CROP LOAN IS AGAIN MADE AVAILABLE

Emergency Aid Will Be Given In All
Drouth Areas

Emergency crop loans for general purposes, which were discontinued May 31, are again being made available to farmers in all of the drouth stricken agricultural areas until September 1, the Farm Credit Administration has announced.

According to the announcement, crop loans limited to $250 to one individual for general purposes, and $400 for summer fallowing or for the combined purpose of summer fallowing and the purchase of seed for winter wheat, winter rye or barley, may be made in all the designated "stricken agricultural areas," whether primary or secondary.

The loan area thus covers 1-224 counties in 22 states, including all of the Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada and New Mexico; large parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and Arizona.

The loan also covers some counties in Indiana, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and California.

Outside the drouth stricken areas loans may be made for summer fallowing or for combined purpose of summer fallowing (Continued on Page 8)

Austrian Fascists Mount to Power; Civil War in Styria

"West Texas, Stay With Your Man"

(AN EDITORIAL)

A week ago, six prominent East and South Texans, in a series of radio addresses from Fort Worth, told the people of West Texas that other sections of the state were going to pile up a vote of from 125,000 to 150,000 for Senator Clint Small for Governor.

They urged the people of West Texas to "stay with your man" and help East Texas elect a real Governor for all of Texas.

Last night, over the same radio station, six prominent West Texans answered their East Texas friends and assured them that this great part of the state is behind Clint Small even stronger than it was four years ago.

West Texas should stay with its man. Aside from the selfish reason that our vote for Clint Small will give us by far the best Governor of the six in the race, West Texas in general and the Panhandle in particular should be proud to support a man whose record is clean and whose past performances have proven him to be a friend to West Texas.

The man who tells you that Clint Small "hasn't a chance" to get in the runoff election is a propagandist of the vilest sort. Rumors are afloat that his West Texas vote is badly split; wild statements abound that he will not carry Memphis and Hall county, or that he will not carry Collingsworth, his home for 40 years, or Potter county, his home for the last two years. This is ridiculous political rubbish.

"They're afraid of Clint Small; they know he's a real menace for first or second place in Saturday's election," declared Gene Howe, editor of the Amarillo News-Globe, in a rally here last Saturday night. "Whenever they start rumors that a candidate as strong as Clint Small won't carry this or won't carry that, you can just bet that he's running like a scared jackrabbit."

Mr. Voter, isn't it significant to you that Clint Small's opponents have been unable to trump up any charges against his private or public life? Isn't it significant that in a last frantic attempt to discredit his candidacy unscrupulous politicians are sending propagandists into his own territory who have the effrontery to tell intelligent people out here that Clint Small won't carry West Texas?

Compare the records of the six men running for governor. Compare their platforms. Compare the men themselves. Then, if you love your state and want to give it the man best qualified to be its governor, you will vote for Clint Small.

West Texas, stay with your man.

ROME, July 26.—Four army divisions, each about 8,000 strong, were ordered to points along the Austrian border today.

VIENNA, July 26.—The power of Austrian Fascists mounted to the rule of Austria today.

Prince Ernst Von Starhemberg, nobleman and leader of the Fascists heimwehr was announced as the new chancellor, succeeding Engelbert Dollfuss, commoner, assassinated yesterday.

Even as the Fascist star ascended, civil war blazed in province of Styria, where Nazis battled government forces for control of villages.

Rintelen Dies

Reports did not tell how many were killed, although official announcement at Graz, provincial capital, said 14 government soldiers were slain.

Anton Rintelen, who perhaps would have been chancellor, died today several hours after he was wounded in a prison cell. It was announced officially he suicided.

Von Starhemberg's first announcement said the government policy would be to carry on the work that Dollfuss began.

To Act Sternly

He indicated the government will act sternly against the killers of Dollfuss.

A report from the province of Carinthia, not immediately confirmed, declared Yugoslavian soldiers fired across the Austrian border and Austrian troops concentrated there as a result.

An authoritative British source today said the governments of England, France and Italy were convinced no new action by these powers to defend Austrian independence is necessary.

Order Prevails

A communique by the secretary of state of public security said order prevailed in Vienna and all provinces excepting Styria.

Dollfuss was shot to death yesterday as Nazis, said to number 144, raided the chancellery under the leadership of men disguised (Continued on page 8)

GUARD ORDERED IN MINNEAPOLIS

4,000 National Guardsmen
Put On Duty When Truck
Drivers Reject Peace

MINNEAPOLIS, July 26.—Governor Floyd B. Olson ordered 4,000 national guardsmen to place Minneapolis under military rule at 12:20 o'clock this afternoon, after warring factions in the truck drivers' strike failed to agree on final peace plans submitted to them by federal mediators.

It was thought for a time this morning that an agreement would be reached when the employers' advisory committee voted to accept all but the wage scales provision in peace terms designated to settle the strike.

The belief the strike would be settled was strengthened when it was reported that the drivers' union viewed favorably the proposition. The rejection, in the face of these reports, came as a distinct surprise to mediators.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Ann Spencer, 78, pioneer woman of Hall county who died at her home Tuesday night, will be held at the First Baptist church here tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Rev. O. W. Webb, pastor of the church, will conduct the final services. Interment will be at Fairview cemetery.

Active pallbearers will be C. R. Webster, R. S. Greene, J. E. Roper, P. F. Craver, J. B. Chitwood and D. L. C. Kinard.

Members of the local Eastern Star lodge of which Mrs. Spencer was a charter member, will attend the services in a body to pay a special tribute to the deceased.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Disturbed by war rumors in connection with the Austrian crisis, prices at the New York stock exchange today experienced the worst spill in nearly a year.

