Cautious

Circumstances surrounding the Roosevelt-Hull demand for full adherence to world peace treaties make the experts suspect that it was a sort of "Me, too" utterance. It fell like an echo as well as a summary of our long-distance moves for peaceful solution of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

When Secretary Hull saw the press at 10:30 this morning, he expressed no official comment on Samuel Hoar's warning that Great Britain might fight, if need be, to make Mussolini behave. Then the noon editions brought word that Premier Laval of France had backed the British stand in a stirring speech at Geneva. It was not until the breakup of the Italo-French alliance seemed imminent that Mr. Hull called in the correspondents for an emergency press conference and distributed his formal statement.

Mr. Hull showed that he had profited from the experience of Predecessor Henry L. Stimson in the Manchurian affair. The United States stepped out as an orphan guardian of world peace that the British and French were with Japan & Co. were not following us. So now Uncle Sam serves as a private in the parliamentary army of the nations.

Grave

The Hoare-Laval-Hull crackdown has had a behind-the-scenes effect at Washington which may prove as strategic as events at Geneva. Trade and diplomatic and military experts are divulging secrets of the record which may eventually influence American and world opinion.

These indicate that Mr. Duce needs a foreign war to avert serious domestic trouble—and possible internal conflicts. He has invoked emergency measures which shock our observers, and only the fact that he has done them piecemeal conceals the significance. He has reduced corporate dividends to a maximum of six per cent, expropriated all surpluses and required Italian subjects to cash foreign securities for payment in lire. The inflationary trend is partly offset by increased industrial activity now, but if production sags for lack of a war Italy will be in dire straits economically.

Shunted

Although George Hanson's suicide on the high seas seemed to be entirely unrelated to great international moves, it casts new light on events affecting Washington, Moscow and Tokyo. It seems to bear out suggestions that the abrupt note to Russia about communist activities was dictated by President Roosevelt rather than Secretary Hull.

Hanson was one of the ablest men in the foreign service. Stationed in the Orient, he knew the habits of dives and diplomats of all nations. His confidential reports proved invaluable when Japan was pushing her troops into Manchurian fastnesses a few years ago. As promotion was transferred to Adia Ababa when Italy and Ethiopia clashed, but en route he was shunted to Salonika and he dies a broken-hearted man.

Relief Offices In Ellis Bldg.

District relief offices have been moved from the Fisher building on lower South Main street to the second floor of the Ellis building, Second and Main.

C. W. Pogue, district administrator, said that removal of the district office had been completed and that business was being handled on schedule now.

Moving of the Howard county relief headquarters from the same location to the building formerly occupied by Sam Fisherman across the street was progressing Tuesday. Transfer of commodities was making the change necessarily slow and very little office equipment has been moved.

Long Credit Aim Of FHA

The Federal Housing Administration is out to reform the mortgage market and make its principal commodity long term rather than short term credit, said R. E. Sikes, executive assistant director of the Fort Worth office, who is in Big Spring for remainder of the week in interest of FHA projects. He was accompanied by Victor Lindsey, also of the Fort Worth office, who is financial field representative. The two officials will be at Hotel Settles, where they will be glad to meet and explain any details of the FHA to any interested party or parties.

20-Year Loan Insurance Expected To Result In New Mortgage Market

The FHA can insure mortgage loans that will run as long as 20 years at five per cent interest, one-half of one per cent service charge, one-half of one per cent mutual mortgage insurance premium, total six per cent, in contrast with present mortgage rates, eight per cent and 10 per cent interest prevailing.

The FHA has established an underwriting office in Fort Worth for the purpose of making appraisals and caring for other legal processes through which a mortgage must pass. It also has stronger lending institutions as makers of insured loans in many cities.

Bodyguards Relate Story How They Killed Long's Assassin

Len Koenecke Attacks Pilot During Flight

Brooklyn Dodger Player Was Returning To Home From St. Louis

KILLED PLAYER IN SELF-PRESERVATION

Previously Refused Passage On Regular Schedule Of American Airlines

TORONTO (AP)—A melodramatic fight in an airplane high over Long Branch race track in the dark early Tuesday morning resulted in the death of Len Koenecke, outfielder of the Brooklyn National League baseball team.

William Mulqueeny, pilot, and Irwin Davis, assistant, who said they killed Koenecke in self-preservation, were charged with manslaughter.

Davis and Koenecke were locked in desperate battle, the fliers stated. Then, with the plane rocking and partly out of control as the pilot fought to keep one hand on the controls, Mulqueeny struck Koenecke several blows over the head with a fire extinguisher.

Koenecke got in the back seat on Mulqueeny's order, and Davis in the front seat.

In a few minutes Koenecke grabbed Mulqueeny by the neck. Davis got in the rear seat with Koenecke.

Davis yelled for help. Then Koenecke tried to get at Mulqueeny.

Davis hit at Koenecke with a fire extinguisher which Koenecke knocked to the floor.

Koenecke again made for Mulqueeny, who hit Koenecke three or four times.

The plane circled and landed in a field. Some damage was done to the plane.

Police arrived soon after.

A coroner's inquest was set for Thursday night.

