SWINEBREEDERS MEETING SUCCESS

Program Rendered as Published, Good Attendance and Many Instructive Lectures and Talks.

The meeting of the Panhandle Swine Breeders Association held here Friday, March 25, was well attended and a most instructive and interesting session was held. The program was rendered as published and the following resolution offered and passed:

Resolved that the members of the Panhandle Swine Breeders Association in regular session assembled at Memphis, Texas, recommended that the state of Texas make a sufficient appropriation to give the Swine Breeders of Texas a protection similar to that enjoyed by the cattle interests in the prevention and spread of disease.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Harry A. Nelson of Sulphur Springs.

Secretary-Treasurer—W. H. Alexander of Childress.

Memphis fully maintained her reputation for hospitality, a good dinner being served to the visitors.

The meeting of the County Demonstration Agents, held on Saturday, was well attended by the agents, practically all being present but a small number of local people were out because of the exceedingly disagreeable weather.

Count y Agent Midkiff announces that he has a number of farmers' bulletins on hand for distribution to those who desire them. Accidently Hurt.

Edward Norwood was painfully injured Tuesday afternoon while assisting in loading a piano at the depot here. A string of switch cars struck the car into which he was attempting to place the piano. He was thrown some distance falling upon his head which was wrenched and hurt.

Mr. B. F. Kling left Wednesday morning where he will use the water in the hope of relieving rheumatism.

HALL COUNTY GETS MONEY

Hall County Schools Get $3,400 From $1,000,000 State Fund, Nine Schools to Get Help.

Judge Alexander informs us that the following Hall County schools have received the amounts named as their share of the $1,000,000 fund appropriated by the last legislature to aid county schools:

Ell, District No. 2	$500.00
Hulver, District, No. 5	$500.00
Newlin, District, No. 7	$500.00
Brice, District, No. 12	$500.00
Pleasant Valley, No. 15	$400.00
Turkey, District, No. 19	$100.00
Lodge, District, No. 25	$500.00

The Lakeview and Indian Creek schools have been promised, subject to conditions that will be compiled with, an appropriation of $500.00 each.

This is probably the best showing made by any county in the Panhandle, as the schools in many localities were unable to participate because of the lack of local interest necessary to meet the requirements of the law.

MULE-FOOT HOG IS NOT IMMUNE

This Hog is Hardy and Thrifty But the Idea That it is Immune From Cholera is Fallacious.

Having seen frequent statements recently to the effect that parrots in various localities are importing Mule-Foot hogs and that they are immune from the ravages of dreaded disease, to the hog raiser, cholera and being naturally incredulous we have gone to some trouble to look the matter up. We find that all responsible authorities agree that the supposed immunity of this breed is a popular fallacy, which probably had its origin in a sort of superstition and which easily gained wide-spread publicity without refutation because of the scarcity of the breed.

These hogs, which have an undivided hoof, similar to that of a mule, are a hardy and quite thrifty breed; but for general purposes they are easily surpassed by half-dozen or more standard breeds and have been bred principally because of their peculiar hoof; although the men who breed them often insist that they are best, particularly for range hogs because of their extreme hardiness, and freedom from the ordinary diseases afflicting high-grade hogs is often claimed for them.

Numerous well-authenticated instances of these hogs being afflicted with cholera makes it certain that they are not immune, though they may be somewhat less susceptible to ordinary disease than other hogs.

U. D. C. Meeting.

The U. D. C. had a very pleasant meeting with Mrs. Broome Friday afternoon. A very interesting program had been arranged but it was not used as the attendance was small, due to sickness. After discussing the subject, the hostess served a tasty ice course.

