machine has been split by the announcement of the candidacies of Lieutenant Governor James Noe for governor, and Wade Martin, Public Service Commissioner, for United States Senate, in the January primary.

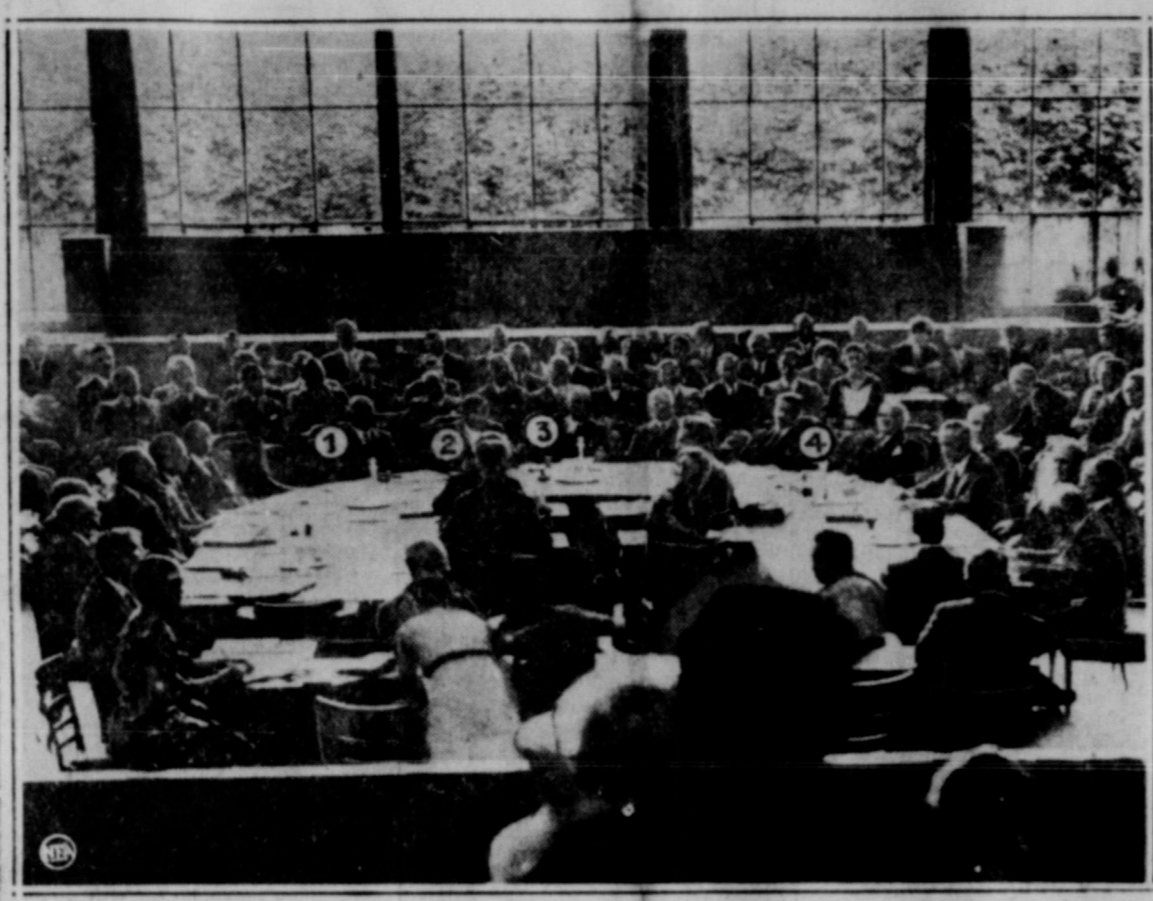

Governor Allen said he could not conceive of such announcements without his sanction. The candidates said they were running on the Long program. Martin is believed to be seeking the straight term, and no announcements for Long's unexpired term have been made.

1936 ADJUSTMENT PROGRAM IS EXPLAINED TO COTTON GROWERS

Hall County farmers and farm women convened yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the local high school to hear an address by M. A. Pillars of Twitty, a member of this district on the State Advisory Cotton Committee, which in Texas is composed of 11 members. Mr. Pillars recently returned from Washington where the committee was called for a conference regarding the loan policy and the 1936 cotton program.

