Cafeteria Plans To Be Presented Today To Government Men

MRS. HELEN GILLIS

Plans for the proposed Memphis High school cafeteria will be submitted this afternoon to government engineers by the cafeteria committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the plan of construction outlined to government officials.

C. G. Gordon, government engineer, will be in Memphis this afternoon and will meet with the local committee in the office of Judge A. C. Hoffman, county relief administrator. It is believed that relief labor can be used in constructing the school project in this city, and that work can begin immediately.

Members of the committee who will meet with Mr. Gordon this afternoon are Allen Dunbar, Jess Rosenwasser and Jack Boone. The Junior Chamber of Commerce is being assisted in their efforts to establish the cafeteria by the Parent-Teacher Associations of the city and other civic organizations.

FRED MASON IS NAMED IOOF LEADER

Elected Noble Grand Of Local Lodge Last Night

Fred Mason was elected Noble Grand of the Memphis I. O. O. F. lodge last night when the fraternity met for the purpose of electing officers for 1935. Mr. Mason succeeds E. C. Boland, Noble Grand during the past year.

Other officers elected last night are Allan Brown, Vice Grand, and J. T. Kinkade, treasurer. H. J. Rice was re-elected secretary. The new officials will be installed in January.

A report was also made last night on the official inspection of the Canton Memphis No. 13 last Saturday by A. L. Honeycutt, of Chillicothe. Mr. Honeycutt met the Canton in joint session with the local encampment, and conferred the Patriarchal degree on one candidate. A feed was given following the work, honoring the visiting Oddfellow.

Plans were also laid last night for a special meeting on December 18, honoring Thos. Wildy, founder of the Oddfellow lodge. All lodges in the district will be invited to attend, including seven Oddfellow lodges and five Rebeccan lodges.

Delinquent Tax Penalties Are Cancelled By Council

Cantor Goes Big on Broadway

Eddie Cantor, famous comedian, has been a big figure on Broadway for many years, but just how big no one really knew until they saw this huge balloon effigy towed down the Great White Way in the annual pre-Christmas parade staged by a New York department store. More than a score of men were required to hold down the 50-foot figure.

An ordinance cancelling all penalties and interest on delinquent city taxes until March 15, 1935 was adopted last night by the Memphis City Council in regular session. The ordinance is to become effective immediately and will represent a saving to city tax payers of several thousand dollars.

The ordinance is in keeping with Section one of House Bill seven, passed by the fourth called session of the 43rd Texas Legislature in session November 9, in which mandatory suspension of state and county tax penalties and interest was ordered and recommended to cities and school districts. With the cancellation of all delinquent tax penalties and interest, tax payers in Hall county will be saved several hundred thousand dollars, if the taxes are paid by March 15, 1935.

Effective Immediately
Although the state law is not to become effective until February 9, the city ordinance passed last night will become effective immediately, allowing three and a half months for collections, instead of the month and a half allowed by the state law.

As explained by members of the city council, the ordinance will cancel all delinquent interest and penalties, regardless of how long they have been accrued, until March 15. On that date, all back interest and penalties will again be added to the original tax assessments.

Entire Penalty Saved
It is believed that the action taken by the legislature in passing the state bill is the last effort to be made to collect delinquent taxes without payment of penalties.

It has been pointed out by D. L. C. Kinard, city secretary, that in the case of delinquent city taxes, penalties and interest amount to from 12 to 16 percent of the original assessment each year, and in cases where taxes have been delinquent for several years, the percentage amounts to as much as 50 or 95 percent of the original assessment. This entire amount may be saved by paying the tax before the March 15 deadline, he said.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Evidence that European chancellories and munitions makers had generally known for 10 years that Germany was rearming in violation of the Versailles treaty was presented to the senate munitions committee today.

Senator Vandenberg, Michigan Democrat, said, "It is amazing that apparently there is so much authentic information yet no public protest to the treaty's violation. Forces more powerful than governments brought about the rearming."

K. V. Casey, official of the Dupont company, conceded that the munitions industry knew that Germany was rearming.

opened the door and stared with sleepy eyes at Ann and Tony. "Hello, Ann. Come in Tony. You might as well stay for breakfast."

When Sarah asks Ann to share her apartment Ann agrees. She spends the evening with Tony and it is near midnight when she remembers she does not have the address of the new apartment.

"I'm terribly sorry about the mixup," Ann said. "We finally thought of calling your friend."

They went into a drug store and Ann waited anxiously while Tony made the call.

"We didn't think about the address until later," Ann said. "Anyway, we're here and no bones broken."