The Chapter extends to Mrs. Fielding a cordial welcome as a new member. Chapter will meet with Mrs. Roykin Friday, April 28. Following is the program:

"Memorial Day in the South"

- 1 "Who First Suggested Memorial Day?" Relate the incident.—Mrs. Wheat.
 - 2 "Why Were Memorial Days Formed in the South? Why Were Ladies' Aid Societies Organized During the War Between the States?"—Mrs. Whaley.
 - 3 "In What Respect Does the Work of the U. D. C. Differ from that of the Memorial Association?"—Mrs. Rouse.
 - 4 "Why Was April 26 Chosen for Some States?"—Mrs. Wright.
 - 5 "What Should be Done for the Veterans on Memorial Day?"—Mrs. Gates.
 - 6 "Who First Suggested the Cross of Honor?"—Mrs. Wilson.
 - 7 "Music: Selected"—Mrs. Baskerville.
 - 8 "Reading"—Mrs. Sexaur.
 - 9 "Social Hour."
- HISTORIAN.
- Swat the early fly.
Swat him in the neck;
For if you don't,
He'll swat you, by heck!

The Fly Is the Enemy of the World!

Remember that next Saturday is clean up day! The value of this work depends upon the thoroughness of its execution. Don't skip any places where flies may breed. One fly killed now means thousands less to kill this summer. Put your trash where it can be easily reached by the city wagons, and thus facilitate the work. Don't forget to BE EXTREMELY CAREFUL ABOUT FIRE. The recent enormous losses to other Texas towns by fire are terrible warnings. Don't take chances! if you must burn trash take every precaution. Do not burn anything except early in the morning and be sure the fire is entirely extinguished before night.

ADVERTISE IT IN STATE OF TEXAS DISTRIBUTION OF VACCINE

Manufacturer and Jobber Should Practice What They Preach.

As a farmer and friend of the manufacturer and merchant I want to suggest an "Advertise it in Texas" movement. The manufacturer and jobber may blow loud blasts on the horn of patriotism, but if they will put an "ad" in the newspapers in their trade territory, making a business presentation of their goods, they will find it far more effective than waving the Star-Spangled Banner. The farmer is as much interested in the price of the things he has to buy as in the price of the things he has for sale, and the advertising columns of his newspaper are his price list. The price is the thing, and the farmer wants the figures in cold type.

The press is the most powerful agency for progress the world has ever produced. We have all sorts of days calculated to promote business and honor industry such as Trades Day, Bargain Day, Labor Day, etc., and why not have a press day, and all business concerns advertise the things they have to sell, and everybody subscribe to the local paper and all delinquents pay a year in advance. There is nothing so elevating in civilization as the smile of an editor and nothing will contribute more toward the welfare of a community than the prosperity of the press.—Peter Radford.

Tax Defeated in Childress.

In the special election held in Childress county last Saturday for levying a 3-cent tax to provide funds for improvement of the fair grounds, the tax was defeated, lacking nine votes of the two-thirds majority needed.

INTEREST SHOWN OIL AT LOCO

Prospectors Are Making Oil Leases in Childress County Community.

G. H. Crawley of the Loco community southeast of town was here Monday and in a talk with the writer tells us that there was considerable interest aroused in his section over the fact that a number of oil prospectors have recently visited that section and since have come in and leased up a large area, the lease contract calling for a test well in a given time. Mr. Crawley has some splendid holdings in the neighborhood and was thinking for a while of selling out, but now says he is not in such a hurry about it. At repeated times for years past reports have come that the oil indications were splendid in that particular section of the country and no one will be greatly surprised if it should prove a very productive field.—Wellington Leader.

BIG FIRE AT PLAINVIEW

Administration Building and Girl's Dormitory of Methodist School Destroyed by Fire.

Plainview, Texas, March 29.—Fire starting in one of the small outhouses at Seth-Ward College at 3:00 o'clock this afternoon destroyed the girls' dormitory and the administration building, entailing a loss of approximately $55,000 with insurance to the extent of $12,000. A high wind from the northwest fanned the flames and caused the rapid spread to the other buildings. Furniture moved from the dormitory to what was thought to be a safe distance, was reached by the flames, and also destroyed.

C. Wolters, the Hall county tree-planting enthusiast, and one of the best farmers in this section, paid us a short call while in town yesterday. Mr. Wolters had just received a photograph from Germany of a nephew and a niece, brother and sister. The nephew, whose name is Charles Wolters has been serving in the present war and was twice wounded, he is now engaged in helping to guard one thousand Russian prisoners confined in the front at Asberg. Mr. Wolters said that he once occupied this fort as one of a force of five hundred and that they were badly crowded so that he knows the Russians must be pretty closely packed, unless the fort has been enlarged.

