Denial Made By Hostess Of Dinner

Miss Barrows Says Wirt Talked So Much Others Could Not Speak

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The House Committee investigating Dr. William A. Wirt's allegation of a "Brain Trust Revolution" was told Tuesday by Miss Alice Barrows, hostess of the celebrated dinner party in September, that his statements on what guests said were "false."

She said there was no mention—Wirt testified—about President Roosevelt's being a "Korenansky," who would be supplanted by a "Stalin"—or of Dr. Rexford Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture.

Miss Barrows said no guest other than Wirt could say anything because he talked constantly on inflation.

A. A. Sleeper Plane To Be Viewed Here

Curtiss-Wright Condor Ship To Arrive In Big Spring Thursday

PUBLIC INVITED TO VIEW SHIP

New Service To Be Inaugurated Soon From Fort Worth To L. A.

American Airlines' new modern 12-passenger Curtiss-Wright Condor sleeper plane, with six upper and six lower berths, will arrive at Big Spring airport sometime Thursday, where it will be on display to the public.

American Airlines, Inc., through its representative here, Marshall McCrea, cordially invites the public to the airport Thursday to see the newest type of plane which will soon be put in service on the southern division. The exact hour of arrival of the plane from Fort Worth will be announced Wednesday through The Daily Herald.

Harry Maynard, publicity director of American Airlines, with headquarters in Los Angeles, stopped at Big Spring airport Tuesday morning en route to Fort Worth, where he, with Hugh Smith, general traffic manager of the southern division, will supervise the ferrying of the big Condor plane from Fort Worth to Los Angeles Thursday.

Mr. Maynard did not know Tuesday morning at what hour the plane would arrive in Big Spring, but said he would notify Mr. McCrea Tuesday night of the company plans and the hour of arrival at Big Spring airport.

"The company is anxious for the public to view this modern ship," said Mr. Maynard to a Herald reporter Tuesday morning. "Within the near future this sleeper plane will be in regular service between Los Angeles and Fort Worth. We will remain in Big Spring a sufficient time for all to view the plane," said Mr. Maynard.

The plane, manufactured by the Curtiss-Wright Airplane Company at St. Louis, is an improved type of the Condor biplane, has a top speed of 190 miles an hour, a cruising speed of 160 miles an hour, and carries 12 passengers, two pilots and a steward.

First installation of this equipment will be made on the company's Dallas, Fort Worth, Los Angeles route. This route will be flown in approximately 10 hours, Mr. Maynard said.

Berths in the new sleeper plane are convertible in flight or on the ground into wide, comfortable lounge seats so the passenger may sit up until ready to retire. Arranged like the interior of a railroad sleeping car, each section contains an upper and lower. Each berth is as fully equipped as the deluxe compartments of a transcontinental train or ocean liner, with individual heating and cooling vents, reading lights at the head and foot of each berth, a clothes net and hanger and a wide luggage rack at the foot of the passenger's baggage. There are six such sections, three on each side of the cabin.

Dark brown leather and fabric of a lighter shade are combined with walnut paneling to make the interiors the most luxurious of any yet put in service on the world's airways. Ceiling and walls are lined with matching fabric to complete the interior color scheme.

Air conditioning of the plane in flight is accomplished by two large suction type ventilators set in the cabin ceiling which effect a complete change of air every three minutes. While on the ground portable blowers will force cool or warm air into the cabin to assure an even temperature while the planes are being serviced at stops.

To provide personal service to passengers each sleeper plane will carry a steward, whose duties will be similar to those of a steamship steward. He will make up the berths according to directions of the passenger, have charge of the commissary from which complete meals may be served, attend to the stowing of the passenger's baggage and otherwise serve the traveler. Complete washrooms are installed in these planes, which have running water, mirrors and other features making it possible for the passengers to leave the plane at destination as clean and refreshed as though they had arisen.

WASHINGTON By George Durno

Silver—

The President has been successfully put on the spot more than once in his political career. Now the Congressional silver bloc would lead him to one that's packed with dynamite.

The new silver inflation bill—reported unanimously from the Senate Agriculture Committee the other day—threatens the White House with bad moments.

Republican are chortling with glee. Whatever position Mr. Roosevelt takes they're sure he's going to be damned by one element or another.

Skilful weaving went into the composite silver measure. It's designed to draw support from farmers by undertaking to dispose of agricultural surpluses. Large textile interests are being lured with the promise it will break up low-cost competition from British mills in the Orient. All by boosting the price of silver.

Naturally the bill is duck soup for the inflationists and the mining states.

Last time the silver issue showed up a much less adroitly planned bill failed by only two votes in the Senate.

If the new bill passed and the President had to veto it to be consistent, the opposition is handed important ammunition. The farmer would be shown that the New Deal wasn't his friend after all. Opposing politicians would paint pictures of marketing surpluses for cash as against plowing crops under and restricting acreage.

When the silverites made their last ally it took all the White House stunts on the morning of the roll call to switch three votes. Maneuvering from now on will have its amusing moments.

Trends—

Shifts in the national temper were vividly clear in certain casual actions of the House in the last ten days.

Four years ago the very thought of such things would have brought down righteous indignation from any number of fronts.

With scarcely any debate a bill legalizing horse racing in the District of Columbia passed the House. Another gave the nod of approval to professional boxing.

But most significant of all was the hearing by a House Ways and Means sub-committee on a bill authorizing a national lottery.

The hearing had been advertised for a week and before taking testimony the chairman revealed that he'd received any number of letters and telegrams for the measure but not one again it.

A few years ago Rep. Edward A. Kenney, of N. J., sponsored a lottery bill for raising revenue and controlling the policy racket. He could no more have got a hearing than have flown.

Robinson Soft Ballers Humble Kiwanis Squad

With a tonic added in the form of a few new players, Robinson & Sons came back Monday to administer a sound licking to Kiwanis, 14-4.