But even Tony's persuasive voice couldn't accomplish the impossible. "No luck," he said, frowning.

"Yes, he's rather a philanthropic sort. He wants them to have advantages he can give them. And as he didn't happen to think of a library, he isn't enthusiastic about the plan. He calls it 'interference,' and says when he's ready he will build and equip a library to suit himself."

This proved an inspiration Tony cursed himself for all kinds of an idiot because he hadn't thought of it before.

"When do I go?" "Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. We've rented a roadster for you, since Kendallwood is about 25 miles out. I hope you will succeed. Mr. Kendall is a hard man to see."

It was 2:30 when Sarah, with a dressing gown draped about her,

"What could I do?" Ann asked, amazed. "Sarah Kent has a very good opinion of you. She thinks that

If she falls for that line now she has no one to blame but herself.

One day, a month later, Ann was summoned to the private office of Mr. Griffin, the chief librarian.

"Sit down, Miss Hollister," he began formally. Ann waited, wondering. Perhaps her work had not been satisfactory.

"Ever hear of the Kendalls?" Mr. Griffin asked. "No."

"Humph. How long have you been here?" "About two months."

"Why? Doesn't he want his employees to have advantages?" "Yes, he's rather a philanthropic sort. He wants them to have advantages he can give them."

"When do I go?" "Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. We've rented a roadster for you, since Kendallwood is about 25 miles out. I hope you will succeed. Mr. Kendall is a hard man to see."

Shortly after 2 o'clock the next afternoon Ann was driving along the highway that led to Kendallwood.

In her modest blue suit, with a small blue hat set at an angle on her bright hair, she looked like a fortunate young woman with nothing to do but hunt pleasure in a shining little car.

They went into a drug store. Ann waited anxiously while Tony made the call.

Which had left Peter pretty much up in the air. With all the other members of the family indexed and catalogued Peter remained vague. He was nebulous, unsubstantial, waiting for imagination to give him form and substance.

Ann covered the next 10 miles quickly and parked her car in front of the factory czar's home. This was a big, old-fashioned stone dwelling.

Ann's ring was answered by a man servant who ushered her into the hall. He took her card and said, "Wait here, please, Miss. I'll see if Mr. Kendall can see you."

He opened a door and shut it behind him. Ann heard a deep growl; "Ask her what the devil she wants." The words came plainly through the open transom above the door.

The servant returned. "Mr. Kendall asked me to find out what you wished to see him about?" Ann hesitated. After a moment she said, "Tell him it's about the branch library."

The servant went inside, and spoke to the occupant of the room. Ann heard: "Tell her I don't care to discuss the matter. No, tell her I won't discuss it."

"Mr. Kendall is very sorry miss," the butler reported, "but he will be unable to discuss the matter with you."

"But—" Ann began indignantly. "I'm sorry, miss, but it would be useless to ask him—"

Ann's face crimsoned. How stupid to stand here arguing with a servant, sending messages to that terrible old man!

She went outside, stepped into the roadster and drove away. It was because she started off in a rather reckless burst of speed, anxious to put distance between herself and old Peter Kendall's house, that she almost collided with another car coming at a swift clip also.

Afterward she realized that quick thinking on the part of the driver of the other car had probably saved a collision. He swung sharply to one side as Ann turned

Hudson Dealers in Session at Dallas

DALLAS, Dec. 5.—Distributors, dealers and sales executives of the Hudson Motor Car company from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Mississippi assembled at the Automotive General Corporation Monday for an all day conference. The meeting was conducted by C. G. Beeching, assistant sales manager, Hudson Motor Car company, Detroit, and J. S. Oliver, Hudson district manager.