Educational Pictures to be Used.

The Hulver High School management announce that arrangements are being made for pictures of educational value and that this class of films will be used almost exclusively in the future. An occasional comic production will be shown, to hold the interest of the children; but only pictures of instructive value will be used in making up the main program.

New County Office Automatically Created by Returns of County School Census.

County Judge Alexander tells us that the incomplete returns of the county school census make it certain that there are in the county more than the three thousand scholastics necessary to the creation of the office of County School Superintendent. In fact the returns already in show more than 3,200 and there may be several hundred in excess of this number.

The law makes it mandatory upon the commissioners' court to provide for the election of a county superintendent of public instruction when the scholastics in a county reach the number of three thousand. And provides that the court shall appoint a man for this office until the succeeding general election.

In this case it is probable that the court will make no appointment until after the July primary election, when they will, doubtless, appoint the successful candidate to serve until his election in November.

We understand that there are already a number of potential candidates and there will probably be a lively race for the place.

PEOPLE WROTH AT CONGRESSMAN

Exchange Telegrams With Stephens Condemning His Failure to Support President's Policies.

To judge from the following telegrams, and from editorial expression in the Vernon Record, the people, or some of them at least, in the home town of Congressman Stephens are very wroth with their representative because of his attitude toward the President's preparedness program.

The telegrams, which are self-explanatory, follow:

"Washington, D. C., 3:12 p. m. preparedness bill passed by a vote of 183 to 191. Speaker Clark voted with us against the big army. We may now get an appropriation for our Vernon Federal building, provided we can also vote down the big navy bill when it comes up."

"JOHN H. STEPHENS."

"Vernon, March 23, 1916.—Your message to McColloch received. Vernon people are not willing to barter their birthright for a mess of pottage in the form of a two by four postoffice. We favor preparedness along lines indicated by the President. Champ Clark is not our representative. We expect you to perform that service and stand by President Wilson."

Culture Club Entertains.

The Woman's Culture Club was hostess to the members of the Wednesday Study Club, The 1913 Club, The Harmony Club, and a few other friends, at the Library Wednesday afternoon from 3:30 to 5:00. The guests were greeted at the door by members of the club and, later, as they were invited into the main auditorium, they were met by the president, Mrs. Quigley, and the social committee, Mrs. Bryant and Dial. Pot plants, lilacs and violets were everywhere; punch was served and the following program rendered:

- Greeting—Mrs. Quigley.
- Roll-Call
- Current Events.
- Piano Duet—Thornton and Houston.
- "General View of Child Labor"—(a) Mental Aspect—Mrs. Neely. (b) Moral Aspect—Mrs. J. M. Montgomery. (c) Physical Aspect—Mrs. Frank Finch.
- Piano Solo—Mrs. Robertson.
- "Texas Laws Protecting Women"—Miss Byrd Whitely.
- "The Women Prisoners in Texas"—Mrs. Whaley.
- Miss Billbro contributed a viola solo that was much enjoyed.
- Cake and brick cream, in club colors, lavender and gold, were served.

Good Advertising.

A. A. Glisson, traveling passenger agent for the Denver, was here Friday and made this office a pleasant call. The Denver is making an effort to interest investors, who are seeking homes, in the territory adjacent to their road and have recently put out some valuable advertising in the form of neatly printed booklets. These present, in a conservative manner, the advantages of each section; stressing those distinctive in each county. Hall county has a good, and truthful writeup in this booklet.

Price of Gasoline Cut.

Twenty-five to forty per cent by new invention. Twenty-five gallons for $1.00 made possible by its use. Gasoline or Carbonoid is the gasoline saver and the carbon cleaner. If used according to directions it will do the work. Price $1.00. Sold with a money-back guarantee. Put up in crystal form in strong tubes. Can be sent by mail. Am offered a good big block of territory, but want to know its merits by first having home people try it out, and give me an unbiased opinion. An early trial will be appreciated.