Malone, pitching for the Grocers, was nipped for one run in the first stanza when Pickle Angler and Gullkey smashed a triple. After that, however, he was never in trouble, for his mates slammed the ball freely while Kiwanis fielders were committing costly errors.

Robinson's opened their scoring in the second frame with three tallies and put four more on top in the third. From then on it was a question of when darkness would end the fracas.

O'Neal And Smith Have Heavy Roles

Role of Earl Walton, one of the most popular boys at Fairhaven College, will be filled by George Ed O'Neal in the 3 act comedy farce, "Spanish Onion," to be presented Friday evening by the junior class. Proceeds will go to the junior-senior banquet.

Easily the most handsome and popularized in school, Earl Walton is also smart, but not smart enough to evade Miss Delight Townsend's shrewd scheme of getting dates for other co-eds.

Fern Smith will play the part of Cynthia Reed, a timid girl who has never associated with the male of the specie before entering college. She is the instigator of the date getting scheme. Beyond her crust of timidity lies a likable Cynthia. Both Cynthia and Walton have an important bearing on the outcome of the play.

McCamey To Celebrate Its 7th Birthday

McCAMEY—On Friday and Saturday, April 27 and 28, the City of McCamey will celebrate her seventh birthday anniversary with a giant celebration to which the entire citizenship of West Texas is cordially invited. This will mark the second staging of the annual event.

Seven years ago this month, the city was organized, incorporated and received its charter, although the town had really been started more than a year previous. Great strides have been made in improving the town in the few short years since its organization, and McCamey has been transformed from an old boom town into a thriving and well established West Texas city since that time. The progress of the town will be depicted at the celebration.

The affair is being sponsored by the Business Men's League of this city in cooperation with the local Lions Club, American Legion Post and other civic organizations.

Efforts are being made to make this the largest and most successful affair of its kind ever staged in West Texas.

Free barbecue, street carnival, banner rodeo, ball games, parades, band concerts, various stunts and contests and many other entertaining and educational features are being arranged.

It is planned to make the rodeo, of which Sam Turner, local ranchman and E. Parler, nationally known rodeo performer, will be in charge, one of the best ever staged in this section. Events will include calf roping, goat roping, team roping, wild cow milking, bronc and steer riding, trick and fancy riding and bulldogging. Large purses are being offered the winners. A $15 award is being offered anyone entering a horse that can not be ridden.

There will be plenty of entertainment for every member of the family.

THE FREEDOM WE SEEK HAS BECOME ECONOMIC

A great shift in the popular idea of freedom, which will ultimately have a very great effect on our political thought, has been taking place in this country during the last few years.

This shift has been moving us away from our traditional notions at a rapid pace. It is giving a new twist to the things we demand from our government and it is steadily changing our concept of the relation of the individual to the society of which he is a part.

Briefly, the shift can be explained by saying that we are beginning to demand economic freedom rather than political freedom.

Once we demanded freedom from the oppression of rulers—freedom to talk, write, and worship as we pleased, abolition of inherited caste distinctions, formal recognition of the fact that, as far as rights are concerned all men are created equal.

Now we are beginning to demand freedom from economic disabilities; freedom from poverty, for instance, and from the fear of poverty.

We are beginning to insist that political equality be balanced with economic security.

It is this demand which is back of such pending bills in congress as the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance law and the Connery 50-hour week bill.

Now the thing to notice is that never before, in all the world's history, could a demand for economic security have been made sensibly.

In all former times it was inevitable that insecurity be the lot of the average man. There simply wasn't enough of everything to go around. Somebody had to be left out.

Population, as Malthus pointed out, tended to increase faster than the means of subsistence. Poverty was inescapable.

But today our troubles come because there is too much of everything. For the first time since this old planet started spinning, every man can get a fair whack of things.

Insecurity is no longer necessary. The abolition of poverty is perfectly possible.

The ordinary man has come to realize this. He knows there is enough of everything to go around and he wants his share; and which is a point worth remembering—he doesn't care very much how he gets it.

SPORT LINES

By Tom Beasley

Frank Etter, softball mogul at the high school, is seeking opposition for his schoolboy champions. The Highschoolers will probably enter the city league to be formed this week.

For the first time in several years, the Steers may miss playing the Lamesa Tornados in football. The Lamesans were tentatively booked for a game here on September 14, but they have apparently taken a "run-out."

A picture exhibition of popular wrestlers has been set up in the Club Canadens. Local work-outs will start at the club next week.

Some of the bone-benders Jones hopes to have here are Don Hill, a Los Angeles light-heavy; Charlie Thornton, Denver; Luis Mayo, the Mexican crooner; Bulldog Billy Hallas, the veteran El Paso welter-weight.

Coden Refinery comes forth with another baseball team—this time a softball aggregation. Whittington and Floyd Martin will manage the team.

A wealth of material is available for the club, Martin said, which will be a hundred per cent Couden.

The Ollers, Couden's "hardball" outfit, has three games booked for this week. They play Midway school this evening, the Giants Wednesday, and the Coahoma Bulldogs Thursday.

The Ollers took a lesson Sunday when Odessa galloped away with the game, 15 to 6. Odessa practically cinched the game in the fourth inning by fanning nine runs after having two men out. However, they started the scoring in the first inning with two runs and kept a lead throughout the game.

Babers hurled six innings for Couden and F. Martin three. Baker slapped out a homer in the fifth inning and Miller Harris got two triples out of four times up. "Cnet" Fowler held down first base for Couden.

Robinson vs. High School Outlaws in a softball game this evening. Both teams have won one and lost one. On Thursday the Robinson boys play the Lions club.

The Kiwanians were upset 14 to 4 by the Robinson team yesterday. It was the second start for the Kiwanians and their first loss. With Glenn (?-?) Guilkey "up" for Kiwanians, the Robinson cloners experienced no trouble in slapping the ball out of the lot.