By early afternoon many issues were off a dollar to 10 dollars a share.

The fall climaxed five straight sessions of decline, although better support was received yesterday.

Nine of the 10 youths sent from here to Amarillo for final examination before acceptance into the Civilian Conservation Corps have been accepted, according to word from CCC officials at Amarillo.

The youth not accepted from here was Connie Hosea, negro.

The county relief department sent 10 young men from Memphis for CCC duty in compliance with an order sent out by the Texas Relief commission.

Those accepted for CCC work from here are Ronald Melton, Ed Booth, L. V. Shockley, Clyde Camper, Roy Packer, Joe S. Warren and Leonard Starkey, Leroy Henderson and McCampbell Rice, negroes, were also accepted.

Election Bureau States Reason for Limiting Returns To Publications; The Democrat Gets Fastest Service

DALLAS, July 26.—The Texas Election Bureau operated by the Texas managing Editors' association for more than 20 years as a co-operative agency for gathering election returns for newspaper use has announced that hereafter returns supplied by it may not be broadcast or placed on bulletin boards. The bureau was incorporated July 10. The announcement says:

"In the past few years election news gathered by the bureau has been used so largely by persons who contributed nothing to the expense as to destroy its value to the papers which do contribute.

"This election news has been obtained from bulletin boards, and from broadcasts. Attorneys advise that when news is broadcast or put on bulletin boards it becomes public property. Hence, to protect its rights in this news, the bureau has prohibited the use of its return on bulletin boards, and incorporated so that it may assert in court its property right in whatever news it supplies to its members.

"The ban on broadcasts and bulletin boards is merely a move to preserve the only agency we have for gathering returns at all on election night."

The Democrat will give the people of Memphis and surrounding territory the same service that will be offered by the large newspapers of the state on Saturday's election, hours before they may be obtained here through any other source.

A bulletin board placed in front of The Democrat office will give Hall county returns Saturday night, and extra editions will give the latest state returns at 9, 10 and 11 o'clock Saturday night; the regular edition will carry final Saturday night tabulations, and another extra at about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon will again carry the latest tabulations of the Texas Election bureau.

CANDIDATES IN LAST DAYS OF CAMPAIGNS

All Have Predicted
They Will Be In Run-Off

Candidates for nomination for public office were looking today to the final days of the first primary campaign to clinch their respective causes before the electorate.

All of the candidates for the Democratic nomination had predicted they would be in the runoff primary which will start next Monday and end August 25. Non-partisan observers confessed, however, to an inability to figure with any accuracy the outcome of the race, in which six men, three of them already occupying state elective offices, are participating.

All Candidates Busy

In the gubernatorial race, Clint Small speaks today at El Paso; Tom F. Hunter at Ennis and Georgetown; Maury Hughes at Cooper, Commerce, Farmersville and Dallas; Edgar Watt at San Marcos and Luling; James V. Allred at Curro, Hallettsville and Schlenkerburg, and C. C. McDonald at Baytown.

The attorney general's department issued an opinion denying the authority of the Travis County executive committee to bar (Continued on page 8)

Drive For Old Clothes To Be Given Needy Families
Gets No Response

Not a single garment has been received by the local welfare agency from the campaign launched here last week for old clothes and other household articles that were to be given those unfortunate in the county whose homes have burned recently, leaving them without sufficient clothing and other necessities, and also to those in the county on the direct relief roll.

The drive for old clothes was to have covered the entire county.

The county relief agency started the drive last week after numerous reports had been received from over the county of a number of people being in need of clothes. However, it was reported today that not a "stitch" of clothing had been received.

"These is still an urgent need for old clothes to be given relief clients here," Judge Hoffman, county relief head, stated today, "and the local welfare department is still in a receiving mood."

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

JANE TERRY comes to New York determined to show her home town and especially AMY JACKSON that she can make a success of her life. Amy had been her best friend until Howard Jackson broke the engagement Jane forced on him and married Amy. Unable to bear the sight of Amy's happiness, Jane obtains a job in a New York real estate office.

Jane is clever and soon is making an excellent salary. She has an affair with ROGER THORPE, a business acquaintance who is married. Later she tires of him, and when he offers to bear the expense of their child she dismisses him contemptuously.

In her desperate plight Jane turns to Amy for help. Howard is touring Germany with another professor and Amy comes to New York. She is horrified when Jane tells her she plans to give her child away.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVII

"You're foolish, Jane," Amy said after the doctor had gone. "Of course I'm here, but a nurse could do a lot more to make you comfortable."

But Jane would not listen. A cable had come from Howard and been sent on from Marburg. He and Professor Ellert had landed safely after a smooth crossing. They were going to Berlin first and then start their expedition. There was a mention of unsettled conditions which might change their plans. Amy had neglected the newspapers but now she looked at them for an explanation. To her amazement and dismay they were full of war rumors, with Germany truculent and menacing.

Jane laughed at her fears. "My dear," she said, "even if they go to have a war it won't bother the Americans who are over there, all they'll have to do is turn around and come home. I don't believe they'll have a war. It's just that crazy old Kaiser waving himself around and showing off."

"I know, Jane, but Professor Ellert is old and feeble, it'll upset him dreadfully." She was really thinking of Howard and the trouble it would be for him to take care of the frail, exacting old man, but neither she nor Jane had the least idea of what difficulties would and did happen to Americans who were so unlucky as to be traveling in the embroiled countries at the beginning of hostilities.

Amy merely imagined that Howard and Professor Ellert might have to come back without accomplishing their pilgrimage, and it would be a pity. That prospect did not disturb her nearly so much as Jane's unchanging resolve to give her child for adoption as soon as it should be born. No matter what she said, she could not move Jane one inch. They argued about it until both were sharp and exhausted.

