President's Pen Launches Renewed War On Crime

Powerful new laws against crime went into effect as President Roosevelt signed seven bills to crush outlawry, with the statement, "This is a renewed challenge to interstate crime," and called for public co-operation in ending lawlessness. Shown with the president as he affixed his signature are, left to right, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation; Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Arizona, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee; and Joseph B. Keenan, assistant attorney general.

RAINS GENERAL OVER COUNTY LAST NIGHT

Two Inches Reported Near Ogden Ranch; .40 Inches Here

Rainfall in Memphis last night amounted to .40 inches and added to the already comparatively wet month of May.

Good, soaking rains were reported today as having fallen all along the line north of Memphis on Highway No. 5. All busses arriving in Memphis from the north were using chains.

One and one-half inches of rain were reported as having fallen at Clarendon.

The rain extended to Estelline with a small shower reported there, but it did not get so far south as Carey. Spotted showers were reported east toward Wellington.

The best rains in Hall county fell around the Ogden ranch and around the mouth of Indian creek. Two inches fell there, adding to the inch and one-half that fell recently.

Light showers were reported at Plaska and western territory, with slightly heavier rain in the northwestern section of the county.

An average of approximately 2.80 inches of rain has fallen over Hall county this month.

Farms over the entire county have benefitted from the recent rains, and planting is well under way.

Jewelry, Watches Valued at $500 Stolen Last Night

Jewelry and watches with a retail value estimated at approximately $500 were taken from the show window of the Charles Oren jewelry store in a bold robbery here last night.

One or more persons pried a lock completely loose on the front door, which faces Main Street, and entered the store.

List of Articles
According to Mr. Oren, all the valuables were taken from the show window.

The loot included two white gold pocket watches, two jewel strap watches, one white gold place case, two yellow gold cases with metal bracelets, a small diamond scarf pin, two diamond rings, one initial ring, one blood stone ring, three men's ruby set rings, four women's set rings, one engraved handle knife and one string of pearls.

Mr. Oren said that two strings of pearls were in the window, one of far greater value than the other. The cheaper string was stolen but the valuable one was left behind.

The robbery was discovered this morning by "Lefty" Griffin, who noticed that the door to the jewelry store was open. V. L. McGlocklin at the City grocery store nearby notified Mr. Oren.

DONNA of the BIG TOP by BEULAH POYNTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY DONNA GABRIEL and MADELINE SIDDAL who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are trapeze performers with Renfro's circus.

When Madeline's grandfather, AMOS SIDDAL, asked her to spend the week-end on his farm she persuades Donna to take her place.

Two weeks later, Donna falls from the trapeze and is taken to a hospital, badly injured. Madeline sends word to Bill that "Madeline" is ill.

Bill arrives and tells Donna that as soon as she is strong enough he is going to take her to the farm.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX

"'Twouldn't surprise me if we never saw hide nor hair of Bill Siddal again," Mrs. Planter said, emphasizing her words by planking a dish of string beans boiled with bacon on the table before her son.

He grinned slyly, exposing tobacco-stained teeth and a cavity where two molars were missing. "That'd suit you proper, old lady, eh? With that young upstart out the way you'd about do as you please with the old geezer. Huh?"

"Friend! I reckon you've been paid and paid plenty for everything you've done. You're too smart a woman not to git everything that's comin' to you. Listen, Mom, if you hitch up with the old man, what are you goin' to do for me?"

Mrs. Planter scowled. Since babyhood she had pampered and spoiled her son, destined from birth to be a ne'er-do-well and all-around rascal.

The rural delivery postman driving a shiny new car, appeared at the bend of the road, in a lusty genial voice he called a greeting

Nub grinned slyly, "With that young upstart out the way," he said, "you'd about do as you please with the old geezer, huh?"

"That you, Lem?" the aged man answered. "How are you?" "Letter for you, Grandpop. Seems you're gettin' right smart lot of mail these days. How's your granddaughter that's with the circus?"

