ANY DRIVERS' LICENSES NOW BEING ISSUED

Clerk Busy at Courthouse Taking Applications

Drivers' licenses, now being issued from the office of County Assessor - Collector Holt to all Hall County residents who expect to drive a vehicle within the next three years—are free and good for one year—but they can be renewed for bad driving. Applications in three perforated sections will be presented to the clerk who convict holders of licenses. If the judge tears the section, the driver goes from first to second class. Another section and detachment puts the driver in third class. Another round ends his driving until and he can obtain another license. The clerk of drivers license was busy yesterday and today. Flossie Rogers has been employed to the office personal at county tax collector's office, for issuing the license. (Continued on Page 8)

Crowned King of Dogs

There were bigger dogs in the annual Westminster Kennel Club's annual show at New York, but there weren't any better ones than St. Margaret Magnificent of the Clairdale Kennels, the little Sealyham terrier adjudged best of all breeds. A male despite his name. St. Margaret Magnificent disdains the bowl which attests his victory.

DISTRICT HEAD EXPLAINS LACK OF FORMS HERE

Promises Blanks for County Not Later Than Thursday

Hall County people eligible for the old-age pension, who have been worried by the failure of this county to receive application blanks for the pension, will be glad to learn that the blanks will be available in this city not later than Thursday. A phone call by the Democrat this morning to the district office of the pension fund, at Plainview elicited the information that that office had not been supplied with enough blanks to furnish all the counties in the district, and that Hall County was one of those which had not been sent blanks. The district supervisor informed us that a new supply of the blanks had been received at the district office and were being sent out, and that plenty of blanks would be available here either tomorrow or today. ## PHILLIPS TEST STILL DRILLING

Drilling is continuing regularly at the Hughes No. 1, J. H. Stevens survey, Hall County wildcat oil test, despite rumors that the test has been shut down, according to advices from the location. A driller at the well yesterday said: "We haven't had any order to shut down, and we'll run right on down until we get order to stop drilling." Depth of the test Sunday afternoon was reported by drillers to be at 7,785 feet. Corings were taken at that depth. They were not obtained but were said to be more favorable than several previous corings. The bit is now working in hard chert formation, with progress going forward at snail's pace. ## AMATEUR SHOW DRAWS ENTRIES

May Be Necessary to Stage Series of Such Contests

With entries already pouring in for the "Big Broadcast Amateur Contest," sponsored by the Memphis High School, and to be held Friday night at the High School Auditorium, those in charge of the event are of the opinion that it may perhaps be necessary to stage a series of these contests, in order to care for all the available talent. Not only talented contestants, but the citizenship as a whole, have enthusiastically endorsed the plan of the contest. Tomie M. Potts, president of the Board of Trustees, says: "Congratulations to the school in their effort to sponsor an amateur contest. No doubt that will be the best method of locating valuable talent. We are glad to see the school take advantage of every available opportunity in helping individuals, as well as the community at large. We endorse the sponsoring of this contest, and trust that it will do lasting good." The contest will begin at 7:30, Friday evening, and admission to the Auditorium will be 25 cents. Cash prizes will be presented to the three contestants receiving the highest vote from the audience.

Scout Leaders Training School

MORE STUDENTS GET N.Y.A. WORK

Five additional students at the local High School were given positions yesterday morning with the National Youth Administration, raising the number now employed by the High School through the NYA to 15. The students were added because of surplus funds, which had been allotted to Memphis the first two months of school. The local school did not have any students employed the first two months, and the district NYA officials have ruled that the funds (Continued on Page 8)

Second-Class Scout Requirements Will Occupy Tonight

With more than two dozen men present for the course, the Boy Scout Leadership Training School got under way last night at the Methodist Church basement, with C. A. ### ASKING AID FOR INELIGIBLES

Hall County officials have been working on a plan whereby persons in this county in destitute circumstances who are not eligible for the Works Progress Administration work will receive relief commodities, County Judge Jim Vallance stated this morning. At present, according to Texas relief laws, only unemployables, those persons unable to work, are eligible to receive commodities; and no provision is made for the (Continued on Page 8)

ESTELLINE HAS MUCH PNEUMONIA

Influenza and pneumonia for the past two weeks have been sweeping the Estelline community. Three Estelline citizens died of pneumonia last week, and several others are ill of pneumonia and influenza. Leon Blum (above), Socialist leader of the Chamber of Deputies, was dragged from his car and severely beaten in Paris by a group believed to represent the Royalists, whom he has opposed. Blum's followers President Sarrault issued a decree of dissolution against the Nationalist organization.