Every City And Town Of West Texas To Participate In West Texas C. Of C. Program

SAN ANGELO—Participation of every city and town in West Texas in every phase of the many-sided program of the sixteenth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce here May 14-16 is being sought by the regional chamber's officials, and the San Angelo general arrangements committee.

From the convention headquarters office in San Angelo in charge of Convention Manager Maxey Hopkins of the regional chamber hundreds of letters have already gone out to chambers of commerce, WTCC directors, school superintendents, committee chairmen and others aimed to fully acquaint the cities and towns on how they may participate in the convention first, to the advantage of the individual town, and second to the advantage of the region as a whole.

Every town has already been asked to do six things: (1) send an organized delegation to the convention; (2) conduct a poster exhibit contest in the public schools, the winning poster to be sent to San Angelo for display and for entry in the All-West Texas Poster Exhibit Contest; (3) report upon beautification activities; (4) select a young lady to represent the town in Rainbow Roundup, the big revue and show at the convention; (5) nominate directors to represent the towns on the official board next year subject to election at the convention; and (6) select a contestant for the My Home Town Speaking Contest.

West Texas Chamber of Commerce directors in every town, and the local chambers of commerce are the chief sources of contact. To them invitations have gone to begin to organize delegations to attend every session and feature of the convention program, and to acquaint the citizens of the respective towns with the convention program.

Rules and regulations for the poster exhibit contest have been sent to all school superintendents, WTCC directors, and local chambers of commerce secretaries in West Texas asking them to promote working toward a Communist state in America, and is pulling the wool over the president's eyes so that the nation can be maneuvered to the edge of Marxism without realizing it, the fact needs to be established definitely and the man's name should be published.

And then the man needs to be thrown out of Washington so fast that he won't know what hit him. But, on the other hand, if none of this is true—if someone has just been indulging in a lot of loose talk, creating a bogey-man out of nothing to scare us out of adopting a law or a set of laws which certain important gentlemen do not like—then the man who started all the talk needs to be shown up as an irresponsible rumor-monger and discredited forever.

The charges spread before the house commerce committee in the letter read by James Henry Rand Jr. must be investigated quickly and thoroughly. The public has a right to know the exact facts in the matter.

note and conduct local poster contests in the schools, and send the winning posters to San Angelo for display in the convention headquarters. The big West Texas relief map which formed the center of the West Texas exhibit at A Century of Progress in Chicago will be exhibited in the same display with the posters. A silver loving cup will be awarded for the winning poster.

Chairmen of the beautification committees in the one hundred five West Texas towns entered in the Inter-Community Beautification Contest and the secretaries of the chambers of commerce have been furnished with forms upon which the competing towns will file their reports on beautification activities and progress for judging the winner of the second year contest. A silver loving cup will be awarded the winner. The first year contest last year was won by Hamilton, and the cup presented to Mrs. M. Brents Witty, chairman of the Hamilton beautification committee by Houston Harte, chairman of the West Texas Beautification program.

Local WTCC directors, and chamber of commerce secretaries have been asked by the San Angelo Board of City Development to immediately select a young lady to represent the town in the big All-West Texas show and revue, styled Rainbow Roundup, every evening of the convention. These young ladies will be guests at a number of social functions to be given in their honor at the convention.

C. M. Caldwell, Abilene, chairman of the My Home Town Speaking Contest, was the first to notify towns of a convention feature. Early in March Caldwell sent rules and regulations of the contest to every school superintendent, and chamber of commerce in West Texas as urging them to immediately begin preparations for participating in the contest. Already over two dozen cities have indicated they will have entries. Caldwell's committee expects over sixty contestants.

High school students are eligible. They must present original speeches about their towns, not over five minutes long. To the winner will be awarded the Thos. Etheridge loving cup, a cash award and a choice of scholarships in Simmons University, Abilene Christian College, Baylor University, Ho-

Plan Survey For Placing Needy Folks

Attempt To Be Made To Make Relief Families Self Sustaining

A vacant house survey, its aim toward rehabilitation, will have its center in the rural section when it begins here shortly.

Success of the survey will lie in the hands of land owners, since the survey is not a check up on the number of vacant houses but on the number of vacant houses that could be made liveable by repairs or rebuilding.

The idea behind the survey, as explained by County Administrator R. H. McNew, is to place needy families in houses surrounded by small plots of land in return for repairs and improvements not only to the place occupied, but also to the premises of the owner.

Asks Cooperation
It is for this reason that McNew has asked that any person who has as much as a shack and five acres to report to the relief office.

Necessary work and repairs required to again put the shack in good, liveable condition would be made by the family moving in. The premises round about would be cleaned up and kept in good shape. The family would then likely be loaned a cow, pigs, chickens, etc., until such a time when relief work credits would be sufficient to pay for the cost.

A small garden could be raised so that food bills could be cut.

No Competition
McNew made it plain that the families thus located would not be allowed to operate in competition with the established farmer or contrary to the agricultural readjustment act.

In other words, the family would be encouraged to produce for home consumption.

Aid Three Classes
The survey is aimed to aid that class which would move in liveable quarters through the rehabilitation plan, that class which already is in quarters which badly need repairs, or that class which has some farm equipment but which is not eligible to crop production loans.

McNew believes the survey is one of the first steps toward genuine rehabilitation. Putting needy families on such places will eventually result in their becoming self-sustaining, consequently one less family on the relief roll.

Rev. Wright To Begin Revival Meet At Three Leagues, Martin Co.

Rev. Hamilton Wright, pastor of the Coahoma Methodist Church, will begin revival Monday, April 23, at Three Leagues, Martin County, which will continue through the fifth Sunday in this month. Brother Wright has held two meetings previously there, the first with 38 conversions and the other, running a week, with 21 additions.