Yours truly,
R. W. TALLEY,
Clarendon, Texas.

The kidneys often cry for help. Not another organ in the whole body more delicately constructed; Not one more important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

Resolutions of Respect.

To the Officers and Members of Memphis Grove 803.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect on the death of Sovereign Marie Perryman, who was a member of the W. O. W. Circle.

That we, as faithful Sovereigns, personally realize that one has been removed from our midst, whom we shall greatly miss.

That we shall miss her council and cheerful presence.

That we are reminded that we pass this way but once, and whatever good we do, must be done now.

Therefore, we are called to mourn with those who mourn and weep with those who weep. We truly sympathize with the sorrowing husband and children, mother, sisters, brothers and many dear ones, and point them to Him who doeth all things well. Believing that he can bring good even from this sad affliction.

That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes and made a part of the records. That a copy be furnished the husband, under seal of the Memphis Grove 803 and a copy to each of the Memphis papers.

Respectfully submitted,

Mary E. Jones,

How the Castle Was Saved

By F. A. MITCHEL

One traveling in Germany is impressed with the number of ruined castles he sees everywhere. These castles belong to a period when the German emperor was much more of a figurehead than he is now, and the nobles were each and all independent owners of one of these castles and a small quantity of land surrounding it. The reason why the castles were all built on high ground was that they could be more easily defended.

The baron lived by levying tribute on merchants who passed here and there beneath him. Leaving his stronghold he would swoop down on some luckless trader and either carry off his merchandise or levy tribute in cash. The only real fighting the barons did was with each other.

One of these nobles, Baron Rudolph Gothall, was growing old when he married, and a daughter, Bertha, was born to him. When her father was too old to fight any more Bertha, who inherited masculine bravery with feminine traits, seemed to consider it her part, since she had no brother, to take his place. She began by putting herself at the head of a force who sallied forth to exact tribute from a party of merchants. She had been told that since her father owned a narrow strip of land over which the traders must pass she had the right to make them pay for the privilege. She acquitted herself so well on this expedition that she thereafter was acknowledged as commander of her father's vassals.

From a little girl born in times when arms for those of rank was the only profession Bertha had learned the art of defense. Something in the construction of her eye, in the nerves, or perhaps both, rendered her remarkable in fencing not only for a woman, but for a man. There was no strength in her success. It was all art. Often of an afternoon in the castle court she would challenge some one of the men to a friendly contest with foils and would usually come out victorious.

The age and decrepitude of the baron led his younger neighbors to believe that he would be an easy prey and that his domain might be appropriated. They knew that he had no son to take his place and that there was no one to defend his castle except a girl, and, although they had heard something of Bertha's exploits, they did not deem her a competent adversary. There was one young man who through the death of his father came to his inheritance very young. His domain adjoined that of Baron Rudolph, and as soon as his father died he proposed that the two estates should be made one by his marriage with Bertha.

The truth is he had seen Bertha and had conceived a passion for her. It was as much his desire to possess her as to unite the two estates. One morning he rode up to Baron Rudolph's castle and sent in word that Count Stinzel desired an interview. He was admitted, and Bertha, who was at a window when he rode into the court, saw him. Baron Rudolph promised to submit the proposition to his daughter.

The answer Bertha gave was that she would accept Count Stinzel for her husband on condition that the ownership of the two estates should be decided by a friendly contest between them with foils. If the count proved victorious they should both belong to him; if Bertha won, they should both belong to her.

The young count could not very well decline such a proposition if he had wished to do so. He would become the laughingstock of all the country round about. But he had no desire to decline it. He was as well skilled in the use of arms as the average man, and if he could not win from a woman he considered that he should deserve to come under the feminine yoke. He sent word that he accepted the challenge on the terms offered.

Bertha being a woman, the count agreed to fight in the court of her father's castle. He came on the day appointed for the contest with a number of his principal retainers. Bertha came into the court in a fencing costume that was very becoming. She and the count met at a table on which two copies of the contract were placed and signed them in presence of witnesses. Then they proceeded to the center of the court, and the contest began.