Approximately 600 Hall county farmers jammed the high school auditorium and balcony and almost disrupted class work.

Mr. Pillars explained the operation of the present 10-cent loan and benefit payments to be made under the 12-cent guarantee.

He stated that the present 10-cent loan is practically parallel in operation to the 1933 10-cent loan and the 1934 12-cent loan.

Only producers who agreed to cooperate with the 1936 adjustment program are eligible for the loan, he said. The 12-cent guarantee does not have any connection with the loan. A person cannot receive the benefit payments under the guarantee until his cotton has been sold. When the producer sells his cotton, he will receive a duplicate invoice of sale from the buyer, showing the date of sale. This is to be turned in to the county agent's office, and the producer will be paid the difference between the average price of seven-eighths low middling cotton on the 12 spot markets and 12 cents, on the date of his sale.

Mr. Pillars explained that the cotton must be sold before August 1, 1936, in order for the producer to participate in the 12-cent guarantee. This 12-cent guarantee applies only on the actual production, or the Bankhead allotment, whichever is the smaller, and may be obtained only by those persons who agree to cooperate in the 1936 adjustment program.

In regard to the 1936 adjustment program, it was stated that the contract will have a definite division of payments set out between the landlords and tenants. There will not be separate rental and party payments as at present, but one adjustment payment will be made. This will be made in two equal installments to each person interested in the crop, and in accordance with his interest in the crop.

Mr. Pillars sounded the call to arms in the fight to retain the processing tax, the Bankhead Act and the other farm legislation, which, under the AAA program, has benefited this section greatly for the past three years. The dynamic speaker pointed out that it would be necessary for every farmer to consider this fight as a personal matter and stressed the importance of getting behind the men who are conducting the defense of the farm program in a financial, as well as moral, way.

Mr. Pillars is a farmer in Wheeler County and owns, together with the Federal Land Bank, a half section of good farming land. His sole interest in the program is to better the conditions under which he and his neighbors are living and raising their families.

Mr. Pillars does not have a position which carries any salary, and he made the trip to Memphis yesterday on his own expense. Farmers present at the meeting indicated their appreciation of Mr. Pillars' service by raising a free-will donation of $21 at the close of his address.

T. M. McMurry, prominent Hall County citizen and a member of the County Cotton Control Committee, introduced the speaker.

NIGHT CLASSES TO START SOON

Commercial Classes Accommodate More Students Soon

Night classes are to be instituted at the local high school within the near future, according to Arthur Howard, instructor, and W. C. Davis, superintendent.

This addition to the curriculum of the local high school comes about by requests from a number of local citizens who desire to attend commercial classes but are unable to do so because of having to work during the day. The commercial department, however, is already handling all students possible, despite the fact that it is the biggest department of its kind ever to be operated at the school here.

In order that the school may render more service to the city, the local school board recently authorized the opening of night classes.

Courses are to be offered in typewriting, bookkeeping and shorthand. Arthur Howard, head of the commercial department, will instruct the classes. Classes will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 o'clock until 10. Each class will last one hour, with an extra laboratory period in bookkeeping. Enrollment can be made in any number of the three classes. A small rental fee will be charged for use of the typewriters and for use of (Continued on page 4)

Calhoun Case in Second Day of Trial Dist. Court

Crowds Attending Sensational Case

In District Court this morning, the case of the State of Texas vs. B. D. Calhoun, charged with incest, entered its second day of hearing, with the defense introducing character witnesses and the prosecution bending its efforts to learn if any of the witnesses had ever heard of a man named Jack Foster, whose appearance into the case came from some statement made by the prosecutrix prior to the trial.

The jury for the trial was empaneled at 11:00 o'clock yesterday morning, and the trial of the case began.

Before the taking of testimony was begun, District Judge Fries addressed the crowd in the courtroom briefly, commenting on the large number of women present in the room, and barring from hearing the case all persons under age.

So great has been the press of people in the courtroom during this trial, that it has been necessary to lock the courtroom doors as soon as the spectators seats are filled. Yesterday, the audience spread out all over the floor of the room, but this morning, Judge Fries ordered the Sheriff to lock the doors after the seats were filled.