Koenecke was one of several players sent home when the Brooklyn team decided to test new players.

Davis is called a "bat-wing jumper," and used a suit of his own invention which permitted him to fly under his own power after jumping from a plane.

American Airlines officials said Koenecke chartered a private plane after having twice been refused passage on a regular ship Monday night for creating a disturbance in a plane before departure. Officials said Koenecke was refunded his money and made to leave.

Old Age Pensions Question Opened By Texas Senate

Allred Submits Subject Of County Officers' Compensation

ASTIN (AP)—Governor Allred submitted to the legislature subjects of compensation for county officers on a salary basis and amending the Brazos river conservation act to conform to federal requirements.

The senate opened the question of old-age pensions by adopting a resolution calling for a form of census for persons eligible under certain restrictions.

The house adjourned until Wednesday.

Sharp criticism and defense of the national democratic party was sounded in the senate during Constitution Day addresses.

J. J. Helbrook, Galveston, said the party was taking a major move to undermine the constitution.

L. J. Sulak, La Grange, expressed surprise at "this slap at the president."

Speedy committee action on liquor legislation was in prospect. The senate state affairs committee scheduled a hearing on a bill to license private dealers and permit sales by drink under certain restrictions.

The house liquor traffic committee planned hearings Wednesday.

Bodyguards Relate Story How They Killed Long's Assassin

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Joe Messina, the late Senator Huey P. Long's favorite bodyguard, wept as he told a coroner's jury he killed Dr. C. A. Weiss, Jr., Long's assassin.

After hearing the testimony from Messina and other bodyguards who poured lead into the body of Dr. Weiss the night he mortally wounded the senator in the state capitol, the jury returned a verdict that Dr. Weiss died from wounds in the head, chest and abdomen.

Under Louisiana law, a coroner's jury is required only to decide the form of person's death and does not fix the blame in such cases. Further action is left to the prosecutor and grand jury.

"In a cowardly way, Senator Long was shot," Messina said as he burst into tears and was unable to go further for several minutes.

"When Weiss fired the shot I knew he (Long) was killed," Messina resumed.

"I ran up and unloaded my gun into Weiss. I ran up and shot the man who had shot Senator Long."

Murphy Roden, the bodyguard who grappled with Dr. Weiss as the eye specialist fired, told the inquest he fired ten shots at the assailant. Roden said he shot "to British cabinet ministers, comprising imperial defense committee, met for the fourth time in the month as British warships moved to strategic points in the Mediterranean.

At Geneva it was authoritatively stated the league's

The affair officially got underway Saturday and continued through Sunday and Monday, attracting many out of town Mexicans.

COACHES BEAR DOWN ON STEER FOOTBALL SQUAD

Scratched Up In Pecos Tilt

Bristow Takes Little Stock In Reports Abilene Weak This Year

Disregarding pessimistic notes from the Abilene Eagle camp, J. Gordon Bristow, George Brown and "Speedy" Moffett, the Big Spring Steer guiding lights, drove their charges at double speed Monday afternoon and kept the lads out kicking up dust long after the regular quitting hour.

The Bovine mentors were "aded" in their work by a number of side-line experts but hampered by the fact that the supposedly veteran and tough boys were well drubbed by Pecos' aggressive Eagle squad here Friday night. Some of the youngsters were in such battered condition as to require a little special attention. "Sleepy" Jones was thought to have received the worst injury—a broken finger.

A check-up revealed that only the center and tackles escaped the opening melee unscathed. However, most of the injuries were of only a minor nature and coaches expect all members of the club to be in fine fettle for Dewey Mayhew's Eagles here Saturday night.

Some of the boys received special conditioning work. The Pecos game revealed to the mentors that their hopefuls were in very poor physical condition—generally speaking.

Big Jim Cantrill, former Colorado Wolf coach, and now one of the most prominent grid officials in West Texas, watched the Bovines drill Monday afternoon and expressed the opinion that most of the rough spots displayed in the opener last week would be shaved off in time for the Abilene game. "Generally speaking, the boys look good," Cantrill said. Cantrill is to be one of the game officials.

Aerials have been stressed by the grid tutors, and fans will more than likely be treated to a display of plain and fancy air work Saturday.

Bristow has taken little stock in reports that Abilene will be very weak this year. "I have reason to believe," he said, "that Abilene will be a lot tougher than some of the fans figure."

MASKED MARVEL, DON HILL TUG AND TUSSLE TONIGHT

By HANK HART
 The Masked Marvel, whose home is many miles south of Ethiopia, scene of the present European difficulties, will carry on a personal battle of his own tonight, but with the odds in his favor as he steps into the ring against Don Hill of California in the Big Spring Athletic club's main event tonight.

Hill does not hail from Italy, and the Hood certainly 'can not be classed as an Ethiopian, but nevertheless an interesting fight can be expected between the two combatants.

Gun-play is not expected, and the two warriors will not be searched in anticipation of any knife-work, but the boys will go at it in every other way possible.

Hill will be fighting for something no other man has been able to do within the past two years, that of tossing the Marvel, while the Mysterious One will also make an attempt to ward off the illegal thrusts and blows of a determined matman.

