

GRANT STREET FUND

Twelve are Killed in Crash of Airplane

FUNDS FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF STREETS

Work Will Start As Soon as Funds Available

According to word received today, and verified this morning by a special dispatch to the Democrat from the Associated Press, the city's WPA project for paving additional streets has been approved.

Included in a $3,000,000 grant of federal funds to the Texas State Progress Administration, the Presidential approval this morning, was $5,400 for a city garden program in Hall Park, and $20,663 for the paving of Memphis streets.

The allotment to the city for this work will, with the city's own funds, provide for grading and paving about 100 blocks within city limits.

The amount of graveling will be in the city which is not now paved or graveled, with the exception, perhaps, of a few out-of-the-way little used streets. Officials contacted this morning were jubilant over the award of the grant, and state work will be begun on the project just as soon as the funds available, which will probably be a very short time.

The project will give work to a number of local unemployed men. The decision of the graveled streets is greeted by those which were treated about a year ago. Streets which were formerly mud when it rained are now excellent thoroughfares in even the heaviest rainstorms.

The grant for community gardens, we understand, the counterpart of the state-wide program, provide for the raising of garden truck for the unemployed in various communities of the city.

Mayor's Proclamation

National Fire Prevention Week is again at hand. The Object of the occasion is to remind the public of the seriousness of the large fire loss of this country, both as to life and property, and bring to the attention of everyone the fact that nearly all this destruction could be avoided if greater care were taken in the construction of buildings, if litter and rubbish were removed from homes and places of business, if children and grown people were thoroughly educated in the handling of fire and taught the importance of extreme carefulness.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, J. A. Whaley, mayor of Memphis, in cooperation with the nationwide movement for the elimination of preventable fires, do hereby designate October 6 to 12 as Fire Prevention Week in this city.

On those days I ask our civic and commercial organizations, our school officials and teachers, and our citizenship as a whole, to join with the chief of our fire department and our city fire marshal in arranging meetings and exercises for a study of ways and means of preventing fires, as well as to impress the seriousness of the wastage that it causes and the need for utmost care for the protection of life and property.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I hereunto sign my name and affix my seal of office on this, the fifth day of October, 1935, A. D.

Local Man Beaten As He Enters Home

E. W. Gillenwater, 1103 North 17th street, was administered a severe beating at his home Friday night about 8:30 o'clock by two unknown assailants, he told members of the local Sheriff's Department Saturday, J. K. Gibson, constable, said this morning.

Gillenwater arrived at his home shortly before 9 o'clock Friday night, members of his family being at the football game. As he entered the door, two men grabbed him and began beating him, he told officers.

The men ran from the house, and Gillenwater called local officers, but was unable to get assistance at that time. It was supposed that the men were apparently robbing the Gillenwater home when Mr. Gillenwater arrived and surprised them in the act.

COTTON COMING IN RAPIDLY NOW

Predicted Crop Will Exceed All Early Estimates

With all Hall County farmers busy picking cotton and snapping bolls, and with almost every gin in the county running, predictions are that this county will raise more than the number of allowable bales under the Bankhead cotton law.

Hall County's number of bales that may be ginned under the Bankhead Cotton Act has been set at 32,883, which represents approximately 4,000 bales more than any of the neighboring counties. Collingsworth County is allowed 29,129 bales. Other neighboring counties are: Childress, 21,455; Cottle, 18,754; Hardeman, 18,549; Motley, 11,419; Crosby, 21,998, and Donley, 15,434.

These bales are based on a weight average of 478 pounds, the Bankhead law being based on pounds and not bales.

Plane Strikes Knoll In Wyoming and Crashes

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 7.—Twelve persons, including nine passengers, two pilots and the stewardess, were killed early this morning, when a California to New York transport plane of the American Airlines hit a knoll on the rolling plains fifteen miles north of this city.

The pilot, H. A. Collison, started the plane down from a high altitude, when the twin-motored plane struck the hill, lost a propeller and plummeted against another hillside. The plane did not burn.