The state's first witness was the prosecutrix, Adele Calhoun, daughter of the defendant, who testified in detail as to the acts with which her father is charged. Her examination and cross-examination consumed until about 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Following the prosecutrix, the state introduced as witnesses her brother, Hudie Calhoun, 14, and her two small sisters, Nelda, 12, and Ona, 10, all of whom gave substantially the same evidence in regard to things which occurred in the Calhoun home.

Following the testimony of these four witnesses, the state rested.

The first defense witness put on the stand was I. H. Anderson, of Amarillo, County Attorney of

MANY STUDENTS PLAN TRIP TO FAIR

Transportation For Band Is Now The Problem

According to information from Amarillo, if Hall County is going to be in the running for the biggest delegation to the Tri-State Fair, we are going to have to step out and do things.

Happy and Tullia had a combined delegation numbering 510 at the fair yesterday. Panhandle was represented by more than 300. Plainview had over 50 cars of boosters, and Hereford was there with a big delegation.

Mr. Milam, band director, states that arrangements for the Hall County caravan to the fair Saturday are going forward nicely. In fact, he states, so great has been the response to the invitation to the county school children to make the trip, the available busses, 14 in number, look as if they will be filled with the children.

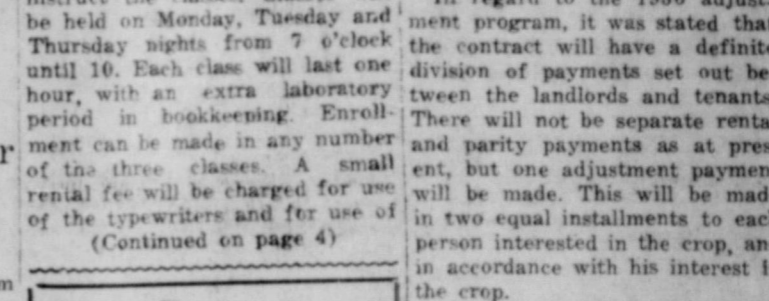

Not a school child who wants to make the trip is to be disappointed, says Mr. Milam, even if the band has to hitch-hike. It looks now as though some other arrangements must be made for the transportation of the band to the fair, either in cars or in a specially chartered bus. The committee is now working on this matter, and the band is going to get there, in some way or other.

Every school planning to make the trip has been heard from, with the exception of Estelline, and a report is expected from there today. So far, every school has reported full bus loads of pupils.

As stated before, the buses will leave Memphis at 7:00 a. m. Saturday, arriving in Amarillo about 10:00 o'clock, and a parade will be staged in the business district before invading the fair grounds.

Greet Dixie Daughters

The 42nd annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy has an especial significance for its busy president-general, Mrs. W. E. Massey, shown above in a new portrait. The nationally prominent patriotic and historic society will convene in Mrs. Massey's home city, Hot Springs, Ark., this fall.

On to Paducah!

Eighty-three members of the Memphis High School Pep Squad and the entire Memphis Gold Medal band will leave this afternoon at 5 o'clock for Paducah to help the Memphis Cyclone gridsters annex the first football game of the year.

Mrs. Carl Periman and Miss Mary Foreman, sponsors, will also go with the pep squad. The journey will be made in the Memphis school busses.

Pre-game dope gives Paducah a slight edge to win over the Memphis aggregation, but the local pep squad girls have announced that they will make up for the edge.

A large delegation of Memphis fans are expected to accompany the pep squad to Paducah to see the Memphis and Paducah grid warriors tangle in the first sight game to be played in the new Paducah stadium.

CIRCUS DAYS: THE circus is coming to Memphis, and the youngster set is all agog over the event.

Do you remember the circus days of your youth? How for days you admired the highly colored posters which adorned the countryside, with their muscular trapeze artists and beautiful ladies in tights?

How on circus morning you slipped out of bed in the wee small hours of the morning, tiptoed out of the house and sped to the railroad yards, to see the circus unload?

What a thrill you get at seeing the canvas covered parade wagons shunted into the steel runways from the long flat car, pushed into place by the working elephants and then hauled by the big horses to the circus lots?

How you watched the tents go up, to the shouts of the canvas boss and the sleepy yawns of the workmen?

The ring of the sledges against the steel hooped tent stakes, as from four to six men swung the heavy hammers in a symphony that had more appeal than the famous "Anvil Chorus"?