"You're not logical," cried Jane. "You don't believe a child is better off with people who'll love it than with someone who never will be able to stand looking at it! Why, on that score alone I'm doing the right thing. You want to sentimentalize over it. You don't understand that maternity can be nothing but a physical thing. I never did like children particularly and I'll hate this one."

"Maternity can't be only physical. And anyway you're shirking, Jane. You thought you'd make a grand free noble gesture, and you haven't the nerve to see it through. You ought to be ashamed to say you'll hate this child. You can't hate it. It's part of your body and your soul. You might as well say you hate yourself."

"I might say that, too." "Well, you wouldn't mean it. You think very well of yourself. You always have. But you'd really hate yourself, loathe yourself, if you abandoned this child to anybody who's willing to take it. You'll never know what becomes of it."

"I don't want to know." "Why you wouldn't do that to a puppy or a kitten! You'd not give one of them away without being sure it had a good home and wouldn't be abused or ill-treated. Oh, Jane, it would be unforgivable."

"It's no use. I'm going to do it. You simply don't understand."

They went over it again and again. But Jane continued to search after channels of adoption which would give the protection of secrecy to the mother in spite of all Amy could say, and at last refused to answer, put her hands over her ears and kept them there whenever Amy protested. "Leave me alone, can't you? I feel so wretched already," she said. At least Amy felt it was better to say nothing more, because she saw how ill Jane was an hour near her time, but she thought, "As soon as the child is born she'll feel differently. She's bound to."

Letters, written on shipboard and soon after landing had come from Howard, the latter telling of Germany's preparations for war, and how he was trying to persuade Professor Ellert to go down to Italy until they knew what was going to happen. But the old man didn't want to do it.

"It's all terrifically exciting," Howard wrote, "and it may be nothing more than a mere saberrattling, but it looks real. Your father ought to be gratified. He's been prophesying another European war—he said the whole trend of modern history made it inevitable. If Professor Ellert wasn't so pathetically anxious to retrace his student days, I'd get right out this minute, for this will be no place for aliens once the fire starts. I'm so glad and thankful, darling girl, that you're safe in peaceful Marburg where nothing happens."

Amy had hardly put this letter down when Emma brought in the papers. "The war's begun!" she cried. "Germany invading Belgium. And England's going in!"

Amy looked at the headlines and laid the paper aside. "I'm going to telephone home," she said. "I want to talk to Father. Maybe somebody at the college can help get Professor Ellert and Howard out safely. They could cable the ambassador, I should think. They must do something."

She looked around at Jane and saw her face drawn into a strange awed grimace. "Send for the doctor," she whispered, "and the nurse." She dropped over on the sofa, limp, moaning.

In the stress of the next 48 hours Amy had not an instant even to think of Howard, much less try to send a message to him. Doctor Lacey, still lamenting that Jane was not in a hospital, and the nurse, a starched Scotch Miss McNeal, who echoed the doctor's complaints, took full possession of the apartment and their demands and exactions kept Amy and Emma rushing. The child was long in coming, not eager, Amy thought, to enter a world where it was unwanted. Jane did not suffer very much. "She's perfectly normal. Everything's all right," Miss McNeal kept saying, "but it's so inconvenient here. If we were only in a hospital now!"

Early in an August morn'g the hour came just before dawn Jane's child was born, a girl, small, but perfect and strong. When she had been bathed and rubbed with oil and her first few garments put on her, Miss McNeal handed her over to Amy. "Lay her to sleep somewhere safe," she directed, "since there's no crib."

Amy sat down with the child in her arms and looked at it. She had never seen so young a baby before and this queer little dark-eyed wrinkled creature seemed to her rather a blind little mole or mouse than a human child, a little ugly fumbling animal, utterly helpless, unwelcomed, to be flung into any possible fate—the callous cruelty of it struck Amy afresh. She was caught in a violence of revolt anger such as she had never known before in all her life.

"But it's impossible!" she thought. "Jane can't do it. If she does I'll hate her forever. But she can't do one could. This little, little baby!" Presently Doctor Lacey came out of Jane's room.

"It's an odd thing," he told Amy, "but I happened to hear a day or so ago of some people who want to adopt a girl baby with good blood, you know—I'll get in touch with them and find out what can be arranged. They stipulated just what Miss Terry wants in one way—I mean, they don't want to know the real mother's name and they don't want her to know theirs—to prevent the mother claiming the child later on, you understand."

"But Jane's hardly seen her baby, Doctor," stammered Amy. "I'm hoping when she does, she won't let it go."

Doctor Lacey shrugged. "She told me to go ahead, to hurry."

Amy held the child closer, walked past the doctor and into the bedroom where Jane, in a bleak and druggish aura, lay exhausted. Yet, as Amy looked down at her she was conscious that even in these few hours Jane had recovered some of her old self, some of her old beauty and vitality. The knowledge that her ordeal was over was restoring her. Her eyes had a sparkle of strength renewed.

Amy spoke clearly and very gravely: "Are you still bound to give this child away, Jane, and let her belong entirely to someone else and never claim her back?"

The spark in Jane's eye became almost gay. "You sound like the Bible," she murmured. "Yes, of course I'm going to give the child away. And such luck! Doctor Lacey knows of somebody."

"Then—will you give her to me?" "I told you I'd do that the day you came. But you don't want her!"

"Yes, I want her. Only she must be entirely mine, Jane. My child! You must never try to get her away from me."

"I never will."

Teachers' Salaries CAN Promptly

Some of my opponents have doubted that 6th point in my platform, in which I aim, County Superintendent "to arrange for teachers be paid promptly."