COTTON OPTION HOLDERS WARNED OF EXPIRATION

Cotton producers holding approximately 12,000 outstanding cotton option contracts issued in connection with 1933 acreage reduction plan were warned Tuesday by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration that these options must be exercised, either directly or by placing the balance represented in the cotton option pool, before May 1. If these outstanding options are not exercised or extended, before the expiration date, holders would stand to lose their share of the $1,500,000 of benefits involved.

"The profit of approximately $20 per bale, available to producers who hold these outstanding options, involving about 78,000 bales, is compensation due them from the 1933 acreage reduction program," said J. O. Lamkin, assistant manager of the cotton producers pool. "The Administration is exceedingly anxious that every one of the holders of these options get their money."

"Doubtless some of the holders do not realize the significance of the statement on the face of the option contract giving the expiration date as May 1, and are not aware of the fact that the options will be of no value after that date, so action must be taken immediately," said Mr. Lamkin. "In view of the fact that only 15 days are left before expiration we want to drive home the point that further delay may jeopardize the producers' interests."

Producers who have mislaid the forms, C-5-B, for formal requests for extension of the option beyond the expiration date, should write to the Cotton Option Office, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., stating that such forms have been lost, and requesting an extension. All letters requesting extension should include information as to the State and county in which the producer holds the option, and the serial number of the contract.

FARM TALK

Written For The Daily Herald

Continuing a series of campaigns against Brer Rabbit, Gene O'Daniel has announced a rabbit drive beginning 9 a. m. Wednesday. The meeting place is one mile south of Coahoma in the bend of the road. The drive will run to the east-southeast.

Farmers are now beginning to realize fruits from their applications for crop production loans. Bruce Frazier, secretary of the Midland Crop Production Loan Corporation, was here Monday with drafts for several farmers who applied for loans here. These loans are more to follow soon. There will be more to follow soon. These loans are coming at an opportune time since planting is beginning and will get into full swing within the next thirty days.

A few farmers who were in town Monday were M. E. Broughton, I. Lusk, T. C. Appleton, J. E. Norris, Bob Anderson, J. B. Brown, A. K. Merrick, H. C. Harrington, B. F. Miller and R. D. Dorward, who ranches near Vealmore.

There is probably no man in Howard and surrounding counties better known than Andy Brown of Ackerly. He was here Monday on business and of course, found plenty of time to talk with his many friends.

Walter Robinson, who believes in diversification, has commenced his planting. Corn, maize, cantaloupe and some garden stuff have been put in the sod at his place on the Coahoma road.

Farmers of this region would do well to consider the record of Jim Clanton when it comes to making farm living.

Right now he has 5 acres in corn, 15 in maize and enough beans planted to insure some substantial food.

He has always gone in for raising vegetables on the farm. In years past he has found a ready market for good home raised vegetables, especially his tomatoes, carrots, etc.

Out at his place there is just enough stock for home use, and occasionally his family cans meat for future use. Last year the Clantons put up 800 cans and jars of vegetables and meat. A good sized flock of Leghorns furnishes the family with plenty of poultry products and laves a surplus for market.

Indian Joe, who can't remember his last name, said Monday that he had cotton upon his place.

Lots of planting is under way all over the county. Most of it is in early feed and corn. A few remembering how they were left than a month's delay in getting our checks and many are badly in need of their rental money now.

It was also explained that "Those who do not sign and return the statement accepting the adjustment will have their contracts returned to them. Prompt action was asked to avoid further delay in getting benefit payment checks."

Treating Seed Is Good Practice Farmers Advised By Fred Keating

Precaution Before Planting Often Saves Heavy Losses

By FRED KEATING
U. S. Experiment Farm

As the planting season approaches the first thought of most farmers, after they have put up their land, is to "rustle some planting seed."

In the case of grain and forage sorghums very little thought is given to the fact that the seed may be infected with smut or some other disease that may tend to affect the quality of the feed produced. This factor is generally overlooked regardless of the fact that it is estimated that thousands of dollars are lost annually in Texas from kernel smut of sorghums alone.

Although milo is practically immune from attacks of kernel smut, the kafirs, fetteris, hegari and Red Top sorghum are very susceptible, and it is through these crops that our great losses occur in the form of smut damage. This disease is spread and carried over from one year to the next by smut spores or dust on the seed or in the soil. When the seed with these smut spores on it is planted or if clean seed is planted in infected soil, a diseased plant will be produced. With this fact in mind it is readily seen that the only way to produce a healthy crop is to plant smut free or treated seed.

Control Methods
In recent years the Experiment Stations have developed several different methods of controlling this disease that has been so injurious to the sorghum crop of Texas. Of the various methods developed, the one that is the easiest to use is the treating of the planting seed with one of the dust poisons which are on the market for that purpose. Among the various ones advertised, probably copper carbonate and Cereasan are most generally used. Either of these chemicals have the distinct features of being very effective and easy to apply. It is necessary, however, to be rather careful in using these dusts, for if one inhales very much of either one of them it will make him sick. Two to three ounces of these dusts added to a bushel of seed and put in a tight container and stirred for five minutes should thoroughly coat each seed with a fine layer of dust.

When this is accomplished, the seed is ready for planting and a smut free crop is insured. This seed treatment not only insures a smut free crop, but it aids in the germination of seed under unfavorable conditions. Often times when the seed is planted in cold soil it is rather slow in germinating and molds will form on the seed and kill the germ before it has a chance to emerge from the soil. Seed treatment tends to prevent this mold from forming on the seed and thus permitting better stands to be obtained when otherwise a portion of the seed would fail to germinate.

Farmers Will Get Revised Yields Soon

County Agent Force Nears End Of Gruelling Corrections

More than a week's feverish work by County Agent O. P. Griffin and his helpers was scheduled for completion Tuesday evening with the promise that farmers who signed the government cotton acreage reduction contracts would be informed this week of contract revisions. When the campaign was completed here not so long ago, it was discovered that the yield for the county was all out of line with official figures. The acreage was also off but only slightly.

