LIFT ARMS CARGO ON ETHIOPIA

Prohibit Shipment of Cotton into Italy

Plans of the

to Italy will go into effect, while at the present embargo shipment into Ethiopia is permitted.

The League of Nations committee has recommended that an embargo be placed on shipments to Italy, in return for an embargo by Italy against shipments to Ethiopia.

The committee plans to present its recommendations to the League of Nations today. If they are accepted, the embargo will take effect immediately.

Rumor

are more than rumors, said that Ethiopians had resisted the Italian army at Aduwa, and that the Italians had massacred
the son of 2500 Italians.
Sources reported that the situation was quiet and that

Los Angeles Forges Boulder Dam Links

Steadily the work goes forward of linking Los Angeles and its hinterland with Boulder Dam, the last activities that will bring victory to the coast in its long battle with the desert. At the left tractors are shown unwinding great drums of cable which will be strung on steel towers 800 to 1000 feet apart. Across 270 miles of mountains and deserts this slender thread has been spinning its way for two years toward the giant generators at the dam, to carry 275,000 volts that will furnish power and light to the Los Angeles section. At the right men are working on the great skeleton of the Colorado River aqueduct. These huge conduits will carry a billion gallons of water a day to the thirsty cities.

Protest Discrimination in Railway Cotton Shipment

Local Compress Victim Custom

Protests were wired by R. S. Greene, chairman of the Industrial Committee of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce, yesterday to the Texas-Louisiana Tariff Bureau, Dallas, and to Attorney General William McCraw, stating that the Memphis Chamber of Commerce was against the tariff which permits the Fort Worth and Denver and Wichita Valley Lines to move cotton past other compresses on their lines into Childress and Wichita Falls.

The telegrams were an outgrowth of recent shipments of cotton past the Memphis Compress into Childress.

A conference was held last night in Dallas, with Attorney General William McCraw in attendance, at which time protective and development associations of this section and representatives from various towns met to discuss legal phases of the cotton movement and the application of tariff rules.

It is the contention of the Interior Protective and Development Association that the tariff rules are discriminatory against the Memphis Compress.

TEACHERS MEET TOMORROW HERE

County Instructors to Discuss School Problems

A joint meeting of all Hall County school teachers is to be held in the Memphis High School Auditorium in the morning at 9 o'clock, the purpose of the meeting being to discuss common problems and to work out difficulties of individual schools and teachers.

Irby B. Carruth, superintendent of the Canyon Public Schools, was to have been guest speaker on the program, but he notified the Hall County School Superintendent yesterday that he would be unable to be present.

After the general session, departmental and separate meetings will be held, with principals of the various schools in charge.

RECEIVE COTTON CERTIFICATES YESTERDAY

Farmers Asked Get Them at Agent's Office

Replacement certificates for Hall County cotton producers were received by John C. Myers, assistant cotton reduction man here, and are ready for distribution at the local county agricultural agent's office.

The certificates represent those which were unused in 1934 because of small crops and which were not placed in the United States Government cotton pool. Those who offered the certificates for exchange are asked to call at the county agent's office and call for them.

Those certificates which represent unsold equity in the national cotton pool have not been received as yet, Mr. Myers said.

CYCLONE AGAIN OUTWEIGHED BY FOE

Memphis Gridders to Enter Game as Under Dogs

When the Memphis High School Cyclone engages the powerful McLean Tigers tonight on Cyclone Field in a conference football skirmish, the local eleven will enter a game as the "under-dogs" for the fourth time in as many contests played this year.

In the preceding three clashes, the Cyclone has fought its way to victory, and a near-capacity crowd of 1,500 fans is expected to turn out tonight to see the Memphis black and gold warriors "shoot the works" in an attempt to run it to four in a row.

And for the fourth time, Memphis will go into the fray tonight under a heavy weight handicap. Coach Chesty Walker will start probably the smallest team tonight that has ever donned the back and gold for Memphis to do battle. The Cyclone team, according to weights released by Coach Walker and verified by a Democrat sports scribe, will average exactly 141 pounds.

Coach Bill Allen's McLean Tigers, according to weights released from that town, weigh a fraction over 160 pounds, giving the Tigers a weight advantage of slightly over 19 pounds to the man.

Memphis enthusiasts, however, point to last week's game, when the Cyclone was outweighed 12 pounds to the man but fought the heavier team off its feet.