The Californian, although good at drawing the crowd's jeers, is so adept at drawing groans and grunts from his opponents. The "excitor" never requires as to the legality of a hold, applying what ever he sees fit, and many times his chiro methods disagree with his rival.

But the Marvel has wiped them all and will rule the favorite on that alone as he discards his robe and steps in to lock holds with the West Coast boy.

Don Kent, Dixie Tiger from Tennessee, who has passed his first local test with flying colors, will attempt to solve a little more difficult problem tonight as he steps in as part of the semifinal attraction.

He takes on the vicious Jack Domar of Cincinnati, Ohio. The Ohioan will be a bit tougher than was Kent's opponent, Pat Dowdy, on last week's card, but Kent downed the Lubbock lad in six minutes and will probably hold his own against Domar.

Bob Cummings, Alabama Ace, and Johnny "La Rue" will get together in the curtain raiser for 20 minutes or less.

The Cummings-La Rue affair will open at 8:30.

Scores Birdie Without Getting In Fairway Or On The Green

Five people saw this golf shot of a life time and five swear to it, although it pains three greatly. Playing in a foursome, M. K. House achieved the remarkable feat of never having his ball in the fairway or on the green, yet birdied the hole. After the eighth and ninth had been halved, House's drive on the Myny No. 1 sliced into the rough behind a bush in high grass. He hit a hard iron to send his ball sailing toward the green, only to plow down in a sand trap. On his pitch-shot his ball arched perfectly, hit the pin 2 feet above the turf and dropped squarely in the cup without touching the green for a birdie three. No, they were not playing caddy penalties.

Locals Tough Back In 1925

Steer Team That Year Waddled San Angelo Bobcats, 6 To 3

EDITOR'S NOTE—Another of a series on Big Spring football teams of the past.

The 1925 grid representatives of the Big Spring High School accomplished something during that season that other Steer clubs have been unable to do consistently. They defeated the San Angelo Bobcats.

They journeyed to the Concho city to turn back the Angelos, 6-3.

Under the leadership of Alfred Collins, who at one time played professional football, and Frank Boyle, the Steers tallied a total of 121 points during the season, holding their opponents to 53.

Frank Segal, Lewis Rix, Roland Swatzy, J. T. and C. E. Johnson, Clyde McGinnis, Lloyd Watson and Harold Harwood were the mainstays of the '25 machine.

The Collins forces scored victories over Odessa, Roscoe, Angelo, Midland and Lamesa during that year and met reversals at the hands of Colorado, Abilene and Sweetwater.

Colorado decided the local team by a 15-0 count, and Sweetwater sked out a 6-0 win.

The Longhorns trampled Odessa 19-7, Roscoe 14-0, Midland 46-0 and Lamesa 21-0.

In the Angelo game, Harold Harwood had the honor of counting the winning touchdown.

J. T. Johnson, who with his brother, Perry, gave the locals one of its best remembered defensive teams, was elected captain during the season. J. T. was a back while Perry held down one of the guard positions.

Line Problem At Baylor Camp

WACO (Sp.)—At the end of the first week of practice Coaches Morley Jennings and Botchey Koch are confronted with quite a baffling problem in building a strong forward wall in the Baylor team. These first few days have, however, brought promise from the score of backfield candidates. With the sensational Lloyd Russell as the nucleus, the Bruin backfield promises to be one of the best rounded in the conference, although some of the prospects are lacking in experience.

At the helm of this backfield group will be Lloyd Russell, who proved his worth on Southwest conference gridirons last season as the slippery-hipped and mercury-footed Baylor ace. Russell, a one-year letterman from Oak Cliff, is a triple-threat man, being a runner of outstanding ability, a kicker of consistent distance, and a passer of remarkable accuracy. He is one of the mainstays of the Bear eleven and a great deal of the responsibility for the success or failure of this year's varsity club rests on his shoulders.

Hal Finley, a junior from Waco who was out most of last season on account of illness, is also back to add strength to the Bruin backfield. Finley's heretofore indifferent attitude has apparently changed into grim determination and the close followers of the Bear eleven are enthusiastic over his chances for the coming season. His running ability is his greatest asset, but his long-distance kicking and ferocious blocking made him valuable as an all-round performer.

Bob Masters, hailing from Comanche, and holding one varsity letter, is making an impressive bid for a regular half-back post. He is gifted with plenty of natural ability and is a driving tackle on line, plunges and off-tackle plays. He has great possibilities of rounding into one of the best ball-luggers in the conference.

Carl Brazell from Barbers Hill, though only a sophomore, is the most likely fullback prospect. He possesses all the requisites of a great back with weight, honest determination, and stamina. His defensive play is far above par, while his brilliant blocking is sure to aid their running attempts.

Steadily pushing these four men for their places are such young backs of promise as Chesty Mansker, 196-pound fullback from McGregor, Judson Moncrief of House, Doc Hosten of Dallas, Sonny Bartosh of Granger, and Charles Cronshaw of Birmingham, Ala. Moncrief, a limber-hipped speedster, is understood by Lloyd Russell, while Cronshaw is an excellent punter and a good blocker. Mitchell Parks of Elkhart, Bubba Gerand of Beaumont, and Bennie will furnish reserve strength for this backfield.