Consequently there was nothing left to do but for County Agent Griffin and his force to revise every contract so that the totals would come within the official figures for the county. Tuesday evening letters informing the various farmers of the revisions were to be placed in the mail.

"Our committees have done the best they could to work this adjustment out fair to everybody," said Griffin and the county committee in a letter to the farmers. "Perhaps we have made mistakes but hearings would require more

With a McCormick-Deering Tractor Orchard Disk Plow

You Can Plow Right up to the Trees

THE McCormick-Deering Tractor Orchard Disk Plow (No. 11) has an improved hitch which permits setting the plow to extreme offside, right or left, and holds the plow to its work. This makes it possible to run the plow right in under overhanging branches. There are no projecting levers on the plow to injure branches or fruit, and the tractor travels in the clear.

This plow comes in two and three-furrow sizes with 26-inch disks. If you are looking for a plow that will work close to your trees and stand wear and tear under all conditions, come in and see the McCormick-Deering.

CHAPTER 25 PREPARATION

"We won that point," said Cunard. "No man at the present time has the heart to throw three hundred men out of work if the money used to pay them isn't in chancery."

"I have the money. Big Tom gave it to me months ago for this emergency. But Mr. Cunard, if you will place it in your name, it will save me a lot of embarrassment. It would be difficult to explain why a man gave his stenographer a hundred thousand dollars as a gift, wouldn't it?"

"It would indeed. I'll be glad to handle it for you. Anything else?"

"Yes. Do you happen to know if

"Even after the injunction is raised Mrs. Dale is not using any of the interest or dividends accruing from Bevin's business. She's turning it all back to the trust fund. . . it's a bit queer, but I can understand her reasons for so doing and under the circumstances can't insist she do otherwise."

Cunard studied a moment then nodded his head. "I guess you're right, but it does seem a bit unusual for a girl worth as many millions as you are worth, Mrs. Dale, to be working for a comparatively small salary."

"At least it will seem more natural to me," she said brightening. "And now about the injunction and the will contest."

IN THE DERBY Paddock

you go plump and pink. Whose a goin' 'give you yo' choc-late?"

"Goodness knows, Delphy," replied Judith. "Nobody ever tried to take care of me before I fell into your hands. Delphy, you've been wonderful to me and I won't forget it, but you musn't worry about me, will you?"

"None."

"Goodybye Delphy."

"Yain't gone yet," was the reply. Judith turned from the telephone to find Judge Morgan had entered the room.

"Now that we're alone, Miss Judy," he said kindly, "I'd like to talk to you about something personal; call it legal prevention if you will. Tell me, have you and Mr. Dale decided to separate? Are you considering a divorce?"

"I don't know, Judge Morgan," she answered. "It was impossible to live there under the existing conditions. I would know things Norman's partner would like to know. Norman would know things important to our side. It was an impossible situation."

"He seems confident that Mrs. Bevin will win out eventually. He said if she didn't he would have to ask me to make a choice between himself and the money. Lampera has poisoned his mind until he looks upon me as a gold-digger."

"Did he know you were leaving for the dam?"

"Yes. . . he intimated I was making my choice by going."

"And you still want to go on?"

"If I stayed, knowing what I know about Lampera, I would hate myself and eventually hate Norman for being responsible for my staying."

"Of course you understand that by leaving Mr. Dale's bed and board you are giving him grounds for divorce."

"Yes," said then a smile flashed across her face. "However, it took Norman two years to propose to me and I'm trusting it will take him an equal length of time to make up his mind to divorce me."

"If I can help him see Lampera as I'm beginning to know him," said Judge Morgan, "he'll be ready to apologize to you a lot sooner . . . only, Miss Judith, are you going to be able to go back to Mr. Dale without holding a feeling of resentment towards him for not standing by you?"

Judith smiled again—"You'll be terribly disappointed in me I know, but Norman's refusal to see things as I see them, makes me respect him more."

"Inconsistent and thoroughly feminine," conceded the Judge "and now let's have dinner. Mrs. Morgan is coming down, and Mrs. Cunard. We'll all have dinner together at the most prominent restaurant in town."

They had also invited Cila, and in the verbal wit's end of her friend, and the quiet understanding of the two wives, Judith found real solace. At the depot, Judith tried to find a moment to speak to Cila, alone, and explain her decision—"Oh forget it," said Cila, "Build your dam, then come back and if Norman won't have you more in with me and we'll show this town what a couple of grass widows can do to it."

the Bevins Construction company incorporated is hiring any stenographers?"

"We really do need one at the dam. I'd like to keep Miss Kelly here to work with me; have you someone in mind?"

"Yes," she answered earnestly, "myself."

"Is this wise?" inquired Cunard. Judith smiled wistfully. "It's necessary. I haven't any income and . . . and it's going to be imperative that I work from now on."

"You haven't any income?" inquired Cunard and looked at Judge Morgan.

"Under normal circumstances there would be no question of our winning the will contest, but with Lampera acting the way he is acting, I'm expecting some sort of trickery."

There was so much business to handle that Judith found she would not have time to return to Hillendale if she took the early evening train to San Antonio, so she spent a few precious moments telephoning Delphy.

"Pack all of my clothes, Delphy," she ordered. "Put them into my wardrobe trunks and have Lige carry them to the basement store room. Then take that one trunk down there, unpack them and have Lige take the trunk and my hand bags. . . I didn't unpack them when I came in last night . . . and carry them to the Union Depot."

"Now, do you understand, Delphy?"

"Yes. yas-sum," came the doleful reply.

"You'll take good care of Mister Norman while I am away, won't you Delphy?"