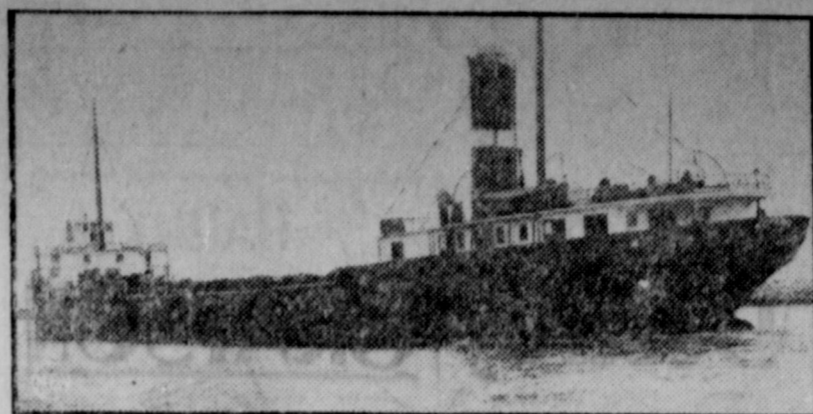

In welcoming the members of the sales organization, Mr. Beeching discussed the progress made during the past year and pointed out that Hudson and Terraplane sales had doubled in that period. The Hudson company, he declared, is entering the 1935 season with greatly expanded plans for an intensive sales campaign that is to be supported by a great increase in advertising and sales promotion. Mr. Beeching pointed out the improved economic conditions which now prevail. He stated that it was reasonable to expect a continuation of the business improvement witnessed during 1934 and that this would mean stimulation of automobile sales.

The program of the meeting included a preview of the new Hudson and Terraplane models for 1935 which will be announced to the motoring public in the near future. The new cars received an enthusiastic reception as the dealers and distributors found them longer, lower and roomier. Steel roofs are used on the bodies for the first time in the industry, and a new arrangement which is a Hudson secret at this time, gives the purchaser the option of an entirely new system of car control.

The meeting held here today was one of 30 which are being held by the Hudson company simultaneously all over the country. Shipments of the new Hudsons and Terraplanes will shortly begin from Detroit. Officials at the factory state that due to the vigorous demand for cars during October and November, the stock of 1934 models in the field has been practically exhausted.

'Fugitive Lady' At Ritz Is Leading Film

"Fugitive Lady," Columbia's romantic melodrama co-starring Neil Hamilton, Florence Rice and Donald Cook, opens today at the Ritz Theatre. The new film is described as one of the most delightful love stories of the current cinema season, concerning, as it does, the romantic aftermath of one woman being mistaken for another man's wife.

Neil Hamilton and Miss Rice, a Broadway favorite until Columbia brought her to Hollywood recently, make a romantic team of new charm in "Fugitive Lady," which also is Miss Rice's first starring picture. Clara Blandick, who has been seen as an "acid comedienne" in fifty pictures in five years, provokes hilarious scenes with her role of the sarcastic, romance-seeking old maid aunt to Hamilton. William Demarest and Matt McHugh, well known stage and screen comedians, are Cook's crook accomplices who get into all sorts of funny trouble, and Nella Walker, for years a vaudeville headliner, plays Hamilton's dotting mother with a grand flair for laughs.

Fair Park Stadium Tradition Is in Danger

Lamesa Given Good Chance To Destroy New Cyclone Record

A gridiron tradition in the making is going to receive a severe test here Friday afternoon—and if it falls it can be blamed on the athletic council.

The Memphis Cyclone vowed at the start of this season, when its new, lighted playing field was opened at Fair Park, that it would not lose a game within the new stadium and would hand that tradition down to following clubs.

Everything went splendidly all season, with the record not even being threatened. The Cyclone marched through its regular schedule with ease. Then came the district championship game. It was brought here, and keyed up to fine fighting form, the Cyclone again swept along to comparatively easy victory.

It looked like the tradition would be firmly established in the first year. But then the athletic council, back to the tune of half the guarantee, by local business men, scheduled the bi-district battle here with the Lamesa Golden

Lamesa probably will run a special train to Memphis Friday for the bi-district championship football game here that afternoon.

According to Fort Worth and Denver railroad officials here, numerous inquiries concerning the special train have been sent over the wire this week, but as far as they know the train has not been definitely assured.

In all probability, however, the followers of the Tornado will be here in full force.

Tornado, for two consecutive years regional champion, who believe it is going right back to the Class B pinnacle again this season.

Cyclone Prepared
If the Cyclone keeps the tradition intact now, it really will be doing something local fans can brag about for some time to come.

Whatever the outcome of that tradition, local fans will have the satisfaction of knowing that Coach Chesty Walker sent the "fightingest" ball club Memphis has seen in years onto the field Friday afternoon. The team has given proof of that in each of their early practice sessions this week.

To the group of boys wearing the black and gold in Fair Park stadium, Lamesa is another ball club, a mighty tough one, but after all a high school eleven that can be beaten if the opponent puts up the fight necessary to do it—although the trick has not been turned in almost three years now.

Against Real Barrier
Let there be no doubt that the Cyclone is up against a real barrier. First of all, the locals must stop Lamesa's fleet halfbacks, Boswell and McKinnon. It was this pair of backs, aided by the plunging of powerful Fullback Jordan that routed Ralls, 45 to 7, in the district championship game last week and led to 16 first downs against six.