Searchers found the crumpled wreckage about dawn.

Five minutes before the plane was due to land here, and apparently just before the crash occurred, the pilot had asked the field operator here for information as to the ground wind prevailing.

The exact cause of the crash cannot be determined, airline officials said, until the Federal Department of Commerce finishes an official investigation.

Justice Court Is Busy Place

One of the busiest places at the courthouse this morning was the Justice Court, where the weekend grist of drunks were being run through the mill.

About six or seven cases of drunkenness were on the docket this morning, and Justice Wheat was distributing sentences with a lavish hand.

Most of them drew fines of one dollar and costs, two pleaded not guilty and their trials were set for tomorrow, and one, who just two weeks ago got a suspended sentence for burglary in District Court, was plastered with a fine of $50 and costs.

Few of the offenders ever have the money to pay their fines. Some lay it out in jail and some are put to work on the roads, to work out their fines.

As a usual thing, they are allowed a reasonable time to try and dig up the money for their fines, and sometimes they pay part of it in and take up the other in installments.

One man from Amarillo, who was arrested for drunkenness yesterday, was filed on in County Court.

FIRE PREVENTION

THIS is Fire Prevention week, and here is a thought that is worth considering.

Friendly fire—fire under control—is one of man's greatest boons. It keeps us warm, cooks our foods, motivates our industries, and serves us in countless other ways.

Unfriendly fire—fire out of control—is one of man's greatest enemies. It destroys property, causing irreparable economic loss. It menaces life. It hampers progress. It threatens community development, and industrial activity and employment.

A building for example, represents something besides money. It represents energy, achievement, labor. If it is a factory building, it represents creative, productive wealth. When a fire destroys the building, insurance will give back part of the money it cost, but nothing can give back the energy that was wasted. Nothing can make up for the work lost, the jobs destroyed, the diminished purchasing power the fire caused.

The indirect costs of fire—costs which cannot be put into a balance sheet—are the real measures of our national fire waste. Those indirect costs are many times the direct costs.

Somewhere, as you read this, a home is being burned to the ground. A factory building is a smoldering ruin. A man is screaming in pain from a burn that will prove fatal.

All this is the result of someone's oversight, someone's carelessness, someone's stupidity.

Are you willing to do your part to minimize such happenings in the future?

The Demon Unchained Again

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JEAN DUNN, pretty, 21-year-old secretary, and BOBBY WALLACE, young automobile salesman, spent an evening at The Golden Feather night club. ART LANNING, the proprietor, introduces SANDY HARKINS to them. Sandy explains he is in Dover on business. He and Jean dance. When he asks if he can telephone her she evades. Later LARRY GLENN, friend of Jean's father, joins Jean and Bobby. Glenn is a lawyer, now engaged in government work. Bobby and Jean are both delighted to see him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III

At that moment, "this Harkins guy" was sitting at a table on the far side of the room talking earnestly with two men. One of them was Art Lanning; the other was a small, black-haired man who sat slouched over his glass and kept darting quick, alert glances about the room.

"I'm telling you that's all," said Lanning. "Never mind where I found out. She comes from a small town downstate, and her father is president of the local bank."

The black-haired man looked sideways at Harkins and grinned. "Can you hear opportunity when it comes knocking?" he asked.

Sandy Harkins grinned back at him.

"Don't rush me," he said. "I only just met her. She's kind of a neat little number, at that."

He let his gaze wander across the room to the table where Jean Dunn was sitting with Bobby Wallace and Larry Glenn.

"Who's the guy with her?" asked the black-haired man suddenly.

"Boy friend," said Sandy.

"No, not him—I mean the old one."

Sandy looked at Larry Glenn.

"Never saw him before," he said. "He wasn't there when I went over."

The other man took a longer look.

"I don't like his look," he said unexpectedly.

"What's the matter with him?" asked Sandy.

"I don't know. He just looks kind of like trouble, that's all. Know who he is, Art?"

The proprietor of the night club shook his head.

"He's a new one on me."