"But Miz Dale," there was misery in the old woman's voice, "who-all gonn' 't be lookin' after you. An'

MARSHALL PIOR, above, is Sweetwater's new city commissioner, having been elected in recent elections. Addition of Mr. Pior brings to the commission another interested in stock farming, as he operates a model ranch in the Lake Sweetwater community, besides his city business.

President's official and semi-official families. There are two main targets. One is Postmaster General Farley. Every possible weak link in Farley's armor is being exploited to foment discontent in Democratic ranks. The big gun in this assault is that of General Farley's handling of patronage and his failure to recompense the faithful. Other active pieces in the battery include the McKee fiasco, the current party split in New York State and the air mail controversy. Many local conservatives believe that discrediting Farley would be an effective step toward undermining the whole Roosevelt machine.

Gulf—Informed conservatives insist there's a gulf between these two wide enough to hold a fleet. The story runs that Morgenthau is satisfied with monetary measures as an adequate paving for the recovery road and that he's hostile to the "regimentation" of agriculture and industry—especially as expressed in Wallace's pet AAA. Wallace is said to regard a planned economy as the key to everything and to view monetary remedies as strictly the bunk.

There is supporting evidence for the supposed Morgenthau-Wallace rift in the activities of Mr. Edward Babcock. He's a former Cornell professor who worked with professor Myers last year in the federal Farm Credit Administration. Babcock is also known as the successful organizer of the powerful Grange League Federation—a New York State farm organization. But the main point is his association with the American Agriculturist—a publication formerly owned by Morgenthau and Babcock are close friends.

Congress—A demon Democratic political statistician has just finished eyeing the situation in this fall's Congressional elections. He finds that the Democrats are pretty weak—according to 1932 results—in 69 districts. Of these 69 shaky Congressmen, 59 are serving their first term.

Huey—Two senators were strolling past the building in course of construction near the Capitol the other day. Suddenly a couple of riveters let go with everything they had. "My gosh," exclaimed one Senator as he jumped. "What's that awful racket?" "That," came the answer, "was Huey Long extending his remarks in the record."

Notes—Charges that Carnegie Foundation funds have been used for subversive propaganda will come before the McCormack Naval committee. The administration wonders why the British Board of Trade harpooned the Roosevelt reciprocity tariff bill just as it reached a crisis in the Senate. . . . Capitalists concede that John L. Lewis pulled a smart one when he got General Johnson to order higher wages for coal miners. It was the biggest concrete gain labor has registered in months even though the southern operators are still holding out. Many New Yorkers believe that Lewis' star is due for another rapid rise.

M. E. S. A.—The Mechanic's Educational Society of America is also seen as a possible source of aggressive and intelligent leadership. New York doesn't yet know much about M. E. S. A. but is beginning to realize that it's worth looking into. The charge of communism has been fired at the organization but it isn't justified by facts. . . . Keen local observers are specially

Planting Window Boxes

You can have a sheet of fragrant summer color outside your window this season, if you will start now to make a box for that purpose, and plan your choice of flowers. Here is one instance where even the most crowded apartment dweller can express his love for garden color, and with a minimum of expense and trouble.

For the window box, there is nothing quite so beautiful as an array of annuals. Planted with a view to all season bloom. They are inexpensive, hardy and easy to grow, and with a little care in setting them out, a quantity of bloom can be assured which is astounding for so small a space.

Among the annuals, the petunia is perhaps the most practical, and one of the most beautiful. Rosy Morn, Rose of Heaven and Heavenly Blue are good varieties. The balcony type, which have a trailing habit and droop from the box, are also fine. All need a sunny window, as do nasturtiums, snapdragons and French marigolds.

Where a shady condition is prevalent, some of the tuberous plants are better fitted. The caladium and begonia do well without the full sun. Among the vines, the trailing vinca is superb. Boston ferns are excellent for shady boxes.

If you are to grow your own seedlings, now is the time to set them out so they may be transferred to the window box as early as the weather permits. You can, of course, buy your plants and do away with the bother of growing them yourself.

Build your window boxes of good strong material, so that the constant moisture will not warp and destroy it. Make several holes in the bottom to permit of drainage, and put in a layer of leaves or compost to keep the flowers cool.

Trailing Annuals Make Beautiful Subjects for Window Boxes. A few pieces of broken crockery will help to keep the soil loose and assist in drainage.

On account of the small amount of soil in a window box, it is necessary to give your flowers plenty of water and fertilizer. Plant food should be applied with a spoon in a manner that will assure none getting on the stalk; a tablespoon a week during the early period will suffice. In exceptionally hot weather, water the box twice a day.

Annuals of tall and erect stature are not suitable for window boxes; plant those that climb or spread, and by all means have some that will hang down, such as the petunia.

Midland Sailor On USS Boat Tells Of Rescue Off China

MIDLAND—The guy who wrote "Why Can't This Night Go On Forever?" hadn't stood on the blistering deck of a burning ship, watching during the night for the searchlight of a rescuer, writes H. L. Wood, Midland sailor who recently was rescued from the U. S. S. Fulton off Hong Kong.

In a letter to his parents, Wood writes: "I suppose I'm just a shipwrecked sailor. I've read about the man without a country—but he was lucky as compared with the fellow who lost his ship. "We're back in Hong Kong, and our rich Uncle is paying the bills. I'm sure you noticed in the public prints about our disaster. The U. S. S. Fulton, gunboat, left Hong Kong at 3 o'clock p. m., speed 12 knots, and fire broke out just after supper, catching us 42 nautical miles out. The word was passed around and I moved to my fire station. Nothing could be done—what with the power off and lights failing to work. Our wireless went haywire, and we got only one SOS out.

"The captain went to the bridge 10 minutes later and passed the word around to abandon ship. This was not found to be easy, as we couldn't get all the boats to the ocean because of flames flaring up around them. About 60 of us were aft, 40 forward, the rest in the boats. We put on life jackets and stood by after dumping overboard all gasoline drums.

