AS FLAMES RAGED THROUGH DOOMED SHIP AND SCORES WENT TO MEET DEATH

A flaming death trap in which more than 200 perished, the Morro Castle, Ward liner, is shown here ablaze six miles off Asbury Park, N. J., as fire enveloped the doomed craft; and huge billows of smoke poured out to sea. This unusual aerial broadside view was taken a short time after the alarm was sounded and the terrified passengers and crew started taking to the boats. The palatial liner was launched in 1930 and carried 318 passengers and a crew of 258. It was returning from Havana to New York when overtaken by disaster, origin of which has not been determined.

PART OF COUNTY IS STRUCK BY HAIL STORM

Damaging Hail and Heavy Rain Over Panhandle

Sections of Hall county were in the path of hail storms that struck scattered sections of the Panhandle and Western Oklahoma late yesterday afternoon.

Hail was reported near Plaska and in sections south of Memphis. Additional storms pounded at feed and cotton crops between Turkey and Estelline.

No accurate check on the damage in the county could be made this morning. Reports in different sections varied. While one report would say that all crops were ruined, another from the same section stated that cotton was uninjured and feed hurt slightly.

Two inches of rain fell over the northern section of Hall county Saturday afternoon and night, farmers reported.

Tornadic winds, severe hailstorms and flooding rains were reported in many sections of the Panhandle and Western Oklahoma, causing thousands of dollars worth of damage and buildings and in few cases terrorizing residents.

The heaviest damage was reported at Frederick, Okla., where the loss was estimated at $35,000 and one man was slightly injured. An oil mill, two compresses and numerous small buildings were damaged by the gale which was unofficially estimated at a velocity of 75 miles per hour for a few minutes.

Altus, Okla., reported severe damage to crops in the path of a terrific hailstorm which swept through a portion of Jackson county. In the city of Altus streets were flooded when 1.25 inches of rain fell in 15 minutes.

Lightning was blamed for a blaze which swept the home of Robert Roth at Wichita Falls. The city received an inch rain.

Severe storm with heavy hail and a damaging wind in the eastern Panhandle. At Alanreed residents took to storm cellars. A heavy hail storm struck the area between Alanreed and Pampa.

A hard rain fell at Quanah and Vernon.

849 Students in Memphis Schools

EXHIBIT SPACE AT TRI-STATE FAIR SOLD

Merchants Building Will Be Completely Filled

With enrollment practically completed, 849 school students had been enrolled this morning at 11:30 o'clock in the three Memphis public schools.

The enrollment at the local high school was considerably shorter than had been anticipated. Only 185 had entered the high school, whereas it had been thought that over 225 would enter.

West Ward Leads

West Ward led the enrollment with 435 being matriculated, according to Mrs. H. B. Estes, principal. This is a considerable increase over the enrollment at the first of school last year.

Two hundred and 29 had enrolled in the junior high school, according to L. C. Linn, principal. There is considerable discussion as to the possibility that the eighth grade will be moved into the senior high building. Sixty-nine students have enrolled in the eighth grade at junior high and if a few more enter it is probable that the grade will be moved to high school in order that two science sections might be maintained.

To Use Buses

One of the school buses has not arrived here, and therefore one bus had to run both Memphis school routes this morning. It had been thought that 100 students would be transported on the two buses; however, only 50 rural students arrived on the bus at the high school here this morning.

The curriculum of the high school this year will include 22 subjects being taught at the beginning of school. The subjects to be taught are: English, four

Thinks Ship Fire To Be Incendiary

AGENT RECEIVES 500 INTERIM CERTIFICATES

To Be Issued to Farmers After Cotton Ready for Gin

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Chief Officer William F. Warm, acting master of the liner Morro Castle Saturday when fire brought death to more than 100 passengers, told government inquirers today he suspected the blaze was started by an incendiary.

The dead and unaccounted for totaled 133 today. The dead was 116.

In Havana, Gabriel Landa, secretary of the Cuban treasury, opened a general investigation of the disaster because of persistent growing rumors of sabotage.

Warm based his belief on the fact that an incendiary attempt was made on the boat's previous voyage. He also thought significant the fact the blaze was discovered in the ship's locker, which "blew out" at the start of the fire.

Denies Lightning

"I think somebody put something in the locker that burned and smoldered fire for a long time," Warm testified. "It smoked, then burst into flames."

Warm said the only other place the fire broke out was in the lounge.

He denied that lightning hit the ship.

SEAMAN SAYS CIGARET BUTTS CAUSE OF MORRO CASTLE FIRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The New York Post today quoted Arthur Bagley, Jr., seaman on the Morro Castle, as declaring that intoxicated passengers flipped lighted cigarettes into a wastepaper basket and caused the fire that swept the liner.

Says British War Office Disposing Of Surplus Stock

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Evidence that the British war office is disposing of surplus war stocks of such magnitude that sale of even part of these munitions could alter the balance of power in a small country was presented to the senate munitions committee today.

The testimony came to light in a letter by the Solely Armament company, Ltd., London, to the American Armament corporation, saying that it acted as the agent for the British war office disposing of small arms worth $30,000,000.

