ASK EX-RELIEF MEMBERS SIGN THE NRS ROLLS

Residents Formerly on Relief Urged Qualify WPA Work

Residents of this vicinity who have jobs at the present time but who were on the county relief roll last May should call at the local NRS office, located above the First National Bank, and get lined up with the re-employment service, C. H. Messer, commissioner of Precinct No. 1, stated yesterday afternoon.

"Persons in this class should not quit their jobs, though," Mr. Messer said, "in order to get work on the WPA projects."

At any time they might wish to work on the WPA projects after they have signed up, they can (Continued on Page 8)

WPA OFFICIAL URGES SAFETY

Cooperation Urged To Assure Safety Operation Trucks

Officials of the WPA project now under operation near here are requesting all Memphis citizens to join with them in an effort to curb any accidents that might occur while the gravel trucks on the WPA job are making their runs.

A route has been mapped through the city for the trucks, the route to have the right-of-way over all other streets. The trucks will enter the city on south Tenth street from the Broome gravel pits; they will traverse Tenth to Bradford street. On Bradford they will go east to the Hughes service station, and from there north on the Wellington highway.

Flagmen will be placed along the route. The speed limit for trucks has been set at 12 miles per hour. The gravel truck brakes will be tested every other day, in accordance with Federal government requests.

CARLTON TALKS ROTARY CLUB

Explains Vocational Agriculture Work Done in Schools

Riley W. Carlton, instructor of vocational agriculture at the local High school, spoke at the weekly luncheon of the Memphis Rotary Club yesterday noon. He reviewed the history of the agriculture department in the schools of Texas and outlined its inauguration and program in the Memphis school system.

Mr. Carlton said that boys taking the agricultural courses from one to three years would be prepared to go out into the farming communities over the country and be prepared to meet the modern farming problems. The main purpose of the course. (Continued on page 8)

CAPTAIN WILL WATCH CYCLONE FROM SIDELINE

Regular Backfield to Be in Game Friday Night with Cubs

When the Memphis High Cyclone engage the Estelline Bear Cubs at Cyclone Stadium tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock, the local aggregation will be playing without its captain and star line-man.

Capt. Bud McAbee will witness the game from the sidelines, in all probability, Coach Chesty Walker said yesterday afternoon. The Cyclone stalwart, who plays center, guard and tackle alternately, is out of the line-up with an infected leg, developing from bruises received in the Memphis-Mobeetie game last week.

McAbee will probably be in uniform, but he won't be called on to play unless his teammates get in hot water. The sturdy 150-pounder through six wins and two de-pouder, who has piloted the Cy-feats this season, has not been in uniform all week. A minor operation was performed on his leg Monday.

With McAbee out of the line-up, Benjie Estes will probably play the pivot position, Winfred Swift and Butter Bourland will hold down the guard berths, Fred Sanders and Cecil Grimes will take care of their regular tackle assignments, and Scott and Malone will take care of the flanks.

The regular backfield combination of Powers at quarter, Adcock at full, and Crump and Walker at halves has been working together this week. Because of his good showing against Mobeetie, Ray Childress will probably be given a chance to flash his football form against the Cubs. Claude Ferrell, Ben Seott and (Continued on page 8)

HOLD FUNERAL PIONEER LADY YESTERDAY

Mrs. Hattie McMurry Paid Last Respects and Interred Here

Murry, pioneer as laid to rest at Fairview cemetery yesterday afternoon, following services at the First Baptist church, at 3:00 o'clock.

Rev. O. K. Webb, pastor, conducted the funeral services and paid a beautiful tribute to her life as a devout Christian, and concluded his talk with a poem written by Mrs. McMurry, "I Ain't Dead Yet." Songs included "God Will Take Care of You," "Nearer, Still Nearer" and "What a Friend I Have in Jesus."

Floral tributes were profuse, attesting the esteem in which she was held, and were in charge of Mrs. McMurry's Sunday School class, who were: Masdames G. M. Thompson, Jodie J. Wilson, C. H. Loard, Mary Combest, Seth Stewart, P. M. Randal, Donna Prater, D. P. Webster, M. H. Braddock, W. H. Melton, J. F. Forkner, E. M. Dennis, L. J. Rice, Anna Sanders, E. B. Palmer and J. E. Neel. Pall bearers were Dick Watson, W. D. Orr, A. Womack, Sam Hamilton, C. L. Caviness and L. M. Thornton.

