Another Sandstorm Sweeps Over State

Associated Press
Dust clouds, driven northward, surged across the state, heralding what appears to be the year's worst sandstorm yet.

North Texas was befogged with reddish haze before temperatures were dropping. The sand made breathing difficult and near temperatures.

Strong dust struck Memphis this morning. At 10 o'clock the night was clear and calm in complete blindness. Automobiles abroad at Memphis were forced to creep along as drivers found almost zero.

The suddenness with which the storm struck and the heavy Memphis were largely by surprise, with houses were closed before one could get out.

Securities Bill Passed by House

Associated Press
AUSTIN, Mar. 27.—The House unanimously passed the administration-favored bill repealing the present blue sky law and providing new regulations for securities distribution in Texas.

The act would provide for a state securities commission appointed by the secretary of state, for licensing of all securities dealers and salesmen, and for the revocation of licenses after a hearing of evidence of fraudulent practices.

NEW TEXTILE STRIKE LOOMS

Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Mar. 27.—A warning that recent NRA authorization for a sharp cut in cotton goods production may have a "set stage" for another textile strike, was voiced today to the House Military Committee by Francis J. Gorham, textile labor leader.

DEFENSE WINS POINT FOR HAMLIN

Given Notes, Statements Made During Questioning

By Associated Press
AMARILLO, March 27.—In a hotly-contested point of law, counsel for George Hamlin, on trial here for wife murder, scored late yesterday, climaxing the eighth day of testimony.

By the court's ruling the state must turn over transcribed notes to two previous statements purported to have been made by Hamlin.

The two previous statements, Sheriff Bill Adams had testified, had been torn up at Hamlin's request, because there was "a lot of bull in them."

The third statement, offered yesterday in evidence by Grady Hazlewood, district attorney, had been described by Hamlin, the sheriff said, as "across the board and square."

Counsel Locks Horns
E. T. "Dusty" Miller, defense counsel, said he would enter no objection, if any, to the third statement until he had read the other two.

Through the court's ruling, Miller will have not only the other two statements but copies of any questions and answers taken during Hamlin's long questioning after the funeral of his wife, the former Irene Hare, who was found slain January 5.

Miller and Major E. A. Simpson, special prosecutor, locked legal horns after a late afternoon recess.

Adams, probably the last state witness, had testified the first two statements made by Hamlin were taken without warning to the accused that they might be used against him.

"This Will Never Do"
The witness also admitted under cross-examination that Hazelwood had said after looking at one of the first two statements: "My God, this will never do! It says he's crazy!"

Miller contended he was entitled to the notes on the issue of insanity.

"I demand of state's attorneys, who have these confessions or purported unwarned confessions—I demand and request they be delivered back to Mr. Minter (court reporter) in order that I may examine them, the notes to statements No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3," said Miller.

"I am entitled to introduce any defense or state witnesses," he continued and added he had a right to place the court reporter on the stand.

Clipper Plane on Hop to San Diego

Associated Press
MIAMI, Mar. 27.—Off to inaugurate a commercial trans-Pacific air route, the giant Pan-American clipper plane took off today on a flight to San Diego.

At Washington the Pan-American Airways is expected by post office department officials to begin service about April 10.

Sandstorm Yarns Become Valuable

It's all in fun. (Oh, yeah!) The sand blows, creeps in through the doors and windows, settles over the furniture, the winds tear up the fields, making spring farm work impossible, but the weatherman is just having his little joke—he isn't really serious. To prove it's all a joke, The Democrat Sunday requested its readers to send in their "pet" sandstorm stories. When the "duster" struck early this morning, Lyman Robbins, publisher of The Democrat, went berserk—it was just too much—and personally offered $2 for the best sandstorm story submitted. And if anyone else feels inclined to add to that sum—well, it wouldn't be refused by whoever produced the best yarn.

Named as Crew of 'Robot Plane' on Pacific Flight

These three men will be the "crew" of the robot-guided Douglas air liner which the army air corps will dispatch on an Oakland-Honolulu flight, to test the latest blind flying equipment. Left to right are Capt. Clayton Bissell, army co-pilot; Maj. Clarence Snow, representative of the U. S. Department of Commerce, and Capt. Albert Hegenberger, chief pilot.

Hitler Demands Full Military Equality With Western Powers

Associated Press
BERLIN, March 27.—Official sources disclosed today that Germany is demanding absolute military equality with western European powers, except for naval strength.