From the first the count's movements in contrast with Bertha's agility seemed a trifle heavy, though it was evident that the strength was all on his side. As to that something we call skill, which is really in the physical makeup of the fencer, it was all on the side of Bertha. It had been embodied in the rules governing the contest that victory should consist in the first one to touch a red heart fixed to the left breast. Suddenly the count's foil flew up in the air and left him defenseless. All Bertha had to do to win was to press forward and touch the heart on her adversary's breast with the button of her foil. Instead, she dropped the point of her weapon to the ground and her eyes at the same time. It was apparent to all that though she had won the victory she would not take it.

The count stood looking at her for a time; then, walking forward, took her in his arms and kissed her, a shout arising from those who witnessed the scene.

The two estates were united under one head and thus saved from those who would have conquered Baron Rudolph Gothall.

PREPAREDNESS A QUESTION OF NECESSITY

FROM INCOME AND INHERITANCE TAX SHOULD BE UTILIZED FOR DEFENSE.

By J. S. Cullinan.

Three important subjects which the Economic League has listed for first consideration are Citizen Administration of Justice and Preparedness. Probably the most important of these is Preparedness.

It is a triangle and Preparedness is the corner stone. Administration of Justice and Citizenship are the components with Preparedness as the base. We prepare there will be no Justice, no government.

President is now passing a supreme test of efficiency for the citizen to say what he thinks of government. In my opinion government should do more than collect taxes and maintain law. It is the duty of government to protect its citizens on land and sea, and our government has no right to refuse to do so, than a citizen has a right to refuse to pay taxes. It is not a question of opinion, but of necessity, but no nation can protect its citizens unless it has a government.

President is correct in his policy of preparedness and protection. A thoughtful citizen can afford to ignore the national peril through inaction. When our government is not prepared for liberty and freedom of its citizens to go by default, it has violated its pledge to the people, as well as its duty to liberty and freedom.

Government without force. A nation's sheriff is nothing more than a debating society, and a modern government without an army or navy is a help to the people.

Men are animals—not angels. They have and they always will have the causes of war will never be removed until the human race is destroyed. Human nature cannot be changed from mankind, for in every generation will be born again. Many political causes have been advanced for wars. There is an old adage that following a dance the world will either pray or die. The League is not at the moment concerned in the psychological aspects of war, as stern realities demand attention, for the liberties of a citizen guaranteed by constitution have been denied our Duty to Protect Citizens. Government is organized physical and without force there is no government. No man can peacefully enjoy a thing of value unless in a manner he can defend his title to it. Our government denies the right to use force, and in doing so the individual enters into a contract to protect the rights of a citizen by force, and, if necessary, to destroy persons or nations who interfere with the rights of its citizens. It has no option in the matter of its first obligation.

Nation is facing a world crisis, world opportunities. The death of the human race are at the door more nearly in the hands of American people than any other people, and our government has adopted a policy in dealing with the world of civilization that will result in permanent world peace. No other continent is concerned, in the twenty-one Republics should be organized for: First, protection. Second, each should assign not exceeding ten per cent of its population to army and navy duties. Third, at least sixty per cent of the population of each such Republic should be trained to military discipline; such training period should exceed two years, to be held as reserves in case required for the defense of their continent.

It would further seem highly desirable to apply to the United States the principles he made Federal policies; such, for example, as the Monroe Doctrine, which no State should be permitted to depart after such have been approved by a majority of the people.

President's plans, as I understand them, call for an investment of $1,000,000,000 over a period of five years. I do not think that is sufficient. It is to me we should shape plans for continuing expenditure, if need be $5,000,000,000 for such period, co-operating with the other American Republics, and possibly Canada, adopt a policy of spending dollars with the balance of the world for the purpose of defense, promoting liberty, life and property, much less cost than under the modern powers as now existing.

In my judgment, should be used and use the revenue from income and an inheritance tax for the purpose of retiring these military training for our young people, and a provision for our first defense, the Navy, substantially increasing our Army, and providing

The Danger of a Government Secret

By ALAN HINSDALE

Long before the pan-European war I was in Berlin. I had especial social advantages there since a cousin of mine was married to a man occupying a confidential position in the foreign office. Her husband was very much in love with her and was used to telling her state secrets that came under his notice—of course with the understanding that she would not reveal them.