Dove Hunting Due To Be Good

Dove hunters here can start limbering up their pat firearms, state game warden T. A. Harris said Tuesday morning, as dove season for the north zone opens Saturday, Sept. 21.

Harris stated that dove hunting would be good this year, with the birds more plentiful than in recent years. He reminded that Martin county is closed on doves. Limit is fifteen per day or forty-five a week.

Duck season opens Nov. 20 and quail season December 1.

FT. WORTH TEAM REFUSES TO PLAY

Due to a misunderstanding over guarantee and failure to get Louie to agree to a game, Fort Worth Cats, Texas league baseball team on a barnstorming trip, refused to play the Big Spring Cowboys in Midland this afternoon.

The Cowboys are still trying to make arrangements for a game at a later date.

The Governor's cup, a new silver trophy five feet high, goes to the club winning the international league playoffs and will be fought for annually.

ADVANCE IN AIR AMAZING

An interesting glimpse at the amazing progress of aviation in the last quarter century came during the recent National Air Races in Cleveland, when it was recalled that exactly 25 years had elapsed since Glenn Curtiss made a "sensational" flight of 64 miles over Lake Erie to win a prize of $5000.

Curtiss flew from Cedar Point, O., to a landing field on the lake shore just east of Cleveland. Some 300,000 people lined the lake front to watch. He covered the 64 miles in 73 minutes, thereby setting a new world's record for over-water flight. The next day he turned around and flew back.

On the 25th anniversary of that flight, Ben Howard flew from Los Angeles to Cleveland in eight hours and 33 minutes, covering a distance of slightly more than 2000 miles for a prize of $4500.

By contrasting those flights, and by recalling that Curtiss' flight in 1910 made much more of a stir than Howard's flight in 1935, you can gauge the unparalleled development aviation has made in 25 years.

A LITTLE HORROR HELPS

Magistrate Thomas A. Aurelio of New York traffic court seems to have started something when he forced traffic law violators to listen to a reading of J. G. Furdan's little article "And Sudden Death," which contains a harrowing, realistic description of the way human beings are mangled and tortured in an automobile wreck.

Highway officials, police departments, and traffic courts all over the country sent for copies of the article and are preparing to follow Magistrate Aurelio's lead.

The idea is extremely sensible. Most traffic accidents grow out of infractions of the traffic code, and these in turn usually grow out of simple carelessness. If there is any way to impress on the minds of motorists the frightful consequences of such carelessness, may have—and this stunt might do it—the traffic toll should drop sharply.

A WORTH-WHILE SURVEY

The frontier of medical knowledge should be pushed back appreciably by one of the relief stunts presently to be launched from Washington.

Some 5000 unemployed "white collar" workers will go out during October to start ringing doorbells and asking people how they have been feeling during the last year. Before they get through, they expect to get a comprehensive idea of health conditions among fully 3,000,000 Americans.

Thus, for the first time in medical history, it will be known just how diseases and disabilities are distributed throughout the nation by geographical divisions, by age, by sex, and by occupation.

The U. S. Public Health Service expects this knowledge to be of vast importance. Here, evidently, is at least one case in which relief expenditures are going to bring in a worthwhile return.

Lima, Peru, was founded as the "city of the kings" by Francisco Pizarro in 1535.

District Teams Prep For Games

All three teams of District 3, Big Spring, Sweetwater and San Angelo, will see action this week-end. The Sweetwater Ponies, after a very disappointing start Saturday afternoon, will entertain Eastland on the Oil Belt.

The Oil Belt will also furnish opposition for the Big Spring and Angelo teams. The Ranger Bulldogs will journey to the Concho for a game Friday. The Bobcats have never been able to meet the Mustangs. Ranger took their measure last year, 19 to 0.

The big game of the week for West Texas fans will be the Abilene-Big Spring joust here Saturday night. Both teams are driving hard. The Steers and Eagles, old Oil Belt rivals, will meet for the first time in several years. Abilene coaches scouted the Bovines thoroughly Friday night.

Mustangs Face Tough Schedule

SWEETWATER (Sp.)—Sweetwater coaches have a busy week ahead of them as they prepare their charges for three tough games, starting Thursday when the Colts meet Colorado here, the Ponies journey to Hamlin Friday and the Mustang regulars take on the tough Eastland Mavericks Saturday afternoon on Newman High field.

The regulars may as well prepare themselves for a week of intensive drill. The coaches were none too well pleased with their showing Saturday afternoon against the strong Roscoe Pioneers. Both offensive and defensive departments of Mustang play will get attention during the week.

Colts Have Had One

The Mustang Colts are due for another bad one Thursday afternoon when they take on the tough Colorado Cubs of Coach Jim Reese.

The future Mustangs will have to show a great deal of improvement over their work at Rotan last Friday afternoon if they expect to do a great deal to the invaders.