Coach Walker is forced to start a smaller club this week because of injuries. Fred Sanders, 190-pound tackle, will be held on the side-lines because of an injured knee. Childress, diminutive half-back, will start for the larger Ferrell, and Malone, almost wholly recuperated after a three weeks' injury, is expected to start at right end, replacing Garvis Davis, who carries 30 pounds more weight.

In the event that McLean wins the toss and elects to receive, Coach Walker will likely send in either Ferrell or Sanders to make the opening kick-off, as both boys have a habit of booting the oval over the goal line.

With the exceptions of Davis and Ferrell, tonight's line-up for the Cyclone will be the same as last week. This will send Capt. Bud McAbee from his center post to tackle and Benjie Estes to the pivot position.

EAST SIDE GETS GRAVEL

IN our editorial Wednesday, anent the street graveling program now coming up, we bespoke for the East Side consideration in the improvement of streets, with particular attention to East Noel to the CCC Camp.

Since then we have had occasion to examine a project map showing the streets graveled last time and those to be improved this time, and we find that the City Council is looking after the interest of the East Side in this matter in a way which deserves commendation.

In fact, the East Side, which comprises about one-twentieth of the city, is to get approximately one-fifth of the new street improvement. About twenty blocks are to be graded and graveled in the new program.

And we are informed that the first street it was decided to graveled was the balance of East Noel to the CCC Camp.

We take off our hats to the Council. They are planning to do the very thing we wanted them to do, and had planed it before we suggested it. The only trouble is that they didn't let us know about it before we wrote the editorial in question.

That is one of the joys of being a newspaper editor.

If you write an article which meets with the people's approval, you seldom hear anything about it.

But if you want to hear from an article, write it about something that somebody doesn't approve of, and you'll hear from it—and how.

Anyway, we know now that somebody at least reads our editorials.

BEHIND THE SCENE IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCH
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—More than a year before the administration has kissed them goodby.

Everyone here admits the land is sore and the mood is that hardly anything has been done about it. Optimists say business will improve to such that Roosevelt can hold the setta and Rhode Island captured in 1932 while New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut were reassessed traditional Republicanism. Traveling recently in the east corner of the nation correspondent undertook to find out more about this state of affairs. There were many hangovers from the brand of Republicanism formerly called "reactionary" no area is more horrified at the spending program. Put the big ball on the England neck is the state textile industry and Roosevelt generally blamed for failure to reduce the size and pain.

The New England situation was ably outlined to me by Brewster, publisher of the Bedford Standard-Times. Brewster was one of the Englishers who felt they were stacked against the new cotton-textile industry. Roosevelt appointed to the committee consisting of Senator Hull, a low tariff man; Senator Wallace, high priest of the tariff; and Secretary of Labor Perkins. The committee report, Brewster says, is "washout."

The south's low wage situation was abundantly clear to me. AAA cotton processing and Japanese textile imports are chief sore spots and the factor is primary in the transfer of northern mills to move south.

Recently the big Peppers manufacturing Co. reported a year business of about $2,000,000 and a loss of about $1 million. The concern has $4,000,000 in processing in New England and it is the only company which has had a loss between an even break and $3,500,000 profit.

The AAA replies that the uniform among all mills and losses would have been without it, because cotton is such a fiercely competitive industry.

The Peppers estimate it could produce 10 per cent above southern and operate profitably. The average textile wage differential between north and south is from 15 to 17 per cent.

With NEA and its differential cut and an strong New England against "tinkering with the situation," conservative men feel organized labor solve the problem by a organization campaign in the—with fewer strikes in the high wage area, where ranks are strong.

Here arises another question, because cotton farmers aged only $400 cash income a year (it was $242 two years ago), indicating a cheap labor reservoir which threaten a higher wage structure.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JEAN DUNN, pretty, 21-year-old secretary, and BOBBY WALLACE, young automobile salesman, spent an evening at The Golden Feather night club.

ART LANNING, the proprietor, introduces SANDY HARKINS to them. Sandy explains he is in Dover on business. He and Jean dance. When he asks if he can telephone her she evades.