The Weather

WEST TEXAS: Fair and not so cold tonight; Wednesday partly cloudy, with rising temperatures in south and central portions. EAST TEXAS: Fair and not so cold tonight in northwest. Temperature 12 to 18 in north, 22 to 28 in south tonight. Wednesday partly cloudy with rising temperatures. LOCAL: With a clear sky and sunshine, the weather has warmed up a few degrees. Starting with the same reading as yesterday at that time, the thermometer registered 18 degrees at 8:00 a. m., but rose to 29 at noon. No wind.

U. S. Opera Star

The admirers of Dusoline Giannini, Philadelphia-born dramatic soprano who has long been a famous opera star in Europe, at last got their opportunity to hear her sing with the Metropolitan Opera. She is pictured with several tributes of friends made up as "Aida," the role in which she made her home-land debut at New York.

DISTRICT COURT QUIET TODAY

Case of Term Will Go on Trial Tomorrow Morning

A little business was being done today in District Court, the exception of calling the docket and setting for trial at this term of the Grand Jury is in session and reported to be investigating cases involving felonies, as a number of misdemeanors. They will probably report their first report to the court the next couple of days.

Petit Jury for this week was dismissed by Judge until tomorrow morning. They will report for duty.

cases of the term will be heard tomorrow morning, headed by G. C. Ewing, et al., of the Ford Grocer Company, which was set for trial at this term of court, the plaintiff, Hamilton & Hamilton, and the defendant by the firm of Abilene.

caught Dirk's arm. "That black-haired man has been following us," she said.

HERE TODAY
WESTON loses her job in a magazine where she has been a typist. She receives a ticket for a cruise.

She has long dreamed of a cruise, and is thrilled. Though she has no money and no prospect of a job on her return, she decides to forget all this and, for a few weeks, enjoy herself. She sails down the bay on a ship. A handsome young man catches her eye. She realizes him as the same man she encountered the day before on the steamship company. He tells her he is from California, has recently moved to Lake Placid, and decides to conceal the fact that he is merely an unemployed man.

CHAPTER IV

Jane and the blond man circled the promenade on the S. S. Oceanic. They talked of trivial things like the movies and dance tunes and decided to explore the Florentine room which were already having drinks. Then they went to the Pompeian Room where they were splashing about in the water of the pool. As the man said: "Your name is Weston, isn't it?" "Yes," she said. "I saw it on the deck for you. I'm Dirk."

"I'm going to have the chair next to me for the rest of the voyage. Do you mind?"

She was secretly glad, because of the moments of his awkward revelation she trusted him. No man with an air as his could mean any harm, she thought. "I'm Dirk," he said, with reserve, shaking his head. "You work for the magazine, don't you?" "Yes," she said. "I'm a typist."

"I'm Dirk," he said eagerly. "I'm going to have the chair next to me for the rest of the voyage. Do you mind?"

ask me. What do you want to know?"

Dirk laughed, whole-heartedly. "Oh, what you do in that crazy place, the city. It gives me the jumps. I'm used to the wide, open spaces. Who you are, what things you like, what your ambition is—"

"But that takes time," she said gaily. "You can't pry out all the secrets of a girl's soul in a single seance. For a starter I'll tell you just one thing. My ambition is to have a good time and enjoy life—on this cruise. After that, well—"

She smiled. "You haven't told me what you do, besides spend a lot of time skiing at Lake Placid. But I don't care. I'll be me. And you be you, for the present. For myself I'm interested in the stage—"

She wondered whether she should not have told him the truth, that she was a typist without a job. But a rich young man might not be interested in a mere typist.

She looked about her to see if anybody had heard her. Standing close to her was a youngish man with dazzling sleek black hair which receded from a pale forehead.