McKinnon scored three of Lamesa's touchdowns, one of them on a 63-yard sprint after taking a short pass from Boswell. Boswell also displayed his ability at broken-field running when he got loose in the second period and raced 40 yards to a counter.

Scores Quickly
An example of the Tornado's running strength was shown in the opening of the district title game. The Tornado pulled Memphis' own stunt of scoring immediately after getting possession for the first time. The Tornado took the kickoff on its 40-yard line and scored on a 60-yard drive that required only three first downs, for an average of 20 yards to the first down.

The Tornado swamped Ralls despite the fact that Quarterback George Berry, one of the outstanding field generals in the Panhandle, was injured early in the game and carried from the field. Boswell was shifted over from left half to pilot the club.

Passes Will Help
Local fans can expect the Cyclone to use many passes if they are greeted by pretty weather Friday afternoon. Ralls, although not boasting an outstanding aerial attack, took to the air soon after the game started, finding that they could not gain an inch through the Lamesa line. The J-crabbits completed 10 passes out of 28 attempts, while Lamesa completed three out of eight attempts.

HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Now that firing virtually has ceased on the field, shooting has started in old familiar galleries. It is the open season on coaches, and old grads, professional alumni, student publications, and undergraduates all expect to bag the limit.

The largest turnover is anticipated in the east, where situations are uncomfortable for 10 or more mentors.

It is said that Eddie Casey will resign at Harvard. While few, if any, instructors could have done any better with the young and comparatively light Crimson material, it also is true that none could have fared much worse.

Wesley Fesler, the tall young man who played plenty of end and kicked for Ohio State in '28, '29 and '30, is reported in line for the top spot at Cambridge. Fesler's appointment would make Harvard the second member of the Big Three to abandon the graduate system and turn to the Big Ten for a head football coach.

Cornell snapped out of it long enough to shellac Dartmouth, but the embryo engineers have been chanting, "Out with Dobie," and Romeyn Berry, the graduate manager credited with keeping Gloomy Gil's head above water for the last five years, is seen in a mood to release his grip.

Two Losses Too Many At Holy Cross

Dr. Eddie Anderson, who played with the immortal George Gipp at Notre Dame, isn't exactly popular with all factions at Holy Cross. The Purple's material was compared with that of Minnesota. Dr. Anderson lost only one regular, Red Kidd, and the squad was augmented by a splendid freshman team. It therefore goes without saying that the Worcester institution looked forward to one of its biggest seasons, and that successive setbacks by Colgate and Temple, each by a margin of two touchdowns, did not set well.

There are hints that Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, is to replace Joe McKenney at Boston College.

There is dissatisfaction at both schools, although the Eagles emerged victorious in their last three starts—against Villanova, Centre, and Boston University. It is the three consecutive reverses that preceded these games—at the hands of Fordham, Western Maryland, and small Providence—that gripes supporters of the Maroon and Gold.

Northwestern dropped five major engagements, with an array that was believed promising at the outset.

Vic Hanson's case at Syracuse is a striking example of how quickly a coach can be transform-

A new era has dawned since Ernie (Moose) Johnson supplied that short definition of the sport that made him famous. A hockey R i p V a n Winkle, awake n i n g today, might be dazzled by the modern stadia and bewildered by the revamped rules. But he would realize instantly that the chief idea remained—get the puck in the net.

The Moose used to say that there were only two good hockey players—Ernie Johnson and Moose Johnson—in the game, when he was in a kidding mood. But he wasn't kidding when he delivered his brief verbal essay. All anyone needs to do to thoroughly enjoy the sport is to watch the boys get the flying puck in the net.

Easy to Understand
The ease with which it is understood, of course, is one of the chief reasons why hockey today stands out among the successful, popular, revenue-producing sports.

Nine out of 10 will tell you that their first impression was of blinding speed and rugged checking. Fast and rough, they say. And indisputably, ice hockey is the fastest team sport in the world.

Continuous and unavoidable body contact naturally means that the game always will be rugged and sometimes rough. Drastic penalties keep foul tactics at a minimum, but no mere set of rules can change hockey from a verile, he-man sport.

Two other factors enhance the popularity and assured future of the game. They are 100 per cent honesty, and the almost inexplicable uncertainty of the game.

From personal experience and observation, I can state with pride and without reservation that there never has been a finger of suspicion directed at professional hockey. The game has known no scandal—nor never will.

Most Uncertain Game
The natural uncertainty of the pastime has given rise, at vidual. The handsome alumnus reached the stage where it doesn't even mention Frank Cardeno's name in demanding a switch after three long years of football fame.

And life was extremely unpleasant for Navy Bill Ingram on the California campus until he resigned.