"Fine, Lem. Jest fine." Lem sprang from the car, sprinted up the tree-shaded path and handed the letter to the old man.

"Want I should read it to you, Grandpop?" he asked kindly. "If you'd be so good, Lem?"

"It's from Bill. I seen him the day he went away. Asked what his hurry was and he said, 'business.' Some stepper, Bill!"

"Madeline! Read it, Lem. Read it!" Slowly, dwelling on each word, Lem Holden read Bill's letter informing Amos Siddal of his granddaughter's injury.

"Tears streamed down Amos Siddal's wrinkled cheeks. "God is good," he mumbled, "My little girl, my little girl!"

Donna's recovery was almost miraculous. Her perfectly trained body responded to treatment in a way that amazed the doctor, but little Miss Saunders, with her romantic eyes, saw more clearly than the physician.

formers and explained why it is necessary.

"Maybe circus people ain't so good Bill, but they are sensible. A girl can't be having affairs and keep a clear head. Cocktails and wild parties would make accidents so common that they could never keep the performance schedule.

"And yet in spite of everything accidents do happen," Bill said. "Yes, We play with death all the time and when we get too fearfuls something happens."

Aside from what she told about her own life, the "strange people" interested Bill most. He thought it horrible that such monstrosities should be exhibited to the public and felt they should be cared for by the state.

"Why, they're happy Bill, I mean happier earning a living than they could be any other way. Most of them never think of their afflictions. They have a separate life from us. They love and marry and have children. They make their fortunes and retire and unless their abnormality is caused by disease never really suffer.

One of the sweetest women I ever knew was a freak! Her whole life was a poem of unselfishness and sympathetic understanding and love. She never married but she mothered several generations of circus kids.

"Couldn't the doctors do anything for her?" Donna laughed. "Her fat was her livelihood. Maybe she did try to reduce in the beginning, but when I knew her she was always trying to take on more weight. She didn't mind it."

But Bill was not Donna's only caller. Some of the townfolks, drawn partially through curiosity but more through kindness, came to help pass the tedious hours.

During the second week of Donna's stay in the hospital Bill often found her surrounded by young girls eagerly listening to her tales of the circus and most of them ready to risk life and limb for the opportunity to win applause as a circus performer.

Lulled into security, Donna almost forgot her own identity. When she was with Bill she felt she was Madeline. Only once did she come close to giving away her secret.

She had begun to tell him of her father's death and the narrowness of this escape made her watch her tongue more carefully than ever.

She wondered what Madeline's father and mother had been like. Madeline had said once that she resembled her mother but she had never shown Donna a photograph.

An enlarged portrait of Roscoe Siddal hung in the farm house dining room but it was a crayon atrocity and Donna discounted it as a likeness.

Madeline's father had died of pneumonia and his wife had lingered for years afterward, making her home with her father-in-law. That was all Donna knew.

If she was to carry on the masquerade for an indefinite period, she decided, Madeline must supply more information. If only she could write the other girl! She could not ask anyone else to put down the questions that were puzzling her and it would be weeks before Donna could use her right hand.

Two short, cheerful notes had come from Madeline but they contained almost no news. There was nothing about Madeline's state of mind, the real cause of the accident, or any reference to the deception she had forced on her partner.

The notes did speak of Con David. He had a new cat—a huge, untrained tiger that was a beauty. Con was taking Madeline to dinner almost every night now. Had Bill arrived yet? "Do have Bill or someone write to me," Madeline wrote. "I'm frantic for news."

The day Bill announced to Donna that they would depart for the farm on the morrow she summoned courage to ask him to write a letter for her.

Her voice was low and strained as she dictated: "My dear Donna:—Bill and I are leaving for the farm tomorrow. I have to go on a stretcher and I understand they will have to shove it through the car window to get me inside. It will be good to get out of the hospital. They

"Your loving partner, Madeline."

Bill addressed the envelope without directions from Donna. He carried a little route card in his pocket and knew without consulting it where the circus would be the following week.