This is not at all impossible, and I quite the matter considerable thought before deciding.

In Hall County, approximately 21 per cent salaries comes from county funds. The other paid out of state funds, and it is this 79 per cent the delay. The state money for teachers' salaries two to four months late in arriving. In the warrants are issued to our teachers instead of checks, and these warrants are taken up two months later as the state tax money begins to

In other words, our teachers are placed in loaning money to the county and state. Why the teachers? Why not borrow from lending channels, pay the teachers, and then borrowed money as state funds become available.

In my mind it is ridiculous to expect teachers poorly paid to begin with, to wait several months salaries they do earn.

Let's borrow the money they wait for to pay the teachers promptly, and take up our money that the teachers eventually receive later.

Any candidate who tells you the important paying teachers salaries promptly cannot be sincerely interested in the office of County Superintendent your support.

Perhaps it is all right for a candidate to do my level best" or "I will promise nothing, try hard." But hadn't you, as a taxpayer, rather have someone as your County Superintendent, rather have someone as your County Superintendent who has made his stand clear and who has defined himself to work toward certain ends?

I consider the prompt payment of teachers of the most important of 6 aims that I have before the voters.

A teacher who knows his money will be when due will be a more efficient teacher. system will be benefitted and business, too, spasmotic.

This plank in my platform is not an idle of six candidates in the field I alone have done in it program before the people. The 6th program, which has been the one most discussed I know to be practical and workable.

If you want a County Superintendent who he HOPES to accomplish in the office, I humbly vote.

What is in many ways the most overwhelming natural phenomenon in the world has been chosen for the second of the new series of stamps the government is issuing on U. S. national parks. The Grand Canyon of the Colorado is an awe-inspiring fissure cut from 4000 to 6000 feet deep into the Colorado plateau in northern Arizona. It is from one to 15 miles across at the top and extends 282 miles along the river's course. The more interesting sections of the canyon region have been made a national park, property of the people, to insure preservation of their matchless scenery and outdoor value.

Baptists Even Score With Presbyterians in Title Play

TAKE 2ND GAME OF SERIES, 2 TO 1

Third Tilt Of Softball Round Slated Tomorrow

Climaxing the tightest game in the history of the Sunday School Softball loop with a last-inning drive to victory yesterday, the Baptists took the second game of the championship series from the Presbyterians, 2 to 1, while a record crowd looked on and roared lustily.

Time after time the Presbyterians, by sensationally tight fielding, had held the Baptists to check rallies, until the final inning, when bunched hits pushed in the winning tally, throwing the teams into a tie in games won at one each.

Knot Score In 4th

Starting the contest with a one-run lead scored in the first inning, the visiting Presbyterians held the determined batters of the red-capped crew scoreless until the fourth. In that inning Jack Boone's tally knotted the count.

Clifford Bumgarner and his mates held the Presbyterians to three hits, two of which were doubles by Lampkin and Thompson. The Baptists hit more freely, ended nearly every inning with at least one man on base.

The defensive play of each team was well nigh perfect, for softball, the visitors committing two and the Baptists one error.

Last Inning Drive

The last inning drive to the win took place when Gordon Gilliam singled and advanced to third on Brewer's double to right center. Paul Blevins, next up, clubbed one out to short left field. Allen Grundy, coming in fast, was unable to handle it, and Gilliam scored the needed tally.

Clocklike precision marked the defensive play of each team, but especially of the Baptists. If any one man of either crew could be said to be outstanding in this department, it was Paul Blevins.

Third Game Tomorrow

Tomorrow the third of this series of contests will occupy the attention of the rooters. The least this game could be is interesting.

Play by play each team has made it clear that the club winning may be able to relax when playing the Leafers; also, said team may find it not difficult to win from the Estelline team, if any, that shall compete for the Hall county title.

GOLF

By Art Krenz

IF THE PLAYER'S WRISTS ARE STRONG, THE CLUB CAN BE BROUGHT TO THIS POSITION IN THE BACKSWING...

One frequently hears that women golfers make the mistake of over-swinging. I could mention many leading feminine golfers who take full, free swings with great success.

The source of the trouble does not result from over-swinging itself, but from the fact that many women golfers lack strength in their wrists to control the swing.

This means that strong wrists are an aid to good golf, and the player who has weak wrists should cut down the backswing. Don't try to take the club back to a point beyond which the wrists will lose control.

PAMPA JUNIOR C OF C PLANS LEADING BASEBALL TOURNEY

Special To This Democrat
PAMPA, July 26.—Pampa will enter the baseball tournament field this fall for the first time. The event will be yearly and the first tournament is scheduled to be the greatest ever staged in this section of the country.

A tournament committee, headed by Roy Bourland, local business man and former player, has been appointed and its first action was to post a first prize guarantee of $1,000 cash. The amount has been underwritten by a group of Pampa business men and baseball enthusiasts.

The event will be sponsored by the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce.