"Who'd he come with?"

"He came in alone," said Lanning. "Took a table over in the corner, ordered a club steak, and just sat there. Then, finally, I see him talking to those two kids."

The black-haired man turned away and shrugged his shoulders.

"Well," he said, "I don't like his looks."

"Forget it," said Sandy. He turned to Lanning. "What's this girl doing in Dover?" he asked.

"She's a stenographer, or something," replied Lanning. "Works for Donald Montague, the lawyer."

The other two men raised their eyebrows and looked at one another for a moment.

"Did you say something about opportunity?" asked Sandy, grinning. Lanning looked puzzled, and asked, "What about it?"

"Well," said the black-haired man, "we might want to do a little business with this Montague some day, that's all. And if this dame—"

He looked again at Harkins.

"I guess you've got an assignment, Sandy," he concluded.

All unconscious of the fact that she was figuring so extensively in this mysterious conversation, Jean Dunn rested her chin in her hands and looked fondly at Larry Glenn. As an independent wage-earner, making her own way in a strange city with all the pride in her freedom that she had expressed to Bobby a little while ago, she never admitted even to herself that this metropolis sometime seemed too big, too heedless, too complicated for one lone girl to cope with; but in the bottom of her heart there was a secret fear of it, a feeling that she might some day desperately need someone to fall back on in time of need, someone who could protect her from these unexpected accidents which she dimly foresaw in her future.

Larry Glenn was made to order for such a mood. He was solid, capable, experienced, full of the wisdom that comes only from years of battling with the world. Jean knew that she could look up to him, trust him, rely on him just as if he were her own father. To be sure, he was barely 30, but when you are 21, as Jean was, anyone who has reached the great age of 30 seems to be very ancient and exceedingly wise.

Not only was Larry older and stronger than either Jean or Bobby; he was a familiar person—almost a relative, it seemed. He came from their town, Maplehurst; he knew their parents; they had known him since earliest childhood; and Bobby, as well as Jean, had the feeling that either of them, in case of need, could appeal to him and be sure that whatever needed fixing would be fixed without delay or the asking of needless questions.

"What're you doing now?" asked Jean. "And how come you're in Dover?"

"Well," said Larry, "I'm a lawyer, you know. Right now I'm doing some work for Uncle Sam, and I just got transferred here."

"You're working for the government?" said Jean. "What sort of work is it, Larry?"

"Well," he said, "the last thing I did was investigate the circumstance of a bankruptcy case in which a business man tried to conceal some $50,000 worth of assets from his creditors. It was dry as dust, and I'm sure you

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The "Row" as it was known in the past, is a genuine prospect that the various treasury agencies, co-ordinating under director Harold Graves, assistant secretary, have "turned heat" to such extent that the practice of illegal liquor for practical purposes, been nothing at all.

Something like a year ago when treasury agencies, with the coast guard, alcohol inspectors, customs men, secret internal revenue agents, with co-ordination of Graves, estimated at 2,000,000 a year was being smuggled into the country from abroad.

Now the flood of illegal living is believed to be not more than a fifth of that, perhaps a tenth. The country of less than $100,000,000 a year in revenue is being lost to the liquor market.

Co-ordination of treasury agencies under Graves into a "Prohibition Police" force of nearly 13,000 men is responsible for a great deal of curbing of smuggling.

Agreements reached with smugglers' bases such as St. John, Cuba, Belize, St. John, Cuba, to prohibit exports of rum destined for smugglers. Harry has done the rest. The "rum" of Rum Row is pretty much a thing of the past.

New Coaches Prove Spur to Big Six Interest

KANSAS AND OKLAHOMA STAND FOR THE CONFERENCE TITLE

By JOSEPH F. HEARST
United Press Staff Correspondent
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 7. (U. P.)—Coaching changes in the Big Six conference are expected to bring new interest to football this fall and possibly figure in providing the number of upsets before the season closes.