Wood and Water.
For a more permanent camp it is of course, advisable to choose the site with greater care, especially keeping in view the proximity of wood and water. Pitch the tent preferably on elevated and slight sloping ground and avoid hollow places. If possible, choose a partly shaded spot near the open. Never choose a site near dead timber or dense woods, to avoid fire danger as well as insects.

Each member of a party should have his or her allotted task. Thus while one gets out the tent, erects it and prepares the cots and bedding another will get the stove (if one is used) ready, and unpack the pots, pans, dishes and food, while still another, if there are that many in the party, will hustle the wood, light the fire and bring the water. Should there be a fourth member, it should be his or her lot to wash the dishes. The main thing is that everybody be a "good fellow," willing to do his share.

Banking the Fire.
When retiring at night, bank the fire. Do not leave a big fire burning without constant attention, as sparks or embers may be carried some distance by a sudden gust of wind and be the cause of incalculable loss in forest or crops. When leaving camp drench water on the embers and cover with earth. Always leave the camp site clean and ready for the next occupant.

To those who do not count the cost, a leather coat, short or long, according to taste, or a leather vest, may be recommended. In the Middle West, country schoolhouses, with good water at the pump and a stick of wood available for the fire, make good camp sites. Interest Mounting in Cotton Classing School

26 STUDENTS IN CLASSES HERE TWICE DAILY

Classing and Stapling Is Stressed By J. W. Doremus

Twenty-six Hall county farmers, ginners and local men have availed themselves of the opportunity of learning something more of cotton by enrolling in the governmental cotton classing school being conducted twice daily at the Foxhall Cotton classing room here and are attending the sessions of the school.

J. W. Doremus, senior cotton classing authority and a representative of the government cotton schools, is in charge of the school here.

Interest Shown

Considerable interest is being shown in the school here, and it is thought that an effort will be made to make the school into an annual affair.

According to Dr. Doremus, no assurance is to be had that the school can be made into an annual affair, but in all probability a school will be conducted much on the same order as the present one here next year.

Meets Twice Daily

The school is made possible in Memphis this year through the co-operation of Frank Foxhall, a number of local ginners and James A. Jackson, county agricultural agent.

The school opened here Monday and will meet twice daily, at 9 o'clock in the mornings and at 1 o'clock in the afternoons for the remainder of the week.

Show Progress

Classing and learning the staple of cotton is being stressed at every session of the school, and the cotton students are showing progress in grading the cotton, Mr. Doremus stated.

All who are interested in learning more about cotton are invited to attend the classes of the school.

nor of the state and other notables are present, a play is given.

The governor realizes that the action is taken from the life of a convict who is about to be executed. After protests he allows the play to continue. It has been arranged by the sister of the condemned boy, who, in the play, presents additional clues and proof that her brother is innocent.

Excellent Mystery

In the carrying out of both plays, the audience is given an excellent mystery story, one that Mr. Rath spent weeks in writing and interviewing policemen, detectives and convicts, themselves, in order to give his story a realism that could not be obtained in any other manner.

The story is replete with exciting and entertaining situations, and each character is well portrayed by a well chosen cast.

According to Mrs. Marshall Allen, director, this is the most unusual production the Little Theater has ever undertaken, and it is likely to prove the biggest hit.

Cast Committees

All stage settings and properties have been made to comply entirely with the requirements of Rath, giving an exact reproduction of prison surroundings.

The cast of characters:

Gasoline Tax Law Increases State's Revenue 20 Percent

By Associated Press

AUSTIN, May 22.—The new Texas gasoline tax enforcement law rounded out its first year of operation with a 20 per cent increase of revenue to the state during the first quarter of 1934, the Texas Good Roads Association announced from quarterly figures of Comptroller George H. Sheppard. Combined gasoline tax collections of the months of January, February and March exceeded the total for the same period last year by $1,269,872, the comptroller reported. This brought the full 12 months' decesses to more than $4,250,000 above the previous period.