Honorary pall bearers were R. L. Madden, Sam Foxhall, Dr. J. M. Ballew, G. M. Thompson, S. T. Harrison, Chas. Orea, R. H. Wherry, E. E. Walker, C. C. Meacham, D. L. C. Kinard, J. F. Parks.

Hall County farmers were jubilating today over the bright sunshine prevailing. What is needed is lots of sunshine now, to allow the gathering of the balance of the county's cotton crop.

ROAD PROJECT IS NOW READY FOR GRAVELING

Gravel Trucks Will Start Tomorrow Morning Believed

Work is progressing smoothly on Hall County's first WPA project, C. H. Messer, sponsor and head of the project, said this morning, and about one and one-fourth miles of dirt road has been prepared for graveling.

Work that has been done is on the road north of the Fairview Cemetery, starting from near the Collingsworth County line. Grading is being done, and the road banks are being sloped.

It is thought that graveling will get underway by tomorrow morning. Forty-nine men reported for work on the Works Progress Administration project Monday morning, but the man power dropped to 38 yesterday, the men having gone to work in the cotton. (Continued on page 8)

WEST TEXAS: Fair and warmer in north tonight; Thursday fair and warmer in east.

Beau Brommel, Lord Chesterfield and the Prince of Wales on the streets of Memphis yesterday. It isn't often a city of this size is honored by the presence of three such famous exponents of style as these.

Darn it, after we wrote the above item, we found out that the three guys weren't whom we thought they were. Instead, they were Doctors Odom, Clark and Goodall, diked out in new suits, and then somebody told us that Beau Brommel and Lord Chesterfield were both dead. Can you imagine that? We'll confess that we didn't even know they'd been sick.

Anyway, the doctoring business must be picking up. We didn't think anybody ever paid a doctor. In the old days, the doctor usually managed to scrape together enough shekels to buy a suit only after the patches on the old one predominated by a large majority. But the doctoring business has changed a lot since the automobile has taken the place of the horse and buggy.

Went over today and found out what "Pegleg" had in his window that was stopping all the women who went by. It was a bedstead—but what a bedstead. The head end of it has a shelf for your radio, clock, or what have you. The foot has a built-in vanity outfit that opens up for milady's primping. Can you beat that?

Jimmie Stanford dolling up the windows at Rosenwasser's. Jimmie is an artist at that kink of work, believe you me.

About a million burned places in the hall on the second floor of the Hall County Bank Building, where Doc. Hicks evidently makes a practice of throwing out his cigarette butts. He'll deny it, of course, but they're right in front of his door, anyway.

A pleased look on Doc. MacMilan's Scotch countenance when we told him his son had made the honor roll in college. Boy, that's service, when you can tell folks about their own folks, before they even know it themselves. Doc. hadn't heard about it till he saw it in the Democrat.

Doc. Ballew coming into the office after his paper yesterday afternoon, so he'd know what he was going to have for supper.

The Docs. seem to be monopolizing this column today.

Bad McAbee, Cyclone captain, viewing yesterday's activities from the sidelines. He was seated in the coach's ear, listening to the radio while the other boys took a stiff workout. Must be great to be injured, if you're a "big shot."

Everett Rice waddling down the east side. "Waddling" is right; have you seen him lately?

Several duck hunters oiling their fowling pieces and buying shells yesterday, among whom were Ed. McCreary and Chick Bentley.

Two lights that seemed to be about ten feet apart coming down Montgomery last night. It proved to be the Hodges ambulance.

J. P. Watson's postoffice, car and other keys hanging from his box at the postoffice. Somebody must have sent J. P. a check.

Charlie Ware, negro, unable to understand why a letter he had sent a friend was returned. "Course I didn't know what town he lived in," said Charlie, "but I addressed it to Kansas, and he ought to have got it."

IT SEEMS SENSIBLE TO US

SINCE being brought to the attention of the people by Senator Nelson's resolution, introduced in the last special session of the legislature, there is quite a bit of discussion of what is known as the Unicameral System of legislation.