Second guessers can't get it into their heads that when football teams play, one has to lose. So it is that coaches have to keep up with, or be a step ahead of the procession at most schools. Theirs is a precarious occupation, with old grads, professional alumni, student publications, and undergrads taking potshots at the hindmost.

But as the late Tim Hurst said, in regard to baseball umpiring, "Think of the hours."

times, to loose talk by malicious or uninformed people. They can't understand why a team A, having once defeated team B, can't continue to do so each time they meet.

Surely that needs no explanation to any follower of athletics; doubt of the outcome is the essence and the very reason for games. Let me say that hockey is such a sport and that it is possibly more uncertain than any other.

To explain the phenomenal progress made by hockey within the last decade, let me say that the game is a "natural," and you can't beat a "natural" anywhere or any time.

INGRAM QUILTS

Handing in his resignation shortly after losing a close game to Stanford, 9-7, Navy Bill Ingram, University of California coach, has announced he is leaving football to take up a business career in San Francisco. Ingram, in constant conflict with alumni all season, still had a year to serve on his contract. Leonard "Stub" Allison, Ingram's first assistant, succeeds him.

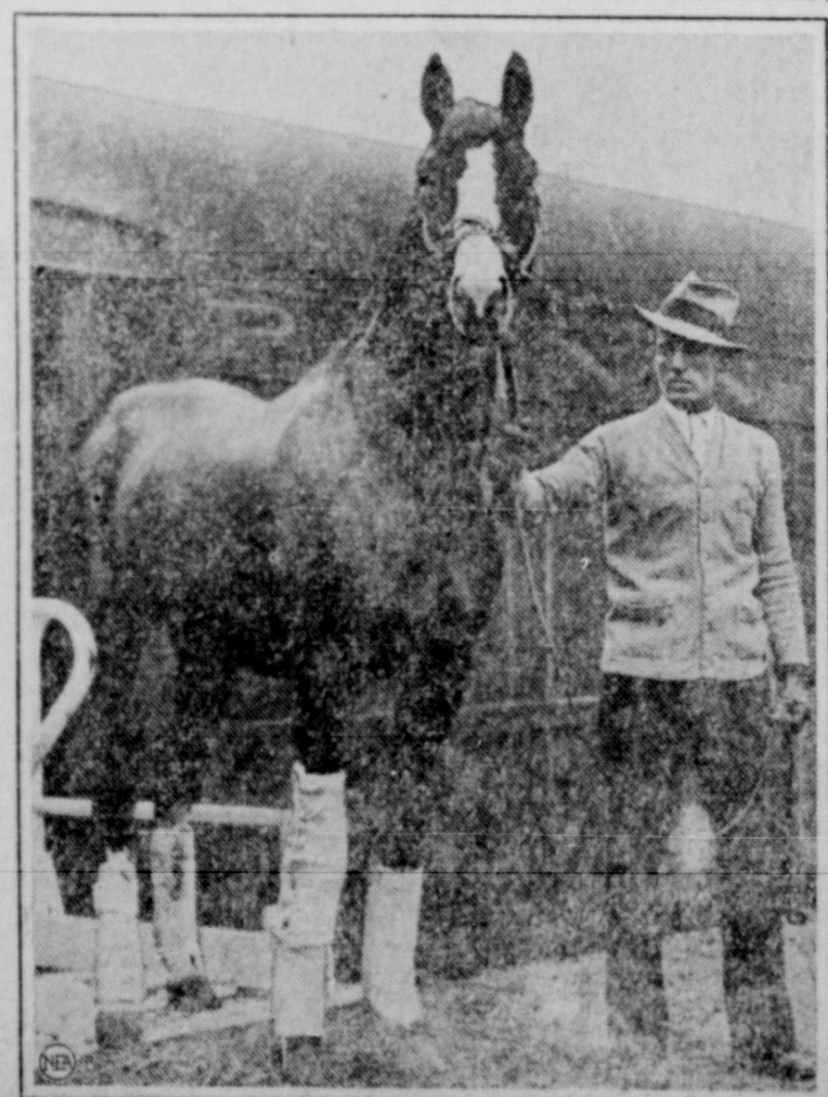

Despite the injury to Quarterback Berry last week, which evidently was not serious, Coach F. T. McCullum of Lamesa stated, "My outfit is in the best physical condition since the start of the season, but we'll be needing everything we've got."

NAVY HAS TOUGH SAILING

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 5.—The Navy has lined up a tough schedule for its football team in 1935. Games on the list include William and Mary, Mercer, Virginia, Yale, Notre Dame, Princeton, Penn, Columbia, and Army.