Misses Annie Ruth Williams and Virginia Carlisle and Raymond Higgenbotham and Richard Henry of Chillicothe were Memphis visitors Sunday. Bobbie Clark accompanied them home and will be the house guest of Miss Williams this week.

CANYON, May 22.—A chair of archaeology will be established at the West Texas State Teachers College, according to a decision made by the state board of teachers college regents this week, and Floyd V. Studer, of Amarillo, best known archaeologist and paleontologist of Northwest Texas, will be director of the work which will be done in the Panhandle field.

Regent J. E. Hill, of Amarillo, has made a study of the possibilities of valuable work in this subject and he showed the value of the new undertaking to other members of the board. President J. A. Hill expressed his delight that the board had taken this action which will mean so much to the Canyon college and to the Panhandle Plains Historical society museum.

Dr. Hill also announced that the board of regents had approved his budget for the coming biennium and stated that he asked for no buildings and for only minor improvements.

The most delightful sight in the world to a real housekeeper is a kitchenful of bright, shining pots and pans, each qualified to do its special task to perfection.

This lovely efficiency pre-supposes, however, a very special kind of care on the part of the housekeeper. For aluminum, enamel, glass and pottery all require different treatment to be at their best.

The popular aluminum is available of course in many brands and weights. Naturally, the heavier the metal the longer it will last but all aluminum wares well and is light to handle. A good scouring powder easily dissolves stains.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Shredded fresh pineapple, cereal, cream, crisp broiled bacon, bran bread toasted, milk coffee.

LUNCHEON: Casserole of vegetables, rye bread and cheese toasted sandwiches, chocolate cup cakes, stewed rhubarb, milk, tea.

DINNER: Fillet of founder baked in tomatoes and onions, spaghetti timbales, stuffed beet salad, sour cream raisin pie, milk, coffee.

If you remember that alkali is the darkening agent for aluminum, you can care for it accordingly. The best equipment is a neutral soap for washing, wood for scouring (half a clothespin for cleaning and a wooden spoon for stirring during the cooking) and very fine sandpaper or steel wool for scouring with thorough scouring and wiping.

Care For Enamel Enamelware requires gentle handling since hard knocks make it chip. Nor will the average stand intense heat without checking, which leads eventually to chipping. However, it has little tendency to discolor and stains are easily removed with any good scouring powder. Wood must be used for scraping and stirring in enamel ware, too, because metal scratches the glaze of enamel and makes dark streaks. Hot soapsuds, thoroughly scalding and drying keep this material at its best. If food sticks and burns let the pan cool before putting water in it. Then soak and scrape off the burned particles with wood. If the burning was bad and some of the spots obstinate, melt a small amount of fat slowly in the pan and scrape again.

College Regents will hold its summer meeting at Canyon August 10 and 11 on which occasion Mr. Studer will take the members to a site of ruins of a prehistoric civilization. All presidents of Texas teachers colleges will be here also to confer with the board.

Glass is popular for ovenware and requires no special preparation if it's one of the brands particularly constructed to withstand the strain of expansion and contraction. The glass measuring cups mixing bowls and miscellaneous dishes used in the kitchen will wear better if they are immersed in a panful of cold water and brought slowly to the boiling point and boiled for five or ten minutes. Let cool in the water. If you would keep your glass clear and shining wash in hot soapsuds, scald and dry. If food sticks it usually will soak off.

"Seasoning" Iron Utensils Iron utensils often are covered with a thin coating of some sort of shellac when shipped from the factory. This must be removed and the iron "seasoned" before using. First let the utensil stand for several hours in water in which washing soda has been dissolved. Wash in warm soapsuds and dry. Then rub with unsalted fat and let stand in a warm oven for two or three hours and then heat to the smoking point. Let cool and wash in hot soapsuds, scald and dry. Rub well with fat for the second time and heat slowly and thoroughly in the oven. Wipe off the surplus fat with a soft crumpled paper and the utensil is ready for use.