Each puff less acid—Luckies are A LIGHT SMOKE OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

For twenty-five years the research staff of The American Tobacco Company has worked steadily to produce a measurably finer cigarette—namely, a cigarette having a minimum of volatile components, with an improved richness of taste—"A LIGHT SMOKE."

We believe that Lucky Strike Cigarettes embody a number of genuinely basic improvements, and that all these improvements combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

Huey's Choice to Be Governor

Emphatic notice to the nation that the Huey Long machine still rules in Louisiana was given in the Democratic primary vote which decided that this family will be the next occupants of the governor's mansion in Baton Rouge. Richard W. Leche, shown with Mrs. Leche and their 6-year-old son, Richard, Jr., was nominated for governor by a sweeping majority over the "Home Rule" candidate with nomination equivalent to election. Leche is a judge of the state appellate court and was Huey Long's choice for governor.

Judge Fires Asks Reelection

The Democrat is authorized by Judge A. J. Fires, of Childress, to announce his candidacy for reelection as Judge of the 100th Judicial District of Texas, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July.

Judge Fires, who is now completing his eighth year in the office, is too well known to the people of the district to need any recommendation from us, save the record he has made while in the office.

Judge Fires graduated from law school at Louisville, Ky., in 1886, came to Childress the same year, and in 1887 was admitted to the Bar in Childress County. That same year, on the organization of Childress County, he was named County Judge, his first office, and it may be said that he served in this position with the same splendid ability which has characterized his incumbency of the place he now holds.

When admitted to the Bar, there were only eleven lawyers in the Panhandle, the others now being deceased, and his friends of the profession have named him as the Dean of the Panhandle Bar.

In addition to having practiced law during the past 42 years, Judge Fires has been engaged in farming, ranching and other lines of business. As a farmer, having been reared on the farm, he has devoted himself not so much for the profit as for the encouragement and support of the industry.

"I appreciate more than words can express the loyal support that my friends in Hall County have always given me, both as an attorney and as District Judge," said Judge Fires, "and I am doubly grateful to the members of the Hall County Bar for their loyalty."

"During the time I have been District Judge I have always endeavored to be fair in the trial of cases, and to be economical in the matter of jury service as well as considerate to the jurors as the facts and circumstances would permit. I trust that the administration during the time I have been District Judge has met with the approval of the citizenship, and that I may in the future have their loyal support, as in the past."

Judge Fires also states that it will not be possible for him to make a canvass of the district and see all the voters, as he would like to, for the reason that every week of his time from now until July 25 will be taken up in sessions of the court in the various counties of the district, and he feels that the duties of the office should be considered first.

We commend the candidacy of Judge Fires to the voters of Hall County and the district as a whole, and urge the voters to carefully consider him when they cast their votes in the primary in July.

J. E. King left Saturday night for Cincinnati, Ohio after the new ambulance recently purchased by the King Furniture and Undertaking Company. It is the latest model and will add to their already up-to-date funeral equipment.

Your Income Tax

Exemptions Allowed Couples Married During Taxable Year

Taxpayers should note that under the Revenue Act of 1934 the credit for dependents as well as the personal exemption is required to be prorated where a change of status occurs during the taxable year and that these credits are allowable not only for the purpose of computing the normal tax, but also the surtax. A fractional part of a month is to be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it is considered a month.

For example, a single man and a single woman who were married on July 20, 1935, and were living together on the last day of the taxable year, may file a joint return. If they file their return or returns on the basis of the calendar year, they would be entitled to a personal exemption of $2,208.34, which is seven-twelfths of $1,000 for the husband while single, plus seven-twelfths of $1,000 for the wife while single, plus five-twelfths of $2,500 for the period during which they were married. If separate returns are filed, each is entitled to a personal exemption of $1,104.17, which is seven-twelfths of $1,000 plus one-half of five-twelfths of $2,500. If during the year 1935 the husband or the wife had the status of the head of a family prior to their marriage he or she would be entitled to his or her pro rata share of the personal exemption of $2,500 allowed the head of a family for the period prior to their marriage instead of merely that allowed a single person. However, for the period of their marriage any exemption to which either might be entitled as the head of a family would be merged in the joint personal exemption for that period. The joint personal exemption allowable in the case of a couple who were married and living together during the entire year may not exceed $2,500.