Unicameral legislation is, as its name implies, legislation by one house, instead of the present system of having an upper and a lower house in the legislature.

Senator Nelson's proposal suggests a legislature of 42 members, two from each congressional district, elected for four year terms. One member would be elected from each district every two years.

Members would receive an annual salary of $5,000, and would devote their entire time to legislative matters, being precluded from receiving compensation from any individual, firm or corporation during their terms of office.

The legislature at present continuous, recessing or adjourning from time to time, and subject to call at any time by 70 per cent of the membership. Representatives could be recalled by their districts, and the governor's power of veto would not be abridged.

The legislature at present compresses 181 members, and the cost of operation is approximately $6,000 per man. Under the unicameral system, thousands of dollars yearly would be saved the state.

There are probably drawbacks to the system just as there are to the present bicameral system, but we feel that there can hardly be as many. Any sensible thinker will admit that the evils of the present system are many and varied.

One great advantage to the proposed system would be the elimination of the popular "buck passing" so prevalent now. Another would be the elimination of conference committees, which at present constitutes practically a third house.

We believe that the suggestion of Senator Nelson is worthy of careful consideration, but, at the same time, we feel that it hasn't a chance of becoming effective. Too many interests are served by the present inefficient system.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, Nov. 19. There's some talk in the quarters of filing anti-trust suits against groups who have joined in raising the bread.

Thus far it's only talk. Evidence has been assembled and is being studied to determine what ground there may be for action.

It is conceded that the price prosecutions are a smart political move. Many price-fixing in bread has only bread sold in intrastate commerce, but some of the priced bread is regularly across state lines.

Officials concerned are reading with interest a report from the Food Reporter, trade publication, which said the Flour Association of Philadelphia had demanded an increase of 3 1/2 per cent wholesale price of bread. Bakers might pay flour at over 100 cents.

"The association is to control 99 per cent of the flour business in the country," was pointed out by Senator Horan, president of the association. He indicated bakers who refuse to raise the price will find their supplies cut off.

Several hundred members of the Resettlement Commission recently went to the field for nine weeks without checks, which was a hardship. There was some talk about it, so RA gave a classification of its members.

The plain fact was that the works became gummed up. The explanatory statement in one paragraph which attracted particular attention.

"There has been no attempt to investigate the identity of the employees who advised of the payroll situation."

Censorship and efforts to spot and punish "leaked" news has caused a rasmont of their spirit. Doyle, levied frequent in the past. But the RA statement is new high in its smugness—and nerve.

Editor Frank Shannon of the Wharton Spectator, Tex., calls attention to an error in this column which has been corrected herewith.

It was reported that the officials were quite proud. Wharton had obtained a 67 per cent in the domestic electricity as a part of its plan to build a plant with PWA money.

The 67 per cent reality had been estimated a 10-year period. The due to a full page article by the power company which hooded the figures in an effort to cause PWA officials to believe that the cost of all of a sudden.

ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLI
"You goin', buddy?" man with the gun. The man with the gun said, innocently, "I thought you were supposed to be a lookout, up the road. What's the idea coming in here?"

The man hastily gestured toward Jean. "Honest, chief, I had to come they came out of the woods into the clearing. The old house loomed up, a dark, insanely-designed shadow against the star-flecked sky, the few lights in its rooms gleaming dimly through the night. Beyond it the surface of the lake was a black pool, lit here and there by a touch of reflected star-shine. A breeze was rising, and there was a gentle rustling of leaves in the trees, a silky wash of wavelets on the beach.

The man conducted her straight to the house and marched her up the steps and into the hall. He stood there with her, his gun under his arm, and waited. A door opened somewhere, and Red Jackson came toward them.

He looked at the guard coldly. "What're you doin' in here?" he asked. "I thought you were supposed to be a lookout, up the road. What's the idea coming in here?"

The man hastily gestured toward Jean.

"Honest, chief, I had to come in," he said. "She was takin' it on the lam up through the woods, and I figured—"

"Oh, you figured," said Jackson. "If I can ever get some of you pin-heads to remember that I'm supposed to do the figuring around here . . . well, let it go. Go on back there now, lunkhead, and the next time you find anybody wandering around loose give us a call—don't come in yourself."

The guard departed, obviously relieved to get away with no worse rebuke than this. Jean was left alone, facing America's Number One public enemy.