Country Club Golf Preparing for Battle

HARRY GRAYSON

New York—The worst judge of a fighter is a fighter. Plainly, being bumped on the beizer doesn't improve the sight. A wallop amid the whiskers may fill the noggin with stars, but it's not conducive to clear crystal gazing.

Well, to cut third base and get in there, Tony Canzoneri and Bill Petrolle predict that Barney Ross will out-gallop Jimmy Larnin in the sunken garden of Queens on May 28. Canzoneri and Petrolle happen to be the young men on whom Ross built his reputation.

Indeed, the Lollapalooza of the Loop won the 135-pound crown from Canzoneri on a highly debatable decision and duplicated the performance under the same circumstances.

But, after all, these boys are fighters.

Hear ye! Hear ye!

Now, let's listen to their managers, and it just so happens that they were—and are—handled by two of the smartest men in the game.

Says Sammy Goldman, who handles Canzoneri, and who handled Pete Herman years before him:

"The managers of Ross made a grave mistake in going out of the lightweight champion's class. McLarnin will end the battle with the first good right hand he lets loose. I don't believe in handi-capped matches. I always disprove of a McLarnin-Canzoneri match, although Tony wanted it."

Says Jack Hurley, who piloted Petrolle to a fortune:

"Ross' managers made a poor match. McLarnin is a sure winner by a knockout. Ross is an over-rated boxer. McLarnin is one of the greatest of present-day fighters. He outclasses Ross in both boxing and hitting skill."

"Many believe that McLarnin knows nothing about boxing because of his many knockouts. But on many occasions Jimmy has shown his boxing skill to such decided advantage that it was almost impossible to believe that he packed dynamite in his fists. Boxing and dynamite in fist seldom go together."

"I know all about McLarnin. I handled Petrolle against him three times. I was Young Jack Thompson's chief second when the negro made the officials draw a very fine line to decide in McLarnin's favor in Madison Square Garden."

"I happen to know that McLarnin injured his right hand in the second round of that fight, yet he continued throughout the ten rounds and outboxed Thompson, a great boxer, with a brilliant display of jabbing and bluffing tactics."

Lend an Ear To Tony
But I don't want to close this without giving Canzoneri his say. After all, he fought Ross 25 rounds. Listen to the Marlboro farmer:

"Ross is a lightning-fast, aggressive boxer, who makes very few false moves and is hard to hit solidly. He always is on the move, advancing instead of retreating."

"Dangerous swings generally land around his neck and shoulders, whereas if he assumed retreating tactics these swings might land on a vulnerable spot. Ross is shifty, game, can take a solid punch without flinching, and should be able to maneuver himself out of dangerous corners."

"The year's layoff that McLarnin went through will not improve his judgment of distance. If Ross goes through the 15 rounds without making a serious mistake, he will find the fight an easy one to win."

You now have the best minds on the subject.

Presbyterians Move Into Tie With Christians for 2nd Place in Loop

In a thrilling, hectic battle yesterday afternoon, the Presbyterians staged a last-inning rally and overcame the Christians, 10 to 9, thereby climbing into a tie for second place with that team.

The contest ended in some confusion, as Chauncey Thompson, scorer of the winning tally, took two bases on a passed ball to do so. Manager Burleson and the boys were of the understanding that only one base could be taken on a passed ball. However, the rule book revealed that, in this instance, the runner was entitled to as many bases as possible, since the ball was not obstructed by a car or other obstacle.

Each team hit plenty but not hard; that is, blows for more than one sack were scarce. Carl Melear tripled once, and doubles were made by Jack Norman (2) and Burleson.

If any one man of each team could be said to be the star for his side, the shortstops would undoubtedly get this recognition. "Snooks" Andis, the famous ex-quarterback of the Clarendon Bronchos of a couple of years ago, and "Red" Lampkin played these positions for the Christians and Presbyterians, respectively. Andis was easily the outstanding fielder for his side, and Lampkin was the center of admiration for his speedy assists and spectacular catches.

Pitcher Jack Norman of the invaders turned in the best day at the bat, with Lampkin, Melear, and Allen Grundy following.