She wants gun for gun and man for man parity with France and probably superiority to Russia.

The Asle-German security discussions ended late yesterday, apparently without providing a solution for the single one of the major problems imperiling Europe's peace.

British representatives were obviously disappointed.

A brief, vaguely-phrased official communique revealed little other than the bare fact that the conversation, held "in the frankest and friendliest spirit," took up the matters "set out in London communique of February 3."

RELIEF GARDEN SEED ARE NOW AVAILABLE

Families on Rolls Expected To Have Own Plots

Garden seed are now available for relief clients in this county and all families on relief rolls are expected to plant gardens where it is at all possible, according to Judge A. C. Hoffman, county relief administrator.

M. C. Ward has been placed in charge of the local garden projects and all relief clients are advised to secure seed at an early date. Seed are not available for those within the rural rehabilitation division, Judge Hoffman said.

Due to several contributing factors, no community garden will be raised here for relief clients this year, according to present plans. For this reason, all relief clients are advised by Judge Hoffman to make plans to raise their own gardens.

GOOD MUSHERS

Associated Press
KINGSTON, N. H., March 27.—Mrs. Paul C. Chase's two St. Bernard dogs have been trained during the past winter to haul her and her two children on a sled wherever they desire to go. A visit to the post office is a daily routine and the dogs wait patiently outside with the small children until she returns.

MARRIAGE ENDED SPAT

Associated Press
FALL RIVER, Mass., March 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ambush were married twice in four months. After the first ceremony, Mrs. Ambush sued her husband for divorce, and Ambush sued his in-laws for alienation of affections, seeking $25,000 damages. Then they decided to make up and try it again.

BANDITS LOOT JEWELRY FIRM

Associated Press
TULSA, Mar. 27.—Two unmasked bandits held up the Ben Goldberg jewelry store today and escaped with a chauffeur confederate, taking diamonds and cash estimated worth $50,000.

The store proprietor, two clerks, a jewelry salesman and one customer were bound and gagged in the hold-up which was consummated in five minutes.

BELIEVE THEFT RING BROKEN IN AREA

Seven Men Are Held In Childress Jail After Arrests

No Hall County property was identified yesterday by Sheriff Joe Colvin and Deputy B. Wilson when the inspected goods allegedly stolen by seven men held at Childress. The seven men held in the Childress County jail are believed to be the operators of a large theft and burglary ring operating in a half dozen Panhandle counties.

Although no property taken from this county was identified, Deputy Wilson expressed the belief that many of the farm thefts and burglaries in this section can be traced to the ring believed broken by the Childress county officials.

Articles stolen in Childress, Wilbarger, Hardeman, Donley and Collingsworth counties have already been identified and efforts are being made to have other property believed stolen identified in the near future. Those arrested gave their names as Bill Fisher, A. O. Fisher, Earl Fisher, Harm-Powell, A. N. Chase, Bill Hall and Roy Jones. Arrests were made by Childress County sheriff Dick Moore and Deputy Sid Partain.

Plan Guards for Dallas Milk Cars

Associated Press
DALLAS, March 27.—Plans for shotgun convoys to guard milk trucks on their way through picket lines set up by farmers striking for higher prices were discussed by wholesalers here last night without definite action.

Sheriff Smoot Schmid answered criticism of the failure of his deputies to prevent the dumping and pollution of 4,000 gallons of milk with the comment that he had only five deputies available to guard the huge network of roads, and that there was nothing to prevent a man from guarding his own property.

Several plants were taking applications for positions as guards, but none had been hired, spokesmen for the wholesalers said.

The city health department reported that pasteurizing plants received slightly more milk during the day than on Monday, first day of the strike.

Death Penalty Given Alleged Murderer of Patrolman Is Upheld

Associated Press
AUSTIN, Mar. 27.—The Court of Criminal Appeals today affirmed the death penalty given Ramiro Galvan, the alleged killer of Ivan Scotten, border patrolman, in a gun battle near El Paso in 1929.

The battle resulted between federal officers and alleged smugglers.

Only 807 New Tags Placed on Automobiles

Automobile license tags for 1935 have been issued to less than half of the vehicles in Hall County, although only four more days remain for the legal use of 1934 tags, according to information from the office of County Tax Collector Holt Bownds.