"We made up our minds to stay with ship as long as possible as the waves were high and the wind was blowing in the general direction of the States. Not an encouraging situation, you'll agree.

"We kept sending up rockets. In about an hour a merchant ship came up but lay off a half mile, afraid of an explosion. The Chinese crew wouldn't move a boat from its davit, and was of no assistance whatsoever.

"It was surprising how calm were the officers and crew, even though the ship appeared doomed. One fellow came around to the various stations with a pan of doughnuts, and our Catholic cook, exceptionally religious, invoked protection from the deity on us without allowing his voice to quaver.

"I shall have to cut down on the length of this yarn—too much happened that night to chronicle on paper, anyway. This much, however: I was among the last to leave the ship. The most beautiful thing I ever saw were the searchlight beams of HMS Wishart as the Britisher steamed at 26 knots to our rescue. Thanks to the British flag, we were picked out of the troughs and carried aboard, where we were given warm clothing, a dash of rum and something hot to eat.

"That's about all except that a ship is coming in from Manila after us. We go back to Manila, where the weather always fits the clothes. In the meantime, we're seeing above life as far as possible. I danced so much last night with my Portuguese queen that my feet are swollen today."

TEXAS TOPICS

By Raymond Brooks

By RAYMOND BROOKS. A meeting of the interstate commission on conflicting taxation, further to discuss uniform state taxation policies and the division of the field between federal and state taxation, is expected soon by Sen. Ben G. Oneal of Wichita Falls, Texas and Southwestern member of this commission. Several past meetings have been held in Chicago and in Washington.

One theory of tax policy considered by the national commission has new but arresting aspects. It is that in the collection of such levies as the gasoline tax, all the collecting, and all the machinery for collection, should be in charge of the federal government, with the proceeds allocated in part back to the states.

Whatever good or bad about this, it would have the effect of relieving the states—all of them—of very heavy losses on interstate goods which is beyond the reach now of state levies.

Such a federal system of collecting taxes for the states might possibly remedy such a situation as the export of Texas natural gas, the state being able to levy on only 1-75 the ultimate revenues of the product—and able to collect that only out of the Texas revenues on the natural resources.

Compt. George H. Sheppard has filed with the state board of education an estimate showing the total annual revenue to the state public school fund to be $28,180,000. Out of this, the buying of textbooks for free use has been budgeted at $1,384,343 for this year.

On the estimates, Compt. Sheppard estimated the revenues should be sufficient to meet this year's $16 per capita apportionment to the 1,575,742 scholars, and $1 per capita to the unpaid apportionment.

Besides this total of direct revenues, the legislature has appropriated $3,000,000 a year general funds for rural aid.

Chief sources of the 28 million revenues include: Ad valorem tax to schools, $9,000,000; poll taxes, $1,000,000; oil taxes, $2,250,000; gasoline tax, $7,000,000; cigarette tax, $3,500,000; interest on bonds, $1,650,000.

A sidelight on a political race is that E. Rex Waller of Trinity county, who announced for state treasurer, is Edward R. Waller. Edwin Waller of San Marcos is known over the state from several political campaigns he has made. The new candidate decided on "Rex" to avoid confusion with the other Waller. The two men are but distantly, if at all, related.

A court action in San Mateo, Cal., revealed the Burt Burt ranch, which included the entire San Francisco peninsula in Spanish California days, had dwindled to a single acre.

Laboratories and proving grounds of the Akron concern are said to have been working on the new product for almost two years, during which it was subjected to the most severe tests that could be devised definitely to establish its merits.

Description of the tire could not be obtained, but there is said to be no question as to the reliability of the informant. Further inference is that a newspaper advertising campaign of national scope would be used shortly to introduce the new tire to American motorists.

The agricultural department of the University of Kentucky says the outlook for tobacco growers in that state has improved greatly since last year.

Writer Of Best Article On Texas Wild Flowers To Receive Award From Beautification Committee

SAN ANGELO—The West Texas Chamber of Commerce, for years sponsor of town beautification in the West Texas territory, Tuesday announced an award of a $100 prize to the author of the best feature article on Texas wild flowers in a contest being conducted by the Texas Women's Press Association. Mrs. Ross Woodall, editor of the Huntsville Item is chairman of the contest committee.

Houston Harte, San Angelo, is chairman of the regional chamber's beautification committee which has affiliated with it local beautification committees in one hundred and five West Texas cities and towns. The local committees sponsor the West Texas Inter-Community Beautification contest among the several cities of West Texas, and the winner of the contest is each year given a silver living cup at the annual convention.

That puts the well-known onus where it belongs. It contemplates no probation, no doctrine of second chances, no emotional lectures on temperance or on defending the fair name of dead old N. U. The student who drinks has thereby expelled himself, neatly and completely. The law can be stated in four words. Drink and you're out.

The only chance for failure which this policy offers lies in the danger that exceptions may be made in special instances, toward special individuals or groups.

Some of the people will discover, our citizens being what they are, that liquor can be dealt with in two ways, and no more, whether by a university or a nation: Prohibition or booze, ad lib.

The country's present mess is due to the childlike belief of public officials, from the President down, that somewhere there can be found a plan for taking out of liquor every variety of unpleasant kick—the fiscal, social, political and police department kick—and kick-back.

Alice in Wonderland, who was a highly sensible girl, would know better than that. And evidently Northwestern does, too.

So the edict goes forth to the student: Touch not, taste not, handle not, lest in a thoughtless moment you find yourself on Sheridan Road with instructions to keep moving.

There's no nonsense about that sort of Prohibition—Christian Advocate. (Submitted By Local W.C.T.U.)