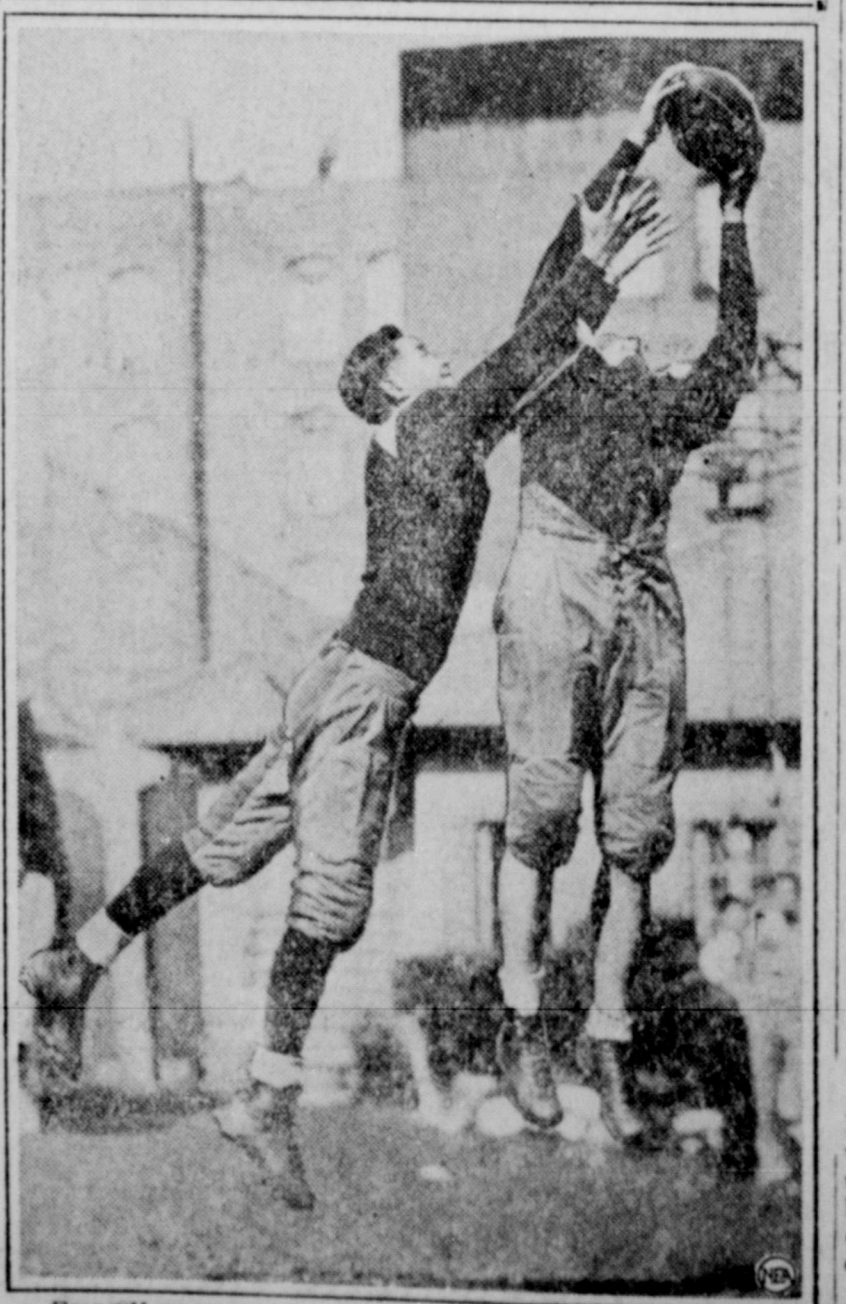

Funds raised through the sale of Christmas Seals are used to promote better health by educating children and adults in the ways of healthy living and by helping to find early cases of tuberculosis.

"California, Here I Am"

Major league racing has returned to California after an absence of many years. Ten other thoroughbreds were in a shipment from Lexington, Ky., but all attention was focused on Ladysman, shown above with W. Phillips, and Osculator, aces of the W. R. Coe string, upon their arrival at the new Santa Anita Park track, hard by Los Angeles. Both are scheduled to be nominated for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap to be run on Feb. 22.

Santa Letters Democrat; First Received Today

Little Billy Morgan and Dorothy Jo Salmon have to be asked to send in their letters to Santa what they wanted for Christmas and didn't have Old Santa surely should appreciate that and give them what they asked for.