DYNAMITING OF ROAD TO MILL INTENSIFIES STRIKE FEELING

Dynamiting of a road leading to a mill intensified the strike situation in North Carolina today.

Several dozen mills, in the north and south, which the strike closed, resumed operations today.

At Cherryville, N. C., a bomb destroyed some of the main highway leading to Howell mill, only one of 104 in Gaston county attempting to operate.

In Washington, the textile mediation board heard George A. Sloan, president, explain the Cotton Textile Institute's viewpoint on the arbitration proposals of the United Textile Workers.

Revival Services Are Completed at Assembly of God

The local Assembly of God church brought to a close Sunday night the most successful revival meeting since the establishment of the church here five years ago.

Mrs. Allene Stephens, evangelist of Quitaque, was in charge of the preaching services until Friday night, Aug. 31, when she was seriously injured in a car accident near Estelline. R. A. Jones, local pastor, took up the services and continued until Sunday night.

Since the accident, Mrs. Stephens has been in the home of her sister, Mrs. Seth Thomason, recuperating. She is expected to return to her home in Quitaque today.

Between 130 and 140 persons were converted during the revival, and a large number was baptized and united with the church. Members of the church wish to acknowledge their appreciation and thanks to the special singers from other churches of Memphis who assisted in the singing services.

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY SYLVIA RIVERS, richest girl in Larchneck...

Hurt and reckless, Boots accepts the attentions of RUSS LUND, swimming instructor.

When Mrs. Raeburn returns from a trip out of town Boots dreads her mother's learning about her withdrawal from the club.

DENIS FENWAY, young author, who is interested in Boots sees the couple together in a hotel lobby.

It was a dream — it was all dreamlike. The bare, busy room with its grated windows and the business-like man asking questions behind it.

Boots signed her name; they all went away in a taxi. Boots had already sent a telegram to her parents, saying she was married.

The dreamlike haze persisted all through the hurried and brief ceremony at a dingy uptown church, whose denomination she did not even trouble to learn.

Then, suddenly it was all over. The yellow-haired girl whom Russ called Gloria and her husband, Russ's brother, went away, leaving Boots and her bridegroom alone together.

"Find me some socks, will you, Hon?" Russ rolled over, stretched, yawning, reaching out a long, muscular arm to embrace her.

"We should have been up hours ago," she said in an undertone, with a glance at the closed door separating the living room of Lou's flat from the box-like entrance hall beyond which came the smell of burning toast.

They had been married a week now. They were, presumably "just stopping" at Lou's for a short space before going on to new fields.

who had expected the glamour and romance of open tennis and new scenes to glid her young married life. Instead the tour was of tria's snoddy living room encompassed her.

At the bare notion of any such procedure Boots' heart sank. She was outwardly docile and sweet toward her young husband. Indeed, though she might have been disappointed about the background of her new life, his love-making still held in it a breath taking quality for her.

When Russ came whistling into the kitchen 15 minutes later, his cockatoo's crest of leaf-brown hair slick and dripping, he found Boots wiping plates and spoons with a housewife's pride.

"Help yourself," she said, belatedly hospitable, at the door. "I'll be seeing' you."

When Russ came whistling into the kitchen 15 minutes later, his cockatoo's crest of leaf-brown hair slick and dripping, he found Boots wiping plates and spoons with a housewife's pride.

She began carefully to make up the couch in daytime fashion, folding the gray sheets meticulously, piling up the pillows. This floor, she thought, ought to be cleaned today. If she only had a vacuum cleaner. . . . But she dared not make any such suggestion to Gloria whose housekeeping was of the most casual order.

Her own few belongings she packed away in the imitation leather bag Russ had bought for her. They were pitifully few. A gown, a gown, a toothbrush, a pair of red slippers, some handkerchiefs from the dime store.

He had complained shamefacedly, he was "expecting some money any day." Boots was too young, too inexperienced to inquire further into their finances.

While Russ was carolling in the tub she went rather shyly out into the kitchen. Gloria was sitting over a tabloid. She looked up without interest as the other girl entered.

said, "I'm going out in a minute. Over to my girl friend's. We want to see Clark Gable down at the Empire and the show starts at 11."

"Is it that late?" Boots glanced remorsefully at the alarm clock on the kitchen dresser. The hands pointed to half-past 10.

"Help yourself," she said, belatedly hospitable, at the door. "I'll be seeing' you."

When Russ came whistling into the kitchen 15 minutes later, his cockatoo's crest of leaf-brown hair slick and dripping, he found Boots wiping plates and spoons with a housewife's pride.

"Sa-ay, Dutchess, where d'you think you are—at the Ritz?" Russ wanted to know, pretending to affix a monocle. "Oranges?" She laughed, but more in annoyance.

"Be Warlike!"

"We must become a military nation, even militaristic, even—I might add—a warlike nation. We must prepare for the war of today not tomorrow!"

"You think so, hey? A lot you know!"

He poured himself a brimming cup, tilted the small squat bottle, rimmed and coiled with a yellow scuff of hardened cream, and drank. Boots opened her mouth to say something and closed it again.