Later LARRY GLENN, friend of Jean's father, joins Jean and Bobby. Glenn is a lawyer, now engaged in government work. Bobby and Jean are both delighted to see him.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, talks with Jean and Bobby. After they leave MIKE HAGAN, detective on the local police force, joins Larry, who shows him several photographs of a pretty girl and asks, "Ever see her before?"

Explaining his presence in Dover, Larry recites details of a recent bank robbery.

Sandy telephoned Jean on a day when she has the afternoon off from work and they go for a horseback ride. He kisses her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

When she got home that evening Jean discovered that her conscience was rather disturbed about the kiss.

"What sort of girl do you call yourself, anyway?" asked Conscience, indignantly. "The very first time you've been out with a man, too! And you've always prided yourself on the fact that you didn't like to be mauled and petted!"

"But that wasn't mauling and petting," answered Jean. "It was—it was just a little kiss. And anyhow, it happened before I knew it was coming."

"Oh, yeah?" said Conscience. "I've heard that before."

"Well, it did," insisted Jean. "And what's the harm? It didn't mean anything. And he—he didn't even try to do it again, or—"

"Well, I must say, that's a very weak sort of defense," Conscience replied. "It wasn't your fault he didn't try to do it again."

"It was so! I drew away and I told him—"

"Oh, you told him! Since when did that mean anything? And besides, what would Bobby say?"

"Well, Bobby just isn't going to know. And it isn't going to happen again, so what's the use of making all this fuss over it?"

That wasn't the most satisfactory reply imaginable, perhaps, but it would have to do. And the feeling of guilt that stayed in the back of Jean's mind made her especially nice to Bobby when he called for her, after dinner to take her to a movie; and when he told her good night, later, she let him kiss her three times to make up for it, so that that young man went home both pleased and puzzled.

Sandy called her up Sunday morning and suggested another ride. She put him off on the ground that she had another engagement. He called her up Sunday evening, apparently for no reason except that he wanted to tell her that she was tops. He called her at the office Monday morning and asked if she could have lunch with him, and when she said that she could not he begged her to dine with him that evening.

"Sandy, I can't," she said. "I'm all tied up this week."

"Yeah?" said Sandy cheerfully. "Baby you aren't fooling me at all. You better get yourself untied pretty quick, or I'll come up there and pull you out by that pretty yellow hair of yours. I'm not fooling' sister. You're the nicest thing I've seen in all my travels, and I'm going to see plenty more of you, Puhenty!"

Conscience bestirred itself for one final jab, after he had hung up.

"You see?" it inquired caustically. "You see what comes of that one harmless little kiss?"

When she got home that night, Jean found a huge box of roses waiting for her. And the next noon, when she went out for lunch, she stepped from the elevator into the lobby of the office building and found Sandy lounging there, waiting for her.

He grinned broadly, stepped confidently, tucked her arm into his, and said, "Now where's a good place to eat, anyhow? I bet you're hungry."

Helplessly, laughing, she suffered herself to be led along. He took her to a restaurant where she never lunched—it was too expensive for the budget of a girl who was earning her own living—and got a table in a sheltered corner, behind a clump of palms.

When they had ordered he looked at her with mock sternness.

"Now," he said, "suppose you tell me why you've ducked me so hard!"

"I'm not ducking you," she protested.

"Yes, you are. What's the big idea? Don't I wear the right kind of necktie, or have I got spots on my vest, or do I need a haircut or something? Why can't I ever have another date with you?"

"I didn't say you never could. My goodness, you're rushing things, aren't you?"

"Why not? I don't believe in being backward, when the prettiest girl in the whole state is floating around loose right under my nose."

"Well, but—" she hesitated. "You see, Sandy, I'm not really floating around loose. I'm—I'm really engaged." And she was furious with herself when she found herself adding the words, "practically, anyhow."

Sandy cocked a humorous eye at her.

"Practically engaged, eh? Good Lord, baby, go ahead and be engaged. I'm not going to eat you up. No harm in that, is there?"

"No, but the whole idea of being engaged is to get married, isn't it? And if you're already engaged, why are you still floating around loose?"

The CATACOMBS RESTORED

WHEN the Treaty of Conciliation was signed between Italy and the Vatican, in 1929, one of the invaluable possessions of Christianity which was returned to papal control was the more than 500 miles of catacombs dug in a maze of tunnels beneath the city of Rome. These catacombs were the burial places of Christians in Roman times. In the third century they harbored Christians fleeing from pagan persecution.
 By the fifth century, the cata-combs were neglected, then ransacked by the Goths and Lombards, and finally forgotten. They were rediscovered in 1578.