Of the six teams have had coaches, but one of Wesley Fry, the old Iowa familiar with his Kansas Wildcats and knows from afar, when he was chief aid to Waldorf, what his squad

Missouri and Oklahoma, the new mentors—Dorsey at Missouri and Capt. M. (Biff) Jones at Oklahoma—are starting from scratch and it is expected they will long-needed fireworks in the conference title in his

Jones and Faurot are expected to do a little wonder-work, in particular, is expected to add the needed spark at the Waldorf trick at State and came through the conference title in his prospect outlook, to which makes exception, is based on the wealth of material Jones in when he moved to Oklahoma from Louisiana State. He lettermen and enough surmise make three or four teams. Sooners were figured to be the top last fall, but down at crucial moments. Jones firing their enthusiasm and giving them needed confidence they should begin clicking in earnest.

The story at Missouri, however, is different. There Faurot is building from the ground, attempting to rejuvenate a team that has won but one major victory in three years.

No one expects Faurot, an old Missouri backfield man, to work the cure in one season, but Missouri adherents court on seeing the Tiger take on a tougher aspect this fall. Faurot, like Jones, has a splendid coaching record to stimulate his new charges. When he left Kirksville Missouri Teachers to attempt the rehabilitation at his alma mater he had won 26 games without a reverse.

Fry, who got his opportunity when Waldorf answered the call from Northwestern, has a good squad of experienced men to make his first year path less rocky, and with Oklahoma and Nebraska, is expected to battle for top honors.

The Nebraskans, under Dana X. Bible, are the pick of many fans to step back into their usual role of bellwether of the conference, but it is a little premature to hand the Cornhuskers the conference title, for their schedule is tough from the start to finish.

Iowa State, coming along nicely under George Veenker after many lean years, can be counted no worse than fourth and may break into the first three group without occasioning any great surprise.

LATE WAR NEWS FROM EUROPE

By Associated Press
The League of Nations Council this morning blocked Italy's request for more time, and ordered a public session to determine whether Italy "resorted to war in disregard of covenants." The Council's committee of thirteen, representing every nation in the council except Italy, approved this allegation. The adoption of the report means that Italy is deemed as having committed an act of war against League members.

The Suez Canal Company directors have decided that the canal will remain open to all countries during the hostilities.

Ethiopian sources report that Emperor Selassie plans to lead an army of 120,000 men against Italy within a fortnight. Selassie is massing tribal warriors to the north and south, and the first major battle of the war is believed near, probably at Makale, 60 miles southeast of Aduwa, which was conquered by the Indians.

The Italian army is split into two sections, one at Aduwa and the other at Adigrat. It is reported that the Italians have occupied the Tigre province, and that they will advance from the south, north and east.

In accord with Ethiopian strategy, Selassie plans to fall back in the center, letting the Italians advance through the southern desert, and then engulf the Italians with hundreds of thousands of black warriors.

ESTELLINE, Oct. 7.—The Estelline Bear Cubs journeyed to Lockney Friday to play the Lockney Longhorns and went down in defeat, their first of the season, 21-13. The Cubs got off to a bad start, and the Longhorns took advantage of it, scoring all of their points in the first half. The Cub eleven came back the last half a new team, holding the Longhorns for few gains, and making gains through and around the Lockney line. The Cubs were still pushing the Longhorns back as the game ended. Leatherwood was the star for the Cubs.

ACC Enrollment Breaks Records

With a few students yet to matriculate, Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas, entered the fifth week of its thirtieth session Monday, October 7, with more students and a wider territory represented in its student body than ever before in the history of the school. Six hundred one students had enrolled in the college departments including elementary grades, Junior high school, and high school.

Different students in college call seventeen states, the District of Columbia, and Canada home. An analysis of the enrollment shows that sixty-one elementary students, eighty-five junior high school and high school students have enrolled, and that two hundred sixty-one of the six hundred one college students are freshmen. Among those enrolled in the college are Charles Eudaly and Virginia Orr from Memphis.

Mrs. Frank Houston and daughter, Mary Jo, of Childress spent Saturday here with their parents and grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Thompson. They were accompanied to Memphis by Mrs. J. R. Power, who was a guest in the home of Mrs. B. F. Denny.