"I'll learn," she said now, quietly, to her husband.

"Here, Beautiful, you're going to get your hands all red, doing that dirty work." For the first time he seemed to be aware of her absorption in the task of cleaning Gloria's discouraging kitchen.

Sinclair Treads Another Platform

Spry and happy, Upton Sinclair, California's ex-Socialist Democratic nominee, eagerly passed through New York City enroute to Hyde Park, where he was scheduled to discuss his EPIC platform with President Roosevelt.

"Look, don't be a dumb-bell. Let that sloppy wench clean her own pans."

"You musn't call her names. We're accepting her hospitality, after all," Boots protested, struggling with a hank of steel wool, attempting to scour a frying pan which steadily resisted her efforts.

"Aw, she's a pain in the neck," Russ blustered, swallowing the last of his coffee and reaching out a hand for more toast.

Boots refused to argue the matter. They had been over this ground before.

"Well, anyway, we shan't be here much longer," she said with pretended cheerfulness. "Shall we, dearest?"

REHABILITATION WILL BE RUSHED

Rural Projects Planned During Next Two Months by Relief Commission

AUSTIN, Sept. 10.—The Texas Relief commission's program of rural rehabilitation will be pushed to the limit during the next two months, it was announced by J. E. Stanford, director of the department, as he issued instructions to his field supervisors to employ assistants to help them carry out the program during the next eight weeks.

It is the aim of the department to house every family possible and supply them with capital goods before the winter season arrives.

Federal authorities have been asked for a grant of $800,000 for rural rehabilitation in Texas in September as against $250,000 for the last month.

Stanford reported the program now being carried on in 142 counties and said it will be extended to others as soon as rains break long existing drouth in these counties.

U. S. Cattle Being Sent To Australia

An exportation of purebred cattle from the United States to Australia is reported by the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture. The lot consisted of 11 Shorthorns and 2 Herefords which are to be used for breeding purposes. Prior to shipment, the cattle received thorough veterinary inspection including a blood and tuberculin test to insure their freedom from disease.

Great Britain is the natural source of supply of foundation breeding stock for Australia and New Zealand. For this reason it is regarded as a compliment to the United States livestock industry when Australian breeders purchase such a large shipment here.

Veterinary inspections and official certification of health have become an important phase of international movement of livestock.

owing to the rigid requirement that most countries now impose as a means of preventing inroads of livestock disease. Dr. George W. Pope, in charge of international quarantine regulations for the Bureau of Animal Industry, explains that since purchases of livestock by foreign breeders are dependent largely on the health of animals, the Bureau conducts rigid tests when necessary in order to insure sound health of livestock to the purchasers.

Drouth Proves Value Of New Milo Variety

Plant breeders who are trying to develop disease-resistant strains of milo had an unusual experience in connection with the drought at the dry-land experiment station which the United States Department of Agriculture maintains near Dalhart in the Texas Panhandle. The Bureau of Plant Industry has at the Dalhart station fields that have been cropped continuously to milo in order to keep up a maximum infection with the soil-borne milo disease. This enables them to plant new varieties of milo and subject them immediately to as severe a test as any milo would ever meet.

For several years the infection has killed most of the plants while they were young. This year the milo breeders planted a resistant strain developed at the Garden City, Kans., substitution which lived in spite of the disease in the soil. All around this field, crops were severely injured by drought, but this milo remained green and vigorous. The scientists account for this in two ways: The variety is evidently resistant to the disease under the most severe drouth. So few plants were able to survive on these plots in previous years that they did not exhaust the moisture, and plants on these plots are now using this accumulated moisture.

It never rains in northern Chile. Rain would dissolve the rich deposits of nitrate there.

119 Charters Are Issued in August

Special to The Democrat
AUSTIN, Sept. 10.—A bright spot on the business horizon continues to be the relatively small number of business failures, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. According to the weekly reports compiled by the bureau, Texas during August totaled 17, the same as in July but only about half the number as for August last year. Liabilities of $209,000 were 20 per cent lower than in July and 73 per cent below August, 1933. Average liability per failure of $12,294 was 20 per cent lower than in July and 47 per cent below that of August last year. Total assets of the 17 firms that failed in August were $107,000 against $83,600 for an equal number in July, an increase of 29 per cent.

Only 17 Business Failures Recorded

Special to The Democrat
AUSTIN, Sept. 10.—New charters granted Texas corporations during August rose sharply from July, both in number and capitalization, but were somewhat below those of August, 1933, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. The number of new charters granted during August totaled 119, a rise of 13.4 per cent from July but a decline of 3 per cent from August last year while capitalization of $2,200,000 represented an increase of 10.2 per cent over a month ago, but a drop of 15.6 per cent from last year. Corporations with capitalization of $5,000 or less, of which there were 56, showed an increase of 40 per cent over July and 2 per cent below last year while the four with capitalization of $100,000 or more was the same number as in July but 20 per cent below August a year ago. August last year: Oil, real estate-building, and out-of-state permits.