Returned to the sovereignty of the Holy See, the catacombs are being restored. To aid financially in this effort, Spain late in 1925 issued the stamp shown here. It

Jean nodded.

"Why, he's a nice kid," said Sandy. "When you going to get married?"

"Well not right away," said Jean helplessly. "I mean, you see he's just getting started, and—"

"What's he do?"

"He's an auto salesman."

"Who's he with?"

"He's with the — oh Sandy, what's the use of questioning me like this? I've gone with him ever since I was in high school. I just don't think I— I ought to have dates, that's all."

"Aw, these aren't regular dates I'm asking for. I just want to see you sometimes. No harm in that."

But Jean remained adamant, and when the lunch was finished and Sandy had escorted her back to her office and gone away, she told her conscience savagely, "Now—I do hope you're satisfied!"

That night she went out to dinner with Bobby. But whereas Conscience, on their last date, had caused her to be especially nice to him, it all seemed to work with reverse English this time, and she found herself being irritable and disagreeable.

As they were finishing their dessert, Bobby looked at her anxiously.

"What's the matter tonight, honey?" he asked. "Aren't you feeling well?"

"I'm all right," she said. "Just — just a little tired, or something, I guess."

He looked at her fondly.

"You're working too hard," he announced. "Honey, when you going to quit that old office and let me take care of you? That's what you need."

"It is not!" she snapped—and instantly became contrite at the hurt look in his eyes. "Oh, Bobby, I didn't mean it that way," she said, taking his hand. "But don't you see—I can't just drop everything and marry you until you're really able to take care of me. We can't jump into marriage until we're ready for it. Financially, I mean."

Instead of being wounded by this, Bobby only laughed.

"That," he said with mock sadness, "is what I get for being in love with the daughter of a bank president."

She flushed, and laughed aggressively.

"You always make me sound like a gold-digger," she protested.

"Well, I'm doing all right, these days," he said. "We could get along fine."

"Please, Bobby," she said. "Let's not argue about it tonight. Let's—let's go dance somewhere, or something, and not quarrel."

"Good idea," said Bobby. "Look—how about going back to the Golden Feather again and seeing life in the raw?"

She hesitated; and then told herself, "Oh, for pity sakes, what's the matter with you. You probably won't bump into Sandy there, and if you do, what of it?"

Aloud she said, "All right—let's." So they went out, got a taxi, and went to the night club.

School Librarian Application Placed

Duncan Applies To W. P. A. For Funds

Mr. Duncan made a trip to Plainview last week where he placed an application with the W. P. A. office for a school librarian. This means that if the application is granted, some person from the Plainview district will be sent here to act as librarian and will be paid from W. P. A. funds.

What group of girls serenaded the teachers last week and later found that they were not at home?

It seems that instead of having nine periods daily the schedule has been increased to ten, due to the fact that the detention hall list is steadily increasing.

We wonder why some of the girls have turned to gymnastics instead of lunch at noon?

The war is over; a treaty has been signed; and all is quiet again! (All of which means that at last an agreement has been reached concerning the pep squad uniforms.)

ence to the strictest library rules. If the funds are appropriated for an Estelline librarian, it will be to the advantage of the community and school in a number of respects. In the first place, it will remove the responsibility of the library from the hands of the school faculty and from those librarians chosen from the student body at large.

Estelline Cubs In Loss To Lockney

The Estelline club suffered their first defeat this year when the Lockney eleven downed the locals with a score of 21-13. The Cubs got off to a slow start and Lockney took advantage of this opportunity. Lockney made her entire twenty-one points in the

Officers Elected For Literary Club

The seventh grade has organized a book club and the following officers were elected: President, Robert E. Lee; Vice-President, Burl Lyle, Secretary, Oneta Marcum; Treasurer, Dorothy Wood; Librarian, Gene Ewen.

Those serving on the by-law first half of the game.

The score looked rather one-sided at the half, being 21-0. However, the Cubs came back in the last half, giving the appearance of a new team when they marched down the field for two touchdowns and gaining one extra point. The Cubs were certainly making a "come-back" in this portion of the game with their long steady gains threatening the security of a win for Lockney.

committee are Dean Baker, Jean Jeanings, and Albert. Those composing the committee are Winnona and Gwendolyn Richburg on the entertainment, are James Vardy, Woodgers, and Delford Stelton. Regular meetings of the club will be held every Friday.