It is hard enough for men to keep secrets, but it seems harder for women. One day my cousin told me a state secret that would be immensely valuable for publication. I needed funds and would not have hesitated to sell it but for the fear of implicating the person from whom I received it. But on this account I had no thought of doing so.

But I did not guard it as I should have done. I had received considerable favor socially from Caspar von Hulig, a young German, and we had become very chummy. One evening while we were drinking wine together I broached the subject to him. He at once asked where I got my information. This brought me to my senses, and I threw him off the track by hinting at a source entirely foreign to my cousin. The same evening she sent me a note by her maid, disguised, telling me that the foreign department had become aware that its secret had got out and was hunting for the leakage. I responded that I had not implicated her and she would do well not to do anything to cause a suspicion that I had obtained the secret through her.

From that moment I was conscious of being watched. I have since thought that I would have been arrested had it not been that the government was bent upon deceiving me into revealing the source from which I had obtained the secret. I refrained from any mention of the matter to Von Hulig, for I now knew that he was a secret servant of the government.

Fearing that I would be thrown into prison I determined to make an attempt to leave Germany. Had I known the workings of the German secret service as I do now I should have had little hope of evading those who were watching me. However, I was well aware that no attempt to leave German territory would be successful unless well considered and carried out with great care.

I was but nineteen years old—not surprising to one who has read thus far in this story—and in juvenile theatricals had usually been assigned girls' parts. What little beard I had was very light, and a good shave and plenty of powder concealed it. My chief difficulty was to secure women's clothes.

I had been used to seeing my cousin quite often and thought it best to continue my visits. I went to see her, told her that I was about to light out and asked her if she could secure me a woman's apparel for the purpose. She was not much older than I and, being frightened, scarcely knew whether to consent to my going or not. She finally concluded that if I could elude those watching me I would better go and promised to send me an outfit. She sent it by her maid, an Austrian, who was of great benefit to me. She brought me the clothes in the middle of the night and gave me a letter to her people in Vienna, stating that I was a friend of hers who was going to Austria to seek a position as ladies' maid. She also brought me a woman's passport.

In the morning, dressed as a girl, I left my room. On the opposite side of the street a man was loitering and I did not doubt that he was watching the house for me. He seemed not a bit suspicious of my being a woman but I thought it best to meander for a while through the streets before going to the station.

I had no adventure between Berlin and Vienna, though during the day a man passed through the train, scrutinizing the passengers. But he must have been looking for a man. At my rate, he paid little heed to me, and as soon as he had gone I breathed freely again. I have no doubt as soon as I was missed from my rooms every train that had left Berlin after midnight was scrutinized.

When I left Germany and crossed the Austrian border I felt very nervous until after my passport had been examined; then I felt that I had a chance for success. Nevertheless there was plenty of espionage in Austria and I would not feel out of the woods until I had passed down into Italy, where I hoped to find a steamer at Genoa sailing for America.

I lived a week with the family to whom I had a letter and would have stayed longer had not a young government clerk fallen in love with me. This drove me out, and I made for Genoa and escaped to the land where nobody is watched.

My cousin never learned whether she was suspected of giving me the government secret. She never even heard that I had eluded my followers except from myself, though when I wrote her from home I dare not mention my flight. Soon after the episode her husband was removed to a department of the government where there were no secrets that he could tell his wife.

It was evident that my cousin had been suspected of giving me the secret. Doubtless the government, having proof against her, preferred to prevent her stirring again without seeing her.

FROM THE PANHANDLE TO THE OZARKS IN A FORD.

Interesting Story, Written by Memphis Young Lady While With Father and Mother on Trip.

Monday, July 20.