Only 807 tags had been issued at noon today. The total number of cars in the county is expected to exceed 2,000, Mr. Bownds estimates. New tags must be used on and after April 1, he said.

Until noon today tags had been issued for only 701 passenger cars, 58 commercial trucks and 48 farm trucks in this county.

SCHOLASTIC ENUMERATION IMPORTANT

THE enumeration of children of scholastic age in all rural and independent school districts in Hall County will be completed Saturday, with final reports filed with the State Department of Education on April 1.

It is important that every child in the county of scholastic age be counted in this census, since state aid appropriations for each school are based upon the number of scholastics in each district. A child not counted will mean that the expense of its schooling for the next year will not be shared by the state.

For this reason, if any children are missed in the enumeration, the parents are urged to get in touch this week with either the enumerator or with County School Superintendent Vera Gilreath. This request should not be overlooked because of the assistance in education it assures the different schools.

LAST PLACE FOR POLITICS

WHEN the national government furnishes unemployment relief on a nation-wide scale, it is of the highest importance that the relief machinery be kept on a non-political basis. The one unpardonable sin would be for any politician to pervert a portion of it to serve his own ends.

That the government is doing its best to keep its hands clean in this respect is evidenced by recent happenings in Ohio.

The Ohio governor not long ago made a bitter attack on the relief set-up in his state, charging that it was wasteful and inefficient. Abundant evidence was immediately offered to disprove his charges; but he persisted, and the suspicion arose that what he really wanted was a chance to staff the relief agencies with his own political appointees.

Now Relief Administrator Hopkins has hit back. The governor stands accused of having permitted a "shakedown" of business men who deal with the state relief commission; and, in all, he is in a great deal of extremely hot water.

This particular effort to lay political hands on the relief machinery has brought its author nothing but trouble.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MILlicent GRAVES' employer, GEORGE DRIMGOLD, tells her he has a confession to dictate and warns her against a woman in a black ermine coat.
Millicent leaves the office and sees such a woman. Later she finds her purse has been taken and a similar one substituted. In the elevator she meets a distinguished-looking man of middle age.
Returning to the office, Millicent finds Drimgold dead. In panic she rushes away and registers at a hotel under an assumed name. Next day she meets the stranger again. He tells her his name is JARVIS HAPP. Happ sends her to a beauty shop where, in spite of her protests, she is transformed into a brunet.
Happ takes her home, introducing her as his secretary. He gives her a suitcase filled with accounts and asks her to open a set of books. Happ's son, NORMAN, tells her not to trust his step-brother, ROBERT CAISE. She says, "There seems to be some menacing personality dominating the household," and Norman exclaims, "The woman in black ermine!"
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER X
Millicent Graves felt pulses pounding in her neck. She moved toward Norman Happ. Unconsciously her hand reached out and rested on his sleeve, as though to keep him from leaving her until she had the information she desired.
"What do you mean?" she asked. "What do you know about a woman in a black ermine coat?"
He stared at her speculatively. Slowly, his right hand slid along his left forearm until it had come to a rest upon the back of her hand, holding it tightly.
"What do you know about it?" he asked.
"I don't know," she said. "That is, I can't tell you. Please don't make me tell. Just tell me. Explain what you mean. Who is she?"
"I think," he said, "she's a psychic—one of those astrological nuts—but she's got Cynthia completely hypnotized."
"Does she come here?"
"You mean the woman in the black coat?"
"Yes."
"Three or four times she's been here."
"Have you seen her?"
"Twice."
"Have you seen her face. Would you know her if you saw her again?"
Norman Happ shook his head impatiently.
"Why all these questions?" he asked. "What interest is it of yours?"
"Would you know her if you saw her again?"
"I've only glimpsed her in a dark corridor. I've never seen her face. That's why I've described her as the woman in a black ermine coat. It's a rich fur with a high collar. She walks with quick, nervous steps, as though she were always in a hurry."
"Then how do you know she runs the house?"
"I didn't say she ran the house."
"You intimated as much."
"No, I said she had a strange influence over Cynthia."
"What is it? Tell me more about her."
"I've already told you all I know. She's engaged in one of those rackets—numerology, or astrology or something of the sort."
"But," Millicent said, "they're all of them different. She isn't proficient in all of them, is she?"
"I think she's just an adventuress," Norman said. "One of those racketeers who go around looking for people to victimize."
"What makes you think that?"
"Because of the funny things that happen. Every time Cynthia gets in touch with this woman there's some unusual and unpleasant development."
"Can't you tell me more clearly?"
"There's nothing much to tell. The woman comes here and has a seance with Cynthia. I don't know just what goes on. Whatever it is it leaves Cynthia all exhausted. She takes to her room and stays there. Her personal maid is posted at the door, with orders to admit no one, and the door is