A saving of $3.75 on one dress due to making her own garment by the help of foundation pattern is reported by Mrs. Jack Marshbanks, wardrobe demonstrator of the Deep Creek Home Demonstration Club in Shackelford county. "My pattern has given me confidence and ability to design and make my clothes at a great saving," she says. The foundation pattern is the biggest single contribution the Extension Service has made to good dress at low cost during the depression.

Wooden checks placed in ditches failing to stop erosion, Emil Brezike of Guadalupe county has turned to the county agent for a terracing system. It is now under construction and solves a drainage problem as well as soil washing. Its cost, Mr. Brezike says, is less than what has already been spent to check erosion.

A winter gopher campaign in Nacogdoches county resulted in poison distribution on 55,000 acres of land. The work was done by U. S. Biological Survey, CWA and the county agent.

The family food supply for 1934 has been planned out and budgeted by 279 farm women in Angelina county in cooperation with the home demonstration agent.

Out in Imperial Community in Pecos county folks have had to go 12 miles for a drink of water. Now the county agent reports that one member of the community, Mr. Johns, has built a 40x50-foot barn equipped to drain rainwater from roof in a cistern. Others are expected to follow this example.

Chester Smith down in Webb county tells the county agent that he could dump his silage cutter into the river and still be ahead of the game. A saving of $100 per month in feed bills has more than paid the expense of digging silos, buying machinery and filling the trenches.

LOCKHART—In a move to get the necessary fruit supply for the family produced at home on the farm, a family orchard campaign recently conducted in Caldwell county has resulted in the purchase of 1675 fruit trees by 94 families reports A. O. Hebel, county agent. The last day of the campaign was devoted to instruction in planting and care of the trees. It was pointed out that a half-acre fruit plot will give a family of five their fruit needs in ordinary years. If fruit is not produced on the farm or the crop fails, certain garden crops may substitute for fruit in the garden, home demonstration agents say. Tomatoes are an excellent substitute and there are instances in Texas where tomatoes have been used exclusively for nearly a year without other fruit, and health maintained. Melons, rhubarb and rosele are also fruit substitutes.

CHILDRESS—Sweet clover, alfalfa and lespedeza plantings are on the increase in Childress county this year because of the cotton acreage reduction program, according to V. E. Hafner, county agent. Some demonstrators have planted spring plots of alfalfa but most of them are preparing the ground for fall sowings.

One demonstrator, Joe King, has prepared a 10-acre field by building a "syrup pan terracing system." It is so arranged that any time there is running water the entire plot of ground will be flooded.

LA GRANGE—Milk production was held above normal all last winter on one-half the usual allowance of grain in the herd of Ivan Perry, Fayette county dairy demonstrator. The secret was the feeding of plenty of alfalfa hay and also grazing the cows on the alfalfa field during dry spells. Mr. Perry milks 9 cows and has 9 1/2 acres of alfalfa. He cut the crop four times last year, which was a dry season. When turning cows on the alfalfa they are allowed to remain only 30 minutes the first time and are gradually let to stay longer as they become accustomed to it, but never more than half a day.

Methodist Women Devote Session To Study Of The Bible

The Bible study of the Women Missionary Society of the First Methodist church opened with a devotional Monday afternoon at the church. Mrs. O. M. Waters took as her topic "Practical Aim of Methodism."

She said that the idea of the pioneer Methodist was to reform the continent and spread the spirit of holiness throughout the land. The supreme aim of Methodism is salvation of souls. It began in a desire for assurance of God's saving love and has continued because men and women in successive generations have found this desire may be satisfied.

During the business session Mrs. Waters was elected as superintendent of the program and World Outlook. She appointed Mrs. W. H. Remel as publicity chairman. The members voted to hold their fourth Monday social on Tuesday of next week, instead of Monday, because of the banquet being given Methodist high school senior girls on Monday evening at the church. The hour will be 2:30. On the special committee were named: Mmes. Jack Nall, Russell Manion, W. A. Miller and Miss Marion McDonald.

Mrs. J. B. Pickle led the study. The purpose of the study she said was to make more loyal and informed Methodists of the women and better Christians. The consuming desire of early Methodists was to save souls. That is still first today she continued.

At the social meeting next Tuesday Mrs. C. C. Carter and other delegates to the Northwest Texas Women's Missionary Conference in Lubbock will give their reports.

Mrs. Weaver To Be Junior G. A. Leader

The Junior G. A.'s of the First Baptist church had a social program Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. L. Gomillion, where they were introduced to their new sponsor, Mrs. Weaver, who is taking over the G. A.'s for the future.

After an interesting program, refreshments were served. The group went to the City Park for the remainder of the afternoon. Those enjoying this outing in addition to Mmes. Gomillion and Weaver were: Sylvia Pond, Julia Cochran, Betty Carroll Woods, Betty Joy Shettleworth, Betty Dooley, Roe and Nora Jean Taylor, Alma Bjork, Maurine Bledsoe, Anna Sue Foster and Jewel Montiehl.

Inspirational Program By Presbyterian Women

The members of the First Presbyterian Auxiliary gave an inspirational program Monday afternoon at the church with Mrs. W. Cunningham, president, in charge and Mrs. J. L. Littler as program chairman.

It was an interesting meeting. During the business session the women completed their plans to assist in the entertaining of the presbytery commencing with the meeting tonight and continuing throughout Thursday.

Fifth Monday Meet Planned By Auxiliary

"The Never Failing Light" was taken up by the members of St. Mary's Auxiliary as a study book for this spring. At the meeting Monday in the Parish House Mrs. O. L. Thomas gave the first chapter.

Mrs. Van Gleason told the members of the work done by the El Paso church and auxiliary.

During the business session time was devoted to making plans for the fifth Monday meeting at which the Auxiliary will be hostesses week after next.

Present were: Mmes. Thomas, Shine Phillips, John Clarke, George Garrette, E. V. Spence, H. S. Faw and V. Van Gleason.