On the road again early Monday morning, we hoped to reach Morrilton for breakfast. Papa's nephew, Roy Norwood, lives there so we hoped to see him while there. On account of a little car trouble that we could not determine, we did not reach Morrilton until about ten o'clock, hot and hungry. We engaged breakfast, at a restaurant, which was being prepared while papa took the car to be examined. While waiting Roy appeared and gave us a pressing invitation to come home with him. We told him we had not eaten breakfast and did not like to go in on people at that time of day for breakfast. As we already had it engaged at the restaurant we decided to fulfill that engagement then accept Roy's invitation. Well! Very much to our joyful surprise the breakfast consisted of ham, eggs, potatoes and baker's bread, incidentally what we had been used to eating on camp, and in hopes of having a really table meal had gone restaurant for the first time—and were served with such royal diet!

Well, Roy came in and sat and talked with us while eating, after which we accompanied him to the home of his mother and step-father, Mrs. and Mr. Childress. We spent a very enjoyable day with the family, seven in all as Mr. Childress had two very sweet girls living with them, Misses Mary and Ellen Thomas. Ellen is about my age so we proceeded to become acquainted and certainly enjoyed each others company. I assure you we were entirely ready to eat again when noon came and all feasted on the most sumptuous dinner, grace with peaches, grapes and melons, which made us realize that Arkansas can truly rank with Texas in furnishing good things to eat.

We waited until about two o'clock that afternoon, during which time papa was having some work done on the car which proved to be the first serious trouble our faithful little Ford had yet given us. One of the front springs or shock absorbers, one of our recent equipments, had been broken and also the rod on the back axle. But finally getting things in running condition again we started for Little Rock, about eighty miles distant and hoped to make it that night, as we were anxious to see our relatives that lived in the city, as well as Bess and Grandmother who were then visiting there.

It seemed to me that that half day was twenty-four hours long! We did have a little trouble with the engine as the spark-plug had given out and would not vibrate until finally Marvin said he would put in a new one and then we made up for all lost time. The roads were very good, considering the pine and cedar forests, that we wandered through, and we saw some good crops as well as poor ones, until finally we were unable to see much of anything but the road in front of us. About six-thirty we inquired of a pedestrian the distance from Little Rock that we then were and learning we had ten more miles to travel we were determined to sleep in the city that night.

On nearing the suburbs it had become so dark that we stopped and lighted our car lights, then made our way into the city enjoying the beautiful sights that a city affords at night. We inquired for directions into the city and how to find Cumberland street, the street of our destination, and found out that we had to cross the bridge over the Arkansas river which led into Main street. When we reached the bridge what a splendid spectacle met our eyes! There were at a distance the various and numerous factories all lit and at work; straight ahead of us was the most beautifully lighted street that I ever looked upon, that shone as bright as day and for miles in front of us; beside us were the noises of the street cars and automobiles of every description; and lastly, but not less beautifully, sounded the melancholy murmur of the old Arkansas which made a noise of loneliness compared to the busy city we were approaching.

Oh! we had forgotten for a moment while amazed at the scenes before our eyes that we were nearing our destination and had to inquire concerning the street on which our folks lived. When we had picked our way across one street and down another eagerly watching for the one that bore the name of Cumberland, we finally reached it and before we knew it had passed the house in ignorance in which were our folks, who were as anxious as we. Finally becoming so impatient and uncertain that we stopped and inquired where T. K. Murray the newspaper man, editor of the Arkansas Democrat lived, and were directed to the old C. home home which was better known. At last! we arrived, all anxious, excited, and tired out, we were greeted by Ethel, Bess, Grandmother, and James who were "holding down the house" while Aunt Cary and Uncle Murray were gone walking. We had not more than gone into the house and a few explanatory words, having been made until in walked Aunt Cary and Uncle Murray very agreeably surprised to find us arrived at that time of night.

As one might suppose, we did not retire with the chickens that memorable night, but it was drawing near mid-night when the lights were all put out. We certainly were tired and sleepy and truly enjoyed sleeping on a bed once more.

Tuesday, July 21.