All the boys and girls are sending their letters to Santa. All of them will be printed in the paper on Christmas and then sent straight to old Santa. The letters so long, boys and girls—be among the first to get their letters so Santa will get them before he becomes overwhelmed with letters.

The first one, from Billy Morgan and Dorothy Jo Salmon, Brice, Texas, Dec. 3, 1934.

Dear Santa, I am in the fourth grade. For Christmas I want a little stove that will cook, apples, oranges, lemons, and my brothers and my sister.

Allred Inaugural To Equal Any in History of State

AUSTIN, Dec. 5.—An inaugural ball the equal of any in the history of Austin is being planned in honor of Gov. and Mrs. James V. Allred and Lieut. Gov. and Mrs. Walter F. Woodul.

It will be held on the night of Jan. 15, following the inaugural of Mr. Allred at high noon. Amos M. Felts, attorney, is chairman of the temporary arrangements committee. The main reception probably will be held in Gregory gymnasium, on the University of Texas campus, with auxiliary entertainments elsewhere.

Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Alexander left this morning on a business trip to Lubbock and Brownfield.

Miss Oradel Nuhn spent last week-end here with home folks. She is teaching near Wichita Falls.

Largest Collection Of Dahlias at Post

PEACE SETTLES OVER EUROPE

IT is surprising what a great difference an incident, which in the great measures of history is completely insignificant, can have in the course of history itself. Today the entire outlook in Europe has changed. War clouds have, temporarily at least, cleared away. All because two countries agreed upon a little plot of ground—an agreement which, if one gets down to absolute facts, they had no right to make in the first place.

We are speaking of the Saar territory, a rich mining "no man's land" between France and Germany, the controversy over which has all but plunged the nations into warfare for several months. At present the Saar is under the rule of the League of Nations, but on January 13 it is to hold a plebiscite to see if it is to go under German or French rule or remain under the jurisdiction of the League of Nations. It is presumed now that the Saar will return to German rule.

As the Associate Press so ably stated it, "Germany and France clasped hands across the no man's land of the troublesome Saar today in an accord tending to assure this part of Europe at least a temporary peace". Under the agreement Germany is to pay France and French interests a certain amount of cash and coal and is to guarantee equal rights to non-voters and voters regardless of nationality—and including the Jew.

This little agreement—small in the span of history but of immeasurable importance in the present—changes the feelings of entire nations. It clears up a tough situation. It may go even farther than that, for if our memory does not fail us, it is the first time in years that France and Germany have reached an agreement on anything. It may mark the opening of a new era in international compromise.

And why shouldn't it? Nations must eventually learn to compromise on international problems. They must learn to give a little ground, even if it does hurt national pride a little. They must learn to respect the other nation, not to suspect its representatives of eternally looking for a chance to "trim" somebody.

France and Germany, two of the most bitter nations, have led the way. Surely the others, professing outwardly to be friendly, can follow.

INSULL WAS ONLY A SYMBOL

THE acquittal of Samuel Insull may provoke the cynical to new remarks about the difficulty of finding a million dollars guilty of anything; but its chief importance is its warning that we cannot blame the disasters of recent years on individuals.

Mr. Insull was a symbol—both before the crash and after it. When something very unpleasant happened to us, we immediately trained our heavy guns on this symbol. But the real trouble all along was not with the symbol, but with our own reaction to it.

In the years before the stock market went Democratic, Mr. Insull was up on a golden throne; and he would never have stayed there a minute if we had not assented to it. We looked upon him as one of our great men, we listened attentively to everything he had to say—not because we had any special reason to believe he was a brilliant thinker, but simply because we were ready to give our highest honors to any man who possessed quantities of the lang green.

Naturally enough, when the bottom fell out of everything, our ideas went into reverse. Instead of idolizing this utilities magnate, we tried to blame him for everything. A great many people lost a great deal of money in his companies—so we felt, in our wisdom, that the obvious remedy was to throw him in jail.

Now it should have been apparent that the obvious remedy was nothing of the kind. These unlucky investors were victimized, not by any one man, but by a combination of forces; by themselves, first of all, and by the temper of the times, secondarily.

How was this victimization made possible? Chiefly by the fact that we suspended our critical judgment in favor of a great desire to have all our problems solved by the power of finance.

HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Because there are so many kinds of rheumatic diseases, and because the causes are so variable and difficult to determine in many cases, treatment involves an attack on the condition from many possible angles. Every possible source of infection in the body should be found and removed.

Rest is especially significant, because the experience of years shows that damaged tissues recover best when they are permitted to rest.