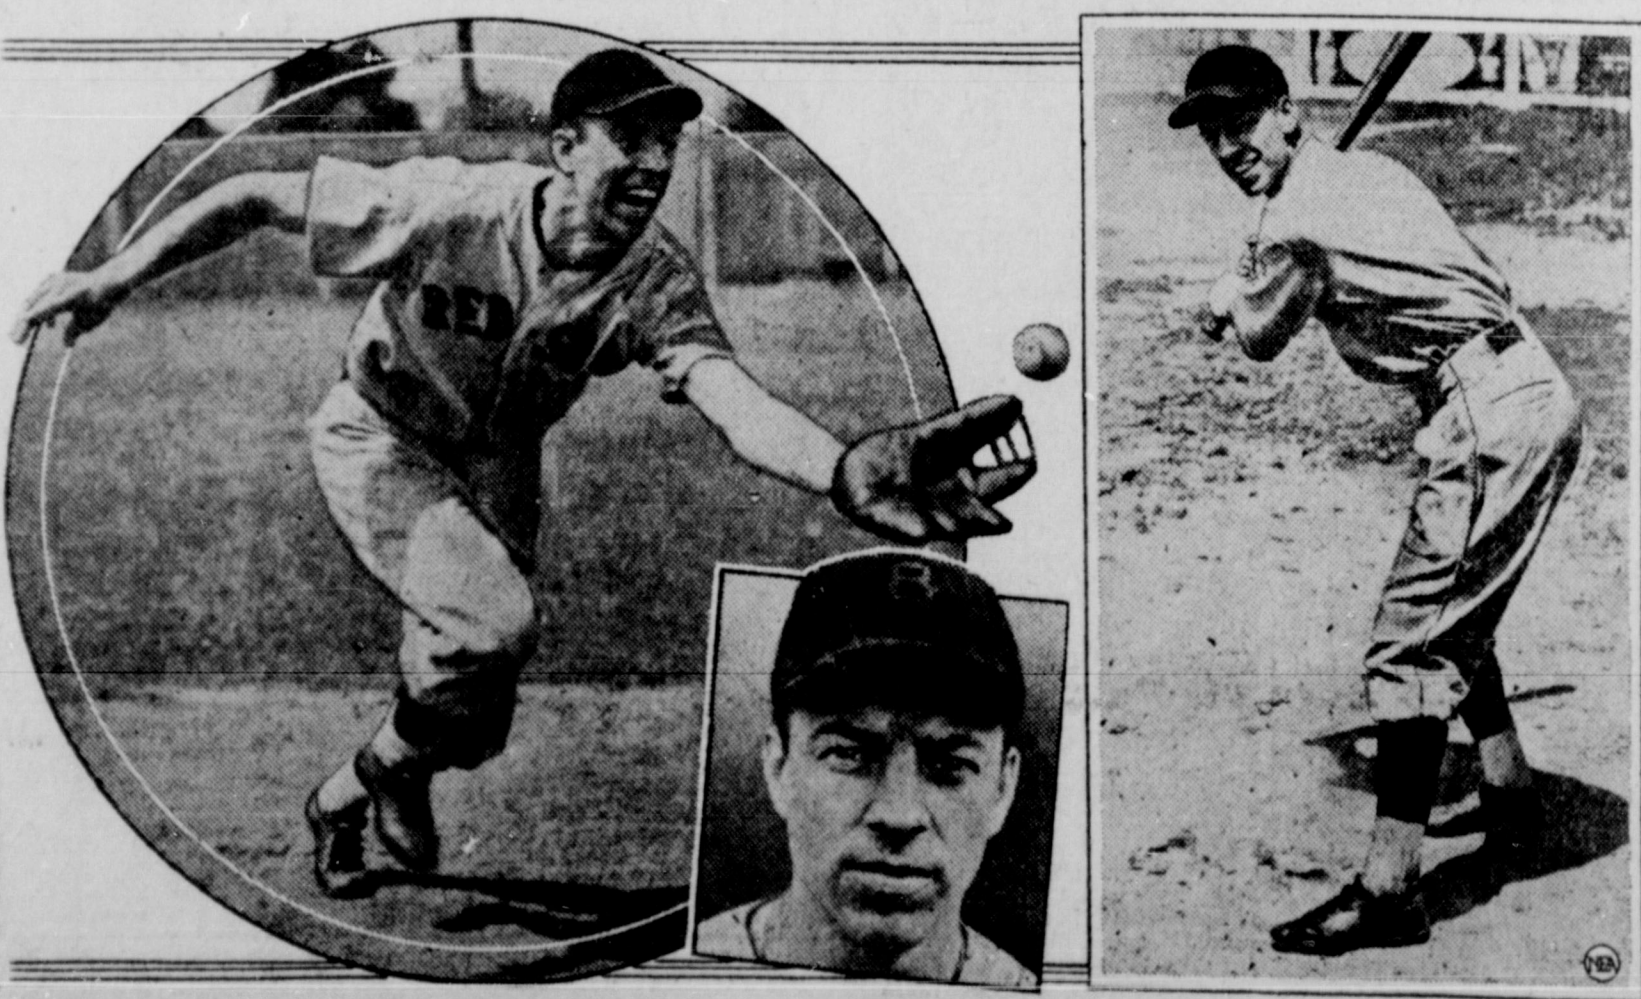

The big event will close August 19. The opening date will depend on the number of teams entered. The entry list will be limited to 16 teams and the executive committee will reserve the right to select the teams. The probable starting date will be August 9.

Pampa has a new $5,000 baseball stadium located six blocks from the main business section. Lights have been installed at an added expense of more than $3,000. The grandstand has a seating capacity of more than 1,200 with bleachers for an additional 1,000 fans. More bleacher seats will be erected for the big tournament.

Rules and regulations will be accepted soon and will be mailed to team managers in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Colorado.

City Club Meets In First Game

The new city baseball club, which replaces the disbanded Memphis Owls as the city's leading diamond organization, goes into action this afternoon for the first time.

The opposition will be furnished by Eli. The game is to start at 5 o'clock at Fair Park. Giving the local fans an opportunity to see what the new club is to be like, no admission will be charged. Everyone is urged to be present.

The new team is to be an amateur affair, open to every player in the city who wishes to take part in the game. Teams will be brought in for one or more games here every week.

In most instances only small admission charges will be made, entirely for the purpose of defraying expenses.

Manager H. W. Kuhn did not announce this afternoon's line-up. Since the team is just starting, it is likely that several changes will be made in order for the manager to get a better idea of the available strength.