If a child under 18 years of age and dependent on the parent for support reaches the age of 18 years during the taxable year, the credit of $400 for a dependent is required to be prorated in the same manner as the personal exemption. For example, should the child's eighteenth birthday fall on June 30, the parent would be entitled to claim $200 credit for the dependent child—that is, one-half of $400. The same rule applies to other dependents where a change of status occurs during the taxable year.

Cagers Turn in Their Uniforms

Members of the Memphis Cyclone basketball team turned in their uniforms yesterday afternoon after experiencing the most disastrous season in local cage history, climaxed last week-end by dropping three straight contests in the County Interscholastic League Basketball Tournament at Estelline.

Lettermeir were not announced by Coach Swede Roark. This will be done shortly, he said. Next year's cage captain was not selected, and it is probable that the selection will be deferred until next year.

Four of the basketball players reported for spring football practice yesterday afternoon, taking light calisthenics along with the others in the school gymnasium. Those reporting from the cage squad were Willie Ben Wilson, Pud Malone, Peter Gilreath and Dennis Walker.

Paul Kennedy, teacher in the McLean School was a visitor in Memphis Sunday.

B. T. Prewitt and daughter, Charlotte, of Estelline are Memphis visitors today.

HARRY GRAYSON'S SPORTCAST

SPIDER MATLOCK had around 250 breaks, bruises, and burns. It was inevitable that the fatal break would go against him.

It did on the little dirt Ascot Speedway in Los Angeles when the car of Al Gordon blew a tire and crashed over the retaining wall, killing the renowned driver and his daredevil mechanic.

The odds against Gordon were heavy enough, although his risk was confined to tracks, so what could the price on Matlock have been? Spider courted death in any old line.

William E. Matlock was one of the "13 Black Cats"—reckless chaps who performed stunts in and out of motion pictures. Only two survive.

A director wanted a hardy soul who wasn't particular about his health to ride a motorcycle into a brick wall two feet high and go sailing over the handlebars.

Matlock was called in. Spider wasn't happy unless the thrill was real, so he chose a section of solid wall. He figured that he would soar about 20 feet after hitting it and had a net set up at that point.

Spider whizzed along while cameras whirred and smacked the wall with a terrific impact. Head over tea kettle he went, clearing the net by 10 feet and crashing through enough scenery to give "Midsummer Night's Dream" a good start.

MATLOCK and Bon McDougal tried out an airplane that Spider had just purchased. They took turns at the stick to see if one could make the other say uncle.

As Matlock started to set the plane down, McDougal leaned over the side as a means of aiding his personal condition. His knee hit the stick. Thinking that McDougal was signaling that he wanted to land the ship, Matlock turned loose the controls and the plane crashed, a total wreck. McDougal had a broken nose, Matlock a broken thumb.

Matlock was in the car with Billy Arnold when the 500-mile race at Indianapolis was worth $52,150 to that 23-year-old pilot in 1930.

The following Memorial Day they had a six-lap lead at the end of 425 miles when their mount struck an oil spot. The axle crumpled and the machine, traveling 140 miles an hour, went into a fearful spin. Another car smashed broadside into the Arnold-Matlock carryall, sending the leaders over the wall in flames.

The next year at Indianapolis, Pete Chris spun in front of them. In missing Chris, Arnold and Matlock again hurtled over the wall.

GORDON, too, laughed at death after a dozen years as a knight of the roaring bricks, dirt, and boards. The heavy-footed man of Long Beach, Calif., rammed the Indianapolis wall in a spin in 1934.

Gordon and his mechanic, Jimmy Dunham, had a miraculous escape in the big Hoosier number in 1935, when their car shot into a streak of oil. It swerved and crashed into the concrete embankment, only a few yards from a gap in the wall where a driver had died just before.

Why automobile race drivers and stunt men continue to risk their necks in the face of so many terrifying examples is hard to say. Certainly, there are safer ways of making a living.