How good the smells which came from the cook tent, the first one up, as busy cooks prepared breakfast?

How you hung around the lot all morning, until parade time, while your mother worried why you didn't come home for breakfast?

How, when the parade started, you joined a group of your fellows and made an unofficial parade unit, marching just behind the steam calliope?

How, back on the show grounds, you listened wide-eyed to the shouts of the barkers in front of the sideshow, and gazed at the brilliantly painted banners depicting the bearded lady and the living skeleton?

How you probably slipped under the edge of the tent for the performance, and were probably tossed out by an enraged tent hand who saw you disappear under the canvas wall?

If you can still remember this, you will appreciate the mood of your youngsters as circus day approaches, for despite the fact that it travels now in trucks, it is still the circus, and the pink

AN ANALYSIS OF THE REPEAL VOTE

Compiled and Presented by the Citizens League of Texas.

TEXAS is wet again through the vote, not of the people of the state as a whole, but by virtue of the vote of three large South Texas cities.

The final returns when tabulated, show 297,597 votes for whiskey in Texas and 250,948 against, making a majority of 46,649 votes for whiskey.

Now examine the returns from the three counties which carried the election for the wets.

Bexar County and San Antonio went wet by 23,912 votes. Galveston County and Galveston went wet by 5,849 votes. Harris County and Houston went wet by 18,834 votes. The total wet majority for these three counties was 48,605 votes, or 1950 more wet votes than the entire wet majority for the state.

How Panhandle Voted: Now look at the table at the top of this article and see how the Panhandle counties cast their votes.

The 34 Panhandle counties cast 21,153 votes; 12,386 for whiskey and 18,767 against. This gives a dry majority of 6,381.

Out of the 34 counties in this section of the state, only six voted wet majority, and these by very slight margins.

Oldham County went wet by only 14 votes, Carson by 111 votes, Gray by 84 votes, Hutchison by 315 votes, Moore by 24 votes, and Potter by 300 votes.

How Cities Voted: For information on how the cities of the state voted, see the table at the bottom of the article. From this table it will be seen that our North Texas cities are not very wet.

As a matter of fact, Texas north of Austin, according to the vote, is dry. The county in which Waco is located went wet by only 1,000 votes.

Wichita County went wet by only 285 votes, yet Wilbarger County, alongside of Wichita, went dry by 402 votes, making the two counties combined dry by 122 votes.

There are no wet spots in North Texas outside the larger cities and, as stated above, they are not so very wet. Many of the North Texas counties went dry by majorities of two or three to one.

South Texas Wet: Take a state map and draw a line from the town of Del Rio, on the Rio Grande river, straight across the south end of the state, through Beaumont, in the southwest part of the state, thus cutting off a very small part of the state to the south.

A tabulation of the votes in the counties south of and cut by this line show that they cast 120,173 wet votes against 38,806 dry votes, a majority of 81,368 wet votes in these 53 South Texas counties. Take from this the state wet majority of 46,649, and we find that Central and North Texas is, as a matter of fact, dry by 34,618 votes.

By moving this line on a little farther north to the north line of Val Verde County, in the Southwest, and Harding County, on the east, and the dry majority north of the line will be increased to 44,394 votes.

The farther north this line is drawn, the larger the dry majority becomes, until, as shown above, by the time the Panhandle lemonade still tastes the same to the youthful palate.

THE CAPITOL ONLOOKER

By CHARLES E. SIMONS: AUSTIN, Sept. 19.—Governor Allred has gotten behind the the movement to provide the state's youth with employment and better recreational facilities.

The governor pledged the full cooperation of his office to the National Youth Administration and has promised to support a state appropriation of $50,000 to further the program, with state and federal cooperation it is hoped to give employment to 2,280 unskilled young men from 16 to 25 years old, now on relief, on state parks improvements.

Thirty supervisors and 380 skilled workers also will be employed. The average term of employment will be from three to six months. H. P. Drought, Works Progress Administration chief, has approved the project.

State funds will be used exclusively to purchase materials and equipment for permanent improvements. "The removing of heads of families from the relief rolls with government projects is a notable achievement," Governor Allred said.