After the first work-out of the team, it was announced most of the 20 candidates for positions are experienced baseballers, and the team probably will have as much power as did the old Owl line.

Under the arrangement by which the team is handled, each player must continue to hustle at all times or be beaten out of his regular position.

FUN A-FISHIN'

BY JIMMIE DONAHUE
NEA Service Sports Writer

At this time of year, when the sun makes fishing in the day almost useless, you'll find the wise heads confining their bass angling to early morning hours or in that period from dusk until midnight.

Night plugging carries a kick not felt in any other form of fishing. It generally is done when there is no wind to ruffle the surface of the lake, and top water lures are probably the most killing.

Bass are attracted to them by the fuss they raise on the water, either by means of propellers at front and rear, or a collar in front that, when the plug is retrieved in short jerks, throws up a splash and gives off a "plunging" noise.

Accurate casting is essential in this form of fishing. The angler must know just how far off shore he is, and try to throw his bait just off the edge of weed beds or clusters of lily pads that grow near the shore.

Bass are feeding in the shallows at this time, and you must get close in with your lure to attract their attention.

The added kick to night fishing is that you never know what size fish you have on the end of your line. When bass strike at a surface lure, they make all sorts of commotion, and even a little feller can cut quite a rumpus in the still of night.

The tyro is apt to jerk his lure away from a bass at the sound of a splash. That means missing the fish, for he splashes first, and then takes the lure. Keep a tight line and pull the fish away from the weeds.

It always is best to fish two in a boat, with one man at the oars. In this way the rower can pull the boat out into deep water when a fish is on.

WAR CLOUDS OVER AUSTRIA

ON JUNE 28, 1914, the Grand Duke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, and his wife were shot down. Using this as the spark to set off the dynamite that lay under the whole of Europe, the greatest conflict between nations the world has ever known was perpetrated.

Today that same territory is resting on the "hottest" explosive Europe has known in 20 years. War is threatening as it has never threatened before in the past two decades.

Yesterday followers of the German Nazi regime seized Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss. He was reported at first as having been seriously wounded. Later, citizens cried that he was dead. At the time this was written, the latter report had not been verified.

The Nazis stormed a barracks and obtained machine guns, rifles and ammunition. Then they overpowered the guard at the chancellery and took the "little dictator" prisoner.

The loyal home guard and national army gathered outside the chancellery and threatened to make an attack unless Dollfuss and other ministers were released immediately. The nazis replied that Dollfuss would be killed if an attack were started.

Then came the report that Dollfuss was dead. And there the story ended yesterday, just as a mystery serial installment ends at its most thrilling moment.

What comes next?

The world is anxiously awaiting the next episode. With central Europe boiling with hatred and fear, ruled by oppressive powers and tensed to the breaking point, war clouds hang heavier than ever for two decades. The economic situation that is gripping every nation may turn out to be the only thing that can prevent the countries of Europe from flying at one another's throat in another great war calamity.

DEMOCRATIC FAULTS GO WITH BENEFITS
PEOPLE who enjoy living in a democracy might as well make up their minds to the fact that democracy's shortcomings have to be accepted right along with its benefits.

During the last few days we have been getting a first-hand and rather frightening picture of one of democracy's worst drawbacks—knock-down and drag-out industrial warfare.

Naturally, this has caused a great many of us to demand that some way be found to make impossible a repetition of the kind of thing that has been happening in San Francisco.

That's a perfectly understandable viewpoint. But we need to recognize the fact that this sort of thing, costly and destructive as it is, is nevertheless one of the things we bargain for when we pin our faith to the democratic processes.

Look abroad for examples, and you get an understanding of this.

Russia has no strikes, for instance. It has no strikes because there is not, strictly speaking, anyone for the workers to strike against except themselves. Technically, at least, they own the country, lock, stock and barrel. They can't have a dispute with the management because they are the management.

That's one way to make strikes impossible—to liquidate the employing class.

Italy is another land in which strikes are unknown. The Italian worker can't strike because, if he does, he strikes against a government which will have no hesitation in bringing its iron hand down on his neck. He is no longer a free citizen; he is a cog in a machine, and in that capacity he takes what is handed him—and likes it.