The KING WHO QUIT for A RIGHT

POPULAR Prajadhipok I, former king of Siam, is a private citizen in a foreign land because he refused to relinquish an old hereditary right by which the king alone held power of life and death over his subjects. Absolute monarch of Siam for eight years, Prajadhipok submitted to constitutional government in 1932, but when the national assembly sought to amend the king's right to approve sentences of death or life imprisonment, he abdicated. His 11-year-old nephew, Ananda Mahidol, ascends the throne.
Soon Prajadhipok's features on Siam's stamps will be replaced by those of the new monarch. Until then, four different issues want the features of the former ruler to the stamp world.

NEXT: What is the last of the free cities?

Slowly Norman's arms came around her. Then he drew her to him.

locked and kept locked. It's some time next day before Cynthia will see anyone. Then she comes staggering out, looking white and drawn. She hasn't eaten, and she doesn't look as though she'd slept.
"And then what happens?"
"Then she does goofy things. She puts a lot of new plans into execution. You can't ever tell what she'll do. Perhaps you'll be getting along fine and giving satisfactory service, and then this woman in the black ermine coat will call on Cynthia, and the next day Cynthia will come out of her room looking like a ghost, with a paper on which she's written a lot of the first things may be firing you."
"But I wasn't hired by her," Millicent said. "I was hired by your father."
"That won't make any difference," Norman said. "If she comes out of her room with it written on a piece of paper that you're fired, you'll be fired. I don't care who hired you or what your arrangement is."
"And you think that's likely to happen?"
"Heavens, No! I just mentioned it because it's just typical of some of the things that she's done."
"And your father puts up with this?" she asked. "This business of having his house run by an astrologer?"
"He puts up with it," Norman Happ said gloomily. "That's one of the things I don't like."
He hesitated a moment, then added, in a burst of confidence, "Father is dreadfully unhappy. The whole household is hostile to him. I think it all comes from Bob Caise. Bob's one of those selfish, flippant fellows who's always spreading some sort of propaganda. If you don't watch him, he'll influence you in spite of yourself."
"You think he's that clever?"
"He's clever enough, all right—and selfish."
"How does he get along with this mysterious astrologer who influences his mother so profoundly?"
Norman said slowly, "Bob's got something up his sleeve on that woman—I don't know just what it is. He's going to do something about it somewhere along the line. Bob's dangerous, you know."
"And you think he's responsible for your father's unhappiness?"
"I think he's got a lot to do with it."
"Listen," she said, "I don't wish to seem to be gossiping. I want you to believe me when I tell you that I've got a reason for asking you the questions I'm asking. I can't tell you what that reason is, but it's important that I know what's going on here. Can you tell me whether your father ever talks with this astrologer?"
"I don't think so," Happ said. "Dad has to keep pretty much to himself. Cynthia has a lot of ants, and she's a local boss. Dad don't think any of them caused her to be a chauffeur."
"He's loyal?"
"Yes... look here, I'm telling you all this to find out about the pumping me..."
"Please," she said, "I'm more. I've got to be going on in this house."
She swayed close to him as she did so, felt his presence envelope her with a magnetic magnetism.
"What do you want?" he asked, and his words were throaty and husky.
"I want to know," "about your father—about the astrologer—about the..."
"If you want to know about this woman astrologer, ask Harry Baird to shadow the woman. The time she came to the house, she wanted her..."
"Wanted what?"
"She breathed, leaning over her. Happ looked in her eyes. Her gaze. Color flooded Millicent knew what had happened before it had had no power to prevent it.
For what seemed a long time, he stood staring into her soul flooded with emotion, her body rigid with conscious volition.
Slowly Norman Happ came around her, he drew her to him. She liberation with which she had started was suppressed, writhing tempo of her his emotions swept her control. Millicent crushed to his, felt her so close that she was throbbing heart, could burning tips of his fingers as they dug into hers.
For a long, helpless vitality seemed to her clinging lightly, she regained move. She pushed gasping.
"Go!" she said, "should find you here. She broke off, tapped gently at her door."