He eyed her coldly, his washed-out eyes seeming more lifeless than ever in the dim lamplight.

"Just where was you going?" he asked her.

She gestured helplessly with one hand. "Back—to town," she said. "Back to town? What town?" "Oh—" again she moved one hand in a meaningless gesture.

"Any town. I don't know. I just wanted to get away."

He looked at her silently for a moment. "Why?" "I—I didn't know what I'd got into," she said.

"Oh. And now you do know, you don't like it. Is that it?"

She nodded. Standing under his inhuman stare, she felt that she knew just how a bird felt when it looked, helpless, into the hypnotizing eye of a snake.

"What's the matter with us, anyhow?" said Jackson. "Why don't you like us? We're nice people."

His voice was edged with clumsy sarcasm. She made no reply. "You like that boy friend of yours first rate, don't you?" he continued. "You went for him plenty, I understand, before this."

Her heart sank, as she realized that this, indeed, was the very worst thing about it; that she had let herself in for all of it by giving way to a senseless infatuation for Sandy Harkins. She had discarded the honest and loyal affection of a youth like Bobby Wallace to cast her fortunes with an outlaw!

She found herself nodding miserably.

"Well, what's the matter, then?" asked Jackson. "He's just as nice now as he was before. Still brushes his hair the same way and wears the same kind of clothes. Looks just the same and talks just the same. You'll get along with him fine. . . . And with the rest of us, too. You just got to get used to us, that's all."

She shook her head. "I can't," she whispered. He looked her over from head to foot with slow, curious deliberation.

"Oh, yes, you can," he said. "I'll tell you this, sister. When you put in with him, you put in with all of us. And puttin' in's a lot easier than pullin' out again. You're stickin', now—for always. And don't forget it."

A door opened, and Sandy himself came into the hall. He looked from Jean to Jackson in unspoken inquiry.

SHAMROCK AND MCLEAN HOLD THE SPOTLIGHT

Friday Clash of Two Undefeated Teams for Dist. Honors

By JACK SITTON
Sports Editor

Interest in District 3 Class B grid circles this week is centered around the Shamrock-McLean tussle, because when the two teams clash Friday on the McLean gridiron they will be battling for district honors.

It has not been made clear whether the game will be played Friday afternoon or Friday night, but it is clear that the winner of the affray will be pitted against the Matador Bullfighters—if Paducah doesn't throw the District No. 4 conference into a three-way tie Friday—for Bi-District honors.

Both the Irish and the Tigers have unblemished records to date, being the only two teams to hand the powerful Memphis Cyclone a walloping. The McLean aggregation has probably a more impressive record than has Shamrock. The Tigers last week-end defeated the Clarendon Bronchos by a lopsided score of 34-0, Shamrock having previously beaten the Brones 25-0.

In Stratton and Cunningham the McLean Tigers will have a slight edge over the Irishmen on the offense, but these backs will likely find the going tough against the 175-pound Shamrock forward wall. Most local fans who saw both teams play against Memphis consider the game to be a toss-up, but it seems to be the general opinion of the Democrat sports department that Shamrock has a slight edge. The heavy Irish line should hold the plunging Stratton well in check, and Wells, McIntyre and Davis, Irish backfield aces, will be hard to stop.

The only other conference go in this district Friday will be the Clarendon - Wheeler affair at Wheeler. The game is expected to attract little interest, since it is of no significance. Wheeler's big gullback, Ford, will probably rip the Clarendon line to shreds and lead his mates to an easy victory.

Memphis, Lefors, Wellington and Mobeetie have concluded their conference grid schedules, but they will likely engage in post-season skirmishes.

SOIL EROSION

All material appearing from time to time in this column is furnished through the cooperation of the Soil Conservation Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is offered as this paper's contribution to the farmers, in an effort to help them cope with the greatest emergency they have ever faced—that of saving the soil they till. An effort will be made to answer any questions addressed to this paper, and, if necessary, a representative of the local area office will be sent to confer with you concerning your soil problems.

"Forty to 60 tons of fertile top soil per acre each year is not an uncommon loss from erosion on unterraced cultivated fields," according to information supplied by the United States department of agriculture.