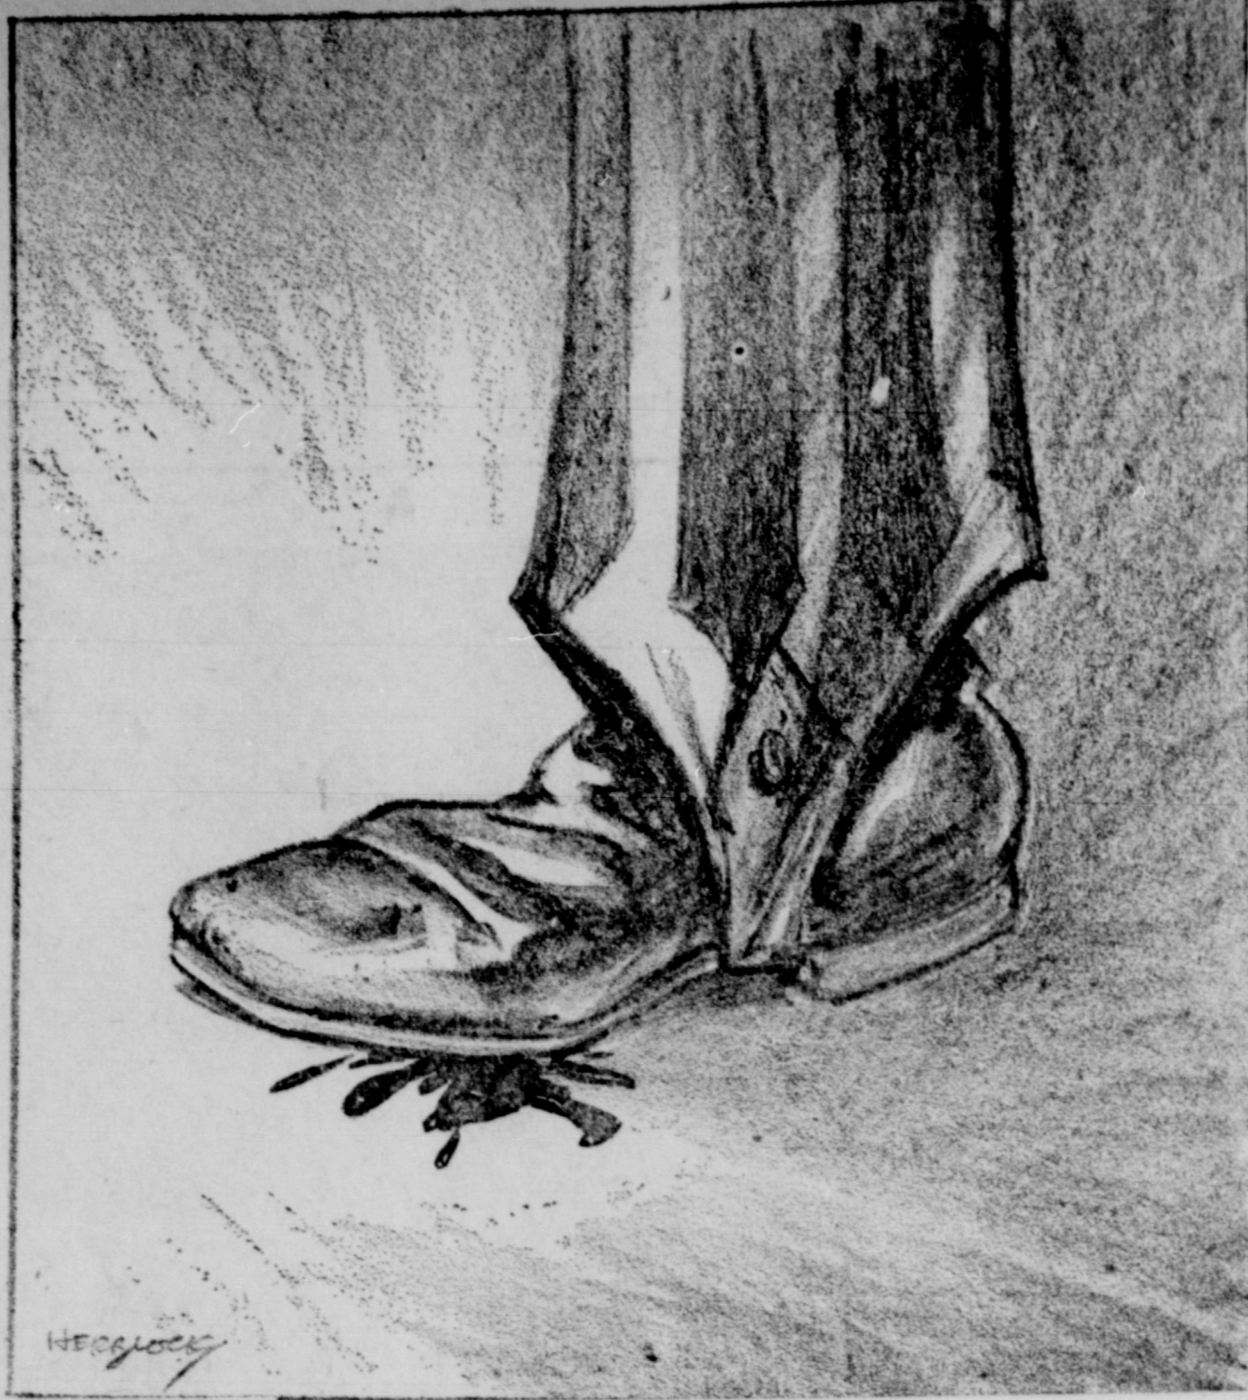

So that's another way to prevent strikes—to liquidate the labor movement.

Under a democracy, neither of these solutions is possible. There must remain, then, an amount of freedom within which either the employer or the worker can, if he feels justified, precipitate industrial war; and there is no way of making this impossible except by sliding off in the direction of either Fascism or Communism—which, of course, means abounding democracy.

All of which doesn't make it any easier to endure or to condone the kind of thing San Francisco has had to experience. But it does help us to see the kind of deep water we get into when we talk about making strikes impossible.

We have a democracy and we mean to keep it—and our strikeless millennium will just have to wait until the whole industrial field is prevailed by the justice, the public spirit and the sense of responsibility which are, ultimately, democracy's greatest safeguards.

HEALTH

"Let me advise you to hold your breath, and if this fails, then to gargle with a little water, and if the hiccup still continues tickle your nose with something and sneeze, and if you sneeze once or twice even the most violent hiccup is sure to go."

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine
Does this sound familiar to you? Well, it's advice given by one Greek to another way back in the days of Plato, who lived about 400 years before the present Christian era. Yet many of us seem to rely on just about such treatment for the ordinary case of hiccup, although sometimes the difficulty can't be snuffed so easily.

A hiccup is due to a spasm or constriction of the diaphragm, with closure of the valve which shuts off the breathing tubes from the throat. This valve is called the glottis.

The diaphragm is a large muscular organ which divides the chest cavity from the abdominal cavity. It is concerned with breathing.