The next day we were indeed glad to have our car in the large and beautiful city of Little Rock, to enjoy sight seeing at our own leisure. Papa took the women folks out the first part of the morning while we girls cleaned house and entertained ourselves as we pleased, then when they returned, about ten o'clock, we rode while mama and Aunt Cary prepared dinner. The city had a brilliant and splendid appearance at night, but it seemed still more vividly picturesque in the natural light of day. The beautiful streets with the magnificent residences; the cool and inviting parks; the hugely charming public buildings such as school buildings, churches, business houses, the old and new capitol buildings; and the spacious old cemetery, the burying ground of the old Confederate soldiers, all filled us with a feeling of awe, wonder, and profound admiration, helping us to feel more surely our appreciation of the opportunity that we were enjoying.

We returned about two o'clock and found a hot dinner awaiting us. The rest of the afternoon we spent pleasantly talking and just "being together again". We also made arrangements to run over to Hot Springs the next day, Wednesday, and take in what sights and experiences that we might happen upon. We all retired rather early that night.

Wednesday, July 22.

Early Wednesday morning, about eight o'clock, papa, Marvin, Aunt Cary, Mama, Bess, and I started out for Hot Springs, about fifty miles from Little Rock, leaving only Grandmother and Uncle Murray for the day. We had heard that the road was good so hoped to be in Hot Springs in a few hours. We not only found that the road was quite rocky but when we had gone about ten miles inquired if we were on the road to Hot Springs and learned that we had come the wrong road for about ten miles, therefore, causing ourselves to have to go back to the city and start again as well as having lost about an hour or more of our good time. Starting again on the pike road leading out from the city we made real fast time, until when we reached the county road we had to almost pick our way through the dense forest and rough, rocky road. Many times we were misled by forked roads and no signs to direct us, so we lost our way three times—worse than we had done on our whole trip

Finally we were aware that dinner time had caught us still on the road, and we were becoming quite ravenous. We finally reached a little country town and bought some canned goods and crackers, (not having prepared a lunch as we hoped to reach Hot Springs by noon) so we satisfied our hunger with a dinner from "tin cans and paper bags," and started on our way again, only to find the road ahead of us still worse than that which we had passed. At last we reached Hot Springs about two o'clock p. m. and truly found that it was rightly named. We were hot and tired and at that hour of the day were very thirsty. On inquiring directions to aspring or watering place we were told that we could find them any and everywhere in the city which we soon learned was true as groups of people could be seen

"THE MAN TRAIL"

Man in the Raw, Red-Blooded and Filled With Love and Hate.

"The Man Trail," Essauay's six-act photoplay adapted from the recently published novel by Henry Oyen, the author, is red-blooded drama of life in the raw. It deals with the rough and rugged characters of the logging camp, men of primitive passions and the cave-men method of obtaining their desires and disposing of an enemy.

Nothing in the world is so thrilling as a man hunt, and this is so the story of man hunting down man to kill; a relentless, pitiless stalking of the quarry and a battle to the death.

RECRUITS WANTED.

Captain Robert Houssels Returned From California to Secure Men for Border Service.

Captain R. S. Houssels returned the first of this week from California and is busily engaged looking for army recruits in an effort to bring the local militia up to full war strength, 190.

Captain Houssels would not be at all surprised if the United States is in for a campaign of several months before Villa is captured, nor would it be unnatural in his judgment if in the end, the Carranza forces should either desert or kill their chief and then Mexico present a solid front to the United States.

It is thought that there will be little difficulty in getting the number of recruits in readiness at Crowell, men wanted. Something like thirty others are waiting at Chilleothe, Estelline and Wellington, and yet others are being recruited at Quanah under the direction of Lieutenant Wiley—Vernon Record.

Resolutions of Sympathy.

Whereas, It has pleased the all wise and divine ruler of the Universe to remove from the home of our brother, C. E. Perryman, his beloved wife and help-mate, Marie Perryman.

Therefore, be it resolved by Ell Lodge No. 833 I. O. O. F. that we hereby extend to our beloved brother and his children in their great misfortune our sincere love and sympathy and that we extend to him every aid and comfort within our power. That we commend our brother to our loving Savior who alone can console and comfort in such hours of trial and grief.

Be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be made a part of the record of this lodge and a copy be furnished the local papers.

Fraternally submitted,

- S. L. McKEE,
- BAKER JONES,
- E. M. DENNIS.