Perhaps old Reggie McNamara spoke for them, too, when he was asked: "What are you going to do, die on a bike?"

"Naw," replied the 52-year-old pedal pusher. "I'll die if they take me off one."

Sentinels' Show-Or-Wheels Campaigns for Constitution

lead. He had an unwholesome, shifty glance. His ceaselessly roving eyes took her in, from the top of her head to her toes, as she talked. He seemed to be interested in her remark.

"Oh you're an actress!" Dirk said, and he naively looked at her more closely again. (Jane thought with a great deal more interest.) He grinned. "You have the looks for one. If your hair was redder you'd look like Myrna Loy. She's my favorite star. She could have the anytime," he added facetiously.

Jane saw the dark man watching her closely, and she took Dirk's arm to move away from the swimming pool. "I don't like that man," she said, low.

"There are a lot of strange types on board," Dirk put in. "I've been watching them since we sailed. But I suppose a big cruise ship is like the city—you've got to take 'em—all kinds. But from this minute on, you've somebody to look after you. If any of them annoy you, just let me know."

Jane smiled, and let her glance rove covertly over his broad shoulders and arms. He was a powerful creature.

They walked on. Jane was still a little in awe before the luxuries afforded by this floating palace of the seas. It was just like the motion pictures she had seen, only not quite so barbaric and splendid. They were in the gilded elevator, packed with laughing people, when a voice boomed out behind them.

Jane looked around and saw a man, almost bald, with cheeks like fat jowls. He was smiling and trying to wiggle through the mass to them.

"Mr. Strom," he said, panting in the crowd.

"Snowshoes!" Dirk exclaimed at the sight of him, and all the people laughed.

"Sh-h-h-h!" he cautioned, turning beet red even to the top of his head, which was like a polished billiard ball. The mass swallowed him up again when the contents of the elevator were disgorged at Deck A. But once he had extricated himself from the crowd he pounced on Dirk again. They stood in the foyer of the great lounge.

"Say, you eagle that flies with skis for wings, what are you doing on the high seas?"

"Snowshoes! Defender of the right. The law himself," Dirk said, introducing him to Jane. "This is Snowshoes Blake, a house detective! Going to look after the loose morals on this ship?"

Snowshoes looked about him cautiously and put a finger to his lips. "I'm on my first vacation," he said, in 20 years. The house dick in a hotel just goes on peeping. But it doesn't look as if I picked the right place for a vacation. In my 20 years of sending them to the pen I never saw a worse lot than is on board this ship."

Dirk laughed and pounded him on the back. "Same old story, Snowshoes. To you the world's just a big meat pie of crime."

The detective's eyes roved over the great lounge where men sat smoking and talking. "I can feel the hair rising on the back of my neck," he said. "Like a dog when he smells prowlers in the night. Well, if there ain't Dutch Lenz, the old badger artist. Everything from extortion to blackmail. Wonder what's his game now?"

He nodded his head toward the bar, where a heavy-set man with bristly cropped hair stood talking to the bartender.

Snowshoes clucked like a quarrelsome old hen. "It looks like a new gang war in New York has set the rats all scuttling to this ship. Excuse me, I'm on my way to my stateroom to lock up my winter clothes and a can of sardines. There may be a bread line on this ship before we get back to New York."

Dirk laughed. "You don't want to frighten Miss Weston."

Snowshoes pulled a news clipping out of his pocket. "You see that." They looked, and saw the beautiful likeness of Nora Lane, the celebrated actress. "Nora Lane is on board, and it got out to the papers yesterday. She's been in the headlines for a week now. That second husband of hers ought to be horsewhipped. They say she had bruises on her arms and face before she escaped from that Hudson river castle he owns. She's come on this cruise to rest her nerves, and I'll bet one third the people have come on board with Nora Lane in mind. There are just two things that attract mobs now—a Big Name and a collection of jewels. Miss Lane is both of them. She owns the Kokinor diamond, and takes it around with her in a necklace." Shaking his head Snowshoes went down the passageway toward his stateroom. Dirk had turned to conduct Jane into the lounge when she squeezed his arm suddenly. "That sleek blackhaired man has been following us. He's watching us now. Let's go out on deck."