In accordance with tradition to have entertainment this year, the club went on a picnic last Friday night, at the pass. The picnic lasted from 8:30. During this time present enjoyed various amusements after which weiners and mallows were roasted. Turning to town, the picnic concluded the affair with a melon feast. Sponsors for the occasion were Miss Schelle and Mrs. James.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Sloan and children, and Mr. Sloan's mother, Mrs. C. L. Sloan, is here from Denver, returned Wednesday from the Carlsbad Cavern.

School Address At Courthouse

Miss Vera Gilreath, superintendent of county schools, hopes that rural school teachers and patrons will benefit greatly from the address on "Standardization and Tests" that is to be given by Miss Edgar Ellen Wilson, assistant to State School Superintendent L. A. Wood, tonight in the district court room at 7:30 o'clock.

Hall County has only six state standardized schools this year, and Miss Vera Gilreath wishes to have 19 by next year. But for the standardized tests, there would be 19 such schools in the county now.

Miss Wilson, Miss Gilreath, R. C. Householder, supervisor of adult education in Memphis; Mrs. Agnes Bailey, supervisor of adult education in Estelline and Turkey, and R. M. Holt, supervisor of adult education in Lakeview, were guests of the Plaska Parent-Teachers Association at a luncheon today noon.

All school patrons and teachers are requested to attend the meeting in the district court room tonight. A prize of $2.50 will be given the county school having the largest attendance.

JUDGE AT SAMNORWOOD James A. Jackson, Hall County Agricultural Agent, left this morning for Samnorwood, where he will take part in the community fair there. Mr. Jackson will have charge of the judging for some of the agricultural exhibits.

High Iron Content

Product of the sugar cane, has not been deprived of portant minerals and other ements that the plant con- tains. It is a good source of cal- cium, phosphorus and iron. Small quantities of other minerals, vita- mins and a little protein are also present. A table of comparative values in foods shows that molasses has more iron than any other food. One-half cup of spinach in- cludes only one-fifth as much iron as one-half cup of molasses. So even though you won't eat all his spinach, molasses will take out the iron.

Molasses Cookies

One cup butter and lard mixed, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup baking molasses, 1-2 cup sour milk, 1 tablespoon ginger, 2 teaspoons soda, 4 1-2 cups flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt.
 Cream shortening and add sugar. Of course you can use any shortening you prefer. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Dissolve 1 teaspoon soda in molasses and add to first mixture. Add half the flour. Dissolve remaining soda in sour milk and add to mixture. Mix well and add remaining flour. Roll on a lightly floured molding board into a sheet not too thin. These cookies are the thick, soft kind that big and little boys dote on. Cut with floured cutter. Bake fifteen minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.)

Hollis Defeats Childress Squad

Over a score of Memphis football fans journeyed to Childress last night and say the Hollis, Okla., High School Tigers defeat the Childress Bobcats 7-0.
 Hollis scored in the opening minutes of play, by receiving the kick-off and unleashing a steady line drive that carried half the distance of the field and penetrated the Childress goal line.
 Childress threatened several times, once in the third quarter when they drove the ball to the one-yard line but bogged down.

War News-

Dr. Edward Benes was making another appeal for peace. Italian correspondents advise that Makale, fifty miles south of Adigrat, was the next objective of the northern army. Italian sources reported that the difficulty in constructing roads would probably halt advances shortly. Emperor Selassie scotched rumors that he was ready to make peace with the statement to the League that Ethiopia would never capitulate.

Local Compress-

ment Association, as well as the local Chamber of Commerce, that most of the cotton shipments originating in Texas are intrastate, and that they cannot be moved past local compresses because the Texas Railroad Commission intrastate tariff rules required cotton under the carload rates to be compressed, consolidated and concentrated at the first compress in either direction from the point of origin, except that a standard density compress may be passed to reach a high density compress. The density of the Childress compress is the same as that of the Memphis Compress, a representative of the local Chamber of Commerce said.