Ordinarily when you inhale, the motion of the glottis is synchronized with the muscles of breathing so that the breathing takes place noiselessly. Anything disturbing the synchronization of this mechanism causes hiccup.

There are various causes which disturb this mechanism. Anything which stimulates the phrenic nerve which passes down the neck into the chest control the action of the diaphragm, may bring about a hiccup.

The overheating of highly seasoned, very hot or very cold food, the taking of alcoholic beverages, or a sudden distention of the stomach will set up stimuli to disturb the action of the diaphragm and bring about hiccup.

Thus, hiccup frequently follows operations on the stomach and the intestines. Moreover, the centers in the brain from which the nerves arise may be disturbed by brain tumors or abscesses, by infections of the brain, by injuries, or by anything else that modifies the brain.

The hiccup that sometimes take place with a patient under anesthesia are probably due to some disturbance in the brain. There are apparently epidemics of infection which particularly attack these brain centers and hiccup.

Finally, there are the kinds of hiccup that occur in infectious diseases and those which are apparently associated with nervousness, worry, anxiety, shock or accident.

The advice of the old Greek obviously was intended to control that type of hiccup which is primarily associated with nervous disorder. In cases due to disturbance of the stomach and intestines, attention must be given to the condition of these organs.

In the hiccup that develop after operation, it is sometimes advisable to have the stomach washed out in order to get rid of any source of irritation. Sometimes a little brandy, ginger, peppermint, or a similar substance helps to relieve hiccup due to stomach disturbance.

In other cases, the inhaling of carbon dioxide, alternating with oxygen, such as is used for resuscitating persons who have been asphyxiated, will help. Something similar may be accomplished by breathing into a paper bag and re-breathing the air that

WASHINGTON, July 25.—

Strikes in big cities are spectacular, but the farm labor problem is causing this administration just as much genuine worry. Dozens of recent strikes by farm laborers will be followed by many more. The reason is that millions of tenant farmers, share croppers, field hands, contract workers and hired men are being left out of the New Deal. And many are being badly hurt by it.

Secretaries Wallace and Perkins—who think the situation is extremely serious—feel virtually helpless. Neither NIRA nor the Farm act provides for protection of farm labor. The AAA program is entirely designed to benefit landowners. And any attempt to interfere between landowners and their landless workers is loaded with political dynamite. Diversity of the latter groups and their innumerable complications.

Communists are making the most of this bad business which inflicts starvation wages and conditions of virtual peonage in many cases. Everywhere they have made intensive organization drives and lately in California they have sought to synchronize agricultural strikes with the San Francisco walkout.

Whether it's the tenant or share cropper who finds himself squeezed out by the acreage reduction program or the vegetable weeder who faces higher existence costs with unchanged or reduced wages—often the result of the low prices his employers receive, these victims find the Communists the only ones who seem interested in their plight.

The AAA and the Labor Department have done an immense amount of investigating which disclosed widespread and almost incredibly inhuman conditions. But they know they couldn't get any law through Congress to benefit farm labor. The AAA has considered treating share croppers and field workers as "producers"—for whom the Farm act permits them to fix returns—and may yet feel forced to try something along that track.

Just for contrast with other labor disputes, you may be interested to know that about 20 young men and women are still picketing NRA headquarters three times a day—is breathed out.

Finally, in the most severe types of cases, a surgical operation may be necessary, stopping impulses that go along the phrenic nerve. This, however, should be done only in the most persistent case and after all the ordinary remedies have failed.

Stocks Are Down About Five Points In Today's Market

Reports are that corn is in such a situation that overnight rains will not weaken the market much. Wheat is also expected to hold firm. With a definite background of crop shortage this season, wheat is worth more than current levels. WASHINGTON—Another week of high temperatures and limited rainfall caused further damage to grain crops in the prairie provinces of Canada. NEW ORLEANS—A wobbly grain market eased on the break in wheat and rain prospects. There is no great pressure, but it is possible that the market will draw down some in general. Break in wheat prices was caused by weakness in stocks on war news. Wheat is liable to go up the limit at any time, market reports said. Stocks in general were from two to five points down today.

Italy Resentful While Dollfuss was said by officials to have been killed immediately, his fate did not become known for certain until after the Nazis had been loaded onto trucks and started for Germany. Meanwhile, wartime military orders were given last night by Premier Mussolini at Rome, acting as minister of war, navy and aviation, directing that all military forces in the Italian kingdom be held in readiness for any eventuality as a result of the Austrian development. At the same time the government-inspired press announced Italy's deep-seated resentment against what it termed Germany's interference in Austria and declared the situation extremely serious.

Negro Problem Up County clerks in some counties were experiencing difficulty again with negro voters. In Bexar county, several negroes who had paid their poll taxes demanded return of their poll tax money since they will not be allowed to vote. The Texas Supreme Court last week held negroes could not force their way into the Democratic party. Absentee voting in prison ended Wednesday. Absentee voting by mail will end today. If the number of absentee ballots cast can be taken as an indication of the total vote in Saturday's primaries, it will be considerably less than in the primary election two years ago, when nearly 1,000,000 votes were cast. The Travis County district clerk reported only 1,350 absentee ballots had been cast in the current election compared to 2,000 in 1932.

Rally Of Cotton Futures Is Offset By Profit Taking

Cotton futures rallied again yesterday, showing gains of from 13 to 18 points at one time, as further unfavorable advice as to the condition of the crop in the west made its appearance. The rise, however, proved short-lived, as it was utilized chiefly for profit taking and failed to develop a very strong following. Foreign and southern selling came in in the late dealings and left the list unchanged to three points higher on the day. At the opening, prices had been unchanged to two points off with new lows for the movement on several options, the New York Journal of Commerce said.