Robert Johnson of Amarillo has made his home in this community. The P.-T. A. met Thursday, and the president, Mrs. Madge Crabb, made a talk that was very interesting.

famous professionals, but no one would have suspected it as she sat beside John McNeill and studied her program with quiet poise. He liked her silences. He had always hated chattering girls who talked nervously with a horror of pause. In Ruth's company the silences were comfortable, a part of their companionship. Even when they conversed it was generally he who talked, she who listened.

However, on the ride home after the play, not even John talked. Ruth, exhausted by excitement and by the strain of being a fairy princess for an entire evening, slept soundly, her head against his shoulder, her breathing as soft and regular as a child's. She did not know that he kissed her hair and called her "Darling!" every time he changed gears.

When she accepted John's invitation to go dancing with him, Ruth knew she had added one more reckless link to the chain of folly she was forging. She also knew that she was glad.

It was two days after the theater party that he asked her. He said, "There's a dinner dance at the Country Club tonight. Or we could go slumming—to one of the decent roadhouses, I mean. Or we could go to Cleveland. It does not matter to me where we go, just so we dance."

Ruth replied quickly. "Not the Country Club, John! I don't want to see a lot of people I'm expected to remember—and don't!" Let him think her base. Let him think her indifferent to Worthville. At least he could not think her indifferent to himself.

"All right," he said. "So much the better. If I took you to a local dance I'd play stag all evening. Now I know a place called the Allegheny Cabin that's 60 miles from here toward the mountains, but worth the drive. It's run by a couple of people from Maryland—down-and-out gentry—who specialize on good food and a good orchestra. There's the right patronage. No rough stuff. A beautiful log lodge overlooking a water park. Hanes over the river. Two big fireplaces. Maryland friend chicken—"

Ruth said, "Are you a paid press agent for this paradise, or just feeling lyrical? Anyway, I'm sold. What time shall I be ready?"

"We'd better allow an hour and a half," he calculated, "on account of the curves. I'll phone for 7 o'clock reservations. Let's leave here about 5:30. Do you think Bertha will object?"

Ruth shook her head and laughed. "It's not very flattering to me but her one idea seems to be to get me out of the house. What must I wear, John?"

He said, "It's one of those places where anything goes. I won't dress. Won't have time. But you wear anything your little heart desires."

Her little heart desired to wear the lace dinner dress. Yearned to wear it. After her bath she argued with herself about it: "John's not dressing. The correct thing for me to wear would be one of the knit dresses—or the navy blue satin. But he's seen me in all of them. He's never seen me in the lace. If I don't wear it tonight, he never will. . . . If I don't wear it I'll always wish I had. It might set to be a suppressed desire with me and turn me into a criminal or something! I'll wear it."

When she had out it on she was not sorry. Its cream-tan color flattered her brown eyes and hair. Its little round collar was young and demure. Its fitted bodice called for a slender figure, exactly like her own. She said to the mirror, "If I'm not his idea of a girl tonight, then I'll never be!"

John was late. It was after 6 when he called for her, breathless and apologetic for having been detained at the factory. "I'm not a play boy," he told her. "Business has to come first. Well, we'll step on it. The first 40 miles is pretty straight road."

It was this part of the road that proved their undoing. About 30 miles from Worthville, doing a careful 60 miles an hour, John's car was overhauled by a police motorcycle that had been loitering in a side road. There was no argument.

"John McNeill, Worthville," snapped John, giving the information with some chagrin and irritation. "Yes, I was doing 60. What of it? The road's clear. Got to get to dinner, haven't we?"

The callous one said, "It's nothin' to this township if you never eat." Ruth watched his pencil move, fascinated. She could see there was other printed data on the card to be filled out. She swallowed bravely and said in a small, clear voice, "And my name is Ruth Woodson."

Both men looked at her. The officer smiled and said, "Your name's not necessary, lady. I'm just interested in the driver."

John McNeill said nothing. He took the ticket offered him, said a forgiving goodby to the law's victorious representative and put his car in motion. About 10 miles later he said with a challenging smile to the girl beside him. "He wasn't interested in your alias, was he?"