In Alabama, one creek deposited a bar of sediment of fertile top soil from farmers' fields, that measured 50 feet deep, 1200 feet long and 300 feet wide—in one year's time.

It is just such theft of the farmers' valuable and only natural resource that the soil conservation service projects in this area are trying to stop. Experts in the office at Memphis are there for the purpose of helping the farmers of the region meet this emergency, a recent announcement stated.

THEY ALL KNEW DIZZY DEAN

But Were Puzzled by Dr. Dafoe

All but three of 90 High School students knew Dizzy Dean, but the majority thought Dr. Allen Dafoe, of quintuplets fame, was someone connected with the Lindbergh baby kidnapping case.

L. C. Smyers, instructor at the local High school, has given a survey test to 90 High school students, the purpose of the test being to show the type of current reading that the student is doing and to awaken an interest in worthwhile current reading.

Results of the test are interesting -- not startling -- and are indicative that the present High school pupil knows more about the heralded gangsters than he does of state, national and international political figures.

Out of the 90 students who took the test, 85 knew Raymond Hamilton, while only four knew Harold Ickes. Eighty-one of the students knew John Dillinger, while only six knew David Lloyd George. Eighty-six knew Max Baer, while only 25 knew Tom Connally. Eighty-two were acquainted with Bing Crosby, to overshadow 23 who knew of James A. Farley. Joan Crawford out-ranked Ethel Barrymore 84 to 16. There were only three who had not read of the exploits of Dizzy Dean. Eighty-seven knew the big-league hurler to 18 who recognized Melvin Purvis. Seventy-two students could identify Richard Hauptmann, while only 18 could identify Bruce Barton.

It is interesting to note that more students identified Benito Mussolini than identified Texas' own John Nance Garner. More students knew Haile Selassie than knew John J. Pershing.

Sixty students confused J. Edgar Hoover with the former president of the United States. There were 14 who could not distinguish the Governor of Texas. Only five did not know Will Rogers. Persons listed whom no one knew were Harry Hines, Henry Morgenthau, Walter Cline and Chester C. Davis.

It is also interesting to note the following humorous errors found in the papers:

- Chester C. Dav's -- Memphis school superintendent.
- Helen Wills Moody -- Wife of the Governor.
- Gen. Hugh Johnson -- General in the World War.
- John D. Rockefeller -- Poet.
- James A. Farley -- Amarillo automobile agent.
- Jesse Jones -- Notorious outlaw.
- Benito Mussolini -- Ruler of Germany.
- Melvin Purvis -- Secretary of State.
- John J. Pershing -- Civil War General.
- Dr. Dafoe -- Connected with Lindbergh case.
- Walter Cline -- Texas Attorney General.
- Tom Connally -- Movie star.
- Henry Morgenthau -- Movie actor.
- James V. Alfred -- United States Governor.
- John N. Garner -- Governor of Texas.
- Jimmie Walker -- Radio crooner.
- Haile Selassie -- Movie star.

Following is the list of names given the 90 students -- seniors, juniors, sophomores and freshmen, forming a cross-section of the school -- to identify and the number who gave the correct answers:

- J. Edgar Hoover, 18; Melvin Purvis, 6; Tom Connally, 25; Richard E. Byrd, 43; Dr. Dafoe, 53; Haile Selassie, 48; Benito Mussolini, 60; John J. Pershing, 46; David Lloyd George, 6; Pierre Laval, 5; Hugh Johnson, 19; Jesse Jones, 5; Harry Hines, 0; O. O. McIntyre, 30; Bruce Barton, 18.

- James A. Farley, 23; John Nance Garner, 57; Walter Cline, 0; Henry Morgenthau, 0; Harold Ickes, 4; Chester C. Davis, 1; John D. Rockefeller, 50; Ethel Barrymore, 16; James V. Alfred, 76; Will Rogers, 85; Babe Didrikson, 22; Jimmie Walker, 22; John Dillinger, 81; Raymond Hamilton, 85.

- Clark Gable, 82; Richard Hauptmann, 72; Sally Rand, 32; Dizzy Dean, 87; Bobby Wilson, 28; Helen Wills Moody, 36; Max Baer, 86; Joan Crawford, 84; Wayne King, 53; Bing Crosby, 82; Amelia Earhart Putnam, 49.