Dirk said, "Snowshoes will have given you the jitters. Don't mind him."

It was growing dark outside on Deck A. They walked down the long polished boards until Dirk suddenly said: "There is my suite —AA." She looked at the door of this outside suite, with its penthouse air, and said, wrinkling her nose at him: "You snob! I'll feel like a galley slave down in Deck C. You wouldn't be the Danish sardine prince by any chance? Or do they grow sardines in the west where you come from? No, only lumber and gold dust," she went on, laughing.

He said, "My rooms are so large I feel lost in them. Come on in, and for cocktails. We can have them let me tell you about me. It's time sent up here."

She smiled at him. "It sounds terribly attractive, but not to-night," she said.

"Oh, there's a sitting room. I'm fixed up in great style! It's perfectly proper," he added quickly.

"No," she said firmly. "I'm going to my own stateroom, order a light supper, and take that rest I've promised myself."

He looked disappointed, but he said quickly: "I'll see you tomorrow in your deckchair. You can't get away from me, you know. Our chairs are tied together."

They turned and walked back down the deck. He left her at the elevator. Jane went to her own room confident that she had done what was proper. She couldn't let him think she was too eager to know him. Or too easy to be known. (To Be Continued)

CARD OF THANKS

To all those who in any way assisted us during the dark hours occasioned by the illness and death of our beloved wife, mother, and daughter may we express our sincerest gratitude. May the peace that passeth understanding enter your hearts when sadness overcomes you and may you be surrounded by loving friends who will aid you as you have aided us. To the Methodist Missionary Society who furnished the lovely meals, to all those who sent the beautiful floral tributes, to those who assisted in the funeral services, we wish especially to say, "Thank You."

Dear Sir:

In reading your notice of Hon. A. J. Fires' candidacy for District Judge of the 100th Judicial District, we note that you say he is holding the office, or is now completing his eighth consecutive term in this office.

We feel that you should correct this statement, as there is an error in the time he has held this office. He is only asking for it for the third term.

Yours respectfully,

Signed: Roy Jewell, W. C. Bridges, J. W. Reese, C. E. Johnson, D. B. Leach, Ruby Hall, J. W. Noel, Zeb Mitchell, Charles Rain, Tom Tate, W. E. Reeves, J. E. Pickett, R. E. Mann, J. D. Shaw, Roy A. Chaplin Film Causes More Than Riot of Laughter

Charlie Chaplin's movies have long been famous as riots of laughter, but his new one caused a real riot. In the mad scramble for autographs and a glimpse of celebrities arriving at the theater in New York where the film was unreeled, the crush of 300 persons bowled over and trampled on many of their own number. Victims of the jam that blocked Broadway traffic are shown on the sidewalk as police try to clear a path for an arriving car. Riot squads were called when the mob got out of hand.

indigent persons not working on the WPA projects.

In the event that the Texas Relief Commission and the Texas Welfare Department authorize the county to issue commodities to persons other than the unemployables, it will be at least a week or 10 days before the commodities can be issued, Judge Vallance pointed out.

The Hall County Commissioners' Court has already appointed a case worker to investigate the status of those applying for the goods. The case worker, however, is subject to approval of the department.

TRC and the State Welfare Dept. There are enough commodities at present in the government warehouse here to start the proposed local relief program. Certain commodities are on hand in amount sufficient to run the present relief load for two or three years, it was said. These, however, are isolated examples.

Advices from the local relief office are that there is a larger number of persons in the county who are in destitute circumstances but are not employed by the WPA.

Clothing, in addition to the regular groceries, are now being issued the Hall County unemployables, Mrs. Lala Shaw, local relief head, stated. The clothing is made by the Memphis WPA Sewing Room, under the supervision of Mrs. L. C. Sayers. Twenty dozen garments were transferred from the sewing room to the commodity house this morning.

Mrs. H. W. Stringer, Mrs. C. D. Denny and daughter, Jean, and Mrs. B. F. Denny, spent the weekend in Abilene. Mrs. Stringer visited her daughter, Ruby Lee, who is a student at Hardin-Simmons University and the Denny's were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Roberts.