Thursday the Christians are seen again for the third consecutive time, the Baptists being their guests. The latter, which is a team composed of heavy hitters, are endeavoring to add to their league lead.

MEMPHIS OWLS WITHOUT TILT THIS WEEK

Lefors Cancels Game Here Sunday For Go With Pampa

The Memphis Owls again find themselves without competition on the baseball diamond.

A game scheduled here Sunday with the Lefors Oilers has been cancelled. The Oilers started their ball club this year. The underlying idea behind the club was to develop one that could equal the oil company teams of Pampa and Borger.

The Lefors crew, after signing for the tilt here, got their first shot at Pampa. To them that is stepping into the big-time because it is the thing they've been seeking. Therefore, when they requested that the Owl game be cancelled so that they might play Pampa, Manager Jack Boone consented.

This left Memphis without a single tilt for this week, but if attempts to obtain competition bring results, they'll have half a dozen or more.

The Owls are asking for an Amarillo team, especially wanting to regain their winning streak against a club from that city, but the result of this request will not be known for another day or so.

receives the weight. The right arm swings straight through, and the right side turns through so that the player faces the line along which the ball has been aimed.

Handsome Noy Crabb will appear as Robert in "The First Night," Little Theater production at the high school auditorium tonight and tomorrow night. He had a small part in "The Best People," but he will be remembered and liked in his role opposite Miss Shirley Greene.

ADMINISTRATION FRIENDLY WITH CONNALLY

Should Be Returned To Senate, Says Claude Wells

BY CLAUDE WELLS (Democratic Staff Writer) WASHINGTON, MAY 22.—Re-

There is now no question in the writer's mind as to the favorable attitude of the administration and the Senate for Connally's return to the Senate.

From the days of the Republic, these voters have made it a point of honor to support the reelection of the able servants who by fidelity to the common welfare and faithful performance of duty proved themselves worthy of national confidence.

In the forthcoming Democratic primary, Texas can contribute effectively toward a continuation of the great recovery program by nominating Senator Connally for a second term.

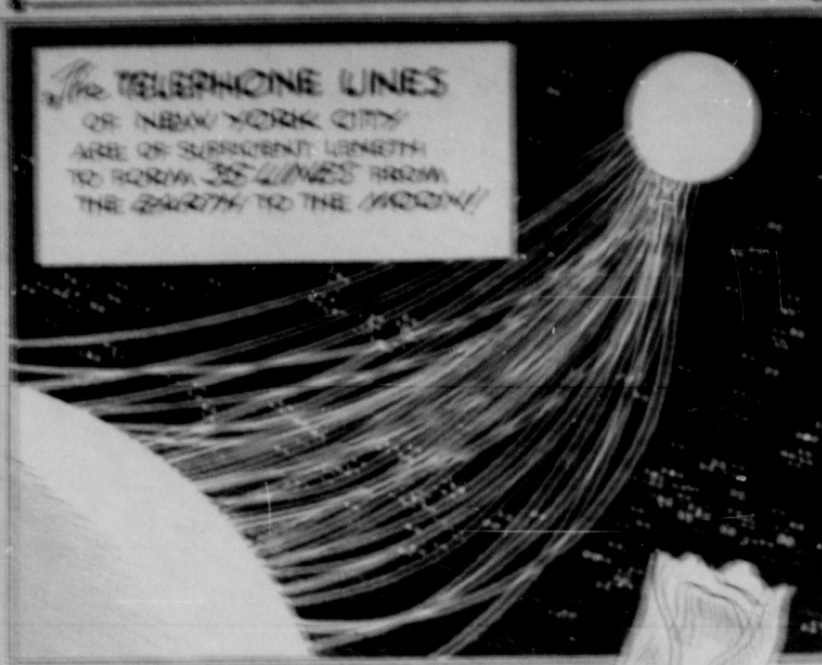

The writer is confident that the highest esteem by the citizenry will be bestowed upon the distinguished statesman who has so ably served the people of Texas.