It is further contended that the Fort Worth and Denver and Wichita Valley Lines are passing compresses by the illegal application of the interstate rules to intrastate shipments. A large number of West Texas communities, local chambers of commerce, South Plains Freight Association, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and other associations have called this matter to the attention of the Texas Railroad Commission and to the Attorney General and have requested them, after investigation, if the contentions are correct, to notify the offending carriers that prosecution will be made.

Payne accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Durrett to Quanah Tuesday. Mrs. E. N. Hudgins and Mrs. George Dickson and daughter, Marcella, went to Clarendon yesterday and were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Ward Hicks. Mrs. Hudgins and Mrs. Dickson returned and Mrs. Dickson remained to spend until this afternoon. Mrs. C. L. Sloan Sr., of Denver, Colo., is here for an extended visit with her son, C. L. Sloan Jr. She will also visit her daughter, Mrs. Ollie Davidson, at Estelline.

BRICE BOY DIES

Gene Eldon Hallford 4 1/2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hallford of the Brice community died yesterday at 12:30 o'clock in a local hospital following a short illness of diphtheria.

The funeral services for Gene Eldon were conducted this morning at 11 o'clock at the Lakeview cemetery with Rev. Ray Britter, pastor of the Lakeview Baptist church conducting the services. Burial in the Lakeview cemetery with King Mortuary in charge.

Besides his parents three sisters survive.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Cudd arrived yesterday from Corpus Christi for a visit with their sons, E. E. and J. H. Cudd. They will also visit their son, Noel Cudd at Wellington. Mrs. Belle Pugh, who is making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Cudd in Corpus accompanied them to Memphis for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Tommie Wood.

Upset Condition Made Man Feel Tired and Weak

Black-Draught is a purely vegetable medicine for the relief of constipation. It does its work to the satisfaction of thousands of men and women who use it when needed. "I was strong and healthy until I had the flu," writes Mr. C. W. Whiddon, of Mandeville, La. "After this I was troubled with constipation that made me feel tired and sluggish and weak. Black-Draught helped me quite a bit. I think it is good for constipation." Remember to try Black-Draught next time you need the assistance it has so reliably brought to others. BLACK - DRAUGHT

WE SAW

Dick Dickson, one of the regulars at the county guard house, being sentenced to another term this morning, after being released last night. Dick said that the first time he got in jail here Buffalo Bill and Kit Carson were carrying the mail.

The black and gold pep squad on a practice march last night, getting in trim for tonight's contest.

Leon Johnson, one of the Democrat's Linotype ops, on parade last night with a good-looking young lady.

A small boy and girl, with a violin and mandolin, playing for a few nickles and dimes on the street this morning. The kids' instruments were not so hot, but they did a fairly good job with them.

Some of our folks worrying about the counterfeit $20 bills reported to be in circulation. Personally, we haven't seen a genuine $20 bill in so long, we refuse to bother about the phonies.

Which reminds us of the time Josh Lamb passed a lead quarter on Jim Webster. When Jim objected, Josh told him it didn't make any difference, that he'd never spend it anyway. At least, that's the story Bill Huddleston told us.

Mrs. Jack Norman, Inez Mason and "Top" Gilreath conspiring to steal some flowers off the courthouse lawn. Quick Watson call out the G men.

Childress feature lateral passes and a left-handed drummer at the football game in that city last night. Surprising what some of these small towns can uncover.

Mrs. Clay Crow and Homer Tribble arguing about the merits of this column. She contended that it wasn't worth reading (which opinion we sometimes hold ourselves), and Homer held out that it was. Thanks, Homer.

Bill Cosby wearing a heavy jacket and perspiring. He'd been listening to a radio report that a norther was due. And, incidentally, we just noticed that Bill's got one of those Tyrolean hats like we were kidding Ed Foxhall about, but it's so high up that we had failed to notice it until yesterday.

ATTENDS CONVENTION

Mrs. J. A. Whaley left this morning for San Antonio, where she goes as representative of the Christian church, to attend the National Church Convention convening in San Antonio, Oct. 15. She will visit friends at points en route to the convention. Mr. and Mrs. James Arthur Anthony left Mrs. Whaley as far as Wichita Falls, where they will visit Anthony's brother, T. C. Anthony, and attend the football game Friday night between Wichita and Vernon.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Morgan and son, George Dean, left this morning to spend until Monday Altus and Snyder, Okla., on business and to visit with relatives.