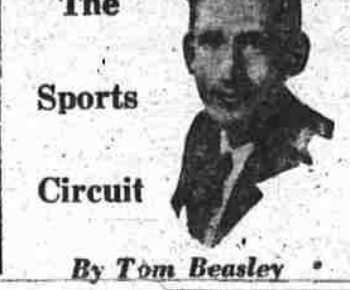

Ponies to Hamlin

The Ponies will trek to Hamlin for a game there Friday afternoon in a contest which is labeled as a tough assignment.

Eastland Defeated

Although Eastland was defeated 14 to 9 Saturday at Mineral Wells, the Mavericks are by no means rated as weaklings. The Mountaineers are being counted on as a team to watch in the District 7 sector.

Around And About

The Sports Circuit

ONLY FOUR Class A football teams in the state saw action last week, Big Spring and Sweetwater in district 3 and Quanah and Vernon in sector 5. Sweetwater was the only "A" team to lose.

TONTON COLEMAN, assistant San Angelo mentor, scouted Sweetwater last Friday and poked a little fun at Edgar Hennig, Pony coach. The two were walking off the field together after the game when Tonton remarked: "Things can sure change a lot in two or three years, can't they Hennig?" Moaned Hennig: "You bet!"

B. H. McLAUGHLIN, for a number of years a member of the district 3 executive committee, has been elected chairman of the district 3-B executive committee of coaches and superintendents.

ABILENE, AS expected, balked at the idea of joining district 3. Said R. D. Green of the Abilene schools: "We are on good terms with the schools in district 3. On the other hand, we have had a long, consistent and cordial relationship with all the members of the Oil Belt, and we want to keep it up."

WRITES PREXY Anderson of the Abilene paper: "Abilene, by the way, has a chance—mathematical only—to win the district 3 championship," anyhow. Beginning Saturday night, the Eagles on successive week-ends are to engage Big Spring, Sweetwater and San Angelo. On the same basis San Angelo may qualify for the Oil Belt title. The Bobcats are booked against Ranger, Abilene, Cisco, Breckenridge and Eastland."

SWEETWATER GRID fans have little to get excited about, writes Bob Cooke in the Sweetwater Reporter: "Well if the boys were not in the proper mental attitude Saturday—if they are going to get into one—now's the time for them to start. They have a tough row to hoe ahead of them for the remainder of the season. Certainly they will need to be in the fight when they meet such teams as the Eastland, meet such teams as the Abilene, Eagles, Ranger Bulldogs, Big Spring, Steers and San Angelo Bobcats."

FOOTBALL FANS are going to witness a lot of passing this season, according to scribe Cook. Colleges, as well as high schools, have adopted this method of attack in a big way all over the nation. This offensive weapon will change up the defensive tactics of teams too. When properly executed, the lateral pass is an effective weapon, but when it fails it's dangerous. It takes a great deal more work to perfect a lateral passing attack than it does a forward.

BUFFS OPEN AT CRANE SEPT. 28

STANTON (Sp.)—Stanton Buffaloes, with prospects for a fairly good team, will open their season away from home on Sept. 28—playing at Crane.

The Buffalo grid schedule: Sept. 28—Stanton at Crane. Oct. 6—Stanton at Odessa. Oct. 11—Stanton at Wink. Oct. 19—Open date. Oct. 26—Stanton at Pecos. Nov. 2—Open date. Nov. 9—Stanton at Midland. Nov. 16—Open date. Nov. 23—Moonshans at Stanton.

TECH TEAM TO WORK-OUT ON NEWMAN FIELD

SWEETWATER (Sp.)—The Texas Tech Matadors will workout on Newman field here Thursday afternoon, using Sweetwater as a stop-over point enroute to Abilene where the Matadors will play the Hardin-Stimmons Cowboys Friday night.

Coaches Cartman and "Dutch" Smith will take their Tech squad south.

MORNING STAR

— BY MARIAN SIMS —

Chapter 12

At the end of the first semester Emily found to her astonishment that she had been nominated for the executive council for the second half of the year.

"What on earth will I do?" she asked Charlotte in dismay. "I don't want to punish girls for doing things I'd probably do myself if I had the inclination and the opportunity."

They were in the "Soc." room at the library, studying for the midterm examination. It was peaceful and quiet among the books, and the shaded lamps made pools of light upon the tables.

"It would go on feeling that way if you were elected it would be the best thing that ever happened to the council; heaven knows there's a manumission lot."

"But you'd probably change. Being the governing class is like being in an automobile; when you're in the car a pedestrian is a worm of the dust, created especially to get in your way and slow you up; and when you're walking you think there ought to be a law against the wild-eyed maniac whose sole ambition is to get nowhere in a hurry."

"I think that's why government's popular; you lose the common touch."

Emily laughed. "In that case I'd better refuse to run!"

"Go ahead and do it," Charlotte advised. "I'll guarantee to keep you in touch with the common herd and take you down if you get high-hat."

For the end she had taken Charlotte's advice, and been elected Junior representative by a flattering margin. It was an illuminating experience, and she came back from the first "exec" meeting with an amused smile lurking about her mouth.

Charlotte grinned enquiringly. "Well?"