If a real cure of this kind can be taken away from home, the person concerned gets emotional relief as well as physical rest. If the cure cannot be taken away from home, an hour in bed every day after lunch is exceedingly valuable.

Many types of vaccines and "shots" have been considered for persons with rheumatic conditions.

All sorts of drugs have been recommended, including sulphur and various forms of iodine, some combinations of gold, and arsenic and iron.

The chief values of arsenic and iron are to stimulate the blood when there is anemia. The evidence in favor of the other substances is hardly sufficient to indicate that they have specific value. Various forms of salicylates have been known for years to be useful in rheumatic disease because they relieve pain.

As in every other type of disease, proper control of the bowel is exceedingly helpful. There is no question that accumulations of food and waste matter in the bowel tend to a feeling of illness.

Many kinds of baths and physical treatments have been recommended, but the significant factor in most such methods is the application of heat.

If a tub is filled with hot water at a temperature of 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and if this temperature is gradually raised to 104 degrees by adding hot water, immersion in the bath for anywhere from 15 to 30 minutes will be found to give temporary relief of pains in the joints in many

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Democrat Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The New Deal's legal stars are more confident now about New Deal test cases before the supreme court.

That's because they've achieved at least a partial new deal at the Department of Justice. For weeks, the D. J. took one of the worst backstage pinnings ever handed a government department. Most of the emergency agency lawyers served as infantry men in the screened attack, but the hidden Big Berthas were certain supreme court justices who made their views known to the White House.

The targets included Attorney General Homer Cummings, Solicitor General J. Crawford Biggs, much of their staff and the group of politicians and lobbyists commonly believed to be closely associated with the D. J. How, the New Deal attorneys demanded, could the government hope to win with old Mr. Biggs presenting its cases and the D. J. generally maintaining what seemed to them an attitude of non-co-operation?

So a compromise has been effected in the best Roosevelt manner. Demands of the more bitter critics that Cummings and Biggs be replaced are being ignored—for the present.

But Biggs won't be presenting any important New Deal test cases to the supreme bench. And Assistant Attorney General Angus McLean, nicknamed "Anguish" by others than his friends, won't be handling any supreme court cases at all.

The whole D. J. is working more closely with NRA, AAA, PWA, and other agencies and appointment of special Atty. Gen. Stanleigh Arnold to handle NRA cases accompanied by assurance that he will be primarily responsible to NRA.

Gold Cases First
First important supreme court test will be the gold cases, to be argued early in January. It was arranged so that the able General Counsel Stanley Reed of RFC can appear for the government and recently Attorney General Cummings let it be known that he, rather than Biggs, would also appear.

Some of Reed's friends have been pushing him for the solicitor generalship, but it is now more likely that he will be made a federal judge in Kentucky.

NRA at Forks of Road, Says Head of Manufacturers

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—C. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, offered the industry's "whole-hearted" cooperation to the government to drive business doldrums out of the country. The association opened a two-day congress.

Bardo said, "Industry will continue cooperation for restoring sound economic conditions and give work to millions of unemployed. We must correct the evils of NRA without destroying the good. NRA is at the forks of the road. One branch of the road tends toward more federal government interference with private enterprise, encourages restraint, paternalism and bureaucracy and tends to unsettle business capital's confidence. It is definitely a contradiction to Americanism."

Benefit Matinee at Ritz To Aid School Cafeteria Plan

the movement now underway to provide a school cafeteria where underprivileged children may be provided with a nourishing lunch is gaining in interest throughout the city.

Sponsored originally by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the idea immediately gained favor with the Parent-Teacher Association. The latter organization is hard at work raising money to equip the cafeteria after the building has been erected by the Jaycees, aided by the government.

Now comes the Ritz theatre to the rescue of the P.-T. A.

The Ritz will give a benefit matinee Saturday morning from 9:30 to 11:30. All the proceeds of the show—every penny—will be turned over to the Parent-Teacher Association.

Admission will be anything from one cent up.

The following program, which the Ritz management believes will be particularly appealing to children, has been arranged: Our Gang Comedy, Mickey Mouse Cartoon, Betty Boop Cartoon and Popeye Cartoon.

Interest in the cafeteria project has gone beyond the confines of Memphis, it was revealed by Lee Bell, manager of the Ritz, yesterday when he told The Democrat that film companies were co-operating by supplying the program entirely without charge.

"Any child will be admitted to the special matinee for as little as one cent," Mr. Bell said. "However, we naturally expect every child who possibly can to bring more. If children whose parents are able to give them ten cents, a quarter or even a half a dollar or more for this worthy cause bring only a penny our efforts will have been in vain. We hope the contributions will be liberal."