Miss Ruby Adams of Pampa visited friends in Memphis yesterday. Miss Adams is home demonstration agent of Gray county. She was home demonstration agent of Hall county before going to Pampa.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Cabaness and son, Ralph Jr., went to Hico Saturday for a brief visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Teer of Clarendon visited her parents, Judge and Mrs. J. M. Elliott here yesterday.

Baptists Plan Week of Prayer

The First Baptist Church here is holding a week of prayer this week for the spiritual well-fare of the State of Texas, according to Rev. O. K. Webb, pastor.

Beginning tonight at 7:30 o'clock, a meeting will be held in the Baptist Annex for an hour's service. The service will consist of a devotional message, songs of praise, earnest prayer, discussion of topics relative to the Christian work in Texas and the need of the mission fields.

These services will last through Friday night, and they will be conducted by local people. Each night four speakers will talk briefly on some phase of work.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend these services, the pastor said.

City May Get Officers Meet

According to Sheriff Joe Colvin, who has just returned from the annual Sheriff's Convention at Gainesville, there is a great likelihood that this city will entertain the convention in 1937.

At the convention just over, only two cities asked for the meeting, Memphis and Wichita Falls. This city was represented by Sheriff Colvin and Deputy Wilson. Wichita Falls had a large number present, all pulling for the next meeting, and won.

The Wichita Falls delegation, as several others, pledged their support to Memphis for the meeting in 1937.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

SYMBOL OF THE MAILS

THE romantic post is linked with today by means of the post horn that appears on many stamps of Europe. This is the symbol of the postal service and it is used in many different ways to recall the days when its blast resounded in advance of the coach that stopped at the inn with its passengers and left a small bag of dispatches for the district.

Norway issued post horn stamps most frequently, although Germany, Austria, Danzig, Sweden, and other countries are close behind. The post horn has been modernized even to the extent of adding wings to it and using the stamp for airmail postage, as shown on the German airmail stamp below. The design has been used even as a watermark for some stamps in Finland, Norway and Brunswick.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced peaches or stewed dried peaches, ready-to-serve cereal, baked eggs with cress, graham and raisin muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Oyster curry in rice border, toasted muffins, Chinese cabbage and sweet pepper salad, filled cup cakes, milk, tea.

DINNER: Chicken and vegetables en casserole, head lettuce and cheese ball salad with quince honey sandwich- es, peanut brittle ice cream, milk, coffee.

Vary the list by using fresh fruits alternately with stewed fruits. Let tomato juice pleasantly chilled and carefully seasoned with lemon juice take the place of orange juice occasional- ly. Baked apples and apple sauce will be available all winter, baked pears until after Thanksgiving.

Serve Different Cereal Daily

With cooked and ready-to-serve cereals made in all grains and in all fashions you can serve a different cereal every morning for two weeks—with plenty of rich milk or cream, of course.

When I have a cooked cereal I'm not particular about a hot drink, but if we are to eat a ready-to-serve cereal I like to have my twelve-year-old son drink a cup of cocoa or hot milk. Some- thing hot aids digestion.

Eggs should be on the table at least three times a week. On other mornings try a creamed meat or a creamed vegetable on toast with a garnish of crisp bacon.

Crisp toast to make a child chew is good for his teeth as well as his general health. It's a good idea to allot toast to cooked cereal mornings and muffins or rolls to the ready-to-serve-cereal occasions.

wouldn't care to hear about it. Suppose you tell me what you're doing here."

"But we told you," protested Jean. "I'm working for Mr. Montague, and Bobby's selling autos."

"No, no," said Larry, smiling at her. "I mean here—in the Golden Feather."

Bobby chuckled.

"Jean wanted to go slumming," he said. "She wanted to see life in the raw. I guess she was hoping that we'd see lots of wicked people behaving evilly in here. She wanted both a shock and a thrill."

Jean made a dainty little face at her suitor.