Emily flung herself upon the couch and contemplated the ceiling. The paint was peeling badly, she noticed, and she wondered idly when even the best southern colleges had to fight so hard against poverty.

"If I had a cigaret I'd smoke it," Charlotte understood. "So that's what the special session was about. Was there a definite victim, or was it the habit in general?"

"There was a victim, and she's camped for a month."

Charlotte lifted an eyebrow. "Only a month?"

"Yes. That was my influence. I almost made a scene, and I certainly disrupted the council's morale. I asked whose business it was if she did smoke and they were stunned. They said it reflected on the whole college, and I said, 'reflected what? They couldn't exactly say, because I happened to know that two of 'em smoke during week-ends off-campus, where it isn't against rules, but where it reflects even more. In the end she got one month instead of two, and I got a black eye. I don't believe," she concluded thoughtfully, "that I'm going to be very popular."

Charlotte grinned engagingly. "As long as you're unpopular there's hope for you. And the culprits, who are the majority, after all, will adore you."

Emily looked affectionately at her. The most valuable education she had acquired at Ardmore, she thought for the hundredth time, had come from Judith and Charlotte.

Commencement that year had seemed once more the end of the world. "What on earth will I do without you?" she demanded desperately of Charlotte.

Charlotte was carefully packing her books to be shipped home. In two years her library had changed its titles but not its character, and she bestowed far more attention upon its safe transportation than upon packing her clothes.

"She had stepped to read a paragraph in 'Marius the Epicurean.' 'Just what you've done with me,' she said imperturbably. 'Personally, I'm rather gratified with my handiwork.'

Like Judith, Charlotte would say goodby casually without flowers but the goodby would be none the easier for that. Judith's reaction could have put hers quite readily into words.

"The only way to show your respect for big moments" she would have said "is not to sentimentalize over them."

She was right of course. When the last box had gone and two fourteen Graystone stony empty of everything but its memories and its associations you knew that you had to treat the moment lightly in order to bear it at all.

Once more William was waiting with the car—another car this time a trifle longer and more shining than the other—and once more Emily was driving her room-mate to the station.

They had talked about plans for the future because you cannot look back in times like this without disaster; and made promises for letters and visits. Charlotte was trying for an advertising job in Birmingham and had an excellent change of getting it. Thinking of the freedom of such a life Emily felt a faint stab of envy and was suddenly ashamed of it.

"If you get the job" she said "it means you'll go to work at once?"

Charlotte nodded. "Have to. Do you realize infant that I've invested three thousand dollars of somebody else's money in my education?"

Emily felt suddenly useless and ashamed. "But you're going to write often enough to show me that I haven't lost you?"

Charlotte looked steadily at her. "Don't you know you couldn't lose me if you tried?" she smiled. "Don't look so mournful. Before you can catch a breath you'll be graduating yourself! And by that time I'll have been out long enough to show you the ropes."

The car drew up before the station and Charlotte laid a hand on Emily's. "Don't get out; park it out in the mounir, and I hate death-bed scenes."

And then she was out of the car and the broad back of William, who carried her suitcase, almost completely obscured her going.

As usual, Charlotte had been right. The next year was incredibly brief, and she remembered its milestones with casual pleasure. Wearing a hair-ribbon and a short dress on the day before you were invested, as a farewell to childhood. In vestiture, when you donned a cap and gown for the first time, and complained bitterly about your high collar. Senior privileges, when you come in late to breakfast, or took a bath after hours, when the rest of the school was asleep.

Intimacy with the faculty, when you held for so short a time the center of the Ardmore stage; when your parents were the ones who, as Judith had only Edwin. Hearing your name read out for Major Board, as one of those who had "contributed materially and spiritually to the upbuilding of the college," a designation that made you blush with a consciousness of your own unworthiness.

Senior Opera, which you wrote, with three other girls, and which was euphoniously entitled "Madame Buttermilk." Winning the fifty-yard free-style swim, thereby acquiring enough points to give your class the cup.

And, for the last time, Commencement, when you held for so short a time the center of the Ardmore stage; when your parents were the ones who, as Judith had said so long ago, sat around and noted. An eminent divine preached a brief and altogether charming sermon about the Changing Position of Women in the World, and a gorgeous amethyst ring glittered against his snowy vestments and distracted your attention.

And almost before it was over you realized that the class below you had pushed you off the boards, and that now they were The Seniors, who would occupy the stage and carry on the traditions that you had somehow thought of as your own.

"In a ramblin' wreck from Georgia Tech and a heluvan' engineer," sang the orchestra leader, and the stag line shouted lusty approval and stamped its feet.

In a few minutes the tung would be by the Washington and Lee Swing, and after that the Alabama schools would have their turn. And at each rendition the stag line would shout and stamp impartially.

Tomorrow the Elston Enquirer would describe the dance as "a brilliant climax to the many farewell affairs in honor of the college set." But to Emily this dance was poignantly sad.

It wasn't that she was unpopular. Her following never attained the unwieldy proportions of some of her friends', but it was almost constant. She danced exquisitely, even though she had never acquired the gift of casual flirtation, and the boys drifted to her as a travel-el-seeks a clear stream. They told each other that she didn't hand you a line, but you always knew where you stood.