Ruth felt tears stinging her eyelids in the darkness. She had supposed the officer would ask her name in just a moment and that John would be compelled to say, "Elaine Chalmers." She was responsible for that name. She had borrowed it, and she must leave it as bright and shining as she had found it. But John would never know the reason for her lie. No doubt he thought it petty, cowardly in her to have spoken out like that. Well, no matter now. She blinked back the tears and

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

WHEN THE WEASEL'S FUR TURNS WHITE, IN WINTER, IT SERVES HIM BETTER IN TWO WAYS: A WHITE COAT IS LESS CONSPICUOUS IN SNOW, AND A WHITE COAT LOSES ITS OWNER LESS BODY HEAT THAN A DARK ONE.

THE SPawning GROUND OF SALMON, IN THE YUKON RIVER, LIES 2,000 MILES BY WATER FROM THE SEA.

THE LETTER "Q" IS NEVER FOLLOWED BY ANY LETTER EXCEPT "U".

SALMON do not return to their birthplace to spawn because of any sentimental reasons, but because there is more oxygen in the stream at its source, and the young need this. It is only logical that a salmon would return to the same stream, since it does not voluntarily stray far from the mouth of the fresh water from which it emerged.

Several farmers of this community attended the farmers' meeting held in the Memphis school building Wednesday afternoon. Alfred Hutcherson and Allan McGuire made a business trip to Childress Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Neely have organized the pupils of this school into a Scout group. Mr. Neely is master of the Boy Scouts, while Mrs. Neely has charge of the Girl Scouts. The entire group went on a hike Monday night. The boys of this community who are to organize an all-star basketball team met Tuesday night and worked out in the Newlin gymnasium. PUMPKINS GROW IN BOSTON (By United Press) BOSTON, Sept. 19.—Pumpkins are growing in Charlestown's business district. They are ripening on the vines in a flower pot. Where the seeds came from is a mystery.

LATE WAR NEWS FROM EUROPE

By Associated Press Twelve Italian submarines from Trieste arrived today at Naples. The shifting of their base from the Adriatic to the Tyrrhenian Sea is attributed to the presence of the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

It is reported that the British Air Ministry is strengthening its air forces at strategic Mediterranean points, for any eventuality arising from the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

The concentration of British ships in the Mediterranean is being linked with suggestions of an economic boycott of Italy, in case they attack Ethiopia.

The League of Nations Ethiopian Committee has prepared a report suggesting the settlement of the controversy by the appointment of foreign specialists, approved by Emperor Selassie, to supervise police and other functions of the Ethiopian government.

Italian sources report the fact that Baron Aloisi, the chief Italian delegate, is remaining at Geneva is an indication that Mussolini has found the compromise plans unacceptable.

The Italian press charges that England deliberately wants war, in order to halt Italy's course. One paper says "already there is open menace." Because of a shortage in steel, old street car tracks are being torn up in Italian cities and shipped to foundries, as a part of the war preparations.

David Lloyd George, Great Britain's war-time Prime Minister, declared today "we are within a week, or at most a fortnight, of war—a war of aggression." Continuing he said "it will be as great a war as the attack by Germany upon Belgium, and it seems to me that the world is heading for a very great catastrophe."

Returns From Presbytery

Dr. John Angus MacMillan, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, returned Wednesday evening from Amarillo, where he attended the fall session of the Presbytery of Amarillo, of which he has been moderator for the past term. As retiring moderator, Dr. MacMillan delivered the keynote speech of the meeting, which was held in Central Presbyterian Church, "The Voice of America" being the title of the speaker's address.

Aside from the delegates from the various Presbyterian churches of the Panhandle in attendance, representatives of the boards of the church were present, including Dr. William P. Lockwood, secretary of the Board of Pensions, St. Louis, and Dr. George W. Fender, Synodical Executive, Arlington, Texas.

Legislators Define Saloon

AUSTIN, Sept. 19.—Eleven senators introduced one bill this morning, strictly defining and prohibiting the "open saloon."

The bill defined a saloon as "any place where intoxicating liquor is sold, bartered or delivered, to be consumed on the premises where sold or on premises accessible thereto, or any public place where intoxicating liquor is permitted to be consumed."

The wet blue bill proposing the licensing system would permit "cocktail bars" and the sale of mixed drinks in restaurants and like places.

The Senate passed, 19 to 6, a bill to appropriate $200,000 for the Supreme Court Memorial Building, conditioned upon a federal grant of $700,000. Senators Holbrook of Galveston and Woodruff of Decatur, introduced the delinquency tax collection bill prepared by the late Senator Arthur Dugran, of Little Rock.