"I did not! We just—well, I'd never been in a night club in my life before. And I'd heard people tell about this one, and I knew my boss, Mr. Montague, comes here pretty often. And then one day this Mr. Lanning was up in the office to see Mr. Montague about something, and Mr. Montague knew I'd never been to a night club so he introduced me and Mr. Lanning said I ought to come down some time, so—"

Larry Glenn laughed.

"So that's the way it is, eh?" he said. "Well, now you're here, what do you think of it?"

"To be honest with you, it's much—oh, much quieter than I'd thought it would be," she confessed. There was a trace of disappointment in her voice.

"What'd you expect—Roman orgies, or something?" asked Bobby mockingly. She made another face at him.

"Well, it is quite," she insisted. "Quite?" said Larry. "When that orchestra is playing you can't hear yourself think."

"She means people are behaving themselves too well," suggested Bobby.

"Oh," said Larry. He gazed thoughtfully at the little glass vase in the corner of the table, in which reposed one rather discouraged-looking rose. "Now listen, you two children—you don't mind getting a bit of advice from your elders?" They shook their heads expectantly.

"Well," he said speaking slowly as if he were choosing his words carefully. "maybe it'd be a good idea for the two of you to be just a little bit careful about frequenting places of this kind too often. Night clubs are funny places. Some of them are perfectly all right, and some of them—aren't. You want to go a little slow."

"But this one—why, it's as respectable as a hotel dining room, as far as I can see," Jean objected.

"I know. I know. I don't mean that you're apt to get into a brawl here, or anything like that. But sometimes some rather peculiar things go on under the surface."

The eyes of the two young people were wide with excitement, and Bobby leaned forward and asked, "How do you mean?"

"Oh—" he paused, and took out a cigaret. "You never know just who you're rubbing elbows with. The man at the next table may be a perfectly respectable business man, or he may be a gunman who's wanted for murder in half a dozen different cities. You have no way of knowing."

Bobby and Jean glanced automatically at the next table, where sat a bald, well-dressed man who could not possibly, under any scheme of things, have been anyone but a tired business man out on the prowl. With him there was a hennaed, scented, elaborately made-up young woman in the kind of black gown which people refer to as "slinky."

"Oh, I don't mean him," Larry amended, laughing. "I mean—well, for example; take this Harkins lad you pointed out to me a few minutes ago. Who's he?"

"He?" echoed Jean uncertainly. "Why, I—I don't know. Mr. Lanning introduced him to me, that's all. And Mr. Lanning is a friend of Mr. Montague. He must be all right, isn't he?"

"I'm not saying that he isn't," said Larry. "For all I know he may be the president of a Christian Endeavor Society or something. My point is just this; if you patronize places of this kind regularly, you meet all sorts of utter strangers in time—and you never have a choice in the world of finding out just who they are. They may be all right, and they may be most decidedly all wrong—and you never know until too late. Let me repeat, I don't mean anything personal about this Harkins chap. I never saw him before he may be a very fine young man. My point is that the contacts which you are bound to make in a place like the Golden Feather are bound to be rather mysterious, especially when you're practically a stranger in a big town. And because I've known you two youngsters ever since you used to play hopscotch on the sidewalk in front of my mother's house, I just wanted to warn you." "Well, Bobby, you're ready to go, aren't you?"

The two were momentarily sobered. Conversation lagged, for a minute, as they glanced curiously about the room, trying to realize that the people at the tables and on the dance floor might be sinister creatures with lawless and violent backgrounds.

At last Jean chanced to look at the tiny platinum watch on her wrist.

"Heavens!" she gasped. "I didn't know it was so late. Larry, I've got to get home and get to bed. Bobby, you're ready to go, aren't you?"

Larry walked to the door with the two young people, patted them fondly on their shoulders and saw them into a taxicab. As the car rolled away, he stood in the entrance for a moment, looking after it with thoughtful eyes, and the firm line of his mouth was troubled. Then he shrugged his shoulders and walked back into the night club.