Emily wonders, tomorrow, just what to do with herself—and with Edwin.

Brilliance, Variety And Beauty Keynotes Of New Lavish Musical, 'Hooray For Love' Ritz Feature

Personally Speaking

They sing the season's catchiest tunes, step its gay dances, tell Broadway's most happy-go-lucky success story in RKO Radio's tuneful, mythical romance, "Hooray for Love." Against a background of smart cosmopolitan sets is projected a regular episode of entertainment. Playing at Ritz Tuesday and Wednesday.

Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond play the leads in this charming story of two ambitious youngsters out to win in the toughest game in the world—the theatre. They try a little of everything, including night club performances and radio, before Gene finally manages to present Ann as the star of his first big revue.

In a great city's smartest night club, a stunning set featured by illuminated glass panels decorated in dancing figures, a glamorously gowned Ann sings the amusing nonsense song, "Palsy Walsy," accompanied by a chorus of twelve peppy girls.

Backstage in a New York broadcasting station, the world can see "how it's done," as Ann sings to a listening world the romantic air, "I'm In Love All Over Again."

Most fascinating of all, four great specialty acts are staged for the play's musical revue. Maria Gamberelli, world-famed ballerina, leads the ensemble in a graceful ballet.

Bill Robinson and Jini LeGon, against an amusing black and white Harlem background, prove to the tune of "I'm Livin' in a Great Big Way"—that they're the all-time leaders of the world's tap dancers.

Ann, gowned in shimmering black, takes the stage again to sing "You're An Angel" with a two- piano accompaniment. Here the performance is swung into a smashing finale, a gay whirl of dancing, singing girls in darling gold costumes, led by Ann in a golden gown. With the entire company they sing the theme hit, "Hooray for Love," bringing down the curtain for both revue and picture in a brilliant climax.

Comedy in the story is contributed by Pert Kelton, who is cast as a wise-cracking chorus girl, and by Thurston Hall and Georgia Calne in the roles of an oldtime thespian and a wealthy widow, respectively, and by "Fats" Waller, radio favorite.

Dorothy Fields and Jimmy McHugh, authors of such hits as "Cuban Long Song" and "Blue Again," wrote the score. Walter Lang directed.

NEW YORK
By JAMES McMULLIN
Pertinent—

Here are inside angles on two leading Republican presidential possibilities as reported by well-posted New York sources. As recently as three months ago Colonel Frank Knox told former Senator James E. Watson that he was not a candidate. Knox knows he cannot get the Illinois delegation because he is a former Bull Moose and because of the terrific fight he made on former Governor Len Small of Illinois when the latter was trying to stage a comeback. He has also been told he would have trouble coralling the delegation from his native state of New Hampshire because of the bitter scrap he once had with ex-Senator Gallinger.

New York rates it a pertinent question whether any candidate can get far without the support of either his native or his adopted state.

Potential—

Months ago certain influential New Yorkers of the financial crowd had their eyes on Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa. They wanted to meet him and asked a former U. S. senator to arrange a dinner so they could look him over at close range.

Two days before the scheduled dinner Dickinson voted for the soldiers' bonus. His prospective hosts called the former Senator and told him to cancel everything—they weren't interested in anyone who would go for the bonus at this time. A little later the intermediary ran across Dickinson and reproached him for taking a stand on the bonus which would ruin his chances for the presidency.

Dickinson replied that he was only a potential candidate for president but a real candidate for senator from Iowa—and the soldier votes count out there. Political observers now believe—with payment of the bonus assured early next year—that Dickinson's support of it will be disregarded in considering him as a candidate and will help him if he is nominated.

prove who started them. The recent increase in volume of trading has lured a number of old-time speculative wizards and skilled manipulators back into the market. They aren't so afraid of getting caught when there's so much going on. Transit securities aren't the only ones whose action of late indicates revival of the come-on racket designed to trap unwary suckers. Chrysler and Radio Corporation—for instance—have registered fluctuations which strongly imply a practiced hand at the helm. It remains to be seen whether the string pullers can be smoked out.

Nightmares—

Wall Street was much intrigued with the news that the Van Sweringen plan to bid for control of their own former empire when their forfeited collateral is auctioned off by J. P. Morgan & Co. acting on behalf of a group of banks. Insiders say this can only mean that they have found a new financial backer—as otherwise they would have nothing to bid with but their own votes. The wonder is to New York—that anyone would be willing to stake them again. Certainly none of the banks now involved intend to do so. Odium of Atlas Corporation is the one man likely to step into the situation. If they do bid they will probably get what they're after. The only competitor in sight is Lenor F. Loree of Delaware & Hudson—and he's not certain. It would be a masterpiece of irony if the Van Sweringens—perfect examples of the Old Deal philosophy in action—should make a comeback at this stage.

One thing sure—J. P. Morgan & Co. will not bid in the defaulted collateral itself. The firm has had quite enough of Van Sweringen-Allegheny nightmares and will be only too happy to get rid of them permanently.

Pill—

President Gay of the New York Stock Exchange recently commented in a speech on the increased social consciousness of business leaders. He attributed it to the effects of the World War and to improved means of communication.

New York observers wryly remark that he might at least have tipped his hat to the New Deal. They are cynical enough to doubt that the factors mentioned by Mr. Gay would have made any difference whatever had it not been for the continuous cracking of FDR's whip over the heads of those who would have much preferred to go on thinking solely in terms of profits.

Big industry has never swallowed a bitter pill than the realization that sometimes the destinies of the country are steered by popular vote instead of by the power of

Outstanding American Stage Comedy
"Three Men On A Horse," Comes To Big Spring Saturday Evening, Oct. 5

The outstanding American comedy stage success running on Broadway and the smash hit of the current Chicago theatrical season, "Three Men On A Horse," comes to Big Spring Saturday evening, Oct. 5, for one performance only at Municipal auditorium, under auspices of R. & R. theaters. Sponsored by Alex Yobel, "Three Men On A Horse" is proving the greatest financial success in the realm of stage entertainment and money.

Sidelights—

Undersecretary of the Treasury Jeff Coolidge won't be chairman of the new Federal Reserve Board. New York signs but hopes he will at least be named a loan member. The British are going in heavily for Diesel locomotives. Both for their own and South American use. One thing—marine disasters have accomplished. A seaman has to earn his lifeboat ticket now.

before summer passes will be used in five key cities of the United States and will be played by companies both in England and Australia.

John Cecil Holm and George Abbott, the authors, have hit upon an amusing farcical idea in "Three Men On A Horse" and what is more they have developed it entertainingly. The story of this laughing hit concerns the adventures of one Erwin Trowbridge, a mousey individual who earns a modest livelihood by doing rhymes for greeting cards. But this mild little man possesses another talent of far greater value to the world than the jingle business. Just for his own amusement Erwin has figured out a way to beat the races. He never plays them but his mental bets win every time, and on paper his profits are enormous. Erwin has a quarrel with his wife, falls into the hands of gamblers, and up the ladder he goes with laughs on every rung. The situations are soundly human as well as funny and the romantic touches are sure. The representative cast of Broadway players include Chester Clute, Sheldon Leonard, Elaine Temple, Gordon Rhodes, Edward Craven, Frank Otto, Muriel Campbell, Edward Nannery, Robert Griffith, Albert Webster, J. Albert Moss, Mary Murray, Otis Schaefer and others.

New Passenger Car Registrations Off In Month Of August

AUSTIN—Registrations of new passenger cars in Texas during August declined substantially from the previous month but increased moderately over the like month last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Reports from fifteen representative Texas counties show total registrations of 4,783 cars, a decline of 12.1 per cent from July but an increase of 6.4 per cent over August last year. For the first seven months sales totaled 41,513 cars, an increase of 20 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago. The best showing in comparison with a year ago was made in the sub-intermediate and highest price brackets, the Bureau's report said.

SHE FELT MARVELOUS WHEN HABITS BECAME REGULAR

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Relieved Her Constipation*

Read this splendid letter: "I tried everything; with little or no results. I felt miserable, was 20 but looked much older, and my skin was continually breaking out. I decided to try ALL-BRAN, three meals a day for about a week. Elimination became regular; I felt marvelous and looked better. Even my outlook on life was changed."—Mrs. Armand Hamel, Pawling, N.Y.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. It also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle. More effective than "bulk" in leafy vegetables, as it does not break down within the body.

Isn't this natural food pleasanter than patent medicines? Just eat two tablespoons daily. Chronic cases with each meal. If not relieved, see your doctor.

comrades during the recent Key West hurricane. They brand the Williams-Ijams report as a "white-wash" and have conducted their own investigations through Florida representatives. Extremists propose condemnation of the handling of the 1935 bonus army. They may also denounce legislation barring vets with peace-time ailments from government hospitals, especially as injured CCC boys receive such care. They have heard that many beds in federal institutions are occupied by CCCers.

Precedent?—

New Deal textile investigators are patting themselves on the back over their success in checking imports of cheap competing goods from Japan. So far it is the only achievement of the sub-Cabinet committee named by the President to look into the industry's problems. It was impossible to negotiate a formal treaty with Tokyo because oriental production costs are so low that diplomatic dickering was out of the question. Other nations would have kicked or taken advantage of the terms accorded to the Japanese. But after a few private talks Nippon graciously agreed to a "gentleman's agreement" under a Japanese government imposes a quota on the amount of goods its manufacturers may ship to the United States.

Japan's acquiescence is more significant than appears on the surface. For years we permitted immigration of Japanese under the same kind of a "gentleman's agreement." Then in 1924 we barred them by statute, thereby affronting the sensitive orientals. Questions: Is Japan simply turning the other cheek or will she eventually cite her conduct now as an example for us to follow with respect to repeal of our immigration laws?

Practiced—

The transit stocks are especially tempting meat to shrewd professional operators. The city is forever talking about unification. Every time it does so rumors get around—which makes it simpler for a smart "rigger" to induce the public to bite. It's against the law to spread such rumors—but try to
